Three thousand trucks and 1,500 cars are included in the initial French purchases from the United States.

Efforts to resume operations on Indo-Chinese estates, isolated from Saigon by Annamese roadblocks, are under way. Work orders and bags of money for the payment of coolie labor have been dropped from low-flying planes in some areas, in an effort to speed operations.

FRENCH EMPLOYING U. S. TANKS PUSHING TOWARD CAMBODIA

Powerful Forces Occupy Tay Ninh, 58 Miles From Saigon.

DAY

Saigon, French China, Nov. 9 (Delayed) (A. P.).—An overpowering French force equipped with lend-lease tanks of American manufacture yesterday occupied Tay Ninh, fifty-eight miles northwest of Saigon, opening the first overland link with food-rich Cambodia.

Although the French were known to be utilizing United States-made equipment, French authorities declined to furnish details or estimate the amount of American arms used by the Ninth and Eleventh French Colonial regiments or elements of the veteran French Second Armored Division.

Bitter fighting raged late into the night after the French ran into the focal point of Annamese resistance in a bamboo forest six miles from Tay Ninh. The French said they had seized a "large number of important documents," an indication that they may have discovered the long-sought headquarters of Viet Minh, Annamese nationalist movement.

The reopening of the land route to Cambodia will permit extra food supplies to be brought to Saigon and make it possible for two Japanese divisions to move from Phnompenh to a Saigon concentration area. In the past the only contact with Cambodia was maintained by river convoys.

JAPS FOSTERED ASIATIC REVOLTS,

NOV 1 1 194

Trained Hundreds Of Natives To Foment Strife

LAND/SEA

Tokyo, Nov. 10 (AP)—The Japanese trained hundreds of Asiatics to foment strife in their homelands and explosions from "intellectual land mines" are going off now, particularly in the Dutch East Indies, Brig. Gen. Elliot R. Thorpe said today.

General MacArthur's chief of counterintelligence told a news conference the Americans had uncovered a propaganda school at American-built St. Paul's University in Tokyo where the Japanese during the war trained Javanese and other Asiatics "in discontent."

NIGHT

Pupils Of Many Nationalities

The Japanese thus prepared the day when the Allies returned to the lands the empire conquered early in the war. The General said similar explosions of Japanese-fostered Asiatic nationalism likely would continue "for some time to come."

Thorpe declared the so-called "school for Greater East Asia culture" had for its pupils Malayans, Chinese, Koreans, Burmans and other nationalities besides Javanese.

He added the Japanese also tried to cultivate the Indonesian Nationalist leader Soekarno, and Subhas Chandra Bose, Indianan Nationalist who was killed in an airplane crash more than a year ago.

Subservience Fostered

Thorpe said the Japanese Pan-Asiatic propaganda never got to first base in the Philippines.

The Japanese, Thorpe continued, hoped to drive a wedge between the Allies by arousing native populations to revolt against colonial rule, taking advantage of sympathy in Allied countries for the underdog.

Among the Japanese people, on the other hand, government propaganda fostered subservience rather than discontent.

To transform this subservience into independence will be a long job, Thorpe predicted—"anything short of a twenty-year occupation would be futile.

MacArthur And Premier Talk

"We have got to educate the people to stand guard over their liberal thinkers," he said.

Thorpe announced another list of Japanese war criminal suspects would be issued soon, but declined to say when or to give details.

Premier Kujuro Shidehara conferred for an hour yesterday with General MacArthur, it was disclosed today, but the subject of their conversation was not announced.

Theaters "Liberated"

MacArthur "liberated" Japanese drama, announcing that Government control had been lifted from the theaters. Heretofore, plays were censored by the Japanese Government and actors and producers were licensed.

Other developments on the occupation front:

Two American ships and a Japanese aircraft carrier unloaded 4,987 Japanese service men and civilian repatriates near Yokohama. The civilians were from the Philippines, the others from various Pacific islands.

More than 1,500 men of the veteran Americal Division embarked for home.

Shidehara One Of Few Optimists In Japan

NOV 11 1945

By Glenn Babb

Tokyo, Nov. 10 (AP)—Premier Kijuro Shidehara believes General MacArthur is moving "in a fair and effective manner" to carry out his program of ending militarism and establishing democracy in Japan.

Many Japanese, he added, hope the American supreme commander will succeed in bringing freedom and lasting peace to Japan.

[Shidehara's secretary disclosed today that the Premier conferred for an hour yesterday with General MacArthur. What the two discussed "must come from MacArthur," the secretary added.

[It was the second such meeting since Shidehara took office. Yesterday's meeting followed a conference of Shidehara with leading Japanese business men in Osaka.]

Still An Optimist

The 73-year-old statesman, called from a fourteen-year retirement to lead his country through the occupation, is among the few declared optimists in Japan.

"When we contemplate the American occupation as the result of disastrous defeat, we can't help some feeling of bitterness," he told me. "But we can also hope it will prove a blessing in disguise. . . . This defeat was a terrible calamity, but that's war. We can only hope it will prove a lesson that will lead us to a better future."

Shidehara was Ambassador to Washington in the early 1920's and then gained fame as Foreign Minister in a series of liberal cabinets. He went into eclipse in December, 1931, after the militarists, having begun the conquest of Manchuria, toppled the last of the liberal governments from power.

Thinks In Terms Of 1920's

Shidehara made it obvious that he still thinks largely in terms of the liberalism of the 1920's when facing the task of carrying out the revolutionary changes dictated by MacArthur.

On October 11 the Allied commander handed him a list of sweeping changes and demanded that the Premier effectuate them. These included emancipation of women, encouragement of labor unionization, liberalization of education, abolition of rule by the secret police and dissolution of the old economic monopolies and great concentrations of wealth.

He was also required to take over the task of revising the constitution to give democratic forces full play and to effectuate full freedom of the press and all other means of public information and discussion.

Ability Widely Debated

Whether Shidehara is capable of holding together a Cabinet of revived liberals and civil servants with little political background is a widely-debated question. He made clear, however, that he hopes to retain the office at least until elections for a new Parliment, probably early in 1946.

The consensus of Americans and Japanese is that he is not likely to survive the elections if he lasts that long. The Japanese say he has been too long out of public life and lacks any important political support. The Americans say that the demands of the occupation program are likely to prove too much for his physical and political strength.

If great revolutionary changes are imminent, as most believe, it seems likely that Shidehara is slated to be the Kerensky of the new era, not its Lenin. Typical of Shidehara's attitude toward change is his stand on constitutional revision.

"Had Democracy In 1920's

"We had a democratic government in Japan under this constitution in the 1920's," he told me. "We can have it again now that the sinister elements which ended the democratic government have been removed. I don't say the constitution should not be amended, but I do believe democracy is possible without amendment. But you should understand that the American form of democracy is not the only one. We shouldn't be required to adopt the American form."

Britain's limited monarchy is a more suitable pattern for Japan, he indicated. This would permit retention of the Emperor as a constitutional monarch.

Shidehara said a study of the revision, now assigned to Joji Matsumoto, Minister without portfolio, would not be completed before the elections early next year. Whether this pace will satisfy the Allies remains to be seen.

Speaks Fluent English

Despite his long isolation from English-speaking people, his English remains fluent and incisive. He loves to quote Shakespeare and other English classics to make a point. To illustrate his concept of current relations between the United States and Japan, he told me this story:

The Premier's barber formed a friendship with an American soldier. One day the barber brought Shidehara a Japanese flag with a request that the premier autograph it.

"This I refused, because I considered it wrong to so use our national flag," Shidehara said. "But I sent the American soldier a fan whereon I had written Portia's speech from the 'Merchant of Venice,' which begins: 'The quality of mercy is not strained. . . .'" He went on to quote the entire speech fluently and accurately. That epitomized his talk.

"You give us a chance to hope," he said.

JAP POLITICOS RETAIN REINS

NOV 1 1945

Three Dominating Parties Under Old-Line Chiefs

BYNES

Tokyo, Nov. 10 (AP)—The People's, Liberals and Socialist parties—manned by old-line politicans—dominate the first free election campaign in more than twenty years.

Labor emerges as potentially the most influential new voice in Japanese politics as the parties square off over issues ranging from retention of the emperor to socialization of industry.

It is strongly represented in the Shakaito or Socialist party, led by veteran Laborite, Tetsu Katayama. The most of the party's shrewdest captains hope for is 100 seats in the new parliament.

People's Party Strongest

At the present, the strongest party appears to be the Minhonto or People's party, which boasts 250 members of the Diet who will campaign for re-election.

Made up of old-line politicians, the People's party will hold its inaugural rally November 16. The election itself is not expected to be called before January and that leaves lots of time for campaigning.

The People's party, whose executive committee includes house speaker Toshio Shimada, has extended feelers to Prince Konoye, former priemier, to take over the presidency, thus showing its conservative nature.

The second most important party is the Jiyuto, or Liberal party, having 50 current Diet seats and now seeking a representation of at least 150 in the new Parliament.

Socialists Rank Third

The Socialists rank third in strength and much farther back in fourth place comes the vocally strong but numerically weak Communist party demanding an end to the institution of the emperor.

All three major parties have announced their firm support of the emperor system.

The Liberals have a platform calling for hewing to the Potsdam declaration and setting up a democratic system under the emperor. Their leaders strongly support private property against Communist attacks.

But for all that they have an agreement with the Socialists, advocates of nationalization of industry, to collaborate after the election.

The absence of new talent from all these parties is not surprising. Not only do the Japanese prefer age in their leaders but in the last militant decade there has been no opportunity for honest, political education.

SAYS JAP PRINCE WOULD DROP TITLE

Tokyo, Nov. 10 (A. P.).—The newspaper Yomiuri has reported Prince Naruhiki Higashi-Kuni, cousin of Emperor Hirohito and Premier of Japan's first post-surrender Cabinet, wants to surrender his imperial title and become a common subject.

The prince announced his intention of shedding his title several days ago, Yomiuri said, making application through a palace official for the Emperor's permission. Hirohito's decision has not been announced.

Higashi-Kuni was quoted as saying that if he become a commoner he would endeavor to protect and maintain imperial Japan and "devote myself to the promotion of universal peace."

There have been reports that Prince Fumimaro Konoye, former Premier and Vice-Premier in Higahsi-Kuni's Cabinet, also would ask the Emperor's permission to abandon his title. The reports said that Konoye, who is not of emperial rank, wished to carry on his political activities as a commoner.

Tokyo Throng Gets 1,500,000 Yen

TOKYO, Nov. 10 (AP)—A truck struck a hole in a road today and the Japanese Government lost 1,500,000 yen. The truck was transporting 2,000,000 yen in new 100-yen notes in a box. The jolt threw out the box and a scurrying throng reaped a harvest. Police gathered up 500,000 yen of the notes.

Americal Men Coming Home

Tokyo, Nov. 10 (AP)—More than 1,500 men of the Americal Division have embarked for home on the ship Herald of the Morning, including the 1st Battalion of the 132d Infantry, Company B of the 121st Medical Battalion of the 132d Infantry, Company B of the 121st Medical Battalion and the 246th Field Artillery Battery.

Japanese Drama 'Liberated'

TOKYO, Nov. 10 (AP).—General Douglas MacArthur today "liberated" the Japanese drama, announcing that government control had been lifted from the theaters. Heretofore plays were censored by the Japanese government and actors and producers were licensed.

Japanese Invaders Home

TOKYO Nov. 10 (AP).—Two American ships debarked 3,040 Japanese civilian repatriates from the Philippines at Uraga near Yokohama today and the Japanese aircraft carrier docked at the same port with 1,947 Japanese service men from Jaluit, Maloelap and Wotje Islands in the Marshall group.

The senior officer among the returnees from Wotje, Rear Admiral Shinichi Yoshimi, said that when he landed on the island in July, 1943, the garrison numbered 2,300 men and officers, but that it was reduced to about 1,000 at surrender time by starvation, malnutrition and 300 combat deaths.

Sailings From Yokohama

YOKOHAMA, Nov. 10 (AP).—The transport General Buckner was scheduled to sail for Seattle today with 500 officers and 4,747 enlisted men of the United States 6th Army.

REDS SEEK ACCORD WITH ARGENTINA

NOV 11 19

Buenos Aires, Nov. 10 (A. P.).—The Soviet Union has made overtures toward the establishment of diplomatic relations with Argentina, Foreign Minister Juan I. Cooke said last night. He said contacts had been made between a representative of the Polish Government and the Argentine Ambassador in London.

The contemporary importance of the Soviet Union makes it advisable for Argentina to maintain relations with her, Cooke told a press conference. He added that in the past there has been no opportunity to effect liaison.

Stalemate Seen At Windsor

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 10 (AP)—Humphrey Mitchell, Canadian Minister of Labor, left Windsor today after apparently failing to bring about a settlement of the two-month-old strike at the Ford Motor Company plant here.

Shortly before leaving Mitchell said he probably would not return, but would report on the situation to the Canadian Cabinet Monday.

As the Government gave up, at least temporarily, its efforts to intervene, the CIO United Automobile Workers threatened a Dominion-wide work "holiday" in support of the Ford strikers.

AFL Backing Asked

A policy committee of the UAW-CIO recommended at a meeting last night that immediate preparations be made for a one-day sympathy walkout by an estimated 330,000 members of the Canadian Labor Congress.

The committee, which also called on all AFL union members to join the stoppage, did not set a date for it, although there were indications it would be soon.

Arbitration Plan Rejected

The policy committee also unanimously indorsed the action of a six-man union negotiating committee in rejecting a company proposal to let a Government-appointed arbitrator settle the strike.

Maintaining its demands for a union shop and dues checkoff similar to that in effect in American Ford plants, the policy committee said the union was willing to arbitrate all other points in dispute.

George F. Addes, international UAW-CIO secretary-treasurer, and other international officers were expected to meet with the national Ford strike committee here today.

Company's Proposal

The company proposed late yesterday that all picketing be ended, work resumed as quickly as possible and Labor Minister Mitchell or an Ontario Supreme Court judge be appointed as arbitrator.

In rejecting the proposal, the union said it was opposed to "compulsory arbitration methods."

Before the company made its proposal, the union said it would reopen the plant power house and admit Ford office workers through picket lines if the company agreed to a union shop and checkoff.

The strike, which began September 12, has left an estimated 20,000 idle in sympathy walkouts in 30 Windsor plants.

Pickets still patrolled the Ford plant today and provincial police were kept on duty in barracks here. A mass meeting of all UAW-CIO, AFL and labor congress members, representing 30,000 workers, was scheduled for tomorrow night.

TRUMAN, ATTLEE KING OPEN TALKS IN WHITE HOUSE

Russian Leaders, Not Invited, Keeping Close Watch on Conference.

SPEED UP SCHEDULE

Jewish Immigration Into Palestine Also Expected to Be Discussed.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 — (AP) Chiefs of the three nations which developed the atomic bomb opened talks on its future this afternoon and attended tonight a State dinner at which experts on the awesome new weapon were guests.

Fifty-two persons, representing leaders in foreign affairs of this country and the British Commonwealth, were invited to the social event in the White House.

Confer in White House

While Russian leaders watched from afar, President Truman and Prime Ministers Attlee of Britain and Mackenzie King of Canada pulled up easy chairs in the White House this afternoon and began discussing what to do about the atomic bomb.

This presented a speed-up in the schedule. As late as last night it had called for the talks to start Sunday.

But Attlee arrived early this morning by plane from London, Mackenzie King came in from the same capital by ship and train and the decision was made to start the conference at once. It will continue through next week.

It seemed probable that other subjects than atomic energy and explosives would be discussed by Mr. Truman and the British prime minister. Foremost on the list of possibilities is that of Jewish immigration into Palestine.

An Associated Press dispatch from London said it was reported the Britain and the United States already had agreed upon creation of a joint committee to deal with the Palestine problem and the related issue of displaced European Jews, but that Attlee wanted to talk it over with President Truman before any announcement is made. Possibly in connection this, Mr. Truman conferred today with a group of American diplomatic representatives here from the middle east.

May Discuss Loan

Another question which may come up is that of Anglo-American negotiations over a United States loan of about $4,000,000,000 to Britain. British officials said Attlee would discuss this with Lord Keynes, one of the principle British negotiators, in the next day or so.

Diplomatic officials were inclined to agree, in private talks to reporters, with a Russian newspaper assertion that relations between the western powers and Russia would be under serious test until the Russians find out (1) Anglo-American plans for international handling of the bomb, and (2) what part—if any—Russia has in them.

Mr. Truman has called for "outlawing" the bomb and Attlee has talked about putting it in the custody of the United Nations. But neither has outlined yet a specific course for its future control or for handling the basic scientific knowledge of atomic energy which America, Britain and Canada share.

Diplomats here speculated that the President and prime ministers would consider seriously proposals to share this knowledge with other countries, provided all agree to submit to United Nations inspection to keep bomb manufacture under control.

This immediately raised a question whether Russia, with her tight system of secrecy, would agree to any inspection or to any extension of the authority of the United Nations over member countries.

Diplomatic officials predict that, in line with general big-three practice, Generalissimo Stalin and Foreign Commissar Molotov will be informed of the conclusions reached here as soon as they are made.

Russia Not Invited

Russia was not invited to the present conference because she did not share in the development of the atomic bomb. Her attitude has been stated pointedly by Molotov. He said a few days ago that the Soviet Union would get atomic energy and that it could not be kept secret.

The possible effects of the problem on big-three policy were highlighted yesterday in Moscow by a Pravda editorial. It said that Anglo-American-Russian collaboration is "undergoing serious tests." The newspaper speaks with official weight.

How the situation stands now is indicated in these behind-the-scenes developments, which are reported here on the authority of both Allied and American diplomatic officials and advisers:

1. Generalissimo Stalin, in recent talks with U. S. Ambassador Harriman, almost flatly rejected a compromise proposal by Secretary of State Byrnes to get on with the writing of European peace treaties, following a stalemate of the Foreign Ministers council meeting in London in September.

Byrnes wanted the big-three nations to get together on the treaties, then hold a general peace conference by the year's end. With time running out, Stalin is reported to have said there seemed to be no point in holding a peace conference until the big-three had threshed out their common problems.

2. Hopes recently expressed by President Truman for a compromise of the issue of Japanese control now appear less bright to some members of the Far Eastern Advisory commission, from which Russia still holds aloof. The commission is going ahead with its work of investigating Japanese control policies. But its power remains uncertain, pending settlement of the control council question between the United States and Russia.

Attlee's reception at the airport was more serious than colorful. It lacked the fanfare and ceremony which sometimes attend the arrival here of a foreign leader.

NOV 11

As he stepped down from the big four-engined "Skymaster" in which he had crossed the Atlantic, he was greeted by British Ambassador Lord Halifax and officially welcomed by Secretary Byrnes. They took him immediately to the White House.

Following a luncheon there, he met with Mr. Truman and MacKenzie King. Others in this initial parley, according to the White House, were Byrnes, Halifax, Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's chief of staff; Lester B. Pearson, Canadian ambassador, and T. L. Rowan, Attlee's private secretary.

Truman, Attlee Remarks

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10—The texts of the remarks by President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee at the state dinner tonight follow:

BY PRESIDENT TRUMAN

It is a very great privilege for me tonight as the President of the United States to be host to the Prime Ministers of Great Britain and Canada and the representatives of the other commonwealths of the British Empire; and I want to say a few things that are, I think, in the hearts of all of us.

We, I know, are striving for a world order, and a world peace, in which nations will feel as the British Commonwealth of nations does, and as the forty-eight States in the United States feel. The objective of the United States, I think, has been stated both by the President and by the Secretary of State in words which all of us can understand. We are trying heroically to implement the program which was started by Woodrow Wilson, was carried forward by Franklin Roosevelt, and was finally consummated at San Francisco by a delegation made up of members of the Senate and citizens at large, without political complexion.

One of the great things of the British Empire is that when they have a foreign policy—and they always have one—the British people are behind that foreign policy, no matter which Government is in power. That was amply illustrated at the Potsdam Conference, which started with Winston Churchill as Prime Minister of Great Britain and ended with our guest of honor tonight as the Prime Minister of Great Britain.

And there was no break in the negotiations. Mr. Attlee was there with Mr. Churchill from the beginning. He knew the aims of the conference, and when he came back as Prime Minister things went on just as they had started.

I am hoping that the United States of America can implement a foreign policy which will be the policy of the people of the United States, and not the policy of any political party.

The Prime Minister of Great Britain and the Prime Minister of Canada are here to discuss with the Secretary of State and the President of the United States a program for the use of atomic energy, and for the implementing of a peace program that will be world-wide and continuous, and that will include every nation in the world, without exception.

We are going at our conferences prayerfully. We are hoping that agreements and policies will come out of those conferences which will make the United Nations Organization a living, moving, active program.

BY MR. ATTLEE

Mr. President and Gentlemen: I am extraordinarily glad to be here this evening at this historic occasion, and in this great White House, and to be your guest tonight.

I heard what you said with great interest, Mr. President, of the need for having a foreign policy—a foreign policy for Britain, a foreign policy for the United States of America. But it seems to me today that what we need most of all is a universal foreign policy, a foreign policy that is directed not to any immediate aim of any particular country, but a foreign policy that is conceived in the interest of all the people of the world. That does not mean that we do not take into account our particular differences, but it seems to me today that our overriding interests of world civilization come first.

We all stand here for freedom, but we know that freedom may be attacked from many sides. Freedom needs to be retranslated every generation. Things that menace it in one epoch pass away; something else may menace it in another.

We all here believe in democracy. We have come out of the war in a great fight for freedom and democracy. And I think that standing here today with the United States of America and the representatives of the British Commonwealth of Nations we can all take pride in our democracy.

We can all take pride in our freedom; but I think we must beware of attributing that entirely to our own virtues. It has also something to do with our own geographical position, and we have a little charity toward others who are less happily placed.

Science Overcomes Barriers

We, for years, have had the Channel to protect us; you, for years, have had the Atlantic—but as we known today, the discoveries of science are transcending seas and transcending oceans.

We must not let anything rob us of our freedom, and of our democracy. Rather, we must try to see whether w ecannot give to all nations that kind of security, in which through long years on both sides of the Atlantic we worked up in practice, that most difficult of all forms of government—democracy, about the only form of government that is worthy of free men.

And I hope, Mr. President, that our meeting today—this week—in which we shall take counsel together, will lead us on to help in bringing about what I believe is the supreme need of today—the lifting of the bonds of fear from the human spirit, and the setting free of the human spirit, so that science, instead of a menace, as it is being looked on today, shall be looked on as something that is throwing open wide the gate to a fuller life for all of us.

It is my earnest desire, Mr. President, in meeting you here today, that you and I and Mr. King, and all others with whom we shall be talking, will keep ever in mind that what we are out for today is to try and devise a world policy of the common man.

'No Obvious Atom Counterweapon'

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—Dr. H. D. Smyth, author of the War Department's report on the atomic bomb, says he and his colleagues are convinced there was "no obvious way of approaching a counterweapon."

Dr. Smyth, chairman of Princeton University's physics department, declared in a speech yesterday that it was "ridiculous to talk of exploding bombs at a distance by radio or other known methods."

Nine in House Assail Bill on Atomic Control

Say Proposed Commission Would Hamper Research; Urge Temporary Agency

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP).—Nine members of the House Military Affairs Committee declared today that establishment of a permanent Federal atomic-energy commission as now proposed "would undermine the very foundation upon which our national life is built."

Legislation setting up the commission to control the use and development of nuclear energy has already been approved by a majority of the committee. It is expected to reach the floor soon.

The nine dissenters, including one Democrat and eight Republicans, issued a sharply critical report urging that:

1. The House send the bill back for further study and revision.

2. The measure should be of "interim character" and provide only for a temporary agency.

3. Powers of the agency should be greatly reduced, particularly to allow Congressional control and supervision.

In an earlier report the committee majority had recommended speedy action to set up a nine-member, part-time commission with broad authority over atomic energy.

The majority said the proposed commission needed power in order to protect atomic secrets. It urged that the legislation deal only with domestic control and leave international problems for later settlement.

Dissenters Listed

The dissenting report filed today was signed by Representative John E. Sheridan, Democrat-Political Action, and the following Republicans: Representatives Dewey Short, of Missouri; Leslie C. Arends, of Illinois; Charles R. Clason, of Massachusetts; Paul W. Shafer, of Michigan; Charles H. Elston, of Ohio; Forest A. Harness, of Indiana; Ivar D. Fenton, of Pennsylvania, and Clare Boothe Luce, of Connecticut.

The report, in part, declared:

"Even if this were to be interim legislation its extreme terms are unwarranted by any circumstance or condition.

"While the vast powers outlined . . . are requested under the hue and cry of an emergency, it should be borne in mind that the atomic bomb was conceived and developed over a considerable period of time without specific Congressional action.

"We fully recognize that there must be a measure of secrecy and regulation, with rigid controls, but we are far from convinced that any emergency would warrant the surrender by Congress of the arbitrary and limitless powers set by this bill.

Would Undermine Foundations

"We believe that passage of this bill would undermine the very foundations upon which our national life is built.

"It would defeat the purpose for which it purports to have been introduced. Scientific research, instead of being encouraged, would be circumscribed and limited by the whim and caprice of the commission and its personnel.

"Certainly something more should be sought than to keep from others the knowledge we have."

DEWEY LISTED IN PROBE OF PEARL HARBOR

NOV 11 1945

Witnesses Scheduled For Appearance Announced By Barkley

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—Gov. Thomas Dewey of New York, 1944 Republican presidential candidate, was listed officially today as a witness at the Pearl Harbor investigation which starts Thursday.

The list made public by Senator Alben W. Barkley, committee chairman, included:

Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

Admiral Richardson (presumably Admiral J. O. Richardson, who was relieved of command of the Pacific Fleet months before the Japanese attack on the Hawaiian bastion).

Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short and Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, respective commanders of the army and naval forces in the islands when the Japanese struck.

Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Former Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles.

Joseph Grew, Ambassador to Japan at the time of the attack.

Admiral Harold Stark, who was naval chief of staff in December, 1941.

Former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson.

Miss Grace Tully, private secretary to the late President Roosevelt and now guardian of his official papers.

Forty-eight witnesses were listed in all. They included many whose names have been mentioned in preliminary investigations of events connected with the disastrous blow that opened the war with Japan.

Facts Before Public

It was assumed that Dewey was included because of the disclosure several weeks ago that he had information bearing on the attack at the time he was campaigning for the presidency last year. General Marshall at that time asked him not to divulge the knowledge for security reasons.

In making the list public, Barkley gave his assurance that the committee will not "countenance any effort to keep from the public any fact material to the inquiry."

All the facts will be laid before the public, he declared, "no matter whom they may hurt in high or low places."

Fights GOP Criticisms

Obviously rapping back at Republican criticisms of conduct of the investigation to date, Barkley said no one "should jump at conclusions" as to sufficiency of the evidence until the "initial proof" is presented at the hearings.

"Al documents, records or information which the counsel has requested from departments have been furnished or are in course of preparation," he said in a written statement.

"All documents and information obtained by counsel are available to every individual member of the committee.

"All requests by individual members for information, whether classified top secret, secret, confidential or otherwise, have been presented to the departments by the counsel's office and supplied or in the course of preparations."

"Authorized To Talk"

Barkley said that by presidential order every person in the Government service has been "authorized and encouraged" to talk with individual members of the committee and volunteer information.

"The evidence prepared up to date," he said, "includes great quantities of material from many sources, heretofore unpublished and confidential, including White House records and the papers of President Roosevelt."

He said the list of 48 witnesses was only tentative and that other names suggested by committee members would be added from time to time.

Other figures on the witness list include Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., Gen. Maj. Sherman Miles and Col. Henry C. Clausen.

Other Developments

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), a committee member, declared recently in a Senate speech that several army officers had revised their original statements about the attack after Clausen made contact with them on "a trip around the world."

Meanwhile, there were these other developments in the investigation.

Senator Ferguson has asked that Grew supply official memoranda he made as Ambassador to Japan before the Japanese attack.

Senator Scott Lucas (D., Ill.) described Ferguson's demand for committee perusal of the diary of former War Secretary Stimson as an attempt to look at "personal papers."

Roosevelt-Churchill

Lucas expressed the opinion that Republicans will be "greatly surprised" when they see the files of correspondence between the late President Roosevelt and former Prime Minister Churchill.

Ferguson and Senator Brewster (R., Maine) have said they asked for these files to see if anything in them bore on the possibility of this country's entry into the war about the time the Atlantic Charter was publicized.

Lucas told a reporter the Republican members seemed to indicate in Senate debate yesterday that a Senate-House inquiry committee can't be trusted to make a thorough investigation of the responsibility for the naval disaster. Democrats outnumber Republicans six to four on the group.

"The only mistake the committee seems to have made," the Illinois senator declared, "is that it didn't employ Senator Ferguson, the one-man investigator from Michigan, as its general counsel.

"It apparently is his view that no other committee member, the general counsel, no one in the War or Navy departments and none of those who have charge of the late President Roosevelt's files can be trusted."

"I Expected That From Scott"

Advised of Lucas's remarks, Ferguson told a reporter:

"I expected that from Scott. His sarcasm is not going to deter me. All I want is a chance to help the committee make a vigorous investigation.

"I don't think it is right for the committee to sit back and wait for the departments to produce what evidence they want to produce. After all, I can't find anything in the files that doesn't exist. If there is nothing there of a disturbing nature, why are they objecting to my looking?"

Lucas said he expects exhibits collected by William D. Mitchell, committee counsel, to be made available to members early next week.

Stimson's Diary Requested For Sneak Probe

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) disclosed today he has asked counsel for the Senate-House Pearl Harbor inquiry committee to obtain the official diary of former Secretary of War Stimson.

Ferguson said he wants to read the day-by-day account of Stimson's official acts before he crossexamines the former Cabinet member on testimony Stimson is expected to give in public hearings.

"I don't know how I could cross-examine him intelligently without having a chance to see such records in advance," Ferguson said.

Requested Two Weeks Ago

He asked William D. Mitchell, the counsel, to request the War Department for the diary two weeks ago but has not yet received it, Ferguson said.

Senator Lucas (D., Ill.) suggested yesterday that the committee pause to pull all "loose ends" of its investigation together after it has had about a month of public hearings, which will begin next Thursday.

Committee Chairman Barkley (D., Ky.) concurred, saying the minority then could bring up any matter it thinks has not received sufficient attention.

The suggestion was offered after Ferguson and Senator Brewster (R., Me.) protested against terms of a new order by President Truman to make evidence available to the investigating group.

The President previously had requested agency heads to permit Government employés to volunteer information to the committee or its counsel. He supplemented that yesterday with a request that they authorize the employés to give oral information to individual committee members, but added:

"This does not include any files or written matter.

Explanation Offered

Brewster and Ferguson asserted that this must mean that Government employés may not talk to individual committee members about anything which might be in the files or might be written.

Barkley replied:

"The President has done exactly what we asked him to do and that is to permit people in the Government to volunteer any information they have."

He said any Republican member could obtain any information from any Government employé and then come back to the committee and have it ask for pertinent files.

U.S. and Britain May Recognize Albanian Rule

Early and Free Elections in the Balkan Country Are Their Only Condition

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP).—The United States and Great Britain proposed today to recognize the partly Communist government of Albania upon assurances that it will allow the Albanian people to hold unrestricted and freely reported elections at an early date. Balloting in Albania for a constituent assembly has been set for Dec. 2.

[The Moscow radio said the Russian government has informed Premier Enver Hoxha of Albania that the Soviet Union has decided to establish diplomatic relations with Albania and exchange envoys.]

The Hoxha administration, with a Cabinet about equally split between Communists and non-Communists, grew out of the Albanian resistance movement and came to power at Tirana following final liberation of Albania about a year ago.

Over Greek Protest

Britain took the step toward recognition over a protest from Greece, which has made territorial demands for northern Epirus. Foreign Office officials at London said, however, that the action will not prejudice the Greek claims.

Albania was swallowed up by Benito Mussolini's Fascist legions on April 7, 1939. The United States never recognized Italian sovereignty and officially considered Albania a friendly country throughout the war. It was liberated by its own resistance forces and never occupied by Russian or other Allied troops.

The Department of State issued the following statement:

"Since the Fascist invasion and occupation of Albania in 1939, the United States government, although maintaining no official relations with an Albanian government, has stated on several occasions its support of the restoration of Albanian independence. The American people have admired the long and courageous struggle of the Albanians to liberate their land from Axis tyranny. This struggle, aided by increasing Allied military pressure, was brought to a successful conclusion at the end of 1944 when the Albanian resistance forces expelled the German invaders and established at Tirana a central governing authority, which has exercised effective control over the entire country.

Mission Took Survey

On May 8, 1945, the informal American mission, headed by Foreign Service Officer Joseph E. Jacobs, entered Albania to survey conditions and developments there preliminary to consideration by this government of the request of the Albanian authorities for recognition. Having studied the final report of this mission and consulted with the other major Allied governments, the United States government has today, through its informal representative in Tirana, communicated to Colonel General Enver Hoxha, president of the Council of Ministers of the existing regime in Albania, a note on the question of recognition. It is understood that the British and Soviets governments have also today communicated notes to General Hoxha on the same subject. The text of the United States note is as follows:

" 'The government of the United States, having considered the request of the Albanian authorities for recognition, has instructed me to inform you of its readiness to enter into diplomatic relations with the existing regime in Albania as the provisional government of Albania.

" 'In establishing official relations with an Albanian government, the United States Government desires to act in conformity with the obligations and principles to which it subscribed in the Crimea Declaration on Liberated Europe and accordingly requests assurances that the forthcoming elections for a Constituent Assembly shall be held on a genuinely free basis, with secret ballot and with no threats or intimidation; that all democratic individuals and groups in Albania shall enjoy freedom of speech and the right lawfully to present and support their candidates; and that foreign press correspondents shall be permitted to enter Albania to observe and report freely on the elections and the work of the Constituent Assembly.

Want Treaties Observed

" 'The Government of the United States also desires that the Albanian authorities shall confirm that the treaties and agreements which were in force between the United States and Albania on April 7, 1939, remain valid. The United States Government, on its part, confirms the continuing validity of these instruments.

" 'Upon receipt of the assurances requested the Government of the United States will be prepared to proceed with the exchange of diplomatic representatives.

" 'I have also been directed to advise you that the present proposal of the United States Government with regard to the establishment of diplomatic relations should not be construed as prejudicing consideration, at a later date, of other questions of an international character involving Albania.

" 'I shall be most happy to transmit to my government your reply to the proposals set forth above.' "

Truman For Continuity in Foreign Policy

Holds British Tradition as Example for U. S. at White House Dinner

Atomic Bomb Talks Start in Washington

Attlee In From London; Mackenzie King Also Sees Truman, Byrnes

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—President Truman declared tonight he wants a foreign policy of the people and not of any political party.

"One of the great things of the British Empire," the President said, "is that when they have a foreign policy—and they always have one—the British people are behind that foreign policy, no matter which government is in power."

Mr. Truman spoke after toasts at a state dinner in the White House, the first social event in connection with the American-British-Canadian discussions which opened today. Prime Ministers Clement R. Attlee of Great Britain and W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada attended, together with fifty other guests.

The dinner interrupted opening of talks of heads of the three nations on the future of the atomic bomb and—as Mr. Truman put it—"for the implementing of a peace program that will be world-wide and continuous, and that will include every nation in the world without exception."

Hopes for Agreement

"We are going to our conferences prayerfully," Mr. Truman added. "We are hoping that agreements and policies will come out of these conferences which will make the United Nations Organization a living, moving, active program."

Mr. Attlee, noting the President's remarks on foreign policy, observed that "what we need most of all is a universal foreign policy, a foreign policy that is directed not to any immediate aim of any particular country, but a foreign policy that is conceived in the interest of all the people of the world.

"That does not mean that we don't take into account our particular differences, but it seems to me today that our overriding interests of world civilization come first."

Without reference to the atomic bomb, Mr. Attlee said that scientific discoveries are transcending oceans.

Attlee's Warning

"We must not let anything rob us of our freedom, and of our democracy," he went on.

"Rather we must try to see whether we cannot give to all nations that kind of security in which through long years on both sides of the Atlantic we worked up in practice that most difficult of all forms of government—democracy, about the only form of government that is worthy of free men."

Mr. Attlee urged that in the discussions they all "keep ever in mind that what we are out for today is to try to devise a world policy of the common man."

Mr. Truman said they were striving for a world order and peace in which nations will feel as the British Commonwealth of Nations and as the the forty-eight states.

In noting the strength behind the British foreign policy, the President found an illustration at the Potsdam Conference where Winston Churchill started as Prime Minister and Mr. Attlee took over after his election victory without a break in negotiations.

Congress Foes See Defeat for Peace Training

NOV 11 1945

Decisive Vote Expected in Committee on Tuesday; Backers Are Pessimistic

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP).—President Truman's request for universal military training legislation skated on thin Congressional ice today as opponents claimed enough strength to kill it off quickly.

The test may come next Tuesday when the House Military Affairs Committee resumes hearings interrupted last week by a surprise move of opponents to block consideration until next year.

"You can say the bill is dead," Representative Dewey Short, Republican, of Missouri, said then.

It was Representative Short who sought last Thursday to defer further hearings until next year, in the midst of questioning of Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson. A technicality prevented a showdown then.

When Mr. Patterson returns for further questioning on Tuesday, Representative Short told reporters, he will renew his motion for deferment of consideration until 1946, or until after the Senate acts.

"We have the votes to do it," he said.

Representative Short and his followers claim fourteen of the twenty-seven committee votes, eight Republicans and six Democrats, with two Democrats listed as undecided.

Reporters who polled committee sentiment found the line-up 13 to 12 for postponing action, with two doubtfuls.

NOV 11 1945

The committee chirman, Representative Andrew J. May, Democrat of Kentucky, who has introduced a bill to carry out President Truman's request for prompt actiton conceded that the outcome was uncertain.

"It will be close," was all Representative May would say.

The Kentuckian threatened tc make public the committee rollcall after Tuesday's session. Usually such a vote is taken behind closed doors and the rollcall kept secret.

Not all of those expected to support Representative Short's motion are opposed to universal military training. Some believe action should be deferred until Congress decides what to do about proposals to merge the Army and the Navy.

Others feel that the Senate should act first, inasmuch as the House has passed controversial measures at the military committee's request only to have them snagged in the Senate.

One committee member said he believed the committee would approve the peace-time draft measure if the Senate acted first.

Senators To Probe Delays To Returnees

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—Asserting that "everything is not as it should be," Senator Robertson (R.,Wyo.) demanded that the Senate Naval Affairs Committee investigate the program for returning servicemen from overseas.

A resolution he submitted to the Senate yesterday would authorize the committee to study conditions at embarkation points in Europe, North Africa and the Pacific, and to inquire into shipping conditions.

Promises Committee Meeting

Senator Walsh (D.,Mass.), Naval Affairs chairman, said he was sympathetic to Robertson's resolution, and would call a meeting of the committee Tuesday to investigate complaints that the return of service men is being held up.

"I feel that we will have to go to the very depths of this proposition," he said.

Quoting letters from servicemen to the effect that the return of hundreds of high-point men is being held up, while ships lie idle in Pacific harbors or are used to send home Japanese military personnel, Robertson told the Senate:

"It is impossible for me to believe that everything is as it should be. There is a breakdown some place between Washington and Europe and Washington and the Pacific, and I want an investigation.

Wants Special Investigation

"I don't want a normal routine investigation, I want a special investigation—that is designed not only to get the job done but to build some faith back into the hearts of our service boys and to let them know that we in the United States Senate realize our responsibility."

Robertson was supported by Senator Morse (R., Ore.), who declared the resolution should be reported to the Senate as soon as possible.

Count Again Asked On Army Doctors

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—Senator Downey (D., Cal.,) renewed today a request—first made last July—for some official figures on how many doctors the Army is keeping in uniform.

Downey's action was praised by Senator Reed (R., Kan.), who told of receiving "letters, telegrams and cablegrams from all over the world." Reed has demanded that army doctors be returned quickly to home practices.

Last July, Reed recalled, Downey, as chairman of a military affairs subcommittee, asked Army and Navy figures on the number of doctors in service.

Has Three Questions

"The surgeon general's office promised to supply the information, and didn't do it," Reed said.

Now Downey has three questions for the Surgeon General:

1. What was the total troop enrollment and the total number of doctors as of the first of every month from January, 1945, through November?

2. Will you supply a list of all hospitals in the United States under the Surgeon General's command, together with the total number of patients and doctors at each?

3. What is the total number of doctors assigned to the Veterans Administration?

SENATORS PRESS MERGER DISPUTE

NOV 11 1945

McClellan, Naval Committee, and Hill, Military, Clash on Forrestal-Doolittle Issue

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP)—Members of the Senate Naval and Military Affairs Committees carried forward today the controversy over the proposed merger of the armed forces.

Senator McClellan of Arkansas, member of the Naval Affairs Committee, commented to a reporter on Secretary Forrestal's letter criticizing the testimony of Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle before the military committee yesterday.

"I think Secretary Forrestal is to be commended," he said, "for placing it (the controversy) on a high plane."

But Senator Lister Hill of Alabama, a member of the Military Affairs Committee, had this to say:

"General Doolittle's statement as a whole was a magnificent one. If Mr. Forrestal's letter will stimulate people to read General Doolittle's full statement it will serve a good purpose."

Senator McClellan declared that differences always had existed in military circles over policies of national defense.

Would Bar Personalities

"This issue should not be settled on a basis of personalities," he added, "but differences of opinion should be ironed out if possible and, if not, the decision should be made by responsible authorities."

Senator Hill, the Democratic whip, told a reporter that the Navy Secretary's letter tended to show "that division between the Army and Navy about which we heard so much at the time of Pearl Harbor."

"It emphasizes the need for putting the Army and Navy on the same team under a single department of the armed forces," he continued.

Mr. Forrestal's letter to Secretary of War Patterson objected in particular to a statement by General Doolittle that "our B-29 boys are resting uneasily in their graves" as a result of asserted claims by admirals that sea power and carrier-based planes brought about the Japanese surrender.

The letter added that "if we allow an honest difference over principle to degenerate into an exchange of personalities we shall do irreparable harm to the end which we all seek in the name of national security: the comradeship of all branches of the armed forces."

Eisenhower May Give Views

General Eisenhower may be asked on his visit to the United States to express his views on the merger.

Some Senators took issue today with suggestions by admirals and civilian Navy leaders that a commission of military and naval experts and civilians be appointed to make a complete study of the subject.

Senator Hill's comment on this was that "when you can't beat an idea any other way you get it referred to a commission."

Senator Johnson, acting chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, said in an interview:

"If I wanted to defeat or delay a plan, that is what I would try to do."

But Senator Wilson, Republican, of Iowa, a freshman member of the committee, had a different view.

"I think the Navy has raised some excellent points," he asserted, adding:

"I need all the help I can get on these problems."

Marine Corps Celebrates Its 170th Birthday

Statue of Flag Raising on Iwo Jima Is Unveiled at Navy Building in Capital

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP).—General A. A. Vandegrift expressed hope today that a statue depicting the flag raising on Iwo Jima would "remind all who pass that we must keep the faith with the brave and the fallen."

The statue, modeled after the famous photograph taken atop Mt. Suribachi by Joe Rosenthal, Associated Press photographer, stands in front of the Navy Building on Constitution Avenue. It was unveiled today in observance of the Marine Corps' 170th anniversary.

"We in the Marine Corps," the commandant said in a prepared address, "are proud that men represented in the statue here to be dedicated are marines. We are proud with the same pride we take in our entire 170 years of tradition, of which this deed has become an important part.

"But we have no illusions. We know that this statue commemorates much in addition to the courage of marines, much more than the capture of a dominating height on Iwo Jima. We know that its meaning encompasses the whole effort of the people of our nation. . . .

"The five marines and the Navy corpsman who placed the flag atop Mt. Suribachi typify the unsurpassed gallantry of all men of the armed forces who won our total victory.

"Their courage was from exactly the same cloth as that which smashed the German war machine in Europe and the Japanese in every sector of the Pacific.

"The men who raised the flag symbolize the sacrifice throughout the ranks of our fighting men. Three of the six died in the bitter combat of the next several days. Thousands like them, in every theater of the war, fell in defense of their country—and in the trust that, after victory, their nation would dedicate its might to the maintenance of the peace and security to which they dedicated their lives."

This was the first birthday in four years that the Leathernecks haven't been battling the enemy, having been battling the enemy.

The peace-time observance of the anniversary centered in the capital, but, around the world, marines cut birthday cakes and recounted exploits of the men who made history in this war.

From Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal and Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King came praise for the achievements of what the corps calls "the finest fighting organization in the world."

"We are thankful that the long road to victory which began three years ago at Guadalcanal has now been traversed," said Mr. Forrestal. "A world at peace will not forget the immortal chapters written along that road by the United States Marine Corps."

A total of 19,800 marines have died in the fighting since the last peace-time observance of the anniversary, in 1941—a month short of Pearl Harbor. Approximately 200,000 marines are still abroad.

FORRESTAL CALLS FORCES COMRADES

NOV 11 1945

Secretary Hails Good Feeling On Birthday Of Marines

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, said tonight that the comradeship of the armed forces "cannot be produced by edict and must not be broken by controversies."

The Secretary's apparent reference to the current debate over merger of the Army and Navy, which the Navy opposes, was made in a broadcast congratulating the Marine Corps on its 170th birthday.

The Secretary also read a congratulatory "Well done!" letter by President Truman. Praise for the Marines also came from the chief of staff, Gen. George C. Marshall, and Rear Admiral Lloyd T. Chalker, acting commandant of the Coast Guard.

Comradeship Of Forces

Forrestal said all the Navy congratulated the Marines on their birthday and hailed this indication of comradeship within the naval forces as "one of the bright pages in the record of the war." He continued:

"Indeed, the good feeling between all branches of the armed forces has been and will continue to be one of the foundation stones of our national security.

"That comradeship cannot be produced by edict, and must not be broken by controversies which are small when measured against the security of the nation—to which all of the armed forces are dedicated.

"Fanatical Opposition"

He praised the Marines for their part in the Pacific victory, declaring they had completed every mission even though they fought against "fanatical opposition."

The President's letter said the anniversary "gives our nation an opportunity to honor those heroic young Americans who opened the beachheads to final triumph in the Pacific," and added:

"To them, our people join in saying, 'Well done!'"

Japanese Disillusioned

"The Japanese went to war," the President said, "strong in the conviction that Japan was unsurpassable as a master of amphibious fighting, but at Guadalcanal, when our Marines launched our first ground offensive of the war, Japanese amphibious rule came to an end.

"Valor of the men of Guadalcanal turned the tide on that island, and from there the march to victory began."

General Marshall said that "throughout the terrible conflict just ended, the members of the corps displayed a spirit and facility for successful accomplishment worthy of the highest traditions of the corps." His remarks were included in a congratulatory letter to Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, Marine Corps commandant.

WORLD CHIEFS HAIL UNRRA

Truman, Bevin, Chiang Kai-shek Mark Second Anniversary

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP)—President Truman and other United Nations leaders praised the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration today on its second anniversary. The President said in a letter:

"UNRRA has been and is today the proving ground for the capacity of the United Nations to work together to relieve suffering, prevent starvation, and restore hope to the people who have borne and resisted fascist invasion."

Mr. Truman said this country would continue to support UNRRA.

The British Foreign Secretary, Ernest L. Bevin, looked forward to another year "of yet further achievement in relieving the distressed peoples of the ravaged countries of the world."

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek expressed thanks for the arrival of the first UNRRA ships in China.

Roberts in Army Post

Former Justice to Review Court Martial Cases in War

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP).—Former Justice Owen J. Roberts, of the Supreme Court, has been appointed chairman of the War Department's clemency board, created to review the 34,260 cases of military prisoners serving general court-martial sentences, the department announced today.

The board was formed to consider the cases of all men sentenced by general courts martial both here and overseas with a view to reducing sentences as warranted on the basis of individual records in each case.

Under Secretary of War Kenneth C. Royall said that Mr. Roberts had accepted the appointment and that his acceptance would be of "extreme assistance in guaranteeing that the highest standards of fairness will be maintained in this post-war review and that clemency will be granted wherever it is warranted."

BATAAN NATIONAL PARK AIM OF WAINWRIGHT

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Nov. 10—(AP) Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright wants to go back to Bataan—to establish a national park as a memorial for the men who fought and died there.

"I never want to see the orient again as a military leader," he told a press conference, "but I want to go back to work on a plan that is dear to my heart.

"I'm going to Bataan and make that sad battlefield into a national park, a memorial to the officers and men who fought and died there."

Senate Confirms Davis.

Washington, Nov. 10 (A. P.).—The Senate confirmed Chester C. Davis of Missouri late yesterday as a member of the Advisory Board of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, representing the public. He succeeds William H. Davis, resigned.

Mellot Named Federal Judge For Kansas

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—Arthur J. Mellott, of Kansas, has been selected by President Truman for the new Federal judgeship for the District of Kansas.

The White House said the nomination will go to the Senate the first of next week. Judge Mellott, a native of Wallula, Kan., is now on the United States Tax Court, to which he was appointed in 1935.

Prior to that he was a deputy commissioner of internal revenue. He has served as an assistant United States attorney, judge of the City Court of Kansas City, Kan., and also as a county attorney.

Chemical Warfare Chief Quits Army

Washington, Nov. 10 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. William N. Porter, chief of the Army's Chemical Warfare Service since 1941, retired today to enter private business, the War Department announced.

The 59-year-old Lima, Ohio, native has served in the Navy, Army Air Forces and Army Ground Forces during his military career. He resigned from the Navy a year after graduation from Annapolis to become a lieutenant in the Coast Artillery. In 1937 he was Director of the Air Corps Tactical School at Maxwell Field, Ala.

House Shortage To Get Worse

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—At least 3,000,000 American families—including those of 1,000,000 war veterans—must "double up" with other families in order to have living accommodations in 1946.

That's the outlook John B. Blandford, Jr., national housing administrator, gave in a letter to mayors of all cities of more than 25,000 population.

Million Doubled Up Now

He said about 1,000,000 families are living doubled up now and that "preliminary estimates show that another 2,000,000 families must double up by December 31, 1946, unless their plight can be relieved by a far greater volume of new housing than anyone considers possible." This would be beyond a goal of 475,000 units hoped to be completed in 1946.

Saying at least a million families of veterans "will have to find accommodations in the presently occupied housing supply," Blandford declared they "won't find enough homes unless cities establish some system of organizing their housing supply and of giving veterans preference in turnover.

"Vets Referral Services"

"The first immediate task, then, is probably the establishment of adequate housing referral services for veterans, linked closely with any established veterans' information center so that a veteran can get as much necessary information as possible at one central point."

Blandford suggested in his letter that as a step to curb inflation in prices of new and existing homes that cities establish appraisal bureaus to give estimates of fair values to all prospective buyers.

NEWSPRINT INQUIRY

Washington, Nov. 10 (A. P.).—Senators Butler (R.-Neb.) and Willis (R.-Ind.) called today for an immediate congressional investigation of the newsprint situation.

In a joint statement the two Republicans said that legislators should look into reports that the production of American paper mills already is 6,000 tons less than the estimated rate for the fourth quarter of this year. As a result, they said, the OPA is considering lifting ceilings $5 per ton, an action they said would cost newsprint consumers about $16,000,000 a year.

Butler and Willis authored a resolution for an investigation of the shortage. They said the resolution was approved by the Senate, but is being held up in the audit and control committee, which passes on expenditures for such inquiries.

The Senators said it may be necessary to develop new sources of supply in Alaska, as well as to spur the industry in this country.

Retirement Act Benefit Provisions Broadened

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—President Truman has signed a bill to allow former Government workers who have become disabled veterans to receive Federal Retirement Act benefits.

Previously, former Government employés who returned from the armed forces with physical disabilities which prevented their re-employment were not able to receive retirement benefits.

Sales at $942,000,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP).—War finance officials predicted today that 25 per cent of the individual and E-bond quotas for the $11,000,000,000 Victory Loan would be reached by the end of the Armistice Day week end.

Reports for the twelfth day of the drive, which ends Dec. 8, boosted total reported sales to individuals to $942,000,000, of which $413,000,000 was in E-bonds. The quota of sales to individuals is $4,000,000,000. The E-bond quota, included in the individual's quota, is $2,000,000,000.

Treasury officials said that the widespread participation of Victory loan volunteers in the nation's Armistice Day observances encouraged them to expect the one-fourth mark in the individuals' and E-bond quotas to be reached.

FORD WORKERS VOTE 11 TO 1 FOR MOTORS STRIKE

NLRB Says 42,235 Ballots Ask Production Tie-up if Negotiations Fail.

LARGEST BIG THREE PROTEST

General Motors and Chrysler Plants Favor Labor Weapon if It Is Needed.

NOV 11 1945

Detroit, Nov. 10 (A. P.).—Ford Motor Company workers have voted nearly 11 to 1 in favor of strike action to support demands of the United Auto Workers (C. I. O.) for a 30 per cent wage increase.

The National Labor Relations Board announced today that of 46,558 Ford workers voting in the three-day election, 42,235 ballots were cast in favor of the strike, 3,951 against and 372 voided. The company employs approximately 150,000 persons.

Eligible to vote were 83,561.

The heavy Ford majority favoring use of the strike weapon if necessary was the greatest in the Big Three auto companies where NLRB-conducted strike votes have been taken.

Other Plants Favor Strike.

General Motors workers voted nearly 6 to 1 for a strike while the Chrysler Corporation ratio was 8 to 1 in favor of strike action in the elections conducted last month.

Union leaders have emphasized that the strike vote does not necessarily mean a strike will be called. The U. A. W.-C. I. O. petitioned for the strike election when it presented its wage increase demands to the auto industry, but said every effort would be made to settle the dispute peacefully.

Meanwhile, as the union again rejected an offer from General Motors for an 8 to 10 per cent "cost of living" wage increase, the Automobile Manufacturers Association renewed its attack on a Department of Commerce report that the automobile industry could raise wages 25 per cent in two years.

A statement from George Romney, general manager of the A. M. A. challenged man-hour productivity figures in the report and asserted the Department of Commerce would do well to base its future reports on facts, rather than assumptions. He added that continuing declines in worker productivity would affect adversely the industry's ability to pay higher wages, even though the industry is laying plans for higher output than ever before.

The Commerce Department report was based largely on expectation of a sharp rise in production which, it was said, would carry profits upward.

Union rejection of the General Motors wage increase proposal was contained in a brief filed yesterday at the resumption of negotiations over the union's demand for a 30 per cent wage boost.

"It would mean," the union said, "in the automobile industry a return within three years to the three or four-day week and six months working year for those who get jobs at all. It would mean unemployment and shrinkage of purchasing power among wage earners, farmers, professional people and over-saving by management and stockholders of big corporations."

This, the union brief continued, would result in chronic mass unemployment, scarcity in the midst of overproduction and want in the midst of surpluses.

Corporation Called Unfair.

Previously the union had filed with the NLRB a charge of unfair labor practices against the corporation, which in turn asserted that the charges were unjust, absurd and not borne out by the facts.

The union has already turned down an earlier General Motors proposal for a forty-five-hour week plus a six per cent wage increase.

Walter P. Reuther, U. A. W.-C. I. O. vice-president heading the union's delegation at wage negotiations, said at a news conference after yesterday's session that no progress had been made and that negotiations will be resumed Thursday.

H. W. Anderson, G. M. vice-president, when asked at a separate news conference whether he was optimistic over the outcome of the negotiations, replied, "We can't be optimistic with a strike hanging over our heads," and added, "the last thing I want to see in General Motors is a strike."

Charges Unfair Practices.

Philadelphia, Nov. 10 (A. P.).—The United Steel Workers of America (C. I. O.), today charged SKF Industries, Inc., with unfair labor practices. Richard Davidson, regional director of the Steelworkers Union, said the charges, filed with the National Labor Relations Board, included company refusal to bargain with the union concerning piece work or incentive rates of pay and reduction of such rates of pay without the union's consent. He accuses the company of a lockout in the current stoppage. The company described the shutdown as a strike.

Rejects C. I. O. Demand.

Coatesville, Pa., Nov. 10 (A. P.).—The Lukens Steel Company revealed today that it has joined the nation's largest steelmakers in rejecting the $2 daily wage increase sought by the C. I. O.'s United Steel Workers. A strike vote under provisions of the Smith-Connally act will be held at the plant November 28.

Stalemate at Yale Plant.

Stamford, Conn., Nov. 10 (A. P.).—Negotiation of the issues in the labor controversy between the International Association of Machinists (A. F. of L.) and the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company stood balked today by the failure of representatives of each to agree on the method by which certain members of the plant personnel were to cross the picket lines.

The company insists that a group of workers it has designated as management personnel be permitted to cross the lines on regulation company passes or badges. The union, however, insists that certain workers be permitted across the lines only on passes issued by the union. Because of this stalemate, the conference in Mayor Charles E. Moore's office Friday ended with no accomplishments, in the words of the Mayor.

UAW NAMES BOARD TO ACT ON WAGES

Six-Man Strategy Committee Will Meet with 'Big Three.'

DETROIT, Nov. 10. — (AP) The international executive board of the United Auto Workers (CIO) today authorized a six-man "strategy committee" to "act as it may see fit" in current wage negotiations with the auto industry's "big three".

The action, taken at the board's meeting in Washington, came after consideration of recent votes in which employes of Ford, Chrysler and General Motors overwhelmingly favored a strike to support demands for a 30 per cent wage rate increase.

Walter Reuther, UAW vice president in charge of General Motors negotiations, told reporters the board's action "places the strike threat on a 24-hour basis." He explained that the strategy committee could meet at a moment's notice and take any action desired.

R. J. Thomas, UAW president, declared however that the board had instructed Reuther to meet with GM officials again Thursday in an effort to solve the wage issue.

Wage negotiations between the union and officials of General Motors and Chrysler began some time ago and Ford negotiations are slated to start Nov. 20.

The strategy committee includes Thomas, Reuther, UAW Secretary-Treasurer George F. Addes, Vice President Richard T. Frankensteen, Richard T. Leonard, in charge of Ford negotiations and Norman Matthews, in charge of Chrysler negotiations.

DETROIT VOTING CALLED TREND

Brownell Sees Proof People Oppose "Unholy Alliance"

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—Herbert Brownell, Jr., asserted today that the Detroit mayoralty election "afforded conclusive proof that the unholy alliance between the New Deal and the radical elements does not have the approval of the American electorate."

Nationally, the Republican national chairman said, the GOP "strengthened" its position for the 1946 congressional campaign.

The result in New York city, Brownell said, means—if it represents any change at all—that "Tammany is once more the dominant political force in that city."

"Reason For Jubilation"

"That, perhaps," he added, "may be one reason for the jubilation expressed by the chairman of the Democratic National Committee."

Democratic Chairman Robert E. Hannegan had stated last Tuesday night before all the votes were counted that the election of William O'Dwyer, a Democrat, as Mayor of New York would have "an important bearing on the 1946 and 1948 election prospects."

In his first comment on Tuesday's voting, Brownell said in a formal statement:

"When the votes were counted the party had retained practically everything it had before, and had gained several strategic offices previously held by Democrats."

Democratic Backing Claimed

Brownell said that while the fight for control of Detroit was "conducted ostensibly on a non-partisan basis, Richard Frankensteen, the CIO-PAC candidate who ran with Democratic backing, was defeated by a margin approaching 60,000 votes."

After asserting that the re-election of Mayor Edward J. Jeffries over Frankensteen proved the people disapproved what he termed an unholy alliance between the New Deal and the radical elements, he added:

"If there is any city in the country where such an alliance might be expected to be effective, Detroit is that city. The results speak for themselves."

In support of his contention that the Republican party had strengthened its position, Brownell said the GOP had been victorious in all three special congressional elections since President Truman took office. These were in the Second Montana district June 5 and the Fourth New Jersey and Twenty-fourth Illinois last Tuesday. The Montana result was an upset for the Democrats.

NEW U.S. PLEA TO 'BIG STEEL'

Schwellenbach Again Asks Fairless To Meet With CIO

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—The Secretary of Labor, Lewis B. Schwellenbach, renewed efforts tonight to bring the United States Steel Corporation and the CIO steelworkers together to discuss wage terms.

The labor-management conference was in recess until Tuesday, but in the meantime peace moves in the basic industries, including automobiles, showed signs of progress.

Schwellenbach refused to take "no" for an answer from Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the United States Steel, in response to his request for conciliation meetings with the CIO steelworkers and a special conciliator, Arthur S. Meyer.

Request Repeated

Schwellenbach's first request, last Saturday, was rejected by Fairless. The secretary sent another letter to Fairless saying "I have decided to reiterate my invitation of November 3" to attend the meeting November 14.

Fairless said that before he could accept the proposal to discuss the union's $2 daily wage-increase demand, the OPA should act on the corporation's request that higher prices be granted and give assurance of further increases to cover whatever wage demands were granted.

"I would call your attention to the fact that the Government is not insisting upon any agreement from your corporation as to a wage increase," Schwellenbach wrote Fairless tonight.

"Orderly Procedure"

"All that the Government asks is that in the presence of one of its representatives you intend to collectively bargain with your employés. That is the ordinary, orderly procedure uniformly followed.

Schwellenbach said that a letter from John A. Stephens, United States Steel vice president, told of rejection of union demands at a meeting October 10 and 11.

"Such long-range activities do not constitute collective bargaining or negotiation," said Schwellenbach.

His letter expressed hope that the labor-management conference will "devise ways and means whereby industrial strife may be minimized."

OPA Pledges Early Decision

The OPA administrator, Chester Bowles, meantime, let it be known that assurances have been given of an early decision on the steel industry's request for price increases.

The executive board of the CIO Automobile Workers, who are threatening an industry-wide strike, met here today and received a report from Vice-President Walter Reuther on the progress of the negotiations with the General Motors Corporation.

Reuther told reporters they could draw any inferences from his flying trip from Detroit, but he would not say he was recommending that the 300,000 G.M. workers strike to back their demand for a 30 per cent wage increase.

The strike of the AFL Street Railway and Motor Coach Employes on most Greyhound bus lines east of the Mississippi headed toward a showdown, with a new meeting scheduled by the Conciliation Service on Tuesday in Philadelphia.

Jurisdictional Union Strife Is D.C. Parley Topic

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—The quest for a method of ending labor's jurisdictional strife continued today while most delegates to President Truman's labor-management conference began an Armistice Day holiday week end.

The committee assigned to jurisdictional problems has so far offered no report, but it had before it Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach's proposal last Monday that organized labor designate a "czar" to iron out interunion disputes.

Little Enthusiasm

Labor delegates sounded out informally have shown no great enthusiasm for the technique that Schwellenbach said had met the problem in baseball and the moving-picture industry.

Nevertheless, the committee on representation and jurisdictional questions was reported to be seeking improved machinery by which unions could settle the troublesome disputes themselves.

This group arranged meetings tomorrow and Monday, but a majority of the industry and labor delegates were already leaving Washington for the week end.

One Accomplishment

They had one solid accomplishment, Conference Secretary George W. Taylor reported. Business and labor delegates have fully accepted the principle of collective bargaining, he said.

Taylor said this was no meager achievement, even though now written into the Wagner Labor Relations Act, because the postwar labor parley of 1919 cracked up over an inability to agree on a resolution stating that workers are entitled to be represented by unions or spokesmen of their own choosing.

Steel-Price Ruling Promised

These other developments in wage and labor issues engaged Government officials:

1. Price Administrator Bowles promised Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the United States Steel Corporation, to rule as soon as possible on the corporation's request for higher steel price ceilings.

This action, reported by an OPA official last night, aroused hope that negotiations will be resumed soon between United States Steel and the CIO United Steel Workers union on the union's demand for $2 a day more pay.

CIO Alleges Violence

2. Secretary Schwellenbach studied a request of the CIO Textile Workers Union that he protect workers at three Texas cotton mills where the union said violence greeted returning strikers.

The union last night asked Schwellenbach for "extraordinary and immediate action" to enlist the aid of Federal law enforcement agencies to halt "organized thuggery now rampant" at the Hillsboro, Itasca and Mexia mills. John W. Edelman, Wasnington representative of the union, said two union officers were sent to a hospital and half a dozen others needed medical attention after being attacked while returning to work in preparation for Federal conciliation conferences to end a wage dispute.

3. The War Labor Board announced creation of a temporary new division to rule on wage stabilization questions.

No National Policy Seen On Overtime Tomorrow

U. S. Legal Aids Kick Question to Local Parleys

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP).—Labor Department lawyers said today that local observance of holidays and industry practice will determine whether workers receive extra pay for working Monday.

The war-time order limiting the number of holidays for which overtime would be paid was revoked Aug. 21 by President Truman, who has announced that government workers will get an Armistice Day holiday on Monday.

The order listed six holidays for which time and a half would be paid. It also provided for double-time pay for the seventh day of work in a week.

Labor-management agreements governing past practices now determine the compensation for holiday work, William S. Tyson, department solicitor, and Arthur Hill, assistant, said.

The six holidays named in the war-time order were New Year's Day, July 4, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas and either Memorial Day or one other such holiday of local importance.

Higgins Leaves Future Moves Still Mystery

New Orleans, Nov. 10 (AP) — A liquidation order still left unanswered today questions concerning the plans of Andrew J. Higgins, Sr., who turned out thousands of invasion craft during the war and then advertised a program for assembly-line production of peacetime pleasure boats.

Stockholders of Higgins Industries, Inc., voted unanimously yesterday to liquidate the concern as the result of labor difficulties that led Higgins to shut down three strikebound plants November 1.

Some Work Until March

The order was extended to the firms subsidiaries as well, but the announcement said that Higgins and Secretary-Treasurer Morris Gottesman, designated liquidators, would carry out existing contracts if possible. Gottesman estimated these at $5,000,000 worth and indicated that they would provide jobs for about 1,000 persons until next March.

At the Government-owned Micheaud plant, Higgins companies have been producing airborne rescue boats and atomic-bomb parts for the Army. No labor trouble has been reported at that plant.

$40,000,000 In Orders

The firm has reported a backlog of $40,000,000 worth of contracts for pleasure and commercial boats.

Higgins declined to expand the stockholders' statement, except to say in reply to a question:

"Andrew Higgins is not through" in New Orleans.

Higgins's dispute is with American Federation of Labor unions. About 2,000 workers walked out October 29 in protest against his refusal to negotiate a new contract.

Congress Probe Wanted

William L. Donnels, Metal and Building Trades Union publicity chairman, said the unions would press for a congressional investigation of the plant closings.

The National Labor Relations Board is conducting a hearing on a CIO request for an election to determine the collective bargaining at the plants. Trial Examiner T. Lowrey said he would continue sessions today.

1,550 Jobs At Meade Still Remain Vacant

Fort George G. Meade, Md., Nov. 10 (AP)—James W. Salyers, civilian personnel director of Fort Meade, today said 1,550 vacancies still existed for civilian personnel at the post, the majority at the separation center.

Mr. Salyers said jobs ranging from associate civilian engineer at $3,640 a year to junior laundry assistant at 50 cents an hour remained unfilled. More than 700 clerk-typists at $1,704 a year also are needed.

11 DIE IN CRASHES OF TWO ARMY PLANES

LEBANON, Tenn., Nov 10 (AP)—Six men died in the flaming wreckage of an Army plane which crashed and burned eight miles west of here soon after 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Jackson Dies, on whose farm the plane, believed to have been a C-46 transport, fell, said it first circled a field, obviously in trouble, then smashed into a clump of trees on a hillside.

He said parts of six bodies have been found, including two with partially opened parachutes. All were within 150 yards of the wreckage. Bits of the plane were found over a half-mile area.

BRUDEN, Tenn., Nov. 10 (AP)—Five men were killed today when an Army B-25 crashed near the top of Log Mountain, a short distance from the Kentucky-Tennessee State line.

A guard was thrown around the crash area pending the arrival of Army investigators from Bowman Field, Louisville, Ky.

Jack Colson, manager of the Middlesboro, Ky., airport, said fog covered the top of the mountain when the accident occurred but that the ship was below the fog when it started its plunge earthward.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Nov. 10 (AP)—The Navy today released the names and addresses of fourteen of the twenty-two men killed Thursday in the collision of two large patrol planes.

Five survivors picked up by rescue boats are still in naval hospitals. The condition of one is serious, but the other four were reported as "satisfactory" today. Sixteen bodies are still missing.

The dead include John J. Fitzsimmons, aviation machinist 3/c, of Newark, N. J.; Ralph M. Barberio, aviation ordinanceman 3/c, of Forest Hill, L. I., and Walter J. Ponezich, aviation radioman 3/c, of Buffalo.

8 NAVY PRISONERS HUNTED IN VIRGINIA

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 10 (A. P.).—A wide-spread hunt was under way today for eight Navy prisoners who overpowered and disarmed two Marine guards at Camp Peary yesterday and fled toward Richmond in a stolen automobile.

Fifth Naval District Headquarters here reported last night that the prisoners made their escape about 9 A. M. from a general work detail outside the prison compound at the naval training and distribution center near Williamsburg. The men were reported to have beaten their Marine guards and seized their guns after rushing them, and to have fled afoot along the highway toward Richmond. The guards were given dispensary treatment at the camp and their condition was reported satisfactory.

Fifth District Headquarters, which did not have the ratings of the men, said the escapees were: William M. Hagan of Parkville, Md., George D. Ledger of Dubois, Pa., Vyron E. Thompson of Soldier, Iowa, Edward O. Byus of Woodbine, Md., Theodore E. Hall of Rochester, Mich., Justin R. Harrington of Cochecton Center, N. Y., Charles H. Wright of Nashville, Tenn., and Silas Henry Burgess of Baxter, Tenn.

Woman Accused Of Harboring Escaped Prisoner Of War

Boston, Nov. 10 (AP)—The FBI said tonight that a complaint would be filed next Tuesday charging a Leominster woman, mother of three servicemen, with harboring an escaped prisoner of war.

E. A. Soucy, Boston FBI head, described it as the first such case in the New England area since prisoner-of-war camps were established in this section.

He said the complaint would be filed before Edwin Crandall, United States commissioner, at Worcester, naming Mrs. Fannie Welvaert, 45, who was arrested by Worcester police on a misconduct charge last night in a rooming house at which FBI agents and Army intelligence officers captured an escaped German prisoner of war.

They Met At Hospital

Mrs. Welvaert was employed as a janitress at the Lovell General Hospital, Fort Devens, Soucy sad, while the recaptured prisoner, Horst Becker, 22, was on a work detail there.

Socy said that after Becker's arrest, Mrs. Welvaert admitted that she met the prisoner in Leominster within two hours of his escape from the camp September 15.

Investigation, Soucy said in a statement, revealed that she introduced Becker into the home of her mother and stepfather as an old theatrical friend and that after a quarrel with Mrs. Welvaert's mother Becker took up residence under the name of Harry Hadden in the Worcester rooming house where he was arrested last night.

Soucy said that Mrs. Welvaert stayed at the Worcester address intermittently as Becker's wife.

16-Year-Old Vet Favors Peace Draft

Pittsburgh, Cal., Nov. 10 (AP)—Here's one veteran who thinks a year's compulsory military training would be good for youths. Private John M. Nolan, Jr., of Cedar Lake, Ind., says: "I believe it would teach the youth to be self-reliant and teach him how to work, besides giving the nation additional protection during times of emergency."

Nolan, 16 years old, is about to be discharged from the Army because he is under age.

State Young Republicans Urge Bonus to Veterans

Also Propose 'Broadening' of Wagner Labor Act

SYRACUSE, Nov. 10 (AP).—Resolutions urging New York State to pay a "fair and equitable cash bonus" to veterans of World War II and calling for broadening of the Wagner labor-relations act were adopted unanimously by the board of governors of the New York State Association of Young Republican Clubs here today.

The labor resolution recommends "(a) that the provisions of the Wagner act be made bilateral in their application so that employer and employee alike be made responsible individuals in their relations with each other and be subject to penalties and damages for violation of fair-labor practices as defined by the Wagner act as amended.

"(b) That in instances of industrial strife, where the welfare and needs of the general public are involved, the right to strike be curtailed and that the parties be required to settle their differences by mediation and conciliation and, if necessary, by arbitration."

A third resolution adopted recommended convening of a conference of Republican leaders to consider and announce the party program on national issues. Plans were made to have Young Republican Clubs meet soon to formulate their part in the 1946 campaign to re-elect Thomas E. Dewey as Governor.

Halsey Urges More Teamwork

Philadelphia, Nov. 10 (AP)—Urging "teamwork more than ever now," Admiral William F. ("Bull") Halsey, Jr., says "many Americans seem to have forgotten the common sacrifices of the war."

"Some are now fighting each other. Is that what the young men died for?" Admiral Halsey asked at a dinner last night in his honor after a Victory Loan drive appearance.

"During the war," Halsey said, "I had a special 'department of dirty tricks' thinking up special ways to bedevil the Japs. Now it behooves us to get up a 'good-tricks' department. We must chart our course in peace as well as in war."

NOV 11 1945

Earlier, the 63-year-old commander of the 3d Fleet told a press conference he had applied for retirement and expected to quit sea duty November 22. He plans to spend "an indeterminate period in Washington" before his retirement next year, Halsey said.

Shifts to NLRB.

Philadelphia, Nov. 10 (A. P.).—Sylvester Garrett, chairman of Third Regional War Labor Board since its establishment in 1943, has announced his resignation to become a public member of the National War Labor Board in Washington.

Take U. N. O. Bid to London

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10 (AP).—Armed with voluminous data outlining the advantages of the City of Brotherly Love as the permanent home of the United Nations, a Philadelphia committee will fly to London tomorrow to make its final bid for the honor. Dr. Robert L. Johnson, president of Temple University, will head a special delegation appointed by him at the request of Mayor Bernard Samuel. The group has made plans to meet with the fifty-one delegates of a special committee appointed by the United Nations to select a world capital. Dr. Johnson said his plans also include a trip to Moscow for a visit with Premier Stalin.

Guadalcanal's Crew Cited

PENSACOLA, Fla., Nov. 10 (AP).—The officers and enlisted men of the escort carrier U. S. S. Guadalcanal, now stationed at the naval air training base here, received a Presidential citation today for capturing a German submarine off North Africa on June 4, 1944. The citation was presented by Rear Admiral C. A. Powenall, chief of naval air training. Captain Shirley Miller, present skipper of the carrier, received the award for the ship. Captain Dan Gallery was in command of the Guadalcanal at the time of the action cited.

$1,000,000 Fire at A.A. F. Base

FAIRFIELD, Calif., Nov. 10 (AP).—Fire today destroyed an Army Air Forces warehouse containing more than $1,000,000 worth of aircraft parts and plane supplies, Colonel Horace Aynesworth, the field's commanding officer said.

Scientific Press Freedom Sought

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—Requests for immediate restoration of freedom of the scientific press was sent today to the President, Congress and the secretaries of War, Navy and State by the metropolitan section of the American Physical Society.

Publication of much scientific work in nuclear physics is still forbidden under army rules covering anything that is considered pertinent to the atomic bomb. The letters carry a resolution adopted by the New York society which is meeting here today, which said:

"Any restrictions of research will not only be contrary to the traditions of science, but will delay the development of scientific research in this country.

"Advantages which may accrue from regimenting science for military secrecy will be more than offset in the long run by the disadvantages caused by hampered communications among scientists, the difficulty of training young scientists, and the general discouragement of scientific initiative.

"The determination of which of the presently classified (classified means held a military secret) information is scientific and should therefore be declassified, should be in the hands of a board, the majority of whose members are representative civilian scientists and engineers.

"In peacetime no control board should have censorship authority over the publication of scientific research."

"In the interest of world peace and of our national security we urge that our Government take immediate steps through the existing framework of the United Nations organization to call a conference for the purpose of working out machinery for the international control of armaments, especially those involving atomic power. We recommend that the United Nations organization be encouraged to get up an international commission of scientists to advise on technics through which such control might be exercised."

Iran's First Ambassador To Washington Arrives

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—Hussein Ala, Iran's first ambassador to the United States, said today Iran wants to be on friendly terms "with our powerful neighbors and Allies" but sees no reason why "foreign troops should still be occupying the territory of an ally."

The Ambasador arrived here on an Air Transport Command plane form London.

Ala was appointed four months ago after an agreement under which the Iranian legation was raised to the status of an embassy.

N.Y. City Honoring British Air Chief

New York, Nov. 10 (AP) — Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, of the Royal Air Force, deputy supreme Allied commander during the European war, will be officially honored today by New York city.

Sir Arthur is to receive a Certificate of Distinguished Service from Mayor F. H. LaGuardia at a City Hall ceremony, following which he will be guest of honor at a "picnic box luncheon." The British officer then will accompany the mayor to Yankee Stadium to see the Army-Notre Dame football game.

Sir Arthur and Lady Tedder arrived here yesterday for a tour of the United States. He is expected to join Prime Minister Attlee and British Ambassador Lord Halifax in talks in Washington on the future of atomic energy.

British RAF Leader Honored In New York

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur William Tedder of the Royal Air Force received today New York city's Certificate of Distinguished Service at an official reception at City Hall.

Muggy weather forced the ceremonies indoors, taking away some of the glitter of a New York reception.

Following the ceremony, the Marshal, accompanied by Lady Tedder, adjourned to the Board of Estimate chamber for a picnic lunch" with the Mayor, city officials, members of the British diplomatic colony in New York, Brig. Gen. Kenneth Lord, commanding the Eastern Defense Command, and their wives.

The "picnic" consisted of box lunches, tea, coffee, coca-cola and frankfurters. After lunch the party left to attend the Army-Notre Dame football game at Yankee Stadium.

1,000 Rabbis To 'March'

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—In a demonstration to coincide with Prime Minister Attlee's visit, 1,000 rabbis will "march on Washington" Monday to seek immediate admittance into Palestine of 100,000 European Jews.

Rabbi Baruch Korff, adviser to the Hebrew Committee of National Liberation, said between 300 and 400 of the rabbis would leave New York city for Washington and delegations would come from Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Chicago and other metropolitan centers.

The rabbis plan to deliver a four-point petition to congressmen and to the President urging immediate transfer of 100,000 Jews from Germany to Palestine; repudiation of the 1939 British White Paper; formation of an Anglo-American commission to carry out the League of Nations mandate, and release of Jewish patriots said to be held by the British in Egyptian Sudan, Eritrea and other places.

$250,000 Sought For Palestine Work

Cleveland, Nov. 10 (AP)—The Pioneer Women's Organization plans to raise $250,000 in the next five years for 25 new institutions in Palestine for women and children.

The sum, decided on at the group's annual convention here, will be used mainly to care for European refugees.

Mrs. Israel Goldstein of New York, chairman of the child rescue fund, told the convention that $200,000 was sent to Jerusalem this year for the rehabilitation of refugee children.

Arnold Favors ATC Helping Airlines

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—General of the Army Henry H. Arnold, commander of the Army Air Forces, proposes that the world-wide facilities of the Air Transport Command of the AAF be made "available to commercial operators."

He also said at a testimonial dinner given by an American Legion post last night that the task of the American Air Force was "to see that 1917 never happens again, and that December 7, 1941, never happens again."

BOMBER UNITS REACH U.S.

Men Of 3 Squadrons Of 444th Back From Pacific

San Francisco, Nov. 10 (AP)—Men of three squadrons of the veteran Pacific theater's 444th Bomb Group returned to their homeland today on the transport Winged Arrow, seventeen days out of Tinian.

The ship carried 1,609 Army Air Corps men—almost all of them ground crews and maintenance units—and three navy men. Most of the flying crews of the 444th previously had returned by air.

The soldiers included officers and men of the 676th, the 677th and the 678th Bomb Squadrons

Capt. Samuel A. Gard, of Hamilton, Ohio, one of the returning officers, said the 444th bomb group was the first B-29 Air Corps unit to be organized.

Formed In 1943

It was formed in April, 1943, at Tucson, Ariz., was sent to the China-Burma-India theater in February, 1944, and was transferred to Tinian in April, 1945.

All the men are being sent to near-by Camp Stoneman for processing.

Six other ships were due today, including the transport Sevier with 1,769 soldiers and 51 sailors. The destroyer Irwin had 127 veterans; the Rooks, 52; the transports Electra with 127, the Bald Eagle with 17, and the carrier Pigeon with 6 also were scheduled to dock.

Last Large Contingent 'For Some Time' To Sail

San Francisco, Nov. 10 (AP)—Guthrie Janssen, NBC correspondent at Manila, said today in a broadcast monitored in San Francisco that the last large contingent of service men to leave Manila for some time to come would embark for the United States next week.

Janssen said men with 78 and 82 discharge points were loading for home now, and that 72 and 77 point men were preparing to move into the 29th Replacement Center next week. The 82 to 100 point men left six weeks ago, he added.

The correspondent said fourteen ships carrying 35,000 service men were en route to the United States.

26TH DIVISION DUE HOME NEXT MONTH

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. — (AP) The Yankee (26th) division is scheduled for return to the United States next month, but may not debark at Boston, the War Department informed Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass.) today.

John W. Martyn, administrative assistant to Secretary of War Patterson, wrote Mrs. Rogers that it is too early to determine which debarkation port will be used.

His letter was in reply to a request forwarded by Mrs. Rogers from the Boston American legion which asks that the division debark at Boston so that a celebration could be arranged.

Martyn, said the factors governing the selection of a debarkation point is subject to change on very short notice and it is therefore not possible to determine now where the division will land.

34,500 Veterans Due Today

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—Seventeen transports, carrying more than 16,000 veteran troops are scheduled to dock tomorrow at three East Coast ports, while twenty ships with more than 18,500 men are due to arrive from the Pacific at six West Coast ports.

LONDON, NOV. 10--(AP)--THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED TODAY ITS RECOGNITION OF THE ALBANIAN GOVERNMENT OF PREMIER COL. GEN. ENVER HOXHA, AN ACTION TAKEN DESPITE GREEK OBJECTIONS.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID RECOGNITION WAS GRANTED WITH THE UNDERSTANDING THAT HOXHA INTENDED TO HOLD FREE ELECTIONS AT AN EARLY DATE.

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE BRITISH MILITARY MISSION IN ALBANIA WERE UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE AGREED WITH PREMIER HOXHA ON TERMS.

AT BRITISH GOVERNMENT OFFICES IT WAS POINTED OUT THAT, ALTHOUGH THE HOXHA REGIME IS PREDOMINATELY COMMUNIST, IT ALSO CONTAINS NON-COMMUNISTS AND IS NOT A GOVERNMENT FORCED ON THE COUNTRY FROM THE OUTSIDE. HOXHA IS GENERALLY BELIEVED TO HAVE CLOSE LIAISON WITH MARSHAL TITO OF YUGOSLAVIA.

THE GREEK GOVERNMENT HAS PROTESTED AGAINST BRITISH RECOGNITION OF THE REGIME AT TIRANA ON THE GROUNDS IT WOULD PREJUDICE ATHENS' TERRITORIAL CLAIMS TO NORTHERN EPIRUS. ATHENS DISPATCHES SAID THE GREEK PROTEST CALLED ATTENTION TO CHARGES THAT THE GREEK POPULATION IN NORTHERN EPIRUS, A PART OF ALBANIA, HAD BEEN MISTREATED. LONDON FOREIGN OFFICE SOURCES SAID BRITISH RECOGNITION OF ALBANIA WOULD NOT NECESSARILY AFFECT GREEK CLAIMS.

RECOGNITION OF THE HOXHA REGIME WOULD LEAVE THE STATUS OF KING ZOG IN THE BALANCE. KING ZOG FLED ALBANIA WHEN MUSSOLINI'S LEGIONS INVADED THE COUNTRY ON GOOD FRIDAY, APRIL 7, 1939, AND IS NOW LIVING IN EXILE IN ENGLAND. DIPLOMATIC QUARTERS EXPRESS BELIEF HE IS NOT ACCEPTABLE TO THE PRESENT REGIME IN ALBANIA.

ALBANIA, WHICH MUSSOLINI TOOK OVER ON APRIL 7, 1939, HAS BEEN TRYING UNDER HOXHA TO GET BIG-POWER RECOGNITION FOR A LONG TIME. THE STATE DEPARTMENT SAID IT UNDERSTOOD THAT RUSSIA ALSO WAS MAKING RECOGNITION OFFERS TODAY.

THE SITUATION WAS COMPLICATED FOR BRITAIN BECAUSE OF HER FRIENDSHIP WITH GREECE. THE GREEKS HAVE LAID CLAIM TO THE TERRITORY OF NORTHERN EPIRUS AND PROTESTED AGAINST BRITISH RECOGNITION OF HOXHA ON THE GROUND THE CLAIM WOULD BE PREJUDICED.

THE AMERICAN NOTE TO HOXHA WAS DELIVERED IN TIRANA TODAY, THE STATE DEPARTMENT SAID, BY JOSEPH E. JACOBS, UNITED STATES POLITICAL REPRESENTATIVE THERE.

CHUNGKING,NOV.10-(AP)-CHINESE COMMUNISTS MADE A NEW CHARGE TODAY OF AMERICAN INTERVENTION EVEN AS THE NAVY DEPARTMENT IN WASHINGTON WAS EMPHASIZING THE MARINES ARE NOT IN CHINA "FOR ANY PURPOSE CONNECTED WITH THE CONFLICT" BETWEEN REDS AND NATIONALISTS.

A COMMUNIST SPOKESMAN ALLEGED, WITHOUT CONFIRMATION, THAT AN AMERICAN ULTIMATUM WAS SERVED LAST MONDAY ON RED TROOPS TO WITHDRAW 100 KILOMETERS FROM EITHER SIDE OF THE PEIPING-MUKDEN RAILROAD. THE SPOKESMAN SAID THE RED COMMANDER AT SHANHAIKWAN, COASTAL TERMINUS OF THE GREAT WALL, TURNED IT DOWN--AND NOTHING IN THE WAY OF FIGHTING HAS BEEN REPORTED SINCE.

IN WASHINGTON, THE NAVY DEPARTMENT STATEMENT NOTED THAT MARINES UNDER LT.GEN.ALBERT C.WEDEMEYER'S OPERATIONAL CONTROL ARE STATIONED ALONG THE PEIPING-TIENTSIN-CHINWANGTAO LINE OF COMMUNICATION AND AT TSINGTAO.

THE STATEMENT ADDED THE MARINES WERE THERE "FOR THE PURPOSE, AND THE PURPOSE ONLY, OF ASSISTING THE CHINESE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT TO OBTAIN THE SURRENDER OF JAPANESE FORCES THERE AND TO CARRY OUT THE SURRENDER TERMS IN ACCORDANCE WITH INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENT.

FROM CHINWANGTAO, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT RICHARD BERGHOLZ REPORTED THAT THE MARINES ARE NEAR ENOUGH TO HEAR THE SKIRMISHING AND TO SEE WOUNDED BEING BROUGHT IN. HE SAID THE MARINES HAVE HEARD, WITH SOME RESERVATION, REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON THAT THEY ARE TO BE PULLED OUT.

VICE ADM. DANIEL BARBEY TOLD BERGHOLZ THERE WAS SUFFICIENT SHIPPING IN NORTH CHINA TO GET THE BULK OF THE MORE THAN 50,000 MARINES IN THE AREA HOME BY CHRISTMAS IF THAT IS TO BE AMERICAN POLICY.

A CHECK BY BERGHOLZ OF THE TROUBLED AREA FAILED TO DISCLOSE ANY OUTBREAK OF LARGE SCALE CIVIL WAR AS YET.

HOWEVER, THE CHINA CENTRAL NEWS AGENCY SAID THAT BLOODY SEESAW BATTLES ARE IN PROGRESS AT RAILROAD POINTS IN SHANSI PROVINCE.

THE PEIPING-MUKDEN RAILROAD, MENTIONED IN THE COMMUNIST SPOKESMAN'S NEW CHARGE AGAINST THE AMERICANS, IS A VITAL ARTERY FOR TRANSPORTATION OF CHINESE NATIONALISTS TO MANCHURIA.

THE REDS HAVE SAID THEY WOULD OPPOSE ENTRY OF GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK'S TROOPS INTO MANCHURIA. RECENTLY THE NATIONALISTS SOUGHT TO LAND AT TWO PORTS IN MANCHURIA FROM ADMIRAL BARBEY'S SHIPS BUT DID NOT GO ASHORE AFTER REPORTEDLY FINDING THAT RUSSIAN FORCES HAD WITHDRAWN FROM THEM AND THAT CHINESE COMMUNISTS HAD TAKEN OVER.

HONOLULU, NOV.10-(AP)-COMPLAINTS FROM 140 HIGH-POINT VETERANS ON LONELY CANTON ISLAND IN THE PHOENIX GROUP THAT THEY HAVE BEEN AWAITING TRANSPORTATION HOME SINCE LAST JULY BROUGHT CONFIRMATION--AND A PROMISE OF A QUICK RIDE--FROM THE MID-PACIFIC COMMAND'S TRANSPORTATION OFFICE TODAY.

THE OFFICE, ACKNOWLEDGING COMPLAINTS APPEARING IN THE ARMY NEWSPAPER STARS AND STRIPES, ATTRIBUTED THE DELAY TO THE FACT THAT ONLY A FEW MEN AT A TIME HAD BECOME ELIGIBLE FOR DISCHARGE. THE SERVICES WERE MORE THAN ORDINARY SUNDAY WORSHIP AND THE MEN WHO WERE TO HAVE SPEARHEADED THE ASSAULT ON BEACHES NEAR HERE FILLED CHAPELS SITUATED ON GROUNDS ONCE MARKED OUT ON BATTLE MAPS FOR AMERICAN CEMETERIES.

ALL AROUND THEM WAS EVIDENCE OF WHAT, THEY FELT, WOULD HAVE MADE INVASION THE BLOODIEST ONSLAUGHT IN HISTORY.

IN THE BACKGROUND LAY INSURMOUNTABLE VOLCANOES AND MOUNTAINS, HONEYCOMBED WITH CAVES AND TUNNELS, ELABORATE BEYOND THE IMAGINATION OF EVEN THE COMBAT VETERANS.

LEATHERNECKS EVER ASSEMBLED FOR ONE ENGAGEMENT.

THE INVASION OF JAPAN WOULD HAVE BEEN ANOTHER IOW JIMA, MULTIPLIED MANY TIMES. THE MARINES BELIEVE.

OUT OF THE RUIN WHICH AIR AND NAVAL BOMBARDMENT WOULD HAVE LEFT WOULD HAVE ARISEN EVERY JAPANESE MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD TO OPPOSE THE ALLIED LANDINGS VICIOUSLY AND FANATICALLY.

ONLY A QUANTITY OF ATOMIC BOMBS COULD HAVE ELIMINATED SUCH RESISTANCE. THE FEELING IS THAT "WE WOULD HAVE WON, BUT WE WOULD HAVE SUFFERED UNPRECEDENTED CASUALTIES."

THESE THOUGHTS RAN THROUGH THE MINDS OF MARINES AS THEY HEARD THEIR CHAPLAINS MEMORIALIZE THE MEN WHO "DIED TO TEACH THE JAPANESE THAT AMERICANS DO NOT CHOOSE TO BE KILLERS."

REORGANIZATION
BY FRANCIS J.KELLY

(ADVANCE)..WASHINGTON,NOV.10-(AP)-SENATOR HARRY BYRD IS CONVINCED IT WOULD BE A LOT EASIER TO GET AROUND IN THE JUNGLE OF GOVERNMENT IF THE NAMES OF THE VARIOUS DIVISIONS WERE SYSTEMATIZED.

THAT IS ONE OF THE CHIEF SUGGESTIONS THE VIRGINIA DEMOCRAT HAS SUBMITTED TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN FOR USE WHEN AND IF CONGRESS AGREES ON LEGISLATION WHICH WOULD AUTHORIZE THE PRESIDENT TO REORGANIZE THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH.

"A BUREAU IN ONE DEPARTMENT IS NOT NECESSARILY COMPARABLE IN POSITION, AUTHORITY, RESPONSIBILITY, SIZE AND ADMINISTRATIVE REQUIREMENTS TO A BUREAU IN ANOTHER DEPARTMENT," BYRD OBSERVED.

"THE SAME LACK OF UNIFORMITY IN DEFINITIONS FOR UNIT DESIGNATIONS EXISTS IN THE USE OF THE TERMS OFFICE, DIVISION, BOARD, COMMISSION, ETC.

"THE SITUATION IS CONFUSED EVEN MORE BY THE TENDENCY TOWARD USE OF MORE IMPOSING DESIGNATIONS SUCH AS AUTHORITY, ADMINISTRATION, SERVICE, AGENCY, CORPORATION, COMPANY, ETC."

AMPLIFYING THE SUCCESTION, BYRD RECOMMENDED TO THE PRESIDENT THAT THE SUBDIVISIONS OF GOVERNMENT BE DESIGNATED IN SUCH MANNER AS TO "INDICATE THE ECHELON OR LEVEL WITHIN THE DEPARTMENTAL ORGANIZATION, STATUS IN THE CHAIN OF AUTHORITY AND RESPONSIBILITY, ADMINISTRATION OR HOUSEKEEPING REQUIREMENTS, AND RATING OF THE HEAD."

SOME DEPARTMENTS, SUCH AS STATE AND POSTOFFICE, ARE PRETTY WELL STANDARDIZED IN THEIR NAMING SYSTEMS. THE STATE DEPARTMENT, FOR INSTANCE, IS DIVIDED INTO VARIOUS "OFFICES," SUCH AS THE OFFICE OF FAR EASTERN AFFAIRS. THAT, IN TURN, IS SUBDIVIDED INTO THE DIVISION OF CHINESE AFFAIRS, DIVISION OF JAPANESE AFFAIRS, SOUTHWEST PACIFIC AFFAIRS AND PHILIPPINE AFFAIRS.

BYRD CALLED THE INTERIOR DEPARTMENT SYSTEM A "HODGE PODGE." HE POINTED OUT THAT ITS VARIOUS BRANCHES BEAR SUCH LABELS AS OFFICE,

30.24-31559

DIVISION, ADMINISTRATION, BOARD, AUTHORITY, SURVEY AND SERVICE.

AS CHAIRMAN OF THE JOINT COMMITTEE ON REDUCTION OF NONESSENTIAL FEDERAL EXPENDITURES ("THE ECONOMY COMMITTEE"), BYRD HAS MADE A STUDY OF THE ORGANIZATION OF GOVERNMENT AND OF WAYS TO ELIMINATE OVERLAPPING AND DUPLICATION.

HIS NO.1 RECOMMENDATION IS TO PLACE ALL CURRENTLY INDEPENDENT ADMINISTRATIVE AGENCIES UNDER CABINET CONTROL.

PHASE TWO WOULD BE THE ESTABLISHMENT OF UNIFORM NOMENCLATURE WITHIN THE DEPARTMENTAL ORGANIZATIONS.

A140WX

THE THIRD STP--CONSOLIDATION AND COORDINATION THROUGHOUT THE GOVERNMENT.

FINALLY, HE WOULD BACK LEGISLATION ENDING ALL REMAINING UNNECESSARY GOVERNMENT ACTIVITIES.

BYRD INDICATES THERE IS A BIG FIELD FOR ECONOMY IN THE VARIOUS "HOUSEKEEPING" FUNCTIONS OF GOVERNMENT.

"AMONG THE DEPARTMENTAL STAFF AND HOUSEKEEPING SERVICES WHICH ARE PARTICULARLY NOTABLE FOR THE NUMBER OF UNITS ENGAGED IN THEM," HE SAID, ARE:

PERSONNEL, TRAINING, INVESTIGATIONS, SAFETY AND WELFARE, RETIREMENT, FISCAL BUDGET, AUDITING, ACCOUNTING, TABULATING, PROCUREMENT, MAINTENANCE OF PROPERTY, COMMUNICATIONS, CORRESPONDENCE, MESSENGER SERVICE, REVIEW AND ROUTING, FILING, TRANSPORTATION, SHIPPING, PRINTING, DUPLICATING, INFORMATION, PUBLIC RELATIONS AND LIBRARY.

EXCLUDING THE WAR, NAVY AND POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENTS, BYRD SAID THERE ARE 101 UNITS IN 26 DEPARTMENTS AND ESTABLISHMENTS WHICH DESCRIBE THEIR DUTIES AS INCLUDING "RECRUITING."

SAN FRANCISCO, NOV.10-(AP)-ORDERS HAVE BEEN ISSUED WHICH WILL PREVENT FUTURE USE OF HIGH-POINT SERVICE MEN FOR KITCHEN POLICE DUTY ABOARD HOMEBOUND VESSELS FROM THE ORIENT, MAJ.GEN.HOMER J.GRONINGER SAID TODAY.

IN CONNECTION WITH CHARGES THAT HIGH-POINT VETERANS ABOARD THE STEAMER MONTEREY HAD BEEN REQUIRED TO DO KP DUTY, THE COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE SAN FRANCISCO PORT OF EMBARKATION ISSUED THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT:

"THE COMPLAINT OF NAVY VETERANS ABOARD THE STEAMSHIP MONTEREY THAT THEY HAD TO PERFORM KP DUTIES FOR CIVILIAN PAYING PASSENGERS BRINGS TO A HEAD A SITUATION ON WHICH WE HAD PREVIOUS COMPLAINT AND ON WHICH WE HAD TAKEN IMMEDIATE ACTION.

"THESE ORDERS REQUIRE THAT BEFORE ANY SPACE IS ALLOTTED FOR COMMERCIAL PASSENGERS ON WSA (WAR SHIPPING ADMINISTRATION) VESSELS, SUCH AS THE MONTEREY. THE SHIP STEWARD DEPARTMENT, COMPOSED OF CIVILIAN CREW MEMBERS, BE ADEQUATELY MANNED TO HANDLE THE COMMERCIAL PASSENGERS.

"THESE ORDERS HAD NOT YET REACHED THE THEATERS WHEN THE MONTEREY LOADED.

"AND, OF COURSE, WE WON'T CARRY CIVILIANS, EXCEPT UNDER EXTRAORDINARY CIRCUMSTANCS, AS LONG AS THERE ARE ARMY AND NAVY PERSONNEL AVAILABLE FOR TRANSPORTATION.

"ON THIS PARTICULAR VOYAGE, THE SHIP WAS NOT UNDER ARMY CONTROL. IT WAS ASSIGNED TO THE NAVY FOR THE ROUND TRIP TO HONOLULU.

"WHILE WE MUST AWAIT THE ARRIVAL OF THE VESSEL TO GET A TRUE PICTURE OF THE SITUATION, IT IS MY UNDERSTANDING THAT THE KP DUTIES COMPLAINED OF CENTER IN THE TROOP CLASS MESS AND THAT THE SHIP STEWARD DEPARTMENT IS HANDLING FIRST CLASS PASSENGER MESS."

GRONINGER'S STATEMENT FOLLOWED A PROTEST APPEARING IN THE ARMY NEWSPAPER STARS AND STRIPES. British Blast Way Into Soerabaja as Big Guns Open Up

BRITISH TROOPS RENEW ATTACKS ON INDONESIANS

Bombers Blast Soerabaja Naval Base, Scoring Direct Hits.

CASUALTIES HEAVY

Native Leader Claims Thousands of Civilians Killed in 'Massacre.'

LI ERICKSON

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 11—(AP) British air attacks were renewed on Soerabaja late today in support of Indian troops fighting in the center of the great naval base, as President Soekarno of the unrecognized Indonesian republic declared that "thousands and thousands" of civilians had been killed in a "vast massacre."

The British reported that their bombers scored direct hits on the main Indonesian army headquarters and on three other staff headquarters.

Tanks seized from the Japanese by the Indonesians were sent into action against Indian troops, the British command said. The tanks fired 30 rounds into the Fifth Indian division, but finally were silenced by artillery, the announcement said.

The official British report, in its first mention of Indonesian casualties, said that many of the "enemy" were killed in "fanatical charges against British tanks," and that "many Indonesian bodies were removed by women last night" following fighting yesterday.

Call For "Holy War"

The Soekarno government meantime made public messages from the Islam congress meeting in Jogjakarta calling for a Moslem "holy war" against colonial subjugation.

Soekarno, in a statement at Jogjakarta where he addressed 50,000 wildly cheering nationalist youths with a fiery exhortation, called on world public opinion to condemn the British attack on Soerabaja, a city of 500,000 tightly-packed residents. He said two entire Indonesian quarters had been burned down and the Chinese and Arab quarter severely damaged.

The headquarters of Lt. Gen. Sir Philip Christian, Allied commander in the Netherlands East Indies, flatly denied native assertions that the British had made indiscriminate air attacks upon the city, however. The headquarters added that it had received no reports that the British were employing naval guns to support the Fifth Indian division, as the Nationalists had claimed. The Dutch news agency Aneta said that only 20 bombs were dropped on the city in the British air attacks.

DAY

Christison's headquarters said 3,500 internees had been rescued from the jail in which they had been held by the Indonesians. The British seized the Soerabaja telephone exchange intact, and telephone communications were opened to Batavia. Soerabaja's water and lighting systems were "out of order," the British said.

No Mass Evacuation Revealed

Areas occupied by the British were empty of inhabitants except for a few native women and children who were being fed by the British. Aerial reconnaissance, however, failed to reveal any mass evacuation of Indonesians from the city.

Advancing under cover of darkness Fifth Indian division troops gained two-thirds of Soerabaja, the Dutch said. Earlier British accounts, detailing the close quarter nature of the fighting, said that Maj. Gen. E. C. Mansergh's forces pushed 1,200 yards into the city in a "through" advance from jump-off positions in the dockyard perimeter.

There were increasing signs that the native extremists soon would be driven from the city.

Soekarno Hits British

In his statement issued at Jogjakarta, Java's ancient capital, Soekarno said:

"I strongly protest against the use of bombers and heavy weapons against a city population which is not able to defend itself properly against those weapons. I hereby draw the attention of the whole world toward the vast massacre of men, women and children."

Among the casualties, he asserted, were hundreds of "Chinese and Arab innocent and peaceloving people who came here as merchants and traders."

Although Soekarno declared it his intention to localize the Soerabaja incident, he got over to the cheering youth in his exhortation that those who hindered the Indonesian republic must be killed.

Nationalist Information Minister Sjarifuddin charged that the British were using civilians as a shield for their advance. He added that Americans were among the victims of the British attack. There were no Americans known to be in Soerabaja.

An official British casualty report listed 183 officers and men missing who were presumed to be captives of the natives. Reported British casualties through yesterday were one killed and four wounded.

Of 12 R.A.F. Mosquito bombers sent on air strikes with 500-pound bombs, three were put out of action with fuel tank holes from Indonesian rifle and machine-gun fire.

Brigadier Killed

Brigadier Loder-Symonds, commander of royal artillery, was killed in the take-off crash of a Mosquito bomber. The accident occurred as Loder-Symonds, who won the American Distinguished Service Cross for the Arnhem action on the Western front, was starting on an observation flight.

Charges that three captured Indian soldiers rescued in the British advance had been stripped of their clothing, bound to posts and severely beaten by Indonesian extremists were made by Lt. Col. Roy Oliver.

"I can't understand the Indonesians' point in torturing Indians falling in their hands," The British officer continued. "If it is intended as intimidation of Indian soldiers I say the torture had the opposite effect. The Indians are pretty worked up over what was done to the prisoners by the Indonesians."

Dutch and British concern that the Soerabaja battle might touch off a wave of bitter fighting throughout troubled Java lessened. The British command said there had been "no strong reaction" in other sections of the rich island to the happenings at the naval base and that reception of the news by "Indonesians everywhere had been almost phlegmatic."

It was not clear whether the reported decision of the youth movement members to march the 175 miles from Jogjakarta to Soerabaja to reinforce the Nationalists at the naval base was being carried out.

Indonesians leaders at Jogjakarta declined to show newspaper men the native army gathered in training camps near Jogjakarta. Presumably they wished to keep its size and organization secret.

Cabinet Changes Seen

In Batavia, the capital, Indonesian and Dutch sources both reported that a change was likely in the Cabinet of the unrecognized "Indonesian republic." One native leader said that the change, if it comes, would place more extremists in the Cabinet.

Dutch sources predicted that the leader of the new native Cabinet would be Sjahira, chairman of the working committee of the Indonesian National Council.

Describing him as a "moderate Nationalist" with whom they could deal, the Dutch said the Holland-educated Sjahira had stayed aloof from the Nationalist party during the Japanese occupation of the East Indies when other Indonesian Nationalists had collaborated with the Japanese, either voluntarily or by compulsion.

British Crew Quits Ship Taking Troops to Java

Dutch Soldiers Aboard Urged to 'Go Back to Holland'

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 11 (AP).—The crew of the British ship Moreton Bay walked off the vessel today just before it was to sail for Java with 1,500 Dutch troops, while demonstrators at the wharf shouted at the soldiers, "Go back to Holland!" and "Hands off Java!" The soldiers replied by singing patriotic songs and hoisting their national flag.

Earlier the crewmen had sent a cablegram to the British National Union of Seamen, pointing out that the Australian Seamen's Union had refused to permit members to work on ships carrying troops to fight the Indonesians, and asking if British sailors should follow suit. They agreed to take the ship to sea at 5 p. m. tomorrow if no reply is received by then.

The Dutch troops had been transported to Australia on the British liner Stirling Castle and then were transferred to the Moreton Bay, from which they had not been permitted to go ashore.

SAIGON HONORS DEAD HEROES

Troops Guard Paraders In Embattled Indo-China City

Saigon, Indo-China, Nov. 11 (AP)—The embattled city of Saigon, on the alert for Annamese snipers and saboteurs, turned from its own strife temporarily today to honor the dead of World War I in elaborate Armistice Day ceremonies.

The entire European population gathered at the cathedral for a memorial mass, and then, under a heavy military guard, lined the Boulevard Noronom to watch a colorful parade of British Indian Gurkhas and Tommies and French soldiers and sailors.

RAF Unit Guards Parade

Standing guard along the boulevard were French and British imperials who could be spared from the Annamese fronts, and an RAF unit from the nightly harassed Saigon airfield.

The parade was reviewed by British Maj. Gen. Douglas Gracey, French Maj. Gen. Jacques Leclerc and Rear Admiral George Theirry D'Argenlieu, highest military officials in Saigon.

An uneasy quiet reigned in the city, where during the past 48 hours machine-gun and rifle fire had been heard at a number of places.

Unexplained machine-gun fire broke out Friday afternoon in the vicinity of the Saigon Sports Club, and sniping occurred throughout the night in the British sector, where automatic weapons answered, and along the Boulevard Noronom, scene of today's parade.

French Ships Fire On Sampans

Toward midnight Friday night the French ships Quercy and Triomphate fired machine-gun volleys across the river into a concentration of sampans, which were moving in violation of the curfew.

The Annamese succeeded early yesterday morning in penetrating the RAF's jungle-fringed perimeter around the Saigon airfield and set fire to a 40,000-gallon gasoline dump. The loss was not serious.

KING PUTS WREATH ON WAR MEMORIAL

ED CREAGH

LONDON, Nov. 11—(AP) Thousands of Londoners, observing Armistice day for the first time since 1938, today watched King George VI place a wreath of Flanders poppies at the National Memorial to the fallen of World War I.

Other wreaths were placed by Princess Elizabeth, in the trim uniform of an Auxiliary Territorial Service officer, by Wartime Prime Minister Winston Churchil; and by Lord President of the Council Herbert Morrison, representing Prime Minister Attlee.

Big Ben Rings Out

Then eleven strokes of Big Ben rang across Parliament square and for two long minutes there was utter silence.

In Westminster Abbey, the only movement was the flickering of candles around the tomb of the Unknown Warrior. A memorial service in the historic cathedral ended with a dedication adapted from Lincoln's Gettysburg address:

"Grant, O merciful God, that with malice towards none, with charity to all, with firmness in the right as Thou givest us to see the right, we may strive to finish this task which Thou hast appointed us.

"To bind up the nation's wounds x x x to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

Informal Observance

Observance of Armistice day by Americans in England was informal. Memorial services were held in Army chapels and in most American installations Monday will be observed as a holiday. In London Americans spent the day in usual Sunday pursuits.

Services were held in cathedrals and village halls throughout Britain and in many parts of the Empire. During a ceremony at Folkestone, in the south of England, hundreds of leave troops on their way back to the continent passed along the "Road of Remembrance" planted with rosemary in honor of the 1914-1918 dead.

The Imperial War Graves commission took the occasion of Armistice day to report that crews of workmen were busy in Europe removing from headstones of World War I dead the bullet scars of World War II.

British Maritime Group Charts Conference Aims

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—British delegates to the International Maritime Conference opening in Copenhagen on Nov. 15 will propose that seamen's hours and wages and the manning of ships be considered together in any attempt to establish international labor standards on the high seas.

The conference, called by the joint Maritime Commission of the International Labor Office, is to try for a preliminary international agreement on regulation of merchant fleet employment conditions.

The British Shipping Federation's view is that total wage costs rather than wage rates alone are the determining factor in international competition.

British May Terminate Hereditary Pensions

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—The British Labor Government soon may terminate the £5,000 ($20,000) pension that has been paid annually to the family of Lord Nelson since the battle of Trafalgar.

The payments have totaled £700,000 ($2,800,000) in the 140 years since the award was first made as a tribute to the one-armed seadog.

Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, recently stated that it was "high time" something was done about ending the awards, presumably by a lump payment. Such action would retire the last of the hereditary pensions which have given millions of pounds to war heroes, court favorites and their descendants.

Overcrowded Vessel Disgusts RAF Officers

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—Four hundred Royal Australian and Royal New Zealand Airforce officers and warrant officers refused to sail for Australia aboard the Orient liner Orion today because of what they termed "disgusting overcrowding."

A senior RAF officer said conditions aboard the ship, which carried approximately 2,600 men, were no worse than any other troopship.

'Heavy Vote' Cast By Yugoslavians

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Yugoslav Telegraph Agency said tonight a "very heavy" vote was cast today in the Yugoslav Constituent Assembly elections and that final results will not be known until tomorrow.

A spokesman for the Yugoslav agency in London said that, although most of the returns were in, there had been no determination of the voting trend.

The spokesman said he did not know the source of Swiss radio reports, quoted by the Exchange Telegraph Agency, which said first returns showed the National Front (Marshal Tito's party) leading.

He said 80 per cent of the Belgrade electorate voted; that Serbian districts reported an average of between 80 and 90 per cent, and Croatia nearly 90 per cent.

Sir Arthur Harris Ill

Halton, England, Nov. 11 (AP)—Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris, who plans to retire January 1, is ill at the RAF hospital in Halton, it was learned today. The nature of his illness was not announced. The 53-year-old marshal recently returned from a good-will mission to Rhodesia and South Africa.

DEGAULLE URGES UNITY IN FRANCE

PARIS, Nov. 11—(AP) Gen. De Gaulle stood today before the caskets of 15 French heroes of the battlefronts, the underground and Nazi prison camps and in an Armistice day address told his countrymen "we must understand how eternally precarious our country's safety remains."

Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill arrived in the French capital as a guest of British Ambassador Duff Cooper. Churchill was scheduled to witness tonight's rekindling of the flame on the tomb of France's Unknown Soldier at the Arc De Triomphe.

Today's ceremonies took place before the tomb, where the 15 caskets were assembled.

Speaking at a moment when France's major political parties were deadlocked over a program to present the caretaker government deGaulle is expected to head, the French leader said:

"We must agree to unite as brothers in order to cure wounded France—as brothers, which is to say by silencing the absurd quarrels, to walk the same road in step together singing the same song."

American soldiers throughout France joined in observing Armistice day. Churches in Paris held special memorial services, and a ceremony for Jewish war dead was held at Rothschild synagogue.

Religious and military services were held at Le Havre, U. S. Army embarkation port. American and French soldiers paraded at Reims.

American graves were decorated by French townspeople at cemeteries throughtout the country.

Most American soldiers in Europe will receive a holiday tomorrow—only a skeleton staff will remain on duty.

France-U. S. Calls Halted as Phones Fail

PARIS, Nov. 11 (AP).—Public telephone communications between France and the United States were shut down today because of technical failure, after the service had been in operation continuously since Wednesday. Money was refunded to hundreds of American service men who had booked calls home.

TROOPS SPEEDED HOME

LE HAVRE, Nov. 11—(AP) A total of 63,398 United States troops were returned from this port of embarkation during the first 10 days of November.

Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery declared today that Allied cooperation had fallen short of making the four-power government of Germany effective, and that the British were taking precautions against any civilian uprisings caused by winter's hardships.

He asserted that French recalcitrance towards setting up a central administration for Germany was the chief obstacle to efficient four-power control of the beaten Reich.

He took a grave view of the possibility of civilian outbreaks, saying they "may well have a disastrous effect on the recovery of the country."

The British commander described the present machinery for control of Germany as "one of the boldest experiments in the history of international cooperation," but added that if it fails "the prospect of successful cooperation between the great powers in a wider field will be much impaired."

Expressing his views at an Armistice day press conference, Montgomery said:

"There is no need for me to tell you the chief obstacle that stands in our way. You know very well that it has not been possible so far to reconcile the view of France in this matter with that of the three powers which sat together at Potsdam and agreed to establish these central administrations."

Montgomery expressed the belief that a way around these difficulties "will be found," adding that such a step was necessary because of "certain practical considerations demanding early action by the four powers in coming to grips with the economic situation throughout Germany."

Official informants had said previously that if France persists in opposing a central administration, the other powers would attain this end by effecting bilateral agreements between military zone commanders. Approval of a central administration by the Allied Control Council of which France is a member, requires a unanimous vote.

The French are said to be insisting that their proposals for internationalization of the Ruhr and detaching the Rhineland from Germany be discussed before the council considers a central administration.

Montgomery said that it was natural that there should be divergences among the four powers, but that the cooperative spirit among them "has not proved sufficient up to this date to make the government of Germany as a whole by the control council effective."

Montgomery's statements on the effect of civilian uprisings recalled Gen. Eisenhower's recent report to the American Congress in which he described present unrest in Germany as "just one step" from organized resistance. Eisenhower also deplored slowness in setting up a central administration.

Eisenhower is enroute to the United States now where he is expected to report on the military government.

Threat of Unrest

The British commander said that while the German people at present were docile and well behaved, "it is impossible to estimate what will be the effect on them of the shortage of food and fuel under the rigorous conditions of the Central European winter."

Montgomery said his troops had been deployed for the "battle of winter" not only to guard key points, but also to provide additional guards for food and coal dumps if needed and to bring quick aid to German police in case of civilian disturbances.

He described the food situation in the British zone as the most critical since the Allies entered Germany.

He said he was unable to state whether wheat imports would arrive in time to enable him to maintain the existing ration through this month and next, and that he would have difficulty in supplying the present potato ration of two and one-fifth pounds per person a week.

To Stay in Germany

He indicated he expected to remain in Germany throughout the winter, declaring that "any change in command until the battle of winter is won would be undesirable."

He expressed anxiety over the possibility of epidemics and disease, particularly influenza.

"I think we need a really cold winter — this would cause much hardship, but would prevent the spread of disease."

Montgomery said coal production in the British zone had increased more than 100 per cent between July and October, but that lack of transportation has made it impossible to move more than 6,000,000 tons of coal and coke piled up above the ground.

Regarding denazification in the British zone, Montgomery reported that all ardent Nazis in public or semi-public offices had been removed and that up to Oct. 1 the British made 50,000 arrests in pursuing a "methodical" weeding out of the Nazis.

He ended the interview with the mention that Soviet Marshal Georgi Zhukov had been his dinner guest last night. Zhukov was much interested in highland dancing which was provided as after-dinner amusement, Montgomery said.

"We will have the benefit of new inventions and scientific advances, and we will also have atomic energy."

The unveiling of the huge, seven-shafted semi-circular marble and granite monument was the highlight of the Russians' week-long celebration of the anniversary of the "October revolution."

Military Leader Pledges Atomic Energy for Russia

Gen. Telegrin Tells Red Army It Will Figure in Soviet Postwar World.

BERLIN, Nov. 11 — (AP) A Russia "strong and prosperous, in which we also will have atomic energy," was promised today to Red Army soldiers, who dedicated a huge marble and granite memorial to their comrades who fell in the battle for Berlin.

The promise was made by Lt. Gen. Telegin, chief deputy to Marshal Georgi Zhukov, at colorful ceremonies which fell on the same day Russia's Western allies observed the armistice which ended the First World war.

The program was held in the Tiergarten just west of the Brandenburg gate, and the Americans, British and French each contributed an honor company. On the speakers' platform were the Berlin district commanders of the three Western allies, Zhukov and a dozen other Soviet marshals and generals.

"Six months ago the Red army and its Allies smashed German fascism," said Telegin, the principal speaker. "It is fitting we raise a monument here in the former capital of the aggressors. Now, together with our Allies, we are building peace for the world.

"Though millions of our best died in this bloody fight against the fascist aggressors, our Russia remains great, healthy and strong. In years of peace we will rebuild at home for prosperity and the good life which your valiant fight in defense of our country deserves."

monument were joined by the 325th Anti-tank Company of the United States 82d Airborne Division, Britain's 2d Devonshire and by a company from the French 49th Infantry Regiment.

After the ceremonies all troops passed in review before Zhukov, the other Soviet generals, and the allied commanders, United States Maj. Gen. James Gavin, British Brig. Gen. W. R. N. Hinde and French Maj. Gen. Geoffrey de Beauchesne.

SOVIET CURB ON NEWS COPY APPEARS OVER

Censorship Lifting Indicated By Molotov At Celebration

Moscow, Nov. 11 (AP)—Soviet censorship of outgoing news dispatches appeared today to have been lifted, although there has been no official announcement and foreign correspondents still are submitting stories as previously for stamping by censors.

All Associated Press dispatches filed since November 7 have been passed without any deletions, and the censorship process on political commentaries and similar stories—which often in the past have been held up for several hours—has been expedited. Other correspondents report similar experiences.

At Molotov's Reception

This marks the first time since the Nazis invaded the Soviet Union—and Soviet censorship was established — that correspondents have been able to feel their stories would go through without deletions or delay.

The continuation of censorship after the end of the war was protested recently by the Anglo-American Correspondents Association of Moscow, which received a reply saying that Foreign Commissar Molotov found "without substance" certain points on which the protest was based.

The first and only mention of censorship by Molotov in person, however, came the night of November 7 at Molotov's reception during the celebration of the Red Revolution anniversary. Persons present expressed the opinion he hinted then that censorship was being ended.

Better Understanding

Carrying out his custom at the reception, Molotov at midnight began moving through the crowd of diplomats, military men, journalists and other guests. He was accompanied by A. Y. Vyshinsky, deputy foreign commissar, and followed by waiters bearing vodka, wine and glasses.

After drinking a toast with the Chinese Ambassador, Molotov walked up to Eddie Gilmore, Associated Press Correspondent, and said:

"I want to drink a toast with American correspondent Gilmore—if you were in my position what sort of toast would you propose?"

Gilmore answered he supposed the Soviet Foreign Commissar should propose a toast to a better understanding between the press of the Soviet Union and the United States.

"That Is A Good Toast"

"That is a good toast," Molotov said, "but what is your main issue as a correspondent now?"

"Mine is trying to write an interpretation of your speech last night at the Kremlin, which I thought was the most important in months." Gilmore replied.

Molotov said, "Now come on—you are not a politician and I will not be one. You know correspondents do not like Soviet censorship. You want to wipe it out."

"Let Us Drink A Toast"

Gilmore answered, "well, sir, you read our letter and our telegram."

Molotov said: "What would you say if I told you I would agree to reciprocity?"

Gilmore said: "I think it would be a very fine thing."

Molotov beamed and said: "Let us drink a toast then."

Gilmore chose vodka instead of wine and Molotov smiled, saying "that's a real Russian toast."

They drank to a "better understanding of both our countries."

Held Glass Over Head

Molotov emptied his glass and held it upside down over his head, smiled and passed on.

A few minutes later a high-ranking foreign diplomat who had witnessed the toast approached Gilmore and said, "I think you have got censorship lifted."

During the past few years the Soviet censor has assumed some responsibilities for the correctness of stories he passed. If it is correct that censorship is now merely a formality, undoubtedly this responsibility is to be transferred directly to correspondents.

CENSORSHIP CURBS EASED BY RUSSIANS

LONDON, Nov. 11—(AP) A Reuters dispatch from Moscow tonight reported an apparent easing of Soviet censorship of outgoing news stories written by foreign correspondents.

"During the past two weeks," Reuters said, "the rigid application of wartime restrictions appear to have been somewhat relaxed, and foreign journalists have been allowed a much wider scope in their comment on Soviet affairs."

The Anglo-American Correspondents' association in Moscow recently asked for termination of Russian censorship. In a letter to foreign commissar V. M. Molotov, the correspondents said continued scrutiny of dispatches "created general distrust abroad of all news emanating from the Soviet Union." The plea was rejected at that time by Molotov as being without foundation.

22 On American Plane Die In Crash In Italy

Rome, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Italian news agency Ansa in a dispatch from Palermo tonight said 22 persons, including two women Red Cross workers, were burned to death when an American two-engined plane crashed recently during an emergency landing at the Boccadifalco airport in Sicily.

The dispatch gave no names nor did it say exactly when the crash occurred.

The plane was en route from Athens to Naples, the dispatch said, adding that 17 of the persons aboard were scheduled to sail for the United States from Naples.

Rome, Nov. 11 (AP)—A small bomb exploded early today during a melee between Monarchists and Socialists in Monte Citorio Square. There were no casualties or damage.

Portugal Buys U. S. Equipmen

LISBON, Nov. 11 (AP).—The Portuguese government said today that it had purchased from the United States all the equipment used in construction of an air base on Santa Maria Island in the Azores. The equipment, including tractors, bulldozers and many tools, may be resold to private enterprises at a price "not under cost."

Hungarians Agree On Coalition Regime

Budapest, Nov. 11 (AP) — The Budapest radio said tonight that Hungarian political leaders had agreed to form a coalition government under Zoltan Tildy, head of the Smallholders party.

The Smallholders, victors in a recent national election, will receive seven of the fourteen Cabinet posts, the broadcast said, with the Communists and Socialists getting three each and the National-Peasants one.

ETHRIDGE TALKS WITH BULGARIAN

U.S. Observer Awaits Plane For Trip To Moscow

Sofia, Nov. 10 (AP) [Delayed]—Mark Ethridge, personal observer for President Truman, conversed last night with the Communist leader, Georgi Dimitrov, and today awaited transportation to Moscow for last-minute talks on the Bulgarian political situation.

The Louisville (Ky.) publisher—extremely anxious to talk with the Russians before November 18, the date set for the Bulgarian general elections, still did not know how he would get to Moscow. The Russians had agreed to furnish a plane, but they said none was available immediately.

Dimitrov Printer By Trade

Details of Ethridge's conversation with Dimitrov, former Secretary General of the Communist International and head of the Communist slate for the assembly in the Bulgarian elections, were not disclosed, but it was understood there was a vigorous exchange of views.

Meanwhile, the Democratic political organ Zname, which had been engaged in an exchange with the Communist daily, Rabothichesko Delo, on charges made by Dimitrov against the Democratic Government of 1931, failed to appear.

Leaflets signed by the newspaper editors said the paper was not published because the Communist printers refused to set up an article with which they disagreed. Dimitrov appears on the electoral list as a printer, a trade which he followed before becoming a leader.

"Terroristic Censorship"

"The workers cannot be the editors of a newspaper," the leaflet said. "We cannot accept such terroristic censorship."

Another development was an announcement that two important Agrarian party wings had achieved a full union in opposition to the Fatherland Front, which comprises the present Government. Peasants form 80 per cent of the population, but the Peasant party has been split.

An appeal signed by leaders of the two groups, Nikola Petkov and Dimiter Gichev, called upon Agrarians throughout Bulgaria to "win the freedom of the entire Bulgarian people and build up a truly democratic and strong Bulgaria."

130 Rumanian Royalists Called For Questioning on Fatal Rioting

Bratianu, Liberal Party's Leader, Among Those Summoned for Inquiry on Clash That Marked King's Birthday

F. O'BRIEN

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Bucharest military court today ordered 130 royalists—including the head of the Liberal party—to appear tomorrow for questioning in connection with the King's birthday riots of last Thursday in which at least eleven and possibly twenty persons were killed.

DAI

The Communist newspaper Scanteia published the court's proclamation ordering the interrogation of Constantine Bratianu, 80-year-old Liberal party leader, and 129 others to determine their "responsibility for the birthday demonstration."

The Russian-sponsored Government of Premier Petru Groza charged on Friday that M. Bratianu and Juliu Maniu, veteran head of the Peasant party, had been responsible for planning the birthday celebration and had held it in defiance of Government orders. The Government called the demonstration an "anarchical movement."

Government troops fired on 40,000 to 50,000 people in the square in front of the royal palace as a climax to the demonstration of loyalty toward King Michael.

Among others ordered to appear before the court were three other important Liberal party personalities and several second and third-rank members of Mr. Maniu's party. The court ordering the investigation has tried numerous political cases under various past Rumanian regimes. Several times it has been accused of intolerance and terroristic methods.

Mr. Maniu and Tohari Georgescu, Communist Minister of the Interior, engaged in a sharp exchange only last night over responsibility for the bloody disorders at the royal palace. Mr. Georgescu, at a press conference, delivered a long discourse against the Liberal and Peasant parties.

In an interview a few hours earlier Mr. Maniu called the Government "assassins" and said that Mr. Georgescu had warned the Peasant party's general secretary on the day before the demonstrations that there would be "bloodshed." Maniu disclaimed responsibility for the manifestation and called it a spontaneous demonstration of the people's feeling for the King.

Mr. Georgescu said that eleven persons had been killed and sixty-five had been wounded, while Mr. Maniu contended that twenty members of his party alone had been killed.

"More than 1,000 are now under arrest and have been severely beaten," he declared. Mr. Georgescu said that "about 300" had been arrested.

"The two parties printed 10,000 manifestos calling on the people to demonstrate," Mr. Georgescu said, and "orders were given that they should arm themselves with rocks and pistols." He said that he had called in the general secretaries of the two parties on the day before the demonstrations and asked them to cancel them. Because of their refusal to act, he said, "bands of assassins" attacked the headquarters of the Workers' Confederation and the Ministry of the Interior.

Mr. Georgescu said that the fact that 40,000 to 50,000 persons had taken part in the demonstrations proved the responsibility of the opposition parties and that their responsibility was also shown by similar manifestations in other towns such as Brailla, Timosoara and Ploesti. The first shots, he said, came from the crowd.

Maniu said:

"The best proof was that the crowd was unarmed and that no arms were found, on the killed, wounded or prisoners."

Maniu said he couldn't agree to "forbid a demonstration I hadn't organized and because I am a representative of a party which wishes to work with the King, I couldn't forbid the people demonstrating their sentiments in his favor."

Conditions In Tripoli Returning To Normal

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 11 (AP)—A British military report from Tripoli, covering the situation up to Friday night, said today that conditions had returned to normal following anti-Jewish riots which started a week ago and caused more than 100 deaths.

No further incidents have been reported in Tripoli or the provinces but there has been no relaxation of security precautions.

Yoshua Hankin, Zionist, Dies

Jerusalem, Nov. 11 (AP)—Yoshua Hankin, a veteran Zionist, died at Tel Aviv today, a few days before his eightieth birthday. Popular with both Jews and Arabs, Hankin was responsible for all the land acquisitions of the Jewish National Fund in Palestine from before the First World War until 1935.

CHINA'S PEACE HOPES RECEDE

Assembly To Convene May 5, Regardless Of Communists

Chungking, Monday, Nov. 12 (AP). New hopes for peace in turbulent China arose today and almost immediately had cold water splashed over them.

The increasingly influential Chinese Democratic League, a liberal organization, broke a deadlock in peace talks between the Government and the Yenan Communists with an invitation for a general conference. Both sides accepted.

Differ On Delegates

Almost immediately, however, the Government announced that the Chinese National Assembly would be convened May 5, apparently regardless of whether the Communists participate.

The assembly was scheduled to open today, but during the Communist-Government talks last month the opening was postponed indefinitely when neither side could agree as to its makeup. The Communists asked for complete reapportionment of delegates and the Kuomintang countered with an unaccepted offer to keep the present delegates, but to expand the total number to include Communist representation.

The Communists have indicated they would consider the summoning of the assembly, supposed to introduce constitutional government to China, without Communist approval and participation as a "very grave affair."

Reports 7 Communist Attacks

The Chinese press today confirmed that troops of the Nationalist 13th and 52d armies had been landed from American transports at Chinwangtao, just south of Shanhaikwan, where Communist troops are entrenched around the eastern anchor of the Great Wall, blocking the entrance to Manchuria.

Lt. Gen. Tu Li-Ming, Nationalist supreme commander for Manchuria, said the fighting reported yesterday near Shanhaikwan at the gulf of Chihli end of the great wall resulted from seven Communist attacks.

Defended Selves

The Chinese general told a news conference at U. S. Marine-guarded Chinwangtao his troops merely defended themselves, and took no further action "because negotiations still are going on in Chungking." But he declared his troops would begin moving forward "very soon."

The Chungking conference called by the Democratic league for later today marked the first entrance into the Chinese political quarrel by this organization, which was formed in 1941 by six minor political groups.

The league, composed mostly of liberal intellectuals, has become a steadily growing political influence.

Previous to the conference call, Minister of Information K. C. Wu had indicated that Communists and Nationalists were hopelessly deadlocked in their efforts to unify China.

Wu said the Communist reply to the Nationalist government's recent proposal for cessation of hostilities was based on the supposition of exclusive government responsibility for the crisis.

The Communists ignored Chungking's proposals entirely, Wu said. He termed the reply a "remarkable document" in which the Reds demanded that government troops cease their attacks immediately; withdraw from all "advanced occupied territories;" withdraw from all railroads, and guarantee that there would be no further attacks.

But Chinese Communists in Chungking, close on the heels of the reply, made a conciliatory gesture of their own.

Wang Jo-Fei, a Communist leader in Chungking, said his party was ready to name delegates to the political consultative council as soon as both sides could agree on a date for a meeting and the part it would play in bringing about internal peace.

The decision to organize the political consultative council grew out of a Communist-Nationalist meeting at Chungking several weeks ago, but the Communists had insisted on cessation of fighting before the council met. Wang said the Reds had receded from this position.

Nationalist front line dispatches reported government troops had recaptured the highway town of Tsaoyang, in northern Hopeh province 130 miles northwest of Hankow, from the Communists.

The Nationalists also said more than 10,000 Communist troops had attacked government forces in the highway towns of Taikang and Kihsien in eastern Honan province. They charged the Reds with the destruction of a 20-mile stretch of the Lunghai railroad in eastern Honan.

Issue Counter Charges

The Communists issued counter-charges that government troops inflicted more than 100 Red casualties in a Nov. 5 attack on a Communist-held town on the Peiping-Mukden railroad, near the great wall; that government troops had crossed the Yellow river and invaded southwestern Shansi province from Honan, and that American-trained Nationalist secret service men were stirring up trouble in northern Honan and southern Hopeh.

Sao Tang Pao, the Nationalist Army newspaper, which tomorrow will change its name to Ho Ping Pao ("Peace Daily") said that Maj. Gen Claire L. Chennault, former commander of the U. S. Army Air Force in China, would return to become air adviser to Generalissimo Chiang. The source of this information was not stated.

Nationalist government quarters charged the Communists with conducting a press campaign to force American public opinion into demands for immediate withdrawal of United States forces from China.

These sources said an example was yesterday's charge in the New China News, Communist newspaper, that the United States had signed a contract to lend Chungking $64,000,000 for purchase of American arms and ammunition.

"This clearly shows," the newspaper alleged, "that even at the present critical time when China is threatened by civil war, the United States government is still eager to supply large quantities of arms and ammunition to the Kuomintang (Nationalist) party."

U. S. Commander Bids Chinese End Civil War to Save Manchuria

Admiral Barbey Says the Province Might Break Off as Separate State; General Tu Backs Plea; Firing Near Shanhaikwan

BERGHOLZ

By The Associated Press

CHINWANGTAO, China, Nov. 11.—Vice-Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, ranking American officer in North China, today urged Chinese factions to settle their troubles peaceably, saying that otherwise Manchuria might break off from the rest of China and emerge as an independent state like Outer Mongolia.

DAY

The 7th Amphibious Force commander's plea for peace was seconded by Lieutenant General Tu Li-ming, newly-named Nationalist (central government) commander for Manchuria, as Communist and Nationalist armies, ready for battle, faced each other at the industrial province's frontier. The heavy firing of artillery and mortars already has been heard near Shanhaikwan, fortified city north of this port at the southern gateway to Manchuria.

Tu, speaking at a news conference, charged that the Communists had attacked seven times, "but we took no action because negotiations still are going on in Chungking." He declared, however, that his forces would begin marching on Manchuria "very soon."

Barbey, chief negotiator among the Nationalists, the Chinese Communists and the Russians withdrawing in Manchuria, made his statement in an interview but authorized no direct quotations. He pleaded for a spirit of sacrifice and compromise on both sides so that Manchuria, with the industries needed for China's economic recovery, might return to Chinese control.

Nationalist entry into Manchuria by sea now is impossible, the admiral said. With Chinese Communists in control of the ports of Yingkow and Hulutao, it was apparent, he said, that no American ships would be used to land Chinese Nationalist troops in Manchuria. The logical entry is through Shanhaikwan, where the Communists are firmly intrenched.

In view of this situation, it would be better from the Nationalists' standpoint, Barbey argued, that the Yenan-directed Communists take control and Manchuria remain within China's national scope rather than to see the province become a separate state.

Cites Control by Local Groups

Barbey expressed doubt that the Yenan Communist forces dominated much of Manchuria. He predicted it would be found that large portions of northern and eastern Manchuria were controlled by local irregular groups who might seek to form their own state in the event of protracted civil warfare.

Unconfirmed reports reaching here say that the Chinese local government at Yingkow has split into two camps. By this account, one faction says it is Communist but denies allegiance to Yenan, the Chinese Communist stronghold. The other, more conservative, says its leader is Chang Hsueh-liang, the "young marshal" who kidnaped Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in the political struggle before the Japanese invasion in 1937.

Barbey, who plans to return to the United States shortly for a new assignment, reiterated American policy was to avoid taking sides. That was shown, he said, when the United States refused to land American forces at the Shantung port of Chefoo (Communist controlled), where there were no Japanese to disarm or prisoners of war to liberate.

Tu said he still hoped renewed negotiations in Chungking would bring peace. "All Chinese are pacifists," he said, and all that his National army is doing here is defending itself."

Shanghai Tram Strike Ends

Shanghai, Nov. 11 (AP)—A tram strike ended yesterday when workers were granted a flat monthly increase in pay of 15,000 dollars Chinese national currency (about $10 United States).

U.S.S. St. Paul Is Joy's Flagship

Shanghai, Nov. 11 (AP)—The heavy cruiser St. Paul arrived on the Wangpoo yesterday to replace the U.S.S. Nashville as flagship of Rear Admiral C. Turner Joy, commander of the Yangtze patrol.

CHINESE BUY 30 SHIPS

Also Order Ties to Restore Some of Smashed Railways

SHANGHAI, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Chinese Government has ordered the purchase of thirty Liberty-type ships from Canada and the United States and 500,000 railway ties from Canada, Communications Minister Yu Feiteng announced today.

The order was the first step toward restoring China's merchant fleet and internal communications, both sorely hit by the war, the official added.

He also disclosed that China had taken over from the Japanese and the Japanese-sponsored puppet government 1,370 locomotives, 1,396 passenger coaches, 18,593 freight cars and 824 vessels of all descriptions, mostly small river boats.

Indian Congress Leader Pleads For Revolution

Bombay, Nov. 11 (AP)—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, a leader of the All India Congress party, said tonight it was India's duty to "revolt" and asserted that if the country was not prepared for revolution to free itself, it was degradation.

In a speech at a mammoth meeting here, Nehru said he used the word "revolt" after sufficient thought. He added that the Indian Congress party had never allowed the flag of "revolution" to be lowered.

A large number of Indonesians attended the meeting, at which the Indonesian flag flew alongside the Congress flag. An Indonesian representative expressed thanks to the Indian Congress party for its support.

U. S. TROOPS HOLD RODEO IN TOKYO

TOKYO, Nov. 11—(AP) American occupation troops observed Armistice day today by staging a rodeo at the Meiji ball grounds.

A Fifth Air Force aerial circus was thrown in—just as a reminder of the last war.

An estimated 70,000 occupation troops overflowed the stadium to watch probably the first rodeo ever staged in Japan.

Japanese remained in their homes. Their newspaper carried stories telling them transportation would be tied up most of the day in order to carry thousands of U. S. soldiers to the rodeo.

The Japanese attempted no observance of Armistice day, although it relates to World War I when they were on the winning side.

Most of the rodeo thrills came from the aerial circus and a jeep over jeep jump which ended in a crash.

The rest of the rodeo was pretty tame because for the most part the Japanese horses and wild steers refused to cooperate. Most of the mounts bucked out of the chutes and came to an embarrassing stop. Applications of turpentine, whips and spurs had no effect.

However, there were plenty of laughs for the soldiers who flocked to the big athletic field from hundreds of miles around to cry "ride 'em cowboy" and see a touch of life from home.

Cpl. Joe Kriz, Seymour, Conn., was awarded first prize in the bulldogging event with a time of six and a half seconds. Staff Sgt. Jason Chase, Kent, Conn., finished second with 45 seconds.

In a mass aerial salute Col. Harney Estes led a wing formation of P-51s, A-26s and P-38s that roared low over the stadium. The flight included Col. Charles Howe's Third Bomb group and the 49th Fighter group of Lt. Col. Clay Tice, Jr., Phoenix, Ariz.

Hirohito Will Report To Ancestors' Spirits

Tokyo, Monday, Nov. 12 (AP)—Swordless and wearing a new dark blue uniform, Emperor Hirohito boarded his maroon imperial train promptly at 8 A.M. today to go to Ise to report the termination of the war to his ancestors spirits.

A motorcade, led by a black Mercedes-Benz limousine with Hirohito inside, arrived at bomb-shattered Tokyo station at 7.58 A.M. The Mikado walked stiffly to track No. 10 over a red carpet rolled out for the occasion.

The time of departure had not been announced, so only a few Japanese saw the procession. The Ise trip to the grand shrines is the Emperor's first journey since American occupation.

The newspaper Mainichi reported meantime that the Emperor proposed to give jewels and foreign rice if imports are permitted.

Jap Privy Seal Keeper Reported Ready To Quit

Tokyo, Nov. 11 (AP)—Marquis Joichi Kido, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal and one of the closest men to the Emperor, was reported today by Tokyo newspapers to have decided to resign and assume responsibility "for recommending Tojo as Premier and supporting him."

Kido, Emporer Hirohito's principal adviser, has been instrumental in naming premiers for the last several years and was a key figure in the selection of Hideki Tojo under who Japan went to war against the United States.

Japanese in all walks of life have criticized Kido bitterly since the occupation. Many have demanded his resignation, some asserting he should be arrested as a war criminal. Kido survived two attempts on his life by Rightists who opposed the surrender.

Japanese Ship Taking 2,900 Chinese Home

Fukuoka, Japan, Nov. 11 (AP)—A Japanese ship is carrying home 2,900 Chinese prisoners of war and contract laborers whose rioting forced American Marines to stand guard at the Chinese camps for a month.

American troops rode the trains that brought the Chinese to this northern Kyushu Island harbor from Kyushu and southern Honshu Island.

A detachment of 40 men is accompanying the repatriation ship on the five-day trip to Tangku, China. The vessel departed Thursday.

Change On Emperor's Status To Be Studied

Tokyo, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Japanese Cabinet's constitutional revision committee will consider changing the present provision terming the Emperor "sacred and inviolable" but will not go so far as to take up the question whether the tenno (emperor) system should be abolished."

Joji Matsumoto, committee chairman, so informed the newspaper Asahi today in an interview.

Yokohama Crime Wave

G. Is and Civilians Involved in Black-Market Gangs

YOKOHAMA, Nov. 12 (Monday) (AP).—A wave of armed robberies, black marketing and hijacking by American soldiers and Japanese civilians was disclosed today by the Yokohama provost marshal. The officer said thousands of dollars' worth of money orders, yen and American currency and two truckloads of Japanese tires were seized in a round-up.

One soldier attempted to hide 57,000 yen (nearly $4,000) under a barrel and another confessed to participation in thirteen armed robberies of civilians around the waterfront, the provost marshal said.

U.S., British Comb Ruins For Atomic Bomb Secrets

By GLENN BABB
Associated Press Foreign News Editor

NAGASAKI, Nov. 11—(AP) American and British co-operation in atomic research is exemplified here today in this ruined city, one of the world's great laboratories holding the mysteries of the atomic bomb.

While President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee confer in Washington on the atomic bomb, here on this Armistice day the Allies of two world wars are probing thousands of acres of utter devastation in search of the bomb's secrets.

Secrecy marks findings

The blue-uniformed Royal Air Force specialists and the olive drab-clad Americans of the U. S. Strategic Bomb survey are intensly secretive about their findings, but the general effects of the second atomic bomb ever dropped in warfare cannot be secret.

Throughout the long valley stretching northwestward almost from Nagasaki's historic waterfront, the secrets of the bomb's awesome power are laid bare for any witness.

The results of that Aug. 9 blast are seen as soon as the visitor steps ashore. There are thousands of shattered windows and buildings crazily askew, but within a half mile the devastation really begins. It reaches its climax in the heart of the valley. Here the only relief from vast stretches of flattened ruins is an occasional twisted skeleton of steel from what was a factory, or the gaunt, gutted framework of a steel and concrete building which was blasted through by flame and pressure, destroying all within.

The stench of death still is perceptible through the area where thousands died. Here hundreds of Japanese poke through the debris in search of buried stores of grain, other food or belongings in the ruins of their homes.

Nagasaki is one of the focal points of a world-wide search for knowledge enabling man to cope with the terrifying force he loosed to enable him to win a war which he hopes fearfully will be the last.

Hundreds of American and British experts are combing almost every foot of the tragic valley.

They are a closed corporation, pledged to secrecy of their findings until the highest authorities of the two powers decide whither man's grappling with this monster of his own making is tending.

The Japanese subjects of this historic experiment show far less interest. Nagasaki is beginning to dig itself out of the ruins.

Americans now on the spot say the utter community stupor which persisted for six weeks after the bomb fell is giving way to the first efforts to make living conditions tolerable.

Food is fairly plentiful, since Nagasaki lies in the heart of a rich agricultural area which suffered little from war's devastation.

Scores of thousands who fled after the bombing are returning until the population, formerly nearly 300,000, now approaches 200,000.

Public Hygiene Problem

There is a tremendous problem of hygiene with which surviving Japanese physician are unable to cope.

The Americans, therefore, are assisting in establishing hospital and sanitation systems which they hope will keep the civilian population sufficiently free of epidemics so as not to endanger American occupation forces, which are made up chiefly of the Second Marine division.

The area of utter desolation is approximately three and a half miles long and a mile wide. It would have been much greater except for the hills which divide Nagaski into two segments.

In the heart of the area, soldier guides show a white stone marker, which, according to the authorities' consensus, is almost directly under where the bomb exploded 1,800 feet in the air.

In the middle of this area, American bulldozers have cleared a strip once covered by hundreds of buildings and have made a landing field which they call "atomic field."

Nearby, in the midst of hundreds of flattened acres where debris is too scanty to be called rubble, stands a gaunt Japanese torii or archway that once marked a Shinto shrine which disappeared in the blast.

The survival of this archway and many other freaks of the great explosion are puzzling scientists.

2 Factories Wrecked

Rising from the ruins are the wracked skeletons of two huge munitions works—the Mitsubishi steel works and the Mitsubishi ordnance plant. The bomb dropped approximiately halfway between.

However, authorities disclosed the bomber's marksmanship was something less than perfect. The target was a point halfway between the steel works and a third great Mitsubishi war plant, the shipbuilding yards on the waterfront where some of Japan's best capital ships were constructed.

The bomb fell about a mile and a half northeast of the target, sparing major buildings in the main part of the town.

Moreover, said Capt. Herbert W. (Trader) Horne, Jr., of Lowell, Mass., American military government medical officer for Southern Kyushu, Nagasaki was not even the primary target for the Aug. 9 experiment in nuclear energy.

The plane was really headed for Shimonoseki and Moji, cities astride the western outlet of Japan's inland sea and the Asiatic continent. Weather conditions caused the change of targets.

Horne quoted Japanese saying 30,000 to 40,000 persons perished almost instantaneously wnen the bomb loosed the sun's own energy.

An equal number died, Horne said, during the subsequent six weeks, nearly all of them the victims of gamma rays, which are similar to X-rays and which were by-products of the atomic fission. Their chief effect was to destroy by burning the bone tissue, including blood making cells within the bone marrow, making a person incapable of restoring his own blood.

Some Still Dying

Many also suffered ray-burned intestines, making them incapable of digestion. The general result was a wasting disease against which Japanese science was helpless.

A few are still dying—three or four weekly. The Americans are establishing hospitals to care for the sufferers of this and other ailments.

A 100-bed hospital named Blair general hospital has been established in the heart of Nagasaki. It was named after motion pictures of the Doctor Kildare series, with wards called Kildare, Gillespie and other names of characters in the pictures.

This hospital receives patients who then are evacuated to a 1,700-bed institution, the former Japanese naval hospital at Omura, 25 miles inland.

Yamashita Accused By Filipino Woman

Manila, Monday, Nov. 12 (AP)—A 26-year-old Filipino testified today that Japanese troops bayoneted to death seven members of her family and fired their gasoline-saturated bodies. Then she coldly eyed Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita and cried, "Yamashita, see what you have done to my family!"

Yamashita, former Japanese commander in the Philippines, is on trial for his life before a United States military commission on charges of failing to prevent wholesale acts of horror by his troops.

The young woman said seven relatives were killed in a Japanese bayonet orgy near the town of Santo Tomas February 2. Japanese then piled furniture from her house on the gasoline-saturated bodies and fired the pile.

Attlee Reported in Favor Of Sharing Atomic Energy Secret with United Nations

New Honolulu-Tokyo Route Cuts 9 Hours

Honolulu, Nov. 11 (AP)—A shorter route from Honolulu to Tokyo, cutting the flight distance by 1,229 nautical miles and shortening the flying time by nine hours has been established by the Naval Air Transport Service.

The new route, NATS said, is by way of Midway and Marcus islands and covers 3,720 miles, with an hour stopover at each of the island bases. The elapsed time of the new route is twenty hours.

Under favorable flying conditions the planes now move from Oakland, Cal., to Tokyo in approximately 31 hours elapsed flying time. The first plane to start the daily schedule on the new route left Honolulu Friday night.

No Troopships Slated For Navy Surplus Work

They Also Are Barred for Use in Liquidating Bases

PEARL HARBOR, Nov. 11 (AP).—The Navy said today only ships which cannot be used for transportation of personnel will be employed in the roll-up of Pacific bases and to handle the Naval surplus disposal program.

Most of the ships will be the Liberty type, which do not have adequate facilities to serve exclusively as personnel carriers to bring service men home, said Vice Admiral William Ward Smith, commander of the Pacific Fleet Service Force.

Smith said the demobilization of personnel and the disposition of government property incident to liquidation of the Pacific bases were the primary concern of the Fleet Service Force.

Navy Ships May Bring Pacific Veterans East

To Be on Volunteer Basis Transportation From Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11 (AP).—Twelfth Naval District headquarters said today the Bureau of Naval Personnel, in Washington, has approved transportation, on a voluntary basis, of homeward bound Pacific war veterans to Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports on ships headed eastward through the Panama Canal.

The proposal was made to the bureau by Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, Western Sea Frontier commander.

The procedure, it was explained at his headquarters, is intended to prevent a backlog of discharges waiting transportation at Pacific ports as the volume of incoming veterans is stepped up during coming months.

In the next two weeks, it was pointed out, about thirty ships of destroyer escort size or larger are scheduled to leave the West Coast for Eastern ports. Admiral Ingersoll proposed that incoming veterans be given an opportunity to volunteer for transportation east aboard these vessels.

3,000 FROM PACIFIC ARE LANDED ON COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11—(AP) This anniversary of the First World War armistice became homecoming day today for nearly 3,000 Pacific theater Army veterans when the attack- transport U.S.S. Karnes and the foremer deluxe passenger liner Thomas Jefferson docked here.

The Karnes, from Siapan, brought home 1,739 Army personnel, all directed to Camp Stoneman for processing. Sixteen Navy officers and men, up for discharge, also were aboard.

The former American President Liner Garfield, under its service name of U.S.S. Thomas Jefferson, also arrived from Saipan, carrying 1,100 Army personnel. Some 150 of her own working crew are slated for dicharge.

The Karnes had a close brush with a loose-floating mine some 1,100 miles out of San Francisco. The mine was exploded by ship's gunfire.

PRIME MINISTER, TRUMAN CONFER ON FUTURE POLICY

British May Seek Guarantees Bomb Will Not Be Used Against Allies.

LEADERS ARE SILENT

Long Conference on Potomac Follows Leaders' Tribute to War Dead.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—(AP) An official in position to know but who declined to be identified said tonight British Prime Minister Attlee favors sharing the secrets of atomic energy with other countries of the United Nations Organization.

Attlee, now here conferring with President Truman and Canadian Premier King on the atom bomb, was said by this source to have made known his views to his fellow conferees.

Attlee was further stated to believe that those receiving the secret should establish advance guarantees that they will not be used in a manner detrimental to the United Nations.

He was represented as holding that atomic discoveries should be shared as other scientific advances accomplished by one nation have been shared with others, but that safeguards as to their future use should first be set up.

Urges Scientific Pool

Attlee is said to have broached with the conferees a belief that there should be established an international pool of scientific and other information for the welfare of all nations.

The report went on that the British Prime Minister feels unless atomic and other discoveries are channeled into controlled usages for peace they will definitely be given over to military purposes.

Further, it was said he believes, that in the latter event the world's scientists and leaders in other fields will be forced to give their attention and energies to military developments instead of peacetime pursuits which would be destined to improve the lot of mankind.

Attlee was represented as having suggested the present conference and to have specified his sole purpose was to lay before the other two world leaders his views on the ultimate disposition of the atomic energy secrets.

That Attlee has come to Washington to discuss matters other than atomic energy and world unity was dismissed as being erroneous. There is strong belief elsewhere, however that other pressing problems will be taken up.

There was no indication of what effect the Attlee views may have had in the ultimate decision of the conference regarding atomic energy.

The three nations developed the atomic bomb and have retained their knowledge of it.

Speculation Aroused

President Truman's remarks last night on what he hopes will result from the three-power atomic energy conference aroused speculation today that he may be planning a voice for the United Nations in controlling war's most devasting weapon.

In a toast last night at the state dinner given for Prime Minister Attlee and Canadian Prime Minister Mackenzie King at the White House, Truman said:

"We are hoping that agreements and policies will come out of these conferences which will make the United Nations Organization a living, moving, active program."

Since the discussions are concerned primarily with the atomic bomb, some diplomats interpreted this statement to mean that the President has some role in mind for the United Nations on the "very definite agenda," an aide said he has prepared.

Mr. Truman heretofore has called for world action in outlawing the atomic bomb but as recently as Nov. 3 in a Navy day address said the United States would keep it as a "sacred trust."

The three world leaders continued their discussions today aboard the yacht "Sequoia" with indications that several weeks may go by before any conclusions are announced.

The leaders of the three great nations drew inspiration today at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier for their struggle to find in war's most terrible weapon an instrument of enduring peace.

Their minds full of the implications the atomic bomb holds for the future of a world weary of wars, they honored with bowed heads and wreaths of flowers the men who have laid down their lives for the ideal that is their guide in historic conferences here.

Attend Ceremonies

Immediately after brief Armistice day ceremonies in the November chill of Arlington cemetery, President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee and King went back to their deliberations aboard the yacht in the nearby Potomac river. They spent several hours aboard the "Sequoia," discussing policy which President Truman has said he hopes will lead to renunciation of the atomic bomb as a weapon of war.

They were accompanied both to the cemetery and the yacht by James F. Byrnes, secretary of state; the Earl of Halifax, British ambassador, and Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's chief of staff.

The party returned to the White House a few minutes after 9 p. m., (EST), after dinner aboard the ship.

Eben Ayers, acting White House press secretary, said there would be no statement tonight. After talking with Mr. Truman upon the party's return to the White House, Ayers told reporters there was nothing he could say.

Ayers said the British Prime Minister would move over to the British embassy from the White House later in the day for further talks, although Ayers was not sure.

Ayers said Mr. Truman was in his usual good spirits after the conference.

When the delegation boarded the Sequoia, Ayers said, they talked on the after deck until it became too chilly and moved inside. After a steak dinner, they talked from around 2:30 p. m. until 6 p. m. and had a pheasant supper. They then sat around their table conversing until the ship docked at 8:35 p. m.

The four-hour trip down the Potomac carried the party by historic Mount Vernon, home of George Washington. Brig. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the President's military aide, said the visitors expressed much interest in Mount Vernon.

Others Present

Ayers said that in addition to the three leaders, the following were participating in the shipboard discussions: Byrnes, Leahy, Lord Halifax, Sir John Anderson, chairman of the British Atomic Energy Advisory commission, and Lester Pearson, the Canadian ambassador.

A drizzling rain fell as the seven-car calvacade drew up at the amphitheatre in Arlington for a five-minute ceremony in which the President and his distinguished visitors laid wreaths of chrysanthemums on the tomb of the honored soldier of World war I who sleeps there "known but to God."

The three men went on to the nearby monument erected by the government of Canada to American citizens who lost their lives in the Canadian army in World war I. As his companions stood stiffly, solemnly erect, the Canadian leader stepped forward to lay a wreath at its base.

A third ceremony took place at the simple marble slab that marks the temporary resting place of Field Marshal Sir John Dill, British representative of the combined chiefs of staff, where Attlee placed a wreath of chrysanthemums. Sir John died last year while on duty here.

A 21-gun salute marked the arrival of the presidential party and its departure from the cemetery where the nation's hallowed dead are buried. The dampness, intensified by temperature in the lower 40's, held down the crowds somewhat.

The President wore an oxford gray suit, a gray hat and a herringbone tweed topcoat. The British and Canadian leaders were attired in dark clothes, with black hats. Secretary Byrnes likewise wore this more sombre attire.

They waited five minutes near the amphitheatre until Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower had laid a wreath in behalf of veterans of the last World war. She shook hands with the trio upon her departure.

In the crowd were Navy Secretary Forrestal, War Secretary Patterson, Attorney General Clark; Sir Henry Maitland-Wilson, British representative of the combined chiefs of staff, and Neville Butler, a British undersecretary of state for foreign affairs.

A military band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the King," and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf Forever."

All then stood with bowed heads for a minute of silent prayer.

No words were spoken by any of the three leader throughout their actions of tribute and remembrance.

TRUMAN, ATTLEE HONOR WAR DEAD

Interrupt Talks To Place Wreaths At Arlington

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP)—The leaders of three great nations today visited the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and honored with bowed heads and wreaths of flowers the men who have laid down their lives for the idea that is their guide in historic conferences here.

Immediately after brief Armistice Day ceremonies in the November chill of Arlington Cemetery, President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain and Canada's Mackenzie King went back to their deliberations aboard a yacht in the near-by Potomac River.

Accompanied By Byrnes

They spent several hours aboard Secretary of the Navy Forrestal's vessel, the Sequoia, discussing policy which President Truman has said he hopes will lead to renunciation of the atomic bomb as a weapon of war.

They were accompanied both to the cemetery and the yacht by James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State; the Earl of Halifax, British Ambassador, and Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's chief of staff.

Five-Minute Ceremony

A drizzling rain fell as the seven-car cavalcade drew up at the amphitheater in Arlington for a five-minute ceremony in which the President and his distinguished visitors laid wreaths of chrysanthemums on the tomb of the honored soldier of World War I who sleeps there "known but to God."

The three men went on to the near-by monument erected by the Government of Canada to American citizens who lost their lives in the Canadian Army in World War I. As his companions stood stiffly, solemnly erect, the Canadian leader stepped forward to lay a wreath at its base.

A third ceremony took place at the simple marble slab that marks the temporary resting place of Field Marshal Sir John Dill, British representative of the combined chiefs of staff, where Attlee placed a wreath of chrysanthemums. Sir John died last year while on duty here.

21-Gun Salute Fired

A 21-gun salute marked the arrival of the presidential party and its departure from the cemetery, where the nation's hallowed dead are buried. The dampness, intensified by temperatures in the lower 40's, held down the crowds somewhat.

The President wore an Oxford gray suit, a gray hat and a herringbone tweed topcoat. The British and Canadian leaders were attired in dark clothes, with black hats. Secretary Byrnes likewise wore this more somber attire.

They waited five minutes near the ampitheater until Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower had laid a wreath in behalf of veterans of the last World War. She shook hands with the trio upon her departure.

Patterson Attends

In the crowd were Secretary Forrestal; Robert P. Patterson, Secretary of War; Attorney General Clark; Sir John Anderson, chairman of the British Atomic Energy Advisory Commission; Sir Henry Maitland-Wilson, British representative of the combined chiefs of staff, and Neville Butler, a British Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

A military band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," "God Save the King" and the Canadian anthem, "The Maple Leaf Forever."

All then stood with bowed heads for a minute of silent prayer.

No words were spoken by any of the three leaders throughout their actions of remembrance.

The route from the White House to the cemetery took the visitors past the great memorial to Abraham Lincoln, who kept the American Union together, and within sight of the newer memorial to Thomas Jefferson, who drafted the Declaration of Independence.

Newsmen Barred

What Truman, Attlee and MacKenzie King had to say to each other aboard the Sequoia was a matter left entirely to speculation.

Newsmen, who accompanied them to the Armistice Day ceremonies, were not permitted to enter the Washington Navy Yard, where the leaders boarded the vessel.

That subjects other than the future use and control of atomic energy, in whose development they are partners, likely will be gone into during the deliberations, was strongly believed. President Truman himself has said that Mr. Attlee can bring up any subject he wishes.

London dispatches told of reports the United States and Great Britain already had agreed upon creation of a joint committee to deal with the question of Jewish immigration into Palestine, but that Attlee wanted to talk it over with Truman.

Loan Possible Topic

The two also could talk of Anglo-American negotiations of a loan to Britain which has been the subject of conferences here by Lord Keynes.

President Truman set the keynote for the deliberations at a state dinner last night in which he said the talks were being approached prayerfully with the hope of agreements and policies "which will make the United Nations organization a living, moving, active program."

In the same vein, Prime Minister Attlee responded that "what we need most of all is a universal foreign policy, a foreign policy that is directed not to any immediate aim of any particular country, but a foreign policy that is conceived in the interest of all the people of the world."

Mr. Truman expressed the hope that the United States could develop a foreign policy which could be regarded as that of its people, irrespective of what political party is in power—a situation he said is true of the British.

Dinner Aboard Ship

The party returned to the White House a few minutes after 9 P.M., after dinner aboard the ship.

Eben Ayers, assistant White House press secretary, said that in addition to the three leaders, the following were participating in the shipboard discussions: Byrnes, Leahy, Lord Halifax, Sir John Anderson and Lester Pearson, the Canadian Ambassador.

Also aboard were: Brig. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the President's military aide; Lieut. Com. Clark M. Clifford, acting naval aide, and T. L. Rowan, secretary to Mr. Attlee.

'Space Ships' Carrying Atom Rockets Forecast by Arnold for U. S. Defense

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11. — (AP) Space ships moving outside the earth's atmosphere and capable of launching atomic bomb rockets on any enemy, will "unquestionably be brought into being within the foreseeable future," General Henry H. Arnold said today.

The commanding general of the Army Air Forces mentioned space ships, now existing only in comic page adventure strips, as a counter weapon if defenses are developed against a 3,000-mile an hour rocket delivering atomic explosives.

May Retire Soon

"The design of such a ship is all but practicable today," Arnold said in a summary of the air war and recommendations for the future prepared for Secretary of War Patterson. It was his third and perhaps last report as head of the Army Air Forces.

Arnold, who expressed his intention of retiring soon, proposed that the United States continue to develop the type of strategic bombing used in World War II and in which it is a "recognized master" until improved anti-aircraft defenses make it impracticable.

After that, Arnold said, the United States should be ready with a weapon of the German V-2 type, a rocket launched projectile that traveled some 3,000 miles an hour and went from 50 to 60 miles high.

"V-2 is ideally suited to deliver atomic explosives," he said, "because defense against it would prove extremely difficult."

And when defenses against a 3,000-miles-an-hour projectile is developed, he said, the United States must be ready to launch such projectiles nearer the target to shorten their flight and make them difficult to detect and destroy.

"We must be ready to launch them from unexpected directions," he added. "This can be done from true space ships, capable of operating outside the earth's atmosphere."

Lists Defense Plans

For the defense against atomic bombs, Arnold outlined a three-point program, make certain that they are not being produced secretly anywhere in the world, devise every possible way to intercept one after it has been launched, and redesign the country for a minimum vulnerability to atomic bomb attack, such as dispersal of industry or going underground.

In general, Arnold recommended the nation maintain its readiness and continuous planning with "one integrated, balanced military organization."

Defense Role Seen For Civil Aviation

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP)—Gen. H. H. Arnold today proposed a major role for the military in America's civil aviation.

"It is in the national interest for the air force to have a voice in civil air matters," Arnold said in his report to the Secretary of War, because of the adaptability of civil aviation facilities to military uses and "since military air power depends for its existence upon the aviation industry and the air-mindedness of the nation."

Two Bases Of Program

Arnold would base military participation in civil air policies on these two points:

1. No activity having to do with aviation in any form can be considered as being completely independent of national security. Civil aviation must be encouraged both internally and internationally, and all arrangements, plans, agreements and operations should be carried out with due regard for their military implications.

2. The security of the United States as well as the performance of its responsibilities in the maintenance of world peace require the availability of an extensive system of air bases and airways outside the United States.

Arnold suggested that development of international air law might be advanced materially by recognizing the similarity between aviation and maritime activities.

ATOM-BOMBING OF SEA FEARED

Senator Urges Laboratory Tests Be Made First

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP)—Demonstrating serious concern, a Senator urged today that any experiments in dropping atomic bombs into the sea be preceded by carefully controlled laboratory-scale tests.

"Otherwise," he said, "there is no telling what might happen.

It is conceivable that the water might be made radioactive, killing all the fish and destroying all forms of aquatic life.

"The effects of such a possible calamity are incalculable."

The Senator did not permit use of his name. He is a member of the special committee on atomic energy and is intensely interested in all phases of the subject.

Length Of Radioactivity

As a member of that group, he intends to learn how long the radioactivity lingers at and near the site of a bomb explosion. One of the original reports, to the effect that the activity might continue as long as 70 years, was denied by the War Department. However, this Senator is not convinced that most of the radioactivity is dissipated in a few hours or days.

Dr. Edward U. Condon, the committee's adviser on atomic energy, said it was possible that the effects of radioactivity or an atomic explosion could be simulated by other means than use of an actual bomb. It would be difficult, he said, to plan a test involving a small bomb.

Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.) has introduced a bill to authorize the War and Navy departments to conduct a series of atomic bomb experiments at sea, to determine the effect of such explosions on naval vessels.

View Detector Device

When the committee met at the Bureau of Standards last week for a lecture on nuclear physics the Senators saw a detector device which gave warning of the proximity of radioactive material.

It was reported that a warning flashed when a fragment from the site of the Alamogordo experimental-bomb explosion was brought into range. That explosion took place last summer.

The Senator who advocated caution suggested that a suitable experiment might be conducted in a large tank of seawater.

The committee will meet again Tuesday. At that time a decision may be reached on when to start on an inspection tour of the various plants and laboratories.

TRUMAN MAY BACK MERGER

President Expected To Give Army-Navy Stand Soon

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP)—Supporters said today they believe they have assurances of President Truman's active backing for merger of the Army and Navy into a single defense force under one Cabinet officer.

Legislators who have talked to the President recently said they came away with the impression that he may make his views on the controversial question known to Congress before Christmas.

As a senator, Mr. Truman was on record for consolidation of the armed forces. Those who have discussed the matter with him in the last few weeks say they are satisfied the President hasn't changed his mind.

Faced With Cabinet Split

Mr. Truman is faced with a definite Cabinet split over the proposal. Secretary of War Patterson is all for the proposed merger under one secretary, with co-ordinate branches for air, land and sea.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal is just as much against it. In fact as hearings have progressed before a Senate Military Affairs subcommittee, his opposition has grown more vocal and vigorous.

Unlike some of the other subjects with which Mr. Truman has to deal, the army-navy merger proposal has aroused little political interest. Democrats and Republicans are on both sides and there are no signs now that it will become a campaign issue.

Against Divided Reports

However, some legislators observe that as chairman of the Senate's war investigating committee, Mr. Truman never liked split reports. He tried, successfully in every instance, to get Democrats and Republicans to agree on the findings.

In the same way, these legislators speculate that the President probably would like to keep peace in his official family if he could. Thus far they add that he seems to have given the army and navy officials a free rein to speak their beliefs, even when they clashed violently.

This makes a segment of interested Congress members think that before any final step is taken, the President may want the whole situation reviewed by an impartial group of some kind.

If he has that done on his own order, that might delay a decision. If he asks Congress to authorize such a study, it would leave the matter up in the air, probably for months.

Supporters of the merger plan have insisted, however, that something must be done about the matter early next year, at the latest. They say that if there is going to be a merger, Congress needs to know about it before it begins making separate appropriations for the Army and Navy.

SPEED DRIVE TO MAN HOSPITALS FOR VETERANS

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Veterans Bureau is speeding up the recruiting program to staff "the largest hospitalization program in the world."

An urgent call has been sent by the Bureau, in co-operation with the Civil Service Commission, to military bases in the U. S. and overseas to enlist returning dischargees, as well as civilians, in this peacetime work.

The Bureau, expecting to expand from its hospital bed capacity of 86,000 to 300,000, wants personnel in keeping with the medical and scientific progress of the past 10 years. Immediate recruitment is being started for the following positions, for which announcements may be obtained at any civil service office:

5,000 Nurses Needed

NURSES: 5,000 graduate registered nurses are needed, from staff nurse at P-1 rating, $2,320 base pay per year, through P-4, Chief Nurse, $5,180. Educational requirement: completion of a full course in a recognized school of nursing, and residence of at least two years in a hospital of 50 or more bed patients daily. Married nurses eligible.

SOCIAL WORKERS, MEDICAL AND PSYCHIATRIC: $2,900 to $5,180 base pay per year. Minimum qualifications: one year training in a recognized school of social work with courses in medical or psychiatric social work, and supervised field work, plus at least one year of additional case work experience for the lowest grade.

In order to stimulate professional progress of these social workers, increased skill is encouraged through case supervision, by means of advanced courses at schools of work and by experience in supervision of staff and students, and through opportunities for leadership among community social and health agencies concerned with veterans.

DIETITIANS: $2,320 to $5,180 base pay per year. At least 36 semester hours of study in a college or university of recognized standing is required in addition to length and type of experience specified.

Junior dietitians may earn while they learn dietitics at Veterans' Administration hospitals. Courses last 12 months. Pay is at the rate of $1,704 per year for first six months and $1,902 for the next six months. Upon completion, appointment is made as dietitians at $2,320 base pay per year, with at least one year of service required.

Seek Dentists

DENTISTS: from associate dentist, $3,640 base pay per year to senior dentist, $6,020. Minimum requirements: graduation from a school of recognized standing license to practice, one year dental internship or one year full-time active practice, sound physical health and capable of performing ar[illegible] duty.

Other urgent Veterans' Administration personnel needs, for which civil service announcements will be issued soon, include:

MEDICAL OFFICERS: $3,640 to $6,750 in base pay per year. Graduate study and professional advancement offered at government expense. Wide range of clinical experience can be expected in treating disease and disabilities from global warfare. Specialists in all branches are needed.

PHYSICAL THERAPY TECHNICIANS: $2,320 to $4,300 base salary a year. The situation is desperate in the need for this type of personnel. Two hundred four physical therapists are needed immediately and 200 more by Jan. 1, 1946. Graduates with Physical Education degrees, or majors, preferred. (Physical therapy is defined by V. A. as . . . "the management of disease by physical agents, such as heat and light, water, electricity, massage, mechanical agents.)

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPISTS: $2,320 to $4,300 base pay per year. OT assistants earn from $1,704 to $3,640 base pay per year. Various projects in arts and crafts, industrial schemes, landscaping and gardening—all supervised by occupational therapists, aides and assistants.

LIBRARIANS: $2,320 to $4,300 base pay per year. Minimum qualifications: either three years of professional library experience in a library using standard library technics or a B. S. degree in library science from a college or university of recognized standing, plus an eligible rating or written examination.

Veterans' Administration employees are Federal employees qualifying under the regulation of the United States Civil Service Commission and selected and appointed by the Veterans' Administration.

SENATE GROUP NEARING FINISH ON BUDGET SLASH

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 — (AP) A group of senators who have been working on multi-billion dollar cuts in government expenditures made possible by peace approached the end of their labors today.

They are members of a Senate Appropriations sub-committee which has been trying to decide whether the House went too far, or perhaps not far enough in some instances, in deciding that a $52,000,000,000 reduction would be just right.

Senator Overton (D.-La.) told a reporter he expected the sub-committee eventually would restore some of the cuts made by the House. But he thought the group might agree by tomorrow night.

The appropriations cutback which the House approved was from $146,000,000,000 to $94,000,000,000. Nearly all the money was for the Army and Navy.

The administration has protested that perhaps the House didn't keep enough cash on hand to pay for all the things that may still be needed. However, three members of the Senate Military committee—Acting Chairman Edwin C. Johnson, and Senators Gurney (R.-S. D.) and Maybank (D.-S C.) — showed no alarm over the cash situation in talking with reporters.

Military Needs Reduced

Johnson commented that "if demobilization is speeded up as it should be, we won't have so big a military payroll."

Gurney said "there's no danger soldiers left in the Army won't eat," and added that if Congress were to cut military funds too drastically the situation could be corrected in time to prevent serious trouble.

Maybank took a similar stand, but added:

"We still need money for the Army and Navy. We have a lot of installations everywhere—we've got some interests in this world now—and they run into billions of dollars. And we will have to protect them."

To Return Job Services

Attached to the cut-back bill is a House-approved rider providing for a return of United States Employment Service functions to the states within 3 days after enactment.

President Truman originally asked that these functions be left where they are until June, 1947. However, Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach suggested to the Senate sub-committee that an "absolute deadline" for their return be fixed at next June 30.

Senator Reed (R.-Kan.), who advocates returning the job to the states, told a reporter that he is trying to work out a compromise based on Schwellenbach's proposal.

But he reported less than speedy progress with state officials. The states, he said, want definite assurances of a speedy return.

"And they have some sound right to doubt the good faith of the Federal government in this situation," Reed said.

ANDERSON PLANS SPEAKING TOUR IN FARM STATES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 — (AP) Secretary of Agriculture Anderson is taking to the speaker's platform to spearhead a campaign aimed at winning back farm belt support for the Democratic administration.

To that end, he is working to get his reorganized department working smoothly so that he can spend much time speaking in the Northwest and Midwest.

Agriculture department officials in a position to know say that Anderson, who is a fluent public speaker and an able political campaigner, is arranging a heavy schedule of speaking dates for the months ahead.

The voting trend of farmers in past several national elections has been discussed at considerable length at recent conferences of high administration leaders on campaign plans for next year's important congressional elections, these officials said.

Traditionally Republican, the northern and midwestern farm vote swung over to the late Presidnt Roosevelt in the 1932 election. At that time, the present Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace left the Republican party to campaign for farmer support of Mr. Roosevelt. After his victory, Mr. Roosevelt made Wallace his Secretary of Agriculture.

Swung Away in 1938

But the farm vote began swinging away from the Democratic party by the congressional elections in 1938. Republican farm support reached a peak in last year's presidential election.

It was recalled that Mr. Anderson, while on a congressional food shortage investigating tour shortly before he was sworn in as Secretary of Agriculture, told several audiences that one of his tasks as secretary would be to try to find out why many farmers were voting Republican and to find ways of winning them back to his party.

The officials who told of Mr. Anderson's plans said both President Truman and Chairman Robert E. Hannegan of the Democratic committee have urged the Agriculture secretary to spend as much time as possible in the months ahead speaking before farm groups

"Both the President and Mr. Hannegan have expressed the belief," these officials told a reporter, "that the Democrats have provided farmers with exceptionally good farm programs and that because of this, it is difficult for them to understand the farm swing to the Republicans."

Keeps Close to Congress

Mr. Anderson has, since entering the cabinet, kept in close touch with farm leaders in Congress. He has sought their advice on many food and farm problems. He led and won an intra-administration fight to eliminate food subsidies which were strongly opposed by organized farm groups and farm bloc leaders in Congress.

The amount of time which Anderson may have to spend away from Washington will be governed largely, his aides said, by his success in finding a man to head the recently-created production and marketing administration in the department.

Undersecretary J. B. Hutson, a veteran farm official, has been serving as chief of this agency, but Anderson wants him to be free to fill in as secretary while he is out of town.

Details from Roosevelt Files Promised in Pearl Harbor Quiz

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—(AP) The long-heralded and politically explosive congressional investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster opens this week with an all-star cast of witnesses.

Promises by the investigating committee chairman, Senator Barkley (D-Ky.) of "hertofore unpublished and confidential" documents, including the papers of the late President Roosevelt, added spice to the advance billing.

The public inquiry is scheduled to start Thursday with a tentative list of 48 witnesses including Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, former Secretary of State Cordell Hull, (health permitting), General of the Army George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, and numerous other high-ranking military officers.

The beginning of testimony will find committee members already on edge from a series of pre-hearing clashes between Republican and Democratic factions. Republican members have complained of being denied access to files. President Truman has ordered all pertinent information made available to the committee, including the papers of his predecessor.

Promises 'All the Facts'

Chairman Barkley, in announcing the slate of witnesses last night, declared in a statement that all the facts of the nation's most disastrous defeat at arms will be laid before the public, "no matter whom they may hurt in high or low places."

"All documents, records or information which the counsel has requested from departments have been furnished or are in course of preparation," he said. "All documents and information obtained by counsel are available to every individual member of the committee.

"All requests by individual members for information, whether classified top secret, confidential or otherwise, have been presented to the departments by the counsel's office and supplied or in course of preparation.

"By Presidential order every person in the government service has been authorized and encouraged to talk with individual members of the committee and volunteer information.

"The evidence prepared up to date includes great quantities of material from many sources, heretofore unpublished and confidential, including White House records and the papers of President Roosevelt."

Mitchell is Counsel

Counsel is William D. Mitchell, Attorney General in the Hoover administration.

Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) who has been tilting with his Republican colleagues on the committee, said he thought the latter will be "greatly surprised" when they see the Roosevelt-Churchill files.

Dewey presumably is being called to tell what if any Pearl Harbor secrets he knew during his campaign for the Presidency last fall. The New Yorker reportedly acceded to General Marshall's request to keep these secrets out of the campaign, in the interests of national security.

Herbert Brownell, Jr., Republican national chairman, who managed Dewey's campaign, said last September that the G.O.P. nominee was willing to accept defeat rather than risk "sacrificing needlessly the life of a single American boy" by revealing that the Americans had cracked the Japanese code prior to Pearl Harbor.

No specific time was set for Dewey's appearance before the committee—nor for that matter any of the other witnesses. Among the latter are Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short and Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, Pearl Harbor commanders at the time of the Dec. 7, 1941 surprise attack.

NOV 12 1945

SPEED IS SOUGHT ON G. I.'S RETURN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—(AP) Chairman Rankin (D-Miss.) of the House Veterans committee said today he will seek action tomorrow on his discharge bill in an effort to "bring home a million more men than planned by Christmas."

Rankin told a reporter he will file a petition to force consideration of his bill, which would allow immediate discharge of any service man who has dependents, or 18 months service, or who will resume school work.

The House would take up the measure if 218 members signed the petition.

Meanwhile, the Veterans Administration announced that veterans accepting training under the educational provisions of the G.I. Bill of Rights have shown increased preference in recent months for trade or business schools.

Reporting on samplings of groups of 5,000 students, the administration disclosed that in August 67 per cent of the veterans in training were in trade or business schools, compared with only 17 per cent in October, 1944.

The percentage of veterans in colleges and universities decreased from 70 to 42 per cent during the same period. Those taking on-the-job training increased from one to six per cent.

On Sept. 30, the agency reported, there were 49,123 veterans in training at government expense under the G.I. bill, an increase of 20,035 from April 30.

GOODS-HOLDING THEORY PROBED

CPA Discounts CIO Idea Of Waiting For 1946 Taxes

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP) — The Civilian Production Administration tonight was reported investigating whether some makers of civilian goods were delibertaely withholding them from market until 1946.

A CPA spokesman said the agency would seek to learn whether sales were being delayed in expectation of larger earnings after December 31, when repeal of the excess-profits tax becomes effective.

"While this may be a factor, no clear-cut evidence has been found in the case of washers, refrigerators, electrical appliances or other durable goods," said this official, who requested that his name be withheld.

Other Reasons Found

In certain cases the products are being made and not sold, h eadded, but on investigation the reason generally proved to be the absence of a price ceiling or dissatisfaction with the ceiling set by the OPA.

John W. Snyder, reconversion director, has interested himself in the inquiry, but it was begun on the initiative of the War Production Board—now the CPA—which felt the cut in taxes of 1946 profits might account for the textile industry's slow response to the WPB's low-price clothing program, it was stated.

Most of the CPA's attention has been devoted to the fabric field so far. The official source said some firms undoubtedly have been holding back to get the beenfit of the tax cut, but so far the practice does not appear to be widespread.

Expect To Reach Fabric Goals

The CPA spokesman said it now appeared that the yardage of goods channeled into low-cost garments will more than meet the Government's goal for the October-November-December quarter. Close to 50,000,000 yards of wool fabric will reach clothing makers, as against a goal of 39,000,000 yards, he estimated, while the flow of cotton will just about hit the desired 150,000,000 yards.

The yardage has been slow coming and much of it will not be seen in the form of clothing until the end of the quarter, it was stated.

CIO Accusation

An accusation that manufacturers were holding back on slaes to reap the benefit of lower 1946 taxes was made a fortnight ago by Philip Murray, CIO president. He coupled it with an assertion that industry was engaged in a "sit-down strike" on collective bargaining with unions on higher-wage demands.

The CPA official stated, however, that any such "sitdown" on retail sales was not having an unfavorable effect on factory employment, since the goods were being produced even if not marketed in some cases.

Supplying All Dealers

Many of the products still are being shipped out to dealers to provide them with samples, he said, and in some cases the dealers are instructed not to sell them until all distributors are supplied with models.

He commented that there were 250,000 washing-machine distributors in the country, and the industry has not yet produced enough washers to supply them all, let alone to meet public demand.

A similar situation existed last month in refrigerators, he went on, but now sales are being made.

BROOKINGS STUDY OF LABOR POLICY

Increased Bargaining Power Held Dominant Federal Aim

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Brookings Institution said tonight that while the Government lacks any "coherent and integrated" labor policy, its major goal in recent years has been to win for labor "a larger income with shorter hours of work."

To attain that objective, said a study by Dr. Harold W. Metz, of the Brookings staff, the Government has sought:

First, to increase the bargaining power of workers; second, to protect the workers' right of self-organization, and, third, to facilitate the peaceful settlement of labor disputes.

When in conflict with the two other objectives, "the efforts to increase bargaining power prevail," the report said.

Financed By Falk Foundation

The study was financed by the Falk Foundation, of Pittsburgh. The Brookings Institution, privately endowed, is devoted to research and training in the social sciences.

The author of the report, formerly an economic adviser to the Republican National Committee, said his aim was not to question the desirability of the trend indicated, nor to judge whether it resulted from "a conscious effort" on the Government's part.

"The only point being made here," Dr. Metz said, "is that the increase in bargaining power is considered more important than the protection of the right of self-determination or the maintenance of industrial peace."

Other Conclusions Of Study

Other conclusions were:

"Very few limitations" are put on the use of strikes, pickets or boycotts, even if they restrain the free movement of goods in interstate commerce.

A minority group of employés can use those weapons "to interfere with" the rights granted to a union representing the majority of workers.

Even when a contract contains a no-strike clause, workers are not prevented from striking or boycotting to get a change in the contract or attain "any other objective."

Many employers, failing therefore to get enforceable assurance against work stoppages, "see little to be gained from a collective agreement."

Labor laws, as administered, favor large bargaining units represented by unions affiliated with national organizations, usually CIO or AFL.

Labor has a virtually free hand to choose whether or not to use Federal machinery for mediation, investigation and arbitration of labor disputes; nothing is done to encourage its use by labor, although "indirect sanctions" are sometimes used to encourage employers to use the peacemaking machinery.

"The major objective of the agencies engaged in peaceful settlement of disputes is to avoid a work stoppage," the report continued, "and the party threatening to breach the industrial peace has the advantage, for there would be a tendency to believe that its demands must be appeased if it is to be dissuaded from its threat.

Conciliation Advantage Noted

"Since almost any lockout by an employer is prohibited, most disputes involve the employés threat of a strike, and workers generally make the direct threat to disturb the industrial peace.

"As a result labor suffers no significant loss of bargaining power by submitting to conciliation. Further, although the workers agree to conciliation or arbitration, they are still free to strike if the settlement proposed should be too displeasing to them."

In almost all attempts to regulate wages directly, the bulky study observes, the Government has "failed to develop and apply objective standards."

Dangers In Lack Of Standards

"Many friends of labor may contend that the absence of standards is immaterial, since the machinery for wage determination is in the hands of administrators sympathetic to labor.

"But it should not be forgotten that if the machinery should fall into the hands of persons unsympathetic to labor, the absence of standards would facilitate the use of wage controls to the workers' disadvantage."

The Federal policy to encourage the closed shop and other forms of union preference, the report continued, conflicts with the policy of guaranteeing the free right to organize.

The report cites indications that more closed-shop disputes arise out of "interunion competition" than from differences between workers and bosses or between union and nonunion workers.

Record Reached For Strike Votes

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP)—The National Labor Realtons Board tonight reported that four of its twenty field offices are doing nothing but handling an "avalanche" of strike vote requests. It said a record-breaking 666 petitions were filed in October.

This number was more than double any previous monthly peak since the Smith-Connally Act authorized Federally-conducted strike polls in mid-1943, NLRB said.

In the automobile industry alone, more than $100,000 of Federal funds was spent in handling strike ballots growing out of the CIO United Automobile Workers' demand for a 30 per cent wage increase from General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

During October over 418,000 employés were eligible to participate in the 130 strike votes taken. They involved the employés of 1,417 employers.

The workers voted about 5 to 1 in favor of authorizing strikes. In September, when the previous record of 307 strike votes were taken, the ration was about 8 to 1.

As this month opened, a backlog of 654 strike-vote requests were before NLRB. They are being filed at the rate of 45 a day.

C. I. O. Asks Strike Vote At G. E. and Westinghouse

Application Filed with War Labor Board for 270,000 in 22 States.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—(AP) The C.I.O. United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers said today it had asked the War Labor board to conduct a strike vote among 270,000 employes of the General Electric company, the Westinghouse Electric Motors corporation's electrical division.

The union, which has demanded a $2-a-day pay raise for all the 270,000 workers, engaged in production of radios, refrigerators, washing machines and other electrical equipment, said it also had asked Secretary of Labor Lewis Schwellenbach "to intervene personally in this situation."

Schwellenbach was asked to "participate in an early conference of the companies and the union to assist in breaking the deadlock."

James J. Mantles, director of organization for the electrical workers union, said the application for a strike vote and appeal for intervention by Schwellenbach were made after a majority of the workers had petitioned for a $2 a-day raise and expressed willingness to go on strike if necessary to obtain it.

Mantles said such a strike would involve 76 industrial centers in 22 states.

In its letter of application for a strike vote the union claimed, officials said, that it was making "every effort to continue negotiations in order to arrive at an agreement" but that the companies had rejected the workers' demands.

The companies could not be reached immediately for comment.

The strike vote application was made under the Smith-Connally act, which requires a 30-day "cooling of" period before the actual casting of ballots on the strike question.

U. S. Steel Head May Resume Talks

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 — (AP) Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the United States Steel corporation, said today that Labor Secretary Lewis Schwellenbach's request for a renewal of collective bargaining conferences with the United Steel Workers (C.I.O.) would be given "prompt and careful consideration."

Fairless, in a telegram to the Labor secretary, charged that Philip Murray, president of the C.I.O. and the United Steel Workers, had assumed a take-it-or-leave-it attitude in previous sessions and said "collective bargaining should be a two-way street."

Fairless also renewed his demands for increased prices, declaring that "in my opinion a further collective bargaining conference cannot be expected to accomplish anything until OPA authorizes the increases."

Fairless' telegram was in answer to an appeal from Schwellenbach for U. S. Steel representatives to renew negotiations with the union in Washington Wednesday on union demands for a $2-a-day wage increase.

The union had agreed to negotiate but Fairless earlier promised acceptance on the condition that OPA grant price boosts and assure the company of additional increases to compensate for any wage hikes that might results from the negotiations.

In his telegram, the steel leader said:

"Today I have read in the newspapers the text of your letter of yesterday to me, which has not yet been received. Your request will be given prompt and careful consideration when my associates are available after tomorrow's Armistice day holiday. As soon as possible thereafter, I will communicate further with you.

"Your reported letter implies that we have refused to engage in collective bargaining negotiations with the union. This is not the fact. We met with representatives of the union in Pittsburgh on Oct. 10 and 11, and again on Oct. 23. Philip Murray, the president of the union, opened the initial conference by declaring that his demand for a general wage increase of $2 a day is not subject to dickering or compromise. He insisted that we give him a 'yes or no' answer. This wage demand is the only issue involved."

Asks Price Boost

Fairless said that upon resumption of sessions Oct. 23 he told Murray that "existing OPA ceiling prices for steel products and the government's wage stabilization policy do not enable us to grant a wage increase at this time."

"The above mentioned attitude on the part of Mr. Murray at our collective bargaining conferences does not appear to me to come within your own definition of what collective bargaining should be," Fairless declared. "In my judgment, sincere collective bargaining cannot properly mean that the em-

...ver must sign on the dotted line and grant all of the union's demands. Yet that was Mr. Murray's position, according to his own words. Sincere collective bargaining should be a two-way street.

"We have never declined to engage in collective bargaining with an appropriate union and have not done so in this instance. However, I must again point out to you that in my opinion a further collective bargaining conference cannot be expected to accomplish anything in this situation until OPA authorizes the increases in ceiling prices for steel products to which the steel industry has long been entitled by reason of past heavy increases in its costs."

Blames OPA

Fairless sketched the industry's appeals to OPA, declaring: "If there is now an impasse, the responsibility therefor rests squarely on OPA." He requested Schwellenbach to "use the influence of your great office" toward securing prompt price action by OPA.

Fairless also said that the company's contract with the union ran until next October with a no-strike provision but that "a strike vote is to be taken at the request of the union on Nov. 28."

Schwellenbach has asked steel representatives to meet with union envoys, with Arthur S. Meyer sitting as a special conciliator.

Declaring that as he understood it there "has yet been no collective bargaining," the Labor secretary has written Fairless:

"When a company and its employes collectively bargain they sit around a table in a spirit of mutual good will and discuss freely and frankly the positions of the respective parties. That is all the government is asking in this instance."

At the time the company refused the invitation to the conference, Murray termed the U. S. Steel stand a "shocking and arrogant attitude."

in New York that Lewis Schwellenbach, Secretary of Labor, had also been asked "to intervene personally in this situation."

The union has demanded a $2-a-day pay increase for all the 270,000 workers engaged in production of refrigerators, radios and other electrical equipment.

76 Industrial Centers

James J. Matles, director of organization for the union, said application for the strike vote and appeal for intervention by Schwellenbach were made after a majority of the workers had petitioned for the wage boost and expressed willingness to go on strike if necessary to obtain it.

Matles said such a strike would involve 76 industrial centers in 22 states. The companies could not be reached immediately for comment.

In Detroit, the CIO-United Auto Workers—holding a strike authorization voted by employés of the auto industry's "big three"—has placed its threat of a work stoppage "on a 24-hour basis" by designating a six-man "strategy committee" to deal with General Motors, Ford and Chrysler on the union's demand for a 30 per cent wage rate increase.

Steel Industry

In another basic industry—steel—the Government again tried to bring labor and management together to talk over their wage dispute with a special conciliator.

Walter Reuther, UAW-CIO vice president, said in Washington yesterday the action of his union's executive board in authorizing a "strategy committee" to "act as it may see fit" in current wage negotiations with employers means that the committee can meet at a moment's notice and take any action desired.

Members Of Committee

Strategy committee members are Reuther, R. J. Thomas, UAW president; George F. Addes, secretary-treasurer; Richard T. Frankensteen, vice president, and Richard T. Leonard and Norman Matthews.

Reuther is conducting negotiations with General Motors Corporation, scheduled to be resumed Thursday. Matthews represents the union in Chrysler negotiations, also underway, and Leonard will handle discussions with Ford, starting November 20.

Another Invitation

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach's first invitation November 3 to the United States Steel Corporation to a conciliation meeting November 14 was rejected by Benjamin F. Fairless, "big steel" president. Fairless contended that before he could discuss the CIO Steelworkers' request for a $2 daily wage increase he must have assurance from OPA that steel price ceilings would be raised to cover any boost in wages.

Over the week end, the Labor Secretary wrote Fairless again, asserting "the Government is not insisting upon any agreement from your corporation as to a wage increase. All that the Government asks is that in the presence of one of its representatives you intend to collectively bargain with your employés."

As the total of workers idle across the nation in labor disputes continued at the same round number it has for days—275,000, a showdown neared in the strike of AFL Greyhound bus lines employés in nineteen states east of the Mississippi.

To Meet In Philadelphia

A Federal conciliator will meet with union representatives and officials of the Pennsylvania and Central Greyhound lines in Philadelphia Tuesday. The drivers are asking 5.75 cents per mile as compared with their present rate of five cents, rado and Arkansas. The union is asking a cent a mile increase in drivers pay over the present 4½ cents a mile rate.

Unions Opposed

Results of a strike vote taken by mail among 900 AFL Amalgamated Bus Employés of the Northland Greyhound bus lines, operating in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Montana, North and South Dakota, northern Illinois, upper Michigan and part of Iowa were expected to be known tomorrow. The union is seeking a fifteen per cent basic increase in the wage rate.

In the Pacific Northwest, the nonstriking CIO woodworkers announced two more agreements with lumber operators for a 12½-cent hourly wage increase, while AFL lumber and sawmill workers—on strike for the last 48 days—are holding out for a 20 cents an hour increase and a $1.10 hourly minimum. Backing up the AFL lumbermen Oregon and Southwestern members of the AFL teamsters union agreed over the week end not to handle any CIO-produced lumber or timber.

Students To Quit Strike

Gary, Ind., Nov. 11 (AP)—Five hundred white students of Froebel High School, who have been on strike in protest to the school's large enrollment of Negroes, voted today to return to their classes tomorrow.

Leonard Levenda, student strike leader who addressed a mass meeting of the students in Tyler Park, said he recommended that the strikers return to school.

"The striking students have a great deal of confidence in Dr. Malan (State superintendent of instruction) and on the strength of what he told the committee we recommended that they return to school tomorrow and they accepted the recommendation," Levenda said.

Appealed To Parents

The student leader told the students that Dr. Malan had said he couldn't do anything for them while they were out of school, but if they returned he would see "that justice was done."

Dr. Malan made his appeal Friday at a meeting in Indianapolis with representatives of the student's parents.

The students struck the first time in September and charged that Principal R. A. Nuzum favored Froebel's Negro students. They returned to school in October after the school board promised an investigation and gave Nuzum a leave of absence, but struck again when the investigating committee exonerated Nuzum and he returned to school.

WLB Supervision Of Vote Is Sought

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP)—Supervision of a strike vote among 270,000 employés of the Westinghouse Electric Company, the General Electric Company and the General Motors Corporation's electrical division was asked of the War Labor Board today by the CIO-United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

A spokesman for the union said Heavy majorities of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler workers, in recent elections conducted under the Smith-Connally Labor Disputes Act, favored striking if necessary to support the union's wage demand.

Giving the strategy committee authority to deal with management, declared Reuther, "places the strike threat on a 24-hour basis."

and maintenance men are seeking a 30 per cent wage rate increase.

Negotiations at Fort Worth between Southwestern Greyhound lines and striking AFL employés, meanwhile, were postponed indefinitely, both union and management announced after discussions broke up Saturday. Other points affected were in Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, New Mexico, Colo-

A.F.L. Men Want Truman To Study Higgins Case

Vote to Send Group to Capital to Call on President

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 11 (AP).—Labor leaders battling the closure and liquidation of the Higgins Industries, Inc., properties voted today to send a committee to Washington in an effort to present their case directly to President Truman.

William Donnels, publicity chairman of the American Federation of Labor Metal and Building Trades Council, said the committee would ask William Green, president of the A. F. of L., to arrange a meeting with the President.

The union had previously asked a Congressional investigation of the closure by industrialist Andrew J. Higgins sr. of three strike-bound boat-building and building materials plants.

Higgins stockholders voted Thursday to liquidate all their properties here, including companies manufacturing airborne rescue boats and atomic-bomb parts at the government-owned Micheaud plant here.

The local metal and building trades council also called a general executive meeting of all union members in New Orleans for 2 p. m. Tuesday to discuss the Higgins situation.

A statement issued by Donnels charged that the Higgins actions were designed "to appeal to the prejudice of the boys in service and those who are inclined to be hostile to labor to create a mass hysteria."

Told of Donnels's statement, Mr. Higgins said he was "not interested."

ANTI-SUB CANNON IN SHOTGUN STYLE

Hedgehog Fired 24 Bombs In Area-Covering Pattern

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—Another war secret, called the hedgehog, a shotgun cannon that fired 24 bombs and was mounted on the bow of subchasers, was released today by the Navy.

The weapon shot all its load in a little more than one second. The bombs fell like a charge of buckshot in an elliptical pattern shaped something like a U-boat, but far larger in area.

The pattern was designed to inclose the U-boat on all sides and also to drop deadly charges throughout the area.

Exploded Only On Contact

The projectiles, however, were not depth bombs. They exploded only on contact. If not hit by the sub they sank to the bottom. An advantage was that an underwater explosion was a certain sign of a hit.

A report from the Carrier Corporation, manufacturers of the hedgehog, said the device was one of the most effective anti-submarine weapons. The bombs were fired by a rocket device.

The hedgehog was designed in England in 1942. The American firm manufactured 1,501 of them.

Destroyer Escort Avenged

Last April a hedgehog got the U-546 after it had sunk the destroyer escort F. E. Davis in a surface fight. After the sinking of the Davis there followed an all-day chase in which most of the attempts to locate the sub by underwater sound devices failed because the submarine did tight circles that scrambled the recordings of the sound devices.

Late in the day a hedgehog got one hit on the sub, and after that there was a much better sound fix of its position. A second blast of the hedgehog made another hit and forced the U-boat to the surface, where surface fire sank it and resulted in capture of most of the crew.

EUROPA DEPARTS TO PICK UP G. I.'S

NEW YORK, Nov. 11. — (AP) The former German liner Europa, recently revamped as an American troop transport capable of accommodating 6,500 troops, sailed for Southampton, England, today to pick up a load of returning soldiers. It was the ship's first trip under an American flag.

Aboard the huge vessel were 44 passengers, including members of a committee which will investigate conditions in Palestine. They were Fowler Harper, form solicitor for the Department of the Interior; William S. Bennett, president of the Sons of the American Revolution, and Joseph Scharfsin, a Philadelphia lawyer.

Also aboard were members of the Lutheran commission which will devote a month to gathering information on relief and rehabilitation problems of 60,000,000 Lutherans in Europe. These included the Rev. Dr. Ralph H. Long, executive director of the National Lutheran council; the Rev. Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the United Lutheran church in America, and the Rev. Dr. J. A. Aasgaard, president of the Norwegian Lutheran church of America.

FOREIGN TRADE PARLEY SET TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 11. — (AP) Cabinet members, foreign trade experts and business leaders will meet here for the next three days to plan steps this country should take in aiding the economic reconstruction of the world through foreign trade.

Secretary of the Treasury Vinson, Secretary of Commerce Wallace, Assistant Secretary of State Spruille Braden, and Wayne C. Taylor, president of the Export-Import Bank, headline the list of speakers at the 22nd national foreign trade convention.

George W. Wolf, president of U. S. Steel Export company, will preside at the opening session Monday morning, which will be addressed by Secretary Wallace, Almon E. Roth, president of the National Federation of American Shipping, Inc., and James A. Farley, former postmaster general.

Hugh D. Scully, consul general of Canada, and Herbert Vere Evatt, Australian attorney general and minister of state for external affairs, will speak Monday and Wednesday, respectively, on trade barriers.

Eugene P. Thomas, president of the National Foreign Trade Council, said 1,600 registrations had been received for the three-day meetings.

Special sessions are planned on foreign trade reconstruction, tax treaties and credits, Far East and Latin America trade problems, exchange restrictions and the sterling area, education's part in trade problems, and current trade problems.

A message from President Truman will be read at the world trade dinner, Wednesday night, which will be addressed by Secretary Vinson.

NAVY PLANE FALLS NEAR BEACON, N. Y.

Commodore Kiefer, Hero of Ticonderoga, Reported Among Six on Craft.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 12 (Monday) — (AP) The Providence Journal says today that Commodore Dixie Kiefer, 49, commandant at the Quonset naval air station and hero commander of the carrier Ticonderoga in the Pacific, was believed to be one of six naval personnel aboard a two engined bomber which crashed in the mountains near Beacon, N. Y., yesterday.

New York state police Lieut. John Lawson said a twin engined ship had crashed there and that search parties had been sent to the scene.

The Navy reported that a Beechcraft (JRB) bomber carrying at least six officers and men was overdue on a flight from Caldwell, N. J., to the Quonset base.

The Navy announcement added that no announcement of personnel aboard the plane would be made until the craft was found, the men identified and next of kin, if necessary, identified.

Spokesmen at Quonset declined to say whether Kiefer was at the base or whether the crashed plane was his.

Kiefer, who has access to any plane at Quonset, habitually flies in a twin engined bomber, the Journal says, adding that he recently made a trip to the Middle West in such a ship to visit his family.

The Journal in its story emphasizes that Quonset "which usually does not travel to routine crashes outside this area, was preparing to send a detail of 170 men by bus, a radio equipped crash truck and a PBY flying boat to Beacon to join in the search at daybreak."

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal described Kiefer, a native of Idaho, as the "indestructible man" when he decorated the naval hero with the Distinguished Service Medal.

Kiefer was commanding officer of the Ticonderoga when she was struck by two Jap suicide planes off Formosa. He suffered 65 wounds in the ensuing explosions but stuck to his bridge for 12 hours until fires were extinguished before permitting himself to receive medical attention. Kiefer assumed command at Quonset in April, 1945.

Boston To Play Host To Eisenhower Today

Boston, Nov. 11 (AP)—Thousands of greater Boston persons will pay tribute to General of the Armies Dwight D. (Ike) Eisenhower who will be the armistice Day guest of Massachusetts and Boston tomorrow.

The General who led the Allied armies to victory in Europe is scheduled to arrive here at 11 A.M. (E. S. T.) at Logan International Airport in an army transport plane. Two triumphant tours through downtown Boston streets—a motor cavalcade from the airport and later the Armistice Day parade—are planned.

Taking precedence, however, over both events will be the General's first greeting at the airport to Mrs. Eisenhowew, who will be at her husband's side throughout the day. A state dinner will complete the round of festivities.

RUML URGES BUSINESS TO 'SERVE FREEDOM'

EXETER, N. H., Nov. 11—(AP) Beardsley Ruml, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, said tonight business should serve the cause of freedom by finding "its own place harmoniously in the pattern of controls from which order and certainty of a free society must be derived."

Ruml said in a talk at Phillips Exeter Academy:

"The resurgence of doctrines of human freedom during World War II, will have its inescapable impact on business, particularly in the United States where the tradition of the American Revolution has high prestige.

"Fortunately, business in the United States is in a good position to move into the future harmoniously with the renewed impulse to freedom."

Halsey Decries Unification Plan

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP)—Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., declared today he could not see how consolidation of the nation's armed forces would bring "any integration, but I can see disintegration."

"The Army and Navy can very much better carry out their jobs under their own people," he told a news conference. He is Chicago's official guest for the Armistice Day week end.

Asked about the effect of the atomic bomb on the navy, Admiral Halsey replied, "There has never been a weapon that hasn't been countered—if one scientist can build it, another can counter it."

He expressed approval of universal military training "if it can be carried out economically and by fair means."

Marshall Gives Hint Of Coming Retirement

Berryville, Va., Nov. 11 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall, speaking at an Armistice Day ceremony here, said without elaboration "it is my hope very shortly to be among my neighbors"—thus seemingly giving credence to reports that he may resign as Chief of Staff of the United States Army.

The General spoke before about 5,000 persons who sat in the open on apple-packing boxes for the Armistice Day program and Victory Loan rally which climaxed a mile-long parade of military, State Guard and Red Cross units.

"We must visualize what we have done in this war just ended, the sacrifices we have made, and see that none of it is wasted in the transition period facing America," the General —a resident of Leesburg—said, urging the consolidation of the victory "we have worked so hard for and which many of us have died for."

War-Weary World Observes Armistice, Looks to Future

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A world still exhausted from its latest war paused briefly Sunday to mark the ending of the first global conflict 27 years ago and to look uncertainly into the future.

Leaders of three nations who hold a key to peace—or perhaps another, deadlier war—headed the observance of Armistice in America.

Places Wreath on Tomb

Typical of similar ceremonies throughout this and many foreign lands, President Truman placed a wreath of chrysanthemums on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier of World War I in Arlington cemetery.

With him were Prime Ministers Clement Attlee of Great Britain and MacKenzie King of Canada, here to discuss the future of the recent war's most terrible weapon, the atomic bomb. They too placed wreaths on the tomb.

Later the three leaders went to the nearby monument erected by Canada in honor of Americans who lost their lives while serving with the Canadian Army in the First World War, and to the temporary grave of Field Marshal Sir John Dill, British representative of the combined chiefs of staff, who died last year. King placed a wreath at the Canadian monument. Attlee placed one on the grave of Sir John.

Veterans' organizations were in the forefront of most observances.

At Arlington Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower placed a wreath on the Unknown Soldier's tomb on behalf of the American veterans of World War II.

Legion Takes Part

American Legion services at the tomb were marked by addresses by Edward N. Scheiberling, Legion national commander, and by Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, national president of the Legion auxiliary.

Scheiberling pleaded for maintenance of a strong Army and Navy and for peacetime military training to preserve national security.

"We must keep ourselves strong so that no future Hitler, no future Mussolini or Hirohito will dare to challenge us," he said.

"We cannot do that painlessly. We must give of our time and our pleasure. We must reach into our pockets for a money contribution in the form of taxes."

Mrs. Gilbert urged the women of America to devote renewed attention to "those things which bear closely on the home—good government, good schools, good health, good recreational facilities, adequate welfare work and good citizenship from all points."

The ceremony began at 11 a.m., EST, when around the world there was a minute's pause for tribute and silent prayer.

In Pittsburgh Joseph M. Stack, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said in an address prepared for broadcasting (ABC) that America must assume a role of moral leadership in international affairs.

"Other nations," he said, "are still not entirely convinced that we are 100 per cent behind the international ideals we talked about at Cairo, Teheran and Yalta, and we are rolling up our sleeves to put those ideals to work.

"Here in America we take our politics, like our democracy, for granted until some power-mad dictator sets the world on fire. Then, and only then, do we suddenly remember that peace is either worldwide or it does not exist at all."

Among other speakers who attended observances in various parts of the country were Brig. Gen. Samuel C. Cumming, of the Marine corps, and Secretary of the Treasury Fred M. Vinson.

Marine Leader Speaks

Speaking at the Second Marine division memorial in Washington General Cumming said the United States "must have the power to play its part" if it is to "contribute its essential share to the stabilizing of world peace."

"New forms of weapons have not, and in the conceivable future will not, depreciate the value of trained manpower, or air power, or such vital matters as control of the sea," General Cumming said.

Secretary Vinson, asked in an address prepared for broadcast (Mutual) from Atlanta; "do we have another armistice or do we have lasting peace?"

To be realistic about peace, he said, "is to root out once and for all the idea that wars are beyond our control," to be "strong," and "to make the discussion and conference procedure work."

To make it a prosperous peace he urged full support of the Victory Loan.

There were observances too overseas, where the newly-won peace was disturbed by fighting in Java and Indochina and by a threat of civil war in North China.

In Saigon, French and British Imperials who could be spared from the Annamite fronts guarded the main boulevard down which troops paraded before a turnout of European residents. The parade was reviewed by high British and French officers from a grandstand behind the cathedral, where memorial mass was celebrated.

In Algiers the commemoration began last night at the floodlit War Memorial. Today there was a military parade, including American and British detachments with the flags of all high military civil officials present. British and American uniforms were mingled, too, in an Armistice celebration parade in Copenhagen, Denmark.

A35 ADD BATAVIA - BRIT ATTACK (GRICKSON) ***

THE NATIONALIST NEWSPAPER MERDEKA SAID THAT SOEKARNO, BEFORE LEAVING FRIDAY NIGHT FOR THE YOUTH RALLY AT JOGJAKARTA, HAD ORDERED SJAHRIR TO ORGANIZE A NEW CABINET. THE DUTCH INTERPRETATION OF THE NEWSPAPER'S STORY WAS THAT THE SOERABAJA FIGHTING HAD PRECIPITATED A CRISIS IN THE NATIONALIST MOVEMENT.

SOEKARNO SAID HIS CHARGE THAT THE BRITISH HAD COMMITTED A "VAST MASSACRE" AT SOERABAJA WAS BASED ON A TELEPHONE CONVERSATION WITH HIS LIAISON OFFICER AT THE NAVAL BASE. BUT HE SAID THE EXACT NUMBER OF NATIVE DEAD WAS NOT KNOWN.

EARLIER, INDONESIANS HAD ASSERTED THAT BRITISH BOMBING AND ARTILLERY FIRE HAD PILED THE STREETS WITH THE BODIES OF DEAD AND HAD "DEVASTATED" THE CITY, INCLUDING PASAR TOERI, THE MAIN MARKET PLACE NEAR THE RAILROAD STATION.

BY BRITISH ACCOUNT, THE JOB OF CLEARING EXTREMISTS FROM SOERABAJA WAS A TEDIOUS ONE, MAKING CERTAIN THAT NO SNIPER NESTS WERE LEFT BEHIND THEIR ADVANCING LINES, WERE ROOTING THE NATIVES FROM A SERIES OF STRONG POINTS.

THE BRITISH LAUNCHED THEIR ATTACK AT SOERABAJA WHEN THE NATIONLISTS IGNORED AN ULTIMATUM TO SURRENDER THEIR ARMS. THE BRITISH SAID THE WEAPONS IN THE HANDS OF THE INDONESIANS BELONGED ORIGINALLY TO JAPANESE TROOPS AND SAILORS, 20,000 OF WHOM STILL ARE TO BE ROUNDED UP IN THE AREA.

DESCRIBING AS "ABSOLUTELY UNTRUE" INDONESIAN ASSERTIONS THAT THE BRITISH AIR ATTACK HAD BEEN INDISCRIMINATE, THE STATEMENT FROM CHRISTISON'S HEADQUARTERS SAID RAF PLANES HAD ATTACKED THE INDONESIAN HEADQUARTERS WHICH HAD BEEN "MOST THOROUGHLY AND CARE FULLY RECONNOITERED AND PINPOINTED."

AIR ATTACK "WERE ACCURATE" AND THAT "NO REPORT WAS AVAILABLE ON THE CENTER OF EXTREMIST ACTIVITY."

BOMBING DAMAGE SINCE THE RESULTS SO FAR HAD BEEN OBSERVED ONLY FROM THE AIR.

BRIGADIER MICHAEL WARDELL, WHO RETURNED TO BATAVIA FROM SOERABAJA, SAID THE BRITISH PILOTS FLEW AT EXTREMELY LOW LEVELS TO MAKE CERTAIN THAT THEIR BOMBS HIT THE SELECTED TARGETS.

BATAVIA, JAVA, NOV 11-(AP)-AN EYE-WITNESS REPORTED TODAY THAT TROOPS OF THE BRITISH 5TH INDIAN DIVISION ARE MAKING A "SLOW AND THOROUGH" ADVANCE INTO SOERABAJA UNDER COVER OF FIRE FROM ARTILLERY, NAVAL GUNS AND MORTARS.

(AN UNCONFIRMED DUTCH REPORT SAID THE BRITISH NOW HELD TWO-THIRDS OF SOERABAJA.)

BRIG.MICHAEL WARDELL, WHO FLEW BACK FROM THE EMBATTLED NAVAL BASE, SAID THAT FORCES UNDER THE COMMAND OF MAJ.GEN.E.C.HANSERGH ADVANCED 1,200 YARDS INTO THE CITY YESTERDAY, MAKING A HOUSE-TO-HOUSE CLEANUP AS THEY FOUGHT TO CLEAR THE CITY OF INDONESIAN EXTREMISTS.

WARDELL TERMED "EXAGGERATED" INDONESIAN ASSERTIONS THAT SOERABAJA HAD BEEN "DEVASTATED" BY BRITISH SHELLS AND BOMBS.

LT.COL.ROY OLIVER, WHO ACCOMPANIED WARDELL, SAID THAT THE BRITISH FIELD GUNS AND MORTARS YESTERDAY AND LAST NIGHT MAINTAINED A STEADY FIRE, BOTH WITH SINGLE ROUNDS AND FULL SALVOES.

THE TWO BRITISH OFFICERS REVEALED THAT THREE OF THE 12 MOSQUITO BOMBERS SENT OUT ON LOW LEVEL ATTACKS WITH 500-POUND BOMBS YESTERDAY WERE PUT OUT OF ACTION BY INDONESIAN RIFLE AND MACHINE-GUN FIRE. THEY SAID THE PILOTS BOMBED FROM EXTREMELY LOW LEVELS AND THAT THERE WERE NO INDISCRIMINATE ATTACKS.

WARDELL CONFIRMED THE DEATH OF BRIG.LODER-SYMONDS, ROYAL ARTILLERY COMMANDER, WHO WAS KILLED WHEN A MOSQUITO ARTILLERY OBSERVATION PLANE CRASHED DURING A TAKEOFF. LODER-SYMONDS HAD WON AN AMERICAN DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS AT ARNHEIM. (NO PICKUP)

CHINA SITUATIONER AP WORLD ASKED (350)

BY JOHN RODERICK

CHUNGKING, NOV. 11-(AP)-THE DEMOCRATIC LEAGUE STEPPED TODAY INTO NEGOTIATIONS IN AN ATTEMPT TO AVERT ALL-OUT CIVIL WAR BY CALLING A MEETING THIS AFTERNOON WHICH COMMUNIST AND GOVERNMENT CONFEREES, NOW DEADLOCKED, AGREED TO ATTEND.

WANG JO-FEI, AN ASSOCIATE OF COMMUNIST LEADER CHOU EN-LAI, TOLD NEWSMEN THE LEAGUE WOULD PARTICIPATE FOR THE FIRST TIME IN CONVERSATIONS ON THE QUESTIONS OF HOW TO STOP THE STRUGGLE.

THE FUNCTIONS OF THE POLITICAL CONSULTATIVE COUNCIL, WHICH THE COMMUNISTS WANT TO CONSIDER THE WHOLE WAR SITUATION, ALSO WILL BE DISCUSSED.

HE SAID ALSO THAT THE COMMUNISTS HAVE RECEDED FROM THEIR ORIGINAL INSISTENCE THAT THE POLITICAL CONSULTATIVE COUNCIL BE CALLED IN SESSION AFTER THE CESSATION OF FIGHTING AND NOW STOOD READY TO NAME DELEGATES AS SOON AS AGREEMENT CAN BE REACHED ON THE DATE AND THE PART IT WILL PLAY IN SETTLING THE CIVIL WAR QUESTION. THE COMMUNISTS THUS FAR HAVE NOT NAMED THEIR DELEGATES.

ALTHOUGH THE DEMOCRATIC LEAGUE PROBABLY WILL NOT TAKE PART IN THE COMMUNIST-GOVERNMENT TALKS AFTER TODAY, THE FACT THEY CALLED THIS MEETING PROJECTS A POSSIBLY MORE HOPEFUL NOTE INTO THE SITUATION.

HOWEVER, WANG SAID, THE GOVERNMENT-COMMUNIST CONFERENCE YESTERDAY APPEARED NO NEARER SOLUTION OF THE BASIC DIFFERENCES. THE COMMUNISTS INSISTED THE GOVERNMENT WITHDRAW FROM "LIBERATED AREAS" AND THE KOUMINTANG WAS JUST AS ADAMANT IN ITS DECLARATION IT WOULD WILLINGLY HALT IN PRESENT POSITIONS BUT WOULD NOT RECEDE. THIS, THE COMMUNISTS DESCRIBES AS "DELIBERATE ENCROACHMENT."

ASKED FOR THE VIEW OF THE COMMUNISTS REGARDING THE CURRENT EXTRAORDINARY MEETING OF THE NATIONAL MILITARY COUNCIL HERE, WANG REPLIED:

"CHOU EN-LAI YESTERDAY POINT BLANK ASKED THE GOVERNMENT WHETHER IT HAD BEEN CALLED AS A COMMUNIST SUPPRESSION CONFERENCE AND RECEIVED THE REPLY IT WAS MERELY DISCUSSING REORGANIZATION OF THE CENTRAL ARMIES."

THE FACT THE COMMUNISTS WERE NOT INVITED TO SIT IN "CREATES SUSPICION", WANG SAID. THE NUMBER OF GENERALS PARTICIPATING IN THE COUNCIL WAS IMPRESSIVE, HE SAID, OBSERVING THAT NEVER DURING THE ENTIRE WAR HAD SUCH A LARGE CONFERENCE OF MILITARY LEADERS TAKEN PLACE

(AT CHIN WANGTAO TODAYVICE ADM. DANIEL BARBEY, SENIOR AMERICAN OFFICER IN THE AREA, IN AN INTERVIEW WARNED BOTH NATIONALISTS AND COMMUNISTS THAT A FLIGHT OVER MANCHURIA MAY LEAD TO ITS EMERGENCE AS A SEPARATE STATE SIMILAR TO OUTER MONGOLIA.

HE ALSO SUGGESTED: ADD WASH - SPACE SHIPS xxx ORGANIZATION
1. CONTINUANCE OF THE JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF ORGANIZATION.
2. ESTABLISHMENT OF ONE NATIONAL AUTHORITY TO DETERMINE BASIC AVIATION POLICIES IN THE NAME OF ALL INTERESTED BRANCHES OF GOVERNMENT AS "A FIRST ESSENTIAL TO THE SOUND DEVELOPMENT OF CIVIL AVIATION."
3. SETTING UP A PERMANENT SCIENTIFIC ADVISORY GROUP COMPRISING BOTH CIVIL AND MILITARY EXPERTS.
4. CREATION OF A PERMANENT NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE ORGANIZATION.
5. ACCEPTANCE OF THE CONCEPT OF AN AIR FORCE BASICALLY FLEXIBLE TO PROVIDE FOR ADAPTATION TO VAST CHANGES IN THE FORESEEABLE FUTURE.
6. DEVELOPMENT OF A TRAINING PROGRAM IN INDUSTRY, BUSINESS, ECONOMICS AND SCIENCE FOR THE ARMED FORCES, ALONG WITH AN EDUCATIONAL PLAN DESIGNED TO FIT AMERICAN YOUTH FOR AVIATION.
7. MAINTENANCE OF A NUCLEUS OF WOMEN SOLDIERS TO PROVIDE FOR RAPID EXPANSION IN EMERGENCY.
8. MAKE CERTAIN THAT THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE IS "SECOND TO NONE IN RANGE AND STRIKING POWER" REGARDLESS OF ITS SIZE.

"THE MISSION OF THE ARMED FORCES OF THE UNITED STATES SHOULD BE NOT TO PREPARE FOR WAR," SAID ARNOLD, "BUT TO PREVENT WAR--TO INSURE THAT PEACE BE PERPETUATED."

DISCUSSING AN INTEGRATED MILITARY ORGANIZATION, THE AAF LEADER SAID "UNITY OF COMMAND IS NOT ALONE SUFFICIENT. UNITY OF PLANNING, UNITY OF COMMON ITEM PROCUREMENT AND UNITY OF DOCTRINES ARE EQUALLY NECESSARY."

HE SAID THE MILITARY ORGANIZATION SHOULD BE ONE THAT "WILL ESTABLISH, DEVELOP, MAINTAIN AND DIRECT AT THE MINIMUM EXPENSE THE FORCES, INCLUDING THE MOBILE STRIKING FORCES, REQUIRED FOR PEACE ENFORCEMENT AND FOR NATIONAL SECURITY WITH THE CAPABILITY FOR THE MOST RAPID EXPANSION IN CASE OF ALL-OUT WAR."

ARNOLD SAID THAT THE FUTURE OF AERIAL WARFARE MUST BE CONSIDERED IN THE LIGHT OF AIRCRAFT, PILOTED AND PILOTLESS, MOVING AT SPEEDS FAR BEYOND THE SPEED OF SOUND AND PERHAPS INVOLVING SPACE CRAFT.

A136WX

ATOMIC ENERGY HAS MADE AIR POWER ALL-IMPORTANT, ARNOLD SAID, BECAUSE "AIR POWER PROVIDES NOT ONLY THE BEST PRESENT MEANS OF STRIKING AN ENEMY WITH ATOMIC BOMBS, BUT ALSO THE BEST AVAILABLE PROTECTION AGAINST THE MISUSE OF ATOMIC EXPLOSIVES."

NOV 12 1945

ARNOLD PUT CONSIDERABLE STRESS ON ESPIONAGE, COMMENTING THAT THE NATION'S PAST CONCEPT OF MILITARY INTELLIGENCE WAS "INSUFFICIENT TO COVER THE REQUIREMENTS OF MODERN WAR."

"IN THE FUTURE IT WILL BE SUICIDALLY DANGEROUS TO DEPEND UPON REPORTS OF MILITARY ATTACHES AND ROUTINE OR CASUAL SOURCES OF INFORMATION REGARDING FOREIGN STATES," HE SAID.

"THERE IS GREAT NEED FOR A PERMANENT NATIONAL ORGANIZATION WHICH NOT ONLY DEALS WITH BROAD QUESTIONS OF POLICY BUT ALSO COLLECTS, EVALUATES AND DISSEMINATES A CONTINUOUS STREAM OF INTELLIGENCE DATA.

"DETAILED AND MOVEMENT-BY-MOVEMENT KNOWLEDGE OF ALL ASPECTS OF CIVILIAN AND MILITARY ACTIVITY WITHIN THE TERRITORY OF AN ENEMY OR A POTENTIAL ENEMY IS ESSENTIAL TO SOUND PLANNING IN TIMES OF PEACE OR WAR."

COMMENTING THAT PAST NATIONAL POLICY OF A SMALL PEACETIME MILITARY ORGANIZATION HAD NOT KEPT THE UNITED STATES OUT OF WAR OR DETERRED OTHER NATIONS FROM FIGHTING, HE ASKED WHETHER "IT MIGHT NOT NOW BE WISE TO TRY THE ALTERNATIVE COURSE OF ACTION IN THE HOPE THAT IT WILL BRING US WHAT WE SEEK--WORLD PEACE AND OUR OWN SECURITY?"

"IN PRACTICAL TERMS FOR THE IMMEDIATE FUTURE," ARNOLD SAID, "THE DOCTRINE OF AIR FORCE GROWING OUT OF THE LARGER CONCEPT OF AIR POWER CAN BE EXPRESSED AS A DETERMINATION:
1. TO MAINTAIN A STRIKING AIR ARM IN BEING.
2. TO KEEP THE AAF AND THE AVIATION INDUSTRY ABLE TO EXPAND HARMONIOUSLY AS WELL AS RAPIDLY.
"3. TO MAINTAIN WELL-EQUIPPED OVERSEAS BASES.
"4. TO SUPPORT AN ALERT AND AGGRESSIVE SYSTEM OF COMMERCIAL AIR TRANSPORTATION--ONE OF THE FOUNDATIONS OF AMERICAN AIR POWER.
"5. TO REMEMBER THAT IT IS THE TEAM OF THE ARMY, NAVY AND AIR FORCES WORKING IN CLOSE COOPERATION THAT GIVES STRENGTH TO OUR ARMED SERVICES IN PEACE OR WAR.
"6. TO MAKE AVAILABLE TO THE UNITED NATIONS ORGANIZATION, IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PROVISIONS OF ITS CHARTER, ADEQUATE AND EFFECTIVE AIR FORCE CONTINGENTS FOR POSSIBLE USE BY THE SECURITY COUNCIL MAINTAINING INTERNATIONAL PEACE AND SECURITY.
"7. TO PROMOTE SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT, AND TO MAINTAIN A CLOSE CONTACT WITH INDUSTRY."

ARNOLD DISCLOSED THAT VERY HEAVY BOMBERS, WHICH MEANS THE B-29 UNTIL THE B-36 COMES INTO SERVICE, WILL BE USED BY THE OCCUPATIONAL AIR FORCE IN EUROPE. NO B-17 FLYING FORTRESSES OR B-24 LIBERATORS WILL BE USED, HE SAID.

1. THROUGH A WORLD-WIDE INTELLIGENCE SYSTEM, MAINTAIN CONSTANTLY UP-TO-DATE INFORMATION REGARDING ALL PHASES OF THE NATIONAL LIFE, ECONOMY AND PHILOSOPHY OF POTENTIAL ENEMY STATES.
2. MAINTAIN AN ANALYSIS, CONTINUOUSLY BEING REVISED TO MEET NEW CONDITIONS, TO SHOW THE IMPORTANCE OF ALL INDUSTRIES AND OTHER ACTIVITIES OF POTENTIAL ENEMIES AND TO EVALUATE THE RELATIVE IMPORTANCE OF EACH OF THE UNITS IN EACH ACTIVITY.
3. TO MEET ANY EMERGENCY WITH THE RAPIDITY WHICH SURVIVAL IN FUTURE WARS WILL NECESSITATE, PREPARE AND MAINTAIN PLANS, IN ACCORDANCE WITH LATEST INFORMATION, TO PROVIDE FOR DESTRUCTION OF THE DECISIVE UNITS OF THE KEY INDUSTRIES AND OTHER ACTIVITIES OF EACH POTENTIAL ENEMY NATION.
4. AFTER A SOUNDLY CONCEIVED AND CAREFULLY PREPARED STRATEGIC CAMPAIGN HAS BEEN LAUNCHED, CARRY IT THROUGH INEXORABLY AND WITHOUT INTERRUPTION. DIVERSION OF EFFORT TO PURPOSES OF MOMENTARY IMPORTANCE WILL ENDANGER THE SUCCESS OF A WHOLE AIR CAMPAIGN.

"X X X WE ARE HOPING THAT AGREEMENTS AND POLICIES WILL COME OUT OF THESE CONFERENCES WHICH WILL MAKE THE UNITED NATIONS ORGANIZATION A LIVING, MOVING, ACTIVE PROGRAM."

SINCE THE DISCUSSIONS ARE CONCERNED PRIMARILY WITH THE ATOMIC BOMB SOME DIPLOMATS INTERPRETED THIS STATEMENT TO MEAN THAT THE PRESIDENT HAS SOME ROLE IN MIND FOR THE UNITED NATIONS ON THE "VERY DEFINITE AGENDA," AN AIDE SAID HE HAS PREPARED.

MR.TRUMAN HERETOFORE HAS CALLED FOR WORLD ACTION IN OUTLAWING THE ATOMIC BOMB BUT AS RECENTLY AS NOVEMBER 3 IN A NAVY DAY ADDRESS SAID THE UNITED STATES WOULD KEEP IT AS A "SACRED TRUST."

LONDON DISPATCHES HAVE INDICATED THAT PRIME MINISTER ATTLEE MIGHT BE IN FAVOR OF SOME ARRANGEMENT PERMITTING THE UNITED NATIONS ORGANIZATION TO TAKE CUSTODY OF THE BOMB.

WHETHER PRESIDENT TRUMAN HAD SOME SUCH EVENTUAL ARRANGEMENT IN MIND WHEN HE SPOKE LAST NIGHT IS UNKNOWN. BUT THE FACT THAT HE LINKED THE UNITED NATIONS ORGANIZATION WITH AGREEMENTS HE HOPED WOULD SPRING FROM THE CURRENT CONFERENCES WAS ENOUGH TO INTEREST PERSONS SEEKING A HINT OF FUTURE DECISIONS.

SOERABAJA SHELLED BY DESTROYERS

Indian Troops Clear Half Of City By House-To-House Fighting

Soerabaja, Java, Nov. 12 (AP)—British destroyers shelled Indonesian positions in this embattled Dutch East Indies port today as British Indian troops fought a bitter house-to-house battle which gave them control of the northern half of the city by nightfall.

[A radio appeal for Russian intervention, Batavia dispatches said, was sent by Foreign Minister Soebardjo, of the "Indonesian Republic," to V. M. Molotov, Soviet Foreign Commissar.

["It is apparent now," he declared, "that Britain is paving the way for the reimposition of Dutch rule in Indonesia."

Would Help Disarm Japs

[He promised that the Indonesians would assist Allied forces in disarming and evacuating Java-based Japanese forces.]

The destroyers, in Tandgoenga Perak harbor, silenced 77-millimeter guns which earlier in the day had shelled the British-controlled airport, setting grass fires near RAF planes.

British fighter planes also struck at the nationalist headquarters in the Hotel Paringan.

Find Nuns And Children

On the west side of the Kalimas River, the British captured the telephone office and post office and found 40 Dutch and Indonesian nuns and many children who had been without food for two days in the Juliana school near by.

The troops had not quite reached the Court of Justice and the Government building by nightfall. Both buildings had been bombed earlier. Their lines were not so far advanced east of the river.

British officers estimated they were opposed by 20,000 trained Indonesian soldiers and 100,000 other armed natives.

The retreating Indonesians set half a dozen houses and supply dumps afire. A mysterious fire also broke out aboard a 10,000-ton Japanese merchant ship in the harbor, which the nationalists had taken over, then abandoned.

No Major Buildings Destroyed

The fires still were burning briskly at dark, but the British said no major buildings had been destroyed.

British casualties were very light. Only one Indian soldier was reported killed. Indonesian losses were unknown but were believed high.

A walk through the northern half of the business district showed the streets were deserted. The business buildings were undamaged, but the contents were strewn about.

A few Chinese peered from doorways, holding Chinese flags, while the roaring fires showered the sector with ashes.

The British said the Indonesians were showing no disposition to surrender.

Nationalist Troops Charge English Lines in Fanatical Attacks.

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 12.—(AP) British troops, supported by fire from warships and by RAF planes, tonight wrested control of half of Soerabaja from an estimated 120,000 well-armed Indonesian nationalists.

Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland reported from Soerabaja that the British, fighting from house-to-house, had occupied approximately the Northern half of the big Dutch naval base after a fierce three-day battle.

Guns Are Silenced

Haugland said British destroyers shelled Indonesian positions, silencing 75 mm. guns which had been firing on the British-controlled Soerabaja airport. He said RAF planes bombed and strafed Indonesian headquarters in the Hotel Paringan.

The telephone building and post office were reported captured by the British, but the Dutch news agency Aneta quoted the Nationalist Governor of Soerabaja, Dr. Soerio, as saying the Indonesians were "advancing" toward the post office in a counter-attack.

Aneta said tank-supported British Indian troops ranged through the newly-won areas of the city to enforce a 10 p. m. curfew ordered during the day by British authorities. Huge fires were reported burning, showering the city with ashes.

The British said they saw no indication that the Indonesians were disposed to surrender or end the battle. Instead, they said the Nationalists were charging their lines in fanatical attacks.

Haugland said the British estimated they were opposed by 20,000 trained Indonesian soldiers and 100,000 other armed natives.

The intense fighting was exacting a heavy toll of lives both among the Indonesian Nationalists and the civilians who remained in the city.

The Dutch news agency Aneta said some women and children were killed when they were caught in the crossfire as Indian and Nationalist forces battled in the rubble-strewn streets.

The Agency also reported that houses and shops throughout the city were being looted and smashed as the Indonesians retreated. Furniture, crockery, clothing and rolls of cloth littered the street. Hundreds of pairs of silk stockings from one warehouse were ripped and scattered.

British Widen Hold

The Dutch reported the British had gained control of most of the city. The latest British statement, now hours old, said their forces had won nearly half of the great Java port.

The British command said the type of Indonesian attacks and the use of weapons at the naval base "indicate most strongly that the Japanese are guiding and helping the extremist Indonesians, although proof of the fact has not yet been established."

Three Japanese generals were placed under arrest by British authorities on charges of violating Allied surrender orders by turning tanks, armored cars, guns and ammunition over to the Indonesians.

The three identified as Lt. Gen. Nagano, commander of the Japanese 16th Army; Maj. Gen. Yamamoto, his chief of staff, and Maj. Gen. Nakimura, commander of Japanese forces in central Java — will be removed to Singapore Wednesday for trial as war criminals.

The British command reported that Indonesian forces in Soerabaja made small scale harassing attacks against British lines throughout last night and fired three field gun rounds into the airfield area.

During the attacks, the British said, the Nationalists employed grenades and rifle fire in a style which suggested Japanese influence.

One RAF Thunderbolt strafed a suspected anti-aircraft gun position this morning, and two Thunderbolts later strafed government houses in the center of the city. Pilots said they observed a considerable number of "pedestrians" in the streets.

Plane Fired On

Another RAF pilot reported his plane was fired on by what appeared to be a Bofors anti-aircraft gun. One gun of this type was captured yesterday during the British advance into Soerabaja.

Late yesterday the Indonesians sent an organized attack by a force of 200 men against the British lines. Later a second attack, supported by armored vehicles, was attempted. The British said their forces had silenced Indonesian tanks in the city.

An Aneta dispatch said the Indonesian-controlled radio at Soerabaja, which had been inciting the Nationalists to a "holy war" all day, began fading last night and late in the night its broadcasts were barely audible.

During the day, the radio called upon the United States, China and Russia to intervene in the Netherlands East Indies, and immediately afterward demanded that religious leaders in Java assist in poisoning the water supply of the Allied forces, Aneta said.

"Show no mercy to war prisoners taken," Aneta quoted the broadcast as saying.

Intervention Is Asked

Later a woman's voice, shouting in English, said "many women and children are being killed—the British cause is unjust—let them stop now." Still later, Aneta said, the same voice repeated the demand for intervention by the U. S., China and Russia, and declared "the Indonesians have no planes or air raid shelters, they have not declared war, they only want freedom and will continue to fight for it."

Today Foreign Minister Soebardjo of the "Indonesian Republic" sent a radio appeal to Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov asking for Russian intervention.

"It is apparent now," he declared, "that Britain is paving the way for the reimposition of Dutch rule in Indonesia."

He promised that the Indonesians would assist Allied forces in disarming and evacuating Java-based Japanese forces.

Meanwhile, large quantities of arms were captured by Indian troops as they pressed slowly forward in Soerabaja under what an eye-witness described as cover from naval guns, artillery, mortars and fighter-bombers.

An official announcement said that during yesterday alone the British had seized 80 three-ton Japanese trucks, eight machine-guns mounted for anti-aircraft use, a 70 MM. field gun, a Bofors gun, 27 machine gun carriers and a large quantity of small arms ammunition.

Soebardjo pleaded for Soviet intervention on behalf of his unrecognized Indonesian republic.

"It is apparent now that Britain is paving the way for the reimposition of Dutch rule in Indonesia," Soebardjo said in a radio appeal addressed to Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov.

Wants To Win "Justice"

The Indonesian leader asked that the Russians aid in winning "justice from the world" for the Indonesians. He promised that the Indonesians would assist Allied forces in disarming and evacuating Java-based Japanese forces.

"By the very principle of independence we do not like foreign troops on Indonesian soil," Soebardjo told the Soviet Foreign Commissar. He added, however, that "the presence of British troops is tolerable for a certain time."

Both Indonesian and British sources indicated that Indonesian casualties were heavy during the week end. President Soekarno declared that "thousands and thousands" of civilians had been killed in a "vast massacre." An official British report said that many of the "enemy" were slain in "fanatical charges against British tanks" and that "many Indonesian bodies were removed by women" after Saturday's fighting.

The British announced that their fighter-bombers had blasted the main Indonesian Army headquarters and three other staff headquarters with direct hits.

British Get More Tanks

The British also said their artillery had silenced the Indonesian-manned Japanese tanks. Twenty-one British Sherman tanks and a number of tracked gun carriers (turretless Shermans) arrived in Batavia.

They included one squadron of a tank detachment and the battalion headquarters of the Duke of Connaught's own lancers.

Three top-ranking Japanese generals were arrested by the British on charges of violating Allied surrender orders by turning tanks, armored cars, guns and ammunition over to the Indonesians.

Will Stand Trial

They are Lieutenant General Nagano, commander of the Japanese 16th Army; Major General Yamamoto, his chief of staff, and Major General Nakimura, commander of Japanese forces in central Java. They will be removed to Singapore Wednesday for trial as war criminals.

Meanwhile, large quantities of arms were captured by Indian troops as they pressed slowly forward. An official announcement said that during yesterday alone the British had seized eighty three-ton Japanese trucks, eight machine guns mounted for anti-aircraft use, a 70mm. field gun, a Bofors gun, sixty-seven machine-gun carriers and a large quantity of small arms ammunition.

The headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Sir Philip Christison, Allied commander in the Netherlands East Indies, announced that the Indian advance had freed 3,500 internees who had been jailed by the Indonesians. Newly occupied areas were said to be empty of inhabitants except for a few native women and children who were being fed by the British.

Water System Broken.

The headquarters statement said Soeiabaja's water and lighting systems were "out of order." President Soekarno told an audience of 50,000 Nationalist youths at Jogjakarta that two entire Indonesian quarters had been burned down and the Chinese and Arab quarter severely damaged.

One strange paradox in the fighting was that both the British and Indonesians held telephone exchanges in Soerabaja and both were using the same telephone lines to communicate with their representatives in Batavia.

Asks To Make Broadcast

Soebardjo disclosed that he had asked Christison for permission to speak to the Indonesian people on the British-controlled Batavia radio. He said he had asked to make the talk last night, but that at Christison's request he had postponed it until tonight.

The British announcement said that through yesterday their casualties included one dead, nine wounded and 183 officers and men missing. Betwen thirty-five and forty wounded were flown back to Batavia in six R. A. F. transports which had carried ammunition to Soerabaja. The British explained this number included men injured in earlier fighting, however.

British Take Nearly All Soerabaja

Erickson

Batavia, Java, Nov. 12 (AP)—British Indian forces gained control of virtually all of Soerabaja today, the Netherlands news agency Aneta said, as British tank crews turned back fanatical charges by Indonesian Nationalists.

Many Indonesians were killed in the charges, the Dutch dispatch said. There still was no indication, however, that the natives were preparing to give up the fight.

British headquarters ordered a curfew at the big Java naval base from 10 P.M. to 4.30 A.M. The British said their artillery had silenced Indonesian-manned Japanese tanks in the fighting in the city.

Fighting In Port Area

Fighting also broke out last night in Tandjoengpriok, the port of Batavia, when Indonesian bands attempted to attack warehouses, the British said.

Value Of Kroner Set

London, Nov. 12 (AP)—An official exchange rate of twenty Norwegian kroner to the British pound was established by an Anglo-Norwegian monetary agreement signed in London August 11, according to the text released today. On the basis of approximately $4.03 to the pound, this would make the kroner worth about 50 cents in American money.

Edinburgh Plans Honor

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Nov. 12 (AP).—The Lord Mayor's office said today that General Eisenhower will receive the freedom of the city on Monday, Nov. 26.

Tunisian 'Fascist' To Return To Italy

Paris, Nov. 12 (AP)—A French government spokesman said today France planned to deport 1,200 Italian "Fascists agitators" from Tunisia to Italy.

Their deportation will be followed by that of their families, making a toal of about 4,000 persons to be shipped back to Italy.

There were about 94,000 Italians in Tunisia at the time of the 1936 census, nearly 50,000 of them in the capital city of Tunis.

The spokesman said the procedure was approved by American and British governments. The men to be deported, he added, are accused of continuing to circulate clandestine papers and pamphlets urging Tunisia's return to Italy, and also are charged with collaboration with the Germans.

French Representative To Discuss Franc Here

Paris, Nov. 12 (AP)—Pierre Mendes-France, former Finance Minister in the French Provisional Government, will leave for America soon to discuss with United States officials the devaluation of the franc, it was disclosed today.

Present value of the franc is pegged at 50 to the dollar. French financial circles have been speculating that it might be lowered to 120 or 125 to the dollar.

SUBSTITUTION ASKED IN TRIAL

Elder Krupp Seriously Ill, U.S. Official Wants To Try Son

Tucker

Nuernberg, Germany, Nov. 12 (AP). Justice Robert H. Jackson, United States prosecutor seeking "a live Krupp" in the courtroom, today asked that the son of the nearly dead Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach be substituted as a defendant in the war crimes trials.

Conceding that the granting of such a request would mean a delay of "a few days" in the opening of the trial scheduled for November 20, Jackson filed a motion with the international military tribunal asking that Alfried Krupp be tried in the place of his father.

Col. Robert Gill, of Baltimore, executive officer to Justice Jackson, said no action would be taken by the tribunal on the American motion until it meets tomorrow morning.

Objection By British

Alfried took over active management of the huge Krupp steel and munitions empire in 1943, and later purchased control of the stock company. He is under arrest by the British.

An immediate objection to Jackson's proposal came from the British prosecutor, Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, who said he was filing a motion requesting that the elder Krupp be retained as a defendant and tried in absentia.

"My view is that public opinion in Britain is extremely impatient and would be very annoyed if any postponement were granted," Fyfe declared.

Jackson Explains Position

To the suggestion that designation of the son as a substitute defendant would cause a delay of from ten days to two weeks in the opening of the trial, Jackson replied:

"Admitting that a delay, which cannot exceed a few days, may be occasioned, it is respectfully suggested that the precise day this trial will start is a less important consideration than whether it is to fail of one of its principal purposes. . . .

"We think the future, as well as the contemporary world, cannot fail to be shocked if a trial in which it is sought to condemn aggressive war making, the Krupp industrial empire is completely saved from condemnation."

Elder Krupp In Coma

The French and the Russians planned to file motions in connection with Krupp, but their contents were not disclosed pending the actual placing of the documents with the tribunal.

A six-man Allied medical commission, after examining the 75-year-old Krupp at a Salzburg hospital, said an attempt to move him might prove fatal. He was said to be in a coma after suffering several strokes and unaware that an indictment as a war criminal had been served upon him. His attorneys had requested a continuance.

Jackson asserted he was fully cognizant of any criticism that would greet a postponement, but added he was willing to share the burden of an unshakable conviction that it would be tragic not to have "a live Krupp" in the court when the trial began.

No Move For Tenderness

The United States prosecutor said that the 38-year-old son, now interned by the British Army of the Rhine, is "a future menace to the peace of Europe."

He disclosed that an attempt by the United States to obtain Alfried's indictment had been outvoted, 3 to 1.

"I want to make it clear that the dissenting votes of the British, Russian and French were not because of any tenderness on their part," Jackson added, "but because the list of defendants had already reached 24, and in Britain, at least, it is rare if you find so many defendants in one case. . . ."

Trial Of Krupp's Son In Father's Tucker Place Asked

Nuernberg, Nov. 12 (AP)—Justice Robert H. Jackson, United States prosecutor, requested the international military tribunal today to substitute Alfried Krupp, son of Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, as a defendant in the war-crimes trials.

Jackson filed his motion because the elder Krupp, head of the huge German armaments and steel trust, has been declared too ill and aged to appear for trial.

Postponement Possible

If Jackson's motion is granted, a postponement of ten days to two weeks in the start of the historic trial is almost certain. The trial had been scheduled for November 20.

A six-man medical commission announced today that the condition of the elder Krupp is so critical that he probably will die if moved from Salzburg.

The tribunal will act Wednesday on a defense motion to postpone Krupp's trial. Krupp recently suffered a paralytic stroke.

Objection By Briton

The British prosecutor, Sir David Maxwell-Fyfe, filed a dissenting motion and declared that Great Britain preferred to try the elder Krupp in absentia, if necessary, because his name was a household word in the minds of the British public, which was impatient and would resent any postponement.

The Russians and French also filed motions, but the nature of their suggestions was not ascertained immediately.

NOV 13 1945

Son Now Interned

Alfried Krupp is now interned by the British Army, which occupies most of the Krupp works.

Jackson disclosed that he had argued originally that the son be indicted simultaneously with his father, but that he was overruled by a 3-to-1 vote, with Great Britain, France and Russia dissenting.

Jackson said that, if necessary, he would make "the evil choice" of accepting criticism for delay because, in his opinion, it would be unfortunate not to have a member of the Krupp family actually on the stand in the trial.

Prefers Live Krupp

"The Krupps have been responsible for aggressive warfare for 130 years, and I prefer to have a live Krupp on the stand," Jackson declared.

The United States prosecutor confirmed an earlier report that a medical commission had warned that any attempt to move the elder Krupp from a hospital at Salzburg at this time probably would be fatal.

Alfried Krupp, 59, is sole owner of the Krupp factories that were devoted to munitions.

Jackson said he hoped to get him on the stand as a defendant because he still was young enough to be regarded as a potential menace.

"The future peace of the world can be menaced by Alfried Krupp," Jackson said.

Explains Omission

Questioned about the circumstance by which Alfried Krupp escaped indictment, Jackson said:

"We were for it, but were voted down three to one. I want to make it clear that the dissenting votes weren't cast because of tenderness on the part of our allies, but because they considered the list of 24 defendants sufficient. At that time, the elder Krupp's physical condition was not nearly so serious as it is now."

Jackson in his motion opposed the "application on behalf of (Gustav) Krupp that his trial be deferred until he is again fit for trial."

Fears Quashing Of Charge

Should the tribunal grant the application, the practical effect would be to quash all proceedings for all time against Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach.

The United States motion said:

"The request that Krupp neither be brought to court nor tried in abstentia is based on the contention that 'the interest of justice' requires that he be thus excused from any form of trial. Public interests, which transcend all private considerations, require that some other representative of the Krupp armament and munitions interests be substituted."

Defense At Lueneburg Completes Evidence

Lueneburg, Germany, Nov. 12 (AP)—Defense attorneys for 45 defendants accused of war crimes at Belsen and Oswiecim concentration camps concluded their summing up of evidence today, as the trial entered its ninth week.

Arguments for acquittals were based generally on these points:

The charges were based on a conflict between domestic and international law; crimes were committed on orders of superior officers.

Montgomery Fears Strife.

Berlin, Nov. 12 (A. P.)—Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery says that he believes French opposition toward establishment of a central administration is the chief obstacle to efficient four-Power control of Germany. Furthermore, the British commander fears that the hardships of winter may bring about civilian outbreaks in the beaten Reich and has distributed his troops accordingly.

Mongomery expressed those views in an Armistice Day news conference. He frankly stated that co-operation among the four Powers "has not proved sufficient up to this date to make the government of Germany as a whole by the control council effective. . . . It has not been possible so far to reconcile the view of France in this matter with that of the three Powers which sat together at Potsdam and agreed to establish these central administrations," Montgomery said.

SHORTAGE OF MEN CUTS ETO FLYING

Nov Secret

Wiesbaden, Nov. 12 (A. P.).—Redeployment of experienced maintenance men and other personnel has forced the United States Army Air Forces in Europe to slash flying activities by more than 50 per cent, Lieut.-Gen. John K. Cannon declared today.

Cannon, commander of the air forces in this theater, said the personnel shortage had prevented installation or maintenance of an adequate weather-reporting system and other aids, in addition to making it impossible to service planes properly. He emphasized, however, that the man power situation would not be permitted to impose greater risks on flyers or increase the air accident rate.

"If the situation gets bad enough," he declared, "we'll just discontinue flying and walk.

"If a plane is not in absolutely top shape it simply does not take off. That has been our standard procedure all through the war and still is. Furthermore, we are hounding these kids not to take any unnecessary chances. We are not going to have any needless chances if it means we stop flying altogether."

MOTOR POLICE FORCE FOR OCCUPIED ZONES

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 12 —(AP) Formation of a motorized force to police the American occupied zones of Germany and Austria with tanks, armored cars, jeeps and motorcycles, all equipped with two-way radio, was announced tonight by U. S. Army headquarters here.

The force will be on an experimental basis, the announcement said, to determine whether a fast-moving mechanized organization can increase the efficiency of occupation forces.

If it works, the constabulary will be expanded to take over much of the work now being done by infantry divisions, resulting in a decrease in the number of occupation troops.

Armistice Day Ignored In Frankfurt

Frankfurt, Nov. 12 (AP)—Armistice Day passed almost unnoticed in this city, seat of the United Army headquarters for the European theater.

The only flags on display were those dropping in a dismal rain from staffs at headquarters. There were no special exercises.

Polish Coal Output Up

Warsaw, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Polish Press Agency reported today that Polish coal production for October jumped to 2,935,750 tons, 438,000 tons more than the September output.

Russian Thinks Poland Will Have Enough Food

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP)—Michal Szyszko, Poland's vice minister of agriculture, said today Poland's fall harvest would avert hunger in that country this winter, but added that "meats, fats and condensed milk for children" are needed in quantity to provide dietary balance.

In reply to a question, Szyszko said "there have been no laws forced upon Poland by Russia," and declared most Russian troops in Poland are there "on the same basis as United States troops are in England and France."

"Their numbers are diminishing," he added.

Szyszko said "friendly, cordial negotiations are now under way for settlement of the Polish-Czechoslovakian border dispute."

Swiss End Shoe Rationing.

Bern, Nov. 12 (A. P.).—Shoe rationing will end in Switzerland tomorrow, the Government announced today, but added that because of a shortage of materials the quantity of shoes available will be limited.

Nazis' V-10 Called 'Space Ship'

Stockholm, Nov. 12 (AP)—The newspaper Aftonbladet quoted an unnamed British lieutenant today as saying that Nils Werner Larsson, a Swedish engineer on trial for delivering military secrets to both Germany and the Allies, held the key to construction of the whole series of Nazi vengeance weapons from V-1 to V-10.

The V-10 was the weapon which the Germans expected to hurl across the Atlantic in 35 minutes to bombard the United States. It was in the blueprint stage when Germany surrendered.

The newspaper said plans for the V-10 reached the United States seven weeks ago and formed the basis for Gen. Henry H. Arnold's reference to "space ships" in his report yesterday to the United States Secretary of War.

"In The Foreseeable Future"

In the report, Arnold envisaged space ships traveling 3,000 miles an hour "operating outside the earth's atmosphere." He added:

"The design of such a ship is all but practicable today; research will unquestionably bring it into being within the foreseeable future."

Larsson is specifically charged with offering German military secrets of Allied military representatives in Sweden and with delivering an improved Swedish machine pistol to the Germans, presumably to gain confidence.

Larsson Called Nazi Aide

The newspaper quoted the lieutenant, who recently visited Sweden from Hamburg, as saying that Larsson had great technical knowledge, and in 1943 had worked in the German experimental laboratories in Peenemuende, where V weapons were developed.

Larsson left Sweden in 1943 for Germany and assisted German discoverers and builders of the V weapons, the newspaper said. After the German collapse, Larsson was said to have had freedom of movement in Germany. The British officer was reported to have met Larsson in an officers' barracks in Hamburg a few weeks ago.

The Briton was quoted as saying that the entire German staff that was used in Peenemunde to develop V weapons—about 90 men in all—was transferred to the United States seven weeks ago.

Larsson was arrested by the Swedes at the border, apparently while en route home from Germany.

Norse War Babies Citizens

Government Grants Rights to 9,000 Sired by Germans

OSLO, Norway, Nov. 12 (AP).—The Norwegian government has decided to make citizens of the 9,000 children born during the occupation to Norwegian mothers and German fathers, it was announced today.

A committee appointed to investigate the matter reported that it was unsafe to send the children to Germany, and recommended they be made "good Norwegian citizens."

"So-called German blood is only a Nazi idea which resembles talk about Nazi ideology," the committee said.

Belgian Senate Votes Approval Of Premier

Brussels, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Belgian Senate gave Premier Achille Van Acker a 69-to-35 vote of confidence tonight, climaxing a two-day attempt by Royalists to oust his Government.

All day Saturday and until late last night, Van Acker heard himself attacked for insisting that King Leopold will never return to the Belgian throne.

The decisive speech in behalf of the Van Acker Government was a two-hour oration by Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak.

Soviet Relaxes Censorship

Dispatches Passing Without Deletions—but Still No Official Announcement of Change.

Moscow, Nov. 12 (A. P.).—Soviet censorship of outgoing news dispatches, recently protested by American and British correspondents in Moscow, appears to have been reduced to a mere formality.

There has been no official announcement of a change in Russian policy and foreign correspondents still are submitting their dispatches for stamping by the censors. But for almost a week all Associated Press dispatches have been passed without any deletions—an experience shared by other correspondents.

The first hint of a possible relaxation of censorship restrictions came the night of November 7 during a friendly conversation between Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov and an Associated Press correspondent, Eddy Gilmore, when they clinked glasses in a toast to better Russian-American understanding.

The occasion was a reception given by Molotov during the celebration of the twenty-eighth anniversary of the Red Revolution. Following his usual custom at such events, Molotov began at midnight to move through the throng of diplomats, military men, journalists and other guests, extending his personal greetings to them.

A Toast with Vodka.

He was followed by waiters bearing vodka, wine and glasses. After drinking a toast with the Chinese Ambassador, Molotov walked up to Gilmore and said:

"I want to drink a toast with American Correspondent Gilmore. "If you were in my position what sort of toast would you propose?"

Gilmore replied that he supposed the Foreign Commissar should propose a toast to a better understanding between the press of the Soviet Union and the United States.

"That is a good toast," said Molotov, "but what is your main issue as a correspondent now?"

"Mine is trying to write an interpretation of your speech last night at the Kremlin, which I thought was the most important in months," Gilmore answered.

How About Censorship?

"Come, now," said Molotov, "you are not a politician and I will not be one. You know you correspondents do not like Soviet censorship. You want to wipe it out."

"Well, sir, you read our letter and got our telegram," said Gilmore, referring to the protest which the Anglo-American Correspondents Association of Moscow had filed with Molotov concerning the continuation of censorship after the end of the war. Molotov had answered the protest by saying he found "without substance" certain points in which the protest was based.

"What would you say if I told you I would agree to reciprocity?" Molotov inquired.

"I think it would be a very fine thing," Gilmore replied.

To Better Understanding.

Molotov beamed and suggested they drink "to a better understanding of both our countries."

After the Foreign Commissar had moved on a foreign diplomat who had witnessed the proceedings whispered to Gilmore: "I think you have got censorship lifted."

Whether or not this is so, correspondents have come to feel during the past few days that they can be reasonably sure that their stories will go through without deletions or delay for the first time since Germany invaded the Soviet Union.

Soviet Press Silent.

Moscow, Nov. 12 (A. P.).—The Soviet press made no reference today to the conferences on atomic power now under way in Washington between President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee of Britain and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada.

Ethridge Leaves Sofia By Plane For Moscow

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 12 (AP)—Mark Ethridge, investigator for James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, took off today for Moscow where he will engage in further talks on the Bulgarian political situation.

The Louisville (Ky.) publisher was accompanied by Cyril Black, his interpreter. His trip to Moscow constitutes an attempt to obtain a rounded picture of Bulgarian politics before the elections, scheduled in less than a week. Only Russian troops occupy Bulgaria.

ROMANIA LIBERALS FACE RIOT INQUIRY

Frank O'Brien

Bucharest, Nov. 12 (A. P.).—Liberal party leader Constantine Bratianu and 129 other Romanian Royalists were ordered to appear for questioning before the Bucharest military court today in an effort to fix responsibility for the bloody riots on the King's birthday last Thursday. Three other important Liberal party personalities and several second-rank members also were ordered to report for interrogation.

Charges and counter-charges continued to fly between supporters of Premier Petru Groza's Soviet-sponsored Government and opposition parties. Each accused the other of blame for the demonstration, in which between eleven and twenty persons were killed when Government troops fired on 40,000 to 50,000 persons who gathered in the square before the Royal Palace in a show of loyalty toward 24-year-old King Michael.

The Government officially charged Bratianu and Juliu Maniu, head of the Peasant party, with responsibility for the "anarchial" demonstration. Maniu retorted that Government forces had acted as "assassins" and said that the demonstration had been a spontaneous manifestation of feeling for the King. He charged that Tohari Georgescu, communist Minister of the Interior, predicted that there would be bloodshed a day before the demonstration.

TITO INDORSED BY YUGOSLAVS

National Front Sweeps Vote, Without Opposition

Belgrade, Nov. 12 (AP)—Virtually complete returns showed tonight that Marshal Tito's National Front won a sweeping indorsement in Sunday's general elections, despite an appeal by opposition leaders for a boycott of the balloting.

National Front candidates for the Constituent Assembly, running without opposition, polled the heaviest vote ever recorded in Yugoslavia, partly because women were voting for the first time.

Ballots Cast By 90 Per Cent

Incomplete returns showed that more than 90 per cent of the nation's 8,020,671 eligible voters had cast ballots. It was evident from the large vote that few people stayed away from the polls as a result of the opposition appeal for a boycott.

There was one other way in which the voters could express opposition to Tito's candidates—a special ballot box for those who did not approve any of the National Front candidates. This facility was provided under last-minute amendment to the election law, so that all voters would have an opportunity to vote secretly, even if they wanted to vote against the National Front.

No Violence Reported

Although final returns had not been announced, there was no indications that the opposition vote was extensive.

Neither Belgrade nor the provinces reported any violence in the first voting in Yugoslavia since liberation. Balloting was held in a holiday atmosphere. Gay peasants sang and danced near the polling booths.

Voters dropped balls in one of the urns bearing the names of the various lists of candidates, all of which had the indorsement of Tito. For those who wanted to vote against the National Front, there was an urn bearing no name. To provide some secrecy, the voter was required to insert his hand in each urn as he passed.

Vote Called Undemocratic

The opposition parties boycotted the elections and refused to enter lists of candidates on the ground that the elections were undemocratic.

Tito discounted what he calls fears both inside and outside the nation that after the elections "we intend to introduce dictatorship."

Voting was for a Constituent Assembly of two houses. The Federal Assembly will have 345 members elected proportionately. The Assembly of Nations will have 175 members, with Serbia, Croatia, Slovenia, Bosnia-Hercegovina, Montenegro and Macedonia each getting 25 members and Vojvodina getting 15 and Kosovomotohia 10.

Tito's Candidates Win Slav Election

Belgrade, Nov. 12 (AP)—Candidates representing Marshal Tito's National Front were assured of victory today by incomplete returns from Sunday's National Constituent Assembly election, which showed that more than 90 per cent of the nation's 8,020,671 voters had cast ballots.

Opposition parties had boycotted the elections by not putting up candidates, but it was reported that practically no voters upheld the boycott by staying away from the polls.

Women Vote Heavily

A complete absence of election disorders was reported by Yugoslav officials. Women were eligible to vote for the first time and the percentage taking advantage of their franchise was large.

A holiday atmosphere marked the election, with gay crowds of peasants singing and dancing in open spaces near many of the polling places. Sale of all alcoholic drinks had been forbidden since midnight Friday.

Voting was for an assembly of two houses which will be charged with drafting a new constitution.

In addition to the urns set up to receive the ballots for the candidates of the National Front, an urn bearing no name was provided for those who wished to vote but did not wish to support one of the Tito tickets. Several parties and groups within the National Front put up alternate tickets.

Dropped Ball In Urn

The voter was given a little ball which he dropped in one of the urns. To provide some secrecy for the ballot, the voter was required to insert his hand in each urn as he passed.

The urns bearing no names were provided under a late amendment to the election law.

Returns so far showed that Kupinac, stronghold of Yugoslavia's peasant leader, Vladimir Macek, polled 100 per cent of its vote. Marshal Tito's birthplace, Kumrovac, in Croatia, also polled 100 per cent.

Still incomplete returns showed that Macedonia and Montenegro had polled over 95 per cent of their vote, Slovenia, Dalmatia, Lika and Kordun over 90 per cent and Vojvodina over 80.

The franchise was given to all minors under 18 who fought for Yugoslavia's liberation.

Premier Seeks Independence For Egypt

Cairo, Nov. 12 (AP)—Prime Minister Nokrashi Pasha formally opened the Egyptian Parliament today with a speech in which he demanded complete independence for Egypt, including the withdrawal of British troops.

Nokrashi, speaking for the throne, said that his Government was working toward unification of the Nile Valley and exclusive Egyptian control of the Sudan, which is now under a joint British-Egyptian protectorate.

Brilliant Gathering

King Farouk, the Queen and a brilliant gathering of diplomats attended the ceremony.

The Prime Minister accused Zionists of attempting to "rob" the Arabs of Palestine, but asserted that the Pan-Arab League would protect the country. The current Pan-Arab League meeting here is giving primary consideration to the Palestine question and will be a powerful instrument to enforce Arab demands and make representations to the major powers, he said.

"The Zionists are trying to destroy an Arab nation" in their demands that Palestine be converted into a Jewish national homeland, Nokrashi declared.

Demonstrations Banned

The Prime Minister has issued a decree banning public demonstrations tomorrow, National Struggle Day, and has ordered police to break up immediately any which may start. November 13 is the twenty-seventh anniversary of Egypt's demands for full independence.

The eve of the anniversary was quiet, but authorities were taking full precautions in view of the rioting of a week ago, when anti-Jewish disturbances caused nine deaths and the injury of hundreds in Cairo, Alexandria, Port Said and other major Egyptian cities. Patrols still were operating in strategic centers.

BRITISH SHIP OFF FOR JAVA

Crew Ends Sydney Walkout Over Presence of Netherlands Troops

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 12 (AP) The liner Moreton Bay, carrying 1,600 Netherlands troops from Britain, left for Java tonight after a British crew that had walked off the ship decided to sail the vessel.

The crew of 100 left the liner yesterday and cabled the National Union of Seamen in London for advice whether to sail the ship with the troops aboard. All but ten members of the crew voted to sail. They said no reply was received from London. [The union said in London that it had cabled the men to sail the ship.]

U. S. Denies 'Red' Report Of Huge Loan to Chinese

Nationalist Troops Open Assault Against Communist Fortress City.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHUNGKING, Nov. 12—A spokesman for the United States embassy today denied as completely unfounded a report published in the Communist New China Daily news here Saturday that America had agreed to lend China $64,000,000 for purchase of American arms and ammunition.

The denial came as a Communist spokesman charged that Nationalist troops were assaulting the fortress city of Shanhaikwan, at the southern threshhold of Manchuria.

Wedemeyer Lacks Data

Meantime, Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of American forces in China, told correspondents that conversations on the possibility of increasing military aid to China were on a much higher level than his. Therefore, he could not say whether the United States would increase military aid, or how much or how little help would be granted.

Wedemeyer's attention was called to a statement by Lo Lungchi, member of the Liberal Democratic league, who quoted Chou Enlai, No. 2 Communist in China, as saying the United States planned to equip 70 Chinese divisions. Lo said Chou had confided this at Sunday's three-party (Nationalist, Communist and Democratic League) conference after having consulted Wedemeyer earlier in the day.

Wedemeyer said he did not discuss that subject with Chou, whom he had entertained at lunch.

Under a war-time lend lease agreement, the United States had agreed to equip 39 Chinese divisions to fight the Japanese. (This was the first mention of any 70-division agreement.) Twenty had been equipped at war's end. Wedemeyer said he told a recent press conference that the United States would complete its contract to equip the remaining 19 divisions.

Without confirmation elsewhere, a Communist spokesman declared that more Nationalist troops were streaming toward the Manchurian front in an attempt to deal a "serious blow" to crack Communist troops entrenched there.

The newspaper Ta-Kung-Pao, one of the few in China with a correspondent in the Manchurian capital of Changchun, reported the fighting had been raging "for days now and it may be imagined how hard it will be for National forces to fight their way deep into vast Manchuria."

(An unconfirmed dispatch from the port of Chinwangtao, just south of Shanhaikwan, said Chinese Communist troops were believed moving out of Shantung province to Manchuria by sea.

(This account said that the Communists were embarking at the Shantung port of Penglai, which lies 70 miles across the Yellow sea from the southern tip of Manchuria, and that 20 ocean-going junks had been spotted.)

Lt. Gen. Tu Li-Ming, newly-named Nationalist commander for Manchuria, said yesterday his troops would move soon but said so far they had engaged only in "defensive fighting" pending the outcome of peace talks here.

The Communist spokesman reported the fighting was serious but that Shanhaikwan, at the coastal end of China's great wall, still was in the hands of Chinese Reds.

The issue of peace or all-out civil war lay with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, the spokesman asserted, despite an agreement reached by the factions yesterday to call another peace conference around Nov. 20.

All Chiang need do, the spokesman added, was to cancel his order for "bandit suppression," a phase the Communists allege applies to them. Chungking never has announced the issuance of such an order.

Council Session Called

The Democratic League, made up of Chinese intellectuals, got deadlocked Communist and Nationalist conferees together yesterday and they agreed to call the political consultative council into session.

The council, which will be made up of representatives of China's political parties, will meet about Nov. 20 and will put the question of bringing hostilities to a halt first on its agenda.

Minister of Information K. C. Wu maintained, however, that the Communists had not agreed to nominate delegates to the council meeting. The spokesman said they had.

Wu insisted they "merely agreed to wire Yenan (Communist headquarters) for instructions—that's all."

He said the government was willing for the council to discuss the administration of liberated areas and the nationalization and reorganization of the Chinese armies—two subjects hitherto taboo. This had been hinted at earlier by the Communist spokesman.

As for Communist reports of the fighting around Shanhaikwan, Wu without touching on the report itself declared the government must send troops to the city as a springboard for the Nationalist reoccupation of Manchuria.

Silent on Russia

He refused to discuss anything affecting Russia, ignoring such questions as whether Russia had agreed to let Nationalist troops enter Manchuria by air or would allow landings at Manchurian ports.

Pending the council meeting, the Communist spokesman asserted, both sides would continue to try to halt the clashes spreading through North China. However, he reiterated Communist suspicions of the conference of top Nationalist generals which opened here yesterday. He said the secret meeting "might be discussing the prolongation and accentuation of the current civil war."

A government press release said the meeting was called to consider the rehabilitation and readjustment of the armed forces and was attended by leading officials of the national military council, various ministries and high-ranking war zone commanders.

Earlier in the day the government announced the national assembly, which is supposed to introduce constitutional government into China, would be convoked May 5 of next year.

This also provoked the Communists, who said at yesterday's three-party conference the government wanted May 5, the Democratic league July 7, and the Communists Oct. 10.

The Communist spokesman said he only learned through morning newspapers that the government had set the date, asserting none was agreed upon at the meeting.

Apparently, the government decided to go ahead with plans for the assembly whether the Communists participated or not.

This, it was feared in some quarters here, might add more fuel to the fire because the Communists previously had said they would consider summoning the assembly without their approval and participation a "very grave matter."

Patterson Reiterates U.S. Attitude On China

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Robert P. Patterson, Secretary of War, said today that United States troops in China will not be used for the suppression of civil strife but will protect American lives and property.

The Secretary issued a statement saying "there is no danger of our troops becoming involved in civil strife in China unless they are attacked in which event we may expect the American troops to react with vigor and success."

His statement was in reply to numerous inquiries from the press concerning the role of American troops in China where Communist forces and the Central Government forces under Gen. Chiang Kai-shek are nearing possible civil war.

BOTH SIDES IN CHINA AGREE TO NEGOTIATE

But Communist Says Peace Depends on Chiang's Canceling Order for 'Bandit Suppression'—Fighting Continues.

Chungking, Nov. 12 (A. P.).—Chinese communists said today that they and Chiang Kai-shek's Central Government have agreed to allow the proposed Political Consultative Council settle all outstanding issues of China's undeclared civil war—and that the council will be called into session about November 20.

The final issue of peace or all-out war, however, rests with the Generalissimo, a Communist spokesman asserted, adding:

"If Chiang cancels his orders for 'bandit suppression' there can be peace."

The decision to intrust disputed issues to the new council was reached at a Sunday peace talk arranged by the increasingly influential Liberal Chinese Democratic League—while war clouds thickened as the result of two other developments:

Assembly Called.

The Government called China's National Assembly to meet May 5—with no word of whether Communists would be given representation they demanded, and a top Nationalist general forecast a major Government drive into Manchuria "very soon" despite crack Communist troops massed to block it.

A communist spokesman said "serious fighting" already is under way, and he asserted that Chinese Commando troops trained by the United States Office of Strategic Services were being employed against communists. He said that the political council would discuss "all issues," indicating that administration of liberated areas and reorganization of the Nationalist Chinese army—both formerly excluded from the council's agenda—would be included.

Technical questaions connected with army organization would be left to a military sub-committee, he said, but the sub-committee would not meet until the council had reached some sort of agreement and halted the war. He added that the Government announcement of a May 5 meeting of the National Assembly was a surprise; Sunday's three-party talk had reached no agreement on the date, he said.

Tung Called to Chungking.

He disclosed that wires have been sent urgently summoning to Chungking Tung Pi-wu, communist member of the Chinese delegation to the San Francisco Conference, who is now in New York.

Tung would be one of the Communists' seven delegates on the council, the spokesman said. A similar wire was sent to Carson Chang, leader of China's National Socialist party, one of six groups forming the Democratic League. He will be one of the league's representatives on the council.

The Communist spokesman said that both Communists and Government leaders meanwhile would continue efforts to halt hostilities, but he repeatedly insisted that success would depend on Chiang's rejection of any "bandit suppression" program. Reds say the phrase means war on Communists.

The Red spokesman said that both Communists and Government leaders, meanwhile, would continue efforts to halt hostilities, but he repeatedly insisted that success would depend on Chiang's rejection of the "bandit suppression" program. Reds say the phrase means war on Communists.

Military Conference

The Government policy on the bandit question, the Communist spokesman asserted, was being settled at a Nationalist military conference in Chungking — "which might be discussing prolongation and accentuation of the current civil war." [A Government announcement said the military conference, which opened Sunday, was to discuss "rehabilitation and readjustment" of China's armed forces.]

The Communist representative said that "serious fighting" is now in progress near Communist-held Shanhaikwan, north of the port of Chinwangtao, and that Government reinforcements were pouring to the front—headed toward Manchuria and hoping "to deal the Communists a serious blow."

Lieut.-Gen. Tu Li-ming, Nationalist supreme commander for Manchuria, said his Thirteenth and Fifty-second Army troops would begin moving forward very soon from their positions north of Chinwangtao. Thus far, he said, his troops have only defended themselves; communists, he alleged, had attacked in that sector seven times.

Prior to the peace parley, the communists—through Wang Jo-fei, Red leader in Chungking—had withdrawn from the position that all fighting must stop before the meeting of the Political Council. The Reds had not withdrawn, however, from their demands for redistribution of delegates to the National Assembly to include communist representation within the total membership now allowed, or from the statement that summoning of the Assembly without Red approval and participation would be a "very grave affair."

Say Reds Attacked.

Nationalist dispatches charged the Reds attacked the Government-held highway towns of Taikang and Kihsien in eastern Honan and reported Nationalist recapture of Traoyang, another highway point, in northern Hopeh.

The communists asserted the Kuomintang had killed 100 communists on the Peiping-Mukden railway near the Great Wall; that Nationalist troops had invaded southwestern Shansi, crossing the Yellow River from Honan, and that Nationalist secret-service men, trained by Americans, were stirring up trouble in communist-held northern Honan and southern Hopeh.

American Vice-Admiral Daniel Barbey, whose naval forces escorted the transports carrying the Nationalists to Chinwangtao, warned the Chinese to settle their troubles peacefully or face the danger that Manchuria might form an independent Government. Barbey expressed doubt the communists controlled much of Manchuria. He argued that communist control would be preferable to a long fight.

Tung On Way To China.

Tung Pi-wu was reported today to have gone to Washington to wind up his affairs preparatory to leaving for China. Since the conclusion of the San Francisco Conference he has lived at 820 West 83d street.

SITUATION IN CHINA TICKLISH, SAYS REID

HONOLULU, Nov. 12. — (AP) The situation in China was described today as ticklish by Ogden M. Reid, editor of the New York Herald Tribune, who is enroute home from a six weeks trip which included Japan, China, Korea and Manila.

"The Generalissimo (Chiang Kai-Shek) is optimistic, but he knows he has a tough job," Reid said. "Revolutionaries are causing a certain amount of trouble. Our own officers know the situation is ticklish and are being mighty careful."

He praised the work of General MacArthur in Japan and of Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of American occupation forces in Korea.

"The Koreans have been suppressed the last 40 years and need a certain amount of training before they can take over" their own government, Reid said.

He is accompanied by Wilbur B. Forrest, assistant editor of the Herald Tribune.

COMPROMISE IN CHINA SEEN BY CHENNAULT

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 12—(AP) Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, former commander of the Flying Tigers and the 14th Air force in China, here for Armistice day celebration predicted that the China Communists and Regulars soon would reach a compromise agreement.

"Open fighting in Chinese civil wars never lasts very long," he said in an interview. "I think the Communists and Nationalists soon will come to a compromise agreement."

C.-B.-I. VETS EMBARK

Shanghai, Nov. 12 (A. P.).—Mass movement of China-Burma-India veterans to the United States started here today with departure of the attack-transport Hocking with 1,100 Army enlisted men, fifty Army officers, 416 Navy enlisted men and thirty-eight naval officers.

High-point veteran of the group was Major John D. Coffey of Tuckahoe with 174 points. He acquired most of them as an aerial navigator over England and North Africa.

As the Hocking departed, the S. S. Annabelle Lykes moved to the dock and began loading 1,400 troops scheduled to leave in the next two days. Many of the returning soldiers protested bitterly when several Shanghai civilians were put on the Annabelle Lykes passenger manifest, declaring that every available berth should be devoted to returning veterans.

KOREAN PORT CITY BECOMES CENTER OF MIGRATION TIDE

Glenn Babb

FUSAN, Korea, Nov. 12 — (AP) This hill-sheltered port at the Southern tip of Korea is witnessing Asia's largest tides of migration resulting from collapse of the Japanese empire.

The Japanese, having gambled for world domination and lost, are returning home in stoical despair. Many are abandoning lifetime careers and possessions, since Japan had been established in Korea for 35 years.

Koreans Return Home

Koreans, heretofore employed in the Japanese empire's lowest and most menial labor, are returning to the promise of a new freedom and an independent homeland.

The two tides—a counterpart of many seen in Europe — tonight reached a total of 542,000 since Japan's surrender and Korea's liberation. Ships bringing Koreans home take numbers of Japanese to Japan.

The whole process is under the close supervision of Brig. Gen. Donald J. Myers of Boulder, Colo., commander of the U. S. 40th Infantry division. His men direct every step, in addition to the Division's duties of maintaining peace and order in Korea's three Southeastern provinces.

Repatriation of the Japanese armies in the American zone of Korea is virtually completed. Nearly 100,000 soldiers have been shipped back to Japan without friction, leaving only some 3,000 for necessary temporary duties.

Japs Move Voluntary

Japanese civilian repatriates, thus far totaling about 170,000, are going entirely voluntarily. Estimates of those remaining Korea range from 100,000 to 400,000. The question of whether these will be compulsorily repatriated has not been decided. It is realized it may be difficult to determine how many actually are Japanese in view of considerable intermarriage in the past generation.

It is emphasized that the migration thus far affects only the American-occupied portion of Korea, south of the 38th parallel. No travel is permitted from the Russian zone.

At Fusan's pier the Japanese wait in long lines through the day and night for necessary processing—delousing, inoculations and the search for contraband and forbidden amounts of currency. Men, women and children are permitted to take only what they are able to carry and most of them bear their own weight in enormous bundles strapped to their backs.

Columns of Japanese bent almost double under such weights take it uncomplaining, with customary Japanese stoicism and fatalism.

JAPANESE 'REDS' BRAND EMPEROR 'WAR CRIMINAL'

Brines

TOKYO, Nov. 12.—(AP) A Japanese Communist leader today labeled Emperor Hirohito a "war criminal" who should be exiled to China under Allied guard.

Myoshio Shiga, whose small but blatant party has been clamoring for an end to the timeless institution of the Emperor, declared in an interview that Hirohito must share the blame for the Pearl Harbor attack.

For this reason, Shiga said, the Emperor had been put at the top of the Japanese Communists' own "war criminals" list, and the party would launch an investigation of all suspects Dec. 8, anniversary of the Pearl Harbor attack (Tokyo time.)

On that list, Shiga promised, would be found all government leaders since the Manchurian incident in 1931.

As for the Emperor's responsibility for Pearl Harbor, Shiga said Hirohito should have known from the history of the Russo-Japanese war of 1904-05 that Japan would strike without warning.

"If the Emperor didn't know this would happen," he added, "it would be tragic to have 70,000,000 people hinge their fate on such a stupid character."

Shiga wanted to know why, if the Emperor did not approve Pearl Harbor, he issued a rescript citing Admiral Yamamoto, the late head of the Japanese Navy, who once boasted he would write the peace in the White House.

Kurusu's Task Known

"Everybody in Japan knew that when (special envoy) Kurusu left Tokyo (for the futile Washington conference) his job was to hold off the Americans and the war would begin," Shiga asserted.

Shiga, who recently was released after 19 years as a political prisoner, admitted his party had but 600 members and did not expect to win many diet seats in the next year's election.

Shiga said the main platform would be elimination of the Emperor but it also would advocate confiscation of "parasitically-owned" lands. If this was too radical for the Allied occupation authorities, he added, the land measure would be modified to a plan for rent-free tenure.

General MacArthur's headquarters meanwhile reported that occupation forces had smashed Japan's tyrannical spiritual and economic controls as thoroughly as Allied land, sea and air forces destroyed her military might.

"Security and relief from top-side domination and regimentation are assured the people by smashing the trusts, destroying the diplomatic organization and guaranteeing freedom of speech, press "religion and education," a statement said.

It added that new steps were "under way" to remove "the shackles which now hold the farmers and their families in a condition approximating slavery."

Jap Communists Include Hirohito In War Blame

Tokyo, Nov. 12 (AP)—Emperor Hirohito heads a war-criminal list being prepared by the fledgling Japanese Communist party because he must share responsibility for the Pearl Harbor attack, Yoshio Shiga, one of the party's leaders, said today.

"The Emperor cannot escape war guilt," said Shiga, and should be exiled to China under Allied surveillance."

The Communist party boldly announced it will sponsor a nation-wide campaign to investigate Japanese war criminals—starting December 8, the Pearl Harbor anniversary.

Allied Survey Revealed

General MacArthur's headquarters surveyed results of Allied occupation policies and reported that diplomacy and directives have shattered the nation's war-minded spiritual and economic control systems as effectively as bombs destroyed its cities and factories.

The headquarters statement, summarizing changes that have freed Japan's common people from regimentation and from domination by their old ruling clique, reported that new orders soon to be issued "will remove many of the shackles which now hold farmers and their families in a condition approximating slavery. Free marketing in a state of freedom will follow."

The freedom Allies have brought will teach the people what American democracy means, but "there is nothing easy or soft about the life the Japanese must lead before they can be accepted as a peaceful nation," the headquarters statement emphasized.

Civic Education Section

The Japanese Education Ministry today announced establishment of a civic education section to explain democratic processes, in preparation for the coming general election.

A reshuffling of Premier Kijuro Shidehara's Cabinet is planned even before the election, probably by the end of this month, well-informed Japanese sources said today. They forecast a possible switch by War Minister General Sadashi Shimoura and Navy Minister Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai to the contemplated new demobilization ministries. Both War and Navy ministries are to be abolished.

In their first concrete platform, the Communists, reorganizing under released political leaders, proposed "severe punishment" for Japanese war criminals and officials guilty of "maladministration" during the past militaristic decade.

Calls For Seizing Farms

The platform appealed for seizure of the country's farm lands and redistribution of them among farmers and for workers' control of major industries. It reiterated previous Communist demands for "overthrow of the emperor system and establishment of a people's republican politics," the newspaper Asahi reported.

Other planks opposed militaristic and imperialistic legislation and education, "strict enforcement" of the Potsdam declaration and "support of the peace governments of the various democratic governments."

Workers Would Control Banks

Workers would control "important industries and banks" under "a people's republican government" which also would control foodstuffs and other necessities. Lands "parasitically owned" would be confiscated without compensation and distributed among farmers.

Reduced hours of labor, enforcement of an obligatory minimum wage and relief for war sufferers and unemployed also were advocated.

The platform advocates abolition of repressive laws and demands "complete freedom of speech, assembly, publication, religion, association and street demonstrations" and demands that a "people's constitution" be adopted.

First Appeal To Farmers

The Communists' land program was the first direct appeal by a political party to farmers, who constitute half of Japan's population and who long have had no voice in politics. Farmers are in a strong position now because of the country's severe food shortage.

Ashai, commenting editorially on the food situation, said organization of farm and labor unions is necessary because without them "social disturbances would mean a state of anarchy and uncontrollable destruction . . . people otherwise would have to fight one another or die of starvation."

Kyodo reported also that representatives of the newly formed Social Democratic party handed a memorandum to Welfare Minister Hitoshi Ashida, requesting state control of land in war-damaged areas to speed development of an emergency housing program. The program is being delayed by doubt concerning titles to land on which emergency residences are to be erected.

Two Yanks Arrested

On the occupation front, the American provost marshal at Yokohama reported the arrest of two American soldiers and several Japanese civilians on black market, armed robbery and hijacking charges. One soldier confessed to participation in thirteen armed robberies, the provost marshal said.

Several Japanese, including Shunichi Matsumoto, former vice minister of foreign affairs, and Renzo Sawada, former ambassador to Burma, were scheduled to leave today for India to testify at the trials of provisional government leaders of Free India, Japanese-sponsored during the war.

Mamoru Shigemitsu, former foreign minister, also was requested by the Allies to go, but pleaded illness and remained in Tokyo.

Bowing to Allied anti-trust policy, the Mitsui company (powerful, family-dominated holding company) announced that its shareholders will meet November 26 to accept the resignations of ten directors.

SINGLE ARMY TO HOLD JAPAN

6th To Be Deactivated And Troops Switched To 8th

Tokyo, Tuesday, Nov. 13 (AP)—General MacArthur today approved the deactivation of the 6th Army, which is policing southern Honshu and Kyushu islands, and the transfer of the entire occupation to the 8th Army.

The change is expected to be effected in January.

Headquarters said the development probably would not mean any wholesale movement of 6th Army troops, but merely the disbanding of headquarters and the reassignment of 6th Army personnel to Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger's 8th Army.

Due To Gradual Reduction

Unification of the occupation troops was made possible, a spokesman explained, by gradual reduction in strength of the American garrison, which may be cut to 200,000 by spring under McArthur's program.

By March only the 11th Air Force and the 24th and 25th Infantry and 1st Cavalry divisions are scheduled to remain in Japan.

There was no information about a possible new command for Gen. Walter P. Krueger, 6th Army commander, who commanded the spearhead of the MacArthur campaigns through the Southwest Pacific. Some at headquarters believe he wishes to retire.

Divisions now in the 6th Army are the 32d, 41st, 98th, 33d, 24th, 25th and the 2d and 5th Marine, the 13th Armored Group and the 6th Ranger Battalion. Headquarters is a Kyoto, on Kyushu Isiand.

Communist Assails Emperor

On the Japanese side of the occupation, a Communist party leader labeled Emperor Hirohito a "war criminal" who should be exiled to China under Allied guard.

Yoshio Shiga, whose small but blantant party has been clamoring for an end to the timeless institution of the emperor, declared that Hirohito must share the blame for the Pearl Harbor attack.

For that reason, Shiga said, the emperor had been put at the top of the Japanese Communists' own "war criminals" list, and the party would launch an investigation of all suspects December 8, anniversary of the Pearl Harbor attack (Tokyo time).

On that list, Shiga promised, would be found all Government leaders since the Manchurian incident in 1931.

Should Have Known

As for the emporer's responsibility for Pearl Harbor, Shiga said Hirohito should have known from the history of the Russo-Japanese War of 1904-05 that Japan would strike without warning.

"If the Emperor didn't know this would happen," he added, "It would be tragic to have 70,000,000 people hinge their fate on such a stupid character."

Shiga wanted to know why, if the Emperor did not approve Pearl Harbor, he issued a rescript citing Admiral Yamamoto, the late head of the Japanese who once boasted he would write the peace in the White House.

"Everybody in Japan knew that when (special envoy) Kurusu left Tokyo (for the futile Washington conference) his job was to hold off the Americans and the war would begin," Shiga asserted.

Party Numbers But 600

Shiga, who recently was released after nineteen years as a political prisoner, admitted his party had but 600 members and did not expect to win many Diet seats in the next year's election.

Shiga said the main platform would be elimination of the emperor but it also would advocate confiscation of "parasitically owned" lands. If this was too radical for the Allied occupation authorities, he added, the land measure would be modified to a plan for rent-free tenure.

General MacArthur's headquarters meanwhile reported that occupation forces had smashed Japan's tyrannical spiritual and economic controls.

Plans Aid To Farmers

The statement added that new steps were under way to remove "the shackles which now hold the farmers and their families in a condition approximating slavery."

In this connection, the Japanese education ministry announced it had established a civic education section to teach the people in the ways of democracy.

It also was announced that Tokyo shareholders of the Mitsui Trust Company would meet November 26, accept the resignations of ten directors and elect their successors.

CAMP SLAYING CITED IN TRIAL

Yamashita Court Told American Was Shot Without Cause

Manila, Tuesday, Nov. 13 (AP)—A Japanese guard wantonly shot an unoffending American at Los Banos internee camp and left him to lie for four hours without aid before he was dragged out to his death, a witness testified today at the war crimes trial of Lieut. Gen. Tomoyukki Yamashita.

Clyde DeWitt, Manila lawyer, described the slaying of the American, George Lewis, last January 29, as the trial focused on events at the camp, just south of Manila.

"To Shoot Until They Kill"

Lewis was inside the fence when a guard shot him, Dewitt said. The internee was not killed and the Japanese camp commander, Major Iwanaka, was petitioned for medical aid.

Iwanaka replied, Dewitt said, that the guards had orders to "shoot until they kill" and there could be no intervention. After two hours Lewis was dragged outside the camp and shot through the forehead, Dewitt concluded.

Late yesterday an American business man who was interned at the camp said the Japanese had followed a program of gradual starvation at Los Banos on pretext that food was scarce. But, he said, after the Japanese fled, so much food was brought in that he gained ten pounds in seven days.

A weeping Chinese child and a bayonet-scarred Filipino mother told how their families were butchered by the blood-crazed Japanese in the final days of Yamashita's Philippines rule.

Ten-year-old Ang Kim Ling sobbed his grief as he testified that Japanese tried to kill all the Chinese in Los Banos, Laguna province, a few days after American paratroopers and guerillas staged a spectacular rescue of Allied internees from the near-by prison camp.

Two Children Only Survivors

He himself was bayoneted, he said, and "went to sleep a little." When he recovered consciousness he was lying under a sheet of corrugated iron, with mangled bodies around him.

"I called for help," Ang Kim sobbed, "but nobody came."

Ang Kim and his seriously wounded 6-year-old sister were the only survivors of the massacre.

Gliceria Malvecino, mother of four children, described the butchery of civilians near Santo Tomas, Batangas province, where "we were tied in groups of five and led into a near-by field. A Japanese officer told the soldiers to line up behind us, and gave the order for them to start stabbing us."

Escaped By Feigning Death

She was bayoneted twelve times, she said, and feigned death to escape further wounds.

"I could hear my children around me crying 'Mother, mother,' and screaming to me before they died," she sobbed. Her mother, too, perished in the slaughter. Later the Japanese piled furniture on the bodies, soaked them with gasoline and set them afire.

The woman concluded her testimony with this hysterical outburst:

"Yamashita, see what you have done to my family!"

1,500 Within Month

The prosecution stated for the record that 1,500 Filipinos in her neighborhood were thus "brutally mistreated and massacred" within a month.

Another witness, Soledad Lacson, testified that she was one of a group of twenty Filipinos taken to a cemetery by Japanese and bayoneted, after the soldiers had made a "personal search" of the women, ostensibly for money and valuables.

"Bloodhound!"

Daniel Louis Albert, an American businessman who was interned at Los Banos, said the Japanese followed a program of gradual starvation for civilian prisoners under the pretext that food was becoming scarce. But when the Japanese guards fled in January, 1945, natives of the district brought so much food to the camp that "I gained 10 pounds in seven days."

The trial commission urged both prosecution and defense to speed up their presentation of evidence, eliminating extraneous detail. The prosecution estimated its case could be completed within a week.

Petition For Writ Filed

The oft-repeated challenge of the commission's jurisdiction by Yamashita's defense was turned from the trial itself to the Philippine Supreme Court, where a petition for a writ of habeaus corpus was filed.

Besides charging the commission was not the properly constituted authority to hear the case, the defense also repeated its contention that Yamashita is not charged with any war crime for which he personally was to blame.

tion's bill of particulars charging 1,500 were victims—was overruled.

Chinese Boy Testifies.

A 10-year-old Chinese boy, Ang Kim-ling, then took the stand, weeping as he told how Japanese Mother Tells of Hearing Their Screams as They Died at Hands of Yamashita's Men.

Manila, Nov. 12 (A. P.).—A bayonet-scarred, black-dressed Filipino woman sobbed out at the war crimes trial of Lieut.-Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita today a story of the fatal stabbing and burning of her four children and her mother by blood-crazed Japanese.

The prosecution stated for the record that 1,500 Filipinos in her neighborhood were thus "brutally mistreated and massacred" within a month.

The witness, Gliceria Malvecino, concluded her testimony with a half scream:

"Yamashita, see what you have done to my family!"

Describing the scene near Santo Tomas, Batangas province, she said that "we were tied in groups of five and led into a nearby field. A Japanese officer told the soldiers to line up behind us, and gave the order for them to start stabbing us."

Bayoneted 12 Times.

She was bayoneted twelve times, and feigned death to escape further wounds.

"I could hear my children around me crying 'Mother! Mother!' and screaming to me before they died," she said. "Later furniture was piled on the bodies, soaked with gasoline, and set afire.

"We prayed, saying our last words to God, knowing that we soon would be killed," testified another witness, Soledad Lacson. She said that twenty in her group of Filipinos were taken to a cemetery and stabbed, after Japanese had made a "personal search" of the women to steal Philippines currency.

As she left the stand, she shouted at Yamashita:

"Bloodhound!"

The witnesses were not cross-examined. Sole objection of the defense—against the prosecution's bill of particulars charging 1,500 were victims—was overruled.

Chinese Boy Testifies.

A 10-year-old Chinese boy, Ang Kim-ling, then took the stand, weeping as he told how Japanese exterminated his whole family in Los Banos, Laguna province, a few days after American paratroopers and guerrillas staged their spectacular rescue of Allied internees from the nearby prison camp. Japanese, he sobbed, were trying to kill all Chinese in Los Banos.

Japanese bayoneted him in the shoulder and leg.

"After I was stabbed I closed my eyes. I went to sleep a little. When I woke up I saw a head, a few legs, and some arms lying on the ground around me. There was a sheet of corrugated iron over my head. I called for help but nobody came."

He and his severely wounded 6-year-old sister were the only survivors. The Filipino chief of police found bodies of twenty-seven Chinese partly eaten by dogs and pigs.

Describes Camp Conditions.

Daniel Louis Albert, American business man, described conditions inside Los Banos internment camp. Japanese, he said, allowed a ration of a half-pound of unhusked rice each week—and internees were unable to eat it because they lacked milling facilities. After guards fled in January, 1945, natives brought in so much food that "I gained ten pounds in seven days," Albert testified.

An American investigator, Edward O'Brien, added a final gruesome note to the day's proceedings with testimony that he saw the body of a Filipino boy of 4 with flesh "neatly sliced" from the left thigh—"strong evidence," he said, of cannibalism by the Japanese.

The prosecution estimated its case would be complete within a week.

U. S. VETERAN SEEKS OFFICE IN JAPAN

Tokyo, Nov. 12 A. P.).—An honorably discharged veteran of the United States Army in world war 1 and is a candidate for election to the Japanese Diet. He is Zansaku Azuma, born in Japan 53 years ago. He went to the United States in 1911 and after working in Sacramento, Cal., as a salesman, enlisted in the United States Army in May 1918.

After an honorable discharge in April, 1919, Azuma resided in Los Angeles until he returned to Japan in 1930. He now owns a mine employing fifty people.

Azuma is campaigning as an independent, promising his constituents to oppose corruption and to urge greater cooperation between the United States and Japan.

TOKYO, Nov. 12 (AP)—Promotion of Col. Ken R. Dyke, chief of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Civil Information and Education Section, to brigadier general was announced today. The promotion became effective on Oct. 26.

General Dyke, a veteran of two wars, in civilian life had been assistant advertising manager of the United States Rubber Company, advertising director of Johns Manville Corporation, advertising director of Colgate-Palmolive-Peet, and director of promotion and research of the National Broadcasting Company.

Japs Looted Even Japs

Yokosuka, Japan, Nov. 12 (AP)—Japanese, who were living in the Philippines when Japanese troops moved in, feared their own soldiers and welcomed the return of Americans, repatriated Nipponese told Kyodo news agency today.

One repatriate, who engaged in the cultivation of hemp in the Philippines twenty years, said Japanese troops often broke into temporary shacks occupied by Japanese civilians, "stealing our food and clothing, and some even went to extremes of shooting or bayoneting those who refused to comply with their demands." He added:

"These crazed Japanese soldiers, moreover, raped Japanese women, who used to say that even a glimpse of Japanese soldiers made their blood run cold."

Repatriation Ship Scheduled

Fukuoka, Japan, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Japanese repatriation ship Tatsunichi Maru, now undergoing repairs at Hakata, is due to leave November 20 to return 4,000 Japanese residents from the Tsingtao (China) area.

Japs Copy Garand Rifle

Nagoye, Japan, Nov. 12 (AP)—One hundred copies of the American Garand rifle were found by the 6th Army at a factory set up by Japanese near Anjo last June. They differed only in minor details from the American product, one change being .303 caliber instead of .30.

NAVY BRINGS BACK 835,899 IN PACIFIC

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 12 (A. P.).—More than one-third of the 2,500,000 service men deployed in the Pacific last August already have been returned to the United States. Pacific Fleet Headquarters announced today that Navy-operated vessels alone have returned 835,899 personnel. Thousands more have reached the mainland by air, aboard Army transports, or on War Shipping Administration vessels.

Fleet headquarters reported 440,715 servicemen were returned on Navy ships alone in October and another 145,325 reached the mainland in the first ten days of November. This compared with 249,856 separatees reaching the United States in September.

The Navy reported 144 vessels with a capacity of 200,000 passengers either en route or loading as of November 10. Of those sixty-three with a capacity of 88,000 are scheduled to arrive at West Coast ports between November 11 and 17.

POPULAR FRONT SEEN TO OVERTHROW PERON

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 12 (AP)—Reliable sources said tonight that leaders of the Radical party had agreed to form a popular front with the Socialists and Communists against Col. Juan D. Perón in the forthcoming Presidential elections. The decision, it was said, will be made public on Wednesday.

The Radical party, which, despite its name, is centrist, is the largest old-line party in the country. Under the three-party agreement, the Communists and the Socialists will support the Radical party's candidates for President and Vice President.

The national committee of the Socialist party charged that the military Government had mismanaged the distribution of $10,500,000 collected for the relief of victims of the Jan. 15, 1944, earthquake in San Juan, in which 10,000 persons were killed.

Chapultepec Promises Kept, Argentina Says

Buenos Aires, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Argentine Government in a formal communiqué reiterated tonight its claim to "complete and absolute" compliance with the promises it made when it signed the Chapultepec agreement earlier this year.

The communiqué, which apparently was prepared for presentation to other governments, said Argentina's military government strengthened the activities of its alien property control, closed German and Japanese schools, eliminated German and Japanese societies, and "in order that there be no doubt, carried to the extreme its zeal for suppressing and extinguishing all centers of Nazi, Fascist or totalitarian inspiration."

Julio Cesar Peña, also sentenced to death, and Capt. Jorge Ruiz, sentenced to thirty years' imprisonment, were acquitted.

Free Trade Reaffirmed

Ottawa, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Canadian Government, faced with a revolt of its supporters from the West, has been forced to retreat on tariff changes proposed in the new budget just a month ago and tonight announced cancellation of all new rates. At the same time, the Government reaffirmed its support of free trade principles.

The issue centered around a protective tariff of twenty per cent placed on a certain type of steel tubing. The tariff was directed against the United States. Before the war, this product came almost wholly from the United States, but during the war a Canadian plant expanded to produce the item on a large scale. The protective tariff did not apply to the British Empire.

In announcing the budget October 12, Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley had stated that there were no important tariff changes.

Brought Under Attack

Upon discovery of the steel tubing item the Government was brought under immediate attack by two of its leading newspaper supporters and by members of the Government Liberal party from the West, who charged that the tax was a reversion to a protective tariff policy in conflict with the Government's avowed principles favoring free trade.

Today Ilsley declared that "certain" of the tariff changes which increased duties "have been widely interpreted as representing a change in the Government's general approach to commercial policy and to efforts to liberalize and expand world trade."

"I wish to emphasize," he continued, "that the Government had not the slightest thought that a new policy was being adopted or that the action would be interpreted as anything more than what in fact it was, a minor modification of the tariff structure.

Misinterpretation Concern

"The Government is more concerned with this misinterpretation of its attitude than otherwise it might have been because within the last few days we have been given substantial ground for believing that the prospects of early international action for reduction of tariffs and other barriers to world trade are considerably improved.

"The Government has repeatedly expressed the view that in the interdependent world of today prosperity is indivisible, and that the prosperity of any nation cannot long be maintained without a restoration and expansion of international commerce."

The Finance Minister said that the new tariff measures were being canceled because "it is important that no action should be taken which can be interpreted either at home or abroad as showing anything but the strongest support for the principles upon which international negotiations will, we hope and expect, soon be based."

It is learned on reliable authority that Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, who has been abroad since before the budget was announced, was not aware of the protective item.

TRUMAN, ATTLEE NEAR AGREEMENT ON JOINT POLICY

Expert Advisors Working on Communique to Be Issued Later in Week.

POOL IS PROPOSED

Reds Would Be Forced to Ease Their Policy of National Secrecy.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP) President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee of Britain and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada are making good progress toward a joint atomic bomb policy, British officials indicate tonight.

This is true despite disclosure by these authorities of what may be a basic difference in objective between Mr. Truman and Mr. Attlee. Mr. Truman had talked recently of outlawing the atomic bomb.

Mr. Attlee, it is said by his associates, has taken the line that it cannot be outlawed effectively and that the way to handle it is to put it under control of the United Nations Security council.

Working On Communique

Whether the President and Prime Ministers regard these as conflicting approaches to the problem has not been disclosed. It is stated, however, that expert advisers of the three are already at work drafting a communique for the three conferees to go over, and that this may be issued Thursday or Friday.

There were indications that if the United States, Britain and Canada decide to offer Russia information about atomic energy, the price to the Russians will be drastic concessions on their policy of national secrecy.

This possibility, which some Allied officials regard almost as a certainty, grows out of Attlee's plan for creating a United Nations pool of basic information of atomic energy and other scientific developments. Russia like any other country would share in the pool only by contributing to it.

As soon as the Anglo-American-Canadian talks here are wound up it is expected by some of those close to the principals that Generalissimo Stalin will be fully informed of their results. One purpose of the British plan, according to persons familiar with it, is to reduce Russian suspicions of the Western Allies and try to induce Russia in turn to take political actions which will cut down Western suspicions of her.

Attlee is represented as contending that any atomic bomb control to work must depend on good faith among nations. He considers proposals for international inspection to prevent or limit manufacture of the bomb to be ineffective.

Considers Attlee's Plan

President Truman had Attlee's plan under consideration today. It was presented to him and to the Canadian Prime Minister, W. L. Mackenzie King, when the three leaders met yesterday in their second session of talk.

Their conference opened Saturday. They talked briefly again this morning and then Attlee went to the British Embassy where he spent the rest of the day working on a speech he will make to a joint session of Congress, and to a nation-wide radio audience, at 12:30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time tomorrow.

While the British plan became generally known here, whatever ideas President Truman and Secretary of State Byrnes have evolved for handling the atomic problem on an international scale were kept rigidly secret. Thus, aside from Mr. Truman's expressed desire to "outlaw" the bomb some day, the British plan was the only one known.

Asked for comment on this plan today, the White House declined even to confirm its existence and at the State Department officials said that the whole affair was one for the White House to decide. Indications were, in fact, that no one aside from Truman and Byrnes actually knew what American policy on the subject might be.

Attlee suggested that the way to tackle it would be to get an agreement through the security council of the United Nations for sharing all information of a scientific nature among the interested nations. This would cover not only six small countries periodically elected to the council but also five permanent members—the United States, Britain, Russia, France and China.

In return for tossing in their joint knowledge of atomic developments, Attlee proposed that the United States and Britain should make certain (1) that other nations including Russia make available their secret scientific data of whatever kind and (2) that Russia particularly should exactly define her international political aims as to territories she desires and general political and economic aspirations.

These ideas are described by some American officials as being in line with much of the thinking of a number of advisors to Truman and Byrnes, though the exact plans of the President and Secretary of State remain obscure. These advisors are described as convinced that there must be some kind of exchange on Russia's part for whatever information is made available by the United States, Britain and Canada.

There has been considerable talk here, among officials as well as scientists, of the possibility of creating under the security council a special committee of scientists to go among the United Nations and inspect their plants and laboratories to make sure they were not manufacturing atomic bombs. Attlee was reported by persons in a position to know to have told President Truman he believed such an inspection system would be so cumbersome as to prove impractical.

There was some speculation that even if the basic knowledge underlying the atom bomb is imparted to other nations the industrial know-how of the A-bomb's manufacture may be kept secret. This according to some interpretations, would not be in conflict with the Attlee plan. The British idea is to make available basic scientific information and bring about a condition in the world, including Russia, in which such information on all subjects would be exchanged.

In this connection considerable interest was manifested by some officials at the State Department today in an Associated Press report from Moscow that Russian censorship of outgoing news has declined virtually to the point of a mere formality.

Secretary of State Byrnes has been working for a freer news policy among Soviet dominated countries in the Balkans and Eastern Europe generally. He evidently believes that one of the greatest reassurances which Russia could give to a jittery world on prospects for peace would be to lower some of her barriers against a free flow of information about what is going on inside the Soviet Union.

Truman Studying Attlee's Atom Plan

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—President Truman today studied a proposal by Prime Minister Attlee for pooling atomic bomb and other basic scientific knowledge among members of the United Nations Security Council.

The British proposal, disclosed to reporters by British officials, was conditioned upon a broad, long-range statement of international political objectives by Russia. These, it was reported, would cover the Soviet Union's territorial and diplomatic aspirations for many years to come.

An Alternative

If the general sharing plan proved unacceptable to other nations, British officials said, Attlee would have the Anglo-American nations retain the knowledge they have and may develop on atomic problems, but promise voluntarily to use the bomb only in accord with decisions of the Security Council.

[The Security Council is the eleven-member enforcement agency of the United Nations on which the Big Five would be permanent members and the remainder elected by the assembly of all United Nations.]

Plan Called Detailed One

The text of the Attlee plan, which British officials described as detailed, was not made public and the White House declined any comment. The British said it was presented to Mr. Truman and his top advisers yesterday during his conference with Attlee and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada aboard the yacht Sequoia on the Potomac.

Today the conferees met at breakfast and soon afterward Attlee left the White House for the British Embassy. He plans to leave this week end, going to Ottawa with Mackenzie King; he will address a joint session of the Canadian Parliament on Monday.

Attlee's Congress Address

In his address to Congress tomorrow, expected to be about 25 minutes long, Attlee was reported by British officials to plan to touch on his plan for pooling atomic secrets. But the main portion of the speech, they said, will be devoted to an outline of what the Labor party stands for and what it proposes to do now that it has taken over the government of the United Kingdom.

Attlee will attempt, they reported, to remove any misconceptions of his Government's policies relating to socialism and taking over by the Government of such basic industries as coal and communications.

The British Prime Minister is not expected to discuss specifically the Anglo-American loan negotiations, but embassy officials said he will tell something of United Kingdom needs in the way of aid to get back into her prewar trading position.

Joint Statement Later

Presidential Secretary William Hassett told reporters that President Truman will have nothing to say on the progress of his current discussions with Attlee and Premier W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada until they are ended.

Then, he said, there will be a "joint statement by the three."

Hassett said Mr. Truman thought the atomic energy talks would be resumed this afternoon, but a British Embassy official later said Attlee would not return to the White House today but would devote most of the afternoon to preparing the address he will deliver tomorrow to a joint session of Congress.

Attlee's Plan

An official in a position to know said the British leader had suggested that:

1. Unless atomic and other discoveries are channeled into controlled uses for peace they will be given over to warmaking purposes.

2. The best way to guide them into proper uses is to share them with other nations—once safeguards for the future are set up.

No Word In Russ Press

Moscow, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Soviet press made no reference today to the conferences on atomic power now under way in Washington between President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

OCCUPATION VITAL, SAYS EISENHOWER

Rapid Return of Troops May Shatter Peace, General Warns.

BOSTON, Nov. 12—(AP) General Dwight D. Eisenhower said tonight that if American soldiers were returned too rapidly from Europe "an enduring peace may disappear and the war may have been fought in vain."

He told a wildly cheering crowd of 500 persons at a state dinner that "the day of critical decision is rushing upon us."

"If disintegration of our forces goes too far," he said, "it will provide evidence to the German people that we are not equal to our task, and an enduring peace may disappear and the war may have been fought in vain."

Occupation Is Necessity

The plain fact is, he added, "the keeping of the peace requires maintenance of adequate forces in Europe.

"We have a responsibility to the displaced persons of Europe," he said.

"We cannot neglect them. The sad fact is our job will be a continuous one until they have been given the opportunity to develop for themselves a self-respecting standard of living."

The state dinner climaxed a day of welcome that Boston has seldom given.

General Eisenhower said that American soldiers "should be returned to their homes," but he added "America's obligations to the world and ourselves should be fulfilled."

"Are we going so far in weakening ourselves in Europe that we are going to abandon, unfulfilled, the purposes for which we fought or are we going to have the strength to see the job through?" he asked.

There has been a constantly accelerated pace of demobilization to restore men to their family circles, he said, and he added that up to a certain point that was "wise, commendable and necessary."

Million Greet General

Police estimated that a million persons turned out to greet the general in this afternoon's Armistice Day parade. Thousands stood for three hours in a drizzling, cold rain on the downtown streets waiting for him.

Again tonight as he boarded the train for Washington with Mrs. Eisenhower, who came here yesterday to be on hand when the general arrived from Europe, cheering crowds brought him to the platform three times.

As he ducked inside for the last time, he handed a pencil-written statement to newsmen thanking Boston for the reception—"one of the most memorable occasions in our lives."

General Eisenhower, whose plane flew through a dark drizzly sky, said that if the people of this country proved unequal to rebuilding Germany it not only would "mean humility and shame for us" but would influence the building of an enduring peace.

The care of the displaced persons in Europe, he said, were the "charge of the democratic world."

On his arrival, Eisenhower was given a roaring welcome by hundreds of thousands of New Englanders in an Armistice Day demonstration seldom seen in this old city.

Since he landed from Bermuda in a drizzling rain in his own C-54 plane "Sunflower II" shortly before noon he smiled through a whirlwind day that took in a huge parade, a spontaneous miniature one, a luncheon and a dinner in his honor.

Wife is by Side

By his side at all times was Mrs. Eisenhower, whom he whisked off her feet in a warm embrace upon his arrival.

Boston's winding streets were lined with yelling throngs as he sat atop an open automobile and waved his hat in friendly, tireless greeting.

He will leave tonight for Washington where he is to testify on proposals for unification of the armed services.

"What a country," he exclaimed to an applauding luncheon audience, as he expressed his pleasure at being back home again.

"I am glad to be home because I am an American," he said, adding: "what makes this 'what a country,' is that Americans can express opinions" and are ready to "listen to the other fellow."

He pleaded for tolerance and asserted that we could meet our problems as we met them in Europe. When the majority makes a decision, he said, we "adhere to it."

General Reviews Parade

The General of the Army reviewed the city's Armistice Day parade from the State House with Governor Maurice J. Tobin.

Shouts of "Hey Ike," greeted him along the line of march before he left his car at the state capitol. Police Superintendent Edward J. Fallon estimated the crowd at 1,000,000.

An impromptu parade developed while he was being driven to his hotel from the airport. Cheering crowds appeared along the route. A sandlot football game was interrupted in South Boston and groups of little boys stopped their play to cheer the General.

Acting Mayor John E. Kerrigan was the host for Gen. and Mrs. Eisenhower at luncheon and Governor Tobin, at dinner.

WAR SECRETARY BACKS DOOLITTLE MERGER SPEECH

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP) The Secretary of War told the protesting Secretary of Navy tonight that while the Army-Navy merger debate should avoid personal digs, Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle had a right to express himself with "force and vigor."

Furthermore, Secretary of War Patterson disagreed with the view of Secretary of the Navy Forrestal that "injurious acrimony" might be avoided by "elevating this whole deliberation" to the "level of a special inquiry by a presidential commission." Patterson wrote Forrestal that he knew of "no higher forum for matters of this nature" than a congressional committee.

Doolittle had told the Senate Military committee last week, in supporting the unification proposal, that "our B-29 boys are resting uneasily in their graves" as a result of naval commanders' claims about their part in the Pacific victory, and he had referred to some naval opposition to the merger as "hypocrisy." Forrestal promptly protested in a letter to Patterson which the Navy released to the press.

Patterson's Reply

Today the War department released this reply from Patterson:

"Dear Mr. Secretary:

"I have your letter of Nov. 9.

"I am in hearty agreement with you that Army and Navy representatives, in their statements on the subject of unity of the armed forces, should confine the discussion to the principles involved. Remarks reflecting on those who hold contrary views or impugning their motives, as well as statements claiming that any branch of the service won the war single-handed, are bound to produce more heat than light and to provoke useless recriminations.

"This does not mean, however, that officers should not freely express their own personal convictions with force and vigor. Lt. Gen. Doolittle did that in presenting his views to the committee. After receiving your letter, I have read his testimony and I am certain that he had no intention of presenting the case for unification on other than its merits.

"I do not agree that the deliberation can be 'elevated' to a higher level than the Senate Committee on Military Affairs. I know of no higher forum for matters of this nature than the appropriate committees of Congress which have the ultimate responsibility."

The Senate committee is to resume hearings later this week. Gen. Eisenhower, an advocate of unification, arived in the U. S. from Germany today and is expected to testify for the plan.

Doolittle Given No Word Of Protest

St. Louis, Nov. 12 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle said today he had received no word "through military channels" of any official protest of his testimony before the Senate Military Affairs Committee and added: "I said what I honestly believe and it still stands."

Doolittle, a former resident of St. Louis, was interviewed upon his arrival here this morning to participate in Armistice Day cememonies.

"B-29 Boys Uneasy In Graves"

The General told the committee Friday that "our B-29 boys are resting uneasily in their graves" because of naval commanders' claims about the part their forces played in the Pacific victory.

This brought an immediate protest by letter from Secretary of the Navy Forrestal to Secretary of War Patterson.

"An Army-Navy Operation"

Commenting on reports that his remarks about the Navy stemmed from a grudge against the fleet for not taking his carrier-based bombers closer to Japan for the first Tokyo raid, Doolittle said:

"The Tokyo flight was a combined army-navy operation conceived by General Arnold and Admiral King. It was carried out from start to finish with complete understanding between the two services. The understanding was that we were to take off when our carrier was intercepted by enemy air or surface craft. That is what happened."

Navy Is Accused Of 'Badgering' Dec. 7 Witness

Congressman Says Kramer Is Under Pressure to Alter His Pearl Harbor Story

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—Representative Frank B. Keefe, Republican, of Wisconsin, said today he had obtained "proof" that a Navy intelligence officer was being "badgered" to change his story about the Pearl Harbor attack. Representative Keefe said he would take the floor tomorrow to repeat his assertions.

A member of the Senate-House Pearl Harbor Investigating Committee which begins public hearings Thursday, Representative Keefe told reporters that the officer is Captain Alwin D. Kramer, now at the Bethesda, Md., naval hospital.

Representative Keefe has contended that Captain Kramer delivered the "winds message"—a decoded Japanese message—on Dec. 4, 1941, to higher authorities and that they ignored the import that Japan was attacking. That message is now missing from Navy files, Representative Keefe said.

Representative Keefe visited the hospital today. He said he did not call on Captain Kramer but that from hospital officials and others, he pieced together this story:

That Captain Kramer was admitted to the hospital Sept. 28 under orders.

He was relieved of his uniform and was there continuously until Nov. 7, the day after Representative Keefe and Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart, Republican, of California, charged in the House that the Navy was holding him incommunicado.

On Oct. 30 Representative Keefe continued, a doctor at the hospital wrote a letter to the captain's wife, at Miami, Fla.

"He said Captain Kramer was showing some improvement but they would like to have her come up," Representative Keefe told reporters. "The medical men felt there was something preying on his mind and they could not interpret it."

Mrs. Kramer arrived in Washington last Wednesday.

"Since then she has told some people and they have told me," Keefe said, "that the reason Captain Kramer wasn't improving faster was—the thing that was worrying him—he was being badgered to change his original testimony."

The Navy had no comment to make immediately on Representative Keefe's remarks.

Meanwhile, counsel for the inquiry committee previewed some testimony and charts bearing on the Japanese sneak attack at a four-hour closed session with Army and Navy officials.

About a dozen naval officers and as many Army officers were present in a large Senate caucus room where the public hearings will be held. No committee members were present. The committee chairman, Senator Albert W. Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky, who said he dropped in to consult briefly with Counsel William D. Mitchell about other matters, said that Mr. Mitchell and his aids were making seating arrangements, testing the loud-speaker system and correlating the charts that will show the location of facilities, ships and equipment at the Pacific naval base.

Senator Barkley made it plain he expects more witnesses than the forty now listed tentatively to be called as the committee unfolds what he said Saturday would be the full story of what happened before, at and after the Japanese attack.

Asked about Republican demand that J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, be called to the stand, Senator Barkley replied: "If Mr. Hoover knows anything that will shed light on this investigation, we'll be glad to have him testify. We want to hear from everybody who knows any significant facts."

He did not know, Senator Barkley said, what information Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York could contribute. Governor Dewey was one of the forty-eight witnesses the chairman said were called at Mr. Mitchell's request.

Governor Dewey reportedly was asked in a letter from General of the Army George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, not to divulge some information about Pearl Harbor during the 1944 Presidential campaign. General Marshall was said to have cited security reasons.

FBI May Receive Sneak Call

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—A Republican member of the Pear Harbor investigating committee said today that Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and some of his agents should be added to the 48-member witness list.

Public hearings by the joint Senate-House committee are scheduled to open Thursday.

Representative Keefe (R., Wis.) termed the witness list announced Saturday by Chairman Barkley (D., Ky.) "all right, as far as it goes," but added:

"There are many others who should testify, among them Mr. Hoover.

Preattack Setup

"The FBI was out at Hawaii doing investigating work prior to the Japanese attack. It had a good, live setup and knows a lot of things about which the public should be informed.

"Hoover and some of his agents can give us a lot of information that we need."

Keefe added that he and Representative Gearhart (R., Cal.) have an appointment to see Hoover about the matter tomorrow.

Keefe also said he is planning a House speech this week on what he described as further developments in his questioning of Navy Capt. Alwin D. Kramer. Several Republicans have described Kramer as "a key witness" regarding this country's breaking of Japanese code messages.

Sticks To Statement

Keefe told his colleagues last week he believed an effort was being made to prevent Kramer from telling all he knows about events leading up to the Pearl Harbor attack.

"I have not repudiated my statement," Keefe asserted today.

Kramer's name is on the tentative list of witnesses announced by Barkley along with such officials as Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York; Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff; former Secretary of War Henry Stimson and former Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Preview of Service Testimony

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—William D. Mitchell, counsel for the Pearl Harbor inquiry committee, previewed some testimony and charts today at a four-hour closed session with about a dozen Navy officers and as many Army officers in a large Senate caucus room where the public hearings will be held. No committee members were present.

Chairman Barkley explained that Mr. Mitchell and his aides were making seating arrangements, testing the loudspeaker system and correlating the charts which will show the location of facilities, ships and equipment at the Pacific naval base.

Senator Barkley made it plain that he expected more witnesses than the forty-eight now listed tentatively. Asked about Republican demands for calling J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, he replied:

"If Mr. Hoover knows anything that will shed light on this investigation, we'll be glad to hear from everybody who knows any significant facts."

The chairman said he thought that Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, would precede Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York on the stand and might discuss the contents of a letter which he has been reported to have written to the Governor asking him, for security reasons, not to divulge some information about Pearl Harbor during the 1944 Presidential campaign.

Germans Solved Secret Of U.S. Proximity Fuse

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Germans, who almost mastered atomic explosive, duplicated in the closing days of the war this country's second most important weapon—the proximity fuse.

The Nazi fuse had passed laboratory and field tests, mounted on a rocket-propelled missile for use against Allied aircraft, when the equipment fell into Allied hands.

This came to light today with publication of the third report of Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of Army Air Forces.

The American fuse, electronically activated, explodes an artillery shell or other projectile when it reaches the proximity of a target. The United States military rates the fuse as next in importance to the atomic bomb.

The Germans apparently solved the secret within five months after the fuse was used for the first time against them in the Ardennes offensive.

Arnold's report contains the picture of a rocket-propelled, gyro-stabilized rocket weapon for use against aircraft, designated by the Germans as the "X-4."

First Official Admission

The picture-caption said that the "potency of X-4 was tremendously increased by proximity fuse," the first official admission that the Germans had matched the American secret weapon.

Army officers here said the Germans had tested the proximity-fused missile both as an air-to-air weapon (fired by a plane against a plane) and as a ground-to-air weapon (anti-aircraft fire from the ground.) It was about ready for mass production when the war ended.

Its use against Allied aviation admittedly could have had grave consequences.

Dropped Project

Allied interrogation of a high-ranking, captured German officer revealed that the Germans were familiar with the principles of proximity fuses for years.

They dropped the project in 1934, however, because they could discover no way of building delicate devices which would withstand the shock of the launching explosion and not detonate or ruin the fuse.

The Germans apparently discovered the American secret either by reconstructing the design from fragments of exploded missiles used in the Ardennes or by finding a "dud."

Atom Control, Peace Draft In Fights

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Atomic energy and universal training—two of the hottest issues on Capitol Hill—have the House Military Committee split in two closely balanced factions.

The questions, both of which may be answered at a committee session tomorrow, are:

1. Whether to reconsider a bill creating a Federal commission with vast control over use and development of atomic energy.

2. Whether to shelve until next year proposals calling for every American youth to take one year of military training.

Outcome Seems Tossup

In each case, the outcome appears to be a tossup.

Chairman May (D., Ky.) said he has the votes to stand back of the atomic energy bill as it is written and to continue hearings on the universal training measure.

Republicans on the committee, however, claimed that they have both plans blocked, at least temporarily. They said they were not trying to kill either bill but trying to get more time for their consideration.

The Training Situation

Hearings on the universal training bill began last Tuesday but were interrupted when Representative Short (R., Mo.) moved to postpone them until next year. A vote was delayed until this week. Short told reporters "the bill is dead" for the present and said he has enough supporters to back his position.

A postponement would prevent any testimony this week by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who is en route to Washington from Germany. May had said "it is likely" Eisenhower would appear as a supporting witness.

Atomic Energy Fight

The committee has already approved an Administration-backed bill to set up the Atomic Energy Commission. Over the week end, however, nine committee members signed a sharply dissenting report.

Commenting on this report, Representative Arends (R., Ill.) asserted: "We think that because so many members oppose the bill action may not be pressed for a few weeks. This would allow time for further study of the best ways of regulating atomic energy."

The dissenting report urged that any legislation now provide only for a temporary agency with limited controls. It said the present measure gives "absolute and limitless" authority to the suggested commission.

1,000 RABBIS STAGE 'CAPITOL MARCH'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP) Representative Celler (D-N.Y.) today told a thousand Jews in a demonstration for their Palestine program that "if no one will teach the British the meaning of honor the Jews will."

"Jewish D-day will soon arrive in Palestine," the congressman asserted. "The Jews are prepared to make every sacrifice for their homeland.

"If it is to be bullet for bullet or bomb for bomb—so be it."

Before this country gives Britain the economic aid she seeks, Celler declared, Prime Minister Clement Attlee should give assurance "that they know the meaning of honor. Honor means the fulfillment of treaty obligations, especially in Palestine."

The Jews carried direct to Congress, the White House and the British embassy an appeal for a new Palestine plan centering on Jewish immigration.

The thousand, including hundreds of rabbis and other prominent figures in the campaign, trudged in a chanting column from Union Station across the Plaza and up the Capitol steps where they were met by four House members and three senators.

A dozen of the leaders then took their petition to the White House and the embassay before going to Arlington cemetery to pray at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The petition urged immediate entry of 100,000 Jews to Palestine, repudiation of the 1939 British white paper curbing such immigration, steps to create a Jewish homeland and release of Jewish patriots from African and Near East prison camps.

Several hundred Jews accompanied the delegation to the British embassy and remained behind police lines across the street while the 12 men entered. They were received by J. Balfour, charge d'affaires, who said he would see that Attlee received the petition.

Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.), president pro tempore of the Senate, told the group the petition would be presented the Senate tomorrow. He said he favored 100 per cent "that part of your petition which asks that Palestine be set apart as a Jewish refuge."

Sees a "Jewish D Day"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP).—Representative Celler told the rabbis that "if no one will teach the British the meaning of honor, the Jews will."

"Jewish D Day will soon arrive in Palestine," the Congressman asserted. "The Jews are prepared to make every sacrifice for their homeland.

"If it is to be bullet for bullet or bomb for bomb—so be it."

Before this country gives Britain the economic aid it seeks, Representative Celler declared, Prime Minister Attlee should give assurance "that they know the meaning of honor. Honor means the fulfillment of treaty obligations, especially in Palestine."

The thousand, including hundreds of rabbis and other prominent figures in the campaign, marched in a chanting column from Union Station across the plaza and up the Capitol steps. Later a delegation went to Arlington Cemetery to pray at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

[The chant was the Jewish national hymn, "The Hatikvah," The United Press reported. The procession extended more than a block. Some delegates wore buttons saying, "Remember the Struma sinking with 768 Jews." The Struma was a Jewish refugee ship sunk by a German torpedo after it was refused permission to debark the refugees in Palestine.]

FOOD SUPPLY IN '46 MAY SET RECORD

But Agriculture Department Says All Commodities Will Not Be Equally Plentiful

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP) — Americans may have more to eat in 1946 than ever before in the country's history, the Agriculture Department said today in a report forecasting considerably larger supplies of most foods than were available this year.

If the department is right, per capita consumption would be more than 11 per cent above the prewar level of 1935-39.

Not all foods, however, will be equally plentiful, the report stated. Supplies of pork, better grades of beef and veal, fats and oils (particularly butter), sugar and canned fish are expected to be smaller than the amount consumers would buy at present prices.

Most of the improvement in the food supply will result, the department said, from a sharp cutback in military requirements. The armed services are expected to take only between 25 and 33 per cent as much as they used this year.

The department said, however, that exports in 1946 would continue large, assuming that satisfactory financial arrangements were completed. The greater part of these exports will move mainly to the United Kingdom and the liberated areas of Europe.

The department said that meat consumption a person next year was expected to reach 145 to 155 pounds, dressed weight. Consumption this year is likely to average about 130 pounds, though at the present time it is estimated to be at the annual rate of about 145 pounds.

More ice cream, cheese, condensed and evaporated milk, cream, canned vegetables, fresh and frozen fish will be available than in 1945, the report said. Eggs and fresh milk are expected to continue plentiful, while consumption of chicken, turkey, fresh fruits and veegtables, frozen and dried fruits, potatoes, sweet potatoes and cereal products are expected to average about the same as this year.

The department said that it expected the prices of better grades and cuts of meats to rise when Government subsidies were removed during the first half of the year. These increases probably will be offset, it said, by lower prices of other grades and cuts.

Wallace On Loans And Trade

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Commerce, asserted directly today the United States must make substantial loans to England, Russia and other allies if world trade barriers are to be lowered and a ruinous Anglo-American-Russian trade war averted.

The Commerce Secretary made his proposal for wiping out restrictions with dollars in an address to 2,000 business men attending the thirty-second National Foreign Trade convention, then heard his statements attacked and defended.

Roth Dubious Of Wallace

Almon E. Roth, president of the National Federation of American Shipping, Inc., interpolated into his address a declaration that: "I am seriously concerned with the ability of the Government to implement the policies so clearly enunciated by Secretary Wallace."

He said that from what he had heard and read in Washington "it now appears that the United States may make these loans without first obtaining a firm and definite commitment from Great Britain for the removal of such (trade) restrictions."

Trade Council's Warning

The National Foreign Trade Council, Inc., itself interjected a warning. In a set of seventeen foreign trade principles announced here today, it said "experience has demonstrated that dependence upon long-term loans and investments as a device to balance chronic import deficiencies is uneconomic, since all too frequently the capital invested is lost."

The council added that such investment was justified only on assurance that foreign production of useful goods was increased and the United States was willing to accept part of this increase. At the same time it said the well-being of the United States depended on the well-being of the entire world.

Wallace Loudly Applauded

Wallace's speech was loudly applauded. He dealt mostly with the current trade and loan negotiations with Great Britain and did not mention Russia by name. He stated, however, that requests for loans from other allies should be granted on the basis of need and their contributions to the war.

"If the United Kingdom is to abandon its system of exchange controls which channelize and restrict trade, if it is to reduce or eliminate tariff preferences within the British Empire, then it must have the financial backing of the United States to make that possible," Wallace said.

"Without dollars," he added, "Britain would be forced to strengthen the so-called sterling bloc."

Aid As Business Proposition

"This assistance to the devastated countries of Europe and Asia I submit to you as a business proposition," he said. "Without it, they cannot quickly rebuild their damaged economies; they cannot soon become large markets for our goods, and they cannot participate with us in a program for the expansion of world trade on a multilateral basis. This aid is not a gift. It is a credit, a credit which I am convinced can and will be repaid if we are successful in removing the barriers to world trade and thus promote its expansion. . . .

"Which is the better bargain? To lend wisely now and reap the profit of expanding markets, increased goods for our consumption, and enduring peace? Or to withhold our aid and watch trade diminish, free enterprise decline, and the world divide into three camps for a war of trade—the Russian bloc, the sterling bloc, and the dollar bloc?

"I submit to you that dollars invested now in rehabilitation will pay rich dividends in a form of markets, goods, contentment and peace. Today we and the world must choose. But there is really no choice. This time it must be one world."

Folsom Backs Wallace

Marion Bayard Folsom, treasurer of the Eastman Kodak Company and director of the special House Committee on Postwar Economic Policy which has just released its report in Washington, backed Wallace in saying that if Europe is to recover quickly "productive loans are needed from the United States."

He added, however, that loans to Russia should be predicated on a "full and frank" disclosure of Russian production statistics, the proportion of production going into armaments, the uncovering of trade treaties with eastern countries, the opening of Soviet territory to business men and journalists and a protection of American property rights."

In a session devoted to what America could import in exchange for expanded exports, W. E. Wrather, director of the Interior Department's Geological Survey, declared this country's present supremacy had "been attained at the expense of rapid depletion of mineral capital."

"We cannot maintain that supremacy unless we have uninterrupted access to mineral raw materials, wherever they may be available," Wrather said.

HOUSE FIGHT BEGINS ON NEW UNRRA FUND

Republicans Attack Bill Offered by Bloom Providing an Additional $1,350,000,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—A new fight over the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration started in the House today, and an unfinished one is hanging fire in the Senate.

The new battle is over proposals to give the UNRRA another $1,350,000,000 for the year ending March 1, 1947.

The uncompleted controversy is over a bill passed by the House giving UNRRA $550,000,000 for relief work this winter and next spring.

The latter dispute is not over the amount. It is centered in restrictive amendments, chiefly one that would ban aid to any country refusing to permit American reporters free access to news of UNRRA activities.

The new fight is over both the amount and amendments regulating how the money should be handled.

It shaped up when Chairman Bloom of the Foreign Affairs Committee said that he had introduced a bill to provide the funds and planned to start committee hearings Wednesday. Mr. Bloom added that he intended to oppose the so-called "free press" amendment and any others like it.

Minority leaders replied immediately that they would stick by a Republican Food Study Committee report on UNRRA issued two weeks ago, which urged the following things:

Requests for funds beyond the $550,000,000 be looked on with "jaundiced eyes," and that only amounts "absolutely necessary" be provided.

The "free press" amendment be hitched to all UNRRA apropriations.

Restrictions be adopted to increase efficiency, reduce UNRRA salaries and insure recognition of American relief efforts.

Mr. Bloom, however, said in an interview:

"We are just going to have to help these destitute people get started back on their feet. We can't let them starve and freeze. We've promised to provide aid, so why not do it gracefully and as fast as we can and then get out?"

The United States authorized an allocation of $1,350,000,000 to UNRRA last year. The $550,000,000 pending bill will use up that authorization.

TRUMAN SUFFERS SENATE SETBACK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—(AP) President Truman's congressional program suffered another setback today when a Senate Appropriations subcommittee voted for return of the U. S. Employment Service to the states.

The group declined to remove from an appropriations withdrawal measure a House provision calling for the return. It extended to 120 days, however, the time in which the return should be completed after the measure's enactment. The House had stipulated 30 days. The administration wants to keep it at least until next June 30.

The bill withdraws some $52,000,000,000 of the $146,000,000,000 in war appropriations made for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

Chairman McKellar (D-Tenn.), who announced the decision on the employment service, said final action on the appropriations withdrawal had been deferred until Wednesday.

The states operated the employment service, with aid of federal funds, prior to 1942. The federal government took it over then as a war measure.

It was argued that interstate migrations of war workers made centralized controls necessary.

On the state side of the argument, the major contention is that the states pay unemployment compensation and should control the machinery which attempts to find jobs for the jobless.

Senators Reach Agreement on Housing Plan

Banking Committee Leaders Support Bill to Spur Low-Cost Construction

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—New housing legislation, embracing special inducements for private builders to construct homes costing $5,000 and less, was agreed on today by Democratic and Republican leaders of the Senate Banking Committee.

The committee chairman, Senator Robert F. Wagner, Democrat, of New York, and Senators Robert A. Taft, Republican, of Ohio, and Allen J. Ellender, Democrat, of Louisiana, reported after a conference that they had reached an accord on all major points.

Senator Wagner intends to introduce the measure tomorrow on behalf of all three if legislative draftsmen complete their work. Since the banking committee handles housing legislation, its favorable consideration there is virtually assured by its bi-partisan backing.

Revision of Earlier Bill

The measure is a revision of an earlier Wagner-Ellender bill to meet criticisms advanced by Senator Taft and others and to incorporate some additional features, particularly for low-cost homes.

It is a fresh attempt, too, to implement a general administration housing program aimed at encouraging construction of 1,250,000 dwelling units a year for each of the next ten years.

Here are its chief features in the low-cost field:

1. Authorization for the Federal Housing Administrator to guarantee mortgages up to 95 per cent of the appraised value on low-cost homes. The interest rate could not exceed 4 per cent (plus one-half of one per cent insurance charge), and amortization could run for as long as thirty-two years.

The administrator would have discretionary powers as to what was a "low-cost" home to be included in this program, but it could not be applied to any home costing more than $5,000.

Building Area Considered

Senator Taft said that in practice he thought this would work out so that the program would apply to homes costing $5,000 or less in areas of high building costs but that the "ceiling" might be $4,500 or less in sections where building costs are lower.

2. Mortgage guaranties up to 95 per cent of value on "mutual housing" constructed under 3½ per cent, forty-year loans. The idea here is that a group or persons might form a co-operative, buy land and have homes built for themselves. It is argued that the lender, having to deal with only a single co-operative, could handle the loan at less cost than if he dealt with forty to fifty individuals. An insurance charge of ½ of 1 per cent would be made on such guaranties.

3. Guaranties of mortgages up to

90 per cent of value on rental housing where the builders accepted a rent scale approved by the Federal Housing Administrator. Such loans would have to be at no more than 3½ per cent interest and ½ of 1 per cent would be charged for the insurance.

Senator Ellender described the whole program as aimed to aid those who are a little too well off for public housing and are not financially able to take advantage of present F. H. A. programs.

As a rough rule of thumb, he said, public housing now takes care of those who can pay no more than $20 a month for housing and the present F H. A. program is geared for persons who can pay $40 and up.

"This should close the gap," he said.

F. H. A. mortgage guaranties now may not exceed 90 per cent of the value of a home. In effect, that means the buyer must be able to make a down payment of 10 per cent.

The 95 per cent guaranty would permit much smaller down payments.

The new measure retains public housing and urban redevelopment features of the Wagner-Ellender bill.

Under the proposed urban redevelopment program, the Federal government would extend financial aid to cities which bought up "blighted areas," razed and redeveloped them.

PARITY INCOME GOAL URGED

Anderson Calls On Farmers To Establish It

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 12 (AP)—Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture, called upon farmers tonight to set a "parity-income goal" based on "55,000,000 to 60,000,000 people employed, with a national income of $150,000,000 or more."

This goal, he declared in an address before the National Association of Commissioners, secretaries and directors of agriculture, "should be agriculture's fair share of the national income under full employment, full-scale industrial activity."

Points Out Danger

Some think the easiest way of increasing the income of producers of a commodity is to raise the parity price, the Secretary said.

"But that sort of action can bring only short-range benefits, if it results in a price that is out of line with reality. It can endanger the future of the commodity from a long-range standpoint with lass of markets at home and abroad, and by stimulating competition, inefficient production, loss of quality."

He gave cotton as an example, but said: "I believe we can grow cotton profitably at costs favorable enough to permit this product to compete on its merits in free markets."

Fundamental Decisions

A program of assuring a steady demand for agricultural products, Anderson said, "could go a long way toward supporting farm prices by keeping people in the habit of eating good diets."

He said the "three fundamental decisions" which must be reached "in order to construct the framework of an up-to-date, workable parity formula" are:

"First we have to define a fair share of the national income; second, we have to devise a parity formula that would yield that fair share as defined; and third, we have to work out methods by which our parity goals can be reached."

Administration Declared Unequal To Economic Woes

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Representative Taber (R., N.Y.) today accused President Truman's Administration of having "declared its total incapacity to solve the economic situation in the country."

"It has put pressure upon everyone it could reach to pass the so-called full employment bill and unemployment insurance bill," he told the House.

"Both bills are designed to keep people out of regular private employment and to prevent reconversion. Both bills are designed to prevent the production and manufacture of goods and farm products necessary to prevent inflation.

"Why do we have the Truman Administration trying to prevent reconversion?"

New Pressure Applied

The Administration has been trying to get a "full-employment" bill through Congress before Christmas.

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) said he will decline to discuss any plans for a holiday adjournment of Congress until some sort of job-guarantee bill is ready for President Truman's signature.

The Senate already has passed a modified version of the Administration-proposed bill. Previously there had been some talk that the Administration would be satisfied to get a bill through the House and then leave adjustment of Senate-House differences until after the first of the year.

Barkley's assertion fits into a general Administration pattern that one Senator said was suggested by President Truman to get action on the measure.

REPORTED UNION OF U.M.W., A.F.L. DENIED BY CHIEFS

Return of Lewis to Federation's Ranks Rumored by C. I. O. Leader.

VOTE ADVANTAGE CITED

National Labor Management Conference to Resume Sessions Today.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP) A report that John L. Lewis had taken his United Mine Workers back into the A.F.L. was circulated by a C.I.O. leader today but denied by Lewis' associates and by William Green, A.F.L. president.

Richard T. Frankensteen, vice president of the C.I.O. United Automobile Workers, told reporters that the C.I.O. understood "on very good information" that the U.M.W. and A.F.L. had amalgamated and that this would give the combination a one-vote advantage over the C.I.O. in the national labor-management conference whose executive committee reassembles tomorrow.

Green Backs Lewis

Lewis and Green stood together in opposing a resolution by Philip Murray, C.I.O. president, to inject the question of wages into the industrial relations talks. The executive committee passed over the resolution last week. Murray said that he would not press for action but that the committee could take up the resolution when it desired.

Lewis, who won a seat on the executive committee last week, attacked Murray's resolution as "namby-pamby."

Although Lewis hinted he might have a resolution he regarded as stronger on the issue of free bargaining over wages, he was keeping his own counsel today on his plans.

The labor-management committee on representation and jurisdictional disputes, trying to work out a formula for reducing inter-union squabbles which lead to work stoppages, stayed on the job over the week-end.

Chairman Harry Woodhead reported "progress" and said a report of some sort would be ready by Friday. He declined to discuss details of the progress today.

'Czar' Is Proposed

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach's proposal to set up a "czar" to handle such jurisdictional matters—citing the movie and baseball industries Eric Johnston and A. B. "Happy" Chandler as examples—was not yet brought before their committee, Woodward said.

William L. Hutcheson, boss of the A.F.L. carpenters and a member of the committee, commented that he "thought czars were a thing of the past."

On the labor front there were these other developments current or in the offing:

The C. I. O.-United Auto Workers' executive board was concluding its sessions here, after naming a six man strategy committee to take what steps it saw fit in dealing with the "big three" automobile manufacturers—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

Vice President Walter Reuther, in charge of the union's General Motors negotiations, called a meeting of his General Motors conference committee of 200 delegates from the 100 G.M. plants throughout the nation to be held in Detroit next Monday and Tuesday. Negotiations with the company are to be resumed on Thursday.

The Chrysler talks are now under way and conferences with Ford are to resume Nov. 20.

Reply Is Awaited

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach awaited a formal reply from Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the U. S. Steel Corporation to his proposal that negotiations with C.I.O.-steelworkers and Special Conciliator Arthur S. Myer be started up on Wednesday. Fairless rejected Schwellenbach's first request saying OPA ought to grant price increases first. The union is asking $2 a day increase.

The National Labor Relations Board is proceeding, meantime, with plans to take a ballot among a half million steelworkers at more than 760 plants on Nov. 28 and Dec. 6. All but 14 companies will be polled on the earlier date.

The C.I.O. United Auto Workers announced that its vice president, Richard T. Frankensteen, who was recently defeated for Mayor of Detroit, would lead a drive for a 30 per cent wage increase, or its equivalent, in the aircraft industry.

C.I.O.-textile workers officials expressed the hope that a settlement at seven American Viscose plants could be reached before a strike vote is taken among their approximately 20,000 workers on Nov. 29. The issues involved arose over the cutback to an eight hour day and loss of overtime which the workers have received throughout the war.

DEWEY URGES NEW APPROACH IN STRIKE CRISIS

Asks Knowledge Replace Violence in Labor Negotiations.

OPENS NEW STATE SCHOOL

Governor Talks at Ceremonies Setting Up Cornell Unit Authorized in '44.

Ithaca, Nov. 12 (A. P.).—The old rules of force and violence in settling labor disputes must be replaced by negotiations based upon a knowledge and understanding of the economic process, Gov. Dewey said today at the opening of the new State School of Industrial and Labor Relations.

The Governor declared that the school was dedicated to the common interest of the employer and employee and all the American people.

The knowledge and understanding of the economic process, he said, would be expanded by the school, "in a field where too often passion and prejudice override judgment and truth."

"Recurrent outbreaks of strikes underline the fact that labor relations are never static and that no formula can be devised which will wholly wipe out disputes," Dewey said, "Nor does any one who values our way of life wish to end the continuing effort by both management and labor to advance their own interests. But the old rule of the tooth and claw is out of date and should come to an end."

First School of Its Kind.

The school, first of its kind in the country, was authorized by the 1944 Legislature and set up this year. Enrollment for the first semester included 107 students, 60 of them veterans.

Dr. Edmund Ezra Day, president of Cornell University, of which the school is the fourteenth division, and Irving M. Ives, majority leader of the Assembly and dean of the school, spoke at the ceremonies.

The school is governed by an eleven-man board made up of representatives of labor, management, Government and education. The university board of trustees has been expanded from 40 to 45 to include two Government and three labor representatives.

Declaring that it has been only a few years since "the right to organize a labor union was a matter which had to be settled with bare fists, clubs, sticks and stones," Dewey said, "it was inevitable that undesirable characters and racketeers found their way into so many unions in days gone by. They were able to create unions for their own purposes where a union was needed and nobody else created it. Some of our union organizers were distinguished by their physical force rather than by their training in economics, industrial and social relations.

Calls School Unique.

"In many respects the same was true with industry. Our great industries grew so fast that they had no time to learn the complicated business of labor relations. Many of our industries, too, were built by aggressive and dominant men who were impatient with the practice or even the idea of dealing with their employees as equals. Even now, thirty per cent, with C. I. O. and A. F. of L. surveys estimating it closer to fifty per cent.

Representatives of the five industry associations—the Popular Priced Dress Manufacturers Association, the United Better Dress Manufacturers Association, the Affiliated Dress Manufacturers, the United Popular Dress Manufacturers Association, and the National Dress Manufacturers Association — agreed to confer either individually or collectively with the Joint Board this week or early next week.

"Generally, I do not subscribe to Mr. Hochman's outline of the situation as our industry and its earnings are concerned, but I am ready to enter into conference with the union as early as this Thursday," said Louis Rubin, head of the Popular Priced Dress Manufacturers group.

Strike Votes Swamp NLRB

Requests Come In at Rate of 45 Daily With October Setting High of 666 Pleas.

Washington, Nov. 12 (A. P.).—The National Labor Relations Board said today that unions are asking new strike votes at the rate of forty-five a day and that October brought an avalanche of 666 new requests for strike polls, more than double the previous record.

The Brookings Institution, in a report on labor policies of the Federal Government, said that labor agreements should be made legally enforceable if the Government wants business to engage in collective bargaining wholeheartedly.

The latter report was prepared by Dr. Harold W. Metz of the staff of the Brookings Institution, a privately endowed organization for social science research.

The study said that, while the Government has lacked any coherent and integrated labor policy, its major goal of recent years has been to obtain for workers a larger income with shorter hours of work.

The report concluded that very few limitations are imposed on strikes, picketing or boycotts, even if they interfere with interstate commerce and that minority groups of workers can strike or picket to interfere with rights granted to the majority union in a plant.

President Truman's labor-management conference virtually suspended activity as delegates left Washington for the Armistice Day holiday.

The only committee in session was one considering jurisdictional questions and their peaceful solution. Before it was Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach's recent suggestion that labor appoint a "czar" to settle troublesome inter-union fights.

Thursday are scheduled to resume the thus far futile negotiations over labor's demand for a 30 per cent wage rate increase. Meanwhile the UAW-CIO international executive board has delegated to a six-man committee authority to call a strike "at any time it sees fit."

The committee is headed by R. J. Thomas, international president.

Representatives To Meet

Walter P. Reuther, vice president UAW-CIO, who is chairman of the UAW-CIO General Motors division, announced today that representatives of General Motors plants throughout the country will be called to Detroit next Monday and Tuesday for a conference on further plans for the wage fight.

In the negotiations to date General Motors has rejected the union's wage demands and described as "fantastic" UAW-CIO assertions that the corporation could increase wages twenty per cent, reduce car prices and still make a "high" profit.

The union, in turn, has turned down two General Motors counter-proposals. One called for a 45-hour work week and a six per cent wage increase; the other for a 40-hour week with a cost-of-living increase estimated to amount to from eight to ten per cent.

CIO-UAW Strike Action Held Up For New Talks

Detroit, Nov. 12 (AP)—Any strike action the CIO United Automobile Workers may take in the wage dispute with General Motors Corporation will be deferred pending further negotiations with the management, union sources indicated today.

DIXIE KIEFER DIES IN CRASH

Five Others Killed With Navy's "Indestructible Man"

Beacon, N.Y., Nov. 12 (AP)—Commodore Dixie Kiefer, Pacific war hero who once was called the "indestructible man," was found dead today amid the twisted wreckage of a navy plane near the summit of Mount Beacon.

Five others died with him. They were identified by the Navy as:

LIEUT. COM. IGNATIUS ZIELINSKI, 45, USNR, of Salem, Mass., assistant medical officer at the Quonset dispensary, and a medical examiner prior to entering the service.

LIEUT. LLOYD P. HEIZEN, 23, USNR, senior pilot of the ship who frequently piloted Kiefer, of Colorado Springs, Col.

LIEUT. (jg) HANS P. KOHLER, 25, USN, copilot, of Garfield, N.J.

CLARENCE HOOPER, 22, aviation machinist's mate 3/c, of Greensboro, North Carolina.

DAVID O. WOOD, 23, seaman 1/c, of North Franklin, Conn.

All were stationed at Quonset.

Had Survived 10 Major Wounds

The commodore, who lived through ten major wounds in two wars and was hit 65 times by shrapnel in a single Pacific battle, died on a routine peacetime trip of 160 miles, a scheduled hour's journey.

The plane plunged into the fog shrouded mountain 3 miles northeast of here during a rainstorm shortly afternoon noon yesterday. The wreckage was not found until 3 A.M. today.

The commodore, 49, was commanding officer of the 1st Naval District airbases and was stationed at the Quonset (R.I.) Naval Air Station. The doomed twin-engined plane was en route from Caldwell, N.J., to Quonset.

The last word from the plane came when crewmen radioed Stewart Field at West Point, N.Y., about noon saying they were lost. Contact was broken while they talked and fifteen minutes later the plane crashed. Beacon is 30 miles off the normal Caldwell-Quonset flight route.

Forrestal's Tribute To Him

James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, described Kiefer as "the indestructible man" in decorating him with the Distinguished Service Medal for his Pacific heroism.

Two hundred and forty Marines and navy men from Quonset hacked their way 1,400 feet up the side of the heavily wooded mountain this morning to find the battered body of the commodore lying face downward, with rain still beating down on it.

His body was 25 feet from the fuselage. A navy man hung Kiefer's muddy, gold-braided hat on the root of a near-by tree that had been torn up by the crash.

His Arm Still In Splints

The commodore's splint-bound arm stretched over a pile of soggy brown maple leaves. His arm had been in a cast since it was broken when Jap planes hit the aircraft carrier Ticonderoga during a battle off Formosa. It was in that battle that he was hit 65 times by shrapnel as he stood on the bridge.

Bodies of the other victims were scattered among the wreckage. All were taken to Quonset.

Kiefer, a bachelor, was born April 4, 1896, at Blackfoot, Idaho. He called Kansas City his "legal home." He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1918 and was on anti-submarine patrol in the first World War.

During World War II he participated in six major Pacific engagements, including the Coral Sea and Midway battles. He was executive officer of the carrier Yorktown when it was sunk by enemy action. He had been at Quonset since April and had been promised sea duty again when his arm healed.

New Bill Would Set Up A Department of Peace

Ludlow Offers It in House to Stop Rise of Militarism

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP).—Creation of a department of peace and good will was proposed today by Representative Louis Ludlow, Democrat, of Indiana, "as an antidote for the resurgence of militarism which is taking hold in certain sections of our country."

"Other nations are reported to be much confused by our militaristic preparations and are finding it difficult to reconcile our plans for forced military training and regimentation with our protestations for peace," he said in an Armistice Day speech.

He is offering a bill in the House to establish the new Federal department for "the fostering of amity among nations."

Steel corporation executives to their offices after the holiday was awaited for action on Secretary Schwellenbach's second invitation to resume negotiations with the CIO United Steelworkers tomorrow.

The union is demanding a $2 a day wage increase. The corporation president, B. F. Fairless, informed the Secretary of Labor any new negotiations could not be expected to bring results until the Office of Price Administation acts on price increases.

The steelworkers have asked for a strike vote throughout the industry to enforce their wage demands. The National Labors Relations Board announced the vote of 500,000 workers would be taken Nov. 28 at all but 14 of the more than 760 steel companies. Votes at the remaining 14 will be taken Dec. 6.

In the automobile industry the CIO United Automobile Workers placed their strike threat against the "big three" on a 24 hour basis. Employes of General Motors, Chrysler and Ford have voted in favor of a strike to win their demands for a 30 per cent wage rate increase.

House Congratulates Pershing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP).—The House unanimously directed Speaker Sam Rayburn today to send "an appropriate message" of tribute to General John J. Pershing on the twenty-seventh anniversary of the armistice ending the World War. General Pershing, eighty-five, who now lives at Walter Reed Hospital, commanded the American Expeditionary Force in that war.

Holiday Observed Peacefully Along Nation's Labor Front

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Armistice day holiday was observed peaceably along the nation's labor front yesterday with no new strikes of major importance developing.

Continuing disputes, many of several weeks' duration, however, kept about 272,000 persons off the job. Largest of these were the AFL lumber workers' walkout in the Pacific northwest, involving 60,000, and the AFL-CIO wage dispute in the San Francisco bay area, affecting nearly 60,000 directly and indirectly.

In Washington, the big national labor-management conference called by President Truman to seek a key to industrial peace was in recess.

7 Italians Reach U. S. For Ezra Pound Case

To Be Questioned in Washington on Poet's Broadcasting

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP).—Seven Italians who may testify in the treason trial of Ezra Pound, American poet who allegedly broadcast for the Axis during the war, arrived here today.

The group, flown from Italy, will be questioned by Justice Department attorneys. Later they will appear before a District of Columbia grand jury.

Justice Department officials said the grand jury would be asked to re-indict Pound for treason. The original indictment returned in 1943 was based on broadcast recordings by the Federal Communications Commission and on Federal Bureau of Investigations investigations.

The new indictment would be based on testimony by the Italian witnesses who claim to have seen Pound broadcast from Axis Rome. A department spokesman said the treason law required at least two witnesses to each overt act.

"It may be ten days to three weeks before the case can be presented to a grand jury," the spokesman said. "It all depends on the length of time the interviews take and when the grand jury wil be available to hear the witnesses."

The witnesses are Giuseppe Bruni, Fernando de Leonardis, Walter Zanchetti and Fernando Luzzi, former technicians for Radio Rome; Armando Giovagnoli, technician for Radio Milan; Angelo Marchitelli and Mario Conti, announcers for Radio Rome.

The Justice Department said they were former employees of the Italian Ministry of Popular Culture.

U. S. MUST UPHOLD POWER, SAYS HALSEY

CHICAGO, Nov. 12. — (AP) Admiral William F. Halsey declared tonight that if the United States forsakes the responsibilities that come with power "then we shall have lost the war we thought we won."

In an address prepared for delivery before the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Third fleet commander asserted:

"Let us not disappoint those people of this tense, waiting world who look to us now for leadership—and for protection.

"We are a great power in the world today. Whether we like it or not, the uneasy business of wearing this crown has become our destiny."

Halsey urged that the nation hold fast to its present strength and not "scrap what we now have in hope that some technical or political panacea may come to hand and prevent future wars."

SURPLUS AGENCIES ACCUSED OF FAILURE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—Representative Eberharter, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, told the House today that Government agencies handling surplus property disposal had made "a miserable failure" of following Congressional instructions to give purchase priorities to State and local governments and to veterans.

Soon thereafter, the office of Representative Fulton, Republican, of Pennsylvania, said that Mr. Fulton would introduce a resolution tomorrow asking for an inquiry into those phases of surplus disposal generally and for a specific investigation of the Pittsburgh office of the Smaller War Plants Corporation.

The director of veterans' affairs of that office, J. W. Copley, was suspended last week on charges of insubordination after asserting that veterans were not getting the "breaks" to which they were entitled.

War-Loaded Researchers Urged to Keep Pace

DAYTON—(A.P.) The wartime extra-curricular research done by American universities should be continued, in theopinion of Maj. J. G. P. Callahan, Chief of the Instrument and Navigation Branch of the Equipment Laboratory, Air Technical Service Command, at Wright Field.

Maj. Callahan, whose specialty has been the development and perfection of aircraft instruments and navigation aids, cited what he termed the "broadening results of military service, whether in this country or overseas," as "one reason why the average returning soldier will not be attracted to colleges or universities whose programs are modeled along pre-war lines.

"A single month, even one day, under certain conditions, may have given a service man the travel, contacts and experiences which he would not have gained in a lifetime, let alone four years of study," he observed. "Schools of higher learning must take all this into account. And their laboratory curricula must keep abreast of science in all its forms.

"In this day, there is nothing deader than a yesterday's textbook on physics or chemistry. What good, for instance, is one that treats of atomic power in the abstract—as something for which Man is searching?"

FLIERS SAVED IN POTOMAC

Two Bail Out of Navy Plane—Four Others Are Missing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—Two of six persons on a Navy plane which ran out of fuel near Indianhead, Md., were rescued tonight from the Potomac River after parachuting from the craft.

The fate of the other four was not known.

Those rescued were Wave Lieut. Caroline Bohannan and Lieut. Comdr. Henry Mears, who were about a mile and a half apart in the river.

The Navy Department said that the plane was en route from Jacksonville, Fla., to the Anacostia Naval Air Station but was unable to land because of low ceiling and visibility.

COL. ADAMSON HONORED

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP)—Col. Hans C. Adamson, who recently retired from the Army Air forces, has been awarded the Legion of Merit for his service as chief of personnel narrative of air intelligence, it was announced today.

Col. Adamson was one of a group of fliers, including Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, who spent 24 days on life rafts after their Army bomber went down in the Pacific in 1942.

The colonel was on leave as assistant to the president of the American Museum of Natural History during his military service.

Reconversion Director John W. Snyder.

Mr. Small was said to believe that the tax situation might account for the slow progress made this fall in channeling goods into low and medium priced clothing. However, CPA officials now expect the supply of wool and cotton for such garments to exceed the October-November-December goal.

The inquiry now is being extended into washing machines, refrigerators, electric appliances, and other durable goods.

The CPA official said, however, that the reason generally appears to be either lack of sufficient production to do more than furnish stores with samples or difficulties in pricing.

Recruits Given Return Priority, GI Letter Says

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Another complaint from a Pacific soldier that the Army is keeping high-point men overseas while sending home men who re-enlist reached Capitol Hill today.

Representative Margaret Chase Smith (R., Maine) made public copies of two letters, one from a veteran whose name she did not disclose and her own to Secretary of War Patterson.

"Giant Re-Enlistment Push"

The soldier's letter said:

"A giant push is on to get men to re-enlist in the Army, for periods of one, two or three years. Now these men get an immediate furlough in the States and carry the highest priority for shipping space.

"Naturally, all of these replacements who are just overseas and have no points to speak of are signing up like mad as they get a beautiful cash bonus, and would have to be in the Army at least a year anyway. . . . That means that all high-point men, many with three years over here, have to wait.

Cites Men's Anger

"In some cases, and I saw this myself, high-point men are taken off ships so that the 'recruits' can go home!"

The soldier said the high-point men are so angry that there are "riots around town, and excessive drinking and brawls every night." He added: "Last night six men were killed when someone threw a hand grenade in a local cafe during a point argument."

"Many-Sided Double-Cross"

". . . When, in God's name, will Congress wise up to the many-sided double-cross that the War Department is handing the men over here, who have no way to protest, and are taking it on the chin while the WD uses this method to force re-enlistments?

"The assumption is that if you know you can't get home in a hurry you will sign up."

Mrs. Smith told Patterson that if the charges made by the soldier are true, "it is most unfair and unjust."

Refers To Ship Shortage

"I do not believe," she added, "that you can intentionally be allowing the ships to sail from ports under these circumstances, where high-point men are waiting, with the explanation that there is a shortage in transportation.

"Surely men willing to re-inlist should be given some incentive, but not to this extent, especially when it comes about by unfairness to the men of long service."

CPA Investigating Charges That Business Is Withholding Goods to Get Tax Benefits

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—The Government is investigating whether some new civilian goods are being withheld from market until 1946, when their makers can benefit from lowered Federal taxes.

A spokesman for the Civilian Production Administration, which is conducting the inquiry, said CPA has found no clear-cut evidence so far. But he added that the agency believes repeal of the excess profits tax on Dec. 31 "may be a factor" in causing some companies to delay the movement of goods to the public. The levy was repealed in the recent tax reduction bill.

John D. Small, CPA Administrator, started the investigation in the textile field, with the approval of Lack of Seamen Delays G. I. Return

Soldiers Serve on Ships—To Finish Europe by January 31 and Pacific by June 30.

Washington, Nov. 12 (A. P.).—The wails of high-point G. I.'s marooned around the world are reaching Washington in increasing volume.

A spokesman for the War Shipping Administration—which transports most of the troops—acknowledged today that the "heat is getting hotter" to bring home all men eligible for discharge.

But, he said, too many factors enter into the situation for an overnight solution.

First of all, this official who asked that his name not be used, told a reporter that the War Shipping Administration merely follows orders from the joint chiefs of staffs, picking up troops "when and where we're told." He insists that WSA is meeting all schedules of the joint chiefs of staff.

Shortage of Seamen.

There was no comment from the joint chiefs, but Army spokesman said a scarcity of seamen is an important factor in troop movements.

These spokesmen said that on the West Coast, for example, the lack of men for crews is so severe that the Army has assigned 280 soldiers to mess duties and 200 others to radio work on troop carriers working out of San Francisco. They added, however, that the Army expects to be only seven days behind its over-all troop return schedule by January 1.

Roughly 500,000 men a month are being brought home aboard Navy combat vessels, 200 Army ships and 470 operated by the War Shipping Administration. The WSA vessels include twenty liners built for passenger trade and 450 cargo ships converted for troop carrying.

The agency also has under its control about 4,000 other ships, most of them slow-moving Libertys. Occasionally one of these vessels brings back a handful of casual (unassigned) troops, but the joint chiefs have not directed that such ships be used for the mass movement of troops.

These vessels, the WSA spokesman said, lack sufficient feeding, bunking and toilet facilities, as well as proper ventilation.

Will Soon Pass Peak.

There are no present plans to convert more cargo ships, because it takes forty-odd days and $250,000. By that time, the WSA expects to be over the peak.

If all goes according to schedule, the WSA hopes to be out of Europe by the end of January, and out of the Pacific by the end of June.

So far no cargo or passenger vessels have been turned back to their private owners for commercial operation, the WSA says. An increasing number of ships, however, now haul commercial cargoes—coffee from Brazil, sugar from Cuba, rubber from the southwest Pacific and so on—but they remain under WSA control.

And some freighters, especially the slow Libertys, are being taken out of service and laid up. Others are experiencing long waits between sailings, both from American and foreign ports.

Another factor in the troop return situation is that each theater commander had the final say as to which troops will go home and when. This undoubtedly is keeping some high-point men abroad. The theater commander, for example, may not have suitable replacements.

FAMOUS FIRSTS UNITS RETURN

Many Of 1,942 GI's Made Sick In Rough Voyage

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Rushville Victory, flying a banner over the forecastle labeled "Famous Firsts," together with the insignia of six army units, docked at Staten Island today after a rough thirteen-day voyage from Marseille, France.

High waves rolled the transport so sharply that about 80 per cent of the 1,942 troops aboard were seasick.

'Hell On Wheels' Represented

Among the "Famous Firsts" aboard were high-point members of the 2d (Hell On Wheels) Armored Division, first to reach Berlin; the 83d Infantry Division, first to the Rhine; the 3d Armored, first into Austria; the 7th Army, first into Southern France; 1st Army, first into Germany, and the 29th Infantry Division, first into Normandy.

The Rushville Victory was among five troop-carrying ships whcih today disembarked here more than 5,400 veterans of the European Theater of Operations.

A majority of the men on the ship averaged more than 96 discharge points, but at least one—48-year-old Mast. Sergt. Julius B. Thomas, Junction City, Kan., said: "You can't get me out of the Army with a cannon."

Neighbors Meet On Return

Two Madison (Wis.) troops—Tech. 5/g Donald Graak and Tech. 5/g Jack Faust—had their first meeting since they entered the service.

"We knew each other as kids in Madison, went to high school together, were 30 months overseas in the 2d Armored and never met until we were headed for home," Faust said.

Both men wore the bright red fourragere, denoting two unit citations, and six battle stars. They are headed for discharge with 97 points each.

Tech. 5/g Stephen J. Zapcic, of Harrisburg, Pa., another member of the 2d Armored, said the outfit was one of two American units entitled to wear the fourragere, the other being the 82d Airborne Division.

BALTIMORE, NOV 12-(AP)-THOMAS J. O'DONNELL, BALTIMORE SUN-PAPERS WAR CORRESPONDENT, CAME HOME FROM THE PACIFIC TODAY DECLARING HE WAS CONVINCED THAT ARMY ORDERS REQUIRING THAT NEWS BE CHANNELED THROUGH ALLIED OFFICERS ARE RESTRICTING THE EFFICIENCY OF ALLIED CORRESPONDENTS IN JAPAN.

ARMY OFFICERS WHO MIGHT BE DIRECT SOURCES OF NEWS, HE EXPALINED, HAVE BEEN INSTRUCTED TO REFER REPORTERS TO PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICERS, WITH THE RESULT THAT MUCH INFORMATION COMES OUT IN OFFICIAL FORM AND OFTEN AFTER CONSIDERABLE DELAY.

O'CONNELL SAID IN AN INTERVIEW WITH THE SUN THAT THE NAVY, TO WHICH HE WAS ATTACHED AS A CORRESPONDENT ON GUAM, IN THE MARIANAS AND LATER IN JAPAN, SEEMED "CONSISTENTLY EAGER TO GIVE REPORTERS FREE ACCESS TO SOURCES OF NEWS UNDER ITS JURISDICTION."

"EVEN WHILE CENSORSHIP WAS STILL IN EFFECT, THE SAME DIFFERENCE WAS EVIDENT," HE SAID.

"FURTHERMORE, CRITICISM OF THE NAVY AND OF NAVAL POLICY WAS ALLOWED, AND OUR FREEDOM OF MOVEMENT WAS GREATER THAN THAT OF CORRESPONDENTS ATTACHED TO THE ARMY."

Truman Agrees to Joint Inquiry With British on Palestine Issues; Attlee Urges Atom-Bomb Unity

Truman Announces Plan to Study Question of Jewish Immigration.

BEVIN INFORMS COMMONS

Suggests America and Other Countries Admit Jews as Part of Solution.

Washington, Nov. 13 (A. P.).—President Truman announced today that the United States has agreed to the establishment of a joint Anglo-American committee to examine the whole Palestine problem.

The British suggested the creation of the committee after Mr. Truman had proposed admission of an additional 100,000 Jews to Palestine. Mr. Truman previously has disclosed that Prime Minister Attlee felt that figure was too high.

President Truman's statement, issued by the White House, said the committee will:

1. Examine political, economic and social conditions in Palestine as "they bear upon the problem of Jewish immigration."

2. Examine the position of the Jews in European countries "where they have been the victims of Nazi and Fascist persecution.

3. Hear the views of competent witnesses "and to consult representative Arabs and Jews."

4. Make recommendations to the two governments to meet immediate needs either by remedial action in Europe or by providing facilities for Jewish immigration to countries outside of Europe.

[In Jerusalem a well-informed person said tonight a proposal that Palestine be changed from a British mandate to an Anglo-American trusteeship had been made at a meeting of Arab and Jewish leaders called here by Acting Commissioner Shaw. The British also proposed, it was said, that Jews be granted 1,500 immigration certificates per month for an indefinite period. Another reported proposal was for a commission to conduct an inquiry among the Jews of Europe to determine how many want to come to Palestine.]

Letter Made Public.

The President made public a copy of a letter he wrote Attlee August 31, suggesting that the British permit an additional 100,000 Jews to enter Palestine.

"I continue to adhere to the views expressed in that letter," his statement said.

In his letter to Attlee, Mr. Truman said the "main solution" to the Jewish problem appeared to lie in the quick evacuation of as many Jews as possible to Palestine.

"If it is to be effective such action should not long be delayed," he told the British leader.

The President's statement said that he was advised by the British that because of conditions in Palestine, "it was not in a position to adopt the policy recommended, but that it was deeply concerned with the situation of the Jews in Europe."

During the subsequent discussions, he said, the British suggested the establishment of the joint committee of inquiry under a rotating chairmanship "to examine the whole question and to make a further review" in the light of that study and other considerations.

"In view of our intense interest in this matter and of our belief that such a committee will be of aid in finding a solution which will be both humane and just, we have acceded to the British suggestion," the President's statement said.

Bevin Sees Peace Involved.

London, Nov. 13 (A. P.).—Britain and the United States pledged themselves today to a joint effort to resolve the Jewish problem in Europe and Palestine—a question which Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin described in Commons possibly involving world peace.

Later at a press conference, discussing the subject of where Jewish refugees could go other than Palestine, Bevin said:

"I think America should take a number, and other countries could also help out."

Bevin told Commons both Britain and the United States favored an interim settlement of the Jewish question pending the submission of a proposed permanent solution to the United Nations Organization. He asked members of parliament "in this crisis in the world" not to pursue racial antagonism and said:

"We have had so many wars, so much bloodshed, over racial antagonism that this house will help me to keep it under check in order that I may find a solution."

Britain's labor government, he said is satisfied that the course it plans to pursue on the Palestine problem in the immediate future is "not only in accordance" with its obligations, but also is in the best interests of both Jews and Arabs. Britain governs Palestine under a mandate from the old League of Nations.

Nothing was mentioned about establishing a national home for the Jews in Palestine.

At a press conference following his Commons appearance, Bevin said he believed a Jewish home could be established in Palestine "If we handle the thing properly."

"We never undertook to establish a Jewish state," he said. "We did undertake to establish a home and that we must fulfill."

Amplyfying his Commons statement that any attempt to settle the Palestine problem by force would be "resolutely dealt with," Bevin said that he was not referring to the use of American troops. He added that the United States regarded that phase of the problem "as a British responsibility."

Intimating a possible early termination of Britain's mandate over Palestine, Bevin earlier told Commons the British-American Inquiry Committee's permanent recommendations would "facilitate arrangements for placing Palestine under a trusteeship." Presumably he referred to a trusteeship held by the United Nations, although he did not make this clear.

The Foreign Secretary said that the Jewish problem created by the Nazis could not be dealt with only in relation to Palestine.

To Consult Arabs.

Declaring that the problem of Jews and Arabs in Palestine "must be settled by discussion and conciliation," Bevin said: "There can be no question of allowing an issue to be forced by violent conflict.

"We have confidence that if this problem is approached in the right spirit by Arabs and Jews, not only will a solution be found to the Palestine question just to both parties, but a great contribution will be made to the stability and peace of the Middle East."

Pending receipt of an interim recommendation from a joint British-American Inquiry Committee, Bevin said, United States and British officials will consult Arabs to insure against interruption of Jewish immigration into Palestine at the present monthly rate of 1,500.

Bevin said the British government had an obligation to both the Jews and Arabs in Palestine. He added that a lack of a "clear definition of this dual obligation has been the main cause of the trouble which has been experienced in Palestine during the past twenty-six years."

Bevin told Commons that there recently had been demands made on the British Government for "large-scale immigration" of Jews into Palestine from war-ravaged Europe.

"Palestine, while it may be able to make a contribution," he said, "does not provide sufficient opportunity to grapple with the whole of the problem. The Government is anxious to explore every possibility which will result in giving the Jews a proper opportunity for revival."

Saying the problem of Palestine was itself a "very difficult one," the Foreign Secretary added that the mandate required facilitation of Jewish immigration and encouragement of close settlement by Jews on the land "while ensuring that the right and position of other sections of the population is not prejudiced."

Declaring Britain's Labor Government had been giving serious and continuous attention to the whole problem of the Jewish community that had arisen as a result of Nazi persecution, Bevin said:

"It is unfortunately true that, until conditions in Europe become stable, the future of a large number of persons of many races who have suffered under this persecution cannot be fully determined."

Bevens Reveals Is Planned Trusteeship for Palestine

NACK SMITH

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(AP) Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, announcing in Commons that the United States and Britain jointly would attempt to solve the Jewish problem in Palestine and Europe, today indicated that Palestine eventually would be placed under "a trusteeship."

In the first intimation that Britain might terminate her mandate over the Holy Land, Bevin declared that recommendations made by an Anglo-American committee on the Jewish question would "facilitate arrangements for placing Palestine under a trusteeship."

Presumably he referred to a trusteeship of the United Nations Organization, although he did not make this point clear. The committee's permanent proposals, he said, would be submitted to "the appropriate agency" of the United Nations.

In Jerusalem, where proposals were laid before a meeting of Arab and Jewish leaders by the acting high commissioner, informed sources said it was suggested that the British mandate be replaced by an Anglo-American trusteeship. Other proposals reported at the meeting followed closely those made by Bevin.

A few minutes after his Commons statement, Bevin—in an interpretation of the Balfour Declaration—told a press conference that Britain "never undertook to establish a Jewish state" in Palestine, but did promise to set up a Jewish National home there and must fulfill that promise.

Any attempt to settle the Palestine problem by force, he told Commons amid cheers, would be "resolutely dealt with." He later told correspondents this did not mean United States troops would be used there, since the United States "regard that as a British responsibility."

Bevin told Commons that an Anglo-American committee, with a rotating chairmanship, would investigate the ability of Palestine "and other countries" to absorb Jewish immigrants and would make recommendations both for an interim and a permanent solution.

Until the joint committee's report has been received and acted upon, Bevin said, the present rate of Palestine Jewish immigration—1,500 persons a month—will be continued.

Commenting on the Foreign Secretary's announcement, the London office of the Jewish agency for Palestine declared:

"The only solution for the twin problems of the Jewish people and Palestine is the re-establishment of a Jewish state. Freedom to return to Palestine is the inalienable right of every Jew. The Jewish problem is not limited to the Jews in Europe, nor did it arise with Nazi persecution. It is an age-long world problem."

The Arab office in London, semi-official spokesman for the powerful Arab league, also expressed disapproval of Bevin's statement.

"It must be a matter for regret in Arab Circles that the Palestine question should now be reopened," it said.

Plan General Strike

JERUSALEM, Nov. 13.—(AP) The Jewish National council tonight called a general strike of Palestine Jews tomorrow to protest new British proposals for settlement of the Palestine problem.

In addition the council (Vaad Leumi) imposed a curfew on all Jewish towns and villages in Palestine. All Jews working on British government or military enterprises were asked to quit their jobs. An effort also will be made to halt all interurban traffic in Jewish sectors of Palestine.

The strike is scheduled to begin at noon tomorrow and continue until midnight. It will be followed Thursday by a day of prayer and fasting.

Dr. Bernard Joseph, acting head of the Jewish agency political department, said in an interview that the Jewish people would never submit to the Palestine policy as expressed by the British government today.

"We have informed the officer administering the government to this effect," he said.

Separate Meetings Held

The Jewish agency and the national council held separate meetings after a conference of Arab and Jewish leaders with British Commissioner J. V. W. Shaw during which the British proposals for a new Palestine policy were outlined.

Other Jewish spokesmen said a continuation of the present 1,500 immigrant quota a month was insufficient to meet the needs of displaced Jews in Europe. They also contended that the establishment of a trusteeship would cause a further delay in a final settlement of the question.

Truman and Bevin Statements on Palestine

The complete texts of President Truman's Washington statement yesterday on Palestine, and of British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's London statement in the House of Commons follow, as reported by The Associated Press:

Truman's Statement

Following the receipt of information from various sources regarding the distressing situation of Jewish victims of Nazi and Fascist persecution in Europe, I wrote to Mr. Attlee on Aug. 31 bringing to his attention the suggestion in a report of Mr. Earl G. Harrison that the granting of an additional 100,000 certificates for the immigration of Jews into Palestine would alleviate the situation. A copy of my letter to Mr. Attlee is being made available to the press. I continue to adhere to the views expressed in that letter.

I was advised by the British government that because of conditions in Palestine it was not in a position to adopt the policy recommended, but that it was deeply concerned with the situation of the Jews in Europe.

During the course of subsequent discussions between the two governments, it suggested the establishment of a joint Anglo-American committee of inquiry, under a rotating chairmanship, to examine the whole question and to make a further review of the Palestine problems in the light of that examination and other relevant considerations.

In view of our intense interest in this matter and of our belief that such a committee will be of aid in finding a solution which will be both humane and just, we have acceded to the British suggestion.

Terms of Reference

The terms of reference this committee has agreed upon between the two governments are as follows:

1. To examine political, economic and social conditions in Palestine as they bear upon the problem of Jewish immigration and settlement therein and the well-being of the peoples now living therein.

2. To examine the position of the Jews in those countries in Europe where they have been the victims of Nazi and Fascist persecution and the practical measures taken or contemplated to be taken in those countries to enable them to live free from discrimination and oppression and to make estimates of those who wish or who will be impelled by their conditions to migrate to Palestine or other countries outside Europe.

3. To hear the views of competent witnesses and to consult representative Arabs and Jews on the problems of Palestine as such problems are affected by conditions subject to examination under Paragraphs 1 and 2 above and by other relevant facts and circumstances and to make recommendations to His Majesty's Government and the government of the United States for ad interim handling of these problems as well as for permanent solution.

Will Make Palestine Survey

4. To make such other recommendations to His Majesty's Government and the government of the United States as may be necessary to meet the immediate needs arising from conditions subject to examination under Paragraph 2 above by remedial action in the European countries in question or by the provision of facilities for emigration to and settlement in countries outside Europe.

It will be observed that among the important duties of this committee will be the task of examining conditions in Palestine as they bear upon the problem of Jewish immigration.

The establishment of this committee will make possible a prompt review of the unfortunate plight of the Jews in those countries in Europe where they have been subjected to persecution, and a prompt examination of questions related to the rate of current immigration into Palestine and the absorptive capacity of the country.

The situation faced by displaced Jews during the coming winter allows no delay in this matter. I hope the committee will be able to accomplish its important task with the greatest speed.

The text of the letter addressed to the Prime Minister of Great Britain under date of Aug. 31, 1945, follows:

My dear Mr. Prime Minister:

Because of the natural interest of this government in the present condition and future fate of those displaced persons in Germany who may prove to be stateless or non-repatriable, we recently sent Mr. Earl G. Harrison to inquire into the situation.

Mr. Harrison was formerly the United States Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization and is now the representative of this government on the Intergovernmental Committee on Refugees. The United Kingdom and the United States, as you know, have taken an active interest in the work of this committee.

Both Zones Visited

Instructions were given to Mr. Harrison to inquire particularly into the problems and needs of the Jewish refugees among the displaced persons.

Mr. Harrison visited not only the American zone in Germany but spent some time also in the British zone, where he was extend every courtesy by the 21st Army headquarters.

I have now received his report. In view of our conversations at Potsdam I am sure that you will find certain portions of the report interesting. I am, therefore, sending you a copy.

I should like to call your attention to the conclusions and recommendations appearing on page 8 and the following pages —especially the references to Palestine. It appears that the available certificates for immigration to Palestine will be exhausted in the near future. It is suggested that the granting of an additional one hundred thousand of such certificates would contribute greatly to a sound solution for the future of Jews still in Germany and Austria and for other Jewish refugees who do not wish to remain where they are or who for understandable reasons do not desire to return to their countries of origin.

On the basis of this and other information which has come to me I concur in the belief that no other single matter is so important for those who have known the horrors of concentration camps for over a decade as is the future of immigration possibilities into Palestine. The number of such persons who wish immigration to Palestine or who would qualify for admission there is, unfortunately, no longer as large as it was before the Nazis began their extermination program. As I said to you in Potsdam, the American people, as a whole, firmly believe that immigration into Palestine should not be closed and that a reasonable number of Europe's persecuted Jews should, in accordance with their wishes, be permitted to resettle there.

I know you are in agreement on the proposition that future peace in Europe depends in large measure upon our finding sound solutions of problems confronting the displaced and formerly persecuted groups of people. No claim is more meritorious than that of the groups who for so many years have known persecution and enslavement.

The main solution appears to lie in the quick evacuation of as many as possible of the non-repatriable Jews, who wish it, to Palestine. If it is to be effective such action should not be long delayed.

Very sincerely yours.

HARRY S. TRUMAN.

Bevin's Statement

His Majesty's Government have been giving serious and continuous attention to the whole problem of the Jewish community that has arisen as a result of Nazi persecution in Germany and the conditions arising therefrom.

It is unfortunately true that, until conditions in Europe become stable, the future of a large number of persons of many races who have suffered under this persecution cannot finally be determined.

The plight of the victims of Nazi persecution, among whom was a large number of Jews, is unprecedented in the history of the world. His Majesty's Government are taking every step open to them to try to improve the lot of these unfortunate people.

The Jewish problem is a great human one. We cannot accept the view that the Jews should be driven out of Europe and should not be permitted to live again in these countries without discrimination and contribute their ability and talent towards rebuilding the prosperity of Europe.

Even after we have done all we can in this respect, it does not provide a solution of the whole problem. There has recently been demands made upon us for large-scale immigration into Palestine. Palestine, while it may be able to make a contribution, does not by itself provide sufficient opportunity for grappling with the whole problem. His Majesty's government are anxious to explore every possibility which will result in giving the Jews a proper opportunity for revival.

The problem of Palestine is itself a very difficult one.

The mandate for Palestine requires the mandatory to facilitate Jewish immigration and to encourage close settlement by Jews on the land while insuring the rights and position of other sections of the population are not prejudiced thereby. His Majesty's Government have thus a dual obligation to the Jews on the one side and to the Arabs on the other. The lack of any clear definition of this dual obligation has been the main cause of the trouble which has been experienced in Palestine during the last twenty-six years.

His Majesty's Government has made every effort to devise some arrangement which would enable Arabs and Jews to live together in peace and to co-operate for the welfare of the country, but such efforts have been unavailing.

Any arrangement acceptable to one party has been rejected as unacceptable to the other. The whole history of Palestine since the mandate was granted has been one of continued friction between the two races, culminating at intervals in serious disturbances.

The fact has to be faced that since the introduction of the mandate it has been impossible to find common ground between the Arabs and the Jews. The differences in religion and in language, in cultural and social life, in ways of thought and conduct are difficult to reconcile. On the other hand both communities lay claim to Palestine, one on the ground of a millennium of occupation and the other on the ground of historic association coupled with the undertaking given in the first world war to establish a Jewish home.

The task that has to be accomplished now is to find means to reconcile these divergencies. The repercussion of the conflict has spread far beyond the small land in which it has arisen. The Zionist cause has strong supporters in the U. S. A., in Great Britain, in the Dominions and elsewhere. Civilization has been appalled by the sufferings which have been inflicted in recent years on the persecuted Jews of Europe.

India Interested In Arabs

On the other side of the picture the cause of the Palestinian Arabs has been espoused by the whole Arab world and more lately has become a matter of keen interest to their 90,000,000 co-religionists in India. In Palestine itself there is always a serious risk of disturbances on the part of one community or the other, and such disturbances are found to find a reflection in a much wider field.

Considerations not only of equity and of humanity but also of international amity and world peace are thereby involved in the search of any solution. In dealing with Palestine all the parties have entered into commitments. There are the commitments imposed by the mandate itself and in addition the various statements of policy which have been made by His Majesty's Government in the course of the last twenty-five

Further, the United States government themselves have undertaken that no decision shall be taken in respect of what in their opinion affects the basic situation in Palestine without full consultation with both Arabs and Jews.

Having regard to the whole situation and the fact that this has caused this world-wide interest which affects both Arabs and Jews, His Majesty's Government decided to invite the government of the U. S. A. to cooperate with them in setting up a joint Anglo-American committee of inquiry, under a rotating chairman, to examine the question of European Jewry and to make a further review of the Palestine problem in the light of that examination.

U. S. Accepts Invitation

I am glad to be able to inform the House that the government of the U. S. A. have accepted this invitation. The terms of reference that have been agreed with the U. S. A. and His Majesty's governmen tare as follows:

1. To examine the political, economic and social conditions in Palestine as they bear upon the problem of Jewish immigration and settlement therein and the well-being of the peoples now living therein.

2. To examine the position of the Jews in those countries in Europe where they have been the victims of Nazi and Fascist persecution and the practical measures taken or contemplated to be taken in those countries to enable them to live free from discrimination and oppression and to make estimates of those who wish or who may be impelled by those conditions to migrate to Palestine or other countries outside Europe.

3. To hear the views of competent witnesses and to consult representatives, Arabs and Jews, on the problems of Palestine as such problems are affected by the conditions subject to the examination under Paragraphs 1 and 2, as above, and by other relevant facts and circumstances and to make recommendations to his majesty's government and the government of the U. S. A. for an interim handling of those problems as well as their permanent solution.

4. To make such other recommendations to his majesty's government and the government of the U. S. A. as may be necessary to meet the immediate needs arising from conditions subject to examination in Part 2, above, by remedial action in the European countries in question and by the provision of the facilities for immigration and settlement in countries outside Europe.

The procedure of the committee will be determined by the committee itself, and it will be open to them if they think fit to deal simultaneously, through the medium of subcommittees, with their various terms of reference. The committee will be invited to deal with the matters referred to in their terms of reference with the utmost expedition. In complying with the second and fourth paragraphs of the terms of reference, the committee will presumably take such steps as they consider necessary in order to inform themselves of the character and the magnitude of the problem created by the war.

Will Seek Interim Solution

They will also give consideration to the problems of settlement in Europe and to possible countries of disposal. In the light of their investigations they will make recommendations to the two countries for dealing with the problem in the interim until such time as a permanent solution can be submitted to the appropriate organ of the United Nations.

The recommendations of the committee of inquiry, as they will now be set up, will be of immense help in arriving at a solution to the Palestine problems. The committee, will in accordance with the first and third parts of their terms of reference, make an examination on the spot of the political, economic and social conditions which are at present held to restrict immigration into Palestine and, after consulting representative Arabs and Jews, submit proposals for dealing with these problems.

It will be necessary for His Majesty's government both to take action with a view to securing some satisfactory interim arrangement and also to devise a policy for permanent application thereafter.

This inquiry will facilitate the finding of a solution which will, in turn, facilitate arrangements for placing Palestine under trusteeship.

So far as Palestine is concerned, it will be clear that His Majesty's government cannot divest themselves of their duties and responsibilities under the mandate while the mandate continues.

They propose, in accordance with their pledges, to deal with the question in three stages. They will consult the Arabs with a view to arrangements which will insure, that pending the receipt of the ad interim recommendation which the committee of inquiry will make in the matter, there is no interruption of Jewish immigration at the present monthly rate.

After considering the ad interim recommendations of the committee of inquiry, they will explore with the parties concerned the possibility of devising other temporary arrangements for dealing with the Palestine problem until a permanent solution to it can be reached.

They will prepare a permanent solution for submission to the United Nations and, if possible, an agreed one.

The House will realize that we have inherited in Palestine a most difficult legacy and our task is greatly complicated by undertakings given at various times to various parties which we feel ourselves bound to honor. Any violent departure without adequate consultation would not only afford grounds for a charge of breach of faith against His Majesty's government but would cause serious reaction throughout the Middle East, and would arouse widespread anxiety in India.

The government is satisfied that the course they propose to pursue in the immediate future is not only that in accordance with their obligations, but also that which in the long view is in the best interests of both parties. It will in no way prejudice other action taken on the recommendation of the committee of inquiry.

His majesty's government in making this new approach wish to make it clear that the Palestine problem is not one that can be settled by force; that any attempt to do so by any party will be resolutely dealt with. It must be settled by discussion and conciliation and there can be no question of allowing the issue to be forced by violent conflict. We have confidence if this problem is approached in the right spirit by Arabs and Jews not only will a solution be found that is just to both parties, but a great contribution made to the stability and peace of the Middle East.

Finally the initiative taken by his majesty's government and the agreement of the U. S. A. government to co-operate in dealing with the whole problem created by Nazi aggression is the significant sign of the determination to deal with this problem in a constructive way and humanitarian spirit. I must emphasize this problem is not one which can be dealt with only in relations to Palestine.

It will need the united effort of the powers to relieve the misery of these suffering people. Throughout, there has been the closest consultation between the Secretary of State for the Colonites and myself in this matter, which concerns him since the mandatory status of Palestine brings that territory within the responsibility of the Colonial Office.

But it is also of deep concern to me since the problem is clearly an international problem.

It is the intention of the government that the problem shall be continued to be handled in close collaboration between our two departments in order that the particular question of Palestine and the wider international issues which are involved may be harmonized and treated as a whole, as a great human problem.

Palestine Trusteeship Urged

CLEVELAND, Nov. 13 (AP)—The Atlantic Charter League of America today urged that a United Nation trusteeship of Palestine replace British control of the mandate. In a telegram to President Truman, the league declared that the proposed limitation of Jewish settlement in Palestine was an unprecedented breach of faith toward the nations of the world, who had entrusted Great Britain with guardianship of Palestine under an explicit covenant guaranteeing the upbuilding of Palestine as a Jewish national home."

WORLD CONFERENCE HINTED BY ATTLEE

Prime Minister Calls for Close U. S.-British Cooperation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 — (AP) Prime Minister Clement Attlee, in a plea for world-wide "good neighborliness," today informed Congress that his atomic bomb talks with President Truman are the prelude to grand-scale discussions with other countries to make the earth secure for the "common man."

He forecast an effort to "get together with all the nations of the world" as a result of the talks being held here.

At the same time he called for closer cooperation between the United States and Britain and declared that their expanding economies need not produce "any undue rivalry" between them.

To assembled representatives and senators who may soon have to decide on a multi-billion loan for Britain he explained the socialist aims and policies of his labor government, but said the world had room for both British socialism and American capitalism.

The square-jawed Labor leader's speech was widely complimented by Senators and Representatives for what they called its "frankness," although many were critical of the plans Attlee discussed for nationalizing major British industries and creating a planned economy.

Senator Thomas (D.-Okla.) said Attlee's purpose "apparently was to sell the Labor party to the United States and personally I think he did a good job." Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee said Attlee showed "a wide grasp of both British domestic politics and international relations."

Senators Wheeler (D.-Mont.) and Ellender (D.-La.) said a planned economy such as Attlee outlined could lead eventually to dictatorship. Rep. Anderson (R.-Calif.) said that Attlee's government wants a planned economy and "we have tried that long enough over here to know it won't work."

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) said the prime minister "made a pleasing appearance."

It was not the first time that a British government leader had spoken to Congress. Winston Churchill appeared at the capitol during the war. But the circumstances were rendered unusual by (1) the fact that many congressmen have been critical of Attlee's government for asking a loan here with a socialist program at home and by (2) the background of the atomic conference underway at the White House.

Attlee had little to say about this meeting with President Truman and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada. He started that by saying weapons already in existence or soon to be developed "may menace every part of the world in a few years" so that oceans and mountain barriers have lost their value for defense.

"It is in the light of these facts," he said, "and in particular in the light — the terrible light — of the atomic bomb that I have entered into discussion with your President in order that we may get together with all the nations of the world and consider what kind of a world it is necessary to have if civilization is to endure and if the common man in all lands is to feel secure."

To Inform Russia

He did not say how this international approach was to be achieved, but both British and American officials have privately indicated that Russia would be advised immediately of decisions made here and that relatively soon the broad problems of peace in an atomic age might be put up to the United Nations.

Attlee and Mr. Truman held their third conference from 5 to 7 p.m. today and Dr. Vannevar Bush, director of the office of scientific research and development, was among those sitting in the White House meeting.

Others included Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, Secretary of State Byrnes, Adm. William D. Leahy, the President's chief of staff; Sir John Anderson, chairman of the British atomic energy advisory commission; the Earl of Halifax, British ambassador; Leon Pearson, Canadian ambassador, and T. L. Rowan, Attlee's secretary. Presidential Secretary William D. Hassett said the same group would meet again at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The talks which Attlee has been holding with the President and Canadian Prime Minister are tentatively slated to end Thursday night, it was learned today. A joint communique is due, probably Friday, onAnglo-American-Canadian plans for controlling the atomic bomb menace and developing atomic energy. Attlee has arranged to leave here Friday.

His talks with the President and Mackenzie King appear to have gone smoothly except for public relations handling of the whole conference. The White House and State department put a lid on all information, but information has been coming out from British sources—about all the information the world has received, in fact.

This has proved to be a sore point at the White House and there was evidence Mr. Truman was irked by it. William D. Hassett, presidential secretary, reiterated today when reporters questioned him that the President is "honor bound" not to talk about the conference in advance of the communique.

In talking to Congress Attlee described the labor government's attitude toward foreign policy as the belief that "we cannot make a heaven in our own country and leave a hell outside."

He described his government's determination to socialize great segments of Britain's economy and plan the social and economic future of the country. But these actions should not cause Anglo-American friction, he said.

"I look forward to an era of increasing cooperation and friendship between the U.S.A. and Great Britain," he declared, "not as being an exclusive friendship but as a contribution to the knitting together with all peoples through the United Nations organization in the bonds of peace.

"In our internal policies each will follow the course decided by the peoples' will. You will see us embarking on projects of nationalization; on wide all-embracing schemes of social insurance designed to give security to the common man. We shall be working out a planned economy. You, it may be, will continue in your more individualistic methods.

"It is more important that we should understand each other and nations whose institutions differ from our own. It is essential if we are to build up a peaceful world that we should have the widest toleration, recognizing that our aim is not uniformity but unity in diversity.

"It would be a dull world if we were all alike."

Administration and congressional reaction to the British Prime Minister's speech continued to pour in:

Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan said:

"I was particularly interested in his remarks about the Labor party."

Senator Thomas Hart (R-Conn.): "I like his declaration that Britain had not been beaten in five years of war and would not be beaten by any questions of economy."

Senator Styles Bridges (D-N.H.): "It was a speech of friendly cooperation and an attempt to justify the Labor party of Great Britain."

Senator Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.): "An able exposition of the aims of the Labor party. He manifested sincere interest in peace, which we all share. A labor government is all right for Britain if that is what they want, but he hasn't convinced me that our way of controlling abuses by law isn't superior to government ownership."

war to find "his home blitzed and his business ruined."

"We went all out to win the war and now have to start afresh," he said. "Like him, we are facing the future with courage and a determination to win through."

Attlee said he looked forward to "an area of increasing co-operation and friendship" between the United States and Britain. That friendship, he said, should not be "exclusive," but rather "a contribution to the knitting together with all peoples through the United Nations Organization in the bonds of peace."

Silent On Financial Aid

Although Attlee is known to have conferred with Lord Keynes on the progress of negotiations for a United States loan to Britain, he made no direct reference in his address to British requests for financial aid.

and Britain "should understand each other and other nations whose institutions differ from our own."

"I hope to see a world as orderly as a well-run town, with citizens diverse in character but co-operating for the common good," he said.

Attlee said the world's greatest task today is to "bring home to all people before it is too late that our civilization can only survive by the acceptance and practice in international relations and in our national life of the Christian principle—we are members of one another."

Atom-Bomb Reference

Referring to talks with President Truman, Attlee repeated one phrase from his speech in Britain last week.

It was, he said, particularly "in the light—the terrible light—of the atomic bomb" that he had crossed the Atlantic to confer with Mr. Truman.

The discussions were launched, he added, "in order that we may get together with all the nations of the world and consider what kind of a world it is necessary to have if civilization is to endure and if the common man in all lands is to feel secure."

success in this visit. Sirs, in democracies great men are the possession of the whole people.

Speaking here today, I cannot but remember that great statesman, President Roosevelt. I should be expressing, I know, the feelings not only of the people of Great Britain but of the Commonwealth and Empire in paying tribute to his great services not only to his own country but to humanity. It was a sorrow to us that he was not able to visit Britain where we should have given him a welcome that would have expressed all that was in our hearts.

Three Linked In Achievement

In the struggle against the forces of tyranny the names of these two men, Churchill and Roosevelt, together with that of Generalissimo Stalin, will ever be linked in achievement.

I was glad to meet President Truman for a brief moment here in Washington when I was returning from the San Francisco Conference, and I had the advantage of observing and admiring his courage and statesmanship at Potsdam, where with him and Generalissimo deadlier, longer and more terrible than its predecessor.

"Honor Enough For All"

We should none of us be here today unless all the Allies had done their part, unless the unequaled fighting forces and matchless industrial scientific resources of the United States had been thrown without reserve into the pool. We rightly today pay honor to all the Allies. There is honor enough for all; for those who fought in the West and in the East, in the air, on the land and on the sea, for those who fought in the formed units of the great states, for those who served in the resistance movements in so many countries and for those who stood firm when their homes were bombed.

All contributed, but the greatest contribution was made by those with the greatest resources, the United States of America, Russia and the British Commonwealth and Empire.

Praise For Canada

Twice in a generation the countries of the British Commonwealth and Empire came instantly to the help of Great Britain and none made a greater contribution than Canada, whose Prime Minister I erous provisions of lend-lease. I recollect two years before the event General Marshall unfolding to us in the Cabinet room his conception of the invasion of Europe.

America's Strength

Then I remember so well the tremendous strength of the United States of America, slowly at first and then swiftly developing to take the weight from those who had borne the burden in the early years of the war.

Today the United States stands out as the mightiest power on earth. And yet America is a threat to no one. All know that she will never use her power for selfish aims or territorial aggrandizement in the future any more than she has done in the past. We look upon her forces and our own forces and those of other nations as instruments that must never be employed save in the interest of world security and for the repression of the aggressor.

Early Peace Preparations

When I was last here I was taking part in the San Francisco Conference, a conference summoned by President Roosevelt with wise prescience while war was still raging in order that as soon as victory was secured we might have an instrument ready to hand for the prevention of all wars in the future.

We have gone through a horrible destructive war. You here have lost great numbers of the flower of your young men. So have we in Britain. So have all the countries that have been engaged in this great struggle, but you have been spared the destruction of your great cities, you have not had in America the spectacle of hundreds of thousands of broken homes, you have not had great masses of people, driven from their habitations, wandering about seeking somewhere to lay their heads.

U.S. Spared Devastation

You have not had the work of centuries of human endeavor destroyed in a few short hours by attacks from the air. But I know that you are fully conscious of the tragic folly of war. There was a time which I remember when we in Britain enjoyed the same immunity. Wars might devastate the Continent, but we were safe behind our moat, the inviolable sea.

Those days are past. Defensive frontiers, mountain barriers, the seas and even the oceans are no obstacle to attack. The old discontinuity of earth and sea has been replaced by the continuity of the air. In our atlases that show the division of land and water, of the countries and states, there should be a blank page which should represent the air to make our children realize that these old and historic divisions do not exist in the element in which men now move. If not now, then in a few years, the devastating weapons which are at present being developed may menace every part of the world.

Concerned With Bombs

It is in the light of these facts and in particular in the light—the terrible light of the atomic bomb, that I have entered into discussion with your President in order that we may get together wtih all the nations of the world and consider what kind of a world it is necessary to have if civilization is to endure and if the common man in all lands is to feel secure.

But in facing world problems as we must, it is a great mistake in my view to think constantly of war and the prevention of war. We have to think rather of the best means of building peace. Speaking last week in London, I said that the foundation of peace lay in the hearts of men and I hold it true that the more the citizens of the world can get to know each other the less likely are we to have the emotional condition in which war is possible.

Fortunate Meetings

We have been fortunate in this war to have welcomed to our shores so many citizens of the United States of America. There have been many friendships made, many misunderstandings have been removed, because almost inevitably knowing each other only from a distance we see each other in distorted way. All the differences are emphasized. The underlying likeness is obscured, but the British soldier and the American soldier when they came to close quarters soon found how much they had in common. I hold, therefore, that our United Nations organization, in which I profoundly believe, must be something more than an agreement between governments.

Discusses Misapprehensions

It must be an expression of the will of the common people in every country. Perhaps I might assist today in removing some misapprehensions. I come before you as the Prime Minister of Great Britain, but in accordance with our constitutional practice, I am also a party leader; the leader of a majority recently returned to power in the House of Commons.

I wonder how much you know about the British Labor party. We are not always very well informed on the politics of other countries. I doubt in fact whether very many British citizens know the exact difference between a Republican and a Democrat. You have heard that we are Socialists, but I wonder just what that means to you. I think that some people over here imagine that Socialists are out to

Anglo-U.S. Economic Rivalry Is Needless, He Tells Congress

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—Prime Minister Clement Attlee told Congress today that the foundations of peace must be "world prosperity and good neighborliness." There is "no reason," he said, for economic rivalry between Great Britain and the United States.

Speaking in the House of Representatives to senators and congressmen who must approve any United States financial aid for Britain, Attlee frankly sought to remove what he called "some apprehensions" about his Labor party's program.

In his 3,000-word address, the British leader mentioned only briefly the prime purpose of his visit to this country—to discuss with President Truman the eventual disposition of the secrets of atomic bomb production. He gave no indication of the course which the conferences are taking.

Attlee likened his country to a man in Britain returning from the

The Prime Minister said he believed "some people over here" imagined that the British Labor party was "out to destroy freedom—freedom of the individual, freedom of religion and freedom of the press."

"They are wrong," he asserted, adding that the Labor party was "in the tradition" of all British freedom-loving movements and "in line" with "those who fought for the Magna Charta and habeas corpus, with the Pilgrim Fathers and with the signatories of the Declaration of Independence."

Sees Understanding Needed

In following their different economic courses, Attlee said, it is important that the United States

Text Of Prime Minister Attlee's Address To American Congress

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—The text of British Prime Minister Clement Attlee's address to the American Congress today:

Mr. Speaker, Mr. President, members of the Senate and of the House of Representatives of the United States, I should wish, first of all, to thank you sirs, on the great honor you have done me in inviting me to address your house in joint session.

During the war you were addressed on two occasions by my predecessor, Winston Churchill, a great war leader, whose words and actions in the most critical times of that long drawn out contest brought courage and hope to millions all over the world.

For five years I had the privilege of serving under him as a colleague. No one knows better than I do the resplendent services which he rendered to the cause of freedom.

Churchill's Best Wishes

Last week in the House of Commons, as leader of the opposition, in emphasizing the importance of furthering in every way our friendly connections with your great country, he wished me, on behalf of the whole House, the utmost

Stalin we sought to deal with some of those problems which the ending of a great war produces. Sirs, in what spirit shall we approach these high matters?

Recalls Arlington

On Sunday at Arlington, I stood with President Truman and the Prime Minister of Canada at that impressive ceremony of Armistice Day. I know that in the minds of the President and myself were remembrances of when we were both fighters in the first World War. We little thought then on November 11, 1918, that we should witness another world war. I do not think that either of us then thought that we, out of the millions of our fellow soldiers, would be called to shoulder the great responsibilities of high office.

Yet I am sure there was present in our minds last Sunday the same thoughts we had years ago—regret for lost comrades, gratitude for our deliverance and the resolve to do what in us lay to spare others the ordeal which we have endured. We have ended this second World War, am happy to see with us today.

We were fortunate in finding great political leaders. We were fortunate, too, in the men of outstanding ability who planned our resources and our campaigns and who led our navies, armies and air fleets in battle. Standing here, I would like to pay a special tribute to the combined chiefs of staff. I would like to recall many of the leaders in the field, but I must content myself today with three names of great men—one in the west, two in the east—General Eisenhower, General MacArthur and Admiral Nimitz.

Days Of Anxiety

Speaking here today when all our enemies have been beaten down, my mind goes back over those five years in which I served in the British War Cabinet. I recall so vividly those anxious days in 1940 after Dunkerque. How anxiously we awaited the arrival of ships carrying rifles and ammunition from America, which gave us at least something in our hands to fight the invader whose threat was so imminent. I recall that wise and gen-destroy freedom, freedom of the individual, freedom of speech, freedom of religion and freedom of the press. They are wrong.

Labor Party's Ideals

The Labor party is in the tradition of freedom-loving movements, which have always existed in our country, but freedom has to be striven for in every generation and those who threaten it are not always the same. Sometimes the battle of freedom has had to be fought against kings, sometimes against religious tyranny, sometimes against the power of the owners of the land, sometimes against the overwhelming strength of moneyed interests.

We in the Labor party declare that we are in line with those who fought for Magna Charta and habeas corpus, with the pilgrim fathers and with the signatories of the Declaration of Independence.

Differences In M.P.'s

Let me clear your mind with regard to some of these freedoms that are thought to be in danger. In the ranks of our party in the House of Commons are at least 40 practicing journalists. There are several clergymen, many local preachers, plenty of Protestants, some Catholics and some Jews. We are not likely, therefore, to attack freedom of religion or freedom of the press. As to freedom of speech, believe me, as leader of our party for ten years I have never lacked candid critics in my own ranks and I have been too long in the opposition no to be a strong supporter of freedom of speech and freedom of the individual.

We believe in the freedom of the individual to live his own life, but that freedom is conditioned by his not cramping and restricting the freedom of his fellow-men. There is and always will be scope for enterprise, but when big business gets too powerful so that it becomes monopolistic, we hold it is not safe to leave it in private hands.

Planned Economy Needed

Further in the world today we believe, as do most people in Britain, that one must plan the economic activities of the country if we are to assure the common man a fair deal. One further word. You may think that the Labor party consists solely of wage earners.

It is our pride that we draw the majority of our members from the ranks of wage earners and many of our ministers have spent long years working with their hands in the coal mines, the factory or in transportation. But our party today is drawn from all classes of society; professional men, business men and what are sometimes called the privileged classes. The old school tie can still be seen on the Government benches. It is really a pretty good cross section of the population.

Why He's Laborite

You may ask why do people from the well-to-do classes belong to our party. May I refer to my own experience: Forty years ago, as a young man studying law, just down from Oxford University, I visited for the first time my constituency, Limehouse, a very poor district in East London. I learned from it first hand the facts of poverty in our great cities. I became convinced that we must build our society on a juster foundation.

The result was that I joined the Socialist movement and eventually, after many years of striving, I find myself Prime Minister of Great Britain. The reason that impelled me to join the labor movement are the same that actuated so many of the members of my party, especially the great number of young men from the fighting services.

Foreign-Affairs Policy

What is our attitude toward foreign affairs? We believe that we cannot make a heaven in our own country and leave a hell outside. We believe this not only from the moral basis of our movement, which is based on the brotherhood of man, without distinction of race orcreed, but also from an entirely practical standpoint. We seek to raise the standard of life of our people.

We can only do so by trading with the rest of the world and, as good traders, we wish to have prosperous customers. The advance in methods of production so strongly exemplified in the United States has resulted in an immense output of goods and commodities of all kinds. We in our turn show the same results on a smaller scale. Yet there are hundreds of millions of people living in the world at a standard of life which is the same as they have had for a thousand years.

Room For Goods Of All

There is ample room in the world for the products of the great industrial nations like our own to raise the general levels throughout the world. We, like you, believe in an expansive economy and we can see no reason why, the need being so great, there should be any rivalry between us. We believe that the foundations of peace must be world prosperity and good neighborliness; that where science has placed such potential abundance before the human race we should collaborate to take advantage of it rather than scramble and fight for larger individual shares which only results in an immense increase in poverty.

We recognize that our immediate task is not easy. Many a man in Britain returning from the war finds his home blitzed and his business ruined. He has to start afresh and its a tough proposition.

Courage For The Future

As a country we are just like that man. We went out to win the war and now have to start afresh. Like him we are facing the future with courage and a determination to win through. We have not stood up to our enemies for six years to be beaten by economics.

I look forward to an ear of an increasing co-operation and friendship between the U.S.A. and Great Britain—not as being an exclusive friendship but as a contribution to the knitting together with all peoples through the United Nations Organization in the bonds of peace.

Discusses Nationalization

In our internal policies each will follow the course decided by the people's will. You will see us embarking on projects of nationalization; on wide all-embracing schemes of social insurance designed to give security to the common man. We shall be working out a planned economy. You, it may be, will continue in your more individualistic methods. It is more important that we should understand each other and other nations whose institutions differ from our own.

It is essential if we are to build up a peaceful world that we should have the widest toleration recognizing that our aim is not uniformity, but unity in diversity. It would be a dull world if we were all alike.

In a town there may be a great diversity of character and habit among the townsfolk. To some of my neighbors I may be drawn closely by ties of relationship or by old memories; for others I may have more sympathy through sharing their religious convictions, although perhaps estranged by their political views. Yet, I may be on good terms with them all and in close friendship with some.

I hope to see a world as orderly as a well-run town, with citizens diverse in character, but co-operating for the common good. In the British Commonwealth and Empire we offer an example of many nations some of which have reached, others of which are approaching, full self-government. Even during the war India was given the opportunity of taking complete charge of her own effort and in the colonial empire we have the eight or nine new constitutions which have been adopted or are being worked out, all based on the extension of democratic principles.

Closer-Friendship Hope

I hope that there will be ever-closer friendship between our great democracies. We have much in common. We have the language of Milton and Shakespeare, of Burke and Chatham, of Lincoln and of Jefferson. We have the memories of comradeship in a great adventure. Above all things, we share the things of the spirit.

Both of our nations hold dear the rule of law; the conception of freedom and the principles and methods of democracy; and most vital of all we acknowledge the validity of the moral precepts upon which our whole civilization is founded. Man's material discoveries have outpaced his moral progress. The greatest task that faces us today is to bring home to all people, before it is too late, that our civilization can only survive by the acceptance and practice in international relations and in our national life of the Christian principle we are members one of another.

Truman-Attlee Accord Seen For Internationalizing Bomb

NOV 14 1945

Leaders Are Reported Agreed on Steps Toward Control—Three Meet Late Today for Another Conference.

Washington, Nov. 13 (A. P.).—The Truman-Attlee conference was reported today to have reached general agreement on steps toward international control of the atomic bomb. An announcement is possible by the week end.

This information was obtained from diplomatic officials who declined to be identified. They reported that President Truman and Prime Ministers Attlee and Mackenzie King have been in substantial agreement since their Sunday afternoon talk, and the task at the moment is one of working out wording for a communique on which all can agree.

Tentatively, the conference may be wound up Thursday night and the communique issued Friday.

The only fly in the ointment from the point of view of American, and possibly Canadian officials, is the amount of information emanating from British sources here as to the preeminent role played by Attlee in the talks.

The Purported Attlee Plan.

One plan for putting atomic bomb controls under the United Nations Security Council, pooling scientific information through the same agency and generally strengthening the UNO through closer co-operation of the United States, Britain and Russia to be known here as the Attlee plan. However, some of Attlee's own associates say that his ideas were presented to the President and Mackenzie King orally rather than by written memorandum. Others on the inside of the talks insist that in fact no exact plan was presented.

The White House gave evidence that Mr. Truman was irked by the situation. The White House clammed up and wouldn't give out any information at all. William D. Hassett, presidential secretary, reiterated today what he had said yesterday; namely that Mr. Truman is "honor bound" not to talk about the conference in advance of the communique. Since British officials had talked, Hassett was asked whether he would go so far as to say they had broken faith.

"Oh," he replied, "I can't comment on that."

Another Conference Late Today.

Hassett opened his news conference by saying he had heard nothing about resumption of the talks involving the President, Attlee and Mackenzie King of Canada. He said he assumed that Attlee was concentrating on a speech he planned to deliver before Congress today.

Asked when the President might have a news conference this week, Hassett said it probably would be when a joint statement could be made. Later, however, the White House scheduled another Truman-Attlee-Mackenzie King conference for 4:30 P. M. Others invited to attend were the Earl of Halifax, British Ambassador; Lester Pearson, Canadian Ambassador; Secretary of State Byrnes, Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's personal chief of staff; Sir John Anderson, British atomic bomb expert, and T. L. Rowan, Secretary to Attlee.

Ties UNNRA Aid To Censorship

London, Nov. 13 (A. P.).—Sir Waldron Smithers, a Conservative, announced today he would ask Commons tomorrow to attach to any future British grants to UNNRA a stipulation that UNRRA benefits should go only to countries which lift censorship and give newspaper correspondents full access to normal news sources.

Britons To Get More To Eat In December

London, Nov. 13 (AP)—Sir Ben Smith, British Minister of Food, said tonight that tightly rationed Britons would get a "Christmas gift" in the form of larger food allotments in late December.

The "bonus" will consist of a pound of sugar, sixpence (12 cents) worth of carcass meat, fourpence (8 cents) worth of corned beef, a quarter of a pound of candy and a double ration of butter and margarine.

Tyler Kent Awaits Deportation To U.S.

London, Nov. 13 (AP)—An attorney for Tyler Kent, former clerk in the United States Embassy in London who recently completed a seven-year prison sentence for violation of the British Official Secrets Act, said today he understood Kent would leave for America within a week.

Following his release Kent was detained as an undesirable alien to await deportation.

Haw-Haw Tries For Appeal

London, Nov. 13 (AP)—Attorneys for William Joyce (Lord Haw-Haw) applied today to the Attorney General for permission to appeal to the House of Lords his sentence to hang for high treason. Joyce's conviction was affirmed by the Criminal Court of Appeal last week, and the House of Lords is the last tribunal which can review it.

British Knight Atom Scientist

LONDON, Nov. 13 (AP).—Professor James Chadwick, who helped develop the atomic bomb, was knighted today by King George VI.

Atomic Bomb Scientist Suggests End Of World

Edinburgh, Nov. 13 (AP)—Prof. James P. Kendall, Edinburgh University chemist who helped create the atomic bomb, said today that careful development of energy from conversion of hydrogen into helium would "revolutionize everything in this world."

"If we let the reaction run away from us," he said, "the experiment will be heralded to the rest of the universe in the form of a new and exceedingly bright star."

FRENCH ASSEMBLY NAMES DE GAULLE INTERIM LEADER

Robt Wilson

PARIS, Nov. 13. — (AP) A cheering constituent assembly today unanimously elected Gen. Charles de Gaulle as interim president of France, and de Gaulle announced he would try to form a government on condition the assembly accepts his limited program of "must" legislation.

"Answering the call of the assembly I shall undertake to form and organize a government according to certain indispensable conditions, and for the work which must be achieved," de Gaulle said in a statement when officially informed of his election as head of the provisional government while a fourth republic is being created.

De Gaulle cited the need for drawing up a budget before the end of the year, and said he would propose "essential reforms" concerning credit institutions, public utilities, the administrative system, and laws governing magistrates and France's armed forces.

De Gaulle's election, his first to a public office, is for a seven-month term while the assembly writes a new constitution. It was made unanimous when one abstaining member changed his ballot thus giving 555 votes to the wartime leader, who rallied France in her hour of defeat. Fourteen of the vandated deputies were absent.

De Gaulle, receiving assembly officers at his suburban home in Neuilly, said he considered the honor a tribute to all of France's fighting forces.

Although the General expressed to friends the opinion that his cabinet would be formed by Thursday if no difficulties arose, he told the assembly leaders he reserved the right to accept or refuse the election pending acceptance of his conditions.

His cabinet must satisfy France's major parties—the Communists, Socialists, and Popular Republican movement (MRP)—who are expected to get an equal number of portfolios. De Gaulle invited Socialist leader Felix Gouin, assembly president, and Communist leader Jacques Duclose to confer with him tomorrow.

His election, while generally anticipated, touched off a tumultous scene in the packed Chamber of Deputies where members of the assembly shouted "Vive La Republique" and sang "La Marseillaise," followed by a moment of silence in memory of France's war dead.

Pledges Reforms

DeGaulle has resisted all party attempts to pledge him to a program, staking his political future on the reforms he can institute during the life of the assembly.

The three major parties, joined by the radical Socialists, emphasized their unity on de Gaulle by signing an accolade asserting that "the front line troops, the resistance forces and Gen. de Gaulle have merited well of the motherland."

De Gaulle informed the assembly at its initial meeting last week that his task as provisional president had ended automatically when the assembly convened. He had been the unelected leader of the French since 1940 when he formed the government-in-exile in London. Election of an interim president was directed by a referendum in the recent general elections.

The communists at the last minute swung to De Gaulle after Deputy Jacques Declos said his party "would create no obstacle to a manifestation of national unity."

A week of dickering has left the three leading parties, the Communists, Socialists and Christian Democrat M. R. P. parties unchanged in their stand on a national program. All three say they agree on a broad program of leftist reforms. The Communists assert that the M. R. P. program is not sufficiently specific.

De Gaulle became the first elected French leader in five years. He assumed leadership of his defeated country in 1940 in London, gathering Frenchmen about him in a government in exile which returned to France in 1944.

De Gaulle's term as president of the provisional government is for seven months, the life of the constituent assembly, whose principle task is to draft a new constitution.

De Gaulle Chosen President

Constituent Assembly Elects Him for Seven Months to Create Fourth Republic.

Paris, Nov. 13 (A. P.).—Gen. de Gaulle, France's wartime military leader, was elected interim President of the French Government by the Constituent Assembly today to direct the creation of the Fourth Republic. The vote was 555 ballots for De Gaulle, none against and one abstention.

WAR CRIME TRIAL DRESS REHEARSAL HELD IN GERMANY

NUERNBERG, Germany, Nov. 13—(AP) Key personnel of the International Military Tribunal of the Nuernberg War Crimes trial, except for four prosecutors and the defendants, went through a prepared script today in the first full-dress rehearsal to test an elaborate mechanical system for conducting the trial in five languages at once.

Translators at separate microphones will report the trial proceedings in Russian, English, German and French, and listeners may connect their earphones to whatever translation they desire.

Col. Leon E. Doster, chairman of Georgetown University's department of modern languages, who is responsible for the system, said he was satisfied that mechanically at least the trial opening Nov. 20 would proceed without a hitch.

Sir David Maxwell-Fyfe, deputy to the British prosecutor, described the preparations as "perfect," and former U. S. Attorney General Francis Biddle, American representative on the Tribunal, added: "It's okay."

The Tribunal will meet in its first open session at 10 a. m. tomorrow to consider a motion by counsel for the ailing Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach for a continuance, and Justice Robert H. Jackson's recommendation that young Alfred Krupp, son of the munitions maker, be substituted for the defendant.

An original move by Jackson to have the son indicted simultaneously with his father among the top Nazi war crimes defendants was defeated by three-to-one vote, Yesterday British prosecutor Sir Hartley Shawcross asked that Krupp be retained as a defendant and tried in absentia. A medical commission reported Krupp probably would die if forced to appear in court.

Most of the German attorneys who will defend the Nazi leaders said they believed their clients would obtain justice, but declared they were baffled and hindered in preparing their cases by the "strange" procedure of the International Military Tribunal.

At a formal press conference, Julius Streicher's counsel, Dr. Hans Marx, said he had requested a delay "so nobody could blame me for not having done my professional duty."

The attorney for the Krupp family, Dr. Walter Ballas, said he was ready to defend Alfred Krupp as his father.

A commission of American, French, British and Russian psychiatrists will give a final judgment on whether Rudolf Hess, once deputy Fuehrer, has amnesia as he claims.

Baffled, Lawyers For Nazis Say

By Daniel De Luce

Nuernberg, Germany, Nov. 13 (AP)—The majority of German lawyers for top Nazi defendants in the war crimes trials of netx week declared today they were baffled and hampered in preparation of their cases by the "strange" procedure of the international military tribunal.

Asked at a press conference, however, if they believed justice would be obtained for their clients, most of the attorneys said favorable experiences in Allied military courts had convinced them of this.

Dr. Hans Marx, counsel for the anti-Semitic propagandist, Julius Streicher, said he had asked for a delay in the mass trial scheduled for November 20 "so nobdy could blame me later for not having done my professional duty."

May Drop Request

Whether he will withdraw the request when the tribunal holds its next preliminary meeting "depends on my client," he added.

Dr. Walter Ballas, the Krupp family attorney, said he was ready to defend the young Alfried Krupp as well as the elder Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach if the United States motion to substitute Alfried for the aged and ill Gustav as a defendant was approved. He protested against the fact that he apparently must appear in court for Gustav when the latter has been so ill he could exchange no words with his counsel.

The attorney for the mentally clouded Rudolf Hess complained because American and Russian psychiatrists for the international tribunal had shown Hitler's former deputy a movie of his leadership at a Nuernberg party congress without the lawyer's knowledge.

New Psychiatrists Sent

"I didn't know anything about it when this film was exhibited to my client," said Dr. Gunther Rohrscheidt.

Two psychiatrists from McGill and Columbia Universities have been ordered to Uuernberg to join three French, three British and Three Russian psychiatrists in passing final judgment on whether Hess actually has amnesia as he claims. They are D. Ewen Cameron, professor of psychology at McGill University, and Nolan C. Lewis, professor of psychology at Columbia.

The board also includes Col. Paul Schroeder, Chicago psychiatrist. It will review the findings of Major Douglas Kelley, of San Francisco, who has studied Hess since his arrival.

POPE SAID TO BACK NUREMBERG TRIALS

PARIS, Nov. 13 (AP)—The newspaper Paris Matin quoted Pope Pius XII today as saying that the Holy See approved of the principle of the forthcoming Nuremberg trial of former Nazi leaders and hoped that "the guilty will be punished quickly and without exception."

In a copyrighted article by the newspaper's special correspondent, Dr. Nerin E. Gun, the Pope was quoted as saying in an interview:

"We knew that grave persecutions were taking place in Germany but we were never informed on the inhuman character of the Nazi repression. We were never permitted to intervene or to send help."

The Pontiff was quoted as saying the Nazi leaders were "not only responsible for the matcrial evil that they have caused but also for the spiritual crimes that they committed by refusing religious assistance to their victims. They must be punished so that the Germans who cannot be reproached for anything can discover normal conditions of life and be aided."

The Paris Matin further quoted the Pontiff as saying that very incomplete reports on concentration camps were received at the Holy See from the German Vicarate.

He called for pity, tne newspaper said, for "millions of Catholics" being expelled from the Sudetenland and Eastern German provinces annexed by Poland.

"Their condition is really horrible and that is even more unjust in that the populations of the other German provinces have found a normal life and are efficiently taken care of by the Americans," the Pope was quoted as saying.

BELSEN CAMP HORROR SUMMED UP IN TRIAL

LUENEBURG, Germany, Nov. 13 (AP)—Summing up the prosecution's case in the Belsen war crimes trial, Col. T. M. Backhouse today charged the forty-five Nazi elite-guard defendants with participating in a plot with Heinrich Himmler to murder and maltreat Allied nationals through the concentration camp system, and of being collectively guilty of war crimes.

He said the Belsen prison camp was a deliberate starvation camp where Josef Kramer, accused chief of the camp, and some of the "old gang" from the Oswiecim camp were sent to carry on the work of deliberate extermination after the camp in Poland was overrun by the Russians.

"Transfer of Kramer (to Belsen) was a forerunner to making Belsen a new Oswiecim," Colonel Backhouse asserted. "It became a camp of deliberate, inconceivable gross neglect."

"The murder of an entire race, and an attempt to destroy the strength of Poland, one of our allies, at the gas chamber horror camp of Oswiecim was an unequaled war crime" and an "avowed German war effort," he continued.

Replying to criticism on the length of the trial, now in its ninth week, Colonel Backhouse said "if the case proves that the accused had every opportunity to make their defense, not a bit of time was wasted."

Belsen Trial Summations

Lueneberg, Nov. 13 (AP)—Col. T. M. Backhouse, chief prosecutor in the war crimes trial of 45 SS guards of the Belsen and Oswiecim concentration camps, summed up for the prosecution today.

Replying to criticism of the length of the trial, now in its ninth week, he said that "if the case proves the accused had every opportunity to make their defense, not a bit of time was wasted."

Changes Ordered In German Prisons

Berlin, Nov. 12 [AP—Delayed]—The Co-ordinating Committee of the Allied Control Council ordered today a cleanup of German prison procedure, including proper medical and dental care and a prohibition on corporal punishment. The directive is binding in all four occupation zones.

One of the first orders was that prisons be made free of any discrimination against captives because of race, color or religion. A work program was ordered organized to use some prisoners on roads, conservation and forestation projects.

NITROCELLULOSE PLANT BLOWN UP BY ALLIES ORDER

Don Hoshe

EBENHAUSEN, Germany, Nov. 13—(AP) The $70,000,000 I. G. Farben-controlled nitrocellulose plant which fed the Nazi war machine five per cent of its nitrocellulose supply, was blown up today as the Allies continued their demolition of Germany's war industries.

In a single spectacular explosion the plant's two major units—a five-story nitrater building and a power plant—were reduced to smoking rubble. They went up in a sheet of flame followed by an earthshaking explosion which knocked down nearby buildings and sent clouds of black smoke billowing into the sky.

Like the Farben Powder plant at Kaufbueren which was wrecked yesterday by TNT, the plant here was a subsidiary of the Farben system. Its 2,300 workers during the war included 1,500 imported slave laborers. The Ebenhausen plant produced 1,000 tons of nitrocellulose and 350 tons of nitrocellulose powder monthly until it was damaged for the first time by Allied bombers last April.

Today was the second time the allies have destroyed the Ebenhausen plant. It first was demolished in 1919 but was rebuilt later by the Germans.

Next on the Allied demolition list is a $65,000,000 nitrocellulose and powder plant at Aschau. The date for the blowing up of this German war potential has not yet been set.

Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, U. S. Third Army commander, commenting on the blowing up of the German war plants said, "this begins the destruction of Germany's war potential." The General pushed the plunger which set off the explosion levelling 60 buildings of the powder plant at Kaufbueren yesterday.

The explosions, destroying only a few buildings at a time, were dwarfed by previous preparatory blasts of unsalvageable powder which killed one German civilian and broke windows in Kaufbueren, two miles away. No casualties were reported today.

The plant, extending over an area of two square miles and consisting of 243 scattered buildings, was valued at $45,000,000.

Farben Powder Plant Blown Up By Allies

Kaufbeuren, Nov. 13 (AP)—Wrecking of Germany's munitions industry was started by Allied demolition squads today with a series of thunderous blasts that destroyed one of the biggest and newest powder plants in the vast I. G. Farben network.

"This begins the destruction of Germany's war potential," declared Lieut. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, commander of the United States 3d Army, as he pushed the plunger setting off the first of fourteen explosions that sent 60 buildings hurtling hundreds of feet into the air.

The plant, which extended over an area of two square miles, was so cleverly camouflaged and so completely masked by the surrounding evergreen forest that not a single Allied bomb was dropped on the factory during the war.

Partially Underground

Most of the factory's 243 scattered buildings were built partially underground.

Only those buildings suitable for nothing but arms manufacture were destroyed. Much usable equipment was salvaged from the plant, which was valued at $45,000,000.

Built by the Reich in 1939, the plant was operated on a lease by Dynamit A. G., of which the Farben concern owned 60 per cent.

Du Pont Stock

Col. Edwin S. Pillbury, of Berkeley, Cal., the Farben industry control officer, said E. I. du Pont de Nemours owned 7½ per cent of the stock, and Imperial Chemicals, Ltd., of Britain, held a like amount.

With 1,200 workers, of whom 800 were imported conscripts, the plant produced three per cent of Germany's powder output, and also loaded shells and made bazooka ammunition.

Today's carefully controlled explosions, in which only a few buildings at a time were blown up, were dwarfed by previous preparatory blasts of unsalvageable powder, which killed one German civilian and broke windows in Kaufbeuren, 2 miles away.

No Casualties Reported

There were no casualties reported in today's blasts, which used 90 tons of T.N.T.

Two thousand prisoners of war helped to dismantle equipment useful to peacetime pursuits. Some electric generating machinery is yet to be removed from remaining structures.

Another Farben-controlled nitrocellulose plant at Ebenhausen, near Ingolstadt, is scheduled to be blown up tomorrow and a third at Aschau will be demolished later.

7 Russians Killed In Fights With GI's

Berlin, Nov. 13 (AP)—The American provost marshal said today that seven Russians were killed and five wounded between July and October during altercations with American troops in the United States occupation zone of Berlin.

Co-operative efforts have sharply reduced the clashes and no fatal altercations have occurred for three weeks, the marshal—Lieut. Col. Gerald F. Beane, of Hollywood, Cal.—said.

Dual patrols of Americans and Russians now pace the border areas and around "frail stations where there were many cases of Russian looting." American sentries also have been ordered to shoot only in self-defense, he said.

Beane said "elements are here for a terrific crime wave" in the American sector this winter. Larceny and robbery are the most frequent crimes of American troops.

Beane said cases of rape are practically nonexistent because "a bit of food, a bar of chocolate or a bar of soap seems to make rape unnecessary."

GERMAN CLERGY PROTEST U.S. RULE

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 13—(AP) German clergymen of all denominations have written protests to American authorities that the United States' denazification policy is too harsh, a U. S. army spokesman said today.

He said there was a uniform feeling among clergymen that injustices had resulted.

"There was bound to be some," he said, "but we must screen them through a net so fine that we didn't let any fish get away.

"Clergymen take the stand that mere membership in the Nazi party is not a fair way to judge. They want the cases judged individually."

The American military government was reported to have sent formal acknowledgements of the protesting letters without comment.

90 German Scientists Being Brought to U. S.

Experts on Atomic Energy and Rockets in Group

FRANKFURT AM MAIN, Nov. 13 (AP).—An official American spokesman said today that ninety German scientists, including experts on atomic energy and rockets, were being taken to the United States.

Their names were concealed to prevent possible retaliation against their families.

The spokesman said that the scientists represented every phase of war industries. "They all volunteered and will be paid a very moderate salary," he said.

The men technically are listed as in "protective custody" rather than as prisoners of war. They will arrive in the United States on board the Argentina.

Sergeant Wins Medal

Nuernberg, Nov. 13 [AP—Delayed]—Sergt. Dale Speckman, of Metropolis, Ill., was recommended for the Soldiers Medal today for carrying a smoking shell safely away from a powder dump during the demolition of captured explosives.

Nazi Boss To Be Beheaded

Dachau, Germany, Nov. 13 (AP)—Heinz Endress, a Nazi ward boss, was sentenced to death by decapitation today by a military government general court for slaying four captured American airmen at Neckarsulm, Germany, last March.

Danes Will Join In Reich Occupation

Copenhagen, Nov. 13 (A. P.).—A Danish Army division consisting of 11,432 soldiers will join next spring in the occupation of Germany, it was officially announced today. Britain will supply necessary arms.

Freedom Of Press Permitted In Poland

London, Nov. 13 (AP)—Polish Foreign Minister Wicenty Rzymowski, taking note of British representations to Poland to preserve freedom of speech and press, asserted today Poland would do so without "interference" from other countries.

He said Poland was wide open for foreign correspondents, and declared they could write and send dispatches without interference, even those which might be "odious and incorrect."

Clergy Told To Leave

Rome, Nov. 13 (AP)—Il Popolo, organ of the Christian Democratic party, said in a Tirana dispatch today the Albanian Government had ordered all Italian priests and nuns to leave Albania by November 15, because of what the dispatch termed "bloody persecution conducted even against the native clergy."

Liberty Ship Hits Mine and Sinks

Trieste, Nov. 13 (A. P.).—The American Liberty ship Abbot Mills, loaded with 8,500 tons of bulk wheat for troops in Austria, hit a stray mine outside Trieste harbor yesterday and sank while being towed to a wharf. The entire crew was taken off safely.

SEIZE JAP ARCHIVES

LISBON, Nov. 13.—(AP) Representatives of the United States, Britain and China today took into custody all the archives and property of the Japanese government in Portugal.

Ethridge In Moscow

Moscow, Nov. 13 (AP)—Mark Ethridge, who is studying the Balkan political situation for United States Secretary of State Byrnes, arrived in Moscow today from Sofia. Ethridge is publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times. He is staying at the residence of United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman.

Russia Cites Helium Discovery

MOSCOW, Nov. 13 (AP)—A natural gas well in the Saratov region of the U.S.S.R. has "also yielded valuable helium," the magazine International Literature said today without giving details. The United States has long had a world monopoly on non-inflammable helium.

Red Cross Group Says Role 'Is Not Concluded'

Geneva, Nov. 13 (AP)—The International Committee of the Red Cross, which yesterday received the 1944 Nobel Peace Prize, said in a statement today that its role as an impartial intermediary "is not concluded."

Expressing appreciation for the tribute, committee members said they would continue to labor to acquit themselves to the best of their ability, "with the assistance of the National Red Cross societies and of all those who are willing to support their endeavors, of the heavy duties which the postwar period still place upon them."

Wartime activities of the committee, which grew from a personnel of 300 in 1939 to 3,659 in 1945, included delivery of 33,000,000 parcels, dispatch of 1,280,000 books to prisoner-of-war camps, replies to 620,000 individual inquiries, and the handling of 500,000 cables.

Romanian Crowds At Communist Funeral

Bucharest, Nov. 13 (AP)—A vast crowd, many shouting "Death to reactionaries," attended the funerals today of seven Communists and policemen killed last week in riots before the Royal Palace.

The funeral was in marked contrast to the burial of members of opposition parties who were killed at the Palace Square when they defied a Romanian Government order prohibiting celebration of King Mihai's name day. The Government of Petru Groza, long at odds with the King, forbade any demonstration at that service.

Anti-Russian Link

Government offices, businesses and many other establishments were closed by Government order for the Communists' funeral. Soviet Ambassador Kaftaradze blamed the recent demonstration on a "venomous serpent in the streets of Bucharest" and asserted it was in part a manifestation against Russia.

The 130 leaders opposed to Groza, whom the Soviet-sponsored Government singled out as "responsible" for the riots, failed to appear for an investigation at the military court as ordered. Violence erupted before the Palace last week when sixteen truckloads of Communists attempted to disperse crowds honoring the King. Romanian troops machine-gunned the crowds.

ASKS TROOPS EVACUATION

CAIRO, Nov. 13.—(AP) Former Prime Minister Mustapha Nahas Pasha, saying that Egypt was "boiling and the people living under great tension," tonight demanded in a speech immediate evacuation of British troops and the solidification of the country with the Sudan.

NAVAL MEN STAGE RIOT IN HONOLULU AFTER FAKE RUMOR

Groundless Report That Two Sailors Were Killed Starts Battle.

1,500 IN ATTACK

Navy Officer Blames Police, Cites Beatings of Sailors.

HONOLULU, Nov. 13.—(AP) Inflamed, police said, by a groundless rumor that two sailors had been killed in action (civilian housing area) residents, 1,500 Navy officers and men rioted three hours at the tract last night.

Two automobiles were overturned, a motorcycle was damaged and windows were smashed by the club-wielding Navy men. Police said no one was injured seriously but Joseph Gutheridge, 75, died of a heart attack while watching the rampage.

Detective Captain Eugene Kennedy said many of the 50 Navy men detained by police explained they were enraged "because we are damned sick and tired of seeing our buddies get beaten by local toughies and not a damned thing is done about it."

The only Navy officer identified among the arrested personnel was Lt. Blair Coleman, junior officer of the day, who was turned over to Lt. Jack Crain, former Texas University football star and senior officer of the day at the Naval Air station, for action by the Navy.

All of the Navy men detained were turned over to 14th Naval district authorities for discipline.

Kennedy said the immediate cause of the demonstration was a rumor, later proved false, that two sailors had been killed by Damon tract civilians.

Police Chief William A. Gabrielson in a statement late today insisted the riot would not have occurred if the Navy had cooperated "the way they said they would."

Gabrielson and Kennedy said the last report they had received from the Navy that its personnel were being attacked by civilians was made Sept. 9.

"Navy officers knew there was going to be a disturbance at the Damon tract and did not give us advance information, asserted Kennedy.

Police said the demonstrators were armed with clubs, knives and rocks.

Kennedy said he and Gabrielson conferred with the commandant of the 14th Naval district and agreed to increase the police patrol at the Damon tract until the Navy is able to handle the situation.

Navy Blames Police

Lt. R. M. Singer, NAS public relations officer, in a statement blamed the police for the disturbance, charging that in the last two months more than 30 NAS personnel have been beaten but that Honolulu police have not arrested a single offender.

Singer told interviewers that for the past two months individuals and small groups of sailors returning to the station had been beaten up and robbed by civilians of the tract area.

Many of the men have been hospitalized as the result of the attacks, the officer added.

Not more than one in 10 of the sailors involved in the riot was armed, Singer said. Most of them simply followed the riot leaders through the station gate without premeditation, he added.

He said the civilians had shown malice toward sailors and the Navy, and that not only men on foot but also jeep drivers have been stoned and barricades erected against them.

The assaults have happened especially when civilian girls rode in jeeps with the sailors or officers, Singer added.

The officers said most of the trouble had been caused by civilian juveniles between the ages of 16 and 18 who operated in groups of six or more and carried metal rods and clubs.

These juveniles, Singer asserted, would attack sailors; then take the service men's money and valuables.

Naval authorities had no immediate statement concerning the riot, but they have joined with Honolulu police in an investigation.

In Washington the Navy said that no official reports had been received and therefore it had no comment. Officials said that naval authorities of the 14th Naval district had full authority to deal with the situation.

200 BLUEJACKETS BATTLE HONOLULU CIVILIANS 2 HOURS

Riots Follow Fatal Attack on Sailor—75 Navy Men Arrested.

Honolulu, Nov. 13 (A. P.).—United States sailors and civilians rioted for more than two hours last night after a sailor was fatally injured by a civilian, the police reported today.

More than seventy-five Navy men were arrested after an estimated 200 bluejackets armed with clubs, stones and bayonets clashed with civilians in the Damon residential area.

Police Detective Neil Donahue said that the fight started when a sailor, alighting from a street car, was hit by a missle hurled by a civilian. The man died later, Donahue said.

The sailors entered the suburb about 10 P. M. and the ensuing battle royal lasted more than two hours. Honolulu military, shore and Marine police squads were sent to quell the fighting, but the rioting again broke out after midnight.

Windows were smashed in the barrage of rocks, homes were entered and a police car was overturned. The police said the service men had complained repeatedly of beatings received from the civilians living in the tract. Some sailors had been hospitalized as the result of alleged attacks.

Navy officials joined Honolulu authorities in investigating last night's disturbance.

British Assert Japanese Arm Indonesians

Gen. Hawthorn Accuses Commander of Giving Guns to Java Rebels

Nationalists' New Chief Seeks Peace

Sjahrir, Premier After Shakeup, Says He Will Work With the British

By The Associated Press

BATAVIA, Nov. 14 (Wednesday).—British Major General D. C. Hawthorn today formally accused the Japanese 16th Army commander, Lieutenant General Yiuchiro Nagana, of deliberately handing over arms to "unruly elements" in Java and causing bloodshed and loss of life to Allied troops.

Hawthorn's announcement followed a sweeping shakeup in the government of the unrecognized Indonesian Republic, in which Sutan Sjahrir, youthful Socialist leader described as a moderate, became Premier. Sjahrir prepared to rush to Soerabaja in an attempt to halt the bloody fighting there between armed Indonesians and British Indian troops.

The sweeping Cabinet reorganization putting the 36-year-old Sjahrir at the helm in a newly-created post gave rise to hopes that the strife in Java and Indonesian demands for independence might be settled by negotiation.

British Forces Edge Forward

In Soerabaja, British forces, with a spearhead of tanks and supported by naval and field artillery, continued to edge forward. More than half of the naval base city was reported under their control.

There was no indication that the four-day battle was losing any of its fury. The British continued their house-to-house battle against powerful, well-trained forces, using first-class Japanese equipment including field artillery.

Sjahrir, whose elevation left President Soekarno with a title but with little power, said his first act probably would be to rush to Soerabaja with a three-man commission to investigate the local Indonesian leadership and attempt to stop the fighting.

Retains Only One Of Cabinet

Heretofore, Soekarno has been the top executive as president, without any premier. Sjahrir also took the posts of foreign minister and minister of home affairs, and retained only Minister of Information Amir Sjarifuddin from Soekarno's old Cabinet.

He declared the new Government would co-operate with the British. It must, therefore, assume the highly dangerous and difficult task of disarming the Indonesian youths who have gotten out of hand.

"Soerabaja has hurt our cause in the eyes of the world," he said in an interview. "We want to settle all matters amicably with the British."

The reorganization was understood to have been received with some satisfaction by the Dutch, since Sjahrir is a man with whom they may be able to negotiate.

"Just As Strongly Nationalist"

Sjahrir said: "I am a nationalist. The new Government will be just as strongly nationalist as the old. But if we can find common ground between ourselves and the Dutch in which we can mutually help solve Indonesian problems, I shall encourage our getting together."

Although some observers were hopeful that new attempts at negotiation might solve the troubled Indonesian situation, the Dutch were represented as feeling that talks with the nationalists would accomplish little as long as disorders continue.

It was still too early to tell whether Sjahrir, with the backing of the Socialist party and working committee of which he formerly was chairman, would have sufficient strength and influence to apply the brakes to the Indonesian military machine.

Indians Knock Out Bunker

The British said their forces in Soerabaja held the northern half of the city down to a line running from the Hotel Soerabaja through the post and telegraph office to the Hotel Grand.

On the west side of the Kali Mas, major canal running through the heart of the city, the British statement said, there was little movement. On the east side of the canal an Indian advance, led by tanks, knocked out a bunker and killed its defenders.

The statement told of persistent Indonesian efforts to use Japanese artillery against greatly superior British artillery and naval power.

British artillery broke up a concentration of about 200 Indonesians seen forming 1,000 yards south of the railroad station. RAF planes strafed road blocks and a suspected site of a Bofors anti-aircraft gun, while two bombs were dropped in the Hotel Brunet area, headquarters of the Indonesian youth movement.

Casualties, 7 Wounded

British casualties at Soerabaja yesterday were reported as seven Indian soldiers wounded. No figures were available on Indonesian casualties.

The British reported one British officer was killed and one Indian soldier wounded in Batavia by Indonesian snipers who kept up a desultory fire during most of the night. Barricades have been thrown up in the streets by the British in Batavia and all cars were being checked carefully.

Reliable reports have been received, the British said, that some Japanese troops have been killed in the fighting in Soerabaja.

"The tactics employed by the Indonesians are of Japanese standard practice," the British statement said, "and there is little doubt that some Japanese are still actively engaged in the disturbances at Soerabaja."

Indonese Name Sjahrir, 36, Premier

Batavia, Java, Nov. 13 (AP)—Sutan Sjahrir, described as a moderate with whom the Dutch are likely to deal, became Premier of the unrecognized Indonesian republic today as British forces blasted at Indonesian nationalists in the heart of Soerabaja.

Sjahrir's selection as Premier by the Cabinet meant that the Nationalists had decided on a new governmental system under which President Soekarno apparently will have but a minor role. The Dutch had refused to deal with Soekarno.

A 36-year-old Socialist leader, Sjahrir retained temporarily the portfolios of Home Affairs and Foreign Affairs in the Nationalist Cabinet.

Retains Only Sjarifuddin

Only one member of Soekarno's regime, Minister of Information Amir Sjarifuddin, was retained in the Cabinet which the Premier promptly selected. Sjarifuddin also was made responsible for all affairs of the Native Peace Preservation Corps and the police.

Soekarno now will have only slightly more powers than French Presidents exercised under the Third Republic, it was explained. The Governmental change models the Indonesian Cabinet on the European rather than the American system.

Declaring that the new system would provide a greater division of powers, Sjarifuddin said Soekarno would continue as the spiritual leader.

Decided At Soekarno's Home

The change was decided at a meeting in Soekarno's home shortly after the president returned from an Indonesian Youth Congress rally at Jogjakarta.

Hadji Salim, a 61-year-old professor of the science and interpretation of the Koran who had been a spokesman for Soekarno's regime, opposed the change as "morally unconstitutional." He added:

"The present (Government) crisis is unnecessary. This is not so much a Cabinet crisis. It is in fact a crisis in the republic's existence."

Statement Tomorrow

Sjahrir said he would issue a statement tomorrow informing the public of the changes in policy and personnel.

His new ministers, most of whom were chosen from the Government's working committee set up about six weeks ago, will assume their new duties almost immediately, he said. The Indonesians plan to hold elections before January 31.

As his first move, the new Premier probably will fly to Soerabaja with three membres of a Nationalist government commission to investigate Indonesian leadership at the naval base and attempt to stop the fighting there.

Dangerous Task

The new Government has announced a policy of co-operation with the British and must, therefore, take on the dangerous and difficult task of disarming Indonesian youths who have gotten out of hand.

Sjahrir said his policy would be co-operation with the British in the task allotted them at Potsdam—releasing internees and rounding up Japanese. So far as the Dutch are concerned, he said, "I shall encourage our getting together."

Nationalist Cause Hurt

Sjahrir said the fighting between British and Nationalists at Soerabaja had hurt the Nationalist cause and that one of his first acts as Premier would be to send a three-member commission there to investigate the entire affair.

British naval and field guns and RAF planes are supporting troops which have hammered through at least half of Soerabaja.

British headquarters announced that the bodies of two Japanese wearing Japanese uniforms were found in an Indonesian bunker at Soerabaja.

Jap-Style Tactics

The report, noting evidences of Japanese-style tactics, said: "There is little doubt that some Japanese are still actively engaged in the disturbances at Soerabaja."

In Soekarno's absence, Sjarir had written and distributed a pamphlet entitled "Our Struggle," in which he openly criticized Indonesian youths for "committing all sorts of crimes" and asserted that "attacks on foreigners prove to the outside world we are not a united people and that we are not ripe politically."

The pamphlet said: "Our revolution must begin with removing whatever remains of Japanese Fascism. The people who sold their honor to the Fascists must be eliminated."

Soekarno Called Collaborator

Both Soekarno and his Vice President, Mohamed Hatta, were characterized by the pamphlet as collaborators with the Japanese.

Soebardjo, Foreign Minister in Soekarno's Cabinet, broadcasting over the British-controlled Batavia radio last night, deplored the "Soerabaja tragedy" as having been caused by British failure to understand that the Indonesians fear the British are preparing the way for a Dutch return to Java.

He asserted that the way for a solution was for the British command to assure Indonesians that Dutch forces would not be returned under British protection.

Settlement Demanded.

London, Nov. 13 (A. P.).—A mass meeting sponsored by the India League adopted a resolution today demanding that the British Government immediately initiate negotiations with the Dutch and French governments and leaders of Indonesian and Indo-China Nationalists to settle current disputes on a basis of "national independence and self-determination." The meeting was attended by Indonesians, Indo-Chinese, members of the London Dutch colony and a handful of members of Parliament.

Laborite L. J. A. Callaghan, a Member of Parliament, was cheered when he demanded: "Are we going to regain the Indonesian empire for the Dutch with the help of the British Navy? The Dutch have been accustomed to hold down the Indonesians by the grace of the British Navy since 1840."

Called Face-Saving Device

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13 (AP).—A face-saving device has been set up in Java which holds promise of ending the bloody struggle which Indonesian, Dutch and British elements have got into since Japan surrendered.

The unrecognized Indonesian government abruptly has changed itself from an "American" to a "European" constitutional pattern.

The practical value of this is that it relegates to a parliamentary shelf the fire-breathing Dr. Soekarno, the Indonesian President who, the Dutch charge, collaborated with Japan and whom they refuse to talk to.

This saves Dutch face, because the active head of Indonesian politics now is the new Premier, Sutan Sjahrir, formerly a subordinate official in the native regime. He publicly regrets the violence that has occurred, talks like a moderate, and the Dutch presumably will be willing to negotiate with him.

Meanwhile Indonesian face is saved by retaining Soekarno as President, a post that now theoretically is stripped of executive power like the Presidency of prewar France. What may be more important in the long run, Soekarno's own face is saved, and one may doubt whether his actual leadership has been seriously affected.

SOERABAJA STATION TAKEN BY BRITISH

Heavy Bombing and Strafing Attack Precedes Assault.

NOV 14 1945

By VERN HAUGLAND

SOERABAJA, Nov. 13—(AP) Indian troops have captured one of Soerabaja's main railway stations and have moved on to take a number of large government buildings.

These short gains were prefaced by a bombing, strafing and artillery barrage, which I watched from behind sand bags on the roof of one of the largest office buildings about a quarter of a mile away.

Two Thunderbolts came in with two bombs each and blasted the buildings in front of the Justice and government building area, then returned several times to strafe. The Indonesian defenders put up a few pitiful bursts of anti-aircraft fire and some small weapons fire.

The Thunderbolts also strafed the area east of Kota station, where three Japanese tanks were seen operating.

The heavy barrage of mortar and artillery fire against the entire enemy line was followed by an advance on the right flank, along the railway, led by a squadron of British tanks.

Chinese in the railway marshalling area have complained that they are suffering considerably under the shelling. They sent a note to the commanding general, asking for consideration and the aid of doctors. It was reported that about 50 Chinese were killed there yesterday.

An Indonesian shore gun near the harbor briefly exchanged fire with a British destroyer.

The Indonesians had entrenched themselves in concrete pillboxes, some Dutch-built and some Jap-built, and defended the vitally important Kota railway station in the center of Soerabaja Tuesday.

The railway lines crossing Soerabaja east and west from the station provided the last good defense position along the way to the main native business section and government buildings, Court of Justice, Town hall and several large hotels.

Mountbatten Assures News Access In Java

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, commander of the Allied Southeast Asia command, said today in a cablegram to Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press:

"No restrictions have been placed on access of press correspondents to sources of news and information in the Southeast Asia Command. Instructions have not been given that staff officers may give information to the press verbally, but divisional commanders and senior commanders are not to do so in person."

Cooper had sent a protest to Mountbatten November 7 against the abandonment of press conferences which provided information on military activities in the Netherlands East Indies.

CHIANG'S TROOPS SEIZE GATE CITY

Chinese Nationalists Rout Communists from Shanhaikwan.

CHUNGKING, Nov. 13 — (AP) Chinese nationalist forces have wrested Shanhaikwan, coastal gateway through the great wall into Manchuria, from Chinese Communist defenders, neutral sources reported today.

Official dispatches, however, told of Communist victories in other civil war-torn North China provinces, particularly in Shantung where Gov. Hossu-Yuan said more than 30,000 nationalist troops have been killed by the Reds since the Japanese surrender.

While unable to confirm the reported fall of Shanhaikwan, on the Peiping-Mukden railroad and only 14 miles north of Chinwangtao, where American Marines are on guard, a Communist spokesman indicated it might be true.

He said the last Communist dispatch put nationalist troops only two-thirds of a mile from the strategic town, and commented that four of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies had been landed at Chinwangtao for the express purpose of forcing the great wall passage into Manchuria.

The forcing of the great wall might enable Chiang to put a strong force into Manchuria, to take over cities which the Russians were reported to be abandoning to Chinese control.

Official Chinese quarters here refused to comment on the report that Chiang had appealed to Russia for permission to fly his troops into Manchuria, but they indirectly indicated that this and other questions were being discussed.

Unofficial sources, however, said they considered it most unlikely that Chiang made a direct appeal to Moscow, pointing out that if he did and was subsequently snubbed, this would entail a loss of face to which he would hardly expose himself.

A Communist spokesman predicted that fighting would slacken generally, except in the vital Shanhaikwan area, pending the outcome of peace talks at Chungking. The discussion was scheduled to be opened at a political consultative council meeting around Nov. 20.

Governor Ho estimated civilian casualties in the civil strife in Shantung province at 200,000, with millions more rendered homeless. He charged the Communists with destroying or heavily damaging railroads, factories and mines.

The governor told interviewers at Tsinan, the provincial capital, that more than 50 districts of the province were surrendered to government troops by the Japanese, but the Communists subsequently overran 39 of them, capturing numerous towns.

Other fighting was reported in Suiyuan, Honan, Hupeh and Hopeh provinces. The Communists particularly were said to have penetrated into "all parts of Honan," and to have launched a fresh offensive Nov. 10 against the walled railroad town of Paotow in Suiyuan.

Deny Extra Aid to China.

American officials meanwhile made sweeping denials of Chinese Communist charges that the United States was assisting the Nationalist Government in excess of Unitel States-China war-time military commitments.

An American embassy spokesman termed completely unfounded the communist published report that China would get a $64,000,000 loan for purchase of munitions from the United States.

Lieut.-Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer said that the United States would keep its war-time contract to equip thirty-nine Chinese divisions but denied communist reports that seventy divisions would be supplied by the United States. He said conversations regarding military aid to China were on a much higher governmental plane than his and he had no information of whether commitments might be increased.

[In Washington, Secretary of War Patterson said "there is no danger of our troops becoming involved in civil war in China unless they are attacked, in which event we may expect the American troops to react with vigor and success." The Americans in China, Patterson stated, are concerned entirely with disarmament and repatriation of Japanese troops and when that mission is concluded will turn over their occupied areas to government forces.]

From the war fronts, serious fighting was reported in interior Manchuria with a greater battle building up along the North China-Manchu border.

A Communist report said that seven Government divisions, supported by more than 6,000 "Puppet" troops, have been sent north of the Yellow river to reinforce another Nationalist attack northward along the Peiping-Hankow railroad. The government is planning a pincer drive to squeeze the Communists out of the rail zone between the Yellow river and Shinchiachuang in Hopeh province, the report added. More than 100,000 Government troops are massed in southwestern Shansi and northwestern Honan provinces ready for a drive northward, the Communists asserted.

Fighting Continues.

The newspaper Ta-Kung-Pao, one of the few Chinese dailies with a correspondent in Changchun, reported fighting in that province had been going on "for days now and it may be imagined how hard it will be for National forces to fight their way into vast Manchuria."

Richard Bergholz, an Associated Press correspondent in Tientsin after a tour of the tense corner of North China between Peiping and the Great Wall, reported no new fighting, but said he had seen former Japanese and Chinese puppet troops guarding rail lines, communications centers and industrial plants in full cooperation with American Marines and Nationalist troops. Bergholz found no indication of any large numbers of Japanese going over to the Communists.

Chiang's Men Take Rail Town

Capture Shanhaikwan, Anchor of Great Wall, for Entry Into Manchuria.

Chungking, Nov. 13 (A. P.).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's troops have captured the strategic rail town of Shanhaikwan from Chinese Communists, neutral sources reported today.

Shanhaikwan, coastal anchor of the Great Wall, has been the objective of Government troops seeking entry into Manchuria. Fighting in the vicinity began several days ago.

A Chinese Communist spokesman could not confirm word of Shanhaikwan's fall, but he admitted that the last Communist report said Government troops were only two-thirds of a mile from the town. He said the Nationalists landed four armies at Chinwangtao, United States Marine-guarded port south of Shanhaikwan, for the express purpose of taking the town and then pushing beyond the Great Wall into Manchuria.

DENY MUNITIONS IN LOAN TO CHINA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP) A post-lend lease credit of about $50,000,000 is being arranged for China but "no munitions are included," a government official said today.

The informant, a former official of the Federal Economic Administration whose task includes winding up China's lend-lease account told a reporter the transaction was designed to allow China to procure goods ordered under lend-lease but not delivered by V-J day. Most of the items are machinery, machine tools, textiles and some trucks and raw materials he said.

Chinese Communist newspapers said the United States would lend China $64,000,000,000 to purchase munitions. This was denied by an American Embassy spokesman in Chungking.

A War department official connected with supplying China told a newsman that "some munitions and weapons" have been transferred from the China theater to Chiang Kai-shek's forces to carry out the disarming of Japanese troops but said, "I doubt if it's anything like $64,000,000,000 worth."

Hurley Charges Communist Plot

Santa Fe, N.M., Nov. 13 (AP)—Chinese Communists attempted to "set up a separate Government in China or to destroy the Government of the republic of China" by obtaining arms from surrendering Japanese, Patrick J. Hurley, United States Ambassador to China said in a statement here tonight.

Commending America's assistance in disarming the Japanese Army, Hurley asserted, "The Communist armed party attempted to have part of the Japanese Army surrender to them. The purpose of this was to procure Japanese arms . . . to attempt to set up a separate government in China or destroy the Government of the republic of China.

"It would assure prolonging civil war in China if the United Nations permitted the Japanese to surrender or transfer their arms to war lords, bandit organizations, or to any armed political party," the Ambassador's statement declared.

The assistance of the American military in China in receiving the surrender and in disarming the Japanese Army was referred to by Hurley as "a concluding phase of our war against Japan."

"America has no imperialistic designs in China. The United States desires that China furnish its own leadership," Hurley's statement continued. "The United States indorses the aspirations of the Chinese people to establish for themselves a strong, united, democratic Government."

U.S. SHIPS LAND CHINESE FORCES

Thousands Of Nationalists Put Ashore At Tsingtao

Tsingtao, China, Wednesday, Nov. 14 (AP)—American transports began unloading thousands of Chinese nationalist troops today at this Communist-encircled port.

It was the first landing by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's men in Communist-dominated Shantung province since the end of the war. There was no opposition to the landing. The United States 6th Marine Division, under Maj. Gen. Lemuel Shepherd, of Charlottesville, Va., had landed at Tsingtao last October 11 and concentrated in the city area since then.

Trained By Americans

Nationalists landed today formed major elements of the Chinese 8th Army commanded by Lieut. Gen. Tang Feng. They have been trained and equipped by Americans as one of China's "sponsored" armies.

They were loaded on transports at Kowloon in south China.

Commodore T. B. Brittain, of Ashland, Ky., commanded the transports. It was the same force which landed the Chinese 13th Army at Chinwangtao on October 30.

Rail Link Cut

This one-time German treaty port has been virtually isolated from the rest of China since the war's end. The Tsingao railroad, which joins the main China rail network at Tsinan, has been cut and badly damaged by Chinese Communists.

More than 10,000 Japanese of the 5th Independent Mixed Brigade have surrendered, but some have been allowed to retain arms and stand guard on extensive industrial plants in the Tsingtao vicinity.

The Marines who landed originally at Tsingtao to disarm these Japanese still have not been told whether the arrival of the nationalists means they will be relieved and can go home.

China Seen Difficult

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—A possibility that Japanese and German rather than American skills might be called on for the building up of Chinese industry was revealed today by Clarence E. Gauss, former United States Ambassador to China.

In his first public statement since he left Chungking a year ago, Gauss asserted the Chinese Government was making it extremely difficult for American and British interests to do business with nationals of this member of "the Big Five" of the United Nations.

Advises Slow Action

The former ambassador and one-time minister to Australia first told 2,000 traders, bankers and government officials at the thirty-second National Foreign Trade Convention that this country should go slow in making loans to China.

Then, in his first press conference since his return, he hit even more directly at "the present attitude of some Chinese officials, who seem to think that the entry of foreign capital into China is an effort to restore the old extra-territorial status."

"There is too much emphasis on speed in building up China as an industrial and exporting country," he said. "Agrarian reform is needed first then, if the expansion of industry is a gradual process, there will be no need for large loans."

Robbed Of Properties

Robert F. Loree, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, another of today's eleven speakers at the foreign trade convention, asserted flatly that American property holders who had co-operated with the Allies during the war are now being "robbed of their properties after the shooting is over." He did not mention any specific nation as responsible but added:

"I for one should think Congress would be reluctant to extend credit to those nations who feel themselves justified in nationalizing or appropriating the property of American corporations and American citizens without prompt and adequate dollar compensatio n. Certainly payment in German marks or other foreign currencies to be converted into dollars at some unknown figure is not adequate or satisfactory compensation."

Bankers Assured

Wayne C. Taylor, president of the Federal Export-Import Bank, assured private bankers at the session that his institution would not operate against their interests and that "there will be more opportunities for constructive international financing offered than at any time in the history of the world."

Taylor said there were good opportunities in trading raw materials for finished goods with Russia and that "while the U.S.S.R. aproach is possibly unorthodox, it is nevertheless fundamentally sound."

Charles K. Moser, chief of the Far Eastern Division of the Government's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, who sat in with Gauss at his press conference, asserted Japan had been so far ahead of China in industrial organization and management that it would take years for China to build up its industry, even its handicraft industry, to a point where it could successfully enter the 5-and-10-cent-store trade in this country.

Japs And Germans

Echoing this statement, Gauss said: "There seems little doubt that the Jap know-how will be introduced into Chinese economy before we are through. We expect also that German experts may be employed there at low wages. There has been some effort to get American skilled workers at higher wages but they are just not available."

Gauss suggested that the Chinese political problem, now in a stage of civil war, could be settled by the inclusion of Communists in the government.

China Charters Ships For River, Coast Duty

Chungking, Nov. 13 (AP)—China has chartered 60,000 tons of British and Norwegian shipping to help fill her great need for coastwise and river traffic carriers, Dr. T. F. Tsiang, director general of the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, said today.

Tsiang said the CNRRA had completed arrangement with the British Ministry of War transport for 50,000 tons of recently constructed ships and with Norwegian sources for 10,000 tons.

The CNRRA has leased the vessels with funds provided from Britain's share of the United Nations Rehabilitation and Relief Administration.

SEES 17c ACCEPTABLE FOR STRAITS RUBBER

SINGAPORE, Nov. 12 (AP)—Col. R. M. Williams, chief of the British Military Administration's Trade and Industry Department in Malaya, told a press conference today the current price of 36 Straits cents (about 17 United States cents) per pound for natural rubber is regarded as satisfactory by both growers and consumers.

He said conferences in New York and London, among United States, British and Dutch representatives, were seeking to reach an agreement on natural rubber prices and methods of assuring industry of a stable future in view of the competition of synthetics.

The British Ministry of Supply said in London that a British-American rubber group would meet in London Nov. 20 to study the post-war rubber situation. The group's rubber experts first conferred in Washington last January.

(The United States delegation will be headed by Donald Kennedy, chief of the State Department's International Resources Division. He will be accompanied by industry representatives.)

Mr. Williams said the conferences were held to establish the stability of the Malayan rubber industry, preventing price fluctuations which in the pa discouraged long-term planting by plantation owners and disturbed the marketing of finished products.

He also said he believed the price of tin would be maintained at not less than 250 pounds ($1,000) per ton, and that copra and other produce would bring higher than pre-war prices.

Koreans Organize New Liberal People's Party

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 13 (AP)—Several hundred delegates from American-occupied southern Korea, including many whose fervent patriotism was nourished underground during Japanese oppression, packed a Seoul church yesterday and organized the new People's party.

An offshoot of the so-called People's Republic, which was formed hastily just before American troops landed on Korea in September, the new party framed a liberal platform and elected a long-time Korean underground idol, Woon Hyung Lyuah, as its head.

Sets Forth Objectives

Lyuah, in an address, urged unification of the people, co-operation with the American Military Government, equal rights for women and:

1. Government seizure of land held by Japanese and wealthy Koreans, who allowed peasant tenants one third of the crops. AMG allows the farmers to keep two thirds.

2. Abolition of privileged classes and special privileges for a few wealthy land owners and industrial families.

Tells Of Treatment

From the well-educated Lyuah and his devout followers came a story of Japanese terrorism, domination and unyielding attitude toward the emotional Koreans.

Lyuah himself was imprisoned at hard labor almost four years. This may help explain why he is more popular than others who did not suffer, including even those who did patriotic work outside of Korea.

It is significant that his hold on the people is so great that Gen. Obuyuki Abe, Japanese governor general of Korea, asked Lyuah, immediately after the Japanese surrender, to urge Koreans to be calm preceding arrival of American occupation forces.

Retires On Rhee's Return

Lyuah, an admirer and friend of Dr. Syngman Rhee, self-appointed "president" of the Korean provisional government abroad, retired to the sidelines when Rhee returned after 33 years in exile and attempted to unify the country.

Lyuah's followers said they sincerely hoped that Rhee's efforts would prove successful, but others fear that he was away from Korea too long. They say he is not sufficiently attentive to the activities of younger and more liberal Koreans.

Korea Munitions Blast Kills Two U.S. Soldiers

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 13 (AP)—A large ammunition dump, containing 130,000 tons of impounded Japanese explosives, blew up, killing two American soldiers guarding it, occupation headquarters reported today.

A grass fire apparently fired the dump.

Disarming Of Japs In Saigon Speeded

Saigon, Nov. 12 [AP—Delayed]. Maj. Gen. Douglas Gracey issued orders today directing a speedup in the disarmament of Japanese troops in the Saigon area and decreed that all Japanese must be off the city streets by Saturday.

Gracey's directive will leave only a few Japanese in defensive positions in the French sector, where they have been assisting in keeping order and quelling outbreaks by Annamese Nationalists. The British commander ordered concentration camp facilities extended at once to receive the Japanese.

Japanese Rearmed

Some of the Japanese now engaged in defense work previously were disarmed, only to be rearmed because of increasing Annamese activity.

A British-French bulletin told of continued fighting yesterday at Cholon, where Annamese forces were said to have been driven off after attacking the Chinese hospital.

Bennett to Face Judicial Inquiry

Melbourne, Nov. 13 (A. P.).—The Australian War Cabinet ordered a judicial investigation today to determine the circumstances of Lieut.-Gen. Gordon Bennett's escape from the Japanese after the surrender of his forces in Malaya in February, 1942.

This will give Bennett the open inquiry he demanded in place of the secret military tribunal hearing from which he walked out last month. He said he did not consider it proper to place his reputation in the hands of the military tribunal.

AMERICAN ARMY IN JAPAN NEAR ITS PEAK SIZE

TOKYO, Wednesday, Nov. 14.—(AP) The American Army which began occupying Japan Aug. 30 now totals approximately 460,000 is near its peak and soon will decline, Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger said today. The estimated figures include southern Korea.

"We are about ready now to go down hill, with more troops returning to the United States than come to Japan," the Eighth Army commander explained.

Eichelberger said the Eighth Army has 177,000 men and 10,800 officers in Japan; the Sixth Army has approximately 195,000 officers and men, and the U. S. 24th Corps has 70,000 officers and men in southern Korea.

British, Australian, Russian and possibly Chinese troops are expected to join in the occupation of Japan, with formal announcement of the plans to be made from the capitals of those countries.

Eichelberger did not say how soon the occupation force might be expected to reach its lowest figure. General MacArthur has said only 200,000 troops will be needed by spring barring unexpected developments.

Official deliberations on the size of the reparations bill Japan must pay began yesterday as the country received a forecast that it must slice its expenditures in half and increase taxes five fold.

Arrival of Edwin S. Pauley, President Truman's reparations representative, signaled full deliberations on the matter, already started by members of the reparations commission who arrived earlier.

"I want a couple of days to size up the situation before making any definite statements" about reparations, Pauley said.

Japan's semi-official postwar currency council, said the newspaper Yomiuri Hochi, reported to the finance ministry the necessity of halving expenditures and hiking taxes. These steps were termed necessary to control inflation.

The council recommended a 1946-47 budget of not more than 15,000,000,000 (B) yen. Non-military items of the present budget are more than double the proposed 1946-47 total.

Yomiuri Hochi said the council also recommended boosting revenues from the present 14,000,000,000 (B) yen to 70,000,000,000 (B).

The council made its report in connection with preparation of a five-year program to stabilize Japan's currency.

Food Program Report Ordered

With approach of the winter season, Allied headquarters called for a report from the Japanese Government by December 15 on what it is doing to feed the empire's 70,000,000 people. A long-range program for Nipponese agriculture was ordered by December 31, including a report on farm financial matters.

Consolidation of his two armies of occupation was ordered by General MacArthur, a step toward reducing the American holding forces in Japan and Korea to about 200,000 men.

Under this plan Gen. Walter P. Krueger's 6th Army will be deactivated January 26. Personnel not eligible for discharge will be transferred to Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger's 8th Army.

"I expect to have things well in hand before I leave," he added, but he gave no indications how long he expects to remain. He arrived in a private plane with Navy Under Secretary Artemus L. Gates.

Preliminary Talks Under Way

Seventeen members of the Reparations Commission began preliminary discussions with officers of General MacArthur's staff here November 9, and Pauley's arrival signaled the start of official deliberations.

Another crushing reminder of the cost of war was brought home to Japanese by forecasts of taxes five times higher than current levies—despite a halved budget. Both points were contained in a recommendation given the Finance Ministry by the semi-official postwar currency council.

To Prepare Five-Year Program

The newspaper Yomiuri Hochi, reporting the sharp warning, said that the council had been charged with preparation of a five-year program to stabilize currency—already ballooned by a mushrooming black market.

The council recommended a 1946-47 budget of not more than 15,000,000,000 yen. Non-military items of the present 111,434,000,000-yen budget are twice the proposed 1946-47 total. Current tax revenues of 14,000,000,000 yen should be boosted to 70,000,000,000, the council was quoted as urging.

Two Armies Consolidated

Indicating smoothness of his occupation program despite signs of restlessness among the Japanese, General MacArthur today announced consolidation of his two armies in Japan into one force under Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger.

The 6th Army, now under command of Gen. Walter P. Krueger, with headquarters at Kyoto, will be deactivated January 26 and its personnel not eligible to return home will be transferred to Eichelberger's 8th Army command.

Pauley Arrives In Tokyo For Reparations Talks

Toyko, Nov. 13 (AP)—President Truman's reparations representative, Edwin W. Pauley, reached Tokyo tonight and announced "I want a couple of days to size up the situation before making any definite statements" about the reparations bill he and Japan will be asked to pay.

January 26 Triple Anniversary

January 26 is the birthday of both MacArthur and Krueger and is the third anniversary of the 6th Army's formation.

Krueger, who commanded the spearhead of MacArthur's advance through the southwest Pacific, may retire.

By March, headquarters said, the only combat divisions left in Japan would be the 11th Airborne, 24th and 25th Infantry and the 1st Cavalry. With headquarters special personnel and air-force units, they would bring the entire spring occupation forces for Korea and Japan to about 200,000.

Kyodo news agency reported that the Japanese Cabinet had asked the Throne to convene the eighty-ninth extraordinary session of the Diet November 26 instead of December 1, as originally planned.

This would give more opportunity to deliberate upon important bills, including the election law amendment bill.

Premier Shidehara's aides, taking cognizance of reports the Cabinet may resign en bloc, told Japanese newsmen there are absolutely no issues to substantiate such reports.

Fair Elections Promised

They said Shidehara in recent conversations with MacArthur pledged "with the utmost enthusiasm" that the forthcoming general elections would be held "in absolute fairness to all parties concerned." He hopes they will represent the "first perfectly free elections ever held in Japan in all her history."

Reliable sources said 45-year-old Imperial Prince Kaya has decided to follow the lead of Prince Higashi-Kuni in resigning his title. Kaya reached the rank of lieutenant general of the army.

Japs To Report By December 15

Allied headquarters directed the Japanese Government to say by December 15 what it is doing to provide the empire's 70,000,000 people with enough to eat. It further ordered by December 31 a long-range program for Japanese agriculture, including a report on such questions as farm indebtedness, taxes, credit and production.

Meanwhile, Emperor Hirohito, whom Japanese Communists said yesterday should be named Japan's No. 1 war criminal, read a report on the end of the war to his ancestors at Ise Shrine. He prayed that "the unprecedented crisis facing the nation would be conquered and the task of constructing a peaceful nation accomplished."

The Emperor is scheduled to visit tomorrow morning the Unebi Mausoleum, where remains of the Emperor Jimmu—Japan's first ruler—supposedly are interred, and tomorrow afternoon the Momoyama Mausoleum, where Emperor Meiji was buried.

Hirohito's Shrine Trip Detailed

Tokyo, Nov. 13 (AP)—Solemnly, reverently and at length, Japanese newspapers told today the details of Emperor Hirohito's pilgrimage to the grand shrines at Ise, where he reported to the spirits of his imperial ancestors.

"His Majesty, who stayed overnight at provisional headquarters in the precincts of the inner shrine," Kyodo News Agency reported, "rose early in the morning to undergo the solemn purification ceremony in preparation for the occasion.

Preparatory Prayers Recited

"Arriving at provisional headquarters in the compound of the outer shrine, his Majesty was greeted by shrine ritualists who had completed two nights of preparatory prayers. Piloted by shrine priests and an aide de camp and followed by the imperial household minister and other court officials, the Emperor proceeded to approach the oratory up to the outer fence, where he left those who had followed him.

"Entering the ground within the fence with the shrine priest and his aides de camp, his Majesty washed his hands at a hand-washing arbor to purify himself.

Bows Deferentially

"Accompanied by his chief aide de camp, he entered the inner fence and fixed himself at the worshiping place under the steps of the sanctuary. Bowing deferentially before the spirits of his imperial ancestors, the Emperor personally read the ritual prayer aloud.

"After the Emperor had given the text of the prayer, the ritualist chief priest of the shrine offered a branch of the sacred tree to his Majesty. Holding the branch in his hands, his Majesty solemnly worshiped before the spirits of his ancestors at 9.40 A.M., praying for the future of Japan.

"The branch he handed over to the chief priest, who went up the steps carrying the branch to the sanctuary. Withdrawing from the sanctuary, the chief priest reported to his Majesty that the offer and prayer had been duly received by his imperial ancestors.

Ceremonies Repeated

"Following brief rests at provisional headquarters attached to the outer shrine, the imperial cortege headed for the inner shrine at 10.05. Going through ceremonies similar to those held at the outer shrine, his Majesty graciously read the ritual prayer before the sanctuary of the inner shrine, reporting on termination of the war.

Pictures Back Testimony At Trial Of Yamashita

Manila, Wednesday, Nov. 14 (AP)—Two downed American airmen were bayoneted, saturated with gasoline and cremated alive by Japanese troops, the United States Military Commission trying Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita on atrocity charges heard today.

An American officer in charge of graves registration substantiated part of his testimony with pictures he took of the flyers' fire-blackened bodies after the Yank reconquerors moved in.

The officer said the flyers were gunners from a twin-engined plane that crashed off Cebu. His pictures showed their arms still tied behind their badly burned bodies, which he discovered in an abandoned Japanese foxhole.

Filipino Tells Story

He said he still could see marks where a heavy instrument had inflicted wounds at the bases of the men's necks.

A Filipino who emerged from hiding near the foxhole told him the Japanese forced the men to stop beside the hole, struck them with bayonets, poured gasoline on them and ignited the fluid. One of the man, badly injured, struggled to the edge of the foxhole and begged for water.

Three Japanese soldiers poured more gasoline on the semi-conscious American and fired it. (INS)

It was announced that a second military commission, to hear charges of a Cebu massacre, will be headed by Maj. Gen. Basilio Valles, who has testified he found his brother's body in Manila's rubble.

Attack In Church Reported

Yamashita is accused of responsibility for mass atrocities by his troops.

Witnesses late yesterday testified that the sight of 4,000 to 5,000 terrified civilians seeking refuge in a Manila cathedral in February stirred Japanese troops into a night-long orgy of murder and rape.

One woman who lost her husband in the slaughter testified that Japanese soldiers entered the cathedral at night and at first milled about in the throng looking for girls. These they took outside and raped while helpless parents were left inside to listen to their daughters' screams of protest. Many of the girls never were seen alive again.

Later, the witness said, her husband and "thousands of others" were lined up outside the church by bayonet-wielding Japanese and marched off to torture and death at Fort Santiago.

Another woman, weeping as she testified, told of losing her husband and seven children in the cathedral. She said the Japanese finally set fire to the church, rolling drums of gasoline into the building and igniting them.

Other witnesses described the killing of more than 730 civilians in the city of San Pablo, Laguna Province. They were followed by survivors of a still greater slaughter, who related the massacre of more than 7,000 civilians in Calamba, also in Laguna province, early last February.

The procession of prosecution witnesses describing these brutalities was interrupted briefly as a 14-year-old defense witness took the stand.

Bislumino Romero, Japanese-educated grandson of the collaborationist Filipino General Artemio Ricarte, told the court that he had never been present when Ricarte and Yamashita discussed the fate of the Filipinos.

Previously, Jose Galang, a prosecution witness, had testified that young Romero acted as an interpreter at various meetings between Ricarte and Yamashita, when Ricarte allegedly was pleading with the general to revoke his order to "kill all Filipinos."

The boy said he was unaware of the present whereabouts of his grandfather, but he had been informed the general died in the mountains. Young Romero, who spent most of his life in Japan and testified today in Japanese, said he had heard Yamashita described as "a good soldier" because of his exploits in the conquest of Malaya.

Starvation Diet

Two witnesses testifying of conditions at the Los Banos internment camp told of the starvation diet given civilians there. They said food was so scarce that pigs which normally lived on kitchen scraps starved to death.

They testified that when internees protested against the shooting of two American civilian prisoners who were returning with food they had foraged outside, the guards' commandant replied he had orders from "Imperial headquarters in Manila" to kill anyone attempting to escape.

Meanwhile it was learned that the Philippine Supreme Court has asked Lt. Gen. Wilhelm Styer, commander of United States Army forces in the Western Pacific, to show cause why a writ of habeas corpus should not be issued as requested by Yamashita's defense counsel.

Boy Of 14 Testifies For Yamashita

Manila, Nov. 13 (AP)—The stream of prosecution witnesses reciting details of Japanese brutalities in the Philippine Islands under command of Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita was interrupted briefly today as a 14-year-old defense witness took the stand.

Bislumino Romero, grandson of Filipino Gen. Artemio Ricarté, who allegedly collaborated with the Japanese, told the court that he had never been present when Ricarté and Yamashita, now on trial for his life, had been together.

Testifies In Japanese

Educated in Japan, he testified in Japanese.

Previously, José Galang, a prosecution witness, had told of occasions when young Romero had been present as an interpreter at meetings of Ricarté and Yamashita. The Filipino officer, Galang said, had asked the Nipponese commander to change his order for "death and destruction" of all Filipinos.

The boy said he was unaware of the present whereabouts of his grandfather, but he had been informed that the General died in the mountains. Yamashita he had heard described as "a good soldier" because of his exploits at Singapore. The youth had spent most of his life in Japan.

Philippine Court Intervenes

Meanwhile, it was learned that the Philippine Supreme Court has asked Lieut. Gen. Wilhelm Styer, commander of United States Army forces in the western Pacific, to show cause why a writ of habeas corpus should not be issued, as requested by Yamashita's defense counsel in a move to have the war-crimes case quashed.

Testimony on conditions at the Los Banos prison camp concluded as two witnesses told of the extremely meager sanitary facilities there and said that food was so scarce that pigs which normally lived on kitchen scraps starved to death.

A protest over shooting of two American civilian internees as they returned with food they had foraged outside brought a reply from the guard's commandant that he had orders from "Imperial Headquarters in Manila to kill any one attempting to escape from the camp," the witness said.

The prosecution alleged that in both incidents the men were not attempting to escape.

A parade of witnesses also began testimony concerning the alleged killing of more than 7,000 civilians in Calamba, Laguna province, early in February. Here, it was recounted, Japanese soldiers entered civilian residences and took truck loads of men, women and children away to bayonet and burn.

Massacre, Rape Alleged

The massacre of men and raping of women in a Manila cathedral between February 4 and 7 was told by one woman who lost her husband in the orgy. She said as many as 4,000 to 5,000 persons were taking refuge in the church. In further testimony the woman said:

The Japanese soldiers came at night, taking the girls outside and raping them while their screamed protests could be heard in the church. Families pleaded unavailingly with the Japanese that the girls were young and it was inhuman. Many of the girls were never seen again.

Taken To Murder Area

Thousands of others in the church were lined up the following day and taken to the dreaded torture murder area at Fort Santiago. Later the Japanese set the church on fire.

The next group of witnesses told of the killing of more than 730 civilians in the city of San Pablo, Laguna province, on February 24. No fewer than 650 were Chinese, who were systematically placed alongside open trenches and beheaded. Several Chinese witnesses who survived the ordeal exhibited deep scars on their necks and bodies.

listed men of the first three grades," Eichelberger added. The first three grades are master (or first), technical and staff sergeants.

"Since all could not be accommodated, it is my feeling that a fair solution would be to allow those who have been overseas a long time to bring their families, provided such officers and men plan to remain here for some time."

Length Of Time

He said he believed service men with two and one half to three years of overseas service should be given preference, reducing the overseas-time requirement as further family accommodations became available.

Only a small number would be eligible at first under such a plan, he said, because of the large number of high-pointers already en route home.

Wives May Be Sent To Japan; Time Overseas To Govern

Yokohama, Nov. 13 (AP)—American authorities are studying the question of allowing wives to join service men in Japan, Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger said today, and "I feel that a bit later, if there are proper accommodations, some fair solution may be arrived at."

The 8th Army chief said that some officers have asked officially that they be allowed to bring their wives to Japan, but "obviously facilities for receiving families here are very limited."

70-Point Men On Way Home Soon

Yokohama, Nov. 13 (AP)—All 70-point veterans and nearly all 60-point men of the United States 8th Army in Japan will be en route home by December 1, Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, 8th Army commander, estimated today.

Philippine Time-Shift Set

Manila, Nov. 13 (AP)—The Philippine Islands will return to Standard (120th East Meridian) time December 1 after four years of daylight-saving time, under an executive order issued today by President Osmena.

British Resume Control Of Their Pacific Fleet

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 13 (AP)—The British Pacific Fleet, which has been operating under the control of Admiral Nimitz, commander in chief of the United States Pacific Fleet, now will revert to the control of the British Admiralty, navy headquarters announced today.

Nimitz, in a message to Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, the British fleet commander, expressed his appreciation for the loyalty and co-operation of the British force.

Nimitz Flying To U.S.

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 13 (AP)—Admiral Nimitz left by plane tonight for Washington where he will testify before the Senate Military Affairs Committee on the proposal for unifying the armed forces. Admiral Nimitz already has stated he is opposed to merger.

Aid For Peron Hinted In Vote Date Change

Buenos Aires, Nov. 13 (AP)—A Government decree today advanced the date of the Argentine presidential elections next year from April 7 to February 24.

The change was interpreted as a move by the military government to aid the presidential candidacy of Col. Juan Perón, whose political machine was built up during the time he was simultaneously Vice President, Minister of War and Labor Secretary. He resigned his multiple jobs last month.

Tentative Date in March DecidedOn forRioParley

Pan American Union Board in Informal Agreement

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP).—The governing board of the Pan American Union today decided tentatively to recommend that the Inter-American conference scheduled for Rio de Janeiro be held some time during the last two weeks of March.

The conference originally was to have opened Oct. 20 but was postponed when the United States objected to having Argentina participate.

It is slated to draw up an inter-American mutual defense treaty to continue in force the act of Chapultepec signed at the recent Mexico City conference.

The agreement was reached at an informal board meeting held at noon today. Formal action is expected to be taken at a special meeting of the board Nov. 21.

The recommendations will leave Brazil, the host nation, free to select the exact date within the two-weeks period at the end of March.

Representatives of the State, War and Navy Departments for weeks have been working in conjunction with a special Senate committee in an American proposal for the treaty.

State Department officials plan to circulate the draft among the other American governments for their study prior to the conference.

Whether the United States would send Argentina a copy was an open question. The State Department has objected to Argentina's participating in the treaty on grounds that it has not lived up to previous international commitments, principally the Mexico City resolutions.

Pearl Harbor Prober Says FBI Warned Of Pending Jap Attack

NOV 14 1945

FAILURE OF ARMY AND NAVY TO ACT TERMED 'MYSTERY'

Gearhart Declares Hoover Will Give 'Startling Disclosures.'

AGENTS ALERTED

Congressman Says Warning Was Issued 11 Days Before December 7.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. — (AP) Rep. Gearhart (R-Calif) reported today after a conference with J. Edgar Hoover that the FBI learned of Japanese war intentions 11 days before Pearl Harbor and advised promptly reported to the Army and Navy by Mr. Hoover. Some of the messages were received in code and the Navy arranged for translations and reported back to the FBI."

On the basis of the intercepted messages Hoover "alerted" his agents in the Hawaiian Islands, Gearhart continued, but "no warnings or directives of importance were received in the islands by the military."

"Startling" Disclosures

Gearhart and Rep. Keefe (R-Wis), members of the Congressional committee which opens an investigation of the Pearl Harbor attack on Thursday, met with Hoover. Gearhart said the FBI director probably would be called to testify and predicted "very startling disclosures".

"The failure of the Army and Navy to act decisively and promptly at Pearl Harbor will be one of the mysteries which will be solved in the investigation," he declared. "Make that 'will be' emphatic, because it certainly 'will be.'"

Asked to comment on an assertion by Senator Hatch (D-NM) that political controversy attending the investigation would result in a "divided opinion," Gearhart said:

"W wouldn't know."

the armed services but that they failed to act.

The FBI got "considerable and very important evidence of the Japanese intention to resort to war action" by tapping wires into the Japanese consul general's office in Honolulu, Gearhart told reporters, and "all of this information was

Hatch told interviewers:

"I'm afraid no good can come out of this investigation. It is so thoroughly permeated with politics already that any report that is made will be considered political."

Gearhart said he and Keefe were convinced that one of the most important witnesses will be Capt. Alwin D. Kramer, naval intelligence officer, who they have charged was "badgered" in an effort to break down his original Pearl Harbor testimony.

Kramer, a patient at Bethesda Naval hospital, issued a statement several days ago denying he had been "badgered or held incommunicado."

"I am convinced," Gearhart said, "that efforts have been made to soften his testimony and that worry over the situation was the sole cause of this illness."

Two Doubt Success Of Sneak Probe

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—A Democrat and a Republican voiced doubt today that the congressional investigation of Pearl Harbor will quiet the clamor over the 4-year-old military disaster.

Senator Hatch (D., N.M.), of the Senate War Investigating Committee, said he thinks the controversy-ladened inquiry will end with a split report with Democrats on one side and Republicans on the other. Public hearings begin Thursday.

"Permeated With Politics"

"I'm afraid no good can come out of this investigation," Hatch said. "It is so thoroughly permeated with politics already that any report that is made will be considered political.

"If the Democrats say that the Administration was not at fault, some people will call that a 'whitewash.' If the Republicans say the Administration was to blame, some will call that 'Republican propaganda.'"

Senator Willis (R., Ind.), one of the first to call more than three years ago for complete publicity on the disaster, said he thinks there is no chance of a unanimous report "unless the committee majority changes its attitude."

"Same As One-Party Inquiry"

"It is to be deplored that the majority has made a political issue out of this investigation by not opening all of the records to the minority members," he said. "It might as well be a one-party inquiry, the way it is being handled now."

Republican members have complained against an order by President Truman barring them from taking an individual look at Government records.

Willis said it ought not to be the purpose of any investigation "to blacken anyone's character," but he added:

"The American people will never be satisfied without a disclosure of all the events preceding Pearl Harbor and the fixing of responsibility on all of the persons who were dilatory in their duties."

Committee Republicans continued their activity today with a planned visit by Representative Keefe (Wis.) and Representative Gearhart (Cal.) to J. Edgar Hoover, FBI chief. They have said they think Hoover ought to be called upon for any information he might have about counterespionage on the Japanese at Pearl Harbor.

Chairman Barkley (D., Ky.) said that if Hoover has any information the committee thinks pertinent he will be asked to testify.

Keefe went out to the Bethesda (Md.) naval hospital again yesterday to see Capt. Alwin D. Kramer, described by Keefe as the officer who carried to high officials an intercepted message indicating the Japanese were planning to attack.

"Proof Of Badgering"

Keefe told a news conference he had obtained what he called "proof" of his contention that Kramer was being "badgered" to change his story.

Keefe said Kramer had been confined in a neuro-psychiatric ward of the hospital until November 7, the day after Keefe and Gearhart contended in the House that he was being held incommunicado.

Truman Wants $1,350,000,000 More For UNRRA

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—A second authorization of $1,350,000,000 for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration as this country's contribution to its work for the year ending in March, 1947, was asked of Congress today by President Truman.

Of $1,350,000,000 authorized for the fiscal year ending in March, 1946, Congress already has allotted $800,000,000 and UNRRA has spent or committed it all.

House Stipulation

An appropriation of the remaining $550,000,000 has been voted by the House, with the stipulation that it be spent only in nations which give Americans free access to news of UNRRA activities there, and is pending in the Senate.

Mr. Truman's message requesting the new authorization said that it was needed for China, Korea, Formosa, Italy, Austria, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, Greece, Albania, Italy and two Soviet Republics.

Some aid is planned for White Russia and the Ukraine, which were the principal battlefields on the Eastern Front in Europe.

Opposed By Lehman

Meanwhile, Director General Herbert H. Lehman of UNRRA characterized freedom-of-the-press restrictions on UNRRA appropriations as an attempt to use "starvation as a threat to force compliance" of liberated nations with American policy.

"Nobody believes more strongly in freedom of the press than I, nor has fought harder for it," Lehman said in an interview.

"But UNRRA should not be used as a weapon to impose conditions on any particular country. Starvation should not be used as a threat to force compliance with a policy of one country, no matter how desirable that policy may be."

NOV 14 1945

Text of Truman UNRRA Message

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—The text of President Truman's message to Congress today on a new monetary authorization for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration follows:

To the Congress of the United States of America:

This country has pledged itself to do all that is reasonably possible to alleviate the suffering of our war-torn allies and to help them begin the task of restoring their economic productivity. The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration is one of the most important instrumentalities for accomplishing this great task.

As I stated in my message to the Congress on Sept. 6, 1945, the forty-seven nations of the Council of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration determined at their third meeting in London last August that contributions beyond those originally made would be necessary if we expect to complete the minimum tasks assigned to UNRRA. The council recommended, on the motion of the United States delegate, that each member country whose territory had not been invaded by the enemy should contribute an additional amount equal to 1 per cent of its national income for the fiscal year 1943.

U. S. Share $1,350,000,000

In accordance with this recommendation, the United States' share would be $1,350,000,000, matching our original contribution authorized by the Act of Congress on March 28, 1944.

The original contributions of all the member nations have been applied principally to the activities of UNRRA in providing relief and rehabilitation assistance to the countries of eastern and southeastern Europe, and to the care of United Nations' displaced persons stranded in enemy territory. UNRRA, of course, does not undertake relief or rehabilitation responsibilities in either Germany or Japan.

The invaded countries of northwest Europe, comprising France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Norway, by and large, possess sufficient resources in foreign currency and credit to acquire their own essential imports from abroad. Direct assistance to northwest Europe is, therefore, not being furnished by UNRRA.

Poland, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Greece and Albania, on the other hand, not only have suffered greatly at the hands of the enemy in the course of the war but they are almost entirely without foreign exchange or credit resources. Consequently to date they have been the chief objects of UNRRA's activity.

Describes Plight in Italy

UNRRA has undertaken a limited program of $50,000,000 in Italy to provide for the health and care of children and expectant or nursing mothers.

Italy, since her participation in the war as a co-belligerent with the United Nations, has contributed substantially in both manpower and facilities to the Allied victory, becoming, at the same time, one of the most severely contested battlefields of the war. The destitution and needs there are appalling. Italy has virtually no foreign exchange resources, and without the aid of UNRRA the country might well lapse into starvation.

UNRRA has also assisted in the care and repatriation of millions of Allied victims of Axis aggression who were deported to and enslaved in Germany. It has initiated a preliminary program of assistance to China.

By the end of this year UNRRA anticipates that all the funds which will be made available to it from all sources in accordance with the original contributions will have been spent or encumbered. The flow of supplies purchased with these funds cannot last beyond the early spring.

China the Biggest Problem

The end of the war with Japan has made it possible to estimate the magnitude of the relief requirements of China and other Far Eastern areas. Reports on the European harvest of 1945 reveal a serious shortage of all types of foodstuffs.

China presents the largest of all the relief responsibilities which UNRRA now faces. With inadequate supplies and resources it has struggled bravely for eight years to combat the enemy as well as the ravages of famine, disease and inflation. Other programs are required for Korea and Formosa, two areas of the Far East which are now being restored to the peaceful ranks of the United Nations after decades of Japanese oppression and extortion.

UNRRA proposes the extension of aid to Austria. This proposal is in accordance with the Moscow and Potsdam declarations by the major powers to the effect that Austria should be treated independently of Germany and encouraged to resume the free and peaceful role which it played before being invaded by Hitler's legions.

A limited program of aid is also intended for the Soviet Republics of White Russia and the Ukraine. These areas constituted the principal battlefields in the struggle between Russia and Germany. They were the scene of some of the worst German atrocities, devastation and pillage.

Will Use Surplus Supplies

The recommended additional contributions will hardly suffice to permit UNRRA to meet the most urgent and immediate needs for relief and rehabilitation for which it is responsible. We hope to fulfill a substantial part of this contribution through the use of military and lend-lease supplies which have become surplus since the surrender of our enemies.

I know that America will not remain indifferent to the call of human suffering. This is particularly true when it is suffering on the part of those who by sacrifice and courage kept the enemy from realizing the fruits of his early victories and from bringing his military might to bear upon our own shores.

UNRRA is the chosen instrument of forty-seven united nations to meet the immediate relief and rehabilitation needs of the invaded countries.

UNRRA is the first of the international organizations to operate in the post-war period, one which the United States originally sponsored and in which it has played a leading part. Apart from purely humanitarian considerations, its success will do much to prove the possibility of establishing order and cooperation in a world finally at peace.

I, therefore, request the Congress to authorize a new appropriation of $1,350,000,000 for participation in the activities of UNRRA.

TRAINING MEASURE PASSES FIRST TEST

House Military Committee Votes to Continue Hearings on Bill.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP) The administration's peacetime military training plan survived its first major test today when the House Military committee voted 15 to 12 to continue hearings on it.

Rep. Short (R-Mo.) forced the issue. He put a motion to defer consideration of the legislation until next year or until after the Senate has acted.

Short had been predicting for days that such a motion would pass.

Three Republicans deserted Short's ranks however and backed up the administration. Three Democrats voted with nine Republicans against it.

While some members viewed the result as a triumph for the idea of compelling youths of 18 to undergo a year's peacetime training, others took a different slant on the situation.

One member told reporters several committeemen may have voted to continue hearings simply to hear the first prospective witness, General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, who is due to testify Thursday.

Eisenhower, who flew here from Europe, is expected to add his voice to those of other high-ranking commanders who have been urging a peacetime training program.

Another test vote may follow the Eisenhower testimony, it was hinted.

In any event, the very closeness of the vote virtually forecast a ding-dong fight over the bill from here on in.

Committee sources informed newsmen that the members voted as follows:

For the motion: Durham (D-NC), Sheridan (D-Pa) Philbin (D-Mass) Short (R-Mo), Arends (R-Ill), Clason (R-Mass), Thomas (R-NJ), Shafer (R-Mich), Elston (R-Ohio), Harnes (R-Ind), Fenton (R-Pa) and Johnson (R-Calif).

Against the motion: May (D-Ky), Thomaston (D-Tex), Brooks (D-La), Sparkman (D-Ala), Kilday (D-Tex), Davis (D-Tenn), Sikes (D-Fla), Stewart (D-Okla), Winstead (D-Miss), Holifield (D-Calif), Melvin Price (D-Ill), Roe (D-NY), Andrews (R-NY), Martin (R-Iowa) and Luce (R-Conn).

The votes of Thomas, Davis and Roe were cast by proxy.

Before the vote was taken, Secretary of War Patterson sought again to get some steam behind the bill. He testified in open session that "in the world today, for the time being at least, it's military power that talks."

Schwellenbach Wants Sole Rule Of Job Service

Asks Right to Operate U. S. Offices if Standards of Any State Decline

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP).—Lewis B. Schwellenbach, Secretary of Labor, asked Congress today to empower his department to operate public employment offices "in any state which fails or refuses" to operate such offices in line with Federal standards.

Mr. Schwellenbach was a witness before a Senate labor subcommittee considering legislation affecting the future course of the United States Employment Service.

He appeared one day after a Senate appropriations subcommittee voted—over Administration objections—to return this service from Federal to state control promptly.

Mr. Schwellenbach told the labor group that "our public employment offices are carrying the heaviest work load in their history." He recommended "favorable consideration" of legislation that would:

"(1) Vest in a single Federal agency, the Department of Labor, all Federal functions and responsibilities with respect to public employment office functions, (Rather than divide them between the department and the Social Security Board.)

"(2) Establish a Federal financing program for state public employment office systems, which will be identical to state unemployment compensation systems—100 per cent financing of administrative costs.

"(3) Clarify and amplify the principles which shall guide the Secretary of Labor in the promotion of the Federal-state national system of public employment offices.

"(4) Authorize the Department of Labor to operate public employment offices in any state which fails or refuses to operate such offices in accordance with Federal standards."

Sharply reduced wage offerings are cited by the government as a principal reason why available jobs go unfilled while more than 1,500,000 are looking for work.

The United States Employment Service, in a survey of three cities described as typical, said today that if job seekers accepted available work "they would receive a cut in take-home pay averaging from 34 to 49 per cent for men, and from 49 to 53 per cent for women."

Explaining, the U. S. E. S. said the lower-skilled jobs available pay lower wages, and a further cut results from reduction of the workweek from forty-eight to forty hours.

The U. S. E. S. gave these other reasons in answering the question, "Why are there large numbers of workers seeking employment when there are also large numbers of job openings?":

1. The labor market was inflated during the war by inclusion of many workers who had learned only a single skill.

2. There are few, if any, peacetime jobs calling for these limited skills.

3. A sharp reduction in the number of jobs available in the skilled categories.

4. Most available jobs are for men while most of the job-seekers are women.

The survey was made in Atlanta, Ga.; Columbia, Ohio, and Trenton.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, reporting today that 1,400,000 workers were laid off in September, said the number was 1,000,000 less than in August and that hiring turned upward.

The hiring rate for September was placed at 73 per 1,000 workers, the highest since June, 1944. In August it had been 59 per 1,000.

The B. L. S. said the increase resulted chiefly from a 40 per cent boost in the hiring rate for the so-called munitions industries. Many munitions plants had completed reconversion and were ready to produce new products, the agency said, while workers were rehired by some plants which found they still had war contracts to complete.

Industry to Explain Stand On All Parley Questions

Complete Statement on Position to Be Issued This Week.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP) Industry's 18-man delegation to the Labor-Management conference will present a complete statement of its position on all major questions this week, management spokesmen announced tonight.

President Ira Mosher of the National Association of Manufacturers said industry's intent was to "shove things along a little" in the conference, now nine days underway.

Eric Johnston, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, said the forthcoming statement probably could be described as the first coordinating declaration by a major segment of American industry on employer-employee relations.

Johnston and Mosher, who lead the delegations of their respective organizations at the conference, met reporters after a caucus of management delegates. The caucus went to work on the blanket statement of policy shortly after the day's conference activities closed.

Part of the statement will be what Johnston and Mosher described as a "clarification" of the controversial resolution offered by CIO President Phillip Murray last week. Still shelved in the conference's executive committee the resolution calls for immediate collective bargaining between business and unions within the framework of President Truman's wage-price message two weeks ago. This called for wage increases generally to offset the workers' loss of high wartime earnings.

Management delegates generally have voiced disapproval of injecting the wage issue into the conference. Mosher reaffirmed this view tonight, saying that the Labor-Management parley was not a "conference for collective bargaining."

Asked whether the management effort to crystalize its position implied disappointment with the progress made in the conference to date, Mosher replied:

Not Disappointed

"I am not disappointed — by no means. But there comes a time in all meeting of this kind when someone has to shove things along a little.

"A lot of these committees have gone quite a ways toward agreement, and considerable progress has been made. You have got to give individuals a chance to talk things out; as they do they'll come to agreement."

Johnston and Mosher agreed that management had not yet decided its stand with respect to the Murray resolution, nor would they confirm a report that management would agree to the indorsement of collective bargaining if the references to wage increases were eliminated.

Murray himself has said the resolution was not intended to introduce the wage question into the conference but merely to get indorsement of immediate resumption of collective bargaining in the numerous cases where it has broken down.

On this point Johnston commented: "Mr. Murray has clarified the resolution orally; if it is to be adopted, it must be clarified in writing."

PLAN TO BRING LABOR PEACE STILL LACKING

Secretary Says Industrial Conference Hasn't Yet Tackled Problem.

UNION DISPUTE FLARES UP

Frankensteen's Charge That Lewis Secretly Joined A. F. L. Is Denied.

Washington, Nov. 13 (A. P.).—The national labor-management conference so far hasn't tackled the question of establishing machinery to settle post war industrial disputes, George Taylor, Secretary of the conference, said today. Answering a question at a news conference, he said no committee had progressed to the stage where voluntary arbitration or mediation machinery would be under discussion.

No committee specifically has that task, but Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach said before the conference opened last week that the agenda was broad enough to allow discussion of the subject.

President Truman, in his address opening the conference, asserted that "if this conference can recommend answers to the public demand for machinery to prevent or settle industrial disputes, it will have made vast progress toward industrial peace."

Taylor said that, in the conference's first week, committees had produced "a great interchange of information of the best techniques to use in different types of situations.

"It has proved a great opportunity for leaders of labor and industry to exchange techniques," he said.

Unions In Dispute.

As the conference met today after its Armistice Day holiday, a C. I. O.-Automobile Workers contention was raised that John L. Lewis secretly has taken his United Mine Workers back into the A. F. of L.

The contention—quickly denied by Lewis and the A. F. of L.—was voiced by Richard T. Frankensteen, vice-president of the C. I. O.-Automobile Workers Union, who told a news conference such a reaffiliation would give the A. F. of L. another vote in the conference.

Associates of Lewis denied the Frankensteen report, which the Automobile Workers' official said he had on very good information, and William Green, A. F. of L. president, told newspaper men it was "bunk." Philip Murray, C. I. O. president, said he knew nothing about it.

The only conference committee to remain on the job over the long week end was one studying representation and jurisdictional disputes between unions. Harry Woodhead, chairman, saying progress had been made, told newsmen a report would be made by Friday.

Meantime, the C. I. O.-Automobile Workers' executive board concluded its sessions until January 8, after appointing Frankensteen, defeated for Mayor of Detroit in last week's election, to head a drive for a 30 per cent wage increase, or its equivalent, the aircraft industry.

Labor Friction Again Marks D.C. Parley

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—A CIO contention that John L. Lewis has secretly taken his United Mine Workers back into the AFL was raised today as the labor-management conference reconvened after an Armistice Day holiday.

The contention—quickly denied by Lewis and the AFL—was voiced by Richard T. Frankensteen, vice president of the CIO auto workers' union, who told a news conference such a reaffiliation would give the AFL another vote in the conference.

The Vote Situation

Labor's eighteen votes are divided four ways, with eight each for the AFL and CIO and one each for Lewis's UMW and T. C. Cashen, representing the railroad brotherhoods. The United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers each has nine of industry's eighteen votes.

Associates of Lewis denied the Frankensteen report, which the auto union official said he had on "very good information," and AFL President William Green told newsmen it was 'bunk." CIO President Philip Murray said he knew nothing about it.

Lewis, AFL Go Parallel

Thus far in the conference, which opened last week to seek a solution to labor unrest throughout the country, Lewis and the AFL have supported the same objectives.

They teamed up to get the mine workers' chief a seat on the conference's executive committee, and they both criticized a resolution by Murray seeking to have the conference add the wage issue to its work program.

Lewis has been holding back in AFL reaffiliation moves in an effort to secure an advance guarantee of representation on the Federation's executive council.

AFL Council's Stand

The council has invited Lewis back to the Federation, which he left in 1937 after forming the CIO, but it would not pledge him a council place at once. After Lewis left the CIO Murray became president of that organization.

Lewis called Murray's wage resolution "namby pamby" because it would limit increases to those proposed by President Truman in his wage-price speech on October 30.

Murray told a reporter last night that he would not change his resolution and that the executive committee could take it up whenever it desired. He added that he would not press for action.

Bargaining Prospect

While agreement of management representatives on any declaration in favor of wage hikes would be difficult to obtain, some industry leaders have expressed a belief that the conference might agree to a resolution based on collective bargaining.

Murray's resolution contains this clause:

"The representatives of labor and management assembled in this conference do hereby make an urgent call upon the labor unions and the representatives of management to engage in genuine and sincere collective bargaining in an effort to resolve this all-important wage issue."

Progress Reported

The only conference committee to remain on the job over the long week end was one studying representation and jurisdictional disputes between unions. Chairman Harry Woodhead, saying "progress" had been made, told newsmen that some kind of report, whether conclusive or not, would be made by Friday.

Fairless Rejects Plea For New Wage Conference

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. — (AP) Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the United States Steel corp., said tonight that negotiations for a settlement of a priee controversy with the CIO United Steel Workers "are being blocked by the union and the government."

Earlier Fairless rejected for a second time an appeal by labor Secretary Lewis Schwellenbach for resumption of parleys with the union.

The steel president spoke tonight on a radio program (ABC) sponsored by the American Iron and Steel Institute in a question-and-answer discussion with an announcer.

"We are not refusing to bargain collectively," he declared "negotiations are being blocked by the union and by the government.

"The president of the union, Philip Murray, said flatly in the very beginning that his demand for an increase of $2 a day was not subject to dickering or compromise.

"The government is blocking it by keeping steel prices frozen. Wages cannot continue to go up when prices must remain at their present level.

Fairless said the union's demand, if granted, would cost the industry "at least $225,000,000 a year."

Commenting on how U. S. steel's answer would apply to other steel companies, Fairless said:

"Well, United States Steel is only one unit of an industry composed of many companies. Many of the other companies also have met with the union in collective bargaining conferences and their situation has been much the same as ours. After all, the economic facts of life apply to every business, large or small.

"The American Iron and Steel Institute, whose member companies employ 95 per cent of the workers in the steel industry, in a statement today said: 'proceeds from sales of steel provide the only funds out of which wages can be paid. Today the ceiling prices imposed by OPA do not provide a sufficient return to pay current costs of steel operations, let alone any increase in wages.'"

Fairless told a reporter after the broadcast that he "expected an answer from OPA this week," apparently referring to his company's request for a steel price increase.

LOWER PAY MAKES IDLE PASS UP JOBS

USES Says After Survey Men Would Take Home 34 to 49% Less, Women 49 to 53%

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP)—Sharply reduced wage offerings are cited by the Government as a principal reason why available jobs go unfilled while more than 1,500,000 persons are looking for work.

The United States Employment Service, in a survey of three cities described as typical, said today that if job seekers accepted available work "they would receive a cut in take-home pay averaging from 34 to 49 per cent for men and from 49 to 53 per cent for women."

Explaining, the USES said the lower-skilled jobs available paid lower wages, and a further cut resulted from reduction of the work-week from forty-eight to forty hours.

The USES gave these other reasons in answering the question, "Why are there large numbers of workers seeking employment when there are also large numbers of job openings?":

1. The labor market was inflated during the war by inclusion of many workers who had learned only a single skill.

2. There are few, if any, peacetime jobs calling for these limited skills.

3. A sharp reduction in the number of jobs available in the skilled categories.

4. Most available jobs are for men, while most of the job seekers are women.

The survey was made in Atlanta, Ga.; Columbus, Ohio, and Trenton, N. J. The report did not cite the number of jobs available in the three communties, nor the number of unemployed.

The USES's last check, made several weeks ago, listed some 700,000 job openings for the country as a whole. The Census Bureau has estimated that as of the week Oct. 7-13 a total of 1,520,000 persons were unemployed. Later figures were not available.

The report said that more than half the Atlanta men seeking unemployment compensation had earned more than $50 a week on their latest jobs, "but such wages can be earned on only 12 per cent of the jobs open to men in Atlanta at the time of the survey."

In Trenton more than 60 per cent of the male applicants earned $60 a week or more on their last jobs, but 95 per cent of the available jobs paid less than this, while two out of three paid less than $40, according to the USES.

The report said that in Columbus a majority of male applicants had recent earnings of $55 or more, "but now only 7 per cent of the jobs pay this much."

CLOSED SHOP TO HIGH COURT

Supreme Tribunal Promises Ruling On Florida Law

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—The Supreme Court today promised a ruling in a case raising a fundamental union labor question—can a state forbid the closed shop?

Florida voters wrote such a ban into their constitution one year ago. A three-judge Federal District Court upheld it, although they expressed "grave doubts" about their jurisdiction. So the Supreme Court first will inquire into the lower court's right to act.

If the Supreme Court should decide the District Court exceeded its authority, the latter's decision apparently would be nullified. In its order today, the high tribunal directed that arguments be made on that point.

Law Called Arbitrary

American Federation of Labor unions contended the Florida law is arbitrary and discriminatory against union members. Attorney General J. Tom Watson, of Florida, replied that it guaranteed collective bargaining, thus satisfying Federal requirements.

Here is the amendment in full:

"The right of persons to work shall not be denied or abridged on account of membership or nonmembership in any labor union or labor organization; provided, that this clause shall not be construed to deny or abridge the right of employés by and through a labor organization or labor union to bargain collectively with their employer."

The District Court pointed out that "no labor legislation by Congress has required an employé to belong to a labor union or has made the closed shop mandatory."

Free Speech Not Denied

"So long as the right to organize into a union and to bargain collectively is not abridged, there is no denial of freedom of speech, press, assembly and petition," the opinion said. "Whatever was traditionally a part of the process of collective bargaining seems to have been left unabridged by the second clause in the amendment."

The union declared 100,000 employés are working in Florida under union security agreements. Whether Florida can enforce such a law, it said, "is a matter of gravest importance to the 14,000,000 members of organized labor in this country."

Closed-shop agreements, it contended, are the only means for workers to insure job security, protection from employer discrimination, equality of bargaining power and protection of working standards against nonunion wage competition.

No Enforcement Law

The District Court further decided that the amendment does not violate the Federal Constitution or exceed the State's police power.

It observed, however, that the enactment is not self-executing and no enforcing legislation had been adopted. The court was not called on, it added, to decide what complications might arise out of operations of the act but added that it does not appear on its face to conflict with the national labor relations law.

In another decision, the Supreme Court refused to hold that the Washington (D.C.) Better Business Bureau is exempt from paying social security taxes. The bureau said the case affects others throughout the country.

In a five-to-three decision, the court held a Federal income-tax assessment constitutes a lien against property acquired later by the taxpayer.

272,000 Remain On Strike

[By the Associated Press]

Quiet prevailed along the nation's labor front today in the wake of the Armistice Day holiday, but threats of strikes in major industries remained in the background.

The number of idle remained at around 272,000, only a slight change within the past week.

Efforts to settle the largest strike, involving some 60,000 AFL lumber workers in the Pacific Northwest, have stalled, said a union spokesman in Portland, Ore. Negotiations to end the seven-week-old wage dispute continued but union leaders said there was no hope of immediate settlement.

Likewise, there were no indications that the strike of AFL-CIO machinists in the San Francisco Bay area for a 30 per cent increase was nearing an end. Now in its third week, the walkout of about 12,000 machinists has affected some 60,000 workers in scores of industries.

Employés of General Motors, Chrysler and Ford have voted in favor of a work stoppage to gain their demands for a 30 per cent rate boost. General Motors is scheduled to resume negotiations Thursday.

It was not known whether the United States Steel Corporation would accept Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach's second invitation to resume negotiations tomorrow with the CIO United Steelworkers. Strike votes among 500,000 workers are scheduled for November 28 and December 6 in support of the union's demands for a $2-a-day increase.

Home Buying Bill Calls For Only 5 P.C. Down

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—The possibility of buying a low-cost home on a down payment as small as five per cent is embraced in a new housing program proposed in the Senate.

That would mean $250 down on a $5,000 cottage, although there usually are transfer charges that would boost the initial payment somewhat.

Senators Wagner (D., N.Y.), Ellender (D., La.) and Taft (R., Ohio) agreed to sponsor jointly a general housing bill including that idea among special inducements for private builders to construct homes costing $5,000 or less.

$5,000 Set As Top Price

One of these inducements is a Government guarantee of mortgage up to 95 per cent of the value of low-cost homes built under the FHA. That would permit the down payment as small as five per cent.

The senators' measure would let the Federal Housing Administrator have discretionary authority in deciding just what price homes should be included, but it says the price could not exceed $5,000 in any case.

If building costs were low in the South, for instance, the administrator might limit the program there to houses costing no more than $4,000 while approving $5,000 ceilings in higher cost areas.

The Interest Rate

Interest charges on such mortgages could not run more than four per cent plus one half of one per cent insurance charge. Payments on the mortgage could run for as long as 32 years.

The plan also provides for mortgage guarantees up to 95 per cent on housing developments by "mutual corporations." Such a corporation might be formed by 40 or 50 people banding together to sponsor a housing development that they would live in and own mutually.

On this, the stipulated interest is 3½ per cent plus ½ of 1 per cent for insurance.

Rental Projects

A 90 per cent guarantee would be authorized on rental projects where the builder agreed to a rent schedule with the housing administrator.

These special inducements in the low-cost field were written into a revised version of an earlier Wagner-Ellender bill.

Retained are provisions for public housing, continuation of the FHA's 90 per cent mortgage program for higher-cost homes and urban redevelopment.

BOWLES SAYS CAR DEALERS SEEK TO GAIN EXEMPTIONS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. — (AP) Price Administrator Chester Bowles accused auto dealers today of a high pressure lobby campaign to gain exemptions from the OPA policy which requires retail merchants to absorb part of higher production costs.

He announced that the dealers' demands are being rejected. He added that price ceilings for new automobiles, to be announced Thursday, would permit dealers to make a higher profit than before the war.

He contended that a dealer could make a $200 profit on a $1,000 car whereas before the war he would have made only $115 on the same deal after taking into consideration losses on trade-ins.

Testifying before the House Small Business committee, which is considering dealer's complaints, Bowles reported that auto dealers had organized the most intensive telegraph-telephone lobby he ever had seen in a campaign but that OPA was resisting "government by pressure."

He said telegrams arrived at the rate of almost one a minute at OPA headquarters and the telephone switchboards were blocked by a flood of calls.

"Setting aside the fact that this flood of highly identical telegrams delayed the receipt of many important communications," he said, "one cannot help but respect the efficiency with which this part of the campaign was organized.

"The dealers did not fire until they saw the whites of our eyes but when they did fire, they fired with such perfect coordination that I cannot help but record my admiration."

Several members of the committee disagreed with Bowles that such incidents are "alarming." Rep. Hall (R-NY) commented that "it is sometimes healthy to get expressions of opinion from these little fellows."

Rep. Robinson (R-Utah) said he thought Bowles was over-emphasizing the "lobby."

The administrator shot back that the dealers have a right to make their opinions known "but Congress should also have a way to hear from the unorganized consumer."

Bowles said he couldn't exempt the auto dealers from the cost absorption regulation any more than he could exempt any other single industry.

"It would start an inflationary spiral just when victory over inflation is in sight," he said.

CLERIC ENTERS BOMB DISPUTE

Dean Of Canterbury Refers To Attlee's Suggestion On Russia

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—The Very Reverend Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, said today of British Prime Minister Clement V. Attlee's reported suggestion that Russia be given atomic bomb information under certain conditions: "It could be interpreted as using the atomic bomb as leverage politically."

The dean, interviewed at La-Guardia Field en route to Washington, did not elaborate on the statement.

Acents Russian Suspicion

He said recent discussions of the atomic bomb would accentuate Russion suspicion of the United States and Great Britain.

"They will feel that they are not to be trusted with it," he said. He suggested that if the positions were reversed, the reaction outside Russia also would be reversed.

Referring to a conversation he said he had in Moscow July 6 with Josef Stalin, Mr. Johnson quoted Stalin as having said there could be sympathy and understanding between Russia and her allies.

Not So Easy In Peace

"Stalin said that sympathy and understanding between Russia and her wartime allies was easy in war when we were faced with a common and terrible foe," he said, "but it is not so easy in peace. He said it can be done, and 'it is our will it shall be done.'"

The dean arrived earlier today by train from Presque Isle, Maine, where his trans-Atlantic plane from England was forced down yesterday.

Touching on freedom of the press, the dean said: "If you have freedom of the press, you have the other freedoms."

JOHNSON STATES ATOM BOMB GIVES US PEACE POWER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 — (AP) Senator Edwin C. Johnson, (D.-Colo.) urged today that the United States take steps to enforce world peace, "now and alone." The atomic bomb, he said, had given this nation the power to do so.

The acting chairman of the Military Affairs committee told an interviewer that the only defense against an atomic bomb is an atomic bomb.

"It is our opportunity to compel mankind to adopt a policy of lasting peace or be burnt to a crisp," he said. "This is a terifying responsibility but we ought to assume it at once and alone. To share it means watering it down with compromises.

Johnson's plan for maintaining world peace involves the use of long-range bombers carrying atomic bombs, and a horse-shoe shaped string of bases curving up from the Philippines to Alaska, east to Iceland and down through the Azores to Dakar and the South Atlantic.

The air force already has blueprinted planes with a 10,000-mile range, he said. From the bases he outlined, they would bomb any point in the world.

"I believe we ought to work for a world organization and for world understanding," he said. "But I think we ought to work for this first. Only when we get this system of far-flung air bases will we be ready to talk Turkey with the rest of the earth."

Johnson, a member of the special Senate committee on atomic energy and sponsor of one of the domestic control bills referred to that group, said the United States was always being told it should "fulfill its commitments" to maintain peace in the world.

"This is the realistic way to fulfill those commitments," he said.

Johnson said that the United States of course had no monopoly on virtue. But he recalled that the nation has fought two world wars with no anticipation of material rewards, and predicted that the peace-loving nations would applaud an American decision to use the bomb to prevent future conflicts.

"With vision, and guts, and plenty of atomic bombs, ultra modern planes, and strategically located bases, the United States can outlaw wars of aggression," he declared.

CRUISER AUGUSTA READY TO START TROOPSHIP DUTY

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—(AP) The heavy cruiser U.S.S. Augusta, first of 12 ships of the Atlantic fleet to be converted as troop-carriers, is scheduled to leave New York tomorrow on a six-day run to Le Havre, France, where she will reload and return to Boston.

The cruiser's complement has been cut from a wartime high of 1,100 men to 565 men and 360 extra bunks have been added so she will be able to bring back from Europe 1,000 Army personnel. On the trip to Le Havre she will carry 450 Army enlisted men and 22 officer replacements to the E.T.O.

Among the other ships which will be used as transports are the aircraft carriers, Wasp, Monterey, Enterprise, Randolph, Langley and Bataan, and the cruisers Boise, Portland, Philadelphia, Savannah and Reno.

The main berthing and mess facilities on the carriers will be on the hangar deck, where long rows of steam tables, bunks and washrooms have been installed.

The Augusta has installed 80 bunks in each of four compartments in what were hangars for scout planes. Another 40 bunks have been installed on what were deck ammunition lockers.

The cabin used by President Roosevelt when he met Prime Minister Churchill off Newfoundland in 1941 for the Atlantic Charter conference and more recently used by President Truman enroute to the Potsdam conference will be occupied by general officers who are among the returning soldiers.

The Augusta is commanded by Capt. J. R. Wallace, U.S.N. of Arlington, Va., and her executive officer is Comdr. F. R. Putnam, U.S.N.R., of Alexandria, Va.

GI's To Probe GI Plaints Urged

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—The Senate Naval Committee was asked today to place Army and Navy enlisted men on its staff to investigate demobilization complaints.

Senator Robertson (R., Wyo.) said in proposing this novel step that "GI's will talk to GI's when they won't talk to officers." What he wants is a "GI probe of GI complaints that thousands of high-point Army and Navy men are sitting around overseas anxiously waiting a chance to come home."

Robertson said he hopes to persuade the committee today to name to its staff two discharged enlisted men chosen by the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars and two still in the Army and Navy.

Protection Of Senate

Under his proposal they would have the protection of the Senate in investigating complaints.

Senator Morse (R., Ore.) told the Senate yesterday that some Army and Navy officers do not seem to know that enlisted men they command have the right to communicate wiht congressmen.

They also need to learn, he said, that "wearing the uniform of the United States does not give them the prerogative to exercise abusive, arbitrary and tyrannical powers over men."

Morse said that after he had asked for a report on one sailor the man was reprimanded by his commanding officer.

Rosenman, Special Counsel To President, Plans To Retire

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—Samuel I. Rosenman, a member of the original Roosevelt "Brain Trust," is retiring next January as special counsel to President Truman.

Rosenman gave up a $25,000-a-year job as a justice of the New York State Supreme Court to come to Washington October 1, 1943, to take the specially created White House post of chief counsel.

Now, at 49, he is anxious to get back to the practice of law in New York city, he said today, and re-establish himself in private life.

Lauded By Truman

In a letter acknowledging Rosenman's agreement to remain until after victory over Japan, President Truman spoke of Rosenman's "self-effacing zeal and patriotic devotion," and added that he had done his work with "seldom, if ever, any public credit or acclaim."

"Some day when accurate history is written, you will receive the credit which is due," the President added.

As he had done for the late President Roosevelt, Judge Rosenman played an important part in the drafting of Mr. Truman's presidential speeches and of other important White House papers.

Known As Confidant

But it was as the confidant of the former President that Rosenman was best known. They became friends when the man from Hyde Park first ran for Governor in 1928 and became his counsel.

When Mr. Roosevelt came to the White House, Rosenman went to the New York Supreme Court.

During his service on the bench, he often was called upon by the President for advice on governmental matters.

Later, during the war, Rosenman was instrumental in devising plans for setting up the Office of War Information, the War Production Board, the War Manpower Commission and the Office of Strategic Services.

As Mr. Roosevelt's emissary, he discussed with the British the original arrangements for the war criminal trials at Nuernberg.

AMPUTEE WILL AID VETERANS PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP) An amputee who can ski, swim, dive, and ice skate today was named to supervise the Amputee Rehabilitation program of the Veterans Administration.

He is Walter Bura, 31, who lost a leg as the result of a diving accident five years ago. A native of West Orange, N. J., he now is a resident of Miami, Fla.

Major General Paul R. Hawley, acting surgeon general of the VA, announced Bura's appointment at a news conference.

Bura, who has been an Army consultant for the past four months, said he believed much of the criticism of artificial limbs, provided veterans had resulted from misinformation, and attributed most of the trouble to failure to teach veterans to use the limbs properly. He said he would establish direct contact with veteran amputees in order to learn their problems, invite criticism, and provide corrective measures.

Long Roosevelt Tenure Bringing House Fight

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—House Democratic and Republican leaders headed today into a personal scrap over how many years a President should be allowed to serve.

At issue is a bill by GOP Leader Joseph Martin (Mass.) proposing a constitutional amendment to limit any President to two four-year terms.

The measure, on which the Elections Committee will begin hearings Thursday, is an outgrowth of the late President Roosevelt's third and fourth terms.

Martin will be the chief proponent. Democratic Leader John McCormack (Mass.) will be his No. 1 foe.

Doing Their Own Fighting

Usually the party chieftains let their colleagues carry the ball for them in testimony before committees. This time, however, each says he feels so strongly about the problem that he intends to do his own fighting. Both added, however, that they hoped to avoid any direct reference to the late President.

Commenting on the measure, Martin said:

"The underlying philosophy of our American republic has always been that no man is indispensable. . . . It should not be possible for the President to build up so vast and ramified a political organization that he alone can be considered a candidate to succeed himself."

McCormack's Stand

McCormack asserted:

"We should not put ourselves in the position of placing the dead hand of the past across the face of the future. Who knows when sometime again it may be advisable to continue a President in office beyond the normal eight years in order to deal successfully with an emergency."

Martin's proposal must be approved by a two thirds vote of the House and Senate and then be ratified by three fourths of the state legislatures.

PRESIDENT AND 'IKE' PRESS CLUB GUESTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. — (AP) President Truman tonight was made a member of the National Press club, where several times he played the piano as a senator and vice president, and was presented with a Steinway of his own.

Edward Jamieson, club president, made the presentation at a dinner in the Hotel Statler. He remarked that the club was non-partisan and took no credit for Mr. Truman's elevation to the presidency "but the members of this club can take the credit for making you known nationally as a piano player."

The guests, numbering about 1,000, gave General Eisenhower a standing ovation.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada was among those attending the dinner. Eddie Cantor was master of ceremonies.

Gen. Marshall Welcomed In Philadelphia Parade

Salute to Crowd Is Returned by Thousands

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13 (AP).—America's top soldier, General of the Army George C. Marshall, clicked his heels, snapped a salute and smiled—and thousands of Philadelphians saluted and smiled back today.

Then under a shower of confetti and to the blare of bands the Army's chief of staff toured the Quaker City's crowd-lined streets.

The Pennsylvania State Guard and the Army's military police gave the parade the necessary martial touch.

Among those to greet the five-star general and Mrs. Marshall were Pennsylvania's Governor Edward Martin, Philadelphia's Mayor Bernard Samuel and Mrs. Samuel, Lieutenant General Philip Hayes, commanding general of the 3d Service Command, Colonel C. Francis Clement, commander of the Pennsylvania Commandery, Military Order of Foreign Affairs, and Mrs. Clement, and Judge Vincent A. Carroll, Philadelphia.

Vets Find 'Civvy' Supply Low

Chicago, Nov. 13 (AP)—GI Joes, waving their discharge papers and ready to go places in civilian life, are finding it difficult to get all dressed up.

They discover that there isn't much of a choice in men's clothing, say retailers and manufacturers.

The discharged service men, most of them wanting to buy complete outfits, are given preference by retailers, but the demand is greater than at any time in the last year and stocks are depleted almost as soon as shipments are received.

Supply At Unprecedented Low

B. J. Cahn, president of a national manufacturer of men's clothing, says the supply is at an unprecedented low throughout the country, because of lack of materials, strikes and manpower shortages.

Retailers and manufacturers say the shortage will begin to ease early in 1946, but supply will not meet demand until late spring and possibly next fall.

They say the shortage of wool is acute and that the shortage of lining and trimming materials also is holding up suit production.

Shirts, Shorts Also Scarce

Suits are not the only scarce item, merchants say. Shirts and shorts are equally scarce.

Cahn suggests that, until the shortage is passed, discharged officers have their uniforms remodeled instead of placing them in moth balls. Civilians also should take old clothes out of moth balls, repair and wear them until the situation eases, he says.

Another manufacturer disagrees, however, saying many officers may resent being told to remodel and wear military uniforms.

President Truman's Health Rated Excellent

Cincinntai, Nov. 13 (AP)—President Truman "has a terrific amount of bounce—he's made up of bounce," the President's personal physician, Col. Wallace H. Graham, said today.

After six months in office the President's health is "excellent and he has stood the strain of events perhaps better than the average man," Dr. Graham declared in an interview here today.

President Sends Two Nominations

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—President Truman today nominated Brig. Gen. Alden Harry Waitt for chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, with the rank of major general. He will succeed Maj. Gen. William Nichols Porter.

The President also nominated Rear Admiral Oswald S. Colclough to be judge advocate general of the Navy. The Admiral will continue at his present rank. He succeeds Rear Admiral Thomas L. Gatch, who has been assigned duty as commander, service force, Atlantic fleet.

Old Army Uniforms Going To Yugoslavia

New York, Nov. 13 (AP) — Mrs. Marshall Field, chairman of the women's division of the winter clothing campaign, said today the War Department had authorized the American Committee for Yugoslavia Relief to collect army uniforms from discharged service men for shipment to needy Yugoslavian families.

Mrs. Field said authorization was given in a letter from Lieut. Gen. Leroy Lutes, deputy commanding general of the Army Service Forces.

The uniforms must be stripped of all military buttons and insignia prior to shipment.

Japanese Seek To Get Back U.S. Citizenship

San Francisco, Nov. 13 (AP)—More than 1,000 Japanese today filed suits seeking to regain United States' citizenship which they contended they had been forced to renounce during the war.

The suits, entered as the Government prepared to start deportation of all renunciants on November 15, were in behalf of Japanese residents of the Tule Lake center in northern California.

The Japanese filed two mass petitions for writs of habeas corpus in the United States District Court here, charging they were victims of duress by the Government and seditious groups.

Two additional suits by the same persons also sought cancellation of their renunciation of citizenship, declaration by the court of their United States nationality, and an injunction to restrain the Justice Department from carrying out its announced plan of deporting them to Japan as aliens.

Minnesota Confers New Title On Halsey

St. Paul, Nov. 13 (AP)—Admiral William F. Halsey, commander of the United States Navy's 3d Fleet, has a new title—Admiral of Minnesota's 10,000 Lakes.

Gov. Edward J. Thye handed the Admiral his newest commission today in welcoming him for his one-day visit to Minneapolis and St. Paul. Admiral Halsey will leave Wednesday morning by air for Pensacola, Fla., and will continue on to New Orleans Thursday on his nation-wide tour.

In a speech at the St. Paul auditorium, Halsey said he favored occupation of Japan "until they prove themselves, worthy," adding that "if they prove themselves, they should be given a little more rope, but we should always be ready to hit them over the head."

Doolittle Sees Comrade First Time Since Raid

Clinton, Iowa, Nov. 13 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle today saw one of his comrades on the first Tokyo raid for the first time since their B-25's flew off the deck of the carrier Hornet, April 18, 1942.

Doolittle, who participated in Armistice Day ceremonies at St. Louis yesterday, made a special trip to Schick Hospital here to visit Lieut. George Barr, of Queens Village, N.Y., 28-year-old navigator.

Barr, physicians said, is recovering from malnutrition and nervous disorders resulting from his imprisonment by the Japanese after he bailed out of his bomber near Nanchow, China.

"News" Is Broadcast From Plane Mile Up

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—Correspondents of the three major press associations today simulated a broadcast of news stories to their offices from a plane one mile above the nation's Capital.

The flight was arranged to help publicize the Victory Loan Drive.

The voices were broadcast from the plane over the same type of amplification system as was used by the Navy in psychological warfare against the Japanese.

The transmission, under favorable conditions, can be heard distinctly on the ground over a 10-mile radius when the plane is at a height of from 5,000 to 10,000 feet. The equipment can produce as much sound as 1,000 home radios turned on full power.

Hitler's Armored Train Arrives In Boston

Boston, Nov. 13 (AP)—Hitler's armored train on which he made many spectacular trips while the Nazis gobbled up Europe is in Boston aboard the Liberty freighter Wallace Tyler.

The vessel arrived here Saturday with a small body of troops from Antwerp but presence of the train aboard the craft did not become known until tonight.

Army spokesmen were not available immediately but a ship's officer who insisted on anonymity confirmed that the train had come here. He said he did not know the purpose for which it was brought to this country.

The train consists of two Diesel locomotives and four cars which are crated on the deck of the craft, taking up most of the deck space.

Truman In Two Parleys On Philippines Matters

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP)—President Truman discussed Philippine problems today with two groups, one including President Sergio Osmena of the Philippines; Paul V. McNutt, United States high commissioner, and Carlos P. Romulo, resident commissioner.

Romulo said the conference in which he participated touched on war damage compensation, mutually advantageous trade relations with the islands after independence, and adjustments of base pay for Philippine army enlisted men during the liberation campaign.

In an earlier conference which participants said dealt with Philippine matters in general, the President gave almost an hour to James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State; William L. Clayton, Assitant Secretary of Etate; McNutt, Abe Fortas, Under Secretary of the Interior, and Senator Tydings and Representative Bell (D., Mo.), chairmen of the Senate and House Territories committees.

General Le May Shows Marksmanship Afield

Pierre, S.D., Nov. 13 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Curtis Le May, commander of the 20th Air Force in Pacific warfare, is a crack shot on aerial targets—including South Dakota pheasants.

Pierre members of a hunting party which included General La May yesterday, said the air forces officer racked up his limit of ringneckers in one-two-three order.

General Le May came to South Dakota to participate in the tenth anniversary celebration of the stratosphere flight in the Black Hills.

Philadelphia Wants UNO To Make City Its Home

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—Four Philadelphians left LaGuardia Field today for London to ask the United Nations Organization Preparatory Commission to name Philadelphia the permanent home of the organization.

"Send back word that we are off to do a good job for Philadelphia," Dr. Robert Johnson, president of Temple University, said as the four boarded the plane.

With him were John Herndon and Ben Eschleman, university faculty members, and Judge Leonard Oliver, of the Pennsylvania State Court.

Barges for Indies Rubber

ROCHESTER, Nov. 13 (AP).—The first of 120 barges and sixty tugs designed to haul crude rubber from the interior of Sumatra and Borneo, were in the Barge Canal today, headed for the Dutch East Indies. The Odenbach Shipbuilding Corporation said about ten barges have already started the canal trip to New York City, where they will be loaded on ships. Construction of the barges and tugs has been under the supervision of Commander L. P. Stoppler, of the Royal Netherlands Navy.

GI Civil Service Placements Cited

Chicago, Nov. 13 (AP)—More than 1,900 widows of World War II veterans and wives of disabled veterans were placed in the Federal service during the first half of 1945, the Civil Service Assembly reported today.

During the same six months 760 widows of World War I veterans and wives of disabled World War I veterans also were placed. During 1943 and 1944 more than 6,000 placements of widows and wives of disabled veterans were made. Veteran placements, including both ex-service men and ex-service women, totaled 95,000 for the six-month period, an average of about 16,000 a month.

PARIS, NOV. 13-(AP)- THE TEXT OF GEN. DE GAULLE'S DECLARATION ON BEING NOTIFIED OF HIS ELECTION AS PRESIDENT OF THE PROVISIONAL FRENCH GOVERNMENT:

"THE CONDITIONS IN WHICH THENATIONAL CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY HAVE JUST ELECTED THE PRESIDENT OF THE PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT OF THE REPUBLIC HAVE A PROFOUND SIGNIFICANCE.

NOV 14 1945

"FIRST OF ALL, THERE IS A SOLEMN CONSECRATION FOR THE ENTIRE EFFORT OF RESISTANCE THAT FRANCE OPPOSED TO THE INVADER AND WHICH GAVE HER VICTORY. IT IS NECESSARY TO SEE THERE ALSO AN EXPRESSION OF THE SENTIMENT AND WILL OF THE FRENCH PEOPLE WHO INTEND TO CONTINUE IN NATIONAL CONCORD THEIR WORK OF RE-CONSTRUCTION AND RENOVATION.

"DO I NEED TO SAY THAT FOR THE CITIZEN THAT I AM XXXX THE VOTE OF THE NATIONAL CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY IS AN EXTREME HONOR? AN INVITATION TO A NEW TASK IN THE SERVICE OF THE COUNTRY AND OF FRENCH UNION UNDER CIRCUMSTANCES OF WHICH EVERYONE REALIZES THE GRAVITY?

"BUT THE SITUATION IN WHICH OUR FATHERLAND FINDS ITSELF AS FAR AS ITS INTERNAL RESURRECTION, WELL AS ITS POSITION ABROAD IS CONCERNED, AND FURTHER, THE EXTENT OF THE WORLD PROBLEM TO BE RESOLVED BY THE GREAT VICTORIOUS POWERS OF WHICH WE ARE ONE--- IMPOSE ON THE GOVERNMENT OF FRANCE THE HEAVIEST RESPONSIBILITIES.

NOV 14 1945

WITHOUT ANY DOUBT, THE EXECUTIVE POWER MUST COUNT IN ITS ACTION ON THE XXXXXXXXX NATIONAL REPRESENTATIVES; THEY MUST ALSO APPROVE ITS COMPOSITION. BUT AT THE SAME TIME THE INDEPENDENCE, COHESION AND AUTHORITY OF THE GOVERNMENT MUST BE EQUAL TO ITS TASK. I WOULD NOT BE ABLE TO FORM, NOR TO DIRECT A GOVERNMENT THAT IS NOT ASSURED OF THIS AUTHORITY, THIS COHESION AND THIS INDEPENDENCE. IT IS A QUESTION OF CONSCIENCE OF CONSEQUENCE.

"A PROGRAM HAS BEEN SPOKEN OF A GREAT DEAL. IT IT IS A QUESTION OF ORIENTATION, IT IS ESTABLISHED BY THE FUNDAMENTAL AGREEMENT AMONG ALL GOOD FRENCHMEN. IN THE RESISTANCE, LEARNED THE LESSONS OF OUR UNHAPPINESS AND CHOSE THE ROUTE OF OUR RENOVATION.

"THESE LESSONS MUST BE UNDERSTOOD; THIS ROUTE MUST BE FOLLOWED; THIS RENOVATION MUST BE ACCOMPLISHED. AS FOR THEIR REALIZATION, NECESSITIES AND POSSIBILITIES MUST, OF COURSE, BE COUNTED ON AND IT WOULD MEAN COMPROMISING EVERYTHING NOT TO LOOK THEM IN THE FACE.

NOV 14 1945

"HOWEVER, THE POWERS OF THE NATIONAL CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY ARE LIMITED TO 30 WEEKS, OF WHICH ONE HAS ALREADY BEEN COMPLETED. DURING THAT SHORT PERIOD, THE PRINCIPAL TASK WHICH THE PEOPLE THEMSELVES HAVE DECIDED BY UNANIMOUS XXXX MAJORITY IS TO DRAW UP A CONSTITUTION. ON THE OTHER HAND, A BUDGET MUST BE DRAWN UP AND, WHATEVER ARE THE CIRCUMSTANCES, THIS BUDGET MUST BE ADOPTED BEFORE THE END OF THIS YEAR.

"BUT BESIDES THIS, SEVERAL ESSENTIAL REFORMS CONCERNING CREDIT AND UTILITIES AS WELL AS THE ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM, THE MAGISTRATURE XXX STRUCTURE [redacted] AND THE MILITARY ORGANIZATION OUGHT TO BE PROPOSED BY THE GOVERNMENT, AND CAN BE REALIZED BY THE ASSEMBLY BEFORE THE END O THIS PERIOD. AS WELL AS A PROGRAM, THEN, WE MUST ALSO HAVE A TIMETABLE.

"THESE IMPORTANT EXIGENCIES IMPLY, OBVIOUSLY, THAT THE ASSEMBLY ON ITS SIDE MUST CONCENTRATE WITH RIGOROUS ATTENTION ON ITS CONSTITUTIONAL AND LEGISLATIVE WORK, THAT IT NOT ALLOW ITSELF TO BE DISTRACTED BY MINOR SQUABBLES AND THAT IT DELIBERATELY AVOID ALL MATTERS OF SECONDARY IMPORTANCE. LET US NOT DELUDE OURSELVES ABOUT IT. WE ARE GOING TO MAKE THE [redacted] DECISIVE TEST OF A REPRESENTATIVE REGIME.

NOV 14 1945

"RESPONDING TO THE APPEAL OF THE NATIONAL GOING TO UNDERTAKE TO FORM AND ORGANIZE A GOVERNMENT IN ACCORDANCE WITH CERTAIN INDISPENSABLE CONDITIONS AND FOR THE TASK WHICH WE MUST ACHIEVE.

NUERNBERG, GERMANY, NOV. 13-(AP)-A 30,000-WORD TRANSCRIPT OF TELEPHONE CONVERSATIONS BY TOP-DRAWER NAZIS DURING THE AUSTRIAN ANSCHLUSS WILL BE INTRODUCED IN THE NUERNBERG WAR CRIMES TRIAL.

DANIEL DE LUCE, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT, FOUND THE TRAN-SCRIPT IN THE RUINS OF THE BERLIN WAR MINISTRY. HE MADE THEM THE BASIS OF A SERIES OF NEWS STORIES WHICH APPEARED IN ASSOCIATED PRESS NEWSPAPERS EARLIER THIS MONTH.

THOMAS J.DODD, A MEMBER OF JUSTICE ROBERT H.JACKSON'S PROSECUTION PANEL, SAID THE CONVERSATIONS WOULD BE USED IN SUPPORT OF THE FIRST COUNT OF THE INDICTMENT AGAINST THE 22 HIGH RANKING NAZIS. THIS COUNT COVERS "THE COMMON PLAN OR CONSPIRACY" CHARGED TO THE DEFENDANTS.

UNANIMOUSLY, THEY ATTACKED THE "ENTIRELY NEW PROCEDURE" THEY ENCOUNTERED IN THE HIGH COURT.

"IT IS A STRANGE NEW LAND FOR US," SAID DR.EGON KUBUSCHOK, THE LAWYER FOR FRANZ VON PAPEN, HITLER'S ACE DIPLOMAT. HE ASSERTED THAT "THE CHARTER FOR THE TRIBUNAL DOES NOT STIPULATE WHETHER THE PROCEDURE SHALL BE ANGLO-AMERICAN OR CONTINENTAL."

"I PREFER ANGLO-AMERICAN FOR ORDINARY CRIMINAL CASES, BUT FOR CASES OF SUCH HISTORICAL IMPORTANCE AS THESE, I BELIEVE THE CONTINENTAL SYSTEM IS BETTER," HE SAID.

DR.ROBERT W.KEMPNER OF LANSDOWN, PA., A GERMAN-BORN AMERICAN WHO FIGURED IN THE PROSECUTION OF A NUMBER OF SEDITION CASES IN THE UNITED STATES AND NOW IS A SECTION CHIEF UNDER JUSTICE ROBERT H. JACKSON. THE UNITED STATES PROSECUTOR, GREETED SEVERAL OF THE LAWYERS AS OLD COLLEAGUES.

A COMMUNIST SPOKESMAN ASSERTED, WITHOUT CONFIRMATION, THAT NATIONALIST TROOPS WERE PUSHED TOWARD THE MANCHURIAN BORDER TO DEAL A "SERIOUS BLOW" AT COMMUNIST FORCES, PRESUMABLY IN THE SHANHAIKWAN AREA. CHNG (DAX) x+x To The Communists

ANOTHER UNCONFIRMED REPORT, FROM CHINWANGTAO, SAID COMMUNIST TROOPS IN SHANTUNG PROVINCE WERE EMBARKING AT THE PORT OF PENGLAI, NORTHWEST OF CHEFOO, FOR SOUTHEASTERN MANCHURIA WHICH IS 70 MILES ACROSS THE YELLOW SEA. THE MOVE MATERIALLY WOULD BOLSTER COMMUNIST FORCES STRNGLY ENTRENCHED AT SHANHAIKWAN, EASTERN ANCHOR OF THE GREAT WALL AND GATEWAY TO THE NORTH.

THE CONFERENCE OF NATIONALIST GENERALS AND WAR AREA COMMANDERS, WHICH HAD AROUSED COMMUNIST SUSPICIONS OF CENTRAL GOVERNMENT WAR PLANNING WHILE THE PEACE CONFERENCES HERE CONTINUE, WAS OFFICIALLY EXPLAINED AS CONCERNED ONLY WITH THE SAFETY OF EAST ASIA AND THE WELFARE OF MANKIND.

GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK WAS REPORTED TO HAVE TOLD THE CONFERENCE THAT CHINA SHOULD "MAKE ENERGETIC EFFORTS TO SEEK PROGRESS IN THE HOPE SHE MAY, TOGETHER WITH THE ALLIED COUNTRIES, BE ABLE TO SECURE LASTING PEACE FOR THE WORLD."

HOWEVER, CHINESE QUARTERS WERE REPORTED PUZZLED ABOUT MOSCOW'S ATTITUDE TOWARD NATIONALIST OCCUPATION OF MANCHURIA AND THE INABILITY TO GET NATIONALIST TROOPS INTO MANCHURIA, FROM WHICH THE RUSSIANS SUPPOSEDLY ARE WITHDRAWING TO PERMIT CHINESE CONTROL.

GOVERNMENT DISPATCHES SAID 50,000 COMMUNIST TROOPS WERE CREATING HAVOC AROUND TZEHSIEN, RECENTLY CAPTURED BY THE REDS, IN SOUTHERN HOPEH PROVINCE.

THIS WAS ONE OF SEVERAL RECENT COMMUNIST ACCUSATIONS THAT AMERICAN FORCES ALONG THE GREAT WALL ROUTE INTO MANCHURIA WERE INTERFERRING IN CHINA'S INTERNAL AFFAIRS.

THE COMMUNIST NEWSPAPER NEW CHINA DAILY NEWS CHARGED THAT A LARGE NUMBER OF AMERICAN-EQUIPPED CHINESE TROOPS HAVE BEEN TAKEN BY AIR THE PAST FEW DAYS TO PEIPING, TIENTSIN AND SUIYUAN PROVINCE.

THE NEWSPAPER ALSO ALLEGED THAT RIVER BOATS AND TRUCKS WERE BEING REQUISITIONED IN EASTERN SZECHWAN PROVINCE TO CARRY ARMS AND AMMUNITION, INCLUDING AMERICAN MATERIAL, TO NATIONALIST FORCES AT HANKOW AND NANKING.

AMERICAN OFFICIALS IN CHINA AND WASHINGTON HAVE DENIED THAT U.S. FORCES ARE GOING BEYOND THEIR WAR-TIME PROMISES IN GIVING MILITARY AID TO CHINA. THESE PROMISES INCLUDED EQUIPPING 39 CHINESE DIVISIONS, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE CHINESE 94TH NATONALIST ARMY AT TIENTSIN SAID THAT PUPPET TROOPS AT TANGKU AND TAKU, IN TIENTSIN AND ENVIRONS, WERE DISARMED BY NATIONALIST TROOPS NOV. 11. SOME OF THE HIGH-RANKING PUPPET OFFICERS WERE PUT UNDER ARREST.

TIENTSIN POLICE OFFICIALS TOLD ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT OLEN CLEMENTS THAT COMMUNIST FORCES WERE TIGHTENING THEIR RINGS AROUND THAT CITY, WHERE U.S. MARINES ALSO ARE ON PATROL DUTY.

TANGSHAN, CHINA, NOV 13-(AP)-UNITED STATES MARINES HAVE TOLD ME OF TWO INCIDENTS IN CHINA'S UNDECLARED CIVIL WAR IN WHICH THEY HAVE BEEN FIRED UPON NEAR THIS COAL MINING CENTER.

TWO WERE WOUNDED IN ONE OF THE INCIDENTS. OTHER MEMBERS OF THEIR PARTY SAID THEY LATER LEARNED THE MEN WHO DID THE FIRING WERE CHINESE COMMUNISTS WHO SENT LETTERS OF APOLOGY, EXPLAINING THEY "THOUGHT WE WERE JAPS."

TANGSHAN IS SOUTHWEST OF THE PORT OF CHINWANGTAO.

THE OTHER NIGHT LEATHERNECKS GUARDING A BRIDGE NORTH OF TANGSHAN WERE FIRED UPON. THEY TOOK SHELTER, WEATHERED REPEATED VOLLEYS, THEN BROKE UP THE AFFAIR BY FIRING BACK WITH AUTOMATIC WEAPONS. NO MARINES WERE WOUNDED.

NOV 14 1945

SHORTLY BEFORE, FOUR MARINES WERE RETURNING FROM THE LOCAL AIR STRIP BY A SHORT-CUT ALMOST WITHIN SHOUTING DISTANCE OF TANGSHAN AND MARINE HEADQUARTERS WHEN THEIR JEEP WAS CAUGHT IN A VICIOUS CROSSF.

MAJ. HENRY J. GUINIVAN, BEVERLY, MASS., RAN THE JEEP INTO AN EMBANKMENT AND CAPT. MAURICE CAVANAUGH, JR., 523 WHITE ST., SPRINGFIELD, MASS., PILED INTO THE DITCH WITH HIM. ONE OF TWO ENLISTED MEN IN THE BACK SEAT OF THE JEEP ALSO MADE IT TO THE DITCH. THE OTHER FLATTENED OUT IN THE JEEP.

AFTER REPEATED BURSTS OF SMALL-ARMS FIRE, GUINIVAN YELLED TO THE MAN IN THE JEEP:

"ARE YOU O.K.?"

THE MAN ANSWERED BY FIRING HIS TOMMY GUN INTO THE AIR. THAT STARTED THE GUNFIRE ALL OVER AGAIN AND THE JEEP WAS RIDDLED WITH SMALL-ARMS FIRE AND FRAGMENTS OF GRENADES AND MORTAR SHELLS. BOTH THE ENLISTED MAN IN THE JEEP AND THE OTHER IN THE DITCH WERE WOUNDED.

CAVANAUGH SAID THAT "FINALLY, ONE CHINESE SOLDIER WEARING A JAPANESE WHITE HELMET POKED HIS HEAD OVER THE EMBANKMENT, SAW THAT WE WERE WHITE MEN, AND STARTED YELLING.

"THEN THE LEADER CAME OVER, FRISKED US, TOOK AWAY OUR WEAPONS AND STARTED US DOWN THE ROAD WITH OUR HANDS UP."

EVERY TIME AN AMERICAN PLANE FLEW OVERHEAD, CAVANAUGH SAID, THE CHINESE "FORCED US TO HIDE IN THE DITCH."

"FINALLY WE REACHED A LITTLE [illegible] WHERE OUR TWO ENLISTED MEN HAD THEIR WOUNDS DRESSED. THEN THE CHINESE GAVE OUR GUNS BACK AND WE WALKED BACK TO THE JEEP. IT WAS SO BADLY SHOT UP IT WOULDN'T START, AND WE HAD TO WALK ON INTO TOWN."

CAVANAUGH SAID THEY LATER LEARNED THE CHINESE WERE PART OF THE COMMUNIST EIGHTH ROUTE (18TH GROUP) ARMY. THE COMMUNISTS SENT LETTERS OF APOLOGY, HE SAID, EXPLAINING THAT THEY HAD JUST STOPPED A JAPANESE TRUCK IN THAT VICINITY AND "THOUGHT WE WERE JAPS; THEY'VE NEVER SEEN A JEEP BEFORE."

"THEY SENT GIFTS OF FRUIT AND NUTS TO THE ENLISTED MEN IN THE HOSPITAL, WITH THEIR LETTERS OF APOLOGY," HE ADDED. "THE COMMANDER SAID HE WAS SORRY HE COULDN'T COME TO APOLOGIZE IN PERSON."

NOW ALL AMERICAN VEHICLES CARRY BOTH AMERICAN AND CHINESE GOVERNMENT FLAGS AND ALL MARINES CARRY ARMS. THEY'RE STILL TRYING TO KEEP OUT OF TROUBLE UNTIL THEIR SHIP SAILS FOR HOME.

2 Die, 50 Hurt As Jews Riot In Palestine

Geo. Palmer

STREET BATTLES FOLLOW GENERAL 12 HOUR STRIKE

Government Building Is Set Afire; Four Policemen Injured.

CURFEW IS IMPOSED

British Troops Fire 16 Rounds of Ammunition at Rioters.

JERUSALEM, Thursday, Nov. 15 —(AP) Reports from Tel Aviv early today said two Jewish youths were killed, seven were seriously wounded and about 50 slightly injured yesterday in street rioting during a 12-hour general strike protesting new British proposals for settlement of the Palestine problem.

NOV 15 1945

The casualties occurred when police and military units fired and charged with clubs into crowds which set afire government buildings and stoned police.

Troops Fire on Mob

(A Reuters dispatch said British troops fired 16 rounds of ammunition at the rioters.)

The riots started when a crowd of unruly youths, estimated at 300 to 400, broke up a parade of orderly marchers who were returning from a mass demonstration against the statement yesterday by the British government on Palestine.

After breaking up the parade the rioters stormed the government district office and attacked about 20 Jewish policemen guarding it. Four policemen were injured in fighting the rioters who set fire to the building.

Curfew Is Imposed

A complete curfew for all civilians was imposed in Tel Aviv at 11 o'clock tonight. It will continue until further notice.

(Reuters quoted a police bulletin as saying an American army sergeant and one other person were injured in Tel Aviv by glass splinters when Arabs fired on a truck operated by an armed British crew.

(The bulletin added, Reuters said, that one Arab and a Palestinian constable were injured in a clash between Jewish youths and Arab shepherds near Haifa.

(Reuters also said that the Palestine Arab party's executive committee today in an official statement called on all Arab nations to support resistance of further Jewish immigration.)

Reports from Tel Aviv said troops of the Sixth Airborne division fired at the legs of demonstrators after giving orders to "disperse immediately or we open fire."

A surging crowd of youths set fire to the British district office, breaking windows to hurl torches inside, the advices said, and also attacked the income tax office. Two Jewish police officers were reported hurt by flying stones.

The troops were said to have erected huge posters, in the English, Arabic and Hebrew languages, ordering demonstrators to go home or be shot. Searchlights were directed on the posters, and the crowds dispersed by 10 p. m.

No official statement was expected before tomorrow.

(A Reuters dispatch said one of the buildings set afire housed the income tax and light industries office. Explosions occurred inside, it added.)

Attack Four Buildings

First reports from Tel Aviv said the crowds attacked four buildings, setting three afire. The youths hurled burning torches inside and then stoned police who rushed to the scene. One building still was reported burning tonight. Tel Aviv police fought the crowds with sticks.

In Jerusalem, several hundred youths threw stones at transport workers who ignored the strike call, injuring several Jewish taxi drivers, five Arab taxi drivers, and four bus passengers.

Signs emblazoned "down with Attlee," "down with Bevin," and "down with the White Paper" were hoisted at a huge mass meeting in Tel Aviv.

Thousands attended a mass meeting in Jerusalem, including 400 Hebrew university students. Another demonstration was held at Haifa.

At the Jerusalem meeting one speaker, Dr. Sneh-Kleinbaum, a member of the Jewish Agency Executive committee, declared:

"Palestine is not an Arab country. Palestine is not a British country. Palestine is not an Anglo-American country, but a Jewish country, and it will be built up by all ways and means."

Except for the stoning incidents, Jerusalem remained quiet and the Jewish public appeared anxious to maintain discipline.

A secret radio station calling itself "the voice of Israel" broadcast appeals for "a continuation of the Zionist struggle" and for "further refugee immigration and land settlement."

All Jewish shops, restaurants, work shops and factories were closed, and Jewish-operated buses and taxis stopped. Essential workers were asked to stay on their jobs in military camps, hospitals, communications offices, and at Tel Aviv harbor, where the first cargo ship to arrive there since 1940 was being unloaded.

Disturbances Started In Jewish Protest Of London Policy

Tel Aviv, Palestine, Thursday, Nov. 15 (AP)—British paratroopers of the 6th Airborne Division restored order in riot-ridden Tel Aviv at 11 o'clock last night after a huge crowd of Jewish civilians stormed through the streets in four hours of stoning and burning in which two persons were killed and moer than 40 wounded.

Shortly after nightfall, following a large mass meeting against British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's statement in the House of Commons Tuesday on Palestine, crowds marched through the heart of the city, attacking four Government buildings and stoning police who attempted to restore order.

Government Office Set Afire

When the police were unable to quell the rioters by attempting to disperse the crowds with sticks, fully armed airborne troops were called into action and for the first time since the riots of 1936 and 1939, British soldiers fired on Palestine citizens.

The heaviest fighting occurred in the vicinity of Colony square along teh main business street, Allenby rod, when the large crowd of Jews stormed the district commissioner's office and the Tel Aviv central post-office.

The district commissioner's office was set afire and gutted by blazing torches, but the paratroopers arrived in time to prevent the crowds from firing the post office.

British Give Warning

Rioters, however, smashed the post office windows, yanked out telephones and poured gasoline over the counters preparatory to firing the building when troops dispersed the crowds.

Major John Shopee, of the 6th Airborne Division, describing the sequence of events involving the firing by the troops, stood beside an armored car in Colony Square shortly before midnight and explained:

"When we arrived here a crowd of 400 to 500 people were throwing stones heavily at the police. We gave the necessary warnings.

"We hoisted our banners with the words 'disperse or we fire' written in Hebrew, Arabic and English.

Crowd Continues Stoning

"The crowd moved toward us and continued to throw stones. We had three chaps wounded, so I gave the order to fire. One man fired two rounds and wounded one of the attackers.

"When the crowd continued to charge I gave a second order to fire two more rounds in which another attacker was wounded."

Shopee said the crowd was shouting insults at the soldiers as it hurled stones and he declared that fro mthe manner in which the rioters charged, it was his opinion that the crowd was an organized one. He estimated there weer between eight and ten soldier casualties in the Colony Square fighting and that a like number of policemen weer injured.

Streets Full Of Stones

A police major in charge of the Aviv area explained that the crowds were unarmed except for stones, but he added "we had a very difficult time until the troops arrived on the scene."

"The crowd," the police major said, "was hurling some pretty big rocks and they were hurling them hard and fast."

One police lieutenant declared that people who gathered on the roofs of buildings overlooking Colony square hurled large rocks down on the soldiers and police.

The streets of Tel Aviv where the rioting occurred were full of stones ranging in size from eggs to grapefruit late last night.

After the rioters were dispersed the square was ringed by British armored cars, police armored cars, army trucks, ambulances and jeeps. An estimated 200 soldiers and policemen, all fully armed, were on duty.

Complete Curfew Ordered

Husky paratroopers, wearing colorful red berets and camouflage suits, patroled the streets in Indian file, tommyguns at their hips, while police radio trucks and jeeploads of airborne troops cruised throughout the city.

With a complete curfew ordered for the entire municipal area until further notice, only a few civilians were seen on the streets and they were probably persons employed in vital public utilities.

The scene outside the light industries office where the crowds started a huge bonfire of office files appeared warlike at 10.45 P.M., as the flames were extinguished and a pale white smoke filled the streets.

Paratroopers were stationed near every doorway, sprawled on their stomachs on the sidewalks, their rifles at their shoulders.

In Jerusalem, several hundred youths threw stones at transport workers who ignored the strike call, injuring several Jewish taxi drivers, five Arab taxi drivers and four bus passengers.

Meeting Attracts Thousands

Thousands attended a massmeeting in Jerusalem, including 400 Hebrew University students. Another demonstration was held at Haifa.

At the Jerusalem meeting one speaker, Dr. Sneh-Kleinbaum, a member of the Jewish Agency executive committee, declared:

"Palestine is not an Arab country. Palestine is not a British country. Palestine is not an Anglo-American country, but a Jewish country, and it will be built up by all ways and means."

A secret radio station calling itself "The Voice of Israel" broadcast appeals for "a continuation of the Zionist struggle" and for "further refugee immigration and land settlement."

Protests From Press

The Jewish and Arab press alike protested strongly Bevin's policy statement yesterday, in which he announced a joint British-American committee would make recommendations concerning Jewish problems.

In Cairo, Pan-Arab League delegates held a special session to consider the league's course. Jamiel Mardam Bey, league president, said the Bevin declaration concerns "an extremely serious question in which all the Arab world is interested."

"Not Fair," Arabic Paper Says

In Jerusalem, the Hebrew revisionist paper Hamashkif declared: "Even if this statement should be indorsed by the United States, and even if the whole world should be against us—we will not accept it and we will fight against it with the force of despair. . . ."

The Arabic morning newspaper Al-Difah said the Government statement was "not fair to the Arabs" and that the Arabs "will not consent to its stipulations."

General Walkout Called in Objection to Bevin's Plan.

SHOPS AND PLANTS CLOSE

Jerusalem Bus Drivers and Tel Aviv Police Stoned—Secret Radio Heard.

Jerusalem, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Unconfirmed reports tonight said British troops had been called into action to quell street rioting in Tel Aviv during the Jewish general strike in Palestine.

Jerusalem, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Surging groups of Jewish youths fired a Government [illegible] building and stoned police at Tel Aviv today, and unconfirmed reports said that students and police were waging a pitched battle there.

The violence began during a twelve-hour general strike called in protest against new British proposals to settle the Palestine problem.

[A Reuters dispatch said there was shooting in the streets of Tel Aviv and that the building set afire housed the income tax and light industries offices. Explosions occurred inside, the dispatch said, and the crowd prevented firemen from extinguishing the blaze.]

The youths swooped down on the building, hurling blazing torches inside, and then stoned police who rushed to the scene. The building still was burning tonight.

In Jerusalem, several hundred youths stoned bus drivers who refused to quit work during the protest strike. Generally, Jerusalem remained quiet and the Jewish public appeared anxious to maintain discipline.

Signs Attack Attlee.

In Tel Aviv, signs emblazoned "Down With Attlee," "Down With Bevin" and "Down With the White Paper" were hoisted at a mass meeting.

A secret radio station calling itself "The Voice of Israel" broadcast appeals for "a continuation of the Zionist struggle" and for "further refugee immigration and land settlement."

All Jewish shops, restaurants, work shops and factories were closed and Jewish-operated buses and taxis stopped.

Jewish workers in essential services were requested to continue work in military camps, hospitals, post offices, telegraph and broadcasting stations, as well as at the Tel Aviv harbor, where the first cargo ship to arrive since 1940 began discharging merchandise.

Mass Meetings Planned.

The people of Palestine eagerly were studying British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's statement. A number of mass meeting demonstrations were planned in Palestine towns during the afternoon.

There was widespread objection throughout Palestine to the Bevin's statement that Britain and the United States jointly would attempt to solve the problem, and to his intimation that eventually Palestine would be placed under a trusteeship. Britain at present governs Palestine under a League of Nations mandate.

Assembly To Meet

The Jewish elected assembly, representing all Palestine political parties, will meet November 19 in Jerusalem to discuss the British statement.

It was announced last night that the self-imposed curfew has been revoked, allowing outdoor protest demonstrations.

The Jewish press generally assailed the Bevin statement. A typical comment in the Palestine Post said it failed "to deal squarely with President Truman's repeated proposals that 100,000 Jews should be admitted to Palestine immediately."

Bevin said yesterday that until the report of a joint committee of inquiry on Palestine has been received and acted upon, the present rate of Palestine Jewish immigration—1,500 persons a month—would be continued.

Arab Reaction

Arab newspapers also were critical. The newspaper Al-Difah asserted that the statement was unfair to Arabs, and that Arabs would not consent to its stipulations.

Dr. Bernard Joseph, acting head of the Jewish agency's political department, said the Jewish people never would submit to the policy as expressed in the statement, and that the British had been so informed.

Other Jewish spokesmen said the present 1,500-a-month immigration quota was insufficient to meet the needs of displaced Jews in Europe and that establishment of a trusteeship might further delay final settlement of the question.

[In Cairo Nahoum Effendi, Jewish religious leader in Egypt, said the Jews of Egypt had no connection with Zionism and would insist upon not becoming involved in the controversy, which he characterized as one strictly between the Pan-Arab League on the one hand and Britain and the United States on the other.]

Want Complete Freedom.

London, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—David Ben-Gurion, executive chairman of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, asserted today that the world's Jews never would agree that their entry to Palestine should be dependent on any one else's consent.

He described Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's statement yesterday as "a sad disappointment" and contended there would be no solution of the problem until a Jewish state was established in Palestine.

Ben-Gurion said the Jews of Palestine "will never submit to a position and status which would expose them" to massacre. He continued:

The dual obligation to Jews and Arabs mentioned by Bevin was overshadowed by Great Britain's single responsibility, as established by a royal commission: "The primary purpose of the mandate was the establishment of a Jewish national home."

Peer Asks Arab Aid Denial

London, Nov. 14 (AP)—Laborite Lord Strabolgi said today he would ask Britain's Labor Government to deny allegations that British officials in Palestine armed Arabs and gave permission to terrorist leader Abdulla Kalil to return to the Middle East with promises of arms and money.

Reports of these allegations, Strabolgi said, were carried in dispatches by Constantine Poulos of the Overseas News Agency, who was expelled from Palestine by American military authorities at the request of the British military on October 23, and then was authorized to return.

Swope Protested

Poulos's return followed a protest from Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the board of directors of the Overseas News Agency, to the United States War Department, that the reporter's expulsion was "a serious blow to the freedom of the press."

Lord Strabolgi said he would ask the British Government whether attention had been called to newspaper and radio publicity given in the United States November 9 and 10 to dispatches by Poulos from Jerusalem and that he would demand to know what steps had been taken to deny the reports.

"Story Stands"

H. Wishengrad, editor of the Overseas News Agency in New York, said the agency had no comment on Lord Strabolgi's statements, other than that "Poulos's story stands on its own." He said the story was the first dispatched from Palestine by Poulos after he was allowed to return.

Palestine Arabs Assail U.S. Moves

Jerusalem, Nov. 14 (AP)—The Palestine Arab party—claiming to represent a large majority of the Palestine Arab population—tonight accused Great Britain of breaking her promise to Arabs and said the United States "has no business in the affairs of Palestine."

The statement was made after an all-day discussion by Arab party leaders of Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's Palestine statement yesterday in Commons. Five other Arab parties held similar meetings to decide on policy before issuing a formal statement of protest—which all six parties are expected to sign.

The statement said recent American pronouncements on Jewish immigration were causing the Arab people to "distrust" the American Government.

Palestine Solution Seen No Nearer

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—A final decision on whether large numbers of homeless European Jews can go to Palestine appeared little nearer today despite added official Washington and London solicitude over their plight.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee expected to act during the day on a resolution to facilitate that migration, but senators knew that regardless of how they voted this was the situation:

No large numbers of Jews would be permitted to go to Palestine until, and unless, a British-American "committee on inquiry," whose members have not yet been selected, recommend such action.

Not Bound To Accept

Even then, large-scale Jewish immigration would not be assured. The recommendations of the joint committee, announced yesterday in Washington and London, will not be binding on the British Government.

There were no official guesses as to when the committee would start on its assignment or the date on which its recommendations might be expected.

President Truman said in a statement, however, he hoped it could complete its task "with the greatest speed," because the situation "allows no delay in this matter."

The committee will examine "political, economic and social conditions" in Palestine and will consult "representative Arabs and Jews."

In accepting the commitee idea, Mr. Truman made public his letter of August 31 to Prime Minister Attlee, in which he suggested that 100,000 European Jews be permitted to go to Palestine.

The British Government replied that because of conditions in Palestine it could not adopt the suggestion. It suggested creation of the joint committee.

Called "A Stall"

Representative Celler (D., N.Y.) termed the committee idea "another British dodge and a stall." He said in a statement that there had been "Palestine investigations galore" and that all had concluded unrestricted Jewish immigration should be permitted.

In interviews Senator Mead (D., N.Y.) called the British refusal of the President's suggestion "a mistaken policy," and Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) said he greatly regretted the British decision.

Similar sentiments were expressed by Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.), Representative Gearhart (R., Cal.) and former Senator Gillette (D., Iowa) in a radio discussion last night.

Laski Talk On Pacific

London, Nov. 14 (AP)—Prof. Harold Laski, politically powerful chairman of the British Labor party's executive committee, tonight accused the Labor Government of a "criminal policy" toward Java and Indo-China and said the Government lacked "a real will" to give India freedom.

"It is a matter of regret and bitter shame that British and Indian troops should be used to restore tyranny in the Pacific areas," he told a meeting celebrating the fifty-sixth birthday anniversary of Pandit Nehru, All-India Congress leader.

"Indian freedom is inevitable and inescapable," Laski declared. "What we have to decide is whether it is to be given gracefully by British co-operation or whether we shall face it with hostility.

"We have to decide whether we are capable as a Labor party to go forward swiftly to the proud day when we can claim to have assisted in the freedom of a great people.

"We have got to make up our minds. I can think of no more acid test of the bona fides of our party than its willingness to go forward in this task of emancipation."

Laski asserted that a Labor party which failed to play its part in gaining freedom for India would "sooner or later be unwilling to work for the emancipation of the British working classes.

"A Labor party which fails in this would pass from the scene," he declared.

Java's Fighting Discussed

Discussing fighting in Java and Indo-China, the Laborite leader said "the necessity to restore law and order is a worn-out shibboleth under which more crimes have been committed against the free people of the world than anything else I know."

"It is far worse," he added, "when those crimes are committed under instructions of a Socialist Government rather than a Tory-dominated coalition."

British and Indian troops, he added, had not "fought to free Holland so that financiers in Amsterdam should be allowed to continue exploiting the people of Java."

BRITAIN CLARIFIES DEMAND ON POLAND

London, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—The British Foreign Office denied today that Britain is insisting that Poland repay $300,000,000 incurred in equipping and maintaining Polish armed forces during the war. The spokesman said that what the British Government does insist is that Poland repay $284,000,000 used for army and Government salaries and allowances. The money spent on equipping and feeding Polish armed forces is regarded as lend-lease and has been wiped off the slate, he said.

The Foreign Office said that under the British military budget $180,000,000 was spent on salaries and allowances to Polish armed forces. The Polish Government in Exile also was advanced $104,000,000 for operations in London and for relief of Polish refugees in the Middle East. The spokesman said that all other exiled governments that took refuge in London had paid their obligations to the British Government in full or in part. The Polish debt was the largest incurred by any exiled government.

ATTLEE'S PLANE STIRS A DEBATE

London, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Air Commodore A. V. Harvey, Conservative, told the House of Commons today that Prime Minister Attlee flew to the United States in an American plane and asked assurance that he would use British aircraft in the future. Wing Commander J. Strachey, Under-Secretary for Air, answered that British planes would be used when possible, but added:

"We consider that the care and safety of the Prime Minister is a matter of some importance."

"When the R. A. F. is called upon to carry ministers by air," Strachey explained, "the commander in chief of the transport command provides the most suitable aircraft available. As the House knows, British production was concentrated during the war on combat types and, as a result, we have many American aircraft in the transport command at present. They will be replaced by British aircraft."

A House member asked: "Do you mean that not one single British aircraft of suitable type was available to fly the Prime Minister?" Strachey replied that, in the opinion of the transport commander, "that is so."

BRITISH TO RECOGNIZE MAGYAR GOVERNMENT

LONDON, Nov. 14.—(AP) Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told Commons tonight that Britain would recognize any new Hungarian government "whose composition broadly respects the results of a recent Hungarian general election.

In a statement replying to a written query, Bevin pointed out that as yet "no new government has been formed in Hungary as a result of the election."

Americans Will See Unedited British Film

London, Nov. 14 (AP)—"Burma Victory," an official British film of the British 14th Army's campaign in Burma, will be shown unedited in Warner Brothers theaters in the United States, representatives of the American Film Company said today after negotiations with the Ministry of Information.

British exhibitors refused to distribute the Warner picture "Objective Burma" earlier this year on the grounds it gave inadequate credit to the role of the 14th Army in Burma.

PLAN TO BUILD CHAPEL TO HONOR U.S. WAR DEAD

LONDON, Nov. 14. — (AP) A chapel in memory of U. S. soldiers buried in Britain or killed in war operations while based in the United Kingdom will be erected near the high altar in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Approved by the King and Queen, the project is sponsored by the American and British Commonwealth Association, and will be financed by subscription.

Intended as a place of pilgrimage for American visitors, the chapel will contain a roll of honor which Gen. Eisenhower will help prepare.

British Are Making Bigger-Sized Gloves

London, Nov. 14 (AP)—British glove manufacturers are making their products in bigger sizes now, and the manager of the Regent street glove shop today made two guesses why:

He said (a) the hands of British women may have been thickened by the amount of extra heavy work they did during the war, or (b) they are cannily buying slightly larger sizes to avoid splitting their rationed and scarce gloves.

200,000 Dutch Died In War

London, Nov. 14 (AP)—The war cost Holland 200,000 civilian and military deaths excluding those in the Netherlands Indies, the Dutch radio at Hilversum has announced.

POLITICAL LEADERS CONFER WITH DEGAULLE

PARIS, Nov. 14. — (AP) French political party leaders conferred with President De Gaulle today concerning his new cabinet expected to be formed shortly.

De Gaulle's provisional government will serve seven months while a new constitution for the fourth republic is drawn.

De Gaulle, who is not committed to any party program, is expected to give the Communists the Justice Ministry, the Socialists the Ministry of the Interior, and leave Georges Bidault, MRP deputy, as Foreign Minister.

Paris Cabinet Hunt Begins

Paris, Nov. 14 (AP)—President de Gaulle invited the leaders of France's major political parties to meet with him today for the purpose of forming a new Cabinet to help administer the provisional Government during the seven months while the new constitution is being drawn.

De Gaulle, who was unanimously elected provisional President by the Constituent Assembly yesterday, was expected to divide the Cabinet posts in fourths, with equal shares going to the Communists, Socialists and MRP [Popular Republican Movement] and the remaining fourth being shared by minor groups.

Georges Bidault, MRP deputy, probably will remain as Foreign Minister.

French Official Sees Devaluation Of Franc

Paris, Nov. 14 (AP) — One of France's key financial officials said today devaluation of the franc would be part of a dollar-pound-franc stabilization program which he predicted would be effected probably within a short time after completion of current British-American financial negotiations.

The official, who declined to be quoted by name, said the franc must be devalued to a realistic relationship with the dollar and pound sterling before there can be any resumption of ordinary commercial and financial relations between France and the rest of the world.

The franc now has an official value of 50 to the dollar and 200 to the pound.

Churchill Goes to Brussels

PARIS, Nov. 14 (AP)—Former Prime Minister Churchill left tonight for Brussels, where he will be made an honorary citizen. Before leaving, he visited the Duke of Windsor.

TRIALS OF NAZI LEADERS MAY BE DELAYED 12 DAYS

France, Russia Support U.S. Demand to Bring Young Krupp Before Tribunal.

NUERNBERG, Germany, Nov. 14—(AP) The American, French, and Russian prosecutors today asked the International War Crimes tribunal to substitute Alfried Krupp for his ailing father as a defendant and to delay the trial of top-flight Nazis for 12 days until Dec. 2.

Counter to the Krupp family attorney demanded that the indictment against "an old, dying man," be dismissed and that none be issued against his son.

The court deliberated for four hours, without announcing its decision. But it will hold another session tomorrow to hear Julius Streicher's attorney appeal for three or four more weeks of time, and may announce all decisions shortly thereafter.

The substitution and delay proposals were made by U. S. prosecutor Robert H. Jackson, supported by the French and Russian prosecutors.

The latter two had reversed their previous stand against the substitution after a medical commission reported the 75-year-old Gustav Krupp Von Bohlen Und Halbach was suffering from "senile degeneration of the brain tissues" and would never be able to stand trial.

Seek 12-Day Delay

Jackson asked the 12-day delay in opening the trials if the substitution was approved.

Both motions were vigorously opposed by bespectacled Dr. Theodor Klefisch, attorney for the Krupps, who said he would need at least 30 days to prepare his case if the court decided to try the younger Krupp, now owner of the vast armament empire.

The British prosecutor, Sir Hartly Shawcross opposed, asking that the elder Krupp be tried in absentia. He declared no delay was necessary even if the son was named.

as a defendant.

Jackson made no attempt to conceal American chagrin that keeping a Krupp in the trials would entail a delay, but he added: "I do not see how we can justify placing our convenience or uninformed demands for haste ahead of doing this task thoroughly."

He asserted that ordinary American litigation usually required at least eight months to come to trial, "yet eight months ago the German army was in possession of this room and the evidence we have now." He added:

"We make no apology for the time taken to gather a case covering a continent, a decade in time and the affairs of most of the nations of the earth."

French, Russians Reconsider

Jackson, in proposing the substitution of Alfried Krupp, told the court that the French and Russian prosecutors had reconsidered their earlier positions. The Soviet prosecutor was not present, but Jackson said he had telephoned his approval of the motion from Moscow.

He explained the French reversal as "that of a nation that had three times been invaded by armies armed with Krupp armaments" and said the Russian prosecutor had altered his former view after it became obvious that the elder Krupp would never be able to appear in court.

Jackson pointed out that Alfried Krupp, the eldest son, had been initiated into the family enterprise "of arming the German people" in the interval between World War I and World War II, and was now the owner of the vast Krupp holdings which by special Nazi decree remained a family enterprise.

Krupp's defense counsel asserted that Allied authorities had removed "carloads" of evidence from the Krupp family and business files, which the defense had not been allowed to see, but added that in the stack of documents which he had examined he did not find a "single one pertaining to the complicity of Alfried."

The younger Krupp is now under arrest by the British.

U.S. Gets Backing On Krupp Point

Nuernberg, Nov. 14 (AP)—French and Soviet prosecutors reversed themselves today and voted in favor of a United States proposal to substitute Alfred Krupp for his father, ailing Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, as a defendant in the forthcoming war crime trials.

At the [illegible] Justice Robert H. Jackson, United States prosecutor, recommended a twelve-day postponement of the trials until December 2. The trials are scheduled to open November 20. The motions were heard today in the first public session of the court.

Briton Opposed

The British prosecutor, Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, has opposed the substitution, holding that the elder Krupp should be tried in absentia. He also opposed any delay in the opening of the trials.

The French and Soviet decision came after a unanimous report from a medical commisison that the aged Krupp had "senile softening of the brain," and would never be able to face trial. He is believed near death.

Jackson filed a motion with the International Military Tribunal yesterday requesting that Alfried, who took over active management of the huge Krupp arsenal empire in 1943, be tried in place of his father. He is under arrest by the British.

Phone Call From Moscow

The court session was attended by all key personnel except the Soviet prosecutor, who telephoned from Moscow his reversal of his previous stand. At two previous meetings of the prosecutors, the United States proposal to include the younger Krupp as a defendant was defeated by a three-to-one vote.

The judges filed into the trial room promptly at 10.30 A.M. Defendant Krupp's attorney at once asked permission to change his pretrial form request for a continuance to a request for an outright dismissal, because of his client's critical condition.

In view of the French and Soviet reversals, it seemed likely that Jackson would win his point, although he himself deplored the necessity for delay.

The tribunal announced it would return a decision at a later date on the motions for the delay and the substitution.

The Krupp family attorney, who pleaded for dismissal of the case against the 75-year-old armament king, said that substitution of Alfried as a defendant would lead to a defense request for a thirty-day delay between filing of the indictment and opening of the trial.

Crimes Trial To See Film History Of Nazis

Nuernberg, Nov. 14 (AP)—A four-hour film history of Nazi Germany, made by official Nazi party cameramen and edited by American experts, will be presented as evidence by United States Prosecutor Robert H. Jackson in the forthcoming trial of former German leaders, it was announced tonight.

Jackson will offer the film, pieced together to form a chronological record, in support of his argument that the 22 top-flight Nazi defendants participated in a conspiracy to dominate the world.

Belsen Deliberations To Be Started Today

Lueneberg, Germany, Nov. 14 (AP). Five senior British officers will start deliberations tomorrow to decide the fate of 44 defendants accused of war crimes at the Belsen horror camp.

The cases will go to the court upon conclusion of the summing up by Judge Advocate of the Court C. L. Stirling, who spent six hours today reviewing the evidence in the capacity of adviser.

The court may give its findings Friday.

Dachau Trial To Start

Dachau, Germany, Nov. 14 (AP). The trial of 40 top Nazi officials of the Dachau concentration camp opens tomorrow before a United States military government general court.

American-Born 'Slave' Joins Army Overseas

Heidelburg, Germany, Nov. 14 (AP)—Alfred L. Fonfara, 22, was born in Dickson, Pa., but returned to Poland with his mother at the age of 4, claimed today the distinction of being the first displaced person to join the United States Army overseas.

Fonfara, who was taken by the Nazis to Germany in 1941 as a slave laborer, said his father still owns a restaurant at Dickson. A brother, Henry, is with the American Army in the Pacific.

COSMIC RAYS FIND CLAIMED

Russia Hints Direct Bearing On Atomic Energy Study

Moscow, Nov. 14 (AP)—The newspaper Izvestia today said that Russian scientists, one an expert in atomic research, had discovered that cosmic rays knocked protons out of lead and termed the discovery "of outstanding interest."

Izvestia, describing an expedition studying cosmic rays at Mount Alagos near Lake Karagel in the Armenian Socialist Republic, said the discoveries may have a direct bearing on Soviet investigations of atomic energy.

Atomic Authority Helps

One of the scientists, it said, is Peter Kapitza, a Russian authority on atomic research who built a three-ton power magnet for the expedition.

[The Izvestia report did not say why the discovery that protons were knocked from lead by cosmic rays was considered important. Protons—one of the three kinds of primary particles which form all chemical elements—are heavy, positively charged bits of electricity.

[Lead is among the heavy chemical elements whose splitting, if it could be achieved, probably would yield enough atomic energy for either power or bombs. Allied experiments have not disclosed methods of splitting lead atoms. The appearance of protons when lead atoms are hit by cosmic rays is not necessarily a sign that they were split.]

Studies Started In August

Unofficial reports recently have said that Kapitza, who worked for thirteen years at Cambridge as a protégé of the late Lord Rutherford, a pioneer in atom-splitting experiments, was engaged in atomic research in the Armenian Mountains.

A Russian scientist last May in describing Kapitza's latest published work said "his brilliant experiments with subjects subjected to strong magnetic fields at low temperatures are throwing light on movements in the atomic structure of matter."

The current studies at Mount Alagos began last August. The first atomic bomb was dropped on Japan August 6.

50 Tons Of Instruments

The expedition's equipment consists of 50 tons of instruments carried to Mount Alagos over a special road which Izvestia said was built in "record time."

The laboratory where these experiments were conducted is located 3,554 yards above sea level at Lake Karagel, which the Soviet small encyclopedia of 1937 describes as being at the foot of Mount Alagos, an extinct Armenian volcano with rich sulphur sources. Mount Alagos is located between Yerevan, capital of Armenia, and Tiflis, capital of Georgia.

Izvestia said a permanent station was built for observing cosmic rays and a "powerful permanent magnet" was set up there.

the Armenian Socialist Republic, is significant because it was located near a pure-water lake removed as far as possible from radioactive material.

Comparable experiments have been undertaken in this country, he added, and the ejection of the particles from lead, which probably were in part protons, has been recorded.

Reds Claim Atomic Gain

Moscow, Nov. 14 (AP)—Highly important discoveries which may well have a direct bearing on Russian explorations in the field of atomic energy were reported today from Mount Alagos on the shores of Lake Karagel in the Armenian Socialist Republic.

The government newspaper Izvestia said that an expedition engaged in studying cosmic rays had discovered that these knocked protons out of lead. The report said this discovery "is of outstanding interest."

[It did not explain why. Protons are heavy, positively charged bits of electricity and one of the three kinds of primary particles that form all chemical elements. Lead is among the heavy chemical elements whose splitting, if it could be done, would probably yield enough atomic energy for either bombs or power. Allied experiments have shown no means of splitting lead atoms. The appearance of protons when lead atoms are hti by cosmic rays is not necessarily a sign of splitting.]

Top Expert Called Aide

Izvestia said Peter Kapitza, the Soviet Union's foremost expert in atomic research, had played a leading role in the building of a power magnet for the expedition.

Kapitza studied and worked for thirteen years at Cambridge as a protege of the late Lord Rutherford, famed British scientist and one of the pioneers in experiments in radioactivity, transmutation of elements and splitting the atom.

He returned to Russia in 1934 and began work at the great magnetic institute built for him outside Moscow.

For some time it had been reported that Kapitza was working on atomic research in the Armenian mountains.

Of his most recently publicized work, the Soviet scientific writer Nine Militsyan, had this to say last May 26: "His brilliant experiments with subjects subjected to strong magnetic fields at low temperatures are throwing light on movements in the atomic structure of matter hidden from the eyes of man and from his instruments."

Izvestia said the current work began last August, the month in which the first atomic bomb was dropped on Japan by the United States Air Forces. The expedition is headed by the scientist Al Alikhayan.

Moscow Prints a Line on Attlee

MOSCOW, Nov. 14 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee's address before Congress in Washington yesterday was reported to Soviet readers today as follows: "English Prime Minister Attlee, who is visiting the United States, made a speech at a session of Congress dedicated to problems of the international situation in the post-war world." There was no editorial comment.

Exodus Of Russians Proceeds, Pole Says

Warsaw, Nov. 14 (AP)—Premier Edward Osubka-Morawski declared today that Russian troops are gradually leaving Poland and Warsaw and "many thousands are moving to the east."

He said that upon requests from provincial governers the Soviet commander in Poland, Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, had supplied troops to fight banditry" and that he had done much to break up "excesses" committed by persons in Red Army uniforms.

The Polish Premier added that as long as repatriations of Poles and Russians continue there naturally must remain some Russian troops in the country.

He estimated a year would be required for complete repatriation and resettlement of 4,000,000 Poles and said he expected general elections would be held next year.

11 KILLED IN CRASH

Brussels, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—A British transport plane crashed into a house near here today, killing at least eleven persons, three of them women.

R. A. F. headquarters said that the plane struck a high tension wire as it prepared to land and burst into flames as it hit the house. The plane was carrying several passengers.

Italian-Swiss Pact Lacks O.K. Of Allies

Rome, Nov. 14 (AP)—Harlan Cleveland, vice president of the economic section of the Allied Commission, said today the commission had refused to approve a trade agreement negotiated by Italy with Switzerland.

He said the refusal resulted from a provision giving Switzerland in effect priority on repayment of pre-armistice debts. Negotiations still can be carried on, however.

Under the rejected proposal, Switzerland would have provided Italy a credit of 80,000,000 Swiss francs (about $18,650,000) to acquire supplies needed for Italian industry. Italy would have exported to Switzerland fruits, vegetables, wines, tobacco and sulphur.

Neo-Fascist Roundup Extended In Italy

Rome, Nov. 14 (AP)—A police roundup of so-called "Neo-Fascists" accused of trying to form an underground organization was extended today to Turin, Milan and Genoa.

Several men, women and youths allegedly implicated in underground operations were arrested in the three northern cities as additional arrests in Rome increased the total jailed here to more than twenty.

Greeks Sentenced To Death

Athens, Nov. 13 [AP—Delayed]. The People's Tribunal today sentenced to death Gen. Alexander Lambon, who was in command of special security police during the German occupation and was accused of collaborating closely with the enemy. His aide de camp, Emmanuel Poulis, was also sentenced to death.

HONOLULU HUNTS THUGS

Police Seek Civilians Blamed For Stirring Sailors' Ire

Honolulu, Nov. 14 (AP)—Police patrols were doubled tonight in the Damon housing district and detectives swarmed through the dim-lit area looking for ringleaders suspected of provoking Monday night's riot between 1,500 navy men and civilians.

Police Chief W. A. Gabrielson announced that the redoubled police force would track down reports of trouble-making.

Navy participants in the fighting had said they charged into the district looking for "local toughies" who had made repeated attacks on sailors. They claimed the police had done nothing to check the wave of unprovoked assaults and robbery.

Confined To Station

The Naval Air Station near the Damon district announced that its male personnel would remain confined to the station until an inquiry was completed and steps taken to prevent a recurrence of disorders.

Detectives Seek Information

Eugene Kennedy, Captain of police detectives, said today:

"We've got detectives at the Naval Air Station who are going to try to get information on all incidents leading up to the Damon Tract trouble . . . Detectives also are making a house-to-house canvass of the Damon Tract in the hope of learning the names of some of the juveniles who have been assaulting servicemen there."

Last night there were several altercations in which both civilians and Navy personnel reported they were attacked in downtown districts by gangs of juveniles but Kennedy said they were not related to the Damon Tract trouble. One sailor was stabbed.

Meanwhile Navy officers met with Honolulu police officials at the Pearl Harbor Naval Yard to discuss a plan for joint law enforcement in order to prevent further outbreaks.

Earlier, a Naval Air station spokesman had blamed city police and Gabrielson had blamed the Navy for allowing the situation to get out of hand.

Lieut. R. M. Singer, air station public information officer, charged that more than 30 of the station's personnel had been beaten by Damon civilians in the last two months without the police making an arrest.

Gabrielson insisted that his department had co-operated with the Navy.

Newspaper Sees Two Sides

No one was injured seriously in the clashes, in which Detective Captain Eugene Kennedy said the sailors charged with knives, clubs and rocks.

The Honolulu Star-Bulletin said in an editorial that unless the military and police could clean up the trouble, the only alternative would be to put Honolulu out of bounds for all service men.

The newspaper said fights between service men and civilians had been going on for a long time "and there are two sides to it. The provocation is not all from civilians."

MP's, Civilians On Guard At Navy Base

Honolulu, Nov. 14 (AP)—Strengthened civilian and naval police kept close watch today on the violence-marked vicinity of the naval air station on Honolulu's outskirts. An Air Station spokesman blamed city police and city police blamed the Navy for Monday night's rioting in which 1,500 Navy men tangled with civilians.

City patrolmen joined shore patrolmen last night to forestall any further violence, after sailors confined to the station began to crowd around its gates. The combined force broke up the crowd without disorder. Shore patrolmen said they had asked help "in case" the sailors tried to leave the station. There has been no indication how long they may be restricted.

Lack Of Co-Operation

Monday night's disorders at near-by Damon (civilian) housing tract would not have occurred, Honolulu Police Chief William A. Gabrielson asserted, if navy officers had co-operated "the way they should."

Navy Officers Blamed

Detective Captain Eugene Kennedy also contended that:

"Navy officers knew there was going to be a disturbance at the Damon tract and did not give us advance information."

Kennedy said the navy personnel went on a three-hour rampage because they were enraged by a false rumor that Damon civilians had killed two sailors.

"Tired Of Seeing Beatings"

Several of the 50 navy officers and men explained, Kennedy added, that they were angry "because we are damned sick and tired of seeing our buddies get beaten by local toughies and not a damned thing is done about it."

Lieut. R. M. Singer, NAS public information officer, blamed the police for the disturbance. He charged that more than [illegible] Navy personnel were beaten by civilians in the past two months, but that the police made no arrests.

"Absolute Falsehood"

Gabrielson countered, "it is an absolute falsehood when the police are charged with not co-operating."

A spectator, 75-year-old Joseph Gutheridge, died of a heart attack during the riot.

Fifty navy men were detained and later turned over to naval authorities for discipline.

Japs Beheaded Five U.S. Flyers

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 14 (AP)—Five American flyers were tortured and beheaded by the Japanese near Makassar on Celebes Island, Allied investigators said today.

They reported that natives, who found the headless bodies, said the Japanese turned the executions into gala celebrations. The bodies lay in unmarked graves. One was found bound tightly and crouched as if in position for the beheader's sword. A medical examiner said the victim was beheaded by numerous sword blows.

Allied authorities said the airmen were believed to have been victims of Japan's navy secret police, who had headquarters at Makassar.

FIND BODIES OF 5 BEHEADED FLYERS

Sydney, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Allied investigators said today that natives had found the headless bodies of five American flyers, executed by the Japanese on Celebes Island near Makassar. The bodies lay in unmarked graves in a Japanese execution burial ground.

The ankles of one body were bound tightly with black cord and the body was crouched forward as if in position for a beheader's sword. A blindfolded skull was found near the torso, which was clad in United States Army trousers. A medical examiner said the victim was beheaded by multiple sword blows. Other human bones and skulls recovered from deep graves bore evidence of beheadings, the investigators said.

Allied authorities said that the airmen were believed victims of Tokki Tai—the Japanese Navy secret police—at headquarters at Makassar. They said that the victims were taken to the headquarters after capture and tortured before being killed. Natives said that the Japanese made gala celebrations of the executions.

Australians Plan Big Press Parley

Sydney, Nov. 14 (AP)—Rupert Henderson, president of the Australian Newspaper Proprietors Association, announced today plans for an international press conference in Australia next September or October to consider measures for defending the freedom of the press.

Henderson said that Brian Penton, editor of the Sydney Daily Telegraph, would go abroad shortly for the purpose of contacting British, American and Canadian newspaper publishers. Sir Keith Murdock, chairman of the board of directors of the Melbourne Herald, and Weekly Times, will make a similar trip next year.

JAP TENNIS PLEA COLDLY RECEIVED

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—A proposal by former officials and members of the Japanese Lawn Tennis Association that Japan be allowed to play in the next Davis cup series has been coldly received in Australia.

After New South Wales tennis officials had expressed strong opposition to the idea, H. A. Pitt, acting president of the Australian Lawn Tennis Association, said any such proposal would meet with uncompromising hostility from Australia.

United States Officials Agree.

The United States Lawn Tennis Association agrees with Australian tennis officials that Japan should not be permitted to compete for the Davis cup, at least for some time.

Ward disclosed that the United States and Australian associations had reached that "general understanding" when Sir Norman Brookes, president of the Australian organization, visited here recently.

Egypt Not Involved.

Cairo, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Nahoum Effendi, Jewish religious leader in Egypt, said the Jews of Egypt had no connection with Zionism and would insist upon not becoming involved in the controversy, which he characterized as one strictly between the Pan-Arab League on the one hand, and Britain and the United States on the other.

Swami Sees India Free In 1946

Madura, Nov. 14 (AP)—Swami Yogiraj Sri Nityananda Kavishwar is out with a prediction that India will have freedom in February, 1946, or something very near like freedom.

Also, he says, the atomic bomb will end wars for twelve years.

A copy of his forecasts was sent to the Associated Press of America at the request of the Ewami. He had already established himself as a man with capacity to see far into the future, his friends say, and point to published stories claiming that he foretold, among other things, the death of President Roosevelt and the end of the war in June, 1945.

Predictions On India

Of the situation in India, he said:

"By October 10, 1945, the atmosphere will be vibrant with hope to meet on a platform of a new common understanding. By February, 1946, dawns the time when India's future value in the Global concept will be very high. . . ."

His statement concluded with a comment on religion and the atomic bomb:

"Isolation is gone," he said. "Human unity is born and universal brotherhood is on the dawn. All religions have become unutterably dull. Within eleven years from now there will be a grand mixing of all castes and creeds in India though unpalatable to the orthodox types. The air is vibrant with the atomic bomb. This will stop the wars for twelve years and will supply a soothing balm for the good of mankind."

COMMUNISTS LOSE IN SAVAGE BATTLE

Reds Thrown Back in Attack at 2 Focal Points in Mongolia.

CHUNGKING, Nov. 14—(AP) Crack Communist troops were thrown back in savage fighting as they hurled heavy attacks at two major Nationalist strongholds in inner Mongolia, an official dispatch said today.

The battles still swirled about the railway terminal of Paotow and long-besieged Kweisui, capital of Suiyuan province 80 miles to the east, where the Communists threw in 10,000 reinforcements, the dispatch added.

The attack on Paotow, western terminal of the now-severed Peiping-Suiyuan railroad, opened at 3 a.m. yesterday and 3,000 Communist troops forced the western gate, this account claimed. Eleven hours later they were expelled.

Gen. Ho Lung, famed Communist commander, meanwhile was reported to have attacked Kweisui with five columns 10,000 strong.

Casualties Heavy

The dispatch said the attackers inflicted "considerable casualties on civilians" in the southwestern section of the city before most of them were wiped out.

The situation remained obscure on the southern border of Manchuria, southeast of this battle zone, where neutral advices had reported Nationalist troops had captured the Communist fortress city of Shanhaikwan (Linyu).

A Communist spokesman was unable to confirm Shanhaikwan's fall but said at last reports government troops were but two-thirds of a mile from the city.

He declared the government had landed four armies at the U. S. Marine-occupied port of Chinwangtao for the sole purpose of seizing Shanhaikwan and pushing on into Manchuria.

Thousands of U. S.-trained and equipped Nationalist troops began landing meanwhile at Tsingtao, Shantung province port 275 miles south of Chinwangtao.

Head for Manchuria

The Communists have dominated this strategic coastal province since the end of the war, but unofficial reports recently indicated they were pulling out by sea for Manchuria.

American marines previously had secured Tsingtao, but the Nationalists themselves had no foothold here. Chinese Red troops hold positions on all sides of the port.

A Foreign Office spokesman, meanwhile, made the first official Chungking admission that China was having difficulty in negotiating with Russia for the entry into Manchuria.

"Negotiations are continuing but so far we have not overcome all the difficulties," he said.

Minister of Information K. C. Wu interposed at that point and denied a rumor afloat in Chungking that Russia had granted Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek permission to fly 4,000 troops to Changchun, Manchuria's capital.

A government spokesman also denied a Communist charge that American lend-lease material still was being sent into China for use in the campaign against Chinese Reds.

He pointed out that America had cancelled lend-lease to China and said that U. S. equipment now being distributed to Chinese forces came from stockpiles accumulated during the war.

Nationalist difficulties in moving into North China were reemphasized by cabinet spokesman P. H. Chang, who asserted that the Communists had destroyed one-tenth of all China's railroads.

The Peiping-Suiyuan railroad, for example, was described as "almost entirely inoperative." It is the logical link between strong nationalist forces in the Peiping-Tientsin area and besieged Kwei-sui, 250 miles westward.

Chang said traffic had been restored over parts of the railways, notably those which run from central China to North China and the railway from Peiping to Chinwangtao, over which coal for Shanghai is carried.

Dim View General

Most foreign and Chinese quarters here took a dim view of the forthcoming "peace conference" of the political consultatiye council which is expected to meet November 20.

Chiang will be ex-officio chairman. There will be eight Government representatives, seven Communists, nine from the Democratic League of Chinese intellectuals, five from the youth party, and nine without party connections.

The first headache will be voting procedure, since neither the Government nor the Communists appear ready to accept any system by which they can be overruled.

An encouraging fact in foreign circles, however, was the Communist agreement to send representatives to the meeting. It is thought that as long as negotiations continue, the possibility—no matter how slight—of a peaceful settlement exists.

churia?

3. Can the Government confirm or deny reports of widespread removal of factories from Manchuria by the Russians?

Asked the reason for the Government's extreme reticence on all questions involving Russia, the spokesman replied that it is not customary to give out information during negotiations.

The Nationalist Army reorganization conference, which the Communists allege met to discuss "bandit suppression," is scheduled to adjourn today after a four-day session that witnessed the biggest assemblage of top-rank Chinese generals in Chungking since the Government was transferred here in 1937.

The question of reparations from Japan formed one of many important matters discussed, the Chinese press reported. Other reports said the conferees decided to establish ten branch headquarters for Chiang Kai-shek's supreme command in China, including Manchuria.

The Catholic newspaper Social Welfare said it was possible the capital might be re-established in Nanking shortly instead of next April or May.

Chinese-Red Negotiation Difficulties Admitted

Chungking, Nov. 14 (AP)—Difficulties in negotiations between China and Russia on the entry of Chinese troops into Manchuria and on other questions were acknowledged today by a Foreign Affairs spokesman in a news conference.

"Negotiations are continuing, but so far we have not overcome all the difficulties," he said.

He refused comment on reports that Russia has permitted Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek permission to fly 1,500 picked Nationalist troops to Changchun, capital of Manchuria, in 30 Chinese-manned American transport planes. The Minister of Information, K. C. Wu, interrupted to say:

"We don't know how such a report could have arisen."

"No Comment" Replies

Other questions that evoked a "no comment" from the Foreign Office spokesman of Chiang's Government:

1. What is the extent of Russian withdrawal from Manchuria?

2. What is the status of negotiations for the entry of Chinese Government troops into Manchuria?

tories open.

Reds Hold Two Ports.

Chinese Red troops ring the port by land. On the peninsula's tip, the strategic ports of Chefoo and Weihaiwei are in Communist hands. American warships were anchored off those two ports for several weeks, but no Americans or Nationalists were landed.

A landing was considered early last month at Chefoo, but Vice-Admiral Daniel E. Barbey reported no Japanese were in the area, hence there was no reason for the landing.

The Tsingtao landing, by major elements of the Chinese Eighth Army, is nearly 300 miles south of Chingwangtao, where the Chinese Thirteenth Army was put ashore October 30 by the same transports under command of Commodore T. B. Britain.

Marines also preceded Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's men in occupying Chinwangtao. Earlier this week in that vicinity, Marines told of incidents in which they were fired upon and two enlisted men wounded while on guard duty. Marine officers who were with the two wounded said Chinese Communists did the firing and later apologized by letter, explaining they had thought they were shooting at Japanese.

U. S. Ships Land More Chinese

Chiang's American-trained Troops Are Put Ashore Unopposed at Tsingtao.

Tsingtao, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Thousands of American-trained and equipped Chinese Nationalist troops are landing unopposed today from United States transports at this North China city, occupied October 11 by American Marines who since have been cooped up by the presence of Chinese Communists near by.

Whether the Marines will be pulled out of their lone foothold on Shantung peninsula, reportedly dominated by the Reds, was not made known. The Sixth Division has been limited to garrison duty since accepting surrender of more than 10,000 Japanese. Some of those Japanese, allowed to retain arms, stand guard over Tsingtao industries which include nine large cotton mills. Many Japanese civilians are keeping the factories open.

All American vehicles in that area carry American as well as Chinese Government flags as a result of the incident.

Byrnes Comments.

Washington, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Byrnes told a press conference today that Chinese troops to be flown into Manchuria would be transported in planes lend-leased to China and manned by Chinese crews. He recalled that President Truman's order ending lend lease on V-J day provided for post-war assignment of military equipment to China to aid in the surrender of Japanese forces there.

Byrnes also told newsmen the United States and Russia have not discussed the civil strife in China. Asked whether there had been any conversations with the Chinese Government in an effort to settle the conflict between the Nationalists and Communists, Byrnes said merely that the Chinese situation is a matter of great regret to Washington officials and they hope for some amicable settlement.

INDONESIANS KEEP UP FIGHT

Use Artillery Against British In Soerabaja Struggle

Batavia, Java, Nov. 14 (AP)—Determined Indonesian troops, using artillery and frequently counter-attacking, clung firmly to fortified positions along the east-west railway in Soerabaja today and limited British Indian forces to scant gains in the fifth day of bloody fighting.

The British continued bombing some key Indonesian positions but declared they were using only minimum force" against the Indonesians, entrenched in concrete pillboxes and air-raid shelters built before the war.

"Every Opportunity" Given

An official statement said the British command was giving every opportunity to the "extremists to stop the useless bloodshed of their own people" and added that the British "still hoped" to occupy the big Java naval base without repeating last Saturday's heavy sea-and-air bombardment.

Meanwhile, in Batavia the new 36-year-old Premier of the unrecognized Indonesian republic, Sutan Sjahrir, was assembling his Cabinet to try to stop the fighting in Soerabaja and restore order throughout Java.

Action was delayed pending the arrival of two Cabinet members from East Java. Sjahrir already has indicated he would fly to Soerabaja to seek peace.

Amir Sjarifuddin, Minister of Information, said he was confident the Indonesian Government could restore order if it received co-operative support from the British.

Accuses Jap Commander

British Maj. Gen. D. C. Hawthorn, at his headquarters in Batavia, bluntly accused the commander of the Japanese 16th Army and his chief of staff of having deliberately handed over arms to "unruly elements" in Java.

Hawthorn administered a verbal lashing to the two Japanese officers, Lieut. Gen. Yiuchiro Nagano and Maj. Gen. Moichiro Yamamoto, at a formal surrender ceremony held a full six weeks after the arrival of British troops.

The two generals and another staff officer of the 16th Army, Maj. Gen. Junji Nakamura, later were placed aboard a plane which took off for Singapore, where they will answer charges of violating the Allied surrender terms.

Would Bar Carrying Arms

Outlining plans of Sjahrir's Cabinet to deal with the Indonesian extremists, Sjarifuddin said the new Government would make it illegal for any citizen to carry arms except authorized members of the police force. Sjarifuddin added that all civilians in Soerabaja would be ordered to hand over their weapons to the Indonesian Peace Preservation Corps—TKR—which he hopes to reorganize and discipline.

He said additional members of the TKR would be sent from Vogjakarta to Soerabaja to aid in disarming the extremists.

In a formal statement of his policies, Sjahrir said measures would be taken at once to make the "Republic" thoroughly democratic.

He said he would call general elections soon "in order that freely elected representatives of the people may take their rightful part in shaping governmental policy and deciding the destiny of the country."

To Keep Out Collaborators

He also declared that no member of the new government would be tainted by collaboration with the Japanese during the occupation.

Vern Haugland, Associated Press correspondent in Soerabaja, said British Indian troops had hurled back three suicidal Indonesian attacks during the night, killing more than 100 and sustaining a half dozen casualties of their own in fighting for the Kota railway station and marshalling yards.

He said the British threw a 25-pounder barrage against Indonesians entrenched in dugouts along the railroad.

A British statement reported two Indian soldiers were killed and six others wounded by Indonesians who infiltrated British positions in the Grand Hotel sector, northeast of Government House. The infiltration followed a heavy, organized Indonesian attack on the east flank of the British line. Artillery broke up the attack.

RAF Planes Strike

The statement said RAF planes struck several times at Government House and the Courts of Justice building, still held by the Indonesians.

One Indian soldier was wounded by Indonesian artillery fire against positions held by the 9th Gurkha Regiment, the British reported. Five 75-mm. rounds and one mortar shell fell in this area.

Railroad Wrecking Charged

CHUNGKING, Nov. 14 (AP).—Chinese Communists have destroyed one-tenth of all China's railways—approximately 875 miles of track—causing "widespread dislocation" of the country's transportation network, P. H. Chang, Cabinet spokesman, asserted today.

He said, however, that trains still were running on the Peiping-Mukden railroad between Peiping and the North China seaport of Chinwangtao, coal-loading point guarded by American marines.

China Charters Foreign Ships.

Chungking, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—China has chartered 60,000 tons of British and Norwegian shipping to help fill her great need for coastwise and river traffic carriers, Dr. T. F. Tsiang, director-general of the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, said today.

Shanghai Press May Close.

Shanghai, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Shanghai newspapers may be forced to close down, Minister of Information K. C. Wu declared today, because of lack of supplies.

100 Indonesians Die In Three Attacks

Batavia, Nov. 14 (AP)—Heavy fighting continued in Soerabaja today, and in Batavia, British Maj. Gen. D. C. Hawthorn accused the commander of the Japanese 16th Army and his chief of staff of having deliberately handed over arms to "unruly elements" in Java.

A dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland in Soerabaja said British Indian troops battling in the area of the naval base hurled back three suicidal Indonesian attacks during the night, killing more than 100 and sustaining half a dozen casualties of their own in fighting for the Kota railway station and marshalling yards.

The British threw a 25-pounder barrage against Indonesians entrenched in prewar Dutch-built concrete pillboxes in the area.

Advancing Slowly

Haugland reported that the British were moving slowly in order to keep their casualties low, and that it might take the better part of this week to clear out the remaining half of Soerabaja still in Nationalist hands.

A reliable unofficial estimate placed the number of Indonesians opposing the British in Soerabaja at between 15,000 and 18,000 men, including many armed with spears.

In the capital, the two Japanese generals accused of the unauthorized surrender of their arms were taken by plane to Singapore to face charges.

Given Verbal Lashing

Hawthorn administered a verbal lashing to the two officers, Lieut. Gen. Yiuchiro Nagano and his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Moichiro Yamamoto, at a formal surrender ceremony held six weeks after the arrival of British troops. They surrendered their swords to Hawthorn, who is commander of the 23d Indian Division.

Nagano stood with bowed head as Hawthorn told him he would be flown to Singapore where his conduct in Java would be "thoroughly investigated."

He said this action was directed by Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, Allied Southeast Asia commander.

"Failed To Carry Out Terms"

"You have, in my opinion, deliberately and dishonorably failed to carry out the terms of surrender imposed upon your nation by the allied powers," he told the generals.

He accused them of surrendering to "unauthorized persons" and handing over arms to "unruly elements in this country, thus enabling them to cause bloodshed and loss of life to Allied troops under my command."

Nagano and Yamamoto were then placed aboard the plane. Maj. Gen. Junji Nakamura, another 16th

New Cabinet Takes Over

Nationalists at Soerabaja continued to resist even as Sutan Sjahrir, the new Premier, prepared to go there in an attempt to end hostilities.

An almost entirely new Cabinet of young university-educated men has taken over the reins of the Indonesian republic's government.

Sjahrir said the Cabinet thinks the time is ripe for instituting several measures "aimed at democratizing the administrative structure of the country." The first such step was the formation of the Cabinet itself, free of any taint of collaboration with the Japanese.

Colleague Was Tortured

Sjahrir himself had refused to take any office under the Japanese, and Amir Sjairfuddin, his chief colleague, now Minister of Internal Security, was imprisoned, tortured and sentenced to death for underground anti-Fascist activities. The sentence was revoked only because of the Japanese surrender.

The Cabinet will meet as soon as two members from troubled eastern Java arrive and a new policy statement is issued.

Directly after this meeting Sjahrir, Sjarifuddin and three members of their working committee will go to Soerabaja.

Driving On Buildings

The Nationalists fought in the heart of the city against 5th Indian Division troops, last reported driving on Government buildings still in native hands. RAF planes attacked the buildings several times.

In the harbor, a 10,000-ton Japanese ship was burnt out yesterday and sabotage was suspected.

Some 8,000 refugees moved into British-held areas, seeking food and water. Soerabaja's water system has been rendered inoperative in the fighting.

Burning Of Yanks Told In Manila

Manila, Nov. 14 (AP)—The story of the bayoneting and burning alive of two American airmen was added today to the long list of atrocities charged against Japanese soldiers in the Philippines.

Bodies of the flyers, gunners from a twin-engined plane that crashed off Cebu, were found by an American officer in charge of graves registration who told the United States Military Commission trying Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita on war crime charges.

Slain Seeking Water

The officer showed pictures of the charred bodies, their hands still tied behind their backs, and said he had found marks at the base of the men's necks where they had been struck. A Filipino told him the men had been bayoneted beside a hole, their bodies covered with gasoline and ignited. One man struggled to the edge of the hole where his pleas for water were met with a deluge of gasoline which Japanese soldiers ignited again.

Yamashita's interpreter told the commission he saw Japanese military policemen behead 26 Filipino men and one woman in 40 minutes at a North Manila cemetery. The witness, who worked for the South Manila military police garrison, told of seeing an order to the garrison signed by Yamashita commending the work and treatment of "guerrilias in and around Manila."

The prosecution speedily presented a series of new witnesses who told of other bayonet killings and burning of civilians throughout the archipelago.

One woman, whose husband had his tongue cut out by the Japanese was intercepted before the courtroom and found in a routine search to be carrying two stones in her purse. Asked what they were for, she said:

"To throw at dogs."

This woman and a 16-year-old girl told of being raped at Tanauan, Batangas province, by Japanese who killed 500 civilians on or about February 10 this year.

Sister Mary Trinitas of the Maryknoll Order related details of killings at Fort Santiago, where some civilians were tied in corridors "in position similar to Christ on the cross."

A Chinese, editor of a local paper, said he saw many acts of cruelty at the prison where he served as an orderly for over a year while being detained as a suspected guerrilla. Some persons were strung from the ceiling by rope and allowed to fall upon boards with nails protruding. Others were pumped full of soapy water and guards then jumped upon their stomachs, he related.

Meanwhile, a second crimes commission headed by Philippine Major-Gen. Basilio Valdes will hear the arraignment of Japanese officers and enlisted men directly charged with the murder of two Americans and five Filipinos in Cebu this spring.

Witness In Yamashita Trial Tells Of Threat By Japanese

Manila, Thursday, Nov. 15 (AP)—Mast. Sergt. Richard Sakakida, Hawaiian-born Japanese, testified today at the war crimes trial of Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita that he had been warned by the general's judge advocate, now a prisoner of war, not to appear as a witness.

Sakakida was captured by the Japanese at Corregidor, then later made a civilian interpreter in the judge advocate's office at Yamashita's headquarters in the Philippines.

Saw Colonel In Camp

The judge advocate, a Colonel Nishiharu, is held in a prisoner-of-war camp here and Sakakida said he saw him theer a few days ago.

Sakakida said he saw an American woman, Mrs. Blanche Juika, whose son is a major in the United States Army, blindfolded and beheaded along with other victims at Manila North Cemetery a year ago by soldiers of Yamashita's command. He said the victims first were informed of the sentences after arriving at the cemetery.

The witness told of seeing two American flyers, downed in Manila Bay in August, 1944, questioned in the judge advocate's office. He saw them two months later at old Bilibid prison and hardly recognized the "frail, thin, beaten bodies." The flyers later were executed, the witness added.

Saw Many Executions

He told of witnessing many executions, including those of at least six Americans.

TOKYO SEEKS BARTER PLAN

Agriculture Head Proposes Deal To Obtain Food

Tokyo, Nov. 14 (AP)—Japan, facing a cold and hungry winter and a war-reparations bill, today proposed a system of barter with the United States and other countries.

The primary purpose of the plan, requested by Sankuro Ogasawara, Minister of Agriculture, would be to obtain foodstuffs immediately and set up a long-range program for reviving the nation's wobly economy.

Allied headquarters, to which Ogasawara made his application, said it was not yet prepared to indicate its policy in the matter.

Section Working On Problem

It is known, however, that the economic and scientific section of headquarters is working on what Japan considers its foremost problem.

"Japanese trade is in a state of suspension, but we want to start trade as soon as possible," Ogasawara said. He voiced the hope that the United States again would become Nippon's best customer.

Specifically, Ogasawara asked permission for Japan to import 3,000,000 tons of foodstuffs, 1,000,000 tons of salt and sizable tonnage of cotton, copra, coal, iron ore and nonferrous metals.

Barter payments would be made in gold and other precious metals; diamonds, silk, cotton goods, chemical products, medical supplies, machinery, hardware, tin and other Japanese products.

Plans Own Reparations Study

While the Allied reparations commission conferred on the amount of the bill to be presented to Japan, the Kyodo news agency said it had learned that the Government would set up its own reparations commission. It would be composed of experts from the various ministries, such as finance and agriculture.

In an apparent move to help meet the expected reparations bill the Government decided to encourage private production of gold in the home islands. This development also was reported by Kyodo, which said the Government had obtained Allied permission to accelerate production of the precious metal. Only 155 gold mines now are working, with 333 idle because of the labor shortage.

Japs Ask To Barter For Food And Fuel

Tokyo, Nov. 14 (AP)—Desperately-hungry Japan appealed officially today for Allied food and fuel, promising to pay—in installments—by shipments of gold, diamonds, silk and other goods.

General MacArthur's headquarters reported that it was not ready to indicate what the Allied answer might be. Japanese Minister of Commerce Sankuro Ogasawara announced the formal application for the imports—mostly from America—to stave off threatening famine. He made it clear that Japan's alternatives are simple: barter or die.

To Reduce Forces Soon

Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, meanwhile, reported that occupation forces in Japan and Korea soon will decline from their present 460,000. He did not say, however, how soon the United States forces might reach the minimum 200,000, which, MacArthur has indicated, will be adequate by spring.

While American reparations representatives deliberated the price Japan must pay for her war of aggression Japanese prepared to set up their own reparations commission to study the problem, Kyodo news agency said.

Ogasawara, in announcing Japan's application for United States imports, said he hoped the United States may again become "Japan's best customer."

Japan asks to import 3,000,000 tons of food, 1,000,000 tons of salt and smaller amounts of cotton, copra, coal, iron ore and nonferrous metals.

Ogasawara said Japan could pay one fifth of the bill by December 15 and the remaining four fifths within the next year. The barter system payment proposals included gold and other precious metals, diamonds, raw and fabricated silk, cotton goods, chemical products, medical supplies, machinery, celluloid goods, porcelain, hardware, tin, antimony and industrial art products.

He estimated it would take Japan five years to regain normal production. Imports of vital food and fuel could not be paid for, he emphasized, unless exports of Japanese goods are also allowed.

Few Ships Available

He said he hoped that American business experts can be sent to survey Nipponese markets, and that a Japanese delegation can visit the United States on a trade mission.

He said war-time shipping losses complicate the problem, and added that, "the country now has only two ships capable of traveling to the United States and Canada for grain."

No imports are permitted now except salt from Korea and "a small quantity" of crushed corn, Ogasawara said.

Jap Firm Plans Broadcasting Service

Tokyo, Nov. 14 (AP)—Japan soon will have its first privately owned radio broadcasting service, breaking the monopoly of semi-official Radio Tokyo, a promotor of the new firm said today.

Naka Funata, member of the House of Representatives and secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and industry of Japan, said that his new Japan Radio Company will operate two 10-kilowatt transmitters in Tokyo and Osaka.

Revenues will come from advertising. Radio Tokyo was supported by a one-yen monthly fee charged listeners.

Jap Grunt And Growl Champs Draw Few GI's

Tokyo, Nov. 14 (AP)—Japan's grand champion Sumo wrestlers consented to exhibit their ancient muscular art to 10,000 American soldiers—but drew only 100 who found the preliminary rituals more interesting than the action.

Officers blamed inadequate advance publicity for the small crowd.

Three of the nation's four grand champions grunted and groaned in the two-hour tournament in a frigid stadium slashed by nine American bomb craters. One champion, Terukuni, 25-year-old Tokyo star, was defeated in one of the feature matches, but the audience didn't know it. Nobody told them.

"Looks like a tug-of-war to me," concluded Pfc. James Postergal, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Ex-U.S. Resident Candidate For House

Tokyo, Nov. 14 (AP)—Zensaku Axima, former United States resident and around-the-world flyer, is a candidate for the Japanese House of Representatives in the forthcoming general election.

He lived in the United States eighteen years and said he planned to make the most of it in promoting friendship between Japan and America.

Anti-Christian Japanese Dies

TOKYO, Nov. 14 (AP).—Colonel Nobuyuki Iijima, who led a movement to abolish Christian teachings in American-built St. Paul's Episcopal University here, died at a Japanese Army hospital last night. His removal to Omori prison had been ordered Nov. 9 by American 8th Army headquarters, but illness prevented it.

Kenney, Occupation Officers Confer

Tokyo, Nov. 14 (AP)—Gen. George C. Kenney, commanding general of the Far East Air Forces, conferred here today with high-ranking occupation officers. He said he would return to his Manila headquarters in a few days.

Japs Get Dirty Deal On Baths, They Say

Tokyo, Nov. 14 (AP)—The people of Tokyo complained today that they were getting a dirty deal. The price of vital public baths was raised from 12 to 20 sen. Everybody uses them; there's no fuel at home to heat water.

42 Japs Lost In Boat Blast

Tokyo, Nov. 14 (AP)—Thirty-eight Japanese are missing and four dead as a result of the explosion of a tugboat hauling explosives out to sea for disposal.

6th Army's Shopper

Kyoto, Japan, Nov. 14 (AP)—Sergt. Ernest B. Schnell figured out the other day that he had spent 500,000 yen the first month in Kyoto, ancient capital of Japan. He's been buying souvenirs for practically everyone in the United States 6th Army.

"Never," he said, "have I been so worn out."

GI's and officers turned to Sergeant Schnell when they learned of his prewar job as a professional souvenir hunter—in this area, too. From 1934 to 1940 he worked for a Swiss export firm. In 1940 he opened a branch office in New York.

The sergeant, awaiting redeployment, still has one important shopping item on his own list—a diamond ring. "My first aim is to get back to Spartanburg, S.C.," he said, "and get married."

Attlee's Speech Gets Varied Reactions

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—Several legislators said today that if Prime Minister Attlee is seeking to sell this country on the idea of a loan to Britain he made only a little headway by visiting Capitol Hill.

Others expressed belief a loan wil be made. Talks on a multimillion-dollar credit arrangement for England have been under way here for several weeks.

Members who heard Attlee address a joint meeting of Congress yesterday seemed impressed by the British leader's frankness. But there was a sharp division of opinion on his Government's objectives.

Senator Taft Critical

Senator Taift, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican steering committee, who personally favors a loan to Britain, said he felt Attlee's explanation of the objectives of the British Labor Government hadn't helped much.

"He sounded a little too New Dealish for some people," Taft said.

Party "Not Radical"

Attlee told the legislators that the Labor party isn't the radical organization it has been pictured in some American minds. He said it believes in government taking over monopolies when big business gets in that class.

He observed also that there is room in the world for American and British trade without "undue rivalry."

Hoey Hits "Planned Economy"

Senator Hoey (D., N.C.) said the British Labor party's "policy of planned economy" and of taking over monopolies "contravenes our view of government."

Senator O'Daniel (D., Texas) said he is "against any more loans to England, regardless of how nice their new Government is."

Wheeler Hints Of Dictatorship

Senators Wheeler (D., Mont.) and Ellender (D., La.) commented that that sort of economy sometimes ends in dictatorship.

On the other side, Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.) said he thought more speeches like Attlee's would bring more understanding and less trouble in the world. Senator Morse (R., Ore.) said he thought the Prime Minister had made an appeal for world citizenship that the United States is going to have to consider "and at the same time protect our national interests."

Senator Ball Agrees

Senator Ball (R., Minn.) agreed with Attlee that there is "ample room" in the world for products of great industrial nations.

Senator Green (D., R.I.) saw in the idea of increasing world-consuming power "not humanity, not charity, but the point of view of the hard-headed business man."

Senator Smith (R., N.J.) said he was confident that "a reasonable loan, on proper terms, can be worked out" for the British. America, he added, would "suffer tremendously if Britain were down at the heels economically."

CONGRESS ASKS EISENHOWER FOR ADVICE ON UNRRA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP) Congress turned to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today for advice on a new $1,350,000,000 UNRRA appropriation request.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee opened hearings on the legislation, became embroiled in an argument over the administration of UNRRA, and decided to ask the general just how badly Europe needs help.

To Testify Friday

The invitation was extended by Chairman Bloom (D-N.Y.) who said Eisenhower probably could testify Friday. He will be a witness tomorrow at Military committee hearings on peacetime training.

State department officials and Director General Herbert H. Lehman appeared before Bloom's committee in behalf of the request for new funds for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration.

The United States has authorized a contribution of $1,350,000,000—or one per cent of the national income—to UNRRA and Lehman says this will be exhausted by the end of the year. Other United Nations are also being asked to double their original contributions.

Criticism of UNRRA took several new turns at today's hearing.

Rep. Chiperfield (R-Ill.) interrupted the testimony of Assistant Secretary of State Will Clayton to declare that he thought the relief organization has exceeded the authority granted it by Congress. He said it had no legal right to go ahead with a $50,000,000 relief program in Italy.

Chiperfield emphasized that he was basing his objections solely on the legal angles, not on whether these areas should be assisted.

Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson replied that the agency has not assumed any new obligations, that the Italian program represented simply "a use of funds already available."

Clayton said Congress has the right to deny the agency funds but "morally we are bound to try and finish a program which we started."

Lehman observed that "Russia is making that much less work for UNRRA by taking care of the displaced persons in her zone of German occupation."

Red Cross Could Do Job

Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass.) interjected that the Red Cross ought to do all the relief work, anyway. Clayton said that might have been a good idea if it had been done from the start "but it would be a grave mistake to consider a change now."

Bloom joined with Clayton, asserting that by the time another organization got started "all the people it wanted to help would be dead."

Speed In Voting UNRRA Funds Requested

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—Assistant Secretary of State William L. Clayton urged Congress today to take "the promptest possible action" on President Trruman's request for an additional $1,350,000,000 for UNRRA.

Clayton, the United States member of the UNRRA Council, was the first witness to appear before the House Foreign Affairs Committee in support of a bill authorizing the additional fund.

He was to be followed by Under Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Herbert H. Lehman, UNRRA director general.

Defends Organization

The Assistant Secretary said he believes UNRRA represents "the proper method of furnishing relief and rehabilitation assistance," and defended the organization against complaints that it has been cumbersome and ineffective.

He conceded, however, that there are "difficulties and weaknesses in the UNRRA administration," and pledged that he would do "all in my power as this Government's representative on the council to help overcome or correct them."

Other Methods "Unthinkable"

Any relief method other than UNRRA, he said, is "unthinkable and impractical."

Clayton said he believes the committee's examination of the relief problam would justify his "sincere conviction that we are asking Congress to do what is right and necessary as our share of world relief and rehabilitation."

Mr. Truman, in a message to Congress yesterday, asked another $1,350,000,000 for UNRRA.

Held Up In Senate

This would be the same amount authorized last year. Of this authorization however, only $800,000,000 has been appropriated thus far. The House has voted the remaining $550,000,000, but the Senate has not yet acted.

Some House Republicans have served notice that they view additional expenditures with little favor. They plan also to try to attach several amendments governing use of the funds.

CONGRESS OPENS HEARINGS TODAY ON PEARL HARBOR

Admiral Inglis, Col. Thielen Summoned to Testify Before Committee.

PLEDGE FAIR INQUIRY

Claim Commanders Were Warned of Planned Jap Sneak Attack.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP) Congress tonight summoned an admiral and a colonel as first witnesses in the Pearl Harbor inquiry.

The Joint Congressional committee will start public hearings tomorrow with Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis and Col. Bernard Thielen on the stand.

Inglis is chief of Naval intelligence. Thielen is on the army general staff. Neither was at Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

Chairman Barkley (D-Ky) didn't explain why the committee selected these two. The inference was that their testimony will set the stage for developing what was happening in higher circles during those tense days preceding the outbreak of the Pacific war.

Pledge Impartial Inquiry

A new pledge of a "fair, impartial" inquiry was made on the eve of the hearings. It came from Rep. Murphy (D-Pa), a member of the committee, during an angry exchange in the House.

Murphy took special time to denounce Republican members who have insisted on conducting what he called their own investigation. He was aiming at Reps. Keefe (R-Wis) and Gearhart (R-Calif) who have interviewed a naval intelligence officer, Capt. Alwin D. Kramer, and only yesterday called on J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the FBI.

Murphy shouted at Keefe that the Republicans were "trying the case in the newspapers."

When both Keefe and Gearhart tried to interpose, Murphy declared "this is not the time nor the place to go into the evidence."

Gearhart tried repeatedly to get the floor and Murphy refused to yield. So the Californian started talking away. Democrats cried "order," Speaker Rayburn slammed his gavel and finally Murphy shouted:

"This isn't a duet."

Commanders Warned

Murphy said both Keefe and Gearhart were wrong when they said the Army and Navy never warned commanders at Pearl Harbor except in "weasel words" that the situation was critical.

He read from a voluminous Army-Navy inquiry board report messages from each branch to the Hawaii post. In one of them he quoted the Navy as saying that "This is a warning of war." The Army message said, according to Murphy, that the Japanese negotiations had broken down and "Hostile action" could be expected at any moment.

"Were those weasel words?" he asked.

Gearhart finally got the floor long enough to say that the FBI "alerted" its men in Pearl Harbor but either the Army nor Navy put their forces on a proper "alert."

"Whatever happened will be developed at the hearings," Murphy countered. "That's why I repeat this is not the proper tribunal to try this case."

ARMY URGING ATOM CONTROL

Holds Domestic Check Needed To Back International Plan

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—The War Department called today for quick creation of domestic controls over atomic energy, as American, British and Canadian leaders neared the end of their conference on international controls.

Secretary Patterson told a news conference that domestic legislation should be adopted promptly to clear the way for international action.

"My own view," he said, "is that international arrangements will require a domestic control in order for this Government to make good on any agreement."

Contemplates Commission

The War Department's idea of legislation, he said, contemplates that a nine-man commission would control all atomic-energy activities, including the construction of atomic bombs.

President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee of Britain and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada met again at the White House.

Allied diplomats speculated that if the leaders agree on any plan for control of atomic force through the United Nations the plan would be immediately communicated to Generalissimo Stalin and possibly to leaders of France and China as well.

Those countries, with Britain and the United States, would have primary responsibility for carrying it out as permanent members of the United Nations Security Council.

Broad Principles Expected

Beyond this it was considered likely by persons close to all the conferees that a communiqué would be issued Friday disclosing at least broad objectives and principles even though the exact provisions of any plan agreed upon might be kept secret pending their discussion with other governments.

After a two-hour session this afternoon, the three government leaders held another meeting tonight and scheduled still another for 10 A.M. tomorrow. William D. Hassett, White House press secretary, did not indicate what progress was being made. Asked when a communiqué might be expected, he replied, "when the conferees have reached a conclusion."

There is some talk around town of a meeting of Truman and Attlee with Stalin. British officials are known to feel that such a gathering would serve a useful purpose at this juncture if it cleared the air of mutual uncertainties and suspicions, but there is no evidence that plans for a meeting have been made or even proposed.

Concentrated On Problem

Indications are that Attlee and Truman have concentrated almost exclusively on the atomic-bomb problem and on related broad questions of foreign affairs, particularly the situation existing between Britain and the United States on one hand and Russia on the other.

Nonetheless, Attlee has found time since his talks with the President and Mackenzie King started on Saturday to confer with various British officials in this country including, it is understood, those who have been concerned with negotiating a loan from the United States.

30.24 — 31629

American officials, who regard a loan as an essential part of American policy for building very close relations with Britain and bolstering up that island nation as much as possible during a difficult period of reconversion, believe that after weeks of dickering, an agreement will be reached in the whole problem by early next week.

Women Members Offer Plans

International control and reduction of armaments and weapons, especially atomic power, was suggested by Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.).

Mrs. Luce introduced a concurrent resolution calling for Congress to express itself in favor of the creation of international machinery within the framework of the United Nations Organization for this purpose.

Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Cal.) proposed that the United States, Great Britain and Russia get together on a plan for controlling atomic energy.

She prepared for introduction in the House a resolution calling upon President Truman to invite the British and Russian governments to a conference.

M'MAHON PLANS FULL HEARINGS ABOUT BOMB

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—(AP) Senator McMahon (D-Conn) said tonight that the special Senate committee on atomic energy, of which he is chairman, was "determined that the fullest hearings must be held in order that every point of view may be expressed."

The Senator, in an address prepared for broadcast over a network of Connecticut radio stations, said the committee wanted to hear from scientists who had worked on the atomic bomb, and from representatives of industry, labor, the church, consumers, veterans and also wanted to hear "the voice of government himself."

McMahon said bills dealing with atomic energy which had been introduced by Senators Johnson (D-Colo.) and Ball (R-Minn.) and by himself all had one point in common, creating a commission to deal with the problem "in order to prevent the disruption of our economy."

Asserting the problem was one of great importance, Senator McMahon said:

"All of us, I believe, appreciate the urgency for solving this problem. All of us realize that the atomic bomb hangs like a modern sword of Damocles over our international relationships. Few among us, I am sure, fail to understand that the wrong decision may well spell the end of our civilization."

'PAY AS YOU EARN' PLAN TO INCREASE WAGES PROPOSED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—(AP) A novel "pay-as-you-earn" plan for negotiating wage increases, designed to bring labor and management together and provide an incentive for ever-greater production, was advanced tonight by Senator Knowland (R-Calif.).

The plan calls for employers and employes to sit down together once each year and agree upon the most equitable division of the company's revenue "among workers, management, stockholders and consumers, the latter in the form of lower prices."

Encourage Greater Production

To encourage greater production rather than a "doctrine of scarcity brought on by either stoppages of production or governmental action," labor and management would agree upon a "leeway" raise. A fixed wage adjustment would be made in the first place. But then only so much of the additional "leeway" raise would be granted as was earned.

In submitting the plan by letter to Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach, Knowland said he and Blair Moody, Washington correspondent of the Detroit News, had been working on it for some time.

"In the present situation," the letter said, a fixed 10 per cent hourly wage increase should be granted immediately, with "commensurate adjustments for salaried employes," unless management can show that such action would jeopardize the company in the absence of price rener.

Thereafter, under the formula, labor and management, in bargaining conferences once a year, would:

"(a) Estimate the coming year's business.

"(b) Agree on the most equitable and economic division of its intake among workers, management, stockholders and consumers, the latter in the form of lower prices which might advance the general prosperity of the company and bring larger returns to all in subsequent years."

Having arrived at these estimates, as Knowland explained it, the bargainers would negotiate a leeway for a further increase in wages.

"Under current conditions in the automobile industry, for example," Knowland wrote Schwellenbach, "this leeway might amount to 20 per cent—the difference between the roughly 10 per cent which could be granted by restoring average hourly earnings after the drop from a 48 to a 40 hour week and similar factors, and the 30 per cent asked by UAW-CIO."

The Senator told reporters that in other words, labor representatives might propose a further-raise leeway that management feared would be too costly. However, at the year's end under Knowland's plan, there would be an accounting to determine just how much of extra pay might safely be allowed.

Differs from Bonus

Knowland explained this differed from the ordinary bonus in that it would be promised ahead of time, the amount to be figured later.

"The goal of both management and labor during the year would be to keep the company's production and sales at such levels that the maximum of the "leeway" (30 per cent) could be paid instead of the minimum of the "leeway" (in this hypothetical case, 10 per cent)," Knowland said.

Increases above the minimum of the leeway could not be paid until earned, but re-estimates could be figured from time to time and wage rates adjusted retroactively. Final settlement, based on actual profit, would be made at the end of the production year.

Knowland noted that a necessary factor would be the obligation of both parties to live up to the terms of their contract.

In shaping the formula, he said he worked with Blair Moody, Washington correspondent of the Detroit News.

He passed it on to Schwellenbach "in the hope that you and your conciliation service might find it helpful in preventing a fatal delay in the rapid reconversion which is so vital if our American standards are to be maintained."

ALL TO BE FED, HOUSED, CLOTHED TRUMAN DECLARES

President's Letter Read at National Foreign Trade Convention.

By JOHN F. CHESTER

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—(AP) President Truman held out a possibility tonight that for the first time in history "all men everywhere may be adequately fed, decently housed and comfortably clothed."

The Chief Executive, in a letter transmitted to the concluding session of the 32nd National Foreign Trade convention, declared that modern advances had now made it technically possible to produce enough goods to achieve this end. He attached only one "If."

NOV 15 1945

"The question," he said, "is whether our arrangements for exchange and distribution will be such that these enormous productive powers are enabled to operate freely for the benefit of everyone."

The 2,000 international traders and bankers gathered at the Waldorf Astoria hotel also heard:

Herbert Vere Evatt, Australia's Foreign Minister, declare that his country wanted the United States to take the lead in the postwar world, but that "Australia's willingness to follow your leadership in any new international program must be measured by our confidence in your ability to remain prosperous."

Spruille Braden, Assistant Secretary of State, who recently was attacked verbally as Ambassador to Argentina, asserted in obvious reference to that country that there was only one "notorious exception" to economic cooperation in the Americas. He added extemporaneously that "in that one notorious exception I want to make it plain that we hear the cry of anguish from that noble land and will answer it by every appropriate means at our disposal."

Beardsley Ruml, chairman of the New York Federal Reserve Bank and author of the pay-as-you-go tax plan, declared that the new international "time table is set by the existence the atomic bomb," and that if world tension is not eased within two years "then those nations that can unite should do so, leaving the way open for a broader federation later on."

The convention as a whole adopted a declaration for creating "most favored nation" agreements between the United States and as many other countries as possible.

President Truman professed not to know all the answers as to how best to make the world's enormous productive capacity operate to the best advantage for everyone, but he said flatly that a relaxation of government controls and the elimination of private monopoly would help.

"We shall not get forward toward freedom from want by placing new restrictions either upon production or exchange," Mr. Truman said. "On the contrary, we must reduce restrictions all around the circle and we must try at the same time to promote stability and high employment."

Evatt picked up before the foreign traders the theme he pounded so hard at the San Francisco United Nations conference—full employment. In saying that Australia would accept the leadership of a prosperous America he asserted that another depression might hit United States investors first, but that Australian farmers and workers would suffer next.

"If we are to find expanding world markets x x x We can expect to buy more from others," Evatt said. "If not, we must buttress our defenses and build as we can at home. x x x But we must grow. We are too young, too sparsely settled in our territory, too full of energy and ambition not to grow."

SENATE WEIGHS ENTRY OF JEWS INTO PALESTINE

Subcommittee Is Directed to Report on Resolution for Migration.

ACTUAL MOVE LITTLE NEARER

Favorable Decision by Joint Group Would Leave Action Still Resting on Britain.

Washington, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee took a step today toward action on a resolution favoring "free entry" of Jews into Palestine by instructing a subcommittee report on it by next Monday.

The full committee discussed the resolution for two and one-half hours at a closed session before deciding to refer it to the subcommittee, to be named later by Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.).

Asked by a reporter what the reaction of the full committee was, Connally replied: "There were twenty members—no, maybe fifteen—present and if I had polled them, I would have got fifteen different reactions."

Entry Little Nearer.

Notwithstanding added official solicitude in Washington and London for the plight of homeless European Jews, a final decision on whether large numbers of them can go to Palestine appeared little nearer.

The Senators who debated the "free entry" resolution today knew that whatever action was taken, this was the situation:

No large numbers of Jews would be permitted to go to Palestine until—and unless—a British-American "committee of inquiry," whose members have not been yet selected, recommended such action. Even then, large-scale Jewish immigration would not be assured. The recommendations of the joint committee, announced yesterday in Washington and London, will not be binding on the British Government, which governs Palestine under a League of Nations mandate.

No Starting Date Set.

There were no official guesses as to when the committee would start on its assignment or the date on which its recommendations might be expected. President Truman said in a statement, however, he hoped it could complete its task "with the greatest speed" because the situation "allows no delay in this matter." The committee will examine "political, economic and social conditions" in Palestine and will consult "representative Arabs and Jews."

In announcing this country's agreement to the committee idea, Mr. Truman made public his letter of August 31 to Prime Minister Attlee, in which he suggested that 100,000 European Jews be permitted to go to Palestine. The British Government replied that because of conditions in Palestine, it could not adopt the suggestion. It suggested creation of the joint committee.

Representative Cellar (D.-N. Y.) termed the committee idea "another British dodge and a stall."

U.S.-Soviet Friendship Rally

New York, Nov. 14 (AP)—Dean Acheson, Under Secretary of State, said tonight that better understanding between Americans and Russians depends on mutual attempts to open up press and other channels of information.

"I see no way to draw our peoples into closer understanding," he declared, "except by persistent efforts, on both sides, to free the lines of communication through the press and the radio, through books and magazines, through the exchange of knowledge and culture, and through travel and personal acquaintance."

"So Much To Learn"

In a speech at an American-Soviet friendship rally, the Under Secretary added:

"We have so much to learn and . . . to understand about each other that we cannot hope to succeed except in the spacious atmosphere of honesty, candor and knowledge."

For nearly a century and a half, the two countries have got along "remarkably well," Acheson noted.

"By any standard of international relations, the record is good. . . . Never in the past has there been any place on the globe where the vital interests of the American and Russian people have clashed or even been antagonistic—and there is no objective reason to suppose that there should, now or in the future, ever be such a place.

"Friendly Solution"

"We understand and agree with them that to have friendly governments along her borders is essential both for the security of the Soviet Union and for the peace of the world . . . ," Acheson said.

"But it seems equally clear to us that the interest in security must take into account and respect other basic interests of nations and men, such as the interest of other peoples to choose the general surroundings of their own lives and of all men to be secure in their persons. . . .

"In this area where the room for adjustment is broad and where the necessity for extreme measures is absent, the problem seems wholly possible of friendly solution."

"Gambling With Peace"

Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to Russia, said in his prepared speech:

"We hear a few mad militarists —not among the great war leaders —in this and other countries, who advocate war with Russia, now rather than later. That is insane. It is gambling with peace. It is throwing dynamite around."

The Very Reverend Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, urged the Russian press to give "a fuller acknowledgment of the western contribution to the defeat of fascism."

"I have long wished to see a more helpful and intelligent attitude toward the western press in Moscow," he said. "And I am happy to learn even as I reach your country of change in this respect. I should like also to see in the Russian press a full acknowedgment of the western contribution to the defeat of fascism and present assistance in rehabilitation."

Note On Religion

Turning to religion, he quoted Josef Stalin as saying that "the state has learned the patriotism of the church and the church has learned the patriotism of the state; the old antagonisms are gone."

Nikolai V. Novikov, Soviet charge d'affaires, warned against "reactionary forces" which would split the United States and Russia.

"There is no doubt that the basic interests of the peoples of the Soviet Union and the United States of America—allies and comrades during the war—require close friendship and economic co-operation between our great nations in the postwar period," he said. "It would be wrong to say, however, that the maintenance and the protection of our friendship do not require any effort on our part and that desire alone can achieve it."

Among messages sent to the rally was one from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who called American-Soviet friendship "one of the cornerstones on which the edifice of peace should be built."

Message To Stalin

Corliss Lamont, chairman of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, said that the "warmongering people" in the United States who continually talk of having a war with Russia are "war criminals. . . ."

"And I will add that the great contribution that Americans can make to world peace at this moment is to stop the war talk against Soviet Russia."

A message was sent to Stalin by the meeting congratulating the Soviet on its war success and declaring that "American-Soviet friendship within the framework of the United Nations is the indispensable foundation of a world of peace, democracy and security."

RUSSIA CHANGES STAND ON JAPAN

Reverts to Unanimity Rule on Control Council.

Washington, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Byrnes disclosed today that the United States and Russia still are deadlocked over Soviet demands for the establishment of an Allied Control Council for Japan.

Russia, he said, is insisting on a unanimity rule in the council similar to the one under which the Control Council in Berlin functions. Byrnes contended that the rule is responsible for failure of the Berlin group to accomplish many things that should have been done in Germany under the Potsdam agreement.

In the proposed Japanese Council all members, under the Russian plan, would have an equal voice and all would have to agree before anything could be done. This means that an objection by any one could block action. The United States is holding out for a council in which Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Allied Commander in Japan, would have a decisive voice in case of disagreement.

Moscow Shifts Position.

Byrnes had said several weeks ago that the American idea was acceptable to Russia, but today he disclosed the shift in Moscow's position. The Secretary's disclosure came in response to questions after he had said that the United States has received a Russian reply to a communication presented by Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, with reference to a military council for Japan. No agreement has been reached on that matter or on a Far Eastern advisory commission which is meeting here without Russian participation, Byrnes said.

Asked whether the reply was from Foreign Commissar Molotov or Premier Stalin, who has dropped out of the picture recently, Byrnes said that it came from Molotov and that he had no recent word from Stalin.

Byrnes did not explain why the Russians are once more insisting on a unanimity rule for a Japanese control council after having agreed, according to his earlier report, to a less rigid system.

D.C. Atom Talks Focus On Red Reaction

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—Allied officials involved in the atomic bomb talks here indicated today that they are largely concerned now about Russia's reaction to the forthcoming Anglo-American-Canadian proposal for controlling atomic force.

There is a strong feeling evident on the part of some that this is one of the climatic weeks of history. Decisions now being whipped into shape will vitally influence the future of Anglo-American relations with Russia. These relations are the core of United Nations plans for policing world peace.

Out To Reassure Russia

Evidence recently available from British authorities is that President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada will seek particularly, in their communique on plans for international atomic controls, to reassure Russia. This may be done by offering to share scientific knowledge of atomic power fully with the Soviet Union and other countries.

Indications are that at the same time Russia will be invited to reassure the western Allies about her policies and intentions by agreeing to toss her scientific information into the contemplated pool and, possibly, by giving some evidence of her long-range territorial and political aims.

If Russia Rejects Plan?

The question that has official insiders worried is, what happens if Russia doesn't want to accept the Anglo-American proposal?

Because of the dangers foreseen by Allied diplomats in any real disagreement among the Big Three over the handling of atomic power, there is some chance that the proposals put forward by Attlee, Truman and Mackenzie King will be general in approach to the problem rather than hard and fast specifications for a solution. This would leave the way open for Russian sugestion and counter-proposals and avoid the appearance of laying down a demand for a take-it-or-leave-it reply.

Charge 45 Firms Broke Trust Laws in Artificial Limb Sales

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 — (AP) Forty-five corporations, 34 individuals and a trade association were charged today with violating the anti-trust laws in the manufacture, sale and fitting of artificial limbs for amputees, including war veterans.

The Justice department announced that the indictment, returned by a District of Columbia grand jury, charged the group with conspiring to fix unreasonable and non-competitive prices throughout the United States.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark said in a statement that one effect of the alleged conspiracy was to "deprive the United States Veterans administration of the opportunity to make artificial limbs for veterans."

25,000 Annual Amputations

Assistant Attorney General Wendell Berge added in another statement that about 900,000 Americans wear artificial limbs and that many of these are war veterans. In peacetime about 25,000 amputations are made annually, Berge said.

The indictment asserted that artificial limb sales total about $10,000,000 annually, that about 75 per cent of the total volume of such business was done by the manufacturers named as defendants and that about 90 per cent of the parts business was done by 10 supply dealers named.

of the parts business was done by 10 supply dealers named.

Clark said the effect of the alleged conspiracy was to:

Force the Veterans administration, various state agencies and war veterans buying limbs direct from manufacturers to pay non-competitive prices.

Prevent various charitable institutions from making artificial limbs for indigent amputees free of charge.

Impede the improvement of artificial limbs.

Lacked Price Competition

Clark said the latter effect was brought about "by lack of price competition as an incentive to make a better product, and by refusal to permit the entry into the industry of artisans capable of improving quality and comfort through the device of refusing them parts."

Clark's announcement said the indictment charged that the manufacturers:

1. Agreed to fix minimum prices to the general public;

2. Agreed to include identical prices in bids submitted to the Veterans administration on artificial limbs supplied by that agency to war veterans;

3. Agreed to charge identical prices on sales of artificial limbs to state agencies;

4. Agreed that suppliers of parts for artificial limbs would refuse to sell such parts (a) to government agencies and charitable institutions which supplied limbs to amputees without cost, (b) to any institutions, public or private, which supplied artificial limbs to amputees free of charge, (c) to assemblers selling limbs below the agreed upon prices, (d) to assemblers who are not members of the industry's trade association, the association of limb manufacturers;

5. Agreed to sell limbs subject to a uniform guarantee of one year only;

6. Agreed to discipline any manufacturer selling artificial limbs below the agreed upon prices, or who made guarantees for a period longer than one year.

Truman Gets Press Club Piano

Presentation Made by Washington Body That Claims It Made Him Famous as Player.

Washington, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—President Truman found himself with a new piano today after a night out with the boys of the National Press Club.

It was quite a show, the President agreed, and he even added a gag or two of his own to the jokes pegged on his ability as a piano player. But Mr. Truman's remarks were off-the-record.

Comedian Eddie Cantor, commenting on the club's presentation of a Steinway piano to the Chief Executive, said:

"If anybody needs practice, it's the President. He played for Stalin at Potsdam. Immediately afterwards rumors started stirring that Stalin was a very sick man."

No matter what he plays, Cantor insisted, "It still sounds like the Missouri Waltz."

Eisenhower Gets a Laugh.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada and General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower seemed to get quite a kick out of comedian Joe E. Lewis's description of a banker as "a man who will lend you money if you can prove you don't need it."

The President was formally inducted into the club as a dues-paying member. Edward Jamieson, the club's president, credited the organization with making the President "nationally known as a piano player," referring to occasions when Mr. Truman, as a Senator and as Vice President, played at club functions.

The party at the Statler Hotel lasted from 7:30 P. M. until 11:30 P. M., and included such entertainers as Nino Martini, Metropolitan Opera tenor, and Dorothy Shay, the night club singer. The Army Air Forces Overseas Band, organized by the late Major Glenn Miller, made its last appearance in uniform under the direction of Sgt. Jerry Gray.

Eisenhower got so much applause when he was introduced that President Truman insisted that he make a speech. Eisenhower complied with a "hello, howdy and good luck."

Auto Pricing Policy; Bowles Is Attacked on Some Defend OPA Head in House Flare-Up

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—Demands that Chester Bowles be "bowled out" of the Office of Price Administration rang in the House chamber today in an uprising against his price policy on new automobiles. One member offered a bill proposing to strip him of price controls and to distribute the pricing authority to other Government agencies.

Meanwhile, the OPA chief showed no sign of retreating from his position that retail car dealers must absorb part or all the price increases granted to manufacturers, with the purpose of holding new car retail prices at or near 1942 levels.

Planning to announce the first new car prices, perhaps late tomorrow, he contended that the dealers, even with a reduced margin between manufacturers' price and retail price, still would make more than pre-war profits, because they would not have pre-war losses on used car trade-ins.

A hundred Senators and Representatives filed statements with the House Small Business Committee relaying the complaints of auto dealers throughout the country that OPA's cost absorption plan would destroy the normal price relationship between manufacturer and dealer and force many dealers out of business.

Representatives Sabath of Illinois, Gallagher of Minnesota and De Lacy of Washington, came to OPA's defense. Messrs. Sabath and Gallagher warned of destructive inflation if OPA was destroyed. Mr. De Lacy said OPA proposed to allow auto dealers a 15 per cent profit margin on new autos and added that he would like to go into business "on that basis."

In another field Mr. Bowles refused today to suspend the ceilings on chickens and turkeys, in an outline of the Government's policy on ending price controls to a House agriculture subcommittee.

The subcommittee had urged removal of ceilings on chickens and turkeys as a means of bringing producer and consumer prices closer in line and of encouraging greater consumption.

30.24 — 31631

Producer prices of chickens and of heavier turkeys have dropped below ceilings since the war ended and military services reduced their buying and Chairman Pace of the subcommittee contended that the decline in producer prices had not beenf ully reflected in consumer prices.

Gun-Shyness Cured in Army By PlasticSight

Developed for Anti-Tank Crews, New Device Cuts Down Recoil Injuries

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP).—A new gunsight, made almost entirely of plastic, was developed during the war to overcome "flinch-shyness" of American anti-tank gunners who had suffered injuries from regular glass sights.

This was disclosed today in a report by the armed forces and the Office of Scientific Research and Development on the development of various plastic optical instruments as substitutes for glass.

"Just prior to the invasion of North Africa," the report said, "it was discovered that American anti-tank gunners were gun-shy. The telescopic sights on their guns were ordinary optical systems in which the eye was to be held fairly close to the eyepiece—in practice this distance is usually less than one inch.

"Serious casualties were resulting from gunners using these sights, and the sights being based in the eye or the head during the recoil of the gun after firing—a new optical system was required, and its production in a matter of months was necessary."

The report said that the time required for designing, tooling and finishing glass elements for a new type of instrument would have been considerable, and so it was decided to try plastics. The National Defense Research Committee had been experimenting along such lines since 1940.

Within three months the scientists and industry came up with a three-power, fixed-focus telescope sight which met the requirements. It was designed for the three-inch anti-tank gun.

Special lenses, made of plastic material, were arranged so that the gunner's eye could be at least six and a half inches away from the lens and still get an accurate view. Also, a rubber shield was placed between the lens and the gunner's eye.

"With these optics," declared the report, "chances of injury during gun recoil are very much lessened."

The report said research into glass substitutes was undertaken in 1940 when it appeared the nation was not geared to the mass production of the glass lenses, prisms, mirrors and other elements that might be needed in war time.

It turned out, however, the report said, "that expansion of the (glass) optics industry was achieved in time to meet most military demands."

The study said that plastic optical instruments had various peace-time possibilities, and that research was continuing to overcome certain disadvantages, such as the ease with which plastic ...s can be scratched.

ICKES OFFERS OIL PROGRAM

Proposes 3-Point Plan To Preserve Reserves

Chicago, Nov. 14 (AP)—Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior and Petroleum Administrator for War, advocated tonight a three-point program designed to increase and preserve United States oil reserves.

Ickes, in a speech prepared for the American Petroleum Institute's twenty-fifth annual meeting, suggested a program (1) to stimulate the exploration of oil in this country; (2) promote efficient use of present reserves to make them last as long as possible, and (3) "assure ourselves of access to foreign oil resources so that they may supplement our domestic supplies when, and if, they are needed."

Promote Interests Of U.S.

The PAW chief said he believed the oil job should be done, both domestically and abroad, as far as possible, by private industry.

"The initiative, resourcefulness, the vigor and the competitive zest of our private industry have developed our oil resources with an efficiency unmatched anywhere in the world," he said. "In his activities abroad, the American oil man has operated in a manner which, with few exceptions, has promoted the interests, not only of the United States, but of the countries where he operated.

"I would consider it unwise and unfortunate for government to interpose itself in any phase of the oil business which can be handled by the petroleum industry efficiently and economically and with the satisfaction that a fair profit brings," the Secretary added.

Referring to the Anglo-American petroleum agreement signed by Ickes in London September 24 on behalf of the United States Government, the Secretary said the treaty was not intended to "freeze out other countries."

General Motors Grants 10% Rise In Office Pay

Increase Affects 70,000; Talks Resume Today on U.A.W. Demands for 30%

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Nov. 14.—The General Motors Corporation announced today its approximately 70,000 salaried employees will receive a 10 per cent increase on the first $500 of monthly salary retroactive to Nov. 1.

The general increase does not apply to senior officers and directors, the announcement said. The company said the increase will affect 30,000 General Motors salaried employees in Michigan, 13,000 in Detroit.

C. E. Wilson, General Motors president, said the compensation of salaried employees receiving more than $500 a month "will be reviewed in the light of this general increase and on the basis of their contribution to the success of the business."

The Congress of Industrial Organizations United Automobile Workers, with threat of imminent strike action, is demanding a 30 per cent wage increase for all hourly rated employees of General Motors and the other members of the auto industry's "Big Three"—the Chrysler Corporation and the Ford Motor Company. General Motors, which has rejected the demand, and Chrysler will resume separate negotiations with the union tomorrow.

General Motors' increase in the pay of salaried workers drew comment from R. J. Thomas, U. A. W. president, and Walter P. Reuther vice-president.

Salaried workers, Mr. Thomas said, would have "gotten a better break if they had been more thoroughly organized." The white-collar employees, he added, "have been getting a worse break in pay than the production workers."

Mr. Reuther said: "If the 10 per cent salary increase . . . is not used by the corporation as a lever to get price increases for its cars, it is a welcome down payment on the 30 per cent increase to which all General Motors employees . . . are entitled.

In the midst of the automobile industry's wages-and-reconversion problems, General Motors' production of Buick automobiles came to a halt today because of a parts shortage from an Ohio feeder plant.

Approximately 5,000 workers were laid off with the closing of assembly lines in the Buick and Fisher Body plants in Flint.

The shutdowns were caused by lack of chassis frames from the Midland Steel Company, of Cleveland. The halt to Buick production, which had reached 225 cars a day, was given various explanations. General Motors said it was due to a "work stoppage" at the Cleveland plant. E. J. Kulas, president of Midland Steel, attributed the chassis shortage to a "slowdown" which he said a wage increase Oct. 10 had failed to halt. After a later "deliberate refusal to work," Mr. Kulas said, some men were discharged, then rehired at union request, and finally discharged again Nov. 1, when, he said the slowdown continued.

Paul E. Miley, the union's regional director, said the Cleveland company discharged 200 workers on Buick, Studebaker and Hudson frame assembly lines two weeks ago because "the company didn't like the amount of production and ...red the workers rather than bargain about it."

Mr. Kulas said the trouble at Midland was "directly connected" with the 30 per cent wage boost demand of the U. A. W. He said his company had informed the union it could not discuss further adjustments until a national wage pattern is decided upon.

Industry Drafts Views On D.C. Parley Issues

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—Industry plans to lay on the line, today or tomorrow, its stand on every big issue before President Truman's Management-Labor Conference.

As the industrial peace parley entered its tenth day, the management delegation decided, in the words of Ira Mosher, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, that the time has come to "shove things along a little."

Almost the entire eighteen-member industry delegation started work last night on a statement of its position on collective bargaining, observance of contracts, jurisdictional quarrels and other subjects on the conference agenda.

New Steel Wage Impasse

As they worked, however, one of the nation's most important wage disputes—the CIO demand for a $2 daily wage increase from the United States Steel Corporation—came to a new impassé.

The corporation rejected Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach's second appeal that it enter into wage discussions today in Washington with the United Steel Workers of America.

United States Steel's president, Benjamin F. Fairless, telegraphed Schwellenbach last night that further discussions would be fruitless until the OPA acts on long-pending requests for steel price increases. The union had accepted the invitation to resume talks.

"No Useful Purpose"

Fairless told Schwellenbach that "we believe in and strongly support" collective bargaining but "we feel no useful purpose could be served by the proposed meetings."

Schwellenbach had arranged the meeting for today, under special conciliator, Arthur S. Meyer of the New York State Mediation Board, after United States Steel had declined a similar request for negotiations on the same ground.

In a broadcast interview shortly after his final reply to the Labor Secretary, Fairless contended that negotiations were being "blocked by the union and the Government."

Murray Accused

He said the union was obstructing peaceful settlement through President Philip Murray's declaration, in a meeting last month, that the union's demand was "not subject to dickering or compromise." Fairless added that the Government was blocking an agreement by the OPA's tardiness in giving price relief when many steel products were selling at less than cost.

Murray, on the other hand, contends that "the steel industry is clearly engaged in a brazen attempt to bludgeon" the Government into boosting steel prices. The CIO chief, in a letter to Schwellenbach assailing the corporation's stand, estimated that the industry would clear $500,000,000 profit in 1946, or "more than four times the peacetime level."

Fairless said the requested wage increase would cost the steel industry "at least $225,000,000 a year" and added that this was more than all steel companies now are earning.

His Answer To Truman

He explained the company's refusal to allow President Truman's suggestion that business grant wage increases and then apply, six months later, for price increases if necessary, with these words: "We would simply have to sell many steel products at a greater loss—we can't pay wage increases out of thin air."

Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said the proposed statement of industry delegates on approaches to labor peace might be described as the first co-ordinated declaration by a major portion of industry on employer-employé relations. Johnston and Mosher met reporters jointly last night, in a recess from their efforts to put the statement together.

Mosher "Not Disappointed"

Although none of the conference's several committees has so far reported agreement on any single question before it, Mosher said he was "far from disappointed" over the progress to date. But, he said, "there comes a time in all meetings of this kind when someone has to shove things along a little."

The industry group evidently hopes, by giving the labor group something to shoot at, to bring the discussion down to specific remedies for labor strife.

Pay "Clarification" Wanted

In the statement, Johnston and Mosher revealed, management will abandon its onlooker role with respect to the controversial resolution on collective bargaining and wages offered a week ago by CIO President Murray. They said they would seek a "clarification" of the resolution, which is still stuck in the conference's executive committee.

As written, it calls for indorsement of full collective bargaining acros the face of industry within the "framework" of Mr. Truman's appeal a fortnight ago for higher wages generally, which Mr. Truman said many industries could grant without getting higher price ceilings.

Undecided On Course

The management spokesman said it was not decided whether they would offer a substitute resolution, an amendment or merely a statement of what industry would find acceptable, but Mosher made it plain that the present reference to wage increases would not get management approval.

He reiterated that this is "not a conference for collective bargaining."

Industry members have so far sat silently while Murray's rival labor leaders—Presidents John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers and William Green of AFL—have criticized the resolution.

KINGMAN MADE 3D FLEET HEAD

Admiral Barbey Also Promoted To Command Of 7th

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—New commands for the 3d, 5th and 7th fleets were named by the Navy today in the first reshuffling since the end of the war.

Rear Admiral Howard F. Kingman, formerly commander of Battle Division 9, Pacific Fleet, was named commander of the 3d, made famous by Admiral William

NOV 15 1945

F. Halsey, Jr., who has requested retirement "to give the young fellows a chance."

Vice Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, who as commander of the amphibious force, 7th Fleet, led the spearhead of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's advance through the Southwest Pacific, was named to command the 7th, succeeding Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid.

Towers Succeeds Spruance

Vice Admiral John H. Towers, who succeeded Vice Admiral John S. McCain as commander of a fast carrier task force earlier this year, succeeds Admiral Raymond A. Spruance in command of the 5th Fleet.

Admiral Kinkaid was named commander of the Western Sea Frontier, with headquarters in San Francisco, succeeding Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, whose new billet has not been announced.

Admiral Spruance was assigned duty as deputy commander in chief, Pacific Fleet, and deputy commander in chief, Pacific Ocean Areas, succeeding Vice Admiral John H. Newton, who was called home to await further orders.

Graduated In 1911

Admiral Kingman, 55, a native of Hillsboro, N.D., was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1911. He was serving in the office of the chief of naval operations at the outbreak of the war, and in August, 1942, was given command of the battleship Nevada. He was transferred to command of a battleship division in January, 1943, in which assignment he won a letter of commendation from Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and the Legion of Merit.

He was named commandant of the 15th Naval District and commander of the Panama Sea frontier last November, where he was recently succeeded by Rear Admiral John R. Beardall. He lists his official address as Chevy Chase, Md.

Admiral Barbey, 55, was born in Portland, Ore., and graduated from the Naval Academy in 1912.

NEWSPRINT CASE RESUMED

House Unit Again May Ask Aid Of Rationing By Dec. 31

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—A House interstate commerce subcommittee decided today to take another look at the newsprint situation, with indications it will renew its recommendation that newsprint rationing stop December 31.

Chairman Boren (D., Okla.) reasserted his own demands that paper quotas cease at the year end, and Representative Wolverton (R., N.J.), committee member, said "rationing of newsprint should cease immediately, if we are to have a free press."

Quincy Case Review Asked

The committee set a session for Friday to review the newsprint supply situation.

Meanwhile, the committee requested the appeals board of the Civilian Production Administration to "review and reconsider" its action allowing extra-quota newsprint tonnage to a new newspaper at Quincy, Mass., which began publication during a labor controversy in that city.

News Interest Denied

During questioning of Dr. William J. Kerlin, OPA appeals board chairman, Boren said evidence indicated the newspaper, The Journal, is being published by employés of the established Patriot-Ledger, and he told Kerlin that by the extra-quota allotment to the new paper the appeals board had "participated against the established paper."

Kerlin said the newsprint allotment to The Journal was made on the consideration that there was no local competitive situation, since the Patriot-Ledger is not publishing, and that to deny newsprint to the new paper would place an undue hardship o nthe community in that it would have no local paper.

Representative Brown (R., Ohio) interposed that "the testimony indicates the new paper doesn't give anything like the service of the old paper."

Kerlin said the board has no interest whatever in what matter is printed in a paper when it makes a newsprint allotment.

Training Bill's Fate Is Seen As Doubtful

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—A difficult and doubtful future lay ahead today for universal military training legislation which survived its first test by a three-vote margin.

The 15-to-12 House Military Committee decision that left the way open for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to testify tomorrow provided an indication of likely trouble ahead.

Also, committee members who backed yesterday's defeated motion to halt further consideration until next year said privately they plan to concentrate henceforth on efforts to revise the contemplated program.

Suggested Alternatives

Some favor expansion of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps and the National Guard training programs to provide every youth an opportunity to become skilled in military arts. They propose that only those youths who refuse to train under ROTC or National Guard auspices be compelled to train under direct Army or Navy supervision.

Just how long the current hearings will last, Chairman May (D., Ky.) declined to predict. Nor would he speculate to newsmen on the chances of a House vote this year.

Opposition Statement

Committee members who sought to delay the hearings said in a joint statement released by Representative Short (R., Mo.) that they acted on these grounds:

"First, we have an adequate army and sufficient reserves to meet any emergency. There is no occasion for hysterical haste.

"Second, the President is involved in discussions with Premier Attlee concerning the atomic bomb, which may radically change the picture.

"Third, an attempt to use wartime hysteria to pass the legislation is unwise."

FEPC TO CLOSE FIELD OFFICES

New York Branch Will Be One of Seven on List.

Washington, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—The Fair Employment Practice Committee announced today that shortage of funds will force closing of seven field offices on December 15.

Chairman Malcolm Ross said that FEPC offices in New York, Philadelphia, Atlanta, San Francisco, San Antonio, Los Angeles and Washington will close. Those in Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis will continue operating.

After heated debate last spring between Congress members who wanted to make FEPC a permanent agency and those who favored discontinuing it, a compromise gave it $250,000 to operate until next July. This was half the sum FEPC had asked.

President Truman urged Congress in September to make FEPC permanent, and enabling legislation was approved by House and Senate labor committees. The House Rules Committee pigeon-holed the bill. It still is on the Senate calendar.

"FEPC is reluctant to lose the able workers in the seven offices to be closed, Ross said in a statement. "The personnel of these offices during the years of actual war performed a notable service in keeping the war plant gate open to all American workers irrespective of race, creed, color or national origin."

He suggested that "those plants which are reconverting to peacetime production ought, as a matter of fair play and common sense, to offer work opportunities to all workers without favor or discrimination."

DEVERS IS READY FOR NAVY ORDERS

Washington, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Gen. Jacob L. Devers, chief of Army Ground Forces, told Senators today he would be willing to serve under a naval officer if the armed forces are consolidated The four-star general testified before the Senate Military Affairs Committee in favor of placing Army, Navy and Air Forces under a single department and commander.

Senator Austin (R.-Vt.) evoked the general's comment when he asked about fears of some of the services that they would "be subordinated."

"I'd be glad to serve under a Navy man to start with," Devers said. "Real men will be placed in the top spots. They will place the good of the country first, not the good of the Ground Forces, Navy or Air Forces.'

Several Navy Department leaders, in opposing the unification legislative proposals, have expressed belief the Navy would suffer under such a plan.

Devers contended that creation of a single defense agency would strengthen traditional civilian control of the Armed Forces and also improve peacetime defense preparation.

State Dept. New Sneak Source

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—Republican members of the Pearl Harbor Investigating Committee looked today to the State Department and the FBI as possible sources of new disclosures.

Senator Brewster (R., Maine), said the State Department has been asked to give the committee all its files on the Tyler Kent case. Brewster said he and Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) want to learn whether they have any bearing on potential American involvement in the war before the Japanese attack.

Kent, a code clerk in the American Embassy in London, recently completed a prison sentence there.

Sentenced To Seven Years

He was convicted in November, 1940, of violation of the British Official Secrets Act and sentenced to seven years. Time off for good behavior shortened his term.

Brewster said it has been the general understanding that Kent was in charge of coding and decoding messages between the late President Roosevelt and former Prime Minister Churchill.

Representative Gearhart (R., Cal.) said after he and Representative Keefe (R., Wis.) talked with J. Edgar Hoover, FBI chief, yesterday that information they obtained in the interview "will result, I believe, in very startling Pearl Harbor disclosures."

Mother Wires Attlee.

Tyler Kent's mother, Ann H. P. Kent, who lives in Washington, disclosed today she has wired Prime Minister Attlee at the British Embassy here, asking for "immediate action" on the return of her son to the United States.

Declaring her son "was never charged with espionage even in the original proceedings against him," Mrs. Kent said he is "still detained in a British prison even through his sentence was completed more than a month ago."

In London yesterday, Kent's attorney said Kent has been held as an undesirable alien to await transportation. The attorney added he understood that Kent would leave for America within a week.

Scrap Of Flag Of Corregidor Brought To Secretary Of War

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—It was only a small piece of red bunting, not larger than 2 by 3 inches, but it was handled reverently today by Robert P. Patterson, Secretary of War, when he received it from Col. Delbert Ausmus, coast artilleryman. It was, the best anyone knows, the only existing fragment of the American flag that was lowered at Corregidor.

Its story was told by the gray-haired colonel from Schenectady, N.Y., who had been entrusted with it by a dying fellow officer. Ausmus had hidden it in a false shirt cuff for three years in a Japanese prison.

As Flag Came Down

Ausmus, somewhat shy and still recuperating from his prison experiences, related:

"When that American flag came down at noon on May 6, 1942, I saw men cry—even hard-boiled Marines. I guess I cried some myself."

For a moment he paused.

He said he was taken to Bilibid prison in Manila and came down with pneumonia. While he was in the hospital Col. Paul D. Bunker, of Taunton, Mass., was brought in suffering from seriously infected blisters on his feet and blood poisoning in one leg.

Two Pieces Made Of Relic

On June 10, Bunker, watching carefully to see that there were no Japs near, swore him to secrecy, Ausmus continued, and "said he wanted to turn something over to me to deliver to the Secretary of War."

From beneath the false patch set into the left pocket of his shirt Bunker took a bit of red cloth. Solemnly he gave Ausmus part of it and put the rest back.

"On the morning of the day Corregidor was to surrender Colonel Bunker had been ordered to take down the American flag and burn it and put up the white flag of surrender," Ausmus related.

Before Burning Colors

At noon Bunker and two other officers, Lieut. Col. Norman B. Symonds, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Lieut. Col. Dwight Edison, of Hollywood, Cal., both now dead, carried out the orders. The white flag was a piece of sheeting.

Bunker reported that before he burned the colors he had cut off a small piece and that he was determined to get it back to the Secretary of War. Ausmus promised to carry out the mission. Bunker died in March, 1943, at Karenko, Taiwan.

"I saw him laid out," said Ausmus, "and he had on that shirt in which there was a false patch in which he had hidden his fragment."

Bunker had asked that his body be cremated, and this was done and his ashes buried.

"I believe the piece of flag he carried was cremated with him," said Ausmus.

Sewed Into Sleeve

When the small bit of red cloth was entrusted to him, Ausmus cut off some material from his pants and sewed bands to his shirt cuffs as though he were mending worn edges. Underneath the band on his right sleeve he tucked the fragment. Ausmus had only two shirts. The one with its precious remnant was often left carelessly lying around so as not to attract suspicion.

NOV 15 1945

NOV 15 1945

30.24 — 31633

At this point in his narrative Ausmus picked up a black brief case.

"I have to apologize for this dirty shirt," he said as he took it out.

From the false cuff he brought out the carefully folded bit of red cloth and held it up. Then he handed it to the Secretary.

"I think this should be preserved under glass," said Patterson, "and kept where the American people may see it."

Freeing Of 2-Year Fighters Sought

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—Legislation calling for the automatic discharge of service men or women who have served two years is being prepared by Representative Boren (D., Okla.).

Boren said his bill would provide that anyone in the Army, Navy or Marines who has served two years would be discharged immediately upon application.

He announced that he has written to every member of the House urging support of the measure when it is introduced, probably today.

Criticizes Point System

"The point system of discharges has been working too many inequities," Boren said. "There are many in the service who have been in for more than two years and who still do not have enough points to get out.

"The point system is arbitrary. It is different in various branches of the service. But when men were inducted they were not taken in through such methods. There should be a uniform system for releases, and my proposed bill will provide it."

Boren added that under his theory the first man inducted into the Army, Navy or Marines should be the first to be released, but he is in favor of allowing "some special consideration" for combat service. He did not explain what consideration he would advocate for those who had been in battle.

SLOW DISCHARGES SCORED IN SENATE

Washington, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Senator Wheeler (D.-Mont.) touched off criticism of the Army and Navy demobilization programs in the Senate today with a suggestion that Congress "take some action to speed this up."

Half a dozen Senators joined in his verbal complaint.

Senator Reed (R.-Kan.) declared that the Army is holding 10,000 unneeded doctors and dentists in what Reed termed a "disgraceful situation."

"The admirals and generals tell us everything is going smoothly, but these boys stuck in the Pacific, China and Europe are not satisfied by such explanations," Wheeler told the Senate.

Earlier Major-Gen. Willard S. Paul, new Army chief of personnel, had told the Senate Naval Affairs Committee that demobilization is going ahead in an orderly fashion. He said the biggest help Congress could give would be to refrain from applying pressure to speed the discharge of individuals or small groups.

SIGNS PHILIPPINE GOLD ACT

Truman Says This Does Not Give Approval to Enemy Helpers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—President Truman signed today the first currency legislation enacted by the Philippine Congress but stressed that his action did not mean approval of alleged collaborationists in the Legislature.

The measure itself provided a reduction in the required gold coverage of Philippine currency. The President's approval is necessary on all Philippine monetary legislation.

In a letter to President Sergio Osmena of the Philippines, made public by the White House today, Mr. Truman said he delayed approving the bill because of "persistent charges that a sizable faction of the members of the Philippine Congress had been guilty of collaboration with the enemy and I have not wanted my approval of the act to be distorted into approval of collaboration."

"I am informed, however, that the provisions of House Bill No. 176 (of the first Philippine Congress) are necessary to the effective conduct of the Philippine Government and I accordingly have approved the act," Mr. Truman went on.

"At the same time, I should like to emphasize that my signature is in no sense an approval of the presence in the Philippine Congress of any person who has given aid to the enemy or his political policies."

NAVY TELLS WHY PASSENGERS DO K. P.

Washington, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—The Navy said today it is sometimes necessary to assign passengers aboard naval transports to help with such work as kitchen police duty.

Commenting on complaints by Pacific veterans returning aboard the liner Monterey, Navy officials told news men that every ship has working parties to handle such work.

"However," they added, "ships carrying an overload of passengers such as in this instance do no have sufficient crew members to do all tasks necessary. Hence it is necessary to call on naval passengers to help out in this situation."

The Monterey arrived yesterday in San Francisco with 2,719 veterans and 1,321 civilians aboard.

Some of the veterans complained that they not only had to help in the kitchen but also had to carry luggage for the civilians.

Navy Department officials had no comment on complaints of the civilians that working conditions under the Navy at Pearl Harbor are intolerable.

Truman Accepts Resignation Of McCloy

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—President Truman today accepted the resignation of John J. McCloy, Assistant Secretary of War, effective November 24.

The White House made public an exchange of letters in which the President expressed his "very great regret" on having to let McCloy go.

McCloy offered his resignation September 6, with the retirement of Henry L. Stimson as Secretary of War, but the President refused to accept it at that time.

The resignation of Robert Lovett, another Assistant Secretary of War, offered at the same time, has not been acted upon.

McCloy recently returned from a mission to the European and Pacific theaters, undertaken in connection with occupation problems.

JAMES ROOSEVELT HEADS VETERAN'S COMMITTEE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14 — (AP) James Roosevelt, eldest son of the late President, will head the Los Angeles county Democratic central committee's sub-committee on special veterans affairs.

The former Marine Corps colonel was named a member of the central committee last night, and appointed to the sub-committee chairmanship today.

Roosevelt, in a press conference earlier this month, declared he had no current political ambitions. Political circles had been discussing the possibility he might run for governor or senator.

Truman Gets Report On Reign Control

Washington, Nov. 14 (A. P.).—Byron Price has made a lengthy report to President Truman on his survey of relations between the military control authorities and civilians in Germany.

The former chief censor undertook the study at the request of Mr. Truman. The White House said today that the President is still studying the report and for that reason it could not be made public now.

Files on Kent Asked

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—Senator Brewster, Republican, of Maine, said today that the State Department had been asked to give the committee its files on the Tyler Kent case because he and Senator Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan, wanted to study them to see whether they include anything bearing on potential American involvement in the war before the Japanese struck at Pearl Harbor.

Kent, a code clerk in the American Embassy in London, recently completed a prison sentence there. He was convicted in November, 1940, of violation of the British Official Secrets Act.

AAF Will Discharge About 4,000 Trainees

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—Army Air Forces announced today it will discharge about 4,000 air crew trainees who have had two years of army service and are no longer needed.

They are enlisted men who transferred from other branches of the army to air forces for crew training. Previously, AAF had provided for release of air students who volunteered from civilian life.

The order classes as surplus, and eligible for discharge, all trainees who volunteered from enlisted status, who have completed two years service between September 16, 1940, and November 9, 1945, who have not volunteered to remain in the service.

Admiral Beardall Given Decoration

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—Rear Admiral John R. Beardall, Orlando, Fla., has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his services as superintendent of the Naval Academy and commandant of the Severn River Naval Command from January 31, 1942, to August 8, 1945.

The Navy announced the award today. Admiral Beardall now is commandant of the 15th Naval District (Panama).

Kilgore Says Business Must Get Scientific Data

New York, Nov. 14 (AP)—The Government has the responsibility to make sure that results of federally financed research are made fully available to all American industry and business, Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D., W.Va.) said here tonight.

Kilgore, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on war mobilization, addressed the annual dinner of the Woolen Jobbers Association, Incorporated.

"If we are to have a healthy economy," he told the jobbers who represent 90 per cent of the industry, "small and medium sized business must have access to scientific developments."

Free access to results of Government-financed research provides "a working basis for the development of new products, new industries and new jobs," Kilgore said.

Would Admit Chinese Wives

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP)—Rep. Havenner, Democrat, of California, pleaded today that Chinese alien wives of American citizens be admitted to the United States without regard to immigration quotas. He argued before the House Immigration Committee that the same privileges should be extended to Chinese wives of American citizens as now apply to women of all other nationalities. The committee is considering legislation proposed by the Democratic Representatives Douglas, Miller and Havenner to remove the quota restriction.

Freer Renominated For FTC

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—Robert E. Freer, of Ohio, was nominated by President Truman today for a new seven-year term as a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

Paley Gets Legion of Merit

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 (AP).—The War Department announced today that the Legion of Merit had been awarded to Colonel William S. Paley, president of Columbia Broadcasting Company. The award was for his services as deputy chief of the Psychological Warfare Division at SHAEF and deputy chief of information control, United States Forces, European theater. Colonel Paley has returned to civilian life.

Drop Reported In U.S. Exports

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—United States exports declined 18 per cent in the first five months of 1945 as compared with a similar period last year, the Census Bureau said today. Imports showed a slight gain.

Through May of this year the United Kingdom and Russia received 55 per cent of all United States exports, with an over-all valuation estimated at $4,875,000,000. In these same months last year, the United Kingdom and Russia got $6,062,000,000 in goods, or 63 per cent of the total.

The Census Bureau said a reduction in lend-lease accounted for the drop.

UNRRA exports from the United States, the Census Bureau added, totaled $113,000,000 for the twelve-month period ended with August of this year.

Chief Burden Of Caring For Needy PutUpToU.S.

New York, Nov. 14 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt today said the major burden of caring for the distressed peoples of the world rested upon the United States.

She spoke before several hundred women who brought 4,600 cans of food to the program launching the Metropolitan victory collection of canned food for overseas relief on behalf of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

PEIPING, NOV. 12-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE BALD BROWN HILLS WEST OF THIS CITY BRISTLE WITH EVIDENCE OF THE DEADLY SERIOUSNESS OF MEMBERS OF THE CHINESE COMMUNIST ARMY SCATTERED THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRYSIDE IN A MANNER MINDFUL OF A VAST ARMED CAMP.

THEIR THREE-STEP PROGRAM: EXPAND IN NORTH CHINA, CUT RAILWAYS THAT NATIONALISTS MIGHT USE, AND KEEP FOOD FROM NATIONALIST CITIES.

AIDED BY TWO MONGOL GUIDES AND AN INTERPRETER WE DROVE THROUGH THE LINES INTO THE HILLS OUTSIDE THE MASSIVE DOUBLE BARRED WEST GATE OF THIS CITY. BARELY A DOZEN MILES OUT WE WERE STOPPED BY GRIMLY BUSINESS-LIKE SOLDIERS WITH FIXED BAYONETS GLEAMING FROM LONG RIFLES. THEY WEREN'T CASUAL GUARDS AND ONE COULD EASILY IMAGINE THEM IN ACTION. A LONG SCRUTINY, FIRST AT THE AMERICAN FLAG ON OUR CAR, THEN AT THE OCCUPANTS, AND WE PROCEEDED WITH AN ADMONITION TO "TAKE CARE."

WE JOLTED ALONG DEEPLY RUTTED DIRT ROADS PAST FIELDS OF CORN, WHEAT AND COTTON BEING HARVESTED. BUT THERE WERE NO CARTS OF FOODSTUFFS BEING DRIVEN TO THE MARKET, ALTHOUGH THIS IS ONE OF THE RICHEST FARMING AREAS IN NORTHERN CHINA.

AT THE NEXT VILLAGE WE WERE STOPPED AGAIN AND THE AMERICAN FLAG WAS TAKEN OFF THE RADIATOR MAST BY THE MONGOLS, EVIDENTLY TO ASSURE OUR SAFETY. OUR INTERPRETER EXPLAINED "THEY WOULDN'T LIKE TO HAVE A MISUNDERSTANDING ABOUT THAT FLAG." THIS INCIDENT WAS A PERTURBING INDICATION OF THE WAY THE E[illegible] (COMMUNIST) ARMY FEELS THE AMERICANS ARE TAKING SIDES IN CHINA'S INTERNAL AFFAIRS.

NOV 15 1945

WE OBTAINED A SAFE CONDUCT PASS WHICH GOT US THROUGH SUBSEQUENT REGULAR STOPS AT SUCCEEDING VILLAGES. THE WHOLE COUNTRYSIDE WAS ARMED AND ON THE ALERT AS IF EXPECTING IMMINENT ATTACK. THE COMMUNIST SOLDIERS WORE FULL FIELD PACKS AND WERE WELL EQUIPPED. EACH MAN WAS LOADED DOWN WITH POTATO MASHER TYPE GRENADES USED BY THE GERMAN AND JAPANESE ARMIES.

THESE MEN SERVE WITHOUT PAY AND ARE NOTED FOR THEIR ENDURANCE AND SWIFTNESS ON LONG FORCED MARCHES. TWICE WE SAW JAPANESE IN THEIR MIDST. THEIR NUMBER WAS SMALL BUT THESE HAVE BEEN PERSISTENT REPORTS THAT THE JAPANESE CIVILIANS AS WELL AS SOLDIERS HAD JOINED FORCES WITH THE COMMUNISTS.

HEADQUARTERS FOR THE SOLDIERS WAS IN A 1,400 YEAR OLD BUDDHIST TEMPLE, WHERE WE ASKED PERMISSION TO PROCEED TO KALGAN, COMMUNIST STRONGHOLD ON THE GREAT WALL AT THE BORDER OF HOPEI AND CHAHAR PROVINCES. A STOCKY YOUNG CHINESE GENERAL TOLD US NO TRANSPORTATION WAS AVAILABLE UNLESS WE WISHED TO TRAVEL BY DONKEY TO A POINT WHERE THE RAILWAY WAS OPERATING.

AS2FX

VEHEMENTLY HE TOLD US "WE WILL NEVER GIVE UP KALGAN. WE WILL FIGHT TO THE LAST FOR IT." HE TOOK A SERIOUS VIEW OF WHAT HE TERMED NATIONALIST ENCROACHMENT IN AREAS ALREADY LIBERATED BY THE EIGHTH ROUTE ARMY FROM THE JAPANESE.

HE TOLD OUR INTERPRETER THAT THE EIGHTH ROUTE ARMY HAD OCCUPIED SMALL TOWNS AND VILLAGES AND ORGANIZED THEIR INHABITANTS OVER A WIDE AREA OF NORTH CHINA UNTIL THE COMMUNISTS CONTROLLED VIRTUALLY ALL THE COUNTRYSIDE. THEIR NEXT STEP HAS BEEN TO TAKE UP POSITIONS ALONG RAILROAD LINES AND KEEP THEM DISRUPTED SO THAT NATIONALIST REINFORCEMENTS

COULD NOT BE BROUGHT IN BY RAIL. THEIR THIRD MOVE--AND THIS EXPLAINED WHY NO FARM CARTS WERE SEEN MOVING TO MARKET IN THE MICH AGRICULTURAL AREAS--HAS BEEN TO CUT OFF FOOD SUPPLIES FOR LARGE CITIES SUCH AS PEIPING, TIENTSIN, AND TSINGTAO TO EFFECT AN ECONOMIC BLOCKADE.

"JAPAN'S ARMY NEVER DEFEATED US," THE GENERAL TOLD US AS HE SAW US OFF ON OUR RETURN TRIP, "AND WE HAVE NO FEAR OF BEING DEFEATED NOW."

IN ADDITION THE PROSECUTION SUBMITTED A LENGTHY DOCUMENT CONTAINING PHOTOGRAPHIC EVIDENCE OF BUTCHERIES BY MEN OF YAMASHITA'S COMMAND AND ASKED THAT TIME BE ALLOWED FOR THE SHOWING OF OFFICIAL MOTION PICTURES DISCLOSING DETAILS OF OTHER BARBAROUS ACTS.

AT THE SAME TIME IT WAS ANNOUNCED THAT A SECOND WAR CRIMES TRIBUNAL HEADED BY PHILIPPINE MAJ.GEN.BASILIO VALDES WOULD HEAR EVIDENCE IN THE CASES OF JAPANESE OFFICERS AND ENLISTED MEN DIRECTLY CHARGED WITH THE MURDER OF TWO AMERICANS AND FIVE FILIPINOS IN CEBU LAST SPRING

HOW JAPANESE MILITARY POLICEMEN STREAM-LINED THEIR MASS EXECUTIONS IN THE PHILIPPINES WAS TOLD BY YAMASHITA'S JAPANESE INTERPRETER, WHO FORMERLY WORKED FOR THE SOUTH MANILA MILITARY POLICE GARRISON. CALLED TO THE STAND AS A WITNESS, HE TESTIFIED THAT HE SAW JAPANESE MP'S DECAPITATE 26 FILIPINO MEN AND WOMEN IN 40 MINUTES AT A NORTH MANILA CEMETERY. HE ADDED HE HAD SEEN AN ORDER TO THE GARRISON SIGNED BY YAMASHITA COMMENDING THE FORCE'S TREATMENT OF "GUERRILLAS IN AND AROUND MANILA."

THE STORY OF HOW TWO AMERICAN FLIERS, GUNNERS FROM A TWIN-ENGINED PLANE THAT CRASHED OFF CEBU, WERE BAYONETED AND THEN BURNED ALIVE WAS TOLD BY AN AMERICAN OFFICER OF THE GRAVES REGISTRTION SERVICE.

HE EXHIBITED PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE CHARRED BODIES, THEIR HANDS STILL TIED BEHIND THEIR BACKS. HE SAID A FILIPINO TOLD HIM THE MEN HAD BEEN BAYONETED BESIDE A HOLE, THEN DOUSED WITH GASOLINE AND IGNITED. ONE OF THE WOUNDED AIRMEN STRUGGLED TO THE EDGE OF THE HOLE, WHERE HIS PLEAS FOR WATER WERE ANSWERED WITH A DELUGE OF GASOLINE.

OTHER WITNESSES RELATED A SERIES OF OTHER KILLINGS AND BURNINGS OF CIVILIANS THROUGHOUT THE ARCHIPELAGO.

ONE 16-YEAR-OLD GIRL TESTIFIED THAT A JAPANESE OFFICER RAPED HER AFTER KILLING HER MOTHER AND SISTER. ANOTHER WOMAN TOLD HOW THE JAPANESE CUT OUT HER HUSBAND'S TONGUE BECAUSE HE REFUSED TO ANSWER QUESTIONS. THEN BAYONETED HIM TO DEATH AND RAPED HER.

A CHINESE, EDITOR OF A LOCAL PAPER, DESCRIBED ACTS OF CRUELTY HE WITNESSED IN A PRISON WHERE HE AND OTHERS WERE HELD AS SUSPECTED GUERRILLAS. HE SAID SOME PRISONERS WERE STRUNG FROM THE CEILING WITH ROPES AND THEN ALLOWED TO FALL ON BONES WITH PROTRUDING NAILS. OTHERS WERE PUMPED FULL OF SOAPY WATER, AFTER WHICH THE GUARDS JUMPED ON THEIR STOMACHS.

THE NEW YORK TIMES COMPARED ATTLEE'S APPEARANCE IN CONGRESS TO THAT OF RAMSEY MACDONALD, BRITAIN'S FIRST SOCIALIST PRIME MINISTER.

"LIKE MR.ATTLEE," THE TIMES SAID, "MR.MACDONALD ALSO STOOD FOR TH COMMON MAN, FOR FREEDOM, AND FOR THE BROTHERHOOD OF MAN, AND NO ONE QUESTIONED HIS SINCERITY. TODAY THERE WILL BE FEW WHO WOULD PRONOUNCE HIS REGIME AN UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS.

THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE TERMED THE SPEECH A "GRACEFUL AND OFTEN MOVING PLEA TO CONGRESS FOR A BETTER UNDERSTANDING OF BRITAIN AND THE

"YET THE DIVERSION DOES IN A WAY TEND TO DISTRACT ATTENTION FROM THE OVERWHELMING IMPORTANCE OF THE MAIN SUBJECT OF THE PRIME MINISTER'S VISIT. ANGLO-AMERICAN RELATIONS WILL X X X GET ON IN THE FUTURE MORE OR LESS AS THEY HAVE IN THE PAST.

"BUT THE STRUCTURE OF THE NEW INTERNATIONAL WORLD--A MATTER WHICH TO AN INCREASING DEGREES IS CENTERING AROUND THE DISPOSITION OF THE ATOMIC BOMB X X X --CALLS FOR HARD THINKING. KNOWLAND TEXT

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON,NOV. 14-(AP)-FOLLOWING IS THE TEXT OF A LETTER BY SENATOR KNOWLAND (R-CALIF) SUBMITTING A "LABOR-MANAGEMENT PEACE" PLAN TO SECRETARY OF LABOR SCHWELLENBACH: (ABOUT 950)

BOTH AS A CITIZEN OF THE UNITED STATES AND AS A MEMBER OF THE SENATE, I HAVE BEEN GREATLY CONCERNED OVER THE POSSIBILITY OF THIS NATION GOING INTO EITHER A SPIRAL OF INFLATION OR DESCENDING INTO THE DEPTHS OF DEPRESSION. THE VERY FOUNDATIONS OF THE REPUBLIC WOULD BE ENDANGERED IF EITHER OF THESE TWO ALTERNATIVES SHOULD TAKE PLACE. THE GREAT NEED AT THE MOMENT IS TO INCREASE PRODUCTIVITY SO THAT HIGHER WAGES CAN BE PAID TO MAINTAIN PURCHASING POWER AND SO THAT A SUFFICIENT VOLUME OF GOODS WILL BE PUT ON THE MARKET TO PREVENT INFLATION. IN SO DOING, WE WILL BE ABLE TO SUPPLY THE NEEDS NOT ONLY OF OUR OWN PEOPLE BUT ALSO TO DISCHARGE THE OBLIGATIONS WE HAVE ELSEWHERE IN THE WORLD.

IF THIS NATION IS TIED UP FOR AN EXTENDED PERIOD OF TIME WITH WORK STOPPAGES, IT WILL NOT ONLY ENDANGER OUR DOMESTIC ECONOMIC FUTURE, BUT WILL WEAKEN US IN THE FIELD OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS. EVERY AMERICAN HAS A VITAL STAKE IN FINDING A FORMULA BY WHICH, THROUGH CONFERENCE TABLE METHODS, EMPLOYERS AND EMPLOYEES CAN GET TOGETHER AND BREAK THE DEADLOCK FACED BY SOME OF OUR GREAT INDUSTRIES.

IN ORDER TO AVERT THE DEADLOCK BETWEEN LABOR AND MANAGEMENT WHICH APPEARS TO BE IN THE MAKING IN IMPORTANT INDUSTRIES, MR. BLAIR MOODY, WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT OF THE DETROIT NEWS, AND THE UNDERSIGNED HAVE FOR SOME TIME BEEN WORKING ON A FORMULA WHICH WE BELIEVE WOULD OFFER A CONSTRUCTIVE SOLUTION FOR SETTLING WAGE DIFFERENCES IN INDUSTRIAL PLANTS, AND ESTABLISHING A CONTINUING AND CONSTRUCTIVE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN LABOR AND MANAGEMENT IN INDIVIDUAL COMPANIES WHICH MAY ADOPT IT. THIS FORMULA IT IS OUR DESIRE TO PASS ON TO YOU IN THE HOPE THAT YOU AND YOUR CONCILIATION SERVICE MIGHT FIND IT HELPFUL IN PREVENTING A FATAL DELAY IN THE RAPID RECONVERSION WHICH IS SO VITAL IF OUR AMERICAN STANDARDS ARE TO BE MAINTAINED. THIS FORMULA IS BASED ON THE FOLLOWING POINTS:

NOV 13 1945

1. WAGE RATES TO BE ADJUSTED ONCE A YEAR BY COLLECTIVE BARGAINING IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE EARNING POWER OF THE BUSINESS.

2. IN THE PRESENT SITUATION, TO SUSTAIN NATIONAL BUYING POWER AND INDUSTRIAL MARKETS, AN HOURLY-RATE INCREASE OF 10 PER CENT OR HIGHER TO BE GRANTED IMMEDIATELY, UNLESS MANAGEMENT CAN SHOW THAT IN THE ABSENCE OF PRICE RELIEF SUCH AN INCREASE WOULD JEOPARDIZE THE COMPANY, AND THUS THE JOBS OF ITS EMPLOYEES, AS WELL AS THE INTERESTS OF ITS STOCKHOLDERS. COMMENSURATE ADJUSTMENTS FOR SALARIED EMPLOYEES.

3. IN FUTURE YEARS, THIS BASIC OR "FIRM" INCREASE TO BE NEGOTIATED BY BARGAINING COLLECTIVELY.

NOV 15 1945

4. LABOR AND MANAGEMENT, IN BARGAINING CONFERENCE, (A) TO ESTIMATE THE COMING YEAR'S BUSINESS, AND (B) TO AGREE ON THE MOST EQUITABLE AND ECONOMIC DIVISION OF ITS INTAKE AMONG WORKERS, MANAGEMENT, STOCKHOLDERS AND CONSUMERS, THE LATTER IN THE FORM OF LOWER PRICES WHICH MIGHT ADVANCE THE GENERAL PROSPERITY OF THE COMPANY AND BRING LARGER RETURNS TO ALL IN SUBSEQUENT YEARS.

5. SET ASIDE BASIC WAGES AND BASIC RETURN TO STOCKHOLDERS AUTOMATICALLY.

6. BASED ON THE ESTIMATE OF HOW MUCH THE YEAR'S PROFIT IS EXPECTED TO EXCEED THE AMOUNTS NEEDED TO MEET THESE BASIC WAGES AND DIVIDENDS AND OTHER EXPENSES OF THE COMPANY, INCLUDING SOUND BUT NOT INFLATED DEPRECIATION AND RESERVES, NEGOTIATE A "LEEWAY" FOR A FURTHER INCREASE IN WAGES.

NOV 15 1945

UNDER CURRENT CONDITIONS IN THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY, FOR EXAMPLE, THIS LEEWAY MIGHT AMOUNT TO 20 PER CENT--THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE ROUGHLY 10 PER CENT WHICH COULD BE GRANTED BY RESTORING AVERAGE HOURLY EARNINGS AFTER THE DROP FROM A 48 TO 40 HOUR WEEK AND SIMILAR FACTORS, AND THE 30 PER CENT ASKED BY UAW-CIO.

7. THE GOAL OF BOTH MANAGEMENT AND LABOR DURING THE YEAR WOULD BE TO KEEP THE COMPANY'S PRODUCTION AND SALES AT SUCH LEVELS THAT THE MAXIMUM OF THE "LEEWAY" (30 PER CENT) COULD BE PAID INSTEAD OF THE MINIMUM OF THE "LEEWAY" (IN THIS HYPOTHETICAL CASE, 10 PER CENT).

8. INCREASES ABOVE THE MINIMUM OF THE "LEEWAY" NOT TO BE PAID UNTIL THEY ARE EARNED. HOWEVER, RE-ESTIMATES TO BE PAID QUARTERLY OR AT OTHER INTERVALS SUITABLE TO THE INDIVIDUAL BUSINESS, AND WAGE RATES ADJUSTED RETROACTIVELY. FINAL SETTLEMENT, BASED ON ACTUAL PROFIT, TO BE MADE AT END OF PRODUCTION YEAR, AT WHICH TIME ANY WAGES EARNED BUT NOT YET PAID WOULD BE HANDED TO THE WORKER IN A LUMP SUM, OR ELSE APPORTIONED OVER THE FIRST WAGE-PERIOD OF THE FOLLOWING YEAR.

30.74 — 31645

IT IS OUR BELIEF THAT SUCH A FORMULA, IF AGREED TO, WOULD MAKE IT DEFINITELY IN THE INTEREST OF BOTH EMPLOYEES AND EMPLOYERS TO ACHIEVE HIGHER PRODUCTION SO THAT THERE WILL BE MORE TO DIVIDE. IT IS OUR FIRM BELIEF THAT PRODUCTIVITY AND WIDESPREAD DISTRIBUTION OF THAT WHICH OUR NATION CAN PRODUCE IS MORE SOUND THAN THE DOCTRINE OF SCARCITY BROUGHT ON BY EITHER STOPPAGES OF PRODUCTION OR GOVERNMENTAL ACTION. A NECESSARY FACTOR IN THE SUCCESS OF COLLECTIVE BARGAINING, OF COURSE, IS THE OBLIGATION OF BOTH PARTIES TO LIVE UP TO THE TERMS OF THEIR CONTRACT.

NOV 15 1945

WE BELIEVE THAT THIS "PAY-AS-YOU-EARN" PLAN WILL, IF WIDELY APPLIED, INCREASE THE PRODUCTION OF WEALTH IN THE UNITED STATES AND CAN INCREASE BOTH EMPLOYEES' EARNINGS AND EMPLOYERS' PROFITS. WE BELIEVE THAT IT CAN BECOME A MAJOR CONTRIBUTING FACTOR IN GENERATING IN OUR ECONOMIC MACHINE THE MOMENTUM NEEDED TO SUSTAIN EMPLOYMENT AND HIGHER STANDARDS FOR MILLIONS OF AMERICAN FAMILIES."

WE BELIEVE THAT THIS "PAY-AS-YOU-EARN" FORMULA CAN FILL A GREAT GAP IN OUR COLLECTIVE BARGAINING SYSTEM BY MAKING IT CLEARLY IN THE INTERESTS OF LABOR AND MANAGEMENT TO STOP PULLING APART AND START PULLING TOGETHER. WE BELIEVE THAT IT IS IMPORTANT FOR RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS, LABOR AND MANAGEMENT, TO KEEP IN MIND THAT THE PUBLIC INTEREST IS PARAMOUNT. A BREAKDOWN IN RECONVERSION AT THIS TIME WILL NOT ONLY BE DETRIMENTAL TO THE PARTIES TO THE DISPUTE DIRECTLY INVOLVED, BUT WILL BE MOST DETRIMENTAL TO THE INTERESTS OF MILLIONS OF RETURNING SERVICEMEN SEEKING EMPLOYMENT, AS WELL AS THE GREAT BODY OF THE PUBLIC WHO WILL SUFFER MOST THROUGH A RUNAWAY INFLATION OR A MAJOR DEPRESSION.

WE BELIEVE THAT THE CRITICAL PERIOD THROUGH WHICH WE NOW PASS FURNISHES PROBLEMS NO LESS DANGEROUS TO THE FUTURE OF THE NATION THAN DID THE ACTIVE PHASE OF THE WAR, WHICH HAS COME TO AN END. WE FIRMLY BELIEVE THAT THE SAME COOPERATION BETWEEN EMPLOYEES AND EMPLOYERS THAT HELPED TO BRING US THE VICTORY OVER THE AXIS POWER, IS NECESSARY TO MEET AND SOLVE THE PROBLEMS OF RECONVERSION.

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK, NOV 14-(AP)-THE TEXT OF A LETTER FROM PRESIDENT TRUMAN TO E.P.THOMAS, PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL FOREIGN TRADE COUNCIL, WHICH WAS READ AT THE 32ND NATIONAL FOREIGN TRADE CONVENTION, FOLLOWS:

NOV 15 1945

I SHALL BE GRATEFUL IF YOU WILL EXTEND MY GREETINGS AND BEST WISHES TO THE DELEGATES TO THE NATIONAL FOREIGN TRADE CONVENTION.

THE VICTORY OF THE UNITED NATIONS PRESENTS US WITH GREAT AND PRESSING PROBLEMS OF REORGANIZATION AND RECONSTRUCTION IN ALL FIELDS, BUT AT THE SAME TIME IT GIVES THE PEOPLES OF THE WORLD AN UNPRECEDENTED CHANCE TO REMAKE THEIR ECONOMIC RELATIONS SO AS BETTER TO SERVE THE COMMON WELFARE.

MODERN SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY HAVE PLACED ENORMOUS POWERS IN OUR HANDS. FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THE LONG HISTORY OF MAN IT IS TECHNICALLY POSSIBLE TO PRODUCE ENOUGH MATERIAL GOODS SO THAT ALL MEN EVERYWHERE MAY BE ADEQUATELY FED, DECENTLY HOUSED, AND COMFORTABLY CLOTHED.

THE QUESTION IS WHETHER OUR ARRANGEMENTS FOR EXCHANGE AND DISTRIBUTION WILL BE SUCH THAT THESE ENORMOUS PRODUCTIVE POWERS ARE ENABLED TO OPERATE FREELY FOR THE BENEFIT OF EVERYONE.

WE HAVE THAT PROBLEM IN THE UNITED STATES AND WE HAVE IT IN THE WORLD

NO ONE OF US IS WISE ENOUGH TO KNOW ALL THE MEASURES THAT WILL BE NECESSARY TO ATTAIN OUR GOAL. BUT WE DO KNOW THAT THE GENERAL DIRECTION MUST BE TO RELEASE ENERGIES AND INTERPRISE FROM THE SHACKLES THAT CONFINE THEM--SHACKLES OF IGNORANCE, OF PRIVATE MONOPOLY, OR OF EXCESSIVE GOVERNMENT CONTROL--SO THAT GOODS MAY BE MADE AND DISTRIBUTED, PEOPLE FED, AND JOBS CREATED.

WE SHALL NOT GET FORWARD TOWARD FREEDOM FROM WANT BY PLACING NEW RESTRUCTIONS EITHER UPON PRODUCTION OF EXCHANGE. ON THE CONTRARY, WE MUST REDUCE RESTRICTIONS ALL AROUND THE CIRCLE; AND WE MUST TRY AT THE SAME TIME TO PROMOTE STABILITY AND HIGH EMPLOYMENT.

FOREIGN TRADE IS BY DEFINITION INTERNATIONAL AND THE PUBLIC MEASURES THAT AFFECT IT OUGHT THEREFORE TO BE AGREED ON INTERNATIONALLY WHENEVER THAT IS POSSIBLE. THE NEW INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS NOW COMING INTO EXISTENCE, AND IN PARTICULAR THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL OF THE UNITED NATIONS, OUGHT TO BE A GREAT HELP THAT END. THE WORLD IS GROWING SMALLER EVERY DAY AND WE SHALL NEED TO LIVE AS GOOD NEIGHBORS IN A WORLD OF GOOD NEIGHBORS IF WE HOPE TO ENJOY THE PROSPERITY WHICH SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY HAVE BROUGHT WITHIN OUR POWERS.

NOV 15 1945

IN ALL THESE MATTERS THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES WILL CONTINUE TO COUNT ON THE ADVICE AND SUPPORT OF THE AMERICAN BUSINESS COMMUNITY AND IN PARTICULAR OF THE FOREIGN TRADE COUNCIL.

YOUR MEMBERS, MORE THAN MOST OF US, ARE ACTUALLY ENGAGED IN PRACTICAL INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION AND THEIR EXPERIENCE AND WISDOM, COLLECTED THROUGH THE COUNCIL, HAVE BEEN AND ARE OF GREAT HELP TO THE OFFICERS OF THE GOVERNMENT CHARGED WITH QUESTIONS OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE.

3 NATIONS OFFER ATOM BOMB TO UNO ON RECIPROCAL BASIS, INSPECTIONS AS SAFEGUARDS

Nations Getting Information Must Disclose All Their Own Weapons.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—President Truman and the leaders of Britain and Canada today offered the secrets of atomic force to Russia and the rest of the world on two main conditions.

Those conditions are:

1. That nations which get the atomic secrets must equally share their own scientific secrets now and in future, when other new and terrible weapons of mass destruction may be invented.

2. That the United Nations devise and establish world-wide means of inspecting atomic plants in all countries to help prevent the use of the atom for war purposes.

The conditions were set forth in a sweeping declaration on atomic policy issued at the White House today by Mr. Truman, Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain and Prime Minister MacKenzie King of Canada.

This said the atomic bomb and other terrible weapons can be completely controlled only by banishing "the scourge of war from the earth" and it called for building up the United Nations to that end.

A short time before, the declaration had been cabled to the foreign ministers of Russia, France and China—all permanent members of the United Nations Security Council—by Secretary of State Byrnes.

Russia is the only other nation in the world today regarded by American officials as having the industrial and natural resources capable of atomic developments and diplomats said that the pronouncement in effect puts the issue of atomic secrecy squarely up to Moscow.

This afternoon the statement was communicated officially to all the rest of the 51 members of the United Nations. One purpose of the Truman-Attlee-MacKenzie plan is to hand over to the United Nations responsibility for carrying out their atomic-control proposals.

Some top officials described the plan as a "generous offer" to the rest of the world in view of the fact that the United States alone had spent $2,000,000,000 developing the atomic bomb. The plan was worked out during six days of intensive discussions among American, British and Canadian officials.

In final form it was the result of suggestions made by Truman, Attlee and MacKenzie King, but allied officials in on the talks said that it really was based on an American proposal submitted at the outset of the conference last Saturday. Here are the main provisions of the document, as elaborated by officials in talks with reporters:

1. The three leaders are willing to start exchanging immediately with other government basic scientific information and scientific literature in all research fields, including the atomic. The United States has already given out basic scientific information essential to the development of atomic energy for "peaceful purposes," it is stated, and officials said that together with Britain and Canada the country now stands ready to release remaining basic scientific information thus far withheld because of its possible military applications. This first step does not have to wait on action by the United Nations.

2. Detailed information "concerning the practical industrial application of atomic energy will be given to other United Nations if and when the United Nations organization has worked out "effective enforceable safeguards" against its use for destructive purposes.

3. In order to set up these safeguards the United Nations should organize at their London meeting in January a special commission—either under the general assembly of 51 members or the security council of 11—to plunge into the whole problem of atomic energy and atomic explosives and come up with control and development recommendations.

4. The commission should try first to promote a full and free flow of scientific information among nations, and, second, full information on resources of atomic energy raw materials. Its main jobs would also include devising means to keep the uses of atomic energy peaceful, to ban the manufacture of atomic and other mass-destruction weapons and to evolve the systems of inspection.

5. Beyond these specific steps Truman, Attlee and MacKenzie King declared that every nation now must realize "the overwhelming need to maintain the rule of law among nations" and to banish war. To that end they called for supporting, consolidating and extending the United Nations organization, "thus creating conditions of mutual trust in which all peoples will be free to devote themselves to the arts of peace."

Must Prevent War

Early in the 1,000-word document the three said frankly that "we are aware that the only complete protection for the civilized world from the destructive use of scientific knowledge lies in the prevention of war."

Some of the officials who participated in drafting the final statement said that it was remarkable for not holding out any soft assurances or simple formulas for future peace. They declared it was based on the assumption that nations must get along with each other in good faith and with little or no secrecy if the world is to avoid a devastating atomic war.

Ahead of time much interest had focused on the question "Are the three nations which joined in atomic bomb developments going to keep their secrets now, or will they offer to share with Russia and other countries?" The statement bore upon this in several ways.

At the outset it said that "no single nation can in fact have a monopoly" on the atomic energy or explosives; in other words, the secret won't last. Then it said that all secrets of scientific information tying into peaceful uses of atomic energy had already been given out. That referred to the report published by the War department immediately after the atomic bombs were dropped on Japan.

All further information of this basic scientific nature will be given out, it was stated, and the hope was expressed that other nations would adopt the same policy, "thereby creating an atmosphere of reciprocal confidence in which political agreement and cooperation will flourish."

When officials familiar with the discussions were questioned about what basic scientific information (aside from the industrial know-how) now remained to be traded with other nations they said it was certain information having possible military value.

The heart of the Truman-Attlee-MacKenzie King proposal was contained in a section which said:

"We are not convinced that the spreading of the specialized information regarding the practical application of atomic energy, before it is possible to devise effective, reciprocal and enforceable safeguards acceptable to all nations, would contribute to a constructive solution of the problem of the atomic bomb. On the contrary we think it might have the opposite effect.

"We are however, prepared to share, on a reciprocal basis with others of the United Nations detailed information concerning the practical industrial application of atomic energy just as soon as effective enforceable safeguards against its use for destructive purposes can be devised."

The statement left open whether the United Nations assembly or the Security council would create the proposed special commission. There was some speculation, however, that in either case it would almost certainly consist of the five permanent members of the Security council—Russia, Britain, China, France and the United States—plus Canada and possibly one or two other small nations.

British, Canadian and American officials all expressed themselves in private conversations as being delighted with the outcome of their conference. When it began there has been some privately expressed fears that it might end in a burst of meaningless generalizations, but officials said actually they had emerged with a potentially workable program.

Attlee and MacKenzie King are scheduled to leave tomorrow for Canada.

THREE POWERS SUGGEST UNO CONTROL BOARD

Truman, Mackenzie King and Attlee Draw Up Set of Conditions.

SECRET [illegible] RULES SET

Safeguards Must Be Maintained Until Nations Accept in Reciprocal Fashion.

Washington, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—The United States, Britain and Canada proposed today to hand over to the United Nations the task of arranging world controls for the destructive forces of atomic energy.

The three Powers made plain that the know-how of making the atomic bomb would be kept secret from all other nations—which would include their Russian ally—until "effective, reciprocal and enforceable safeguards acceptable to all nations" are devised.

A statement signed by President Truman, and Prime Ministers Attlee and Mackenzie King laid down the conditions for the reciprocal sharing of atomic information for industrial purposes They had completed their deliberations at midnight.

Their statement, issued to the press at the White House after six days of conferences, proposed that a special commission should be set up under the United Nations as soon as possible to work out recommendations designed "to attain the most effective means of entirely eliminating the use of atomic energy for destructive purposes and promoting its widest use . . . for industrial and humanitarian purposes."

While Russia was nowhere mentioned by name, the question which immediately arose among diplomats here was how fully acceptable to Moscow the Anglo-American-Canadian plans for controlling atomic energy would be, particularly in view of Russia's reluctance throughout the war to exchange information even on established weapons.

The Commission's Purposes.

The commission which the three leaders proposed at the conclusion of their six-day conference on atomic problems would be charged with the duty to make specific proposals on these four points:

"1. For extending between all nations the exchange of basic scientific information (on all subjects) for peaceful ends.

"2. For control of atomic energy to the extent necessary to ensure its use only for peaceful purposes.

"3. For the elimination from national armaments of atomic weapons and of all other major weapons adaptable to mass destruction.

"4. For effective safeguards by way of inspection and other means to protect complying States against the hazards of violations and invasions."

The Three-Power Statement

In a 1,000-word statement setting forth the results of their discussions, the three chiefs of state prefaced their proposals by saying flatly:

"We are aware that the only complete protection for the civilized world from the destructive use of scientific knowledge lies in the prevention of war.

"No system of safeguards that can be devised will of itself provide an effective guaranty against production of atomic weapons by a nation bent on aggression.

"Nor can we ignore the possibility of the development of other weapons, or of new methods of warfare, which may constitute as great a threat to civilization as the military use of atomic energy."

The statement made a distinction between what was called the "fundamental scientific information" about atomic developments and "the specialized information regarding the practical application of atomic energy."

The three leaders noted that actually the scientific information "has already been made available to the world," and they added that "it is our intention that all further information of this character that may become available from time to time shall be similarly treated."

Mutual Trust Invited.

Obviously with Soviet Russia primarily in mind, they then said that "we trust that other nations will adopt the same policy, thereby creating an atmosphre of reciprocal confidence in which political agreement and co-operation will flourish."

But as for the detailed knowledge of practical application of atomic energy, the three asserted that that should be kept secret until the world is better organized, through the United Nations, to receive it with strong assurances that it would not be used for destructive purposes.

Shortly before scores of newsmen crowded into the President's office, several Senators—including Chairman McMahon (D.-Conn.), of the Senate's Atomic Committee—filed in to witness the signing of the joint statement.

Present also were Secretary of State Byrnes, Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's chief of staff, and other officials.

Attlee was seated on the President's right and Mackenzie King on his left.

As silence fell, the President arose behind his desk and told the newsmen that he would read a document signed by the Prime Ministers and himself.

Any questions, he said, would have to come later when reporters were familiar with the statement. He then read rapidly the entire text.

When he finished he held the text up for those in the room to see the signatures, then informed reporters that was all he had to say.

The proposals described in the statement presumably will be transmitted immediately to Russia and possibly to all other members of the United Nations.

In the main, these followed ideas which British sources had attributed to Prime Minister Attlee when he first arrived here but they obviously included suggestions which had not come from him.

Attlee had been represented especially as believing that any system of international inspection would be impractical yet the creation of such a system is given as one of the objectives of the proposed United Nations Commission.

Throughout the statement, considerable emphasis was placed on the role which the United Nations should play if control of atomic energy is to succeed. Attlee and MacKenzie King have been in Washington since last Saturday. They are scheduled to leave tomorrow for Canada.

3-Nation Statement on Atom

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP).—The complete text of the declaration on atomic energy issued today by President Truman and Prime Ministers Attlee of Great Britain and Mackenzie King of Canada:

The President of the United States, the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom and the Prime Minister of Canada have issued the following statement:

1. We recognize that the application of recent scientific discoveries to the methods and practice of war has placed at the disposal of mankind means of destruction hitherto unknown, against which there can be no adequate military defense, and in the employment of which no single nation can in fact have a monopoly.

2. We desire to emphasize that the responsibility for devising means to insure that the new discoveries shall be used for the benefit of mankind, instead of as a means of destruction, rests not on our nations alone but upon the whole civilized world. Nevertheless, the progress that we have made in the development and use of atomic energy demands that we take an initiative in the matter, and we have accordingly met together to consider the possibility of international action:

(A) To prevent the use of atomic energy for destructive purposes.

(B) To promote the use of recent and future advances in scientific knowledge, particularly in the utilization of atomic energy, for peaceful and humanitarian ends.

3. We are aware that the only complete protection for the civilized world from the destructive use of scientific knowledge lies in the prevention of war. No system of safeguards that can be devised will of itself provide an effective guaranty against production of atomic weapons by a nation bent on aggression. Nor can we ignore the possibility of the development of other weapons or of new methods of warfare, which may constitute as great a threat to civilization as the military use of atomic energy.

Free Exchange of Data

4. Representing as we do the three countries which possess the knowledge essential to the use of atomic energy, we declare at the outset our willingness, as a first contribution, to proceed with the exchange of fundamental scientific information and the interchange of scientists and scientific literature for peaceful ends with any nation that will fully reciprocate.

5. We believe that the fruits of scientific research should be made available to all nations and that freedom of investigation and free interchange of ideas are essential to the progress of knowledge. In pursuance of this policy, the basic scientific information essential to the development of atomic energy for peaceful purposes has already been made available to the world. It is our intention that all further information of this character that may become available from time to time shall be similarly treated. We trust that other nations will adopt the same policy, thereby creating an atmosphere of reciprocal confidence in which poiltical agreement and co-operation will flourish.

6. We have considered the question of the disclosure of detailed information concerning the practical industrial application of atomic energy. The military exploitation of atomic energy depends, in large part, upon the same methods and processes as would be required for industrial uses. We are not convinced that the spreading of the specialized information regarding the practical application of atomic energy, before it is possible to devise effective, reciprocal and enforceable safeguards acceptable to all nations, would contribute to a constructive solution of the problem of the atomic bomb. On the contrary, we think it might have the opposite effect. We are, however prepared to share, on a reciprocal basis with others of the United Nations, detailed information concerning the practical industrial application of atomic energy just as soon as effective enforceable safeguards against its use for destructive purposes can be devised.

U. N. O. Commission

7. In order to attain the most effective means of entirely eliminating the use of atomic energy for destructive purposes and promoting its widest use for industrial and humanitarian purposes, we are of the opinion that at the earliest practicable date a commission should be set up under the United Nations Organization to prepare recommendations for submission to the organization. The commission should be instructed to proceed with the utmost dispatch and should be authorized to submit recommendations from time to time dealing with separate phases of its work.

In particular the commission should make specific proposals:

(A) For extending between all nations the exchange of basic scientific information for peaceful ends.

(B) For control of atomic energy to the extent necessary to insure its use only for peaceful purposes.

(C) For the elimination from national armaments of atomic weapons and of all other major weapons adaptable to mass destruction.

(D) For effective safeguards by way of inspection and other means to protect complying states against the hazards of violations and evasions.

8. The work of the commission should proceed by separate stages, the successful completion of each one of which will develop the necessary confidence of the world before the next stage is undertaken. Specifically, it is considered that the commission might well devote its attention first to the wide exchange of scientists and scientific information, and as a second stage to the development of full knowledge concerning natural resources of raw materials.

9. Faced with the terrible realities of the application of science to destruction, every nation will realize more urgently than before the overwhelming need to maintain the rule of law among nations and to banish the scourge of war from the earth. This can only be brought about by giving wholehearted support to the United Nations Organization and by consolidating and extending its authority, thus creating conditions of mutual trust in which all peoples will be free to devote themselves to the arts of peace.

It is our firm resolve to work without reservation to achieve these ends.

Atomic Powered Car Reported in London

Tiny Mystery Box Said to Have Propelled Engineless Automobile About City.

NOV 16 1945

London, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—The Daily Sketch said today that an obscure Briton had driven an atomic-powered, engineless automobile through the streets of London at ordinary speeds. No one in authority could confirm the report.

The newspaper identified the inventor as J. Wilson. It said the vehicle's mechanism consisted of a mysterious metal box three inches in diameter, which had been fitted into the place ordinarily occupied by a gasoline engine. An invisable stream of atomic energy flowed from the box, the newspaper added.

Wilson has submitted blue prints of his invention to the Ministry of Fuel, the Daily Sketch said. A Ministry spokesman said the department was "interest" in the idea but could furnish no information.

A retired British colonel, who was named as the go-between for the inventor and Government agencies, said nothing more would be disclosed on the matter until a full announcement could be made by the Government.

W. Foster, parliamentary secretary of the Ministry of Fuel and T. E. Naylor, also a member of Parliament, rode in the car yesterday, the newspaper said. The account added that the two passengers described the ride as similar to that in any other automobile and quoted them as saying they could find no gasoline power which might have driven the vehicle.

The Ministry spokesman said Foster attended the test as a private member of Commons and would have no statement to make.

BRITON FEARS NEW TYPE GAS

Claims Radioactive Products Could Be Sprayed Widely

London, Nov. 15 (AP)—Dr. M. L. E. Oliphant, one of Britain's atom bomb scientists, said today that an unscrupulous nation might collect radioactive materials formed as a byproduct in producing nuclear power, and spray them over enemy territory like a new life-preventing "poison gas, as it were."

"A plant producing nuclear power produces also as a second byproduct a whole series of radioactive materials," he wrote in the London Star. "These radioactive byproducts are equivalent to thousands of pounds of radium.

Free From Difficulties

"They could be extracted by an unscrupulous country, and could be sprayed or otherwise distributed over an enemy territory in sufficient concentration to prohibit the survival of any living thing in thousands of square miles of country.

"This dissemination of a new type of poison gas, as it were, is free from any of the difficulties associated with the use of ordinary chemical gases.

One Complete Solution Seen

"There is no known method of decontamination, so that areas affected in this way would remain unusable for weeks or months until the radioactivity decayed away.

"It is clear, therefore, that it is impossible to separate the military question from the possible commercial utilization of atomic energy."

The only complete solution to maintaining security is for nations to give up entirely war as a means of settling disputes, said Dr. Oliphant, Birmingham University professor of physics.

22 Places Seeking Selection As UNO Permanent Home Site

LEWIS

LONDON, Nov. 15—(AP) United Nations officials today combed through the advantages listed by 22 places seeking to become the organization's permanent home.

Philadelphia's case as "the most suitable background for world peace" was presented to Gladwyn Jebb, secretary of the UNO executive committee, and to Philip J. Noel-Baker, British minister of state, by a four-man delegation this afternoon. A group from Chicago is due tomorrow.

The quest for a headquarters site coincided with development of plans for the meeting of the 51-nation preparatory commission here Friday, Nov. 23.

Adlai E. Stevenson, acting United States delegate, will lay before a special meeting of the 14-member executive committee Tuesday a draft of an agenda and other proposals for the preparatory commission.

The commission will convene in a church house room used by Commons members after they were bombed out of the Parliament building.

Before the final site for a headquarters is chosen, a report has to be prepared by a special committee analyzing the qualifications of each would-be host.

Bids already have been entered by Atlantic City, Black Hills region, Chicago, Denver, Hyde Park (N.Y.), Miami, Monterey Peninsula (Calif.), Monticello (Va.), Moraga Valley (near San Francisco), New York city, Oahu Island (Hawaii), Philadelphia, San Francisco, Val Monte Carlo and three unnamed towns in Indiana.

30.24 — 31649

Americans also have suggested three possibilities on the U. S.-Canadian border: Navy Island at Niagara, International Island at Sault Sainte Marie, and unnamed International territory between the two countries. Canada put forth Vancouver Island and Quebec City.

The Philadelphia delegation was led by Dr. Robert L. Johnson, president of Temple University.

"San Francisco is probably our most dangerous rival," Dr. Johnson said. "As president of Temple University I was host to the International Labor organization at their 1944 conference, and we feel we've had a good deal of experience."

NEW YORK MAKES BID FOR UNO HOME

London, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—New York city, adding her voice to the long list of places vying to become the home town of the United Nations Organization, has offered the old World's Fair site in Flushing Park as a permanent headquarters for the world peace agency.

A preparatory commission spokesman said today that the bid, received from New York's Mayor-elect, William O'Dwyer, would be considered along with others, including San Francisco, Philadelphia, Poughkeepsie, the Black Hills in the Dakotas and the Hawaiian Islands.

William Donahue, confidential secretary to O'Dwyer, today confirmed the report that the Mayor-elect had proposed the World's Fair site as headquarters for the United Nations Organization. The recommendation was made several months before the election, he said, and was submitted to Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, who in turn sent it to London.

Park Commissioner Robert Moses had no comment to make on the report other than that he knew nothing about it.

Reich Control Transfer Set

London, Nov. 15 (AP) — William Benton, United States Assistant Secretary of State, said today the State Department would assume control from the Army of the American occupation zone in Germany "sometime between April 1 and July 1."

"The army will not be withdrawn but will become what an army should be, an occupying military force in contradiction to its present status, which is military government," Benton told a press conference.

He said the chief activities civilians would control in Germany would be government, education and all media of communications, including newspapers, radio, magazines and motion pictures.

FOREIGN RELATIONS UP IN COMMONS

London, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—Herbert Morrison, majority leader, told the House of Commons today that the labor government's first full-dress debate on foreign affairs will cover the "whole sweep" of intrnational relations, including results of Prime Minister Attlee's atomic talks in Washington.

Morrison said the debate would be held next Thursday and Friday. Although he said the entire field would be covered, he expressed some doubt that Palestine would be debated. Prime Minister Attlee is expected back from Washington for the session.

Morrison read the Washington communique to the House. When he finished, he said he hoped an opportunity for discussing the statement would be provided in the debate next week.

BRITAIN PLANNING CONTROL ON CROPS

London, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—The Labor Government made known today its intention to extend its Socialistic program to agriculture by clamping on permanent controls and fixing prices of many farm products eighteen months before harvest.

Agriculture Minister Tom Williams announced in Commons that, because "the world food situation is extremely serious," the government for the present will issue "compulsory directives" requiring farmers to grow sugar beets and potatoes. He said the government would afford farmers "an assured market and guaranteed price" for each commodity.

Williams said the government proposed to establish an advisory service for farmers and that if advices and directives were disregarded persistently to the detriment of "the national interest," farmers would be dispossessed and their land would come under public ownership.

Household Hint

London, Nov. 15 (AP) — The Ministry of Food, reporting a world shortage of wheat, said today thousands of tons of flour could be saved through the use of a darker loaf of bread. It also urged such measures as substituting potatoes for bread, serving bread in restaurants only when customers asked for it, and serving half rolls instead of whole ones.

British bread is now a kind of gray.

Meanwhile, Dr. I. A. Hamilton-Pearson, Home Office psychiatric medical inspector, told the Food Education Society that while food restrictions were unquestionably necessary and Britain had "gained materially" through them, she also "lost culturally."

TO FIGHT DEPRESSION

LONDON, Nov. 15—(AP) Labor Minister George Isaacs said tonight the Labor government would fight depression by expanding or cutting its public works program in accordance with general economic trends. Isaacs said in a speech, that public works will be "adjusted upwards or downwards in light of the latest information on the prospective employment situation."

Britain Spikes Rumors Of Plan To Hold Nehru

London, Nov. 15 (AP)—The British Government tonight spiked rumors current in India that Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, India Congress party leader, would be arrested for campaigning for Indian independence.

Arthur Henderson, Under Secretary of State for India and Burma, said in a written reply to a query in Commons that Nehru's arrest was not "contemplated."

FRENCH STAND ON REICH HIT

Byron Price Claims Policies 'Dismembering' Germany

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—Byron Price, President Truman's special investigator, said today that French policies are leading to the "economic dismemberment" of Germany, contrary to the aims of the Potsdam agreement.

Price told White House newsmen, after a call on the President, that France had refused to agree to any plans of the control council to keep Germany as an economic unit. As a result, he said critical conditions can be expected this winter with starvation, riots and disease a distinct possibility.

The wartime chief censor spent two months in the American, French and Russian zones of occupation surveying relations between the military government officials and the German population.

Truman Studying Report

He made his formal report several days ago and called at the White House today to go over it with Mr. Truman. The President is withholding it from publication until he finishes a study of it.

Price gave his informal summary to reporters as it became known that the United States and France have begun conversations here on France's proposal to strip Germany of control over her industrially rich Ruhr and Rhineland.

Potsdam Agreement Cited

Rene Couve de Murville, the French Ambassador, has opened negotiations with State Department officials, but American officials are not expecting a speedy solution. Separate conferences are being held by the French in London and Moscow and agreement is needed in each instance before a policy decision can be made.

Price called attention to the American-British-Russian Potsdam agreement of August 2 — adhered to by France — which says that during the period of occupation Germany shall be treated as a "single economic unit."

This agreement provides further that while for the time being there shall be no central German government, certain essential German administrative departments shall be established.

Price referred particularly to France's refusal to agree to any over-all plan for operating transportation, postal and crop-control systems. He said that under the four-power control council system of operating by unanimous consent, one power can veto any plan favored by the other three.

Army's Work Approved

"France," Price said, "is almost entirely responsible for failure to preserve Germany as an economic unit as promised in the Potsdam agreement.

"I think the Army has done a good job under all the difficulties. This isn't the fault of the Army at all. It's the fault of the French."

Price said Germans are "paying heavily" because of France's attitude. If present conditions continue, he asserted, there is "certain to be starvation—and epedemics and rioting usually follow starvation."

Frenchman Comments On Remarks Of Price

Paris, Nov. 15 (AP)—Commenting on remarks made by Byron Price, special investigator for President Truman, in Washington today, a high French official of the Quai d'Orsay, who declined to be quoted by name, said tonight that France merely wanted German territory to be "delimited" before a central government was established.

"German territory has been delimited in the east," he said, "and we think the boundaries should be set in the west as well before any central organs are established."

Wants Ruhr Detached

The official said that when this is done, France would not oppose establishment of unified transportation, postal and crop-control systems.

On "delimiting" Germany's frontiers in the west France still maintains that the Rhineland and the Ruhr industrial basin should be detached and pplaced under predominantly French or international control to insure the world against a recurrence of German aggression.

"We don't want these areas to be under German sovereignty again," the official declared, adding that France had no objection to unifying the rest of Germany.

U.S. And France Begin Talks On Ruhr

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—The United States and France have begun talks here on the most critical issue now blocking effective Allied administration of Germany: France's proposal for non-German control of the Ruhr and Rhineland.

This became known today amid strong indications that President Truman and Secretary of State Byrnes are about ready to undertake a sweeping review of American administration in Germany.

Their objective will be to try to work out some means of preventing explosive conditions in the Reich from getting worse as winter sets in.

Conference With Price

Mr. Truman scheduled a conference today with Byron Price, a special presidential emissary who is just back from a study of the broad question of relations between the German people and the American occupation forces.

Similarly the return of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has afforded the War and State departments, as well as the White House, an opportunity for a further check on critical German conditions already outlined during the recent conferences here of Lieut. Gen. Lucius Clay, Eisenhower's deputy, and Ambassador Robert Murphy, his chief political adviser.

Threat Of Revolt

Eisenhower himself, in a recent report from Berlin, stressed the gravity of the situation, cautioning that there may be open revolt in Germany in the months immediately ahead.

In the light of this, here are the top German problems which have been—or soon will be—brought to Mr. Truman's attention:

1. The effective administration of Germany. For weeks, this has been hamstrung by French refusal to agree on most measures for inter-zone activities until they are assured of Allied support for their plan to put the industrially rich Ruhr under an international control and the equally important Rhineland under long-time French occupation.

Ambassador Rene de Murville opened negotiations with State Department representatives this week and made France's first concrete proposal for stripping the Ruhr and Rhineland from Germany.

Need For More Food

Food. The German people are now getting about 1,500 calories a day although experts in Germany recently sent word here that a minimum of 2,000 calories is needed.

3. The question of what to do about destroying German industry. This issue has reached a critical point. The Potsdam decision calls for destroying or removing as reparations all German war-making industries. Some plants fall clearly in this category, some clearly are in the category of peaceful manufacturers, but in between is the great bulk of German industry.

4. Civilian control. There is an increasing demand among insiders for the President to speed the replacement of the military administration of Germany. This would not mean the end of an army of occupation, but merely that the top officials would be civilians rather than military.

DEGAULLE ADMITS CABINET TROUBLE

PARIS, Nov. 15—(AP) Gen. Charles deGaulle admitted tonight that "certain difficulties" had arisen over the distribution of cabinet portfolios, but added he hoped the formation of a tri-party government would not be delayed.

The general said in a communique that he had completed his consultations with France's political leaders and had encountered "no obstacles as to principles or program."

However, a communist letter to deGaulle, made public just before the communique, indicated that difficulties were greater than deGaulle admitted.

The letter, signed by communist secretary General Maurice Thorez, said deGaulle had refused a communist demand for one of the three important portfolios—foreign affairs, interior and war.

Thorez said that the reasons deGaulle gave in refusing to give the communists an important portfolio were "injurious to our honor as Frenchmen."

Laval's Body Taken To Family Tomb

tery from an unmarked grave in Thalais cemetery, where it had lain since the former premier was executed as a traitor a month ago. Two previous requests of the Chambrun family to move Laval's body had been refused.

Laval's American-educated daughter Josee is married to Count Rene de Chambrun, who claims honorary American citizenship as a lineal descendant of Lafayette.

PETAIN IS MOVED

PARIS, Nov. 15—(AP) The newspaper Le Monde said today that former Marshal Petain has been moved from the cold Portalet Fortress in the Pyrennes to a fort on Ile Dyeu, an Atlantic island south of the mouth of the Loire river. The aged Petain was convicted last summer of treason for actions while chief of state in the Vichy government. The newspaper said the mountain climate was too rigorous for Petain. His death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

O'Connor In New Post

Paris, Nov. 15 (AP)—Basil O'Connor, chairman of the American Red Cross, was elected president of the board of governors of the League of Red Cross Societies today. Delegates from 52 nations selected O'Connor by unanimous vote.

French Editor Sentenced

LYON, France, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Lyon High Court of Justice sentenced Louis Auphan, editor of the royalist newspaper Action Française during the German occupation, to twenty years at hard labor today following his conviction for attacking the domestic security of the state.

KRUPP GIVEN TRIAL DELAY

Streicher Defense Requests Phychiatric Examination

London, Nov. 15 (AP)—The International War Crimes Tribunal at Nuernberg today excused Gustav Krup von Bohlen und Halbach from trial until the condition of the aged, ailing munitions maker permits.

A defense lawyer asked a psychiatric examination for the notorious Jew-baiter, Julius Streicher. The tribunal still was considering an American-French-Russian request that Alfried Krupp, 38, be substituted as a defendant for his father.

40 On Trial At Dachau

Forty Germans went on trial at Dachau, site of a former Nazi extermination camp, charged with killing and mistreating thousands of prisoners there.

The defense—four United States Army officers and a German civilian—lost efforts to have the indictment quashed or have the defendants tried separately. The prosecution declared its evidence would show that Dachau was used by the Nazis as an extermination camp, and that each of the 40 accused were cogs in the extermination machinery.

Three new war crimes trials started today—at the Dachau concentration camp, in Helsinki and in Budapest—while the Belsen trial continued at Lueneburg and sentences were pronounced in still two other cases.

34-Page Indictment Read

Eight of Finland's wartime leaders, including former President Risto Ryti, went on trial in Helsinki, charged with leading their nation into war with Russia, and spurning chances to make peace.

A 34-page indictment was read against the accused.

In Budapest former Premier Bela Imredy faced a court for taking his country into an alliance with the Nazis. Twenty-one witnesses have been summoned to the trial, including a former personal envoy of Hitler and a one-time SS general.

Sentenced To Death

The trial of SS guards charged with atrocities at the Belsen and Oswiecim prison camps ended its fifty-second daily session at Lueneburg with Judge Advocate C. L. Stirling still to complete his summing up of the case. The verdict may not be returned until after the week end.

The Hamburg radio said Paul Hoffman was sentenced to death by a court at Lublin, Poland, on charges of war crimes committed as commandant of the infamous Maidanek concentration camp. It said he had appealed the sentence to the president of the Polish National Council.

In London, Patrick J. Dillon, 38-year-old son of a New York woman, and self-styled newspaper man, was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment after pleading guilty to a charge that he broadcast Nazi propaganda while a British subject.

Two Germans To Be Hanged

Two German prisoners of war will be hanged tomorrow morning at Pentonville Prison for killing a fellow-prisoner who whispered their escape plan to a British guard. The two men—Emil Schmittendorf and Armin Kuehne—were convicted by a court-martial last August.

Lieut. Gen. Carl Caster, believed to have been German military governor of Paris at one time, was caught in a raid on a house within a block of the German police station of Ludwigsburg, Germany, it was announced today.

Trial of Krupp Delayed, Ask Streicher Mental Test

Tucker

NUERNBERG, Nov. 15—(AP) The international war crimes tribunal today postponed the trial of Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, Germany's ailing armaments maker, and heard a surprise defense request for an immediate Psychiatric examination of Julius Streicher, anti-semitic propagandist.

The court still is considering an American-Russian-French demand that Alfried Krupp, the industrialist's eldest son, be substituted for his father as a defendant.

British prosecutor Sir Hartley Shawcross indicated that if the tribunal decided to add the 38-year-old Alfried Krupp to the list of defendants, he would favor a 30-day postponement of the trial to guarantee sufficient time for the preparation of the younger Krupp's case.

Asked if he thought the trial of the top-flight Nazis would start on schedule Nov. 20, Sir Hartley told correspondents: "I am as much in the dark as you."

Earlier a British source had predicted there still was a 50-50 chance the trial would not be delayed—a prediction which appeared to be strengthened by the tribunal's statement to German defense attorneys today that they would be able to prepare their cases during the lengthy presentation of Allied evidence.

In granting a defense motion for postponement of the elder Krupp's trial until "his physical and mental condition permits it," the tribunal quoted the findings of its inter-Allied medical commission that the 75-year-old defendant was suffering from "senile softening of the brain."

The court ordered, however, that the charges in his indictment be retained in the docket in case he recovers sufficiently to stand trial.

A contention by the British prosecution that the elder Krupp should be tried in absentia was rejected on grounds that this "would not be in accordance with the interests of justice."

When the defense requested a psychiatric examination of Streicher, Col. Yuri Pokrovsky, the Soviet prosecutor, proposed an immediate physical and mental examination for both Streicher and Rudolf Hess, once Adolf Hitler's deputy, "rather than wait and cause a delay later."

An official pronouncement on whether Hess—who contends he remembers nothing—is too sick to face trial waited only on the word of a French psychiatrist, Dr. Jean de Lay, a Paris University professor.

The British, three Russian, three American and two French psychiatrists already have finished their examinations and reached their opinions, it was learned.

Defense Attorney Hans Marx, asking a psychiatric examination of Streicher, withdrew a motion for postponement to give him more preparation time.

Marx said Streicher had protested against an examination of any kind, but "because of the special nature of the defendant's case, I feel it essential to have full insight into the mental and spiritual aspects of his personality."

Sir Geoffrey Lawrence of Great Britain, the presiding judge, advised Marx and Pokrovsky to submit their requests in writing.

The indictments returned to the international tribunal named 24 Nazi leaders. But Martin Borrmann, Hitler's deputy, never has been apprehended, and Dr. Robert Ley, labor front leader, hanged himself. The elder Krupp now has been excused for reasons of health. If Streicher and Hess also are excused for similar reasons and the younger Krupp is not substituted the trial would open with only 19 defendants.

Postponement Is Granted On Krupp Trial

De Lyce

Nuernberg, Nov. 15 (AP)—The International Military Tribunal today granted a defense motion for a postponement of the war-crime trial of "dying" Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach until "his physical and mental condition permits it."

The court of the United States, Russia, Great Britain and France ordered charges in the Krupp indictment retained in the docket on the possibility that the 75-year-old armaments maker might recover sufficiently to come to court.

DAY

The tribunal quoted findings of its inter-Allied medical commission that Krupp was irremediably suffering from "senile softening of the brain."

In Absentia Proposal

The tribunal rejected a British prosecution contention that Krupp should be tried in absentia, ruling that "the charter envisages a fair trial."

"Where nature, rather than flight or contumacy, renders such a trial impossible, it would not be in accordance with the interests of justice," the court ruled.

Prosecution demands of the United States, Russia and France that the name of Alfried Krupp, the industrialist's eldest son, be added to the list of indicted Nazis will be considered later, the court said.

The question was still moot whether the historic trials would begin November 20 as scheduled, or be delayed until December 2, as the three powers suggesting that Alfried Krupp be indicted had moved. Presumably, the court will decide this when it rules on the Alfried Krupp indictment.

A British source said after the court adjourned that it was still a 50-50 chance whether the tribunal would start the trial on schedule November 20 or add Alfried Krupp to the list of defendants and grant his counsel a 30-day delay. The Briton said, however, it was extremely unlikely that the suggestion for a twelve-day delay to December 2 would be granted.

Streicher Move

In a surprise move, counsel for Julius Streicher, anti-Semitic propagandist, withdrew his motion for a postponement and asked the court for an immediate psychiatric examination.

"Because of the special nature of the defendant's case, I feel it essential to have full insight into the mental and spiritual aspects of his personality," said the attorney, Hans Marx.

The lawyer added that Streicher himself had protested against an examination of any kind, "believing himself physically and mentally well."

Sir Geoffrey Lawrence of Great Britain, the presiding judge, advised Marx his motion would have to be submitted in writing.

Examination Proposed

Col. Yuri Pokrovsky, Russian prosecutor, proposed an immediate physical and mental examination for both Streicher and Rudolf Hess, once Hitler's deputy and the third ranking Nazi, while Russian and other mental experts are in Nuernberg. Hess contends he remembers nothing.

"It would be better to ascertain the true nature of the defendants' deficiencies, if any, immediately, rather than wait and cause a delay later," Pokrovsky said.

Sir Geoffrey advised Pokrovsky to submit the request in writing.

The tribunal's interest in speeding the legal pace seemed to have been demonstrated in a remark by Lawrence, who said the reading of the 35,000-word indictment in court could be dispensed with if the defense were agreeable. He said its contents "already are well known."

Lengthy Prosecution Case

Lawrence told 23 German defense lawyers assembled for instruction in court procedure for the trial that the presentation of the prosecution's case would take a long time, and would provide ample time for completion of their preparation. Defense lawyers have asked postponement for preparation.

The tribunal received assurance from the defense counselors of their confidence in the conduct of the trial.

Lawrence said the tribunal's general secretary would assist the defense in gathering any documents or witnesses they requested.

"Your services are important public services in the interests of justice and will have the protection of the tribunal," he declared.

40 NAZIS FACING TRIAL IN DACHAU CAMP BRUTALITY

DACHAU, Germany, Nov. 15—(AP) The Nazis carried out a planned scheme of extermination" at the infamous Dachau concentration camp, the prosecution declared today at the opening of the trial of 40 Germans charged with killing and mistreating prisoners there.

In the opening statement the prosecutor, Lt. Col. William Denson, declared:

"Our evidence will show that a planned scheme of extermination was in progress at Dachau, in which helpless victims who refused to submit to the Nazi yoke were starved and subjected to inhuman treatment."

Col. David Chavez, Jr., of (130 Buena Vista) Santa Fe, N. M., drew protests from the defense because of his graphic description of conditions found in the camp when American troops liberated the area last April.

Denson, countering defense protests, declared: "It is hard to describe such scenes without strong words."

The eight-member tribunal upheld the prosecution.

About 400 spectators were in the court, including some 100 German civilians and many American soldiers. The trial opened in the center of the former prison camp, where, the prosecution estimated, 200,000 bodies were cremated. The defendants answered questions defiantly and even antagonistically. Judges and counsellors wore sidearms.

The defense, handled by four U. S. Army officers and a German civilian, challenged the court's jurisdiction on grounds the prisoners never were discharged from the German Army, and were entitled to treatment as war prisoners instead of being tried as war criminals.

The court overruled the challenge after Denson argued that the defendants had forfeited their rights as war prisoners through violation of the rules of war. The court also overuled a motion to quash the indictment because it was not specific as to alleged offenses, and denied a plea for separate trials of each defendant.

All the defendants admitted membership in the German Army except four, whose defense was understood to be based on contentions that they were prisoners at Dachau and not members of the camp staff.

Dachau Trial On; Nazis Hostile

Doane

Dachau, Germany, Nov. 15 (AP)—Forty Germans charged with torturing and killing prisoners in the notorious Dachau concentration camp defiantly faced a United States miltary court today in a trial that may cost them their heads.

An example of rigid military bearing was set for the defendants by Martin Weiss, an S.S. officer who once commanded the horror camp where it is estimated the bodies of 200,000 persons were destroyed in crematories.

When the eight-officer court called upon Weiss to identify himself, he snapped to attention and spat out his name, age and other particulars in a sharp voice. He stared antagonistically at the judges and held his head high.

Others Did Same

With few exceptions, the others imitated his demeanor. Each defendant was given a large white card bearing a number that will serve as identification throughout the trial. Lieut. Col. Douglas T. Bates, of Centerville, Tenn., heads defense counsel.

Prosecution witnesses include former inmates of Dachau brought back from seven countries to testify.

The eight officer members of the trial court will serve both as judges and jury. They previously sat in a case which resulted in the death sentence for a Nazi convicted of killing captured American flyers.

Research For Humanity

The oldest of the defendants, 74-year-old Dr. Klaus Schilling, filed an indignant protest through his attorneys against "being treated as a war criminal." Accused of killing hundreds of inmates in malaria experiments, he claimed his research was "in the interests of humanity," and not connected with the war.

Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, chief of staff to General Eisenhower; Lieut. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, Jr., United States 3d Army commander, and United States Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) will be among those present at the opening sessions.

"Uschi."

Hitler, it seems, was quite generous with Nazi loot to the woman, who is believed to have died with him in the gloom of the Berlin chancellory while Berlin burned.

The pictures of the baby were in Eva's personal album.

The treasure trove contained the woman's diary, which employed every other sentence to tell of "My undying love."

Thousands of dollars in American bills in varying denominations and a brooch set with 50 diamonds and valued at $15,000 were found. The prize treasure, however, was an 18th Century Silver set bearing the Royal emblem of the Polish crown and valued by American officers at between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

Precisely where the treasure was found is still a secret; American intelligence officers hinted that the full story was not yet told. Information leading to the discovery was obtained in a routine investigation.

The announcement called Eva Hitler's "supposed wife."

There had been various reports that the couple had at least one child, although British intelligence investigations concluded that Hitler and Eva Braun were married only the day before they died.

Eva's pictures showed Hitler and the blond "Uschi" in many poses, from infancy until the little girl appeared to be about three years old in the last snapshots dated 1944.

"And here is Uschi again," was the only identification under the snapshots pasted in the pages, much as normally they would be in any family album.

Another of Eva's prizes in the treasure chest was the uniform Hitler wore on the fateful July 20, 19[illegible] when an attempt was made on his life. The blood stained and tattered field grey coat and the black trousers were torn to shreds, indicating they had been ripped off Hitler swiftly after the explosion. Hitler's coat bore a 1940 date. His black shoes carried the trademark of a Warsaw shoemaker.

Several pictures of Hitler showed him carrying a cane at diplomatic functions, apparently because he was suffering from the July bomb explosion.

The tipoff which led to the discovery of the chest came when a German officer, whose name is being kept secret, told a friend: "I know where the suit is, that was worn by the Fuehrer at the time of the attempt on his life."

A grilling of this officer resulted in the finding of Eva's possessions on a Bavarian estate.

American investigators also hinted that stamp collections stolen from countries overrun by the Nazis formed an important link in the discovery.

The full contents of the diary and of the letters to Hitler were withheld.

"All I can tell you is that she refers in every other sentence to 'my undying love,'" American officers said.

Photographs in the album showed Hitler at informal gatherings of children, playing with his big shepherd dog, gazing at the sky from what appeared to be a penthouse, holding a champagne glass at a diplomatic meeting.

Eva kept several pictures of herself in bathing suit poses. The most intimate picture of Hitler and her together, however, was one in which they were shown walking arm in arm.

Russians Seek Control Of Metals In Germany

Berlin, Nov. 15 (AP)—Marshal Zhukov's headquarters today ordered the seizure and strict control of all mines and factories producing precious metals and precious and semi-precious stones in the Soviet-occupied zone in Germany.

All such firms were ordered to register their current stocks within five days with the Soviet Military Government and to deliver their production, every fifteen days, to provincial or country banks at "prices valid in the first quarter of 1945."

The announcement said the decree was aimed at "establishing a uniform order for seizure and control" in mining and manufacturing these items. There was no elaboration of the textual decree, but it had been indicated previously in the Soviet-controlled Berlin press that the mining industry would figure in Russia's reparations collections.

Belsen Defendant Assured Acquittal

Lueneburg, Germany, Nov. 15 (AP)—A British military court assured the acquittal today of 50-year-old Erich Barsch, one of 45 accused of war crimes in the trial of Belsen concentration camp officials.

"Whatever the findings are against the other accused, the court will find Erich Barsch innocent," Judge Advocate C. L. Stirling declared as he continued his summing up of the case.

For Barsch, it was proof that silence is golden. He was one of two defendants who declined to testify in his own defense. He was accused of beating prisoners who stole food from the kitchen, but two SS doctors testified that Barsch was their orderly in the army barracks at Belsen. The prosecution later admitted Barsch was probably wrongly identified at the kitchen.

FINLAND BEGINS WAR CRIME TRIAL

Helsinki, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—Finland's war crimes trial opened today in the ancient Staenderhuset as thousands of university students gathered around the courthouse singing patriotic songs.

All eight of the accused men, headed by former President Risto Ryti, marched into the court room with their attorneys. Hjalmar Procope, former Finnish Minister to Washington, is chief of defense counsel.

Other defendants are former Premiers Jukha V. Rangell and Edwin Linkomies; former Finance Minister Vaino Tanner, head of the Social Democratic party; former Foreign Minister Sir Henrik Ramsay, former Education Minister Antti Kukkonen, former Deputy Finance Minister Tycko Reinkka and T. M. Kivimaeki, former Finnish Minister to Berlin.

The defendants are charged either with plunging Finland into war with Russia in 1941 as an ally of Germany or with failing to take advantage of subsequent opportunities tow ithdraw from the war.

Presiding Justice Hjalmar Neovious rejected a motion by the defense attorney, Mikko Erich, for removal of two members of the fifteen-member court of jurists and laymen.

Reds Withdrawing In Czecho-Slovakia

Prague, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—The Russian Army started withdrawing today from its occupation zone in Czecho-Slovakia.

Cannon, trucks and armor were covered with flowers and cheering crowds bid Red Army troops good-by. Traffic was snarled.

Poles Given More Time

Moscow, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Russian Government announced today that it had agreed with the Polish Government to extend the time limit placed on the voluntary repatriation to Poland of Poles who have assumed Russian citizenship. The agreement gave Poles until January 1, 1946, to denounce Soviet citizenship.

Swiss Deny Hiding German Assets

Bern, Nov. 15 (AP)—Government sources denied today that the Swiss had collaborated with the Nazis in efforts to conceal German assets in Switzerland.

Senator Kilgore (D., W.Va.) said in a statement made public yesterday in Washington that he had found evidence of collaboration between the Swiss Government and banking officials and the Nazis in the early part of 1945.

The denial was not in the form of an official document, but the Government sources said it represented "opinion in the federal palace."

CHURCHILL CHEERED

Brussels, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—Brussels gave Winston Churchill a tumultuous ovation today as Belgium made the British wartime leader an honorary member of the Academy of Science.

Thousands lined the streets along his route and hundreds of excited women broke police cordons and surged around his car. He was cheered loudly when he drove to the tomb of Belgium's unknown warrior. His daughter, Mary, accompanied him.

Would Spare Political Culprits

ROME, Nov. 15 (AP).—A Foreign Ministry official said today Pope Pius XII had appealed to the Italian government not to execute death sentences imposed for political crimes. The official, who asked his name not be used, added that the Council of Ministers had "received the appeal with understanding."

Rome Tobacco Black Market Raided

Rome, Nov. 15 (AP)—Police announced 300 persons were arrested today and hundreds of thousands of domestic cigarettes were seized in a series of raids on Rome's tobacco black market.

Tried To Aid Jews, Imredi Tells Court

Budapest, Nov. 14 (AP—Delayed)—Former Premier Bela Imredi, the second former Hungarian leader to go on trial on war crimes charges, told the court today that he had introduced anti-Jewish legislation in order to provide protection for the Jews.

His statement set off a demonstration among spectators.

The first Hungarian war crimes trial, recently concluded, ended in a death verdict for former Premier Laszio de Bardossy.

BRITISH KEEP TEL AVIV AREA WELL IN HAND

5 Killed, 100 Wounded; Hundreds Reported Under Arrest

Tel Aviv, Palestine, Nov. 15 (AP)—British parachute troops, backing up a "punishment-by-death" warning to rioters, restored order today to Tel Aviv after outbreaks in which five persons were killed and more than 100 wounded.

[An official statement issued in Jerusalem by the Palestine Government Office of Public Information said, however, that one Jew was killed and one seriously wounded in today's fighting. This would make a total of three dead during the 24-hour-old disorders.]

The dead were Jews. The injured included Jews, British troops and police.

'Minority Group' Blamed

A British officer blamed the violence on a "minority group" and said that the people in general were not violating the curfew. Dr. Israel Rockach, Mayor of Tel Aviv, appealed over the Palestine radio for discipline and observance of the curfew.

Several hundred persons were reported arrested before the disturbances, which lasted 24 hours, were quelled by thousands of troops and civil police. But the situation was so well in hand tonight that Maj. Gen. E. L. Bols, commander of the British 6th Airborne Division, announced that the curfew would be lifted from 7 A.M. to 4 P.M. tomorrow.

An official British communiqué said that troops had been forced to open fire on unruly mobs during the morning, but gave no estimate of the number killed or wounded in the fighting.

Jerusalem Remains Quiet

"As far as is known, the forces of the law suffered no casualties," the announcement said.

Jerusalem remained quiet during the day, but the coastal city of Haifa was placed out of bounds to troops on leave and armed soldiers were reported standing by.

While planes roared overhead, the pistol-packing troops of the 6th Parachute Division poured into Tel Aviv by truck, and by 2 P.M. the streets were cleared.

British authorities had warned at noon that unless civilians obeyed the curfew order, issued after rioting that started last night, "appropriate military action" would be taken in two hours.

Three Slain In New Outbreak

Rioters had attacked government property, stoned barricades and stormed several British buildings during the morning in defiance of the curfew.

City streets were strewn with rocks and stones, shattered glass from broken windows and debris from fires started by the rioters.

The death toll in last night's rioting was two killed and twenty-seven wounded, and in this morning's fresh outbreak three killed, twenty seriously hurt and a considerable number slightly wounded.

Most Disapprove Rioting

Wounded rioters were carried off the streets at nearly one a minute during the morning and early afternoon.

The rioting flared last night after a protest meeting against Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's statement in Commons Tuesday on Palestine, in which he disclosed a joint British-American commission would make recommendations on the Jewish problem.

Fists, stones and sticks flew until troops of the 6th Parachute (Red Devils) Division fired to break up the crowds. Troops were withdrawn temporarily, but rushed back into the city this morning when crowds stoned police trucks and the police opened fire.

Most Jewish citizens appeared to disapprove of the attacks against British soldiers and the activities by the rioters. A secret Jewish resistance movement has ordered continued opposition against restricted immigration into Palestine

Appeal For Discipline

The acting high commissioner for Palestine, J. V. W. Shaw, declared in a proclamation:

"Unruliness, incitements to violence or disorder and all attempts to disrupt peace and interfere with the normal lives of the people will be punished with utmost vigor of the law.

"Unlawful carrying or use of firearms, bombs, grenades or other warlike stores is punishable by death."

Railway Guards Attacked

It was broadcast in Hebrew and the same broadcast carried Dr. Rockach's appeal for discipline. British had informed the mayor previously that unless order could be maintained the troops would take action.

During the morning a group of 8th Parachute Battalion troops was heavily stoned by a crowd which was attempting apparently to attack a road block in the Hatikvah quarter of Tel Aviv near the rail line.

Another group of rioters tried to attack Barclay's Bank, a British concern, and roving bands of troublemakers sought to set fire to a post office in Bialik street. A British grocery store was looted.

which resulted in the death of two Jews and the injury of twenty-seven persons. Unruly crowds again attacked government property, stoned barricades and stormed against several British buildings.

The general disobedience of the curfew order appeared to be a part of the policy of resistance ordered by the secret Jewish Resistance Movement against continuance of the British policy of restricted Jewish immigration into Palestine. But most Jewish citizens did not appear to approve direct attacks against British soldiers and activities by the torch gangs.

The first casualties developed last night when troops of the British 6th Parachute (Red Devils) Division fired to break up crowds.

Police Trucks Stoned

The troops were withdrawn temporarily, but were rushed back into the city today when crowds stoned police trucks this morning and the police opened fire. Gunfire was continuing.

Shaw's warning was read in Hebrew at 1.30 P.M., over the Palestine radio. It read:

"Unruliness, incitements to violence or disorder and all attempts to disrupt peace and interfere with the normal lives of the people will be punished with the utmost vigor of the law.

"Unlawful carrying or use of firearms, bombs, grenades or other warlike stores is punishable with death."

Appeals To Youth

An appeal for discipline and observance of curfew orders by Dr. Israel Rockach, Mayor of Tel Aviv, was read during the same broadcast. The appeal was addressed principally to the youth of Tel Aviv.

Jewish workers in Tel Aviv harbor, meanwhile, received curfew passes allowing them to continue unloading the British steamer City of Agra, which arrived with military stores two days ago.

[A British Foreign Office spokesman in London said British Army clashes with demonstrating Jews in Tel Aviv were in line with Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's statement Tuesday that any attempt to sway the Palestine issue by force would be firmly resisted. The British Army is preparing to continue meeting any outbreaks with force, he declared.]

Guards Attacked

Police opened fire on rioters at Tel Aviv this morning when a crowd of youths attacked military guards along the Jaffa-Tel Aviv-Lydda rail line with stones.

One Tel Aviv crowd set fire to the post office, reports said, while another tried to storm the British bank but was repulsed.

Roving crowds set fire to one of a series of barricades erected by troops and police between Tel Aviv and the Arab town of Jaffa to prevent Jewish-Arab incidents.

General disobedience of a curfew order was reported.

Some Shops Reopened

Furniture presumably seized from the Light Industries Building was being burned in the street, the British declared.

Many shops also reopened in violation of the curfew, the announcement said.

There were unconfirmed reports that a series of explosions had been heard in Tel Aviv.

An official British announcement said that ten rounds were fired by British troops in Tel Aviv last night. According to the statement, the troops were ordered to fire when Palestine police armed with batons failed to break up a crowd in Colony square, in a series of six charges.

"Coincident with this incident a crowd of approximately 5,000 was cleared away from the square by British troops," the British military communique said.

Death Penalty to Be Imposed As Riots Again Grip Palestine

High Commissioner Gives Warning as New Disorders Flare in Tel Aviv—Troops Called Again to Trouble Area.

Jerusalem, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—J. V. W. Shaw, British acting High Commissioner for Palestine, issued a "punishment by death" warning today to rioters in the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv, where street demonstrations broke out for the second day.

Official and unofficial reports indicated four persons had been killed and more than 100 injured in twenty-four hours. Thousands of persons milled in the streets defying a curfew order imposed after last night's outbreaks,

ARABS SCORE U. S. ON PALESTINE PLAN

Jerusalem, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—The Palestine Arab party—claiming to represent a large majority of the Palestine Arab population—last night accused Great Britain of breaking her promise to Arabs and said the United States "has no business in the affairs of Palestine."

The statement was made after an all-day discussion of Arab party leaders of Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's Palestine statement in Commons. Five other Arab parties held similar meetings to decide on policy before issuing a formal statement of protest—which all six parties are expected to sign.

Declarig that Arabs "repeatedly have been promised complete independence" by Britain, the Arab party statement added, "Now we see another promise broken through the plan for placing Palestine under trusteeship."

The statement said recent American pronouncements on Jewish immigration were causing the Arab people to "distrust" the American Government, "especially since it has publicly been expressing its sympathies with Jewish aspirations."

"Irresponsible Youngsters" Blamed

JERUSALEM, Nov. 14 (AP).—The riots at Tel Aviv have been "highly detrimental to the Jewish cause," Isaac ben Tsevei, chairman of the Jewish National Council, said tonight. He added that Jewish leaders had urged self-discipline and non-violence. The riots were caused by "irresponsible youngsters" disregarding instructions of the Municipal Council and community groups, he said. He declared that Jewish authorities deplored the casualties on both sides and "deeply regret yesterday's and today's Tel Aviv incidents."

Speed Is Urged on Truman

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP). — President Truman was urged today to speed appointment of American members of the Anglo-American committee of inquiry on the Palestine-Jewish question.

"Delay in getting the inquiry started would be fatal," Representative Celler, Democrat, of New York, wrote to Mr. Truman. "You must appoint your committee promptly and induce Great Britain to do likewise."

Sir Thomas Blamey To Retire

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 15 (AP)—Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey will retire as Australian commander in chief December 1, Army Minister Francis Forde announced today. Lieut. Gen. V. A. T. Sturdee will become acting commander. Sir Thomas will re-enter business.

6,000 U.S. Sailors At Cape Town

Cape Town, Nov. 15 (AP)—More than 6,000 American sailors invaded Cape Town stores today on their first day of liberty in South Africa from the battleships California and Tennessee and six destroyers. The ships are on the way home and are expected to reach Philadelphia on December 7.

Hawaii Governor To Act If Riots Are Resumed

Honolulu, Nov. 15 (AP) — Territorial Governor Ingram Stainback, taking cognizance of Monday night's riot in the Damon track residential district, declared today that if Honolulu police and the navy shore patrol were unable to handle the situation involving clashes between civilians and navy men, the territory's officials would act.

Police Chief W. A. Gabrielson, of Honolulu, declared there had been "no new riots, and there won't be any," while Lieut. Com. Ernest Norris, head of the navy shore patrol, said, "Naval Air Station men were given liberty last night, and there were no repercussions."

Shore patrol records showed that seven navy men were beaten last night in altercations with civilians, but Eugene Kennedy, captain of detectives, said this was a normal night.

CHINESE REDS HIT HURLEY STATEMENT

Declare U.S. Ambassador Is 'Ill Informed About China.'

CHUNGKING, Friday, Nov. 16—(AP) A Chinese Communist spokesman said today that U. S. Ambassador Patrick Hurley's interpretation of Communist objectives serves [illegible] than to spread [illegible] civil war in China."

Taking note of Hurley's statement Tuesday at Santa Fe, N. M., the spokesman objected particularly to the ambassador's assertion that the Communists sought Japanese arms with which "to set up a separate government in China or destroy the government of the Republic of China."

The spokesman said Hurley is "ill informed about China" and did not represent the true will of the American people. The spokesman expressed hope that friendship between China and America would not be "indiscreetly spoiled by such persons as Hurley."

Partial Chinese sovereignty over Manchuria was restored by the Russians yesterday as both sides in China's civil war maneuvered for position in strategic Shantung province to the south.

An official dispatch said the Russians turned over postal and telegraphic services at the Manchurian capital of Changchun to Chinese authorities, whose troops still are blocked from the long Japanese-dominated area by Chinese Communists.

The official account added that under the agreement—one of those sought by Chungking in its attempts to reoccupy Manchuria ahead of the Communists—the Russians would be allowed to use the facilities until they withdraw, probably some time next month.

There still was no word on the outcome of Russian-Chinese negotiations for permission to fly Nationalist troops to Changchun.

But while the Manchurian situation took a more favorable Nationalistic turn, the Chinese Communists struck swiftly in the rich coastal province of Shantung.

Associated Press Correspondent Richard Bergholz reported they ripped up sections of the railway leading into the interior in an attempt to seal off thousands of Nationalist troops landing from the sea at the big port of Tsingtao.

The Communist troops, accepting the challenge to their strong positions in the province, struck less than 12 hours after the first of the Nationalist Eighth army's well-armed troops went ashore from American ships at Tsingtao, finest port in North China.

They raided Liuting air field, 12 miles north of Tsingtao, but this proved a diversion while their troops were tearing up the tracks of the railway leading to Shantung's capital of Tsinan, 140 miles west.

Travelers returning from Tsinan told Bergholz the capital was under virtual siege, with Communists controllin' routes leading into the city and the population and garrison running short of food.

These sources said the Japanese 47th Division and several mixed brigades, still not disarmed, guarded Tsinan's outer defenses while the Nationalist garrison of 20,000, mainly former puppet troops, was in reserve.

The Communist Shantung liberation army under Gen Lo Hung-wen claims a total of 1,000,000 men, mostly localized guerrilla bands around a nucleus of well-trained troops.

Central China Blow Reported

An official dispatch said Communist forces also had struck in central China and were trying to recapture the highway city of Tsaoyang, 145 miles northwest of Hankow and 510 miles southwest of Tsingtao.

Observers in Chungking believed the ultimate Communist objective was to seize control of the Yangtze, west of Hankow, and prevent Nationalist troops from using that stream for transportation.

Another official report said repeated Communist attacks on the southern section of the Tientsin-Pukow railway might force the Government to halt attempts to repair the line.

More Charges Made

The Communist New China Daily News leveled a new series of unconfirmable charges of alleged American intervention today, including these:

That America was sending 1,000 tanks to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, that America would train 10,000 men for China's air force, and that 100 American-manned tanks were heading for Shanhaikwan, fortress guarding the southern entrance to Manchuria reportedly captured by Nationalist troops.

The Daily News also declared that Secretary Patterson's statement that United States forces would be used in China only to protect American lives and property was "not truthful."

It renewed charges that American forces already had participated and said if the Americans withdrew "there'll be no American lives to protect while, as for American property, it is negligible and needs no protection."

China Takes Over Postal Service In Changchun

Chungking, Nov. 15 (AP) — Russians, scheduled to withdraw soon from Manchuria, already have handed over postal and telegraphic services of Changchun, Manchurian capital, to Chinese authorities, an official dispatch reported today.

The transfer of control was made under an agreement permitting Russian use of the facilities until their withdrawal, the dispatch said.

The Chinese Government some time ago was notified that Russians would be out of Manchuria by December 1.

Reds Move To Block Troops

At Tsingtao, meanwhile, Chinese Communists were reported moving to block a Nationalist relief force headed for violence-dotted Shantung province, and far to the south street fighting flared as Communists attacked the highway center of Tsaoyang, 145 miles northwest of Hankow.

Correspondent Richard Bergholz said Communist forces driving to keep Nationalists from Shantung had struck less than twelve hours after the Chinese Nationalists 8th Army began landing from United States transports at the Marine-guarded port of Tsingtao.

Reds Reach Airfield

The Reds' Shantung liberation army knifed through to Liu-Ting airfield twelve miles north of Tsingtao and made a diversionary thrust at the field while destroying two main sections of the Tsingtao-Tsian railroad, Bergholz reported.

Additional thousands of Nationalist troops of the 8th Army continued to pour ashore at Tsingtao, he said, but no major movement inland has been started.

Tsinan Short Of Food

Tsinan, a city of 800,000, and capital of the rich Shantung province, already is virtually besieged by Communists and is dangerously short of food and medicine, he said.

A major factor in saving the capital from Communists is a strong force of Japanese, not yet disarmed, which is fighting for survival, Bergholz related. Japanese comprising the 43d Army headquarters, the 47th Division and several mixed brigades now comprise the outer main defenses of Tsinan, he added. Some 20,000 Nationalist troops complete the force.

One Japanese company was annihilated by Reds near Tsinan, he said.

Japs Lose Several Hundred

In all, Japanese are conservatively estimated to have lost several hundred men.

Observers in Chungking said that the reported outbreak of fighting in Tsaoyang, northwest of Hankow, probably signaled a Red drive aimed at cutting the Yangtze River route west of Hankow, thus preventing any downriver movement of Nationalist troops.

Fancheng In Path

The first step in such a drive likely would be occupation of the Han River towns of Fancheng and Stangyang, southwest of Tsaoyang.

Another official Chinese report said that Communist attacks have been rendering repairs to the southern section of the Tientsin-Pukow (Tientsin-Nanking) railroad extremely difficult, and that the work might have to be suspended.

U.S. "Intervention" Scored

The Communist New China Daily News renewed its blasts against American "intervention" today with the accusation that a recent statement of United States policy by Secretary of War Robert Patterson was "not truthful." Patterson had announced that United States forces would protect American lives and property in China, and that there was no danger of their becoming involved in civil strife unless they were attacked—in which case they would "react with vigor and success."

"His assertion that American forces won't be involved unless they are attacked is the height of ridiculousness," the Red newspaper said. It termed "even more ridiculous" Patterson's statement that United States forces would be used to protect American lives and property in China.

List Charges Against U.S.

"If the (American) forces withdraw, there'll be no American lives in North China to protect," it asserted.

Communist quarters here refused immediate comment on the reported assertion by Ambassador Patrick Hurley in Santa Fe, N.M., that Chinese Communists wanted Japanese arms in order to set up a separate government or destroy the present Government of China.

Some foreign observers interpreted Hurley's statement to mean that he would not return to China unless Washington backed him fully in a policy of strong, open support for the Ceneral Government.

Will Reply To Hurley

Communists said their New China Daily News would reply to Hurley soon.

The newspaper listed these other unconfirmable charges of American "intervention" today:

America is sending 1,000 tanks to Chiang's armies and is planning to train 10,000 Chinese airmen.

American Ships Bring Troops

Two American ships loaded with arms and soldiers (presumably Chinese, although the News did not say) recently landed at Tangku, near Tientsin, proceeding immediately to Tientsin.

One hundred American-manned tanks are heading for Shanhaikwan, the Great Wall's coastal gate, en route to the Inner Mongolian province of Chahar.

American planes based at Isingtao are carrying out extensive reconnaissance.

U.S. Plane Strafes Lini Gate

An American plane strafed the north gate of Lini, in southeastern Shantung province, November 2, killing a child.

The same day, an American plane carrying Kuomintang (Nationalist) secret servicemen and three American officers landed at Wutsing, between Peiping and Tientsin, where they began to organize an "invasion" of the Communist-liberated area. They took three prisoners.

CHINESE OFFICIAL NAMES POLITICIAN

CHUNGKING, Nov. 15—(AP) A government official filed charges before the Chinese National Military Council today that his father was slain 20 years ago by a now-prominent Chungking politician and accused one of the council's own members of complicity.

The charge was made by Hsu Tao Ling, director of the political affairs department of the executive Yuan (cabinet) who then resigned his office, saying he intended to devote all his time to the case.

In his charge before the council Hsu alleged that his father was slain by Gen. Chang Chih-Chiang, former military governor of Chahar province, now a member of the People's Political Council here.

Hsu charged with complicity marshal Yu-Hsiang, once-famed "christian general" who baptized his troops with a fire hose, now a member of the military council which acts in an advisory capacity.

Hsu said he was about 20 years old when his father, Hsu Shutang, was slain aboard a Nanking train bound for Peiping.

1,630 Leave Korea

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 15 (AP).—The U. S. S. Eastland is en route to Seattle today, carrying 1,630 officers and men to America and bringing the total of returnees from Korea since Oct. 28 to 11,849.

Colonel Duncan Sinclair, Ashville, N. C., said the point level of returnees was generally 74 for enlisted men and 84 for officers, but that by Dec. 1 all 70-point enlisted men and 75-point officers would be on their way home.

Annamese Clashes Cost Allies 46 Dead

Saigon, Indo-China, Nov. 15 (AP) British, Indian and French casualties in prolonged skirmishing with Annamese Nationalists were set officially today at 46 killed, 112 wounded and 5 missing.

A British-French statement said that up to November 9, British and Indian losses in southern Indo-China were 19 killed, 80 wounded and 4 missing. French casualties through November 12 were 27 killed, 32 wounded and 1 missing.

One thousand French troops arrived aboard the liner Pasteur yesterday to reinforce local forces.

Headquarters Aboard A Junk

The official statement said that an important headquarters of the Nationalist Viet Minh movement had been found aboard an armed junk in the Cantho area and captured. The junk was fitted with radio equipment. Successful searches were also carried out and suspects arrested in Godan Ha, Trang Bang and other areas further south.

Tay Ninh, scene of stiff fighting last week, was reported quiet and local officials had returned to their normal duties.

BRITISH BLASTING FOE IN SOERABAJA

Slight Gains Listed As Indonesian Parley Is Called Off

Batavia, Nov. 15 (AP)—British planes, tanks and artillery blasted anew today at 15,000 Indonesians resisting stubbornly in Soerabaja, while the first attempt at negotiations between Premier Sutan Sjahrir's Indonesian Cabinet and the Dutch collapsed without explanation.

The 123d Indian Infantry Brigade seized the justice and government buildings yesterday in bitter battle against nationalists using light automatic weapons, machine guns and some armored vehicles.

Public buildings and homes were being reduced to rubble by the struggle in the Java naval base.

Gains Measured In Yards

Indian infantry has been limited to gains of mere yards in the heart of Soerabaja in the past three days. The British say they are not using their full strength.

Vern Haugland, Associated Press correspondent in Soerabaja, said the Indonesians had at least twelve captured Japanese tanks, one of which was knocked out in today's fighting. The Dutch news agency Aneta said Indonesians were getting the range and were dropping shells from Japanese 75 millimeter guns within twenty yards of British vessels in Tandjungperak harbor.

The meeting between the Netherlands and Indonesian representatives was canceled at the last moment, Aneta said.

Says British Halted Talk

Sjahrir said he understood it was the British who canceled the meeting, scheduled at the home of Lieutenant General Sir Phillip Christison, British commander in the East Indies.

Netherlands officials said they were not at liberty to state why the meeting had been canceled. The British promised "a full statement" tomorrow.

Hubertus J. van Mook, acting governor general of the Netherlands East Indies, scheduled a news conference for tomorrow afternoon.

Described As Moderate

Sjahrir, described as a "moderate," issued a pamphlet today for the Indonesians in which he deplored Japanese influence on his people causing hatred for foreigners. He urged establishment of a democratic regime which would cooperate wholeheartedly with "capitalism for re-establishment of the industries of the country."

A British official summary of the fighting in Soerabaja said one Royal Air Force Mosquito plane knocked out four machine-gun positions. It added that the British had negotiated with Indonesian Cabinet representatives in Batavia on providing medical treatment for Indonesian women and children refugees in British-held areas of Soerabaja.

Haugland, from the top of the Government House in Soerabaja, former Indonesian headquarters, which the British siezed after bombing the building and setting it afire, gave this account of today's fighting:

"In the broad, deserted littered street 100 feet below us, British tanks are firing at Indonesian machine-gun nests and light Japanese tanks hiding in narrow streets 200 yards away.

"Three Thunderbolts overhead take turns diving toward roof tops ahead of us, strafing suddenly when they sight a target. British mortars, and occasionally artillery, chew away at red tile roofs spread before us, puncturing them and raising clouds of dust and smoke.

"Across the street are the smoking ruins of the bombed Courts of Justice, only tall green plaster columns of the once-spacious structure remaining."

Atrocities Reported

A report issued in the name of the 23d Indian Division charged atrocities to the Indonesians. The official account said a number of bodies in mutilated condition were recovered from the Kali Mas River. The report included what it said to be an eyewitness account from a survivor.

The eyewitness said he saw a slightly wounded British officer pinned on the ground by Indonesians. He said the officer's "arms and legs were cut off one by one. He finally was killed by being beheaded."

Another officer, the report said, "was shot through the head while he was walking with his captors. his head was then hacked off and his body mutilated with knives and swords."

British Press On in Soerabaja

Capture Former Indonesian Headquarters—New Premier Outlines Objectives.

Batavia, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—British Indian troops hammered steadily at native strong points in the heart of Soerabaja today, but with the pitched battle in its sixth day there was "no slackening of Indonesian resistance" anywhere in the naval base, a British announcement said.

The 123d Indian Infantry Brigade battled into the Justice and Government buildings, formerly identified as major headquarters for 15,000 Indonesian Nationalist troops.

While the fighting continued in Soerabaja, Sutan Sjahrir, youthful new Premier, who is pledged to attempt to end the hostilities, issued a fifteen-page pamphlet in Batavia, outlining his principles for the future of the Indonesians. Sjahrir deplored the Japanese propaganda which, he said, taught his people to hate all foreigners, and asserted:

"All the unrest in the community is directed to an aversion to foreign peoples present in our country, to marching with lances, that has now already grown into murder and robbery and other tendencies that, seen from the viewpoint of the struggle for social reform, signifies nothing and is reactionary, as every Fascist deed will always be reactionary."

British Press Attack.

The British, using a minimum of forces to prevent heavy casualties, pressed the attack slowly in Soerabaja. A supplementary report, based on accounts of an officer just returned from Soerabaja, said the fighting "now has reached its full intensity and that the Indonesians were "better organized and no longer roam the streets in mobs.

INDONESIANS FIRE CAPITAL BUILDINGS

Battle Continues with British Using Planes and Tanks.

By VERN HAUGLAND

SOERABAJA, Java., Nov. 15—(AP) Smoke and clouds dimmed Java's hot sun today as Indonesians applied the torch in earnest in their scorched earth retreat before the British, Indian and Yorkshire forces.

The largest fire broke out Wednesday night east of the city, about 200 yards outside of the British perimeter.

Half Caste civilians said it was one of the city's largest clothing warehouses, but the smoke was so thick and black that it was obvious the adjoining rubber and oil stocks had caught fire.

This morning three other warehouses were set afire in the same area to the southeast.

NOV 16 1945

"It's their scorched earth policy in action," said a British major, commanding one Mahrotta unit guarding the eastern perimeter along the Seamapir canal.

"Apparently they saw the West York battalion moving in today and anticipating an advance they set three more fires this morning," he said.

Again this morning a Japanese tank fired on the front lines just ahead of government house in central Soerabaja. A British tank moved quickly into that section. One light Japanese tank was knocked out by a British tank yesterday from a distance of only 20 yards.

Desultory fire from an enemy 75mm gun continued through the night, one shell hitting a jeep and killing one occupant.

Two Navy men in a jeep accidentally drove beyond the front lines and had to desert the jeep and run for safety under fire from both lines.

Netherland Marines Sail From U. S. to Indies Soon

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—About 4,600 Netherland Marines, now in United States training camps, have been ordered to the East Indies, a spokesman for the force reported today.

The first contingent of 1,940 men will sail from Norfolk, Va., this week and most of the others will embark next week, he said. A group of 150 to 200 will remain for an indefinite period.

The force was recruited in the Netherlands after that country was liberated and was brought here for training at Camps Davis and Lejeune, N. C., and at the United States marine base in Quantico, Va. Their training, under American officers and with United States equipment, was ordered by the joint Chiefs of Staff.

JAPS' ABILITY TO PAY DOUBTED

Pauley Says Assets Will Not Cover Occupation Cost

Tokyo, Nov. 15 (AP)—Japan's amazingly small assets are not even sufficient to pay the heavy costs of Allied occupation, to say nothing of reparations and necessary minimum imports to keep the country going, Edwin S. Pauley declared today after inspecting the vaults of the Bank of Japan.

Pauley, who is President Truman's representative on the Allied Reparations Commission, gave no figures, either for the assets or occupation costs but said the funds available would be used first for the occupation, second for imports necessary to keep the Japanese alive and lastly for reparations.

Is Not Optimistic

"I am not optimistic that there will be anything left for reparations of a recurring nature after paying the cost of occupation," he said.

On the basis of Allied war expenditures, the United States is entitled to more than 75 per cent of the total reparations, he told a news conference, but he did not think American claims would be asserted to that extent because "the final bill will be the bill we expect to be able to collect."

The United States will claim Japanese business assets discovered in Sweden, Switzerland, Argentina and other foreign countries, but these are not unduly large, Pauley remarked.

To Survey Collecelon

Asked about Emperor Hirohito's vast fortune, he said it was American policy not to make a distinction between it and any other Japanese assets, but noted that the Emperor's assorted collection of curios, valued at 2,500,000,000 yen ($166,000,000), would have to be surveyed to determine if any of it would be useful for paying bills.

The American policy, he said, is the same as in Germany: Removal of everything not needed for a minimum economy and destruction of war production machinery and equipment.

Pauley, who is leaving for China tomorrow, disclosed that his commission had requested permission to enter the Russian-occupied areas of northern Korea and Manchuria and that he expected the Russians would evacuate northern Korea soon.

Policy Believed The Same

Russia and the other Allies, he said, are believed to be following the same policy toward Japan as the Americans, who seek to "eradicate every vestige of militarism" and "expect the Japanese to show they are trying to develop democratic principles."

The Tokyo newspaper Asahi said that the current Japanese plan for "democratization" included abolition of the important imperial position of Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal but retention of the remainder of the Emperor's inner circle of advisers.

Predicts Heated Discussion

The Kyodo news agency reported that reformation of the House of Representatives as well as the imperial setup would be subjects of "heated discussion" at the Diet session which opens November 26.

Bills providing for free speech and other liftings of wartime restrictions are expected to pass easily, Kyodo said, but a fight was predicted on a bill to legalize labor unions.

Meanwhile the questions of food and clothing continued uppermost for most Japanese. Occupation forces handed over for civilian use large stocks of commodities seized from the Japanese military. Even such items as barrage balloons are being salvaged for conversion into clothing.

Japan Can't Pay Occupation Bill, Pauley Says

Tokyo, Nov. 15 (AP)—Japanese assets, "ridiculously small by comparison with the actual cost of the war," will not even meet costs of occupation, let alone pay for necessary imports or reparations, Edwin S. Pauley said today.

President Truman's representative on the Allied Reparations Commission told a news conference United States policy will be the same here as in Germany—remove everything in Japan not needed for a useful minimum Japanese economy no higher than that in countries which Japan occupied and remove or destroy every piece of machinery or equipment that specializes in war production.

To Be Used By Others

If possible, everything removed from Japan will be employed gainfully by nations which are entitled to reparations. Schools and colleges wantonly destroyed by Japanese armies will receive such technical nonwarmaking equipment as Japanese armies have in their possession.

Pauley said he had examined the vault of the Bank of Japan and found "amazing similarity" between the "loot" there and that in the Reichsbank in Frankfurt, German, where the United States found gold and other treasure.

Less Than In Germany

The value of the bank contents was not as great as that in Germany, he said, but he would give no over-all estimate of the value of gold, silver, coins, jewels and other treasures he saw here.

He disclosed that his commission has requested of Russia permission to enter northern Korea and Manchuria and expects to go there "either while the Russians are still occupying Korea and Manchuria or after they have left." He said he anticipated the Russians would vacate northern Korea soon but did not elaborate.

To "Eradicate Militarism"

The policy of the United States in reparations will be to "eradicate every vestige of militarism from the life of Japan, and we want it to be just. We expect the Japanese to show they are trying to develop democratic principles and policies which will lead them to a more abundant life than the Japanese people ever enjoyed under the militarists."

Russia, Pauley said, and other Allies are believed to be following the same principles. The commissioner anticipated that small nations would receive the larger share of reparations, particularly of machinery, since the United States is not interested in second-hand machinery.

"The cost of occupation is staggering; it's so big," Pauley said.

NOV 16 1945

Three Uses For Wealth

Pauley explained that United States policy is to use Japanese wealth:

1. For occupation.
2. For the importation of goods which are the minimum to assure survival of the Japanese.
3. For reparations.

Japan May Drop Post Of Keeper Of Privy Seal

Tokyo, Nov. 15 (AP)—Abolition of the key position, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, but retention of the remainder of the cumbersome inner circle around the Emperor was reported today by the newspaper Asahi as the current plan for "democratization" of the throne.

The newspaper said the plan resulted from conferences of representatives of the Cabinet, the Privy Seal, the Imperial Household Ministry, the Privy Council and senior statesmen seeking a method of keeping pace with prospective revision of the constitution.

No Confirmation By Kido

The plan will be effected "at an appropriate opportunity," Asahi reported. Its only concession to prospective party government is inclusion of the presidents of both houses of the Diet on a board to participate in the selection of new premiers.

The newspaper recently reported that Marquis Koichi Kido, current Privy Seal Keeper and maker and breaker of premiers, planned to resign soon. Kido is away. His secretary told the Associated Press he knew nothing of either report.

Would Have Imperial Clique

A limited, streamlined imperial clique, Asahi said, would replace the present system whereby the Privy Seal is the principal adviser of the Emperor and the most powerful individual in the empire. The Emperor would be advised by the Grand Chamberlain, the Imperial Household Minister and the president of the Privy Council.

At Cabinet changes, the new Premiers would be recommended by the presidents of the Privy Council and both houses of the Diet.

The plan probably would have to be approved formally by the current Privy Council.

Report No Surprise

The report appears consistent with limited reformation expected from current influential conservatives acting on their own responsibility. It reflects distrust of a consolidation of power in one office, which "Pearl Harbor Premier" Hideki Tojo fostered; retention of the present court organization as fully as possible, and a "wait and see" attitude toward the question of whether all policy making branches of the Government will be responsible to the people through the Diet.

Responsible government circles say they believe Kido will resign, but point out the resignation would precipitate the naming of a successor who qualifies as acceptable to the Allies, of court rank, with experience considered necessary for the post, and popularity with the Japanese people.

Konoye Out Of Favor

Former Premier Fumimaro Konoye, who has been groomed for the post for two decades, apparently is out of consideration, for he is not favorable to the Allies and is becoming increasingly unpopular among the Japanese people.

Konoye recently resigned his baronial title of prince and said he was redrafting the constitution with General MacArthur's approval, but a few days later MacArthur's headquarters said Konoye had not been designated for that or any other task.

May Reorganize House

Japan's House of Representatives, as well as the imperial system, may be up for reorganization soon, Kyodo news agency forecast today. It predicted "heated discussion" of election-law revision in the November 26 Diet session, which may radically alter the house of representatives organization.

Introduction of a bill to legalize labor unionization and collective bargaining also is expected to bring hot debate, Kyodo said. Other measures, providing for free speech and other escapes from wartime shackles, are expected to be passed without argument; General MacArthur wants them.

Leaders of the Liberal party meanwhile prepared to appeal for the help of Socialists and the People's party in a united front to deal with food scarcity. The coalition would bring together Japan's three most influential parties.

YAMASHITA'S GUILT ARGUED

Prosecution Says Orders Would Not Absolve General

Manila, Friday, Nov. 16 (AP)—Even if it could be proved that Emperor Hirohito himself ordered the atrocities perpetrated by Japanese soldiers in the Philippines, that would not absolve Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita of responsibility, the chief prosecutor argued, today at the general's war crimes trial.

The prosecutor presented his argument in winning admission as evidence of a confiscated Japanese film showing atrocities. The film was shown last night. The defense had argued that the very title of the film, "Orders from Tokyo," pointed the finger of guilt away from Yamashita.

Slayings Of 300 Reported

Women witnesses today added another in the mounting series of atrocity cases. They said Japanese soldiers killed 300 civilians December 29, on Ponson Island, west of Leyte, while searching for three Americans.

The witnesses said the Japanese ordered the people in the village of Dapdap to assemble at the church, then began slaughtering men, women and children with bayonets and machine guns.

The hooded head of a black-hooded informer known as "the magic eye," chose 400 Filipino villagers for slaughter after they had been caught by bloodhounds December 11, a witness testified yesterday.

Another witness, a Japanese-American U. S. Army sergeant who had been pressed into service as an interpreter at Yamashita's headquarters, after capture at Corregidor, testified that during a single month of the Japanese occupation 1,800 persons were executed at a single cemetery in Manila after courts martial. Six or seven of those slain were Americans, said the sergeant, who related that he witnessed numerous executions.

The testimony was part of the prosecution's omnibus charge that as commander in the Philippines Yamashita was guilty of "deliberately undertaking to terrorize, brutalize, massacre and exterminate non-combatant civilians" and to destroy towns and property.

On the same lines, the American military tribunal tonight viewed a motion picture entitled "Orders From Tokyo," made up of captured Japanese news reels and other atrocity pictures.

Mrs. Felicidad Manuel, mother of two of the victims, testified to the operations of "The Magic Eye" in the villages of Polo and Obando just north of Manila, describing a macabre parade in which the hooded figure dealt out death by a nod or life by a slight shake of the head.

Yamashita's American defense counsel asked if the roundup and slaughter followed the Japanese arrest of a certain Filipino captain who had been on Bataan, but the court halted the questioning.

Testimony of the interpreter, Master Sgt. Richard Sakakida, was stressed as tending to link Yamashita more directly with atrocities. He testified that he frequently saw Yamashita at headquarters in Baguio last December and subsequently that executions were ordered on mimeographed headquarters forms which had blanks for the name and date.

A 15-year-old girl from Baguio, who said she was one of four persons who survived out of 315 who tried to escape from the area, testified that an English-speaking Japanese soldier told her "Yamashita ordered the killing of all civilians."

Asked how she escaped, she showed a deep scar across the back of her neck.

This testimony followed the pattern of others chosen from throughout Luzon, in which witness after witness has described a general slaughter with bayonets and swords, from which a few miraculously escaped with wounds and survived to point the finger at Yamashita.

Hooded Informer 'Nodded Death'

Manila, Nov. 15 (AP)—Four hundred residents of the towns of Polo and Obando in Bulacan province, just north of Manila, were selected for death at the hands of Japanese by a mysterious, hooded informer called "The Magic Eye," a witness testified today at the war crimes trial of Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita.

30.24 — 31655

Mrs. Felicidad Manuel, mother of two of the victims, said twenty truck loads of Nipponese troops, supported by two tanks and a number of bloodhounds, surrounded the villages on December 12, 1944, and paraded the inhabitants past the informer.

Fate Settled By A Nod

As each passed, a nod or a shake of the hooded head settled the fate of the individual.

The witness said she was unable to find her two sons, who had been marked for death, in the piles of dead at the local cemetery when she searched the next day. They had been executed in the Polo municipal building.

Mrs. Manuel admitted under defense cross-examination that guerrillas had been very active in the area.

1800 Executed in Month.

Earlier, Master Sgt. Richard Sakakida, a Hawaiian-born Nisei who was captured by the Japanese on Corregidor and later made a civilian interpreter in Yamashita's Baguio headquarters, testified that in one month 1,800 persons, including at least six Americans, were executed by the Japanese at Manila's north cemetery. Most of those executed were Filipino civilians, but two were American mining engineers, ordered killed for suspected guerrilla activities, and others were leading Spanish residents.

Sakakida said that he was warned recently by Yamashita's judge-advocate, now a prisoner of war, not to appear as a witness.

Pattern Of Atrocities

Atrocities presented by the prosecution tend to follow this general pattern:

As liberating forces approach, Japanese soldiers or marines surround the area. All civilians are lined up and their valuables taken. In some cases hooded Filipino traitors identify the "good and bad" countrymen but often no attempt is made to discriminate between guerrillas and nonresisters.

The men are separated from the women in groups of fives or tens, their hands tied behind their backs. The men are often beaten and the women raped before all eventually are bayoneted or slashed with officers' sabers to save ammunition.

Miraculous Escapes

The bodies are left unburied, and the story of the deed is usually related by one or two who miraculously survive the ordeal and escape.

This pattern of mass slaughter has been followed so often that occasional cases of murders of an entire family have become seemingly unimportant to trial spectators.

The court will meet tonight to view color movies and other pictures of atrocities committed in the Philippines on "orders from Tokyo" (presumably General MacArthur's headquarters).

Occupation 'Efficient'

Tokyo, Nov. 15 (AP)—Benjamin H. Gordon, United States Department of Commerce representative, said today that the Allied occupation of Japan is the most efficient action of its kind in history.

Interviews with officers and men in 40 bases "have satisfied me that the job was and is being done well," he told newsmen. He is touring the Pacific to familiarize service men with economic conditions they may expect to encounter when they return home.

Business men of Japan "feel that when the pains of occupation are over they'll emerge into a new and better economic era," he reported.

AMMUNITION BLAST KILLS 132 IN JAPAN

Tokyo, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—More than 200 persons were killed or injured on November 12 at Muruyama, Kyushu Island, when occupation troops exploding an ammunition dump accidentally touched off the explosives, Kyodo News Agency reported today.

The explosion destroyed thirty-one houses and damaged nearly 150 others, killing 124 persons and injuring eighty-three. Eight of the injured died later in hospitals.

Kyodo did not specify whether any of the fatalities were Americans.

MacArthur Closes Big Jap Drug Firm

Tokyo, Nov. 15 (AP)—A big Japanese drug concern was ordered closed today after Allied investigators discovered it had resumed production of semi-refined morphine hydrachloride in violation of a directive by General MacArthur.

Public health officers said the manufacturing process was complete from initial distillation of crude opium through all steps in the production of morphine except final purification. Japanese authorities said they thought the directive prohibited only completely processed morphine.

American military police were stationed in the plant, operated by Hoshi Drug Company, with instructions to "keep it shut down."

Angry Chinese Attack Jap Police Station

Tokyo, Nov. 15 (AP)—A hundred Chinese workers attacked and held for several hours a Japanese police station at Takayama, 200 miles southwest of Tokyo, the Kyodo News Agency reported today. American military police restored order. The agency said the attack made Tuesday night, was prompted by Chinese resentment over handbills accusing the Chinese of unspecified "illegal acts."

Rioters broke out all windows in the police station, and confined the chief, three assistants and one passerby. American military police rescued the captives and arrested 92 Chinese, Kyodo said.

TRIALS IN JAPAN SPEEDED

Keenan, U. S. Prosecutor for War Crimes Cases, Sees Truman

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—Swift action in the prosecution of major Japanese war criminals was promised today by Joseph B. Keenan, chief American prosecutor.

Mr. Keenan, a former assistant Attorney General of the United States, called on President Truman in company with Attorney General Tom C. Clark to discuss his mission. He will leave for Tokyo about Dec. 1.

"There will be swift action against the Japanese war criminals compatible with our ideas," Mr. Keenan told reporters.

11,149 Men On Way Back From Pacific

Yokohama, Nov. 15 (AP)—A total o 11,149 officers and men are on their way back to the United States aboard ships which sailed, loaded to capacity, the last few days.

The General Sturges is carrying 3,223 army and air corps personnel. The Laurens sailed with 1,321, together with navy men eligible for discharge. The Admiral Coontz carried 270 officers and 4,483 enlisted men. The George Elliot left yesterday with 110 officers and 1,742 enlisted men.

7 AIRMEN'S BODIES FOUND NEAR TOKYO

Yokohama, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—The bodies of seven American airmen, six with rope or wire around their necks, have been found in two crude graves near Tokyo, Eighth Army Headquarters said today.

Capt. Edgar L. Geinberg of Atlantic City, N. J., a member of the Forty-third General Hospital Staff, said the men were not hanged but that it had been impossible to determine the actual cause of their death.

PLAN CEMETERY

MANILA, Friday, Nov. 16—(AP) The Army today announced plans for a great east cemetery, similar to Arlington national cemetery, for fallen heroes of the Pacific war.

Located on the northern outskirts of Manila, it would have room for 40,000 graves. The ashes of thousands of prisoners of war who died in Japan and Okinawa will be enshrined in a mausoleum.

SOUGHT CANAL PLANS

Envoys Reported to Tokyo They Were Working with 'Influential' Persons.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 — (AP) The United States government was translating Japan's coded messages months before Pearl Harbor, knew she was spying on Hawaiian, Philippine and other defenses, and knew—well before the Dec. 7, 1941, raid on the Pacific base—that war was threatening.

Exhibits disclosed this officially today when put before the congressional committee investigating the disaster which plunged this country into war and temporarily broke the backbone of its Pacific fleet.

The exhibits, consisting of translations of coded messages, also revealed that Japanese envoys in Washington reported to Tokyo the day before Pearl Harbor that they had been working with "influential" individuals behind their "frontal negotiations" with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull.

NIGHT

ducing' at once between Japan and China. However, the President did not make known what he had in mind."

William D. Mitchell, the committee counsel, put the messages into the record as the committee moved haltingly through its first open session against a background of glaring Klieg lights for movie men." Surging throngs of spectators and fresh dickering between Republican and Democratic members of the investigating group.

Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, who were in command at Pearl Harbor when the attack was launched, were among the audience today.

Translations Exhibited

One exhibit, of 253 printed pages, was comprised of translations from intercepted diplomatic messages sent by Japan between July 1 and Dec. 8, 1941. The earliest was marked translated on Aug. 8, 1941, showing the diplomatic code was "broken" at least by that date.

The other, of 126 typed pages, was comprised of military messages, the earliest dating back to Dec. 2, 1940, and marked translated on Jan. 14, 1941.

As its initial witnesses, the committee heard Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis and Col. Bernard Thielen in what Mitchell termed a "narrative statement" concerning the military dispositions in Hawaii and what happened there on Dec. 7, 1941.

For the most part this was a summary of what had been made public previously in longer form in the reports from the Army and Navy boards which made investigations.

Neither witness was at Pearl Harbor at the time of the attack. They prepared their summaries from the records.

But even this non-controversial matter, as most of it was, brought a clash between Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) and the Democrats.

One of Inglis' aides, with a schoolmaster's pointer, was indicating on a big, easel-mounted map the direction from which the raiding Japanese planes came when Ferguson sought to ask a question.

"I raise a point of order," snapped Senator Lucas (D-Ill.)

Chairman Barkley (D-Ky) said Lucas was right, that a question from Ferguson would violate a committee rule that the counsel was to complete his examination before any member asked questions.

Ferguson protested but Barkley stood him down.

At the outset of the hearing, Senator Brewster (R-Maine) had protested its "premature" start, as did Ferguson. They said that it had been a physical impossibility for them to examine the exhibits beforehand and that hence they were not adequately prepared to cross-examine witnesses.

To Shield No One

Brewster insisted, too, that the record contain at its start Senate debate in which Barkley had insisted that he wanted a full investigation which would shield no one and a record of unsuccessful Republican efforts to be allowed to investigate, as individuals, government files.

When Mitchell introduced the translations of coded Japanese messages, Ferguson demanded to know whether they were "supposed to be complete." He and Brewster have contended that certain messages, notably a Tokyo broadcast, "East winds, raining," (described as the code for war with United States) are missing.

"I am not claiming anything is complete," Mitchell replied.

The thread of imminence of war ran through all the intercepted diplomatic messages in the days immediately before the Japanese attack.

Included were communications to and from capitals all over the world.

Message to Tokyo

These "influential" individuals were not named. An "urgent" message sent to Tokyo stated:

"In addition to carrying out front negotiations with the President and Hull, we have worked directly and indirectly through Cabinet members having close relations with the President and through individuals equally influential (because of its delicate bearing on the State department, please keep this point strictly secret.)"

"On the fourth," this message said, "those engaged in plan 'A' dined with the President and advised him against a Japanese-American war and urged him to do the 'intro-

NOV 16 1945

One, sent from Rome to Tokyo on Dec. 3, 1941, and translated here on Dec. 6, showed the Japanese ambassador had got down to "brass tacks" in an interview with Mussolini.

The ambassador reported:

"Should Japan declare war on the United States and Great Britain, I asked, would Italy do likewise immediately? Mussolini replied: 'Of course. She is obligated to do so under the terms of the tripartite pact. Since Germany would also be obliged to follow suit, we would like to confer with Germany on this point.'"

There were also communications dealing with instructions to Japanese authorities in the field in Asia.

One from Hsinking to Tokyo mentioned the event of war and said policy instructions were as follows: "On the outbreak of war with England and the United States, after you have at the appropriate time gathered all these nationals together, they are to be returned each to his own homeland at as early a date as possible." This was dated Nov. 28, 1941, and was translated Dec. 2. The nationals referred to were Britons and Americans in Manchuria.

This message added that "nationals of the Soviet or other third powers observed to be obnoxious characters with pro-British and American leanings are to be suitably taken care of."

Hoped Pope Would Intervene

Not translated until Dec. 26 was a Dec. 3 circular from Peking to Japanese commanders in China which showed the Japanese were hoping then that the Pope might intervene to bring a negotiated peace to the war they were planning.

"In order to end this affair in a profitable note for Japan, one need but remember that in the Russo-Japan war it was necessary to have President (Theodore) Roosevelt act as a peace mediator to appreciate that for the expected coming war the only one who can be imagined as an intermediary is the Pope.

"This fact should be kept in mind in any step which is taken in the occupied territory. And for this reason too the enemy's position should be considered and the handling of enemy churches, etc., in China should be carefully studied.

"It can be imagined that the next war is to be a longer one than the China incident, so that in this region the main issue should be the obtaining of materials. For this reason, the question of closed trade and methods of gathering materials should again be thoroughly studied."

As for the military messages, here are instructions sent from Tokyo to the Japanese military attache in Washington on Feb. 15, 1941:

"The information we particularly desire with regard to intelligence involving U. S. and Canada are the following:

"1. Strengthening or supplementing of military preparations on the Pacific coast and the Hawaii area; amount and type of stores and supplies; alterations to air ports (also carefully note the clipper traffic).

"2. Ship and plane movements (particularly of the large bombers and sea planes).

"3. Whether or not merchant vessels are being requisitioned by the government (also note any deviations from regular schedules), and whether any remodelling is being done to them.

"4. Calling up of army and navy personnel, their training, (outlook on maneuvers) and movements.

"5. Words and acts of minor army and naval personnel.

"6. Outlook of drafting men from the view-point of race. Particularly, whether negroes are being drafted, and if so, under what conditions.

"7. Personnel being graduated and enrolled in the Army and Navy and Aviation service schools.

"8. Whether or not any troops are being dispatched to the south Pacific by transports; if there are such instances, give description.

"9. Outlook of the developments in the expansion of arms and the production set-up; the capacity of airplane production; increase in the ranks of labor.

"10. General outlooks on Alaska and the Aleutian Islands, with particular stress on items involving plane movements and shipment of military supplies to those localities.

"11. Outlook on U. S. defense set-ups.

"12. Contacts (including plane connections) with central and South America and the South Pacific area. Also outlook on shipment of military supplies to those areas.

"Please forward copies of this message as a 'minister's instruction' to New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland (Chicago or New Orleans) Vancouver, Ottawa, and Honolulu. Also to Mexico City and Panama as reference material.

"We have decided to de-emphasize our propaganda work and strengthen our intelligence work in the U. S."

Other messages showed Japanese agents were closely following these instructions.

One message from Premier Tojo to spies in Honolulu on Dec. 2 (the exhibit said it was not translated until Dec. 30, three weeks after Pearl Harbor) said:

"In view of the present situation, the presence in port of warships, airplane carriers, and cruisers is of utmost importance. Hereafter, to the utmost of your ability, let me know day by day. Wire me in each whether or not there are any observation balloons above Pearl Harbor or if there are any indications that they will be sent up. Also advise me whether or not the warships are provided with anti-mine nets."

A message sent from Buenos Aires to Tokyo on Sept. 23, 1941, and decoded Oct. 22 showed the Japanese had obtained charts of the Panama Canal Zone—with the help of the Italian ambassador.

"When Minister Yamagata (Minister to Chile) was in Panama," it said, "he was asked by the Italian minister there to deliver some maps and charts of the Panama Canal zone for him, which he did. Since they, we had USUI go to Chile to then, we had Usui go to Chile to upon their arrival here they were delivered to the Italian ambassador. At the same time, we requested that we be given copies of them. Recently these copies were delivered to us."

Evidently, the Japanese did not trust the Italians completely. It was added that the assistant naval attache had ascertained that they were "exact copies of the originals."

Reports released heretofore have told of the destroyer Ward's sinking of a Japanese submarine at 6:45 a. m. (Pearl Harbor time) on the day of the Pearl Harbor attack. Inglis said today that "contact" with that submarine was established at 3:50 a. m.

The mine sweeper Condor, he related, sighted the periscope at the earlier hour when about one and three-quarters miles southwest of the Pearl Harbor buoys.

The Condor reported its discovery to the Ward, which was on patrol duty, and the Ward located the sub and attacked at 6:45 a. m.

Kurusu-Yamamoto Phone Talks As Reported at the Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP).—Japanese Peace Ambassador Kurusu called President Roosevelt "Miss Kimiko" and spoke of the possible outbreak of war as childbirth in a telephone talk with Tokyo just before the Pearl Harbor attack.

Congressional Pearl Harbor investigators today got the transcript of a "tapped" conversation Nov. 27, 1941, between Kurusu and Yamamoto, chief of the Japanese Foreign Office's American division. Here it is, including parenthetical decoding and comments by the interceptor:

Kurusu: "Hello, hello, this is Kurusu."

Yamamoto: "This is Yamamoto."

NOV 16 1945

Kurusu: "Yes, hello, hello."

(Unable to get Yamamoto for about six or eight seconds, he said aside, to himself, or to someone near him: "Oh, I see. they're making a record of this, huh?"

(It is believed he meant that the six-second interruption was made so that a record could be started in Tokyo.)

Kurusu: "Hello. Sorry to trouble you so often."

Yamamoto: "How did the matrimonial question get along today?" (Decode: "How did the negotiations go today?")

Kurusu: "Oh, haven't you got our telegram yet? It was sent—let me see—about about six—no, seven o'clock. Seven o'clock. About three hours ago.

"There wasn't much that was different from what Miss Umeko (Secretary Hull) said yesterday.

Yamamoto: "Oh, there wasn't much difference?"

Kurusu: "No, there wasn't. As before, that southward matter—that, south, south—southward matter, is having considerable effect. You know, southward matter."

(Obviously trying to indicate the serious effect that Japanese concentrations, etc., in French Indo-China were having on the conversations in Washington. He tries to do this without getting away from the "Miss Umeko Childbirth Marriage" characters of the voice code.)

Yamamoto: "Oh, the south matter? It's effective?"

Kurusu: "Yes, and at one time, the matrimonial question seemed as if it would be settled." (Decode: "Yes, and at one time it looked as if we could reach an agreement.")

Kurusu: "But—well, of course, there are other matters involved too, but—that was it—that was the monkey wrench. Details are included in the telegram which should arrive very shortly. It is not very long and you'll be able to read it quickly."

Yamamoto: "Oh, you've dispatched it?"

Kurusu: "Oh, yes, quite a while ago. At about 7 o'clock."

(Pause.)

Kurusu: "How do things look there? Does it seem as if a child might be born?" (Decode: "Does it seem as if a crisis is at hand?")

Yamamoto: (In a very definite tone): "Yes, the birth of the child seems imminent."

Kurusu: (In a somewhat surprised tone, repeating Yamamoto's statement):

"It does seem as if the birth is going to take place?"

(Pause.)

"In What Direction?"

Kurusu: "In what direction" . . .

(Stopped himself very abruptly at this slip which went outside the character of the voice code. After a slight pause he quickly recovered, then to cover up the slip, continued:)

Kurusu: "Is it to be a boy or a girl?"

Yamamoto: (Hesitated, then laughing at his hesitation, took up Kurusu's cue to re-establish the voice code character of the talk. The "boy, girl, healthy" byplay has no other significance):

Yamamoto: "It seems as if it will be a strong healthy boy."

Kurusu: "Oh, it's to be a strong healthy boy?"

(Rather long pause.)

Yamamoto: "Yes."

"Did you make any statement (to the newspapers) regarding your talk with Miss Kimiko today?" (Decode: "Did you make any statement regarding your talks with the President today?")

Kurusu: "No, nothing. Nothing except the mere fact that we met."

Yamamoto: "Regarding the matter contained in the telegram of the other day, although no definite decision has been made yet, please be advised that effecting it will be difficult."

"Oh, It Is Difficult, Huh?"

Kurusu: "Oh, it is difficult, huh?"

Yamamoto: "Yes, it is."

Kurusu: "Well, I guess there's nothing more that can be done then."

Yamamoto: "Well, yes." (Pause).

Yamamoto: "Then, today" . . .

Kurusu: "Today?"

Yamamoto: "The matrimonial question, that is, the matter pertaining to arranging a marriage—don't break them off." (Decode: "Regarding negotiations, don't break them off.")

Kurusu: "Not break them? You mean talks?"

(Helplessly:)

Kurushu: "Oh, my."

Pause and then with a resigned laugh:)

Kurusu: "Well, I'll do what I can."

(Continuing after a pause:)

Kurusu: "Please read carefully what Miss Kimiko (President Roosevelt) had to say as contained in today's telegram."

Yamamoto: "From what time to what time were your talks today?"

Kurusu: "Oh, today's was from 2:30."

(Much repeating of the numeral 2.)

Kurusu: "Oh, you mean the duration? Oh, that was for about an hour."

"The Matrimonial Question"

Yamamoto: "Regarding the matrimonial question" (Decode. "Regarding the negotiations.")

"I shall send you another message. However, please bear in mind that the matter of the other day is a very difficult one."

Kurusu: "But without anything—they want to keep carrying on the matrimonial question. They do. In the meantime we're faced with the excitement of having a child born. On top of that Tokugawa is really champing at the bit, isn't he? Tokugawa is, isn't he?" (Decode: "But without anything—they want to keep on negotiating. In the meantime we have a crisis on hand and the army is champing at the bit. You know the army."

(Laughter and pause.)

Kurusu: "That's why I doubt if anything can be done."

Yamamoto: "Well—we can't sell a mountain. (Decode: "Well—we can't yield").

Kurusu: "Oh, sure. I know that. That isn't even a debatable question any more."

Yamamoto: "Well, then, although we can't yield, we'll give you some kind of a reply to that telegram."

Kurusu: "In any event, Miss Kimiko (Roosevelt) is leaving town tomorrow, and will remain in the country until Wednesday."

Yamamoto: "Will you please continue to do your best."

Kurusu: "Oh, yes. I'll do my best. And Nomura's doing everything, too."

Yamamoto: "Oh, all right. In today's talks, there wasn't anything of special interest then?"

Kurusu: "No, nothing of particular interest, except that it is quite clear now that that southward—Ah—the South, the South matter is having considerable effect."

Yamamoto: "I see. Well, then, good by."

Kurusu: 'Good by."

Jap Notes Prior To Sneak Blow Disclosed

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—Japanese envoys in Washington reported to Tokyo the day before Pearl Harbor that they had been working with "influential" individuals behind their "frontal negotiations" with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull.

This was disclosed today in the release by the congressional committee investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster of intercepted diplomatic messages sent by the Japanese between July 1 and December 8, 1941.

Committee Counsel William D. Mitchell officially disclosed the breaking of the Japanese diplomatic code in the summer of 1941 when he placed a 253-page printed copy of intercepted messages into the record.

Hundreds pressed for vantage points as the public hearings into the disaster opened in the Senate Office Building caucus room.

One "urgent" secret message to Tokyo dated December 6 read:

"In addition to carrying on front negotiations with the President and Hull, we have worked directly and indirectly through Cabinet members having close relations with the President and through individuals equally influential (because of its delicate bearing upon the State Department, please keep this point strictly secret).

30.24 — 31657

Plans A And B

Up until this moment we have the following to report:

"(1) On the fourth those engaged in Plan (A) dined with the President and advised him against a Japanese-American war and urged him to do the 'introducing' at once between Japan and China. However, the President did not make known what he had in mind. According to these men, the attitude of the President is his usual attitude. Recently, when the President discussed matters with Lewis and settled the strike question, I understand that he did so on the advice of these individuals.

"(2) Those carrying on plan (B) included all of our proposal of November 20 into that of September 25 and after incorporating those sections in the United States's proposal of November 26 which are either innocuous or advantageous to us—(Message incomplete)."

Denied Starting War

Throughout the messages ran the Japanese contention that they weren't starting a war—that the United States and Britain were pushing them into it.

A December 7 message from Budapest to Tokyo said:

On the 6th, the American minister to the Government of this country a British Government communique to the effect that a state of war would break out on the 7th."

The Japanese consul at Honolulu was disclosed in another committee exhibit to have reported to Tokyo on December 6, 1941, that these vessels were in Pearl Harbor on that date:

"Nine battleships, three light cruisers, three submarine tenders, seventeen destroyers and, in addition, there were four light cruisers, two destroyers lying at docks (the heavy cruisers and airplane carriers have all left)."

"No Air Reconnaissance"

The message, intercepted by the Navy, added:

"It appears that no air reconnaissance is being conducted by the fleet air arm."

Notations in the exhibit showed this message was not translated until December 8.

Curiosity-drawn spectators filled seats and pressed for standing room today as a joint Senate-House committee opened public hearings on the disaster.

Available seats were filled long before the 10 A.M. starting hour in the big, ornate caucus room of the Senate Office Building which has a capacity of about 500.

Kleig lights glared over the room as newsreel men filmed the scene.

Kimmell And Short Present

Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, the naval commander at Pearl Harbor when the Japanese attacked, arrived early to claim a front-row seat. At a table near the witness chair, Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, the Hawaiian army commander of 1941, found a vantage point.

It was easily the year's biggest congressional show.

As Chairman Barkley (D., Ky.) called the inquiry committee into session Senators Ferguson (R., Mich.) and Brewster (R., Maine) protested that they had not had time to read all of the documents before the investigators.

Ferguson and Brewster told their colleagues that it had been "a physical impossibility" for them to read what Ferguson said were "more than 1,000 exhibits" placed in their hands in the last two days.

"All In The Same Fix"

Barkley replied that all committee members were in the same fix, adding that they probably can catch up on their reading as the hearings go along.

Shortly after the call to order, an electric fuse blew out and plunged the room into gloom.

Despite the absence of light and the Republican protests, Barkley ruled that the hearings would go on.

The special ten-man investigating committee—half from the Senate, half from the House—called its first witnesses just three years, eleven months and eight days after the Japanese attack.

First Witnesses

Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis and Col. Bernard Thielen headed the witness list. Inglis is chief of Naval Intelligence; Thielen is on the Army General Staff. Committee aides said neither was at Pearl Harbor when the Japs struck.

An 8-by-10-foot relief map of Oahu Island stood near the committee table at the front of the room.

Special rules have been adopted to expedite the hearing. Mitchell held that each witness should be allowed to deliver his statement without interruption, with later questioning and crossquestioning to be conducted by committee members in turn.

Lucas Urges Patience

Senator Lucas (D., Ill.), one of the committeemen asking patience from the public as the investigation unfolds, said:

"I think any honest American who wants to be enlightened is going to be satisfied as to just what happened, if he just keeps his shirt on.

"We want the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

GEN. EISENHOWER SAYS PEACETIME TRAINING VITAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP) Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told Congress today there is hope for perpetual peace, but America should keep her young men trained for war lest she be left "defenceless and naked before a future enemy."

A year's peacetime training for every youth of 18 is "imperative" for the safety of the nation, the five-star European commander testified to the House Military committee.

"If I didn't have hope for peace I wouldn't be here—I would have jumped out of my plane over the Atlantic," the general declared.

But, he said, hope isn't enough. The next aggressor will smash first at the United States from far away, he said. "We will not have time to train units before we are faced with the final issue of defeat or victory."

Eisenhower wouldn't say who he thought the next aggressor—if there is one—might be. In answer to questions by Rep. Thomas (R-N.J.), he said:

Britain will never go to war against the United States.

Russia has "not the slightest thing to gain" by attacking this nation and moreover "I'm convinced her policy is one of friendship with us."

Nevertheless, he reiterated, it would be "unconscionable" to gamble that we would have time to prepare after any future war breaks out.

"No one blow will ever force this nation to surrender," he said, "but a trained citizenry should be ready to rally, aid the wounded, put out the fires and fight back.

"It is just as necessary in my opinion to train the citizenry as it is to send them by compulsion to the first grade when they are six years old."

This pool of trained men is a key to world peace, Eisenhower insisted. He said the world would note and remember that the U. S. is ready and that alone would give backbone to the United Nations Organization for peace.

This war might never have happened if America had followed a peacetime military training plan, the general testified.

"I'm sure there wouldn't have been any Pearl Harbor," he said. "And Germany and Japan wouldn't have pursued the policies that drew us into war.

"They wouldn't have challenged us."

Flies From Europe

Eisenhower flew from Europe to testify in behalf of the training bill, now embroiled in controversy, and also tomorrow will tell senators that he favors merger of the Army and Navy into one department of national defense.

His appearance packed the big, roomy Ways and Means committee room. The audience applauded frequently as Eisenhower turned on his famous smile, strode up and down, and drove home his points in biting style. Invited to sit, he said he could think better on his feet and he remained militarily erect almost three hours.

The general said he felt it his "duty" to appear not only for himself but for the men he commanded. Every one of them that he spoke to, he said, wants a peacetime military training program.

"And if the mothers of this country understood the problem as well as I think I understand it, they wouldn't only be for it—they'd demand it," the general said.

Several opponents of the bill contended that the United Nations Organization and atomic warfare, diminished the need for many soldiers. Eisenhower said it was just the contrary.

Other nations fear now that this country may "go back to what they call isolation," he said. A training program would spike that.

As for the world peace organization, Eisenhower commented:

"I don't challenge the good faith of any member of the United Nations but the organization hasn't been set up yet, it isn't ready."

Rep. Harness (R-Ind.) wondered aloud why a year's training was necessary when some men went into combat in 17 weeks in this war.

Eisenhower replied that the war was won by hardened units that had several years training, that the six-months men were simply replacements here and there. The divisions that shot through France, the general said, "were the best the world ever has seen" but they had had a lot of battle experience long before that.

Eisenhower's Testimony

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—The text of General Eisenhower's prepared testimony today before the House Military Committee follows:

Gentlemen, in the interests of conciseness I have prepared a brief statement which I will read; then I would like to make a few extemporaneous remarks. After that, I will be glad to answer any questions.

I understand that the official views and detailed plans of the War Department are being presented to you by others.

I hope you will allow me to speak, not as a representative of the War Department but as a citizen and as a professional soldier to whom has been given a peculiar opportunity to participate in the greatest effort ever made by our citizen-soldiery. My personal views are largely based on that unique experience.

Teamwork Emphasized

The men who won the victories of Africa, Sicily, Italy, France and Germany were able to do so solely because of their individual and unit training—their ability to work as a team.

The long periods spent in training camps in the United States and in England were essential to the perfection of this teamwork. Thereafter, brief battle-hardening, and our teams were suberb! Certain phases of this training are highly technical, involving radar, signal communications, air operations, construction, transportation and ordnance.

All this work is interdependent, and each part is vital to success. All of it was minutely geared to an equally complex schedule of tactical ground-force movements which required perfect unit training and above all—timing.

Time has always been of the essence in warfare but never was it more essential than in our most recent war. With the introduction of atomic and electronic warfare and the astounding advances being made almost hourly in aerial warfare, the tempo is increasing in geometric progression.

'Must Be Prepared'

If war comes to us again, the fact seems inescapable that we will not have time to train units before we are faced with the final issue of defeat or victory. Certainly it would be unconscionable to gamble on a fortuitous recurrence of the time to prepare bought by the blood of our allies in 1917 and in 1942.

We must be prepared on M-day—the day the enemy strikes—or we may never be prepared to avert defeat at the hands of any aggressor who uses against us the weapons of the future. Our weapons must be better than theirs on that day, our resources must be promptly available and, above all, our manpower must have already been trained.

This training must be given in time of peace. Without a standing army of prohibitive size, this can be accomplished by training our civilian reserve, our citizen army. The most democratic way to do this is by universal military training, in which every able-bodied young man is fitted to discharge his duty to protect our freedom.

Backs Recommendations

This has been the ultimate solution in every major military crisis this country has faced. The only difference now, and the great lesson of World War II, is that it must be done before—not after the first shot is fired.

I understand that to be the issue before this committee. Although I know the general plans, I have not had time to familiarize myself with all the working details of the War Department's plan for universal military training, nor am I familiar with the testimony already presented to this committee.

However, I am familiar with the President's message and with the Woodrum committee report. I cannot state too emphatically my concurrence with the recommendations contained in those documents. On the basis of my obligation to the 3,000,000 Americans that served under me in Europe, I strongly urge their early adoption.

Veterans As Reserve

Upon the expiration of selective service we should be prepared to commence the training of young men who did not form a part of the armed forces in this war.

Although the veterans of this war constitute at this moment a splendidly trained reserve, we must keep it constantly and currently reinforced by younger increments trained in all the most advanced techniques which research and development in the technology of warfare are bringing forth at such a rapid rate.

We must train them to avert World War III, not refight World War II.

I believe that every combat leader in our armed forces agrees that success is possible only when the mass of the Army is composed of the younger men. They are more readily adaptable to combat conditions and possess more vigor and dash.

Certainly, the technical services must comprehend a high proportion of younger men who are capable of mastering the radically new techniques of future warfare.

Alternatives Listed

Therefore, it is a matter of necessity as well as fairness to add increments of currently trained young men to the civilian reserve. The alternatives are the criminal sacrifice of untrained young men, or calling on unfair proportions of older men who have already done their duty.

In either event we would be without the services of trained technical specialists, who will only be found among the younger men.

I have been privileged to represent the United States in a responsible position in the armed forces of the United Nations. In this capacity, I am intimately familiar with the attitude of the leaders of the other nations to the armed forces of the United States.

This familiarity assures me that in their minds there exists no fear of our motivcs in keeping ourselves strong. It is my personal opinion that the greatest single motivating force for world peace today is the organized military potential of the United States—its resources, its technological advancement and its superbly trained manpower.

This organization is being demobilized at an unprecedented rate but its potential for the maintenance of peace will continue so long as the world is convinced of our willingness and ability to vitalize it in time to meet any threat of aggression from any other power.

"Greatest Assurance"

This is our greatest assurance of keeping the peace for which we fought. Far from being contrary to the purposes and intent of the United Nations Organization, I consider it to be essential to the success ofthat organization.

I know of no better or more democratic way to demonstrate our willingness and ability than to adopt now a program of universal military training.

It is eminently fair to our citizen army who fought and won this war, in two ways: First, it is the best way of assuring them that they did not fight in vain; second, it will relieve them in the shortest possible time of continuing to bear the burden, as the current trained civilian reserve, of defending the peace.

Gentlemen—I have heard many arguments about the desirability or undesirability of universal military service from a moral, educational and religious standpoint. These factors have always been of the greatest concern to me in the discharge of my functions of command.

Must Face The Facts

There is no question but that the sum-total of these values makes up the very essence of the thing we fought to preserve—our American way of life. But the facts of today must be faced.

The preservation of our way of life in a world which twice within a single generation has fought to virtual exhaustion depends squarely upon the national security. That is a truism.

I sincerely believe that the only practicable way to assure the national security is by peacetime military training, and that this must be universal.

No practicable alternative, that I have heard of, has ever been suggested. Therefore, I believe arguments as to the incidental disadvantages or benefits to be foreign to the main issue.

I feel completely confident that the Congress can provide all the necessary safeguards to prevent abuses of a method forced upon us by a necessity which must be faced.

"State Of Helplessness"

I feel sure that no true American would be willing to take on his own shoulders the awful responsibility for actively prohibiting all training and thus leaving our country defenseless and naked before a future enemy armed with the weapons of that day.

But our fighting forces in war are always made up of civilians, so a failure to provide for the training of the civilian reserve amounts to nothing less than condemning us to such a state of helplessness.

A large standing army would certainly be much more objectionable on all of those grounds, even if it were not economically impossible to maintain one of sufficient size without impoverishing the country.

An aspect of this whole problem that deeply concerns me is that of the rights and the best interests of the young men destined to receive the training.

Training Stressed

I wonder whether any honest opponent of peacetime training has any clear conception of the difference between the trained and untrained men on the battlefield?

In terms of the larger issue of victory or defeat, comparison is scarcely possible, because in modern war it is not possible to win without training.

But in the more personal matter of the individual's chances for survival I should say that the trained combat soldier has at least three times the chances of the untrained to live to become a veteran!

I have sincerely searched my mind on this whole problem. Through the past three and a half years the picture of the progressive destruction of civilization which war brings was constantly before me. I keenly felt the burden of the terrible responsibility I bore.

I shuddered particularly at the thought how close our own beloved country came to being afflicted with the same devastation and our own people with the same indescribable sufferings that came to the peoples of Europe.

Praises Nation's Allies

I know that if it had not been for the time given us by the almost superhuman efforts of our allies, we would not have been able to mobilize our resources or to train our men to avert disaster.

I know that the nature of the weapons available to future aggressors make it ridiculous to hope that we will somehow miraculously be given this same time again. Our resources must be already available, our weapons must be second to none in speed and effectiveness.

This means that we must be preeminent in technical research and in industrial mobilization, and we must have a trained force large enough to make our resources and weapons instantly available for our needs.

Thus we will be a potent power to preserve the peace, and in position to act swiftly in our own preservation if the tragedy of war again appears.

I do not see how we can escape the inexorable logic of the fact that if we are to attain and maintain this reasonable and necessary position, we must have a trained reserve of citizens in being. This means that we must train them in peacetime.

GEN. EISENHOWER SAYS REDS SEEK U. S. FRIENDSHIP

Tells Congress Russia Has Nothing to Gain by Clash of Arms.

Washington, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told Congress today that Russia has not the slightest thing to gain by war with the United States and wants to be a friend.

He added: "There will never be a war between Great Britain and the United States."

Testifying in support of President Truman's request for universal military training, Eisenhower told the House Military Committee:

"I believe Russia's policy is friendship with the United States. There is in Russia a desperate and continuing concern for the lot of the common man, and they want to be friends with the United States."

The General said he knew that some Russians are concerned over criticism of the Soviets by the United States press. But he added it is difficult for Russians to understand a free press as it operates in the United States.

Questioned by Thomas.

His references to the possibility of war with Great Britain or Russia were made in response to questions by committee members, principally Representative Parnell Thomas (R.-N. J.), who asked:

"Who do we have as potential aggressors?"

Eisenhower would not specify any nation, because he said he could not foretell international developments, adding that years ago none thought we would be at war with Germany or Japan. Right now, he said, "there is no one nation in the world that can challenge a prepared America."

He cautioned that the development of war technics would give the United States no time to prepare if it were attacked again.

"With the introduction of atomic and electronic warfare and the astounding advances being made almost hourly in aerial warfare, the tempo is increasing in geometric progression," Eisenhower asserted.

"If war comes to us again the fact seems inescapable that we will not have time to train units before we are faced with the final issue of defeat or victory.

"Certainly it would be unconscionable to gamble on a fortuitous recurrence of the time to prepare bought by the blood of our Allies in 1917 and in 1942.

"We must be prepared on M day—the day the enemy strikes—or we may never be prepared to avert defeat at the hands of any aggressor who uses against us the weapons of the future."

Urges Constant Training.

Eisenhower contended that trained man power and technological advancement are "our greatest assurance of keeping the peace for which we fought."

Upon expiration of Selective Service, the General said, the nation should be prepared to start training young men who have had no military experience.

Although veterans of this war constitute a trained reserve, he said, "we must keep it constantly and currently reinforced by younger increments trained in all the most advanced technics which research and development in the technology of warfare" are bringing forth.

"We must train them to avert world war III, not re-fight world war II," Eisenhower said. Added the General:

"I feel sure that no true American would be willing to take on his own shoulders the awful responsibility for actively prohibiting all training and thus leaving our country defenseless and naked before a future enemy armed with the weapons of that day."

Eisenhower said that in his position overseas he was intimately familiar with the attitude of other United Nations leaders toward the armed forces of the United States.

U. S. Motives Not Feared.

The readiness of the United States to meet any threat of aggression, said Eisenhower, is "essential to the success" of the United Nations organization.

For the five star general his appearance before the House Military Committee was his first as a Congressional witness since he took command of the Allied forces that crushed Germany.

Big Room Is Provided.

To accommodate the crowd Representative May of Kentucky, the committee chairman, moved the day's session into the big Ways and Means Committee room in the House office building.

In supporting President Truman's request for compulsory peacetime military training for 18- and 19-year-olds, Eisenhower follows in the footsteps of his civilian leader, Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson. The General's position in favor of universal training as the keystone of a national defense program was made clear to Congress last June. He stated his views at that time by letter from the European battlefields to the House Post-war Military Policy Committee.

Russia's UNRRA Role Under Scrutiny

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—Russia's role in the UNRRA program came under scrutiny today in Congress.

The scrutiny was prompted by two Republican members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which is holding hearings on a bill to give the agency another $1,350,000,000.

Representatives Chiperfield (Ill.) and Jonkman (Mich.) told a reporter they want to know:

1. More about a purported "secret letter" in which Chiperfield says the Russians "refused to invite" the UNRRA to help out in Soviet-occupied Germany.

2. Why Congress was not consulted about a contemplated program of $250,000,000 aid for two Soviet republics, the Ukraine and White Russia.

Chiperfield's Comment

Chiperfield made the first public reference to the "confidential letter" at a hearing yesterday. He said he would ask further questions today.

Meanwhile, he asserted "it is my understanding that displaced persons from the Russian zone who walk into our zone are not taken care of, but must be sent back to the Russians. I think we should find out about this."

"Debtors Ruling Creditors"

Jonkman added that he planned to question witnesses "about the broad authority assumed by UNRRA without authorization from Congress." He added:

"I particularly want to know more about the voting power in the UNRRA council. It seems to me we have something of a case here of the debtors telling the creditors who shall get the money."

Along the same line, Chiperfield commented:

"It seems odd that even though the Russians refused to ask UNRRA into occupied Germany the agency went ahead and voted money for two Soviet republics."

"No New Obligations"

Under Secretary of State Dean Acheson told the committee yesterday that "no new obligations have been assumed." He said Congress had the right, if it wished, to vote down additional funds.

Assistant Secretary of State Will Clayton testified that Russia at first asked $750,000,000 in UNRRA assistance, but reduced the request after he protested. Clayton said that member governments of UNRRA had determined that the two Russian republics "require the limited assistance requested."

'Iron Curtain of Secrecy' Hampers Worldwide Peace

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP) Calling for a world-wide free press, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) appealed today for a lifting of the "iron curtains of secrecy" which he said make international confidence impossible.

Although his plea, in a speech from the Senate floor, was addressed to all the nations, Vandenberg directed a large portion at Russia.

"The truth," he said, "is that the iron curtain has been one of the greatest obstacles to the Soviet-American liaison upon which so much of the world's hope for peace and progress depends."

NOV 16 1945

"The mutual disclosure of free information and the liberty of a world-wide free press are becoming increasingly indispensable to the successful operation of an interdependent world society.

"This is no longer just an altruistic theory. It has come to be a matter of grim reality. 'Black-outs' make international confidence impossible."

Was Charter Delegate

Vandenberg's stature within his party and the Senate added weight to his words. He is chairman of the Republican Senate conference, a member of the Foreign Relations committee, and served as a delegate to the San Francisco conference which wrote the United Nations Charter.

"There can be no dark corners in an atomic age," he declared. He noted that "even those" who want to internationalize atomic secrets never fail to assert the necessity for unlimited, world-wide mutual inspection and the unlimited exchange of information on the subject.

"It would be absolutely unthinkable," Vandenberg declared, "that we and our British and Canadian associates would voluntarily or consciously permit any nation to take this so-called 'secret' behind an iron curtain which blacks out all information as to what is being done with it."

Vandenberg said Generalissimo Stalin was reported to have told Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) recently that the Soviet Union should be judged objectively; upon facts, not rumors.

"It seems to me that in this instance Marshal Stalin and I are asking for precisely the same thing," Vandenberg said.

"But how can we judge the Soviets objectively—how can we separate 'facts' from 'rumors'—if the Soviets themselves discourage us from doing so?"

But Vandenberg opposed limiting the use of UNRRA funds to countries which permit free access to news about the relief work.

"The iron curtain is in the control of governments," he observed. "It is the people in these areas who die for want of bread. They do not control the curtain."

In passing a $550,000,000 UNRRA appropriation, now before a Senate committee, the House inserted a restriction against the use of the funds in countries where American reporters are denied free access to news about the relief activities.

While Vandenberg would not agree to the proviso, he said the House had rendered a real service by "bringing this desperately important subject squarely into the open."

Assistant Secretary of State Will H. Clayton told Congress meanwhile he will try to keep UNRRA from being used as "a political tool."

He made this pledge in response to an assertion by Rep. Mundt (R-S.D.) that Russian officials are controlling UNRRA aid in some countries. Mundt declared that Russian officials were in charge of UNNRA missions in Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

The exchange took place at a House Foreign Affairs committee hearing on a second $1,350,000,000 contribution to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Reps. Chiperfield (R-Ill.) and Jonkman (R-Mich.) told a reporter they wanted more information about Russia's role. They said they specifically wanted to know: (1) Why Congress had not been asked about a $250,000,000 aid program for White Russia and the Ukraine; (2) More about a purported "secret letter" in which Chiperfield contended the Russians "refused to invite" UNRRA to operate in Soviet-occupied Germany.

Sees Atom in Industry Soon

Physicist Says Unhampered Development Could Harness Power Within Decade.

Chicago, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—A nuclear physicist declared today that atomic energy could be available for industrial uses within the next decade provided developments in the atomic field are allowed to flourish unhampered by military restrictions or Government control.

NOV 16 1945

Clark Goodman of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute, said that he believed problems affecting utilization of atomic energy could be solved in a reasonably short time.

"The question will then be: Can atomic power compete with petroleum, coal and water power on an economic basis?" Goodman said, adding "too many unknowns are involved to allow other than speculations, but in all likelihood the answer will not be clearcut.

Sees Uranium Competing.

"Inasmuch as coal is the most economical fuel for large installations, it would appear that natural uranium piles may compete with coal, particularly in the generation of electric power. The piles could be located near populated areas, but sufficiently remote to prevent radiation hazards.

"The heat released would be used to produce steam to drive turbo-electric generators. . . . Some of the heat from these large piles also might be used to operate thermal or diffusion plants for separating U235 from uranium."

Goodman asserted that natural uranium and graphite piles, which he said may compete with coal, were far too bulky to be used in units for mobile power.

"But with the decrease in size of power units," he asserted, "the competition with petroleum would probably begin in replacing fuel oil in large transports and naval vessels.

No Immediate Threat.

The M. I. T. physicist said that "within the bounds of available information, it would appear that petroleum and coal will probably continue for at least another generation as the primary sources of energy for transportation and heating.

"Water power and coal," he added, "will probably generate most of the electricity during the next fifty years.

Vice-Admiral Ben Moreel, chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, asserted that if another war comes, the Army and Navy would require not less than 2,000,000,000 barrels of oil a year of sustained production, the amount used at the peak of world war II.

In expanding resources at home and abroad, Moreel said, the Government "should lend its aid to industry, and in the field of synthetic fuels it should be prepared to underwrite plants which will insure production on a commercial scale."

'DOUBLE VETO' PLAN ADOPTED

Byrd Triumphs On Reorganization Powers For Truman

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—Former Democratic cronies of President Truman scored a 37-to-26 victory in the Senate today on his request for broad powers to reorganize the Federal Government.

They wrote into reorganization legislation an amendment that would allow any presidential plan for revamping the executive branch to become effective after 60 days unless rejected by both the Senate and House.

It was a triumph for Senator Byrd (D., Va.), veteran economy advocate. He was author of the amendment requiring what opponents termed the "double veto" by Congress.

"I have talked this over with Harry Truman," the Virginia Senator said. "He has assured me he favors reorganization for economy and efficiency."

Donnell Leads Opposition

The favorable vote on the Byrd amendment defeated an attempt by Senator Donnell (R., Mo.) to require positive approval by both Senate and House of any Truman plan for reshaping government.

Donnell, with verbal aid of Senator Taft (R., Ohio) and other Republicans, argued for several days that the double-veto idea was unconstitutional and an abdication of the congressional power to legislate.

Byrd and other Democrats replied that Congress for 100 years had been trying to reorganize government with zero results.

Voting against Byrd were two Democrats Wheeler (Mont.) and O'Daniel (Texas); the lone Progressive, La Follette (Wis.), and 23 Republicans.

Radcliffe Wins; Tydings Irked

With this out of the way Senator Radcliffe (D., Md.) won a 30-to-25 roll call for adding the Maritime Commission to the list of fourteen other Federal agencies which the President could not touch under the Senate bill.

This brought a shouting protest from Senator Tydings, Radcliffe's colleague from Maryland.

Tydings said every senator was always criticizing the tremendous bureaucracy but when a vote came on some pet agency "we scuttle like a bunch of rats."

"We ought not to have one exemption," he shouted, swinging his long arms. "We are tying the President's hands and feet, putting blindfolds over his eyes and cotton in his ears."

Tydings And Donnell Clash

Senators Donnell and Taft accused Tydings of being "inconsistent." They read Senate speeches he made in 1939 opposing a similar grant of power to the late President Roosevelt.

Tydings replied that the late President Roosevelt always had favored bigger government, but a different President now was in the White House.

As for Senator Donnell, Tydings said that if the words spoken by the Missouri Senator had been "coined into dollar bills they would have paid the huge war debt."

Tydings suggested the Missouri Senator look in a mirror.

"He will see himself with the cornucopia of plenty in one hand and an empty saucepan of a three hundred billion dollar debt in the other, astride a mule labeled 'waste and extravagance' and trying to go two directions at once," Tydings declared.

Byrd Points To Pay Roll

During the day Byrd, as chairman of the joint economy committee, reported there were 22,213 more people on the Federal civilian pay roll in September than in May, when the European war ended.

The total was 3,491,000, including 733,792 War Department employés outside the continental United States, and 53,277 regular part-time and substitute postal employés whom the Post Office Department previously had not been reporting. A committee member said the additional postal employés were not included in the increase total.

Byrd said the September total was within four per cent of 158,769 names, of the all-time high employment mark in August. He added the force could be cut to 1,000,000 persons without impairing any essential functions.

Government Told It Should Quit Oil Business

NOV 16 1945

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—An oil industry representative told a Senate committee today that the Government should get out of the business of operating refineries, pipelines and other Federally owned oil facilities.

All such surplus property commercially usable should be sold, W. Alton Jones, president of War Emergency Pipelines, Inc., told the special Senate committee investigating petroleum resources.

Emergency Pipelines, Inc., operates the Government-owned "big inch" and "little big inch" lines running from Texas to New York and Philadelphia. The question of whether these should be shut down, leased or sold has caused considerable debate in Congress.

"Costs More Than Recovered"

Jones, who also is president of Cities Service Company, suggested that "the money expended by the Government for constructing such lines could well be charged to cost of conducting the war. Their costs have been more than recovered by savings to the Government in cost of moving oil delivered to the East Coast."

Speaking as chairman of an industry committee appointed by the National Oil Trade Association, Jones summarized its recommendations as follows:

1. The Government should discontinue operating surplus facilities because "free enterprise cannot endure with Government as a competitor."

Opposes Leasing

2. Facilities "commercially and economically usable in normal peacetime operations should be sold." Plants should not be leased to private operators because this "would in effect continue the Government in business."

3. Facilities not commercially usable should be closed, but "adequately protected so that they would be immediately available in the event of another emergency."

4. "Sale of surplus facilities should be handled in such a manner as not to disrupt the normal functionings of the industry."

5. "Facilities should not be sold on a basis which would give purchasers unfair competitive advantages."

Would Avoid Monopolies

6. "No sales should be made which tend to create monopolies. For example, if utilized at all for oil transportation, Government pipelines must operate as common carriers, available to all independents as well as to the major companies."

7. "For the most part these Government-built plants and facilities have served their purpose. They are, in a sense, expendables. . . . We try to salvage, to reclaim waste. This is right and proper, but perspective should be preserved. We should not lose sight of the larger peacetime objective, a greater national income, productive work for anyone who wants it, the nation's solvency preserved."

10 PCT. PAY BOOST OFFER IS REJECTED BY AUTO WORKERS

Union Turns Down Compromise, Stands Firm for 30 Pct. Demand.

RENEW DISCUSSIONS

Auto Firm Executive Says Increase Would Be Cited to OPA.

DETROIT, Nov. 15.—(AP) The United Auto Workers (CIO) today flatly rejected a general 10 per cent wage increase offered by General Motors as a compromise on the union's demands for a 30 per cent boost.

The action, announced by Walter Reuther, UAW-vice president in charge of General Motors negotiations, came a short while after the company increased its previous offer of eight to ten per cent increases for the majority of the company's workers.

Reuther, terming the latest company offer "a streamlined approach to inflation" declared that if General Motors "raises its auto prices one cent, the UAW will go into court and get an injunction to stop such action."

Harry Anderson, General Motors vice president, commenting on the threat of court action, said, "if the OPA sets up prices, I don't see how any court could take seriously any injunction request from the union."

Anderson said the 10 per cent wage increase would be presented to the OPA as part of the production cost data being compiled to aid the OPA in setting new car prices.

Resume Discussions

The latest exchanges on the General Motors-UAW front came as both sides resumed discussions on the union's 30 per cent demands.

Meanwhile, in another development on the General Motors wage discussions, Neil Brant, international representative of the CIO United Electrical Workers announced the company had offered a similar 10 per cent compromise offer of the UEW's demands for a $2 a day increase. Brant said the union will give its answer next week.

Questioned about reports that the Flint, Mich., General Motors UAW local has made preparations for a strike if the 30 per cent is not forthcoming, Reuther said:

"If there is one thing our locals do not lack it is initiative. However, it is unrealistic not to prepare for any possible developments."

Reuther said final decision on any strike action is vested in the union's special six-man strategy committee which meets in Detroit Monday.

Reuther asserted, however, that "every possible effort will be made to settle this thing across the conference table."

In another major development on Detroit's auto front, the Ford Motor company demanded that the union offer it guarantees against work stoppages and assurances of increased productivity by union workers.

The Ford proposal, made in advance of the opening of similar negotiations next Tuesday, demanded assurances of "company security" equal to that given the union in the four-year-old contract that provides for a union shop and check-off of union dues.

Also contained in the Ford proposals addressed to Richard T. Leonard, UAW-CIO director for the Ford company, was a suggestion that the union be required "to reimburse the company for any damages it may suffer by reason of the provision prohibiting strikes and other interferences with production."

The company also asserted that it does not believe the present "is the time to attempt to settle on general wage increases."

Leonard assailed the Ford statement as a "union-busting and strife-provoking document."

"The company's statement," he said, "makes it clear that the Ford company has joined the conspiracy of profit-swollen corporations to perpetuate present starvation wages or open the gates to inflation through unjustified price increases. x x x

"We had hoped our differences with the company could be peaceably adjusted during negotiations. But the company, without waiting for negotiations to begin or making any attempt whatever to determine if our problems could be settled by collective bargaining, comes out with a wild and threatening attack upon the union.

"This is certainly not bargaining in good faith. The only interpretation we can put on the statement is that the company is anxious to provoke a strike. x x x

"The company claims its security has been injured by work stoppages since 1941. There is a very simple way to avoid work stoppages. That is to stop provoking them. Every work stoppage in Ford plants has been provoked by unfair practices of management. We also challenge the statement that there have been 773 stoppages since 1941. That is the greatest kind of exaggeration. The company must have blamed on the union every occasion in which management closed down a department, a section of a department, a plant, or sent a handful of workers home.

Other Labor News Included

Two strikes were added to the national list yesterday (Thursday) but settlement of others kept the total number of workers involved around 275,000.

Production was halted at the Eclipse Machine division of Bendix Aviation corporation, Elmira Heights, N. Y., when 800 day shift workers joined 400 others in a strike by the CIO United Automobile workers for a change in shift hours. The strikers want three eight-hour shifts instead of two of ten hours.

About 500 persons were affected by a walkout of Boeing Aircraft supervisors in the Seattle and Renton, Wash., plants. The supervisors were protesting an arbiter's decision that downgraded supervisors were ineligible for jobs under the jurisdiction of the Aero Mechanics union when union members are available.

The Alaska steamship company reported schedules for the movement of 1,283 troops southbound and 1,437 northbound had been tied up by a union dispute over overtime and use of passenger dining rooms of ships for meetings at sea. Seventy-one CIO union members were involved.

One ship was tied up and the crew paid off. Five others were idle and one undergoing repairs.

In Battle Creek, Mich., CIO cereal workers ended their two-month strike at General Foods corporation but the company estimated a week would be needed to prepare the plant for resumption of operations. About 1,500 workers were involved in the strike for a 25 cents an hour wage increase. The union accepted the company offer of 15 to 18 cents.

A sympathy strike of about 200 United Cement workers ended at the Dewey-Portland Cement company plant near Davenport, Iowa. They had been out a month in support of strikers at the company's plant in Dewey, Okla.

Most of the nationwide total of inactive workers were involved in big continuing strikes. The numbers involved in these included 60,000 San Francisco bay area factory workers; 27,000 CIO glass workers, and 26,000 CIO textile workers in the east and south.

The CIO Fur and Leather workers union reported "100 per cent support" by 57,000 to 63,000 workers in 16 states of its one-day protest stoppage. The union said employes of about 250 leather plants in 62 cities were involved in the demonstration for a 30 per cent wage increase.

Ford Demands Union Assume Responsibilities

Sees Company's Future at Stake; Rejects Proposal for General Wage Rise

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Nov. 15.—The Ford Motor Company demanded today that the Congress of Industrial Organization United Automobile Workers give "effective guaranties against work stoppages and for increased productivity" by union workers.

Asserting that four years of a union shop and dues check-off contract had not brought peaceful relations, the management informed the union that unless it recognized and fulfilled "a responsibility of its own, the very future of the Ford Motor Co. is at stake."

The company's position was outlined in a letter addressed to Richard T. Leonard, U. A. W. Ford director. The letter proposed thirty-one modifications in the union contract to be considered at negotiations on the union's 30 per cent wage rate increase opening next Tuesday.

Of the wage demands, the letter said: "We do not believe that this is the time to attempt to settle on general wage increases. They would have to be based on guesses of what our volume of production and our costs are going to be. . . . We feel a general increase such as you propose would amount to a very heavy mortgage on the future of all of us—the Ford Motor Co. and its employees alike."

In another major development on Detroit's automobile front, the U. A. W. flatly rejected today a general 10 per cent wage rate increase offered by the General Motors Corporation as a compromise on the union's demand for 30 per cent.

The action, announced by Walter Reuther, U. A. W. vice-president in charge of General Motors negotiations, came a short while after the company increased its previous offer of 8 to 10 per cent increases for the majority of the company's workers.

Mr. Reuther, terming the latest company offer "a streamlined approach to inflation," declared that if General Motors "raises its auto prices one cent, the U. A. W. will go into court and get an injunction to stop such action."

Harry Anderson, General Motors vice-president, commenting on the threat of court action, said, "if the O. P. A. sets up prices, I don't see how any court could take seriously any injunction request from the union."

Mr. Anderson said the 10 per cent wage increase would be presented to the Office of Price Administration as part of the production-cost data being compiled to aid the O. P. A. in setting new car prices.

The latest exchanges on the General Motors-U. A. W. front came as both sides resumed discussions on the union's 30 per cent demands.

Meanwhile, in another development on the General Motors wage discussions, Neil Brant, international representative of the C. I. O. United Electrical Workers announced that the company had offered a similar 10 per cent compromise offer on the U. E. W.'s demands for a $2-a-day increase. Mr. Brant said the union will give its answer next week.

Questioned about reports that the Flint, Mich., General Motors U. A. W. local has made preparations for a strike if the 30 per cent is not forthcoming, Mr. Reuther said: "If there is one thing our locals do not lack it is initiative. However, it is unrealistic not to prepare for any possible developments."

Mr. Reuther said final decision on any strike action is vested in the union's special six-man strategy committee, which meets in Detroit Monday.

Mr. Reuther asserted, however, that "every possible effort will be made to settle this thing across the conference table."

Also contained in the Ford proposals addressed to the U. A. W.'s Mr. Leonard was a suggestion that the union be required "to reimburse the company for any damages it may suffer by reason of violations of the provision prohibiting strikes and other interferences with production."

Mr. Leonard assailed the Ford statement as a "union-busting and strike-provoking document."

"The company's statement," he said, "makes it clear that the Ford company has joined the conspiracy of profit-swollen corporations to perpetuate present starvation wages or open the gates to inflation through unjustified price increases. . . .

"We had hoped our differences with the company could be peaceably adjusted during negotiations. But the company, without waiting for negotiations to begin or making any attempt whatever to determine if our problems could be settled by collective bargaining, comes out with a wild and threatening attack upon the union.

This is certainly not bargaining in good faith. The only interpretation we can put on the statement is that the company is anxious to provoke a strike. . . .

"The company claims its security has been injured by work stoppages since 1941. There is a very simple way to avoid work stoppages. That is to stop provoking them. Every work stoppage in Ford plants has been provoked by unfair practices of management. . . . We also challenge the statement that there have been 773 stoppages since 1941. That is the grossest kind of exaggeration. The company must have blamed on the union every occasion in which management closed down a department, a section of a department, a plant, or sent a handful of workers home."

Mr. Leonard attacked as "distorted and misleading" the company statement that it had collected a total of $7,799,924.65 in union dues, initiation fees and special assessments from August 1941, through October, 1945.

"The U. A. W.-C. I. O. dues are $1 a month and there are very few assessments, and they are never more than a dollar," Mr Leonard asserted.

Phone, Shipyard Walkouts Are Threatened

[By the Associated Press]

New strike threats affecting communications and shipping arose today. Work stoppages throughout the country were already keeping 275,000 men and women idle.

A strike of more than 7,000 long-distance telephone operators in Illinois, disrupting service in Chicago and about 100 other communities in Illinois and Indiana, was indicated after a breakdown in wage negotiations.

West Coast Phone Trouble

In San Francisco William Burke, of the CIO American Communications Association said the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company had refused to negotiate or arbitrate on the union's demand for a twenty per cent wage increase for long distance telephone maintenance workers. He said there appeared "no hope of averting a walkout," which would cripple long-distance telephone and radio service on the Pacific Coast.

Also in San Francisco, the AFL steamfitters local urged that strike action be taken by November 25 by all AFL shipyard workers on the Pacific Coast. Of the 60,000 persons idle in the San Francisco Bay area because of a strike of AFL and CIO machinists, about 5,000 are steamfitters. The local recommended to the AFL Metal Trades Council that demands be made for 40 per cent wage increases.

Passenger Ships Tied Up

In Seattle, the Alaska Steamship Company's entire passenger fleet was tied up in a union dispute involving issues of overtime and the use of passenger dining rooms for meeting at sea.

The CIO International Woodworkers of America, meeting in Eugene, Ore., voted to cancel the wartime no-strike pledge from all contracts in the United States and Canada. The union also approved a 6-hour day and 30-hour week.

Two new strike votes were reported. Members of the CIO Packinghouse Workers at the Kansas City stockyards voted 222 to 8 to strike if called out by the national union officers in support of an industry-wide demand for a 25-cent-an-hour wage boost.

Typewriter Strike Voted

CIO-organized production workers at the plant of the Royal Typewriter Company in Hartford, Conn., balloted 1,797 to 170 for a general walkout to enforce demands for a closed shop, check off and a $2 a day wage hike. No date was set for the walkout.

Twenty-two independent bakeries in San Francisco that had been closed since Saturday by a walkout of AFL drivers in a wage dispute, resumed operations. Alleviating the city's bread shortage. AFL bakers, who left their jobs in sympathy with the drivers, continued to observe picket lines at other struck plants.

The independent shops closed after the drivers struck at the Langendorf bakery plants for a seventeen per cent wage increase. In Reno, Nev., bakers at all shops remained away from their jobs yesterday to attend a meeting to discuss demands for a 20 per cent wage boost.

Full Price Boost Asked On Steel Is Termed Out

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—The labor-management conference today awaited a promised statement by industry on issues facing the delegates, while two related developments attracted attention. They were:

1. An assertion by a reconversion official that the Government "can't possibly" grant at this time the full price increase demanded by the United States Steel Corporation. Wage negotiations in the steel industry are stalemated over the price situation.

2. A suggestion from Senator Knowland (R., Cal.) for a new approach to the entire wage issue—based on industry's earnings and lower prices to consumers.

Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Ira Mosher, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, have said that management's delegates may have their views ready today.

Knowland's Wage Plan

Knowland's suggestion on the wage issue was submitted to Schwellenbach. It is that labor and management agree to an initial increase of perhaps ten per cent and then negotiate a "leeway" for a possible additional raise. This in the case of the auto workers might be the rest of the 30 per cent they are asking. Any additional raise, however, would be given only as it was earned by industry.

Yearly bargaining conferences would be held to estimate the coming year's business and agree on a division of income among workers, management, stockholders and consumers. The consumer's share, Knowland said, would be "in the form of lower prices." A final wage settlement, based on actual profit, would come at the end of the production year.

Schwellenbach had no immediate comment on Knowland's plan.

The Steel-Price Statement

The statement that the Government cannot accede to the full steel price increase demand came from an official of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion. He referred to statements by Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel, that the CIO steel workers $2-a-day wage increase demand will not be considered unless the OPA simultaneously allows a compensating increase in steel prices.

This position, the OWMR official said, is "exactly contrary" to Administration wage-price policy. That policy requires manufacturers to wait six months before making a government-approved wage increase the basis for a price-rise appeal.

Present Wages The Guide

The OWMR official said that only costs based on the industry's current wage scale will be considered, and even on that basis "we don't know whether we can give them very much."

He said the industry's demand, now before the OWMR on an "informal basis," is for a price increase of "more than $5 a ton."

There have been reports, unconfirmed by the OPA, that increases of around $2.50 a ton may be allowed for some steel products.

U. S. TO BUILD LUXURY LINERS

Two Giant Ships Planned for South American Run.

Washington, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—The Maritime Commission has begun listing plans and specifications for two large liners for operation on the South American run. Disclosing this today, a commission official told reporters that the vessels probably will be only slightly smaller than the America, now a Navy transport ship. This $17,500,000 commercial vessel is the largest ever built in this country.

Tentative plans call for two 700-foot liners, displacing about 33,000 tons each. The America is 23 feet longer, with a displacement of about 35,000 tons.

How soon bids will be asked for the two ships is not known, but it may be early next year. These probably will be the first contracts for liners in the commission's program to improve American flag services throughout the world.

Decision Definite.

The decision to build the two liners for operation to the east coast of South America was described as definite, but the official said that there is a wide variety of opinions within the Commission as to the size and number of liners and combination passenger-cargo vessels needed for other services.

It is believed, however, that the Commission may recommend the construction of as many as a dozen fast, modern liners. The Commission has ample funds to draft plans and specifications for postwar ships, but Congress must provide additional funds to carry out any large building program.

Some members of the Commission want to build liners even larger than the America, but the Commission still is adhering to its longtime policy against building ocean giants such as Britain's Queens, Mary and Elizabeth.

Army Accidents In Air Up Since Japs' Defeat

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—The accident rate for army flying has been edging upward since victory became certain, officials said today, despite advance preparations designed to offset the major factors involved.

Disclosing a 35 per cent increase in the rate from the low reached a year ago of 37 reportable accidents for each 100,000 hours of flying, Army Air Force officials said these general problems are largely responsible:

1. Relaxation of the war tension, which kept morale high.

Personnel Changes

2. Rapid changes in personnel, both flying and ground crews, because of demobilization.

3. A change in the character of the flying, that is, much less time in training planes and the resulting larger proportion in combat types being flown by pilots sometimes unfamiliar with the route.

The accident rate in training craft is much lower than in other flying because of the closer controls exercised and the generally shorter hops.

Extra Attention

While acknowledging the increase, some AAF officials point to still another factor they say may influence public appraisal of the situation, if not the statistics. This, they say, is the extra attention focused on air accidents in peacetime.

One such instance they cited was the recent crash in New York State of a navy plane which took the life of Commodore Dixie Kiefer of aircraft carrier fame.

Yet the Navy says "a check of the latest naval aircraft accident reports showed a 63 per cent decrease in the number of fatal accidents in the United States since V-J day."

This comment, however, is not comparable with the AAF's report for two reasons.

Services Checkup Methods

First, the navy compilation does not take into full account the drop in the amount of flying since Japan surrendered, although an officer said the decrease in the number of flying hours was less than the reduction in fatalities.

Also, while the Navy reported only on fatalities, the Army's report is based on all "major accidents," some of which do not even involve an injury. A "major accident" in the Army's view is one in which any major component of a plane, such as the landing gear or a wing tip, has to be replaced.

STASSEN RETURNS TO PRIVATE LIFE, WILL REST, TRAVEL

CHICAGO, Nov. 15—(AP) Capt. Harold E. Stassen returned to civilian life today with the announcement he would actively participate in public and political affairs and would "endeavor to strengthen the liberal and progressive viewpoint in the Republican party."

The former Governor of Minnesota, who has been mentioned as a possible Republican Presidential candidate, said he would participate in the 1946 Congressional election campaign. He added that he did not have any plans extending to 1948, and did not contemplate running for a Senate seat next year.

Back in a business suit after his discharge at the Great Lakes Naval Training station following 30 months service in the Navy, Stassen told a news conference:

"I intend to return to active public life. I will endeavor to strengthen the liberal and progressive viewpoint in the Republican party. I will seek to make the Republican party the party of the rank and file, of labor and of agriculture, and do what I can to make it representative of the men and women who served in the war and of youth as a whole."

Stassen said that, after resting until the first of the year, he intended to travel around the United States and to confer with leaders of his party and of "all economic groups." Some time next year, he added, hoped to travel to Europe, Russia and South America.

He stated he would get into the 1946 Congressional campaign "in the broad sense—in discussion of the issues."

Asked if the "Progressives" of the party would back Sen. Shipstead (R-Minn.), whose term expires next year, Stassen said, "The Progressives I speak for will not support him."

A number of possibilities were being discussed for the Senate post, he said, but "I do not anticipate running for the Senate."

In response to a question of whether he had any plans extending as far as 1948, he replied, "No."

Housing Is Community Problem, National Conference Is Told

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—(AP) Elmo Roper, public opinion analyst, declared today that the late President Roosevelt's statement that a third of the nation was ill fed and poorly housed "was a serious understatement of both conditions."

Roper, addressing some 300 city officials attending the American Municipal association conference, said making estimates of housing conditions was difficult because "there are no commonly accepted standards as there are in the field of nutrition."

John B. Blandford, Jr., National Housing administrator, said a year and a half's study by congressional committees was behind the housing program pending in Congress, but the program "must be made to work in cities."

"Housing is fundamentally a community responsibility," Blandford asserted.

Specific responsibilities of city governments in meeting the housing problems, he said, were: Ascertaining of housing needs; encouragement of local industry to meet these needs; and readiness to "assume responsibility with such federal and state assistance as is required for the low-income families whom private enterprise cannot serve."

Mayor Woodall Rogers of Dallas, Tex., declared that "some of the most vociferous opponents of federal aid to housing are themselves builders of slums, though they live in fine houses."

"I am a believer in private enterprise," he said, "and I want it protected and preserved. But I know it never will be preserved if it doesn't allow federal government assistance in housing."

URGES PURGE OF RED CROSS

Mrs. Eugene Meyer Would Oust "Reactionary" Element

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the publisher of the Washington Post, said today a "reactionary" element in the Red Cross had as its objective "bureaucratic power rather than service to mankind."

Mrs. Meyer, a writer and lecturer on social problems, told a New York regional Red Cross conference:

"Unless you see to it that your progressive leadership is upheld, the Red Cross can easily become a menace to the progress of democratic ideas and their effective implementation."

Two Elements Cited

She said one faction saw the need for a "revaluation of values in the light of social conditions and evolving contemporary needs" but that "another element clings with desperation to the worship of entrenched power and of certain authoritarian ideas."

Mrs. Meyer said efforts were being made to oust Basil O'Connor, Red Cross director, "on the theory that he is too friendly to labor."

Discussing what she called instances of "the die-hard psychology of leaders who would rather wreck the Red Cross than see it become democratic," she said a distorted version had been presented to the relationship between labor and the Red Cross.

The Union Agreement

She said an agreement whereby the Red Cross paid costs of CIO and AFL labor unions in raising funds for the welfare agency was "an honorable and business-like agreement" which raised $30,000,000 for the Red Cross last year.

"Those relations are based upon an honorable and business-like agree which does credit both to the Red Cross and the labor organizations. Yet for devious purposes this contractual relationship has been painted to the public as a stain on the otherwise untarnished reputation o fthe Red Cross and an unpatriotic act on the part of the labor unions.

She said the AFL and CIO "proved they could act together when the welfare of the country is involved" by agreeing in 1942 with community war chests to collect at least one hour's pay a month from union members.

Collaboration Urged

"Then came the eternal problem of the separate Red Cross drive. The labor unions solved it by allocating four months of their annual intake to the Red Cross and eight months to the (national) war fund.

"It seems obvious to me that the country will never get wholehearted co-operation from the Red Cross, in peace or war, until its separate, expensive, drum-beating financial campaign has been eliminated and combined with the national war fund."

Urging that the Red Cross collaborate with other welfare groups, Mrs. Meyer suggested unification of all national organizations including veterans groups, the Red Cross, Labor welfare agencies, community chests, the Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A. and other groups in "a council of national welfare agencies."

Good News for the Ladies; Nylon Ceiling Prices Slashed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP) The OPA today unveiled good news for the ladies—a cut of at least 25 per cent in ceiling prices for nylon stockings.

It goes into effect November 20 in retail stores and at all other sales levels.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles said that by next year, when nylons are produced in volume, the new ceilings "will mean savings of millions of dollars to American women."

The new prices are based on production costs of June, 1941, which Bowles said was the "last normal prewar market for nylons."

Subsequently, Bowles added, military demand for nylon caused prices for hosiery "to skyrocket."

He said ceilings set in 1942 checked this rise, "but these prices still reflected an abnormal supply and demand situation."

"Obviously," he said, "we couldn't continue them in the postwar period."

Here are some examples of the new and old ceilings:

First-quality full-fashioned nylons will range from 95 cents to $2.05. Previously the range was $1.65 to $2.50 a pair.

OPA said the most popular kind of nylons would sell at retail for $1.20 to $1.40, or from 45 to 65 cents a pair below present ceilings. These prices apply to 45-gauge first quality full-fashioned hose.

RENEWS PLEDGE TO PHILIPPINES

Truman's Statement Marks an Anniversary.

NOV 16 1945

Washington, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—President Truman, on the tenth anniversary of the inauguration of the Philippine Commonwealth, said today that the United States "stands ready to aid the heroes of the Philippines in every way we can."

"November 15, 1945, marks the tenth anniversary of the inauguration of the Philippine Commonwealth," he said in a formal statement. "Those ten years were set aside by Congress and approved by the Filipino people, as a period of preparation for independence. The Philippines and the Filipinos were to have been given those ten years to prepare their national economy and their national Government to assume the full responsibilities of nationhood.

"Neither we nor they knew, in 1935, what a test the Philippines would be called upon to pass in 1940, the test of war. The Filipino people went through the ordeals of war and of Japanese occupation in a manner to their immortal credit. It was a credit to them, and to us, who led the Philippines along the forty-year road from serfdom under Spain to commonwealth status.

"But more than that it was a credit to those ideals of democracy and human dignity which Americans introduced into the Philippines in 1898, ideals which took root there so firmly as to survive every savage effort of the Japanese to uproot them," the statement continues.

"The Filipino people are spiritually worthy of indeendence. They have won their spurs as a nation. We will honor our promise and our pledges to them. The United States stands ready to aid the heroes of the Philippines in every way we can.

NAZI ATOMIC BOMB EXPERTS IN SPAIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 — (AP) A delegation of trade unionists asserted today that Nazi scientists who experimented with atomic energy in Germany have found refuge in Franco Spain where they are continuing their research.

The assertion was made in a letter which the delegation, claiming to represent 500,000 C.I.O. and A.F.L. workers in New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland, left at the State department for Secretary Byrnes.

The delegation of about 50 came to Washington under auspices of the American committee for Spanish freedom to urge the United States to sever its ties with Generalissimo Franco's regime.

In the letter, the delegation said it was a fact that "Nazi scientists who were doing atomic research in Germany are now safe in Franco Spain and continuing their researches."

The letter added that Spain has told the world that it possesses one of the world's largest deposits of uranium, a source of atomic energy.

"Is our government waiting until these Nazi scientists have perfected the atom bomb with which American cities can be bombarded" the letter asked.

Taft Predicts Move Favoring Jews

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—Senator Taft (R., Ohio) expressed confidence today that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will approve a resolution favoring Jewish immigration to Palestine.

"I think the whole question with the committee is one of language to bring it up to date," he said.

By that, Taft went on, he meant that some members believe the resolution he and Senator Wagner (D., N.Y.) introduced months ago ought to be revised to take recognition of the Anglo-American pronouncement earlier this week on the Palestine issue.

Sent To Subcommittee

The committee discussed the Wagner-Taft resolution for two and a half hours yesterday and then referred it to a subcommittee with instructions that a report be made by next Monday.

The subcommittee will undertake the job of rewriting it to include references to President Truman's acceptance of a British proposal that an Anglo-American committee of inquiry be established to determine the facts as to Palestine and make recommendations.

Truman Idea Rejected

The British suggestion was a counterproposal which in effect rejected a suggestion from Mr. Truman on August 31 that permission be granted for 100,000 European Jews to go to Palestine.

The British proposal was denounced by American Zionists, and Jews in Palestine staged a demonstration of disapproval.

As originally introduced, the Wagner-Taft resolution seeks to put Congress on record as favoring use by the United States of its good offices "to the end that the doors of Palestine shall be opened for free entry of Jews into that country."

SPAATZ DEPLORES AIR FORCE BREAKUP

Washington, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—Gen. Carl Spaatz told Senators today that this nation's powerful and victorious air farce is "disintegrating before our eyes."

"We see almost hysterical demobilization," the General told the Senote Military Affairs Committee as he urged unification of all armed forces into a single post-war agency.

This was dangerous, he testified, because "in the atomic age the line of distinction between peace-time and war-time organization for defense will reach the vanishing point."

The air leader said, "The Pearl Harbor of af uture war might well be in Chicago, or Detroit, or Pittsburgh,o r even Washington."

A second four-star Army leader, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, now head of the Veterans Administration, said his experiences as a ground force commander, in both Africa and Europe, convinced him that a single armed forces department is needed.

Nimitz Prepared To Hit Merger

NOV 16 1945

San Francisco, Nov. 15 (AP)—Admiral Nimitz, on his way to Washington for "temporary duty," is ready to testify in opposition to merger of the armed forces.

The commander of United States Pacific Naval Forces arrived by plane from Pearl Harbor yesterday and said he would continue his flight to the Capital today.

Says He Can Elaborate

"I'm ag'in it," he replied, grinning, when asked about the proposed merger. "If I'm called to testify (before the Senate Military Affairs Committee) I can elaborate on that."

Nimitz said he isn't worried about Japanese ability to get through the coming winter, and added that occupation of the conquered islands is proceding "very well."

"I don't believe there will be any wholesale starvation in Japan," he said, pointing out that the Japanese still have a number of small ships.

Demobilization Speedy

Demobilization of the Navy is proceeding at "a faster rate than had been estimated," the Admiral asserted.

He said he had received no official reports on recent sailor-civilian rioting in Honolulu, adding that he knew nothing of the cause, "but I will."

Nimitz expects to return to his Pacific command after completing his duties in Washington.

'Butcher Of Warsaw' Arrives In California

Hamilton Field, California, Nov. 15 (AP)—"The butcher of Warsaw," Joseph Albert Meisinger, was held under guard in a cell at the army air base today after arriving by air from Japan.

Meisinger, who was head of the German Gestapo in Japan, arrived in army custody, en route to Washington.

He was arrested in Japan after the surrender.

Princeton To Study Needs Of Atomic Age

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—Princeton University plans to convene the world's leading scholars in a series of thirteen informal conferences next year to reappraise modern knowledge in the terms of the needs of an atomic age.

Dr. Harold W. Dodds, president of the university, announced the program here yesterday as the highlight of plans for the school's bicentennial celebration, which will extend from September 22, 1946, to June 17, 1947.

3,000,000th GI Released

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—The three millionth soldier to be discharged since V-E day left the Army last night.

The War Department, announcing this without naming the soldier, gave a month-by-month summary of discharges. It showed that the rate increased from 56,000 in the period from May 12 to May 31 to a peak of 1,270,000 for the month of October.

Study Of U.S. Defense Needs Sought

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—The establishment of a commission to inquire into the nation's defense needs will be proposed soon by Senator Capehart (R., Ind.). The commission would issue a "comprehensive report on what type of military establishment we need."

"We do not know today exactly what we need in the way of military and naval defense," Capehart said. "The general military staff itself is in disagreement. If compulsory military training—or any other sacrifice—is needed immediately or at any time in the future for our national defense, the country will willingly support such legislation. But the people of the United States are confused as to the necessity of such legislation."

Byrnes Will Discuss Atom Policy Tonight

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—Secretary of State Byrnes will discuss the Truman-Attlee-King declaration on atomic energy tomorow night at Charleston, S.C., at a civic dinner given in his honor.

The State Department said the Secretary first had planned to devote his address to international trade. He now has decided, however, to speak on "world co-operation" and will devote a part of the talk to the statement issued today at the White House.

The address will be broadcast at 8 P.M., over the NBC network.

Says Leyte G. I.s Live in Filth

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP).—American soldiers stationed in the Philippines, and particularly on Leyte, are living under conditions of "indescribable filth," Representative Donald L. O'Toole, Democrat, of New York, told the House today. Reporting receipt of many letters from men who "are not gripers," Representative O'Toole asserted he was convinced "an abominable situation" exists and said that if "immediate corrective steps" are not taken he will demand a full investigation.

G. I.'S SCORE STRIKE ON ALASKAN SHIPS

Seattle, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—The Alaska Steamship Company's entire passenger fleet was tied up today in a union dispute, and the Marine Cooks and Stewards Association received an open letter from Army men in Anchorage, Alaska, observing that "one week is more than enough time to waste striking over such a trivial matter."

The message, quoting the "opinion of high point Army prospective passengers on the Yukon," was unsigned.

Issues of overtime and the use of passenger dining rooms for meetings at sea were hubs of dispute, which encompassed the company fleet when it spread to the steamship Alaska.

Truman Urges Curbs On Sectionalism

Boston, Nov. 15 (AP)—President Truman said today that the nation would make greater progress toward economic health and interregional harmony "if we decide what each region can give the other . . . for its own economic benefit and for the good of the American community."

In a message to the twenty-first annual conference of the New England Council, a business men's organization, held jointly with a meeting of New England governors, the President said:

"All too often in the past, sectionalism has brought discord and even tragedy into our national life because it was based on a desire to advance the interests of one section by political and economic pressure at the cost of other sections."

So Long, Censor

NOV 16 1945

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Office of Censorship closes its doors for the last time today.

Byron Price, wartime censorship director, is scheduled to call on President Truman to make a final report. Price recently returned from a special mission to Germany for Mr. Truman.

Since Japan surrendered the censorship office has been liquidating its records. At its end the office had 75 employés, compared with a wartime peak of 14,500.

Rail Wage Parley Set For November 27

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP)—Labor-management conferences over wage-hour demands by the country's railroad workers will open in Chicago on November 27, a railroad spokesman said yesterday. Committees representing the Eastern, Western and Southeastern railroad groups and heads of twenty railroad brotherhoods will participate.

Five brotherhoods of operating employés — engineers, trainmen, conductors, firemen and enginemen and switchmen—last summer drew plans for a 25 per cent wage hike, overtime pay, terminal-delay rules and similar requests for their 300,000 members.

Later, the AFL railway employés department, representing 400,000 shopcraft workers, demanded a cut from 48 to 36 hours in their work week without reduction in their present straight-time weekly pay.

Price of Transport Planes Slashed

Washington, Nov. 15 (A. P.).—Price cuts ranging from 25 to 40 per cent for surplus C-54 transport aircraft were ordered today by the Surplus Property Administration. The agency said the new prices would permit airlines to acquire an additional 103 of these four-engined planes.

The new prices:

C-54 and C-54A, $75,000; C-54B and C-54D, $90,000; C-54E and subsequent models, $100,000.

2 Carriers To Share Honors At Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Nov. 15 (AP)—Two of the Navy's biggest warships—the 27,000-ton aircraft carriers Valley Forge and Princeton—share the spotlight Sunday at special twin ceremonies at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

The Valley Forge, financed by Philadelphians, who purchased $76,000,000 of war bonds in a three-month drive, will be christened by Mrs. Alexander A. Vandegrift, wife of the commandant of the Marine Corps.

The Princeton, a sister ship, will be commissioned and then turned over to Capt. J. M. Hoskins, of Pineville, Ky., who lost a foot when the first Princeton was sunk last year in the battle of Leyte Gulf.

Vice Admiral Aubrey Fitch, superintendent of the Naval Academy, will be principal speaker at the Princeton exercises. Mrs. Harold A. Dodds, wife of the president of Princeton University, who christened the carrier last July, will be present.

Sgt. Harry A. Truman Leaving Army Sunday

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 15 (AP)—Sergt. Harry A. Truman, 22-year-old nephew of the President, plans to continue his agricultural work, "preferably on the farm," after his discharge from the Army at Fort Robinson Sunday.

He told the Arkansas Gazette:

"I'm interested in growing things and you might say that I will grow crops and raise good beef for the market."

Young Truman, now in the field artillery, said he studied farming at the University of Missouri for a year and a half.

NIGHT LEAD AGRICULTURE (470)

BY JACK SMITH

LONDON, NOV. 15-(AP)-BRITAIN'S LABOR GOVERNMENT TODAY ANNOUNCED A PLAN FOR PERMANENT CONTROLS OVER AGRICULTURE--INCLUDING GUARANTEED PRICES, ASSURED MARKETS AND GOVERNMENT-DICTATED CROP PLANNING.

THE PROPOSED PLAN WOULD ENABLE THE GOVERNMENT TO CONFISCATE AND CONVERT TO PUBLIC OWNERSHIP THE LANDS OF ANY FARMER WHO DISREGARDED THE GOVERNMENT'S ADVICES OR DIRECTIVES "TO THE DETRIMENT OF THE NATIONAL INTEREST."

THE PROGRAM WAS DISCLOSED, ALTHOUGH ONLY IN BROAD OUTLINE, IN A STATEMENT READ IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONNS BY TOM WILLIAMS, MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE. LEGISLATION TO PUT IT INTO EFFECT IS EXPECTED TO BE PUBLISHED SHORTLY.

WILLIAMS SAID THAT "AS THE WORLD FOOD SHORTAGE PASSES" THE GOVERNMENT INTENDS TO LEAVE FARMERS NORMALLY TO GROW THE CROPS WHICH THEIR EXPERIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY GUIDANCE FROM THE ADVISORY SERVICES, INDICATES ARE MOST SUITED TO THEIR OWN LAND."

NOV 16 1945

"THE GOVERNMENT INTENDS, HOWEVER," WILLIAMS ADDED, "TO SEEK PERMANENT POWERS TO SERVE COMPULSORY DIRECTIONS ON ANY FARMER WHENEVER NECESSARY. BUT THOSE POWERS WILL NORMALLY BE USED ONLY X X X TO SUPPLEMENT METHODS OF STEERING PRODUCTION X X X SHOULD AN OVERRIDING NEED IN NATIONAL FOOD SUPPLIES OR NATIONAL DIET RENDER THIS NECESSARY."

THE PLANNED AGRICULTURAL ECONOMY, WILLIAMS SAID, WOULD ENTAIL GOVERNMENT-FIXED PRICES ON CEREALS, POTATOES AND SUGAR BEETS 18 MONTHS IN ADVANCE OF HARVESTS. FARMERS WOULD KNOW MINIMUM PRICES ON LIVESTOCK, MILK AND EGGS "THREE OR FOUR YEARS IN ADVANCE, AND ACTUAL PRICES SOME THREE TO 15 MONTHS IN ADVANCE."

ASSERTING "THE WORLD FOOD SITUATION IS EXTREMELY SERIOUS." WILLIAMS SAID THE GOVERNMENT, FOR THE TIME BEING, WILL ISSUE "COMPULSORY DIRECTIVES," REQUIRING THE PRODUCTION OF SUGAR BEETS AND POTATOES, AND THE PLANTING OF GRASS TO "KEEP IN STEP WITH AN ANTICIPATED INCREASE IN LIVESTOCK."

WILLIAMS' STATEMENT DREW IMMEDIATE REACTION FROM THE NATIONAL FARMERS UNION, WHICH SAID IT WELCOMED A PLAN TO GUARANTEE PRICES AND MARKETS BUT OPPOSED THE PLANNING DIRECTIVES.

THE UNION, AN INDEPENDENT ORGANIZATION SET UP BY THE FARMERS TO NEGOTIATE AGRICULTURAL PROBLEMS WITH THE GOVERNMENT, SAID "IT IS TO BE HOPED THAT THE MINISTER'S ASSURANCE TO ALLOW NORMAL PRACTICE AND EXPERIENCE TO DICTATE INDIVIDUAL POLICY ON THE FARM WILL BE IMPLEMENTED WITHOUT FURTHER RESERVE."

LONDON, NOV 15-(AP)-SIR STAFFORD CRIPPS, PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRADE, TOLD MANUFACTURERS TODAY THAT BRITAIN'S INDUSTRIES MUST BE DE-CENTRALIZED. "THERE ARE A NUMBER OF QUITE UNANSWERABLE ARGUMENTS AS TO WHY WE CANNOT ALLOW NEW INDUSTRIES OR FACTORIES IN AND AROUND LONDON," CRIPPS SAID.

HE TOLD THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE NATIONAL UNION OF MANUFACTURERS, THAT "THE BROAD PRINCIPLE WHICH LIES BEHIND THE GOVERNMENT'S POLICY IS THAT WE SHOULD TAKE THE WORK TO THE PEOPLE AND NOT THE PEOPLE TO THE WORK."

THE WAR EMPHASIZED, HE SAID, THAT HEAVY CONCENTRATION OF INDUSTRIES IN THE LONDON AREA WAS STRATEGICALLY DANGEROUS.

BERLIN, NOV. 15-(AP)-THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT OF SAXONY IN THE RUSSIAN OCCUPATION ZONE ANNOUNCED TODAY THE EXPROPRIATION OF [redacted] PROPERTIES OF [redacted] FRIEDRICH FLICK, INDUSTRIAL MAGNATE.

ITS DECREE WAS PUBLISHED IN THE GERMAN COMMUNIST NEWSPAPER, DEUTSCHES VOLKSZEITUNG, WHICH DENOUNCED FLICK AS A MONOPOLIST AND WAR CRIMINAL. THE NEWSPAPER SUGGESTED SIMILAR ACTION IN OTHER PARTS OF GERMANY.

NO COMPENSATION WAS GIVEN AND NO APPEAL WAS ALLOWED FLICK. THE DECREE SAID THE PROPERTIES WOULD BE USED TO "THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE PEOPLE."

"GERMAN MONOPOLY-CAPITALISTS TWICE LED GERMANY INTO WORLD WARS AND

NOV 16 1945

THE ONLY WAY TO PREVENT A THIRD ATTEMPT IS TO TAKE AWAY THEIR PROPERTIES."

THE COMMUNIST PAPER SAID, "THIS ACTION WAS TAKEN TO SECURE DEMOCRACY AND PEACE.

THIS IS ONLY THE FIRST STEP AND SIMILAR ACTION WILL BE TAKEN IN BRANDENBURG AND BERLIN."

FLICK WAS PRESIDENT OR DIRECTOR OF A SCORE OF COMPANIES WITH GREAT INTERESTS IN THE RUHR IN ESSEN, DUESSELDORF, DORTMUND AND COLOGNE. HIS LAST KNOWN VISIT TO THE UNITED STATES WAS IN 1934 WHEN HE CONSULTED NEW YORK BANKERS. EXPROPRIATED PROPERTIES IN SAXONY INCLUDED THE MIDGERMAN STEELWORKS IN RIESA; MOTOR WORKS IN BAUTZEN; AND A FACTORY IN DUESSELDORF.

NEW YORK, NOV. 15 (AP)-[redacted] E.I.DU PONT DE NEMOURS AND COMPANY SAID TODAY IN A STATEMENT THAT "RECURRING REPORTS FROM GERMANY GIVING THE IMPRESSION THAT THE DU PONT COMPANY IS A SUBSTANTIAL STOCKHOLDER IN THE I.G. FARBEN-INDUSTRIE ARE ENTIRELY INCORRECT."

"THE DU PONT COMPANY HAS NO INVESTMENTS WHATEVER IN I.G. OR ANY OF ITS SUBSIDIARIES," THE STATEMENT SAID.

NOV 16 1945

"THE LATEST OF THESE REPORTS," THE DU PONT [illegible] SAID WAS A STATEMENT ATTRIBUTED [illegible] TO COL. EDWIN S. PILLBURY, OF BERKELEY, CALIF., FARBEN INDUSTRY CONTROL OFFICER, WHO SAID [illegible] AT KAUFBEUREN, GERMANY THAT DUPONT OWNED SEVEN AND A HALF PER CENT OF THE STOCK OF THE $45,000,000 NITROCELLULOSE PLANT AT EBENHAUSEN WHICH WAS BLOWN UP BY TNT TUESDAY.

THE PLANT WAS BUILT BY THE NAZI GOVERNMENT IN 1939 AND OPERATED ON A LEASE BY DYNAMIT A.G., OF WHICH THE FARBEN CONCERN OWNED 60 PER CENT. COL. PILLBURY SAID THAT IN ADDITION TO THE PART OF THE STOCK OWNED BY FARBEN AND DU PONT IMPERIAL CHEMICALS,LTD., OF BRITIAN OWNED SEVEN AND A HALF PER CENT.

THE DU PONT STATEMENT SAID:

"the only stock interest du pont ever had in i. g. farben, in 1930, came as the result of an investment of $1,785,582 made in 1925 in the stock of two german explosive firms, dynamit a. g. and koln-rottweil, which later were merged with or came under the control of I. G. the koln-rottweil shares were converted into i. g. shares the investment was later increased by exercise of purchase rights, by a total of $2,395,316 which was approximately one-half of one percent of the issued shares of that company.

du pont began disposing of its investments in I. g. in 1933 the sale of its whole remaining i. g. investment was authorized by du pont in 1934. this proved difficult because of currency regulations and blocked mark requirements. the i. g. stock was, however, fully disposed of in 1940 as at a loss of $671,406 and the dynamit a. g. shares, sold at the same time, were liquidated at a loss of $534,359.

PALESTINE
BY GEORGE PALMER
TEL AVIV, PALESTINE, NOV 15-(AP)-PARATROOPERS OF THE COMBAT-TESTED BRITISH 6TH AIRBORNE DIVISION PATROLLED THE DEBRIS-LITTERED STREETS OF TEL AVIV TODAY AFTER QUEELING RIOTS WHICH LEFT TWO DEAD AND MORE THAN 40 INJURED LAST NIGHT.
THE "RED DEVILS" WERE CALLED OUT AFTER A MEETING PROTESTING THE STATEMENT ON PALESTINE WHICH BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY ERNEST BEVIN MADE IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TUESDAY EXPLODED INTO WILD DISORDER.
AFTER THE MEETING A CROWD OF JEWISH CIVILIANS ESTIMATED AT BETWEEN 400 AND 500 BY BRITISH OFFICERS MARCHED THROUGH THE HEART OF THE CITY AND REPULSED POLICE EFFORTS TO DISPERSE THEM.
DURING THE DEMONSTRATION THE DISTRICT COMMISSIONER'S OFFICE WAS SET ABLAZE WITH TORCHES, AND THE CENTRAL POSTOFFICE AND TWO OTHER GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS WERE ATTACKED. POLICE WERE STONED IN STIFF FIGHTING AROUND COLONY SQUARE IN THE MAIN BUSINESS DISTRICT.
THE BRITISH PARATROOPERS APPEARED JUST IN TIME TO FRUSTRATE A MOB EFFORT TO TOUCH OFF GASOLINE WHICH HAD BEEN POURED INTO THE POSTOFFICE.
THE "RED DEVILS" -- WEARING CAMOUFLAGE SUITS AND ARMED WITH TOMMY GUNS AND RIFLES -- HOISTED BANNERS WHICH SAID, IN HEBREW, ARABIC AND ENGLISH, "DISPERSE OR WE FIRE."
THE CROWD CONTINUED TO THROW STONES SAID THE BRITISH COMMANDER, MAJOR JOHN SHOPEE, AND AFTER THREE BRITISH SOLDIERS WERE WOUNDED, HE ORDERED HIS TROOPS TO FIRE. HE SAID ONE SOLDIER FIRED TWO SHOTS AND ONE RIOTING CIVILIAN WAS WOUNDED.
THE CROWD CONTINUED TO THROW ROCKS, SHOPEE SAID. HE DECLARED HE GAVE A SECOND ORDER. TWO MORE ROUNDS WERE FIRED AND ANOTHER DEMONSTRATOR WAS WOUNDED.
BY 11 P.M. THE RIOTERS HAD BEEN DISPERSED. OTHER CIVILIANS HAD VIRTUALLY DISAPPEARED FROM THE STREETS IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE 11 P.M. CURFEW. MILITARY AND POLICE CASUALTIES -- FROM EIGHT TO 10 OF EACH -- WERE EVACUATED. TWO HUNDRED SOLDIERS AND CIVILIANS BEGAN TO PATROL THE CITY WHILE BRITISH AND POLICE ARMORED CARS RINGED THE TROUBLE SPOT.
A 12-HOUR STRIKE PROTESTING BRITISH PROPOSALS FOR SETTLEMENT OF THE PALESTINE PROBLEM PRECEDED THE OUTBREAK.

CHINA SITUATION (350)
BY SPENCER DAVIS
PEIPING, NOV. 15-(AP)-THREE MONTHS AFTER JAPAN'S CAPITULATION, THE SITUATION IN NORTH CHINA AND MANCHURIA IS DESCRIBED POLITELY AS "DELICATE."
CHINESE COMMUNIST AND NATIONALIST FORCES JOCKEY FOR POSITION AND OCCASIONALLY CLASH FOR CONTROL OF TERRITORY WHICH BELONGS NO LONGER TO A FOREIGN ENEMY.
THE JAPANESE WAIT FOR THEIR ARMIES TO BE DISARMED AND SENT HOME BUT THE PROCESS STILL IS FAR FROM COMPLETE.
AMERICAN MARINES WAIT IMPATIENTLY FOR ORDERS TO RETURN HOME AND FREQUENTLY WONDER WHAT BROUGHT THEM TO CHINA IN THE FIRST PLACE.
SOME 100,000 KOREANS IN NORTH CHINA ARE WAITING REPATRIATION.
SMALL NUMBERS OF GERMAN NATIONALS KNOW THAT EVENTUALLY THEY WILL BE SENT TO THE REICH. THEY AWAIT THE DAY WITH MIXED EMOTIONS.
OVER ALL, HANGS THE THREAT OF FULL SCALE CIVIL WAR. THUS FAR THE CHINESE CIVIL STRIFE HAS BEEN MORE A BATTLE OF WITS AND MANEUVER, MORE A PAPER OFFENSIVE OF RUMORS AND REPORTS T.T.I.

30.24 — 31671

THE CHINESE CIVIL STRIFE HAS BEEN MORE A BATTLE OF WITS AND MANEUVER, MORE A PAPER OFFENSIVE OF RUMORS AND REPORTS THAN ACTUAL PITCHED ENGAGEMENTS.

BUT ALL ELEMENTS OF A LONG AND BLOODY CAMPAIGN ARE HERE. THE COMMUNISTS, WHO HAVE A STRONG HOLD ON SIX PROVINCES, FEEL THEY MUST FIGHT TO SURVIVE. CENTRAL GOVERNMENT FORCES FEEL THEY MUST EXTERMINATE ALL OBSTACLES IN THE PATH OF A UNIFIED CHINA. HOW FAR THESE TWO FORCES WILL GO IN SETTLING THEIR DIFFERENCES BY ARMS DEPENDS UPON NEGOTIATORS WHO WILL MEET IN CHUNGKING NOV. 20.

EACH DAY IN THE VERNACULAR PRESS THERE ARE LONG REPORTS OF TROUBLE THROUGHOUT THE PROVINCES OF SHANTUNG, HOPEH, SHANSI, HONAN, SUIYUAN AND CHAHAR. IT IS EVIDENT THAT THE COMMUNISTS SEIZED THE INITIATIVE AND HAD THEIR ARMIES IN MOTION BEFORE THE NATIONALIST TROOPS WERE FULLY DEPLOYED TO THE NORTH.

DESTRUCTION OF VITAL LINKS IN EVERY MAJOR RAILROAD FROM CENTRAL TO NORTH CHINA BY COMMUNIST TROOPS AND VILLAGERS IN THE AREAS THEY FREED FROM THE JAPANESE UNDOUBTEDLY WORKED TO THE GREATEST DISADVANTAGE OF TROOPS OF GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK. NATIONALIST TROOPS ON THE OTHER HAND HAVE THE MORAL VALUE OF 60,000 AMERICAN MARINES PRESENT IN THE PEIPING, TIENTSIN AND TSINGTAO AREAS OF NORTH CHINA AND THE ASSISTANCE OF A UNITED STATES TROOP CARRIER SQUADRON IN FLYING TWO ARMIES NORTH FROM HANKOW AND SHANGHAI. IN ADDITION, THE U.S. 7TH FLEET PROVIDED TRANSPORTATION TO MORE NATIONALIST TROOPS FOR LANDINGS IN NORTH CHINA.

A17FX

THERE IS NO QUESTION BUT THAT THE GREAT DELAY IN DISARMING JAPANESE TROOPS IN PEIPING HAS PROVIDED THE NATIONALIST FORCES WITH ADDITIONAL POWER IN OPPOSING THE COMMUNISTS. WHILE ACCURATE FIGURES ARE DIFFICULT TO OBTAIN, IT IS RELIABLY ESTIMATED THAT NO MORE THAN 10,000 JAPANESE HAVE BEEN DISARMED IN THE PEIPING REGIONAL AREA, WHICH FORMERLY WAS THE HEADQUARTERS FOR JAPAN'S NORTH CHINA EXPEDITIONARY FORCE.

ON AT LEAST ONE OCCASION, IT WAS VERIFIED BY THIS CORRESPONDENT, JAPANESE TROOPS AND AMERICAN MARINES STOOD GUARD DUTY TOGETHER ON PEIPING'S WEST AIRFIELD WHEN IT WAS REPORTED THAT 300 CHINESE COMMUNIST TROOPS WERE APPROACHING. THE COMMUNISTS NEVER PUT IN AN APPEARANCE.

THERE IS LITTLE DOUBT THE COMMUNISTS HAVE BEEN ACTIVE ELSEWHERE. THEIR MOVEMENT HAS BEEN FROM SOUTH TO NORTH AND TO THE NORTHWEST IN A GENERAL RETIREMENT FROM CENTRAL CHINA TO THE NORTHERN PROVINCES. A LINE HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED ALONG THE GREAT WALL. RECENT ACTIVITY FROM KALGAN TO KWEISUI AND PAOTOW IN SUIYUAN PROVINCE APPARENTLY HAS BEEN AN ATTEMPT TO SECURE THE RIGHT FLANK AND HOLD OPEN AN ESCAPE ROUTE FROM INNER MONGOLIA TO MANCHURIA.

THERE HAS BEEN LITTLE DIRECT OR RELIABLE INFORMATION FROM INSIDE MANCHURIA. ONE REPORT, UNCONFIRMED FROM OTHER SOURCES, WAS PROVIDED BY TWO CHINESE PILOTS WHO FLEW MAO TEH-HUI, SPECIAL COMMISSIONER FOR MANCHURIA, AND HIS PARTY TO RUSSIAN-OCCUPIED CHANGCHUN. ON THE RETURN TO PEIPING, THE FLIERS SAID THE CHINESE OFFICIALS AND THEMSELVES VIRTUALLY WERE CONFINED TO THEIR HOTEL QUARTERS BY SOVIET OFFICIALS. THEY SAID THAT WHEN THEY WENT FOR A STROLL TO LOOK OVER THE CITY, RUSSIAN TROOPS STOPPED THEM, SEIZED THEIR CAMERA AND TOLD THEM NOT TO LEAVE THE HOTEL WITHOUT AN ESCORT.

THE FLIERS ADDED THAT ALL MOTOR CARS AND HORSE DRAWN CARRIAGES HAD BEEN WITHDRAWN AND THAT MAO WAS OBLIGED TO RIDE IN A RICKSHAW BECAUSE NO OTHER TRANSPORTATION WAS MADE AVAILABLE.

ALSO WITHOUT CONFIRMATION WAS A REPORT THAT THE CHINESE DELEGATION'S RADIO TRANSMITTER WAS SEIZED AND IT WAS UNABLE TO COMMUNICATE WITH CHUNGKING FOR MORE THAN A WEEK.

A1SFX

COUNTERING THIS WAS THE RECENT STATEMENT OF GEN. HO YING-CHIN, COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE CHINESE ARMIES, THAT THE RUSSIANS WERE PROVING FULLY COOPERATIVE IN ARRANGING FOR THE TRANSFER OF MANCHURIA FROM RUSSIAN TO CHINESE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT CONTROL. SUBSEQUENT REPORTS HAVE INDICATED THAT THE RUSSIANS WERE WITHDRAWING ON A LARGE SCALE WHILE THE CHINESE COMMUNISTS KEEP ACCESS TO MANCHURIA LOCKED AND BARRED TO NATIONALIST TROOPS.

THERE ARE INNUMERABLE REPORTS OF COMMUNIST TROOPS OCCUPYING SMALL VILLAGES THROUGH SHANTUNG, OF COMMUNIST FORCES INFILTRATING ACROSS THE TIENTSIN-PEIPING RAILROAD TOWARD MANCHURIA AND OF COMMUNISTS CAPTURING TWO CENTRAL GOVERNMENT GENERALS. BUT VERIFICATION OF MANY OF THESE REPORTS IS LACKING.

OBSERVERS BELIEVE THAT THE CONCILATION MEETING IN CHUNGKING NEXT TUESDAY, WITH ORDERS GIVEN ON BOTH SIDES TO CEASE FIRE AND WITHDRAW FROM THE RAILROADS WHICH WILL BE PLACED UNDER POLICE PROTECTION, WILL BE THE LAST OPPORTUNITY TO SETTLE CHINA'S LARGEST PROBLEM WITHOUT A SHOWDOWN BATTLE.

IF IT FAILS, IT IS ALTOGETHER POSSIBLE THAT WAR AND BLOODSHED WILL CONTINUE TO BE THIS NATION'S WAY OF LIFE, AS IT HAS BEEN FOR SO MANY YEARS.

"THE COST OF OCCUPATION IS STAGGERING, IT'S SO BIG," PAULEY SAID.

PAULEY EXPLAINED THAT UNITED STATES POLICY IS TO USE JAPANESE WEALTH:

1. FOR OCCUPATION.
2. FOR THE IMPORTATION OF GOODS WHICH ARE THE MINIMUM TO ASSURE SURVIVAL OF THE JAPANESE.
3. FOR REPARATIONS.

"I AM NOT OPTIMISTIC THAT THERE WILL BE ANYTHING LEFT FOR REPARATIONS OF A RECURRING NATURE AFTER PAYING THE COST OF OCCUPATION," HE SAID.

THEN, LATER, IN ANSWERING A DIRECT QUESTION, HE SAID HE DID NOT THINK JAPAN WOULD BE ABLE EVEN TO PAY OCCUPATION COSTS.

EXPLAINING "RECURRING REPARATIONS," PAULEY SAID THEY WERE REPARATIONS WHICH MIGHT BE PAID AFTER THE REMOVAL OF TANGIBLE ASSETS SUCH AS GOLD, SILVER AND MACHINERY WHICH MIGHT BE USED IN OTHER COUNTRIES.

INSTEAD, THE PRESIDENT SAT QUIETLY BETWEEN UNSMILING CLEMENT ATTLEE OF BRITAIN AND W.L.MACKENZIE KING OF CANADA.

MR.TRUMAN HAD A HALF-SMILE ON HIS FACE AS HE AROSE TO ADDRESS THE CONFERENCE. HE FIRST TOLD REPORTERS THAT ANY QUESTIONS ON THE DECLARATION WOULD HAVE TO WAIT UNTIL THEY HAD BECOME FAMILIAR WITH IT.

THEN, GRAVELY, HE PLUNGED INTO A RAPID READING OF THE 1,000-WORD TEXT IN A SLIGHTLY HUSKY VOICE. HE HELD THE MANUSCRIPT IN HIS RIGHT HAND AND GESTICULATED SLIGHTLY WITH HIS LEFT.

ATTLEE, ON THE PRESIDENT'S RIGHT, SAT WITH HIS HANDS FOLDED, LISTENING. KING OCCASIONALLY SENT HIS FOREFINGER COURSING UP AND DOWN HIS FACE.

THE PRESIDENT RAISED HIS VOICE DURING THE READING ONLY SLIGHTLY TO DRIVE HOME THE CLIMACTIC POINTS OF THE DECLARATION. PARTICULARLY, HE EMPHASIZED THE WORDS RECIPROCAL AND EXCHANGE IN REFERENCES TO ATOMIC ENERGY INFORMATION.

THE CONFERENCE LASTED LESS THAN 10 MINUTES. WHEN THE PRESIDENT HAD FINISHED READING, REPORTERS SHOUTED THE USUAL "THANK YOU, MR. PRESIDENT," AND BOLTED FROM THE ROOM TO TELEPHONE THE DECLARATION TO THEIR OFFICES.

Chinese Nationalists Drive into Manchuria

Chiang's Forces Punch Through Great Wall in First Ground Penetration; Yanks Threaten Air Attacks After Shooting Incident.

CHINWANGTAO, Nov. 16—(AP) Chinese Nationalist troops punched through the Great Wall of China into Manchuria today, Nationalist army headquarters announced.

Headquarters said this first ground penetration of Manchuria by the Nationalists followed withdrawal of the Communist Eighth Route army forces from the city of Chanhaikwan, coastal terminus of the wall.

Light Skirmishing

The entry was reported achieved with only light skirmishing.

The report added there had been no heavy fighting at any time. (Earlier there had been reports the Communists were massed in strength at Shanhaikwan and were prepared to wage a large scale battle.)

The announcement came from Gen. Tu Li-Ming, commander of Nationalist forces for Manchuria.

The abrupt end of the armed stalemate along the Great Wall came three days after it had been reported in Chungking that Shanhaikwan had fallen to the Nationalists, actually at that time, the Communists had pushed down from the gate city and had reached within seven miles of Nationalist headquarters at Chinwangtao, the Nationalist commander said.

Tu explained that his forces recovered their former positions after one division was sent on a wide enveloping movement, passing through the wall at the virtually undefended town of Chiumen, six miles west of Shanhaikwan, and then sliced down to threaten the rear of the Communists.

"We have driven 10,000 Communist bandits out of Shanhaikwan and have taken the city," said General Tu, beaming in obviously good spirits.

Suddenly the short, young general broke into laughter and added that apparently the Communists thought American combat planes flying over the area were going to make strafing runs "so they withdrew from their positions." American planes have been in the area for several weeks but none has been used in support of the Nationalist operation.

Tu said a narrow escape lane was left open conveniently to the Communists and they used it on finding they virtually were surrounded.

The Nationalists began the entry this morning. By noon, most of the city was under control, the general added.

Later he acknowledged that he and his party went only as far as the suburbs because "things are very confused" in the center but he emphasized that there was no heavy fighting at any time and casualties on both sides were very light.

Shots fired from a Communist-held village upon a train bearing a U. S. Marine general brought a stern Marine threat of punitive air attack today as Chinese Communists and government forces maneuvered for possession of Manchuria and the rich northern provinces.

U. S. China theater headquarters announced that the shots were fired yesterday at the train of Maj. Gen. DeWitt Peck, commander of the First Marine division, from a village near Lwanhsien, on the line between Tangshan and the port of Chinwangtao on the goulf of Chihli.

Three hundred yards of track and roadbed were destroyed by land mines which caused several casualties among Chinese workers. No American injuries were reported.

U. S. headquarters declined to confirm reports that the Marines had returned the gunfire, but Maj. Gen. Keller Rockey, commander of the Third amphibious corps, said he had directed an emissary to inform the Communists that "if firing continues I will order an air strafing mission against the village."

Takes Cautious Tone

Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of U. S. Army forces in China, took a more cautious tone, directing Rockey to give "considerable" warning to the village, including air-borne leaflets, and only then to take "appropriate military action."

Wedemeyer said he was informing both Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and Communist Leader Chou En-Lai of the incident, which is the latest of several in recent weeks.

A spokesman at Chiang's field headquarters in Peiping said meanwhile that Nationalist troops "quite soon" would begin a mass movement into Manchuria aboard planes obtained from the Americans.

Principal destination of these forces will be Changchun, Manchurian capital, which is said in unconfirmed reports to have fallen into Communist hands after withdrawal of the Russians who took it from the Japanese.

The Communists themselves announced without confirmation that they had "liberated" all of the big northern provinces of Jehol and Chahar except for one town which they were attacking.

Coupled with the acknowledgement by a government source that the Communists held 80 per cent of Suiyuan province, this would mean that virtually all of Inner Mongolia was in Communist hands and would imply that if Nationalist armies wanted to get to Manchuria by land they would have to fight their way.

Marines Warn Chinese Reds On Endangering U.S. General

Shanghai, Nov. 16 (AP)—Shots fired from a Communist-held village upon a train bearing a United States Marine general brought a stern Marine threat of punitive air attack today as Chinese Communists and Government forces maneuvered for possession of Manchuria and the rich northern provinces.

United States China theater headquarters announced that the shots were fired yesterday at the train of Maj. Gen. Dewitt Peck, commander of the 1st Marine Division, from a village near Lwanhsien, on the line between Tangshan and the port of Chinwangtao on the Gulf of Chihli.

Three hundred yards of track and roadbed were destroyed by land mines, which caused several casualties among Chinese workers. No American injuries were reported.

Wedemeyer Is Cautious

United States headquarters declined to confirm reports that the Marines had returned the gunfire, but Maj. Gen. Keller Rockey, commander of the 3d Amphibious Corps, said he had directed an emissary to inform the Communists that "if firing continues I will order an air strafing mission against the village."

Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of United States Army forces in China, took a more cautious tone, directing Rockey to give "considerable" warning to the village, including airborne leaflets, and only then to take "appropriate military action."

Wedemeyer said he was informing both Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Communist Leader Chou En-lai of the whole incident, which is the latest of several in recent weeks.

Chungking dispatches said that Kweisui, capital of Suiyuan province, still was holding out against Communist besiegers, as was Hsingyi in Chahar.

In the continuing war of nerves throughout China, the Communist spokesman in Chungking hotly asserted that United States Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley's statement of Tuesday night in Santa Fe, N.M., served "no other purpose than to spread and prolong civil war."

Hurley had said the Communists were seeking Japanese arms "to set up a separate government in China or destroy the Government of the Republic of China."

Parleys Still On Calendar

General Wedemeyer, questioned by correspondents in Shanghai about reported participation of Japanese in the Chinese civil strife, said he felt it was his definite responsibility to prevent such activity but "American forces can't be everywhere."

Wedemeyer said he was checking reports that the Russians had permitted Chinese Communists to enter Port Arthur and Dairen and take over Japanese weapons. He said two thirds of the 1,091,000 Japanese troops in China had been disarmed but that some of the remaining third were being permitted to keep their arms "to preclude disorders."

The peace conferences of the Chinese factions still were on the calendar, meanwhile, but with a new delay until December, Chungking's Ministry of Information said the Communist leader Chou was going back to Yenan for advice but would return. There was speculation, however, that he might decide to stay in Yenan.

General Peck's Train Fired On In North China

Shanghai, Nov. 16 (AP)—The United States China theater headquarters reported today that a train bearing Maj. Gen. Dewitt Peck, 1st Marine Division commander, was under fire from a Communist-occupied North China village yesterday.

General Peck, uninjured, requested that United States planes strafe the village if the firing continued, headqu[illegible] disclosed.

Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commanding United States forces in China, in a careful reply authorized "appropriate military action," but only after "considerable" warning to the village and adequate precautions to avoid endangering innocent persons.

Reports Marines Fired Back

Headquarters was unable to confirm Tientsin reports that Marines aboard the train returned the fire.

The report of the attack was received by Wedemeyer from Maj. Gen. Keller Rockey, commander of the 3d Amphibious Corps. Rockey's message said the train was en route from Tangshan to the coal port of Chinwangtao, and that the small-arms fire was coming from a village 600 yards north of Lwanhsien.

Will Warn Communists

Rockey instructed Peck to send an emissary to the village to inform the Communist leader that "if firing continues I will order an air strafing mission against the village."

Rockey's message also reported that 300 yards of track and roadbed of the railway had been destroyed by mines, causing several casualties among the Chinese workers. No American casualties were reported.

Chiang, Chou Informed

Wedemeyer said that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Gen. Chou En-lai, Communist leader in Chungking, had been informed of the exchange of messages.

Correspondent Olen Clements, at Tientsin, said travelers reported the Marines aboard the train returned the fire, but Marine headquarters remained silent.

"Travelers said that the fight took place at a spot between Tangshan and Chinwangtao, where Communist troops have been giving the Nationalists trouble for days," Clements reported. He said it was not known whether Communists knew General Peck was aboard the train.

Not The First Time

This is not the first time Marines have been fired on while riding North China's trains, but the shots thus far have been scattered. Only one Marine has been reported wounded seriously.

Rail lines of North China are vital for shipments of coal from northern mines to Chinwangtao, but they still are suffering damage from attackers, especially the line on which General Peck was riding.

Clements also reported a brisk skirmish occurred on the fringe of Tientsin last night when "bandits" attacked outposts of Nationalists guarding the city. Machine-gun and mortar fire was heard, he said, and at least one Government soldier was killed and one wounded.

Marines' Task Two-Thirds Done

There was no identification of the "bandits," although some Nationalists said they might have been part of the Communist forces ringing Tientsin.

Is Checking up on Russians.

Wedemeyer told a news conference today that the task for which Marines entered China—disarming 1,091,000 surrendered Japanese—was two-thirds completed. Asked why the remaining one-third still carried arms, he said that it was due partly to the fact that Central Government forces were insufficient in certain remote areas, and also to the fact that some Japanese had been purposely allowed to retain arms to preclude disorders.

Wedemeyer said that he feels it is definite responsibility to prevent the Japanese from taking part in any political, military or economic activity in China, but such things are possible because "American forces cannot be every where." His staff, he said, is checking reports that Russians permitted Chinese communists to enter Port Arthur and Dairen, Manchuria, and take over weapons and equipment laid down by the Japanese. The staff also is working on unconfirmed Chinese reports that 12,000 Japanese in North China surrendered to Communists a week ago and have been reorganized under the name "Liberty Japanese Volunteers," he said.

Mass China Moves Soon Forecast

Peiping, Nov. 16 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist troops will begin a mass movement "quite soon" into Manchuria in air transports turned over to China by the United States, a spokesman at Chiang's field headquarters said today.

Their destination will be the main airfield at Changchun, capital of Manchuria, which unconfirmed reports say is in the hands of Chinese Communists following a withdrawal of the Russians.

[An official Chinese Government dispatch received at Chungking yesterday said Russians had yielded control of Changwan's postal and telegraph facilities to a handful of Chinese Government authorities, and indicated that the Russians have not yet completed their planned withdrawal.]

Communist Opposition

Chiang's men are opposed in a ground movement toward Manchuria by Chinese Communists. The presence of the Communists in two Manchurian ports evacuated by the Russians recently caused ships of the United States 7th Fleet to pull away without putting ashore the Nationalists on board.

American air crews ferrying unmarked C45 transports here from Kunming protested to command ing officers of the 10th Air Force, that flying without the United States insignia increased the hazards of being shot if forced down of flying low.

The Generalissimo's spokesman said that conflict with Chinese Communist forces throughout North China is becoming "more and more serious." He voiced a need for more Nationalist troops.

Disposition Of Forces

The 92d Army is in Peiping, the 94th in Tientsin and the 13th at Chinwangtao pending landings in Manchuria.

A full-scale war of nerves is in progress throughout the country.

In Chungking, a Communist spokesman took heated exception to a statement made at Santa Fe, N.M., Tuesday by United States Ambassador Patrick Hurley. Hurley said that the Communists sought Japanese arms "to set up a separate government in China or destroy the Government of the Republic of China."

The Chungking Communist spokesman said Hurley's comment served "no other purpose than to spread and prolong civil war."

Peiping Report Denied

In Peiping, Chiang's spokesman denied published reports that this city has at any time been under direct assault by the Communists. Once within two miles, they are now seven miles from the city, he said.

Some attempts have been made to halt the influx of foodstuffs and fresh produce into the city. In time this might become serious, the spokesman acknowledged. However, great stockpiles of food had been collected within the city by the Japanese and there is enough to last two years.

Railroad lines from Peiping to Tientsin are open. Trains also are operating between Peiping and Hankow Pass, 30 miles to the northwest; to Paoting, 110 miles to the south on the Hankow line, and to Tsangchow, 35 miles south of Tientsin on the Pukow line.

Briton Assails U.S. 'Economic Dominance'

London, Nov. 16 (AP)—Conservative Robert Boothby urged the Government in Commons today to cut the import of American films, asserting that Great Britain is suffering "complete economic domination by the United States."

"If the Government has decided to borrow a large sum at a considerable rate of interest from the United States," Boothby said, "and to go back to the gold standard and multilateral free trade without discrimination as to price, then I suppose that the film industry will have to be included in the sell out of Great Britain."

Boothby said Great Britain was spending $80,000,000 a year on American movies and declared the country, in its present financial position, could not "afford to do this indefinitely."

He said if the current talks in Washington produce the $4,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 loan to Great Britain, it would be "well advised to make immediate application for entry as the forty-ninth state of the U.S.A. and move ourselves over to Washington in order to get some of the advantages, instead of only the disadvantages of complete economic domination by the United States."

"The dilemma which confronts the Government is inescapable," Boothby said, "on the one hand, it is trying to build up a planned internal economy. It is, we know, under very heavy pressure from the United States to revert to an unplanned external economy. In the situation in which we find ourselves, one thing is certain: You cannot have a planned production and an unplanned trade."

44 Nations Joining 'Unheeded' UNO Unit

London, Nov. 16 (AP)—Forty-four nations will sign the constitution of the United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization today, but—in the opinion of the head of the United States delegation—"no one seems to care what has been done."

"Some of us have felt that we have been holding our conference seven or eight miles underground on dark nights and that no one cares very much what we say," Archibald MacLeish, chief American representative, told a news conference.

Upon MacLeish's suggestion, the UNESCO conference opened an extraordinary plenary session at which the delegates will tell how the war affected their homelands. MacLeish hopes the descriptions will "arouse the conscience of mankind."

Brendan Bracken Elected To Parliament

London, Nov. 16 (AP)—Brendan Bracken, intimate of Winston Churchill and First Lord of the Admiralty in his last Cabinet, was elected to Parliament in a by-election in Bournemouth today.

Bracken, a Conservative, polled 22,980 votes to 6,454 by his Labor opponent, Wing Commander E. A. M. Shackleton, and 9,548 by the Liberal, Basil Wigoder. Bracken had been defeated in the July general election.

Richard MacMillan, Conservative and former Air Minister, was elected to Commons earlier this week in a Bromley by-election.

Boy Scouts Group Received by King

London, Nov. 16. (A. P.)—King George VI received today a delegation of the Boy Scouts International Committee, including Dr. James E. West of the United States, and Prince Gustav Adolph of Sweden.

SCOTTISH SCIENTIST LITTLE FEARS A-BOMB

GLASGOW, Nov. 16—(AP) Scottish Scientist Sir James French said today that if the United States experiments with atomic bombs on naval targets, he would be willing to board one of the ships and record its reactions.

Sir James, chairman of the governors of the Royal Technical college in Glasgow, told the Glasgow Publicity club that he did not believe the bomb could cause "disintegration" of the world, and urged listeners not to be terrified until they had all the facts.

He added, however, that the atomic bomb was "only the beginning," and said "we may be taking a really serious view of it in about 50 to 100 years."

DE GAULLE'S MOVE STIRS PARIS CRISIS

He Offers To Quit Over Deadlock With Communists

Paris, Nov. 16 (AP)—A political crisis stirred France tonight after General de Gaulle's office announced he had decided to resign as interim president due to a deadlock with the powerful Communist party over his new Cabinet.

Sources close to the French leader, however, said his letter of resignation, as yet not made public, indicated a willingness to continue efforts to form a government. There was an immediate flurry of political conferences through the day.

Communist Demand Cited

The Communist party, which won the most seats in the Constituent Assembly in the last election, had demanded "political posts," including one of the three top ministries—Foreign Affairs, War, or Interior—as its price for participating in a coalition Government.

De Gaulle's letter was delivered tonight to Felix Gouin, president of the Constituent Assembly, which elected de Gaulle Tuesday to serve as president during creation of the Fourth Republic.

The decision whether to accept or reject the resignation rests in the hands of the Assembly, which will convene again on Monday.

Text Not Disclosed

Gouin read the letter and announced immediately that the text would not be made public until it is placed before the Assembly.

One source, who said he heard the letter read, reported de Gaulle said in it that he was unable to form a government, and had requested a full-dress assembly debate on the Communist demands, with the assembly then to decide whether de Gaulle or someone else should try to form a government.

An announcement by the Ministry of Information said: "Negotiations are under way between the president of the provisional government of the French Republic and the president of the Constituent Assembly. The text of this letter will not be published."

Intimates of de Gaulle said he had failed to agree with the Communists on organization of a Cabinet, but added that he stated in the letter that if the Assembly wishes him to try further he is ready to undertake the task.

Action By 3 Parties At Hand

Shortly after the letter was delivered it became apparent that France's three major parties—the Communists, Socialists and Popular Republican Movement—would take action to meet the situation created by de Gaulle's move.

Political quarters predicted that an agreement in which the Communist position could be reconciled was probable.

A Communist spokesman said a meeting of the three parties was called for tonight to permit his party to present a proposal for forming a Communist-led Cabinet, presumably without General de Gaulle.

Other parliamentary sources said, however, that another meeting might be held tomorrow of the "most representative personalities" of the three parties.

Communist Unit Meets

The political bureau of the Communist party met tonight under the chairmanship of its secretary general, Maurice Thorez, to "examine the political situation created by General de Gaulle's decision to renounce the accomplishment of the mission with which he was charged by the Constituent Assembly," a party communiqué said.

"The political bureau reaffirmed the will of the party to assume, in a government which conforms to decisions of universal suffrage, all responsibilities it received as a result of the October 21 elections," the communiqué added.

One source de Gaulle had offered all economic and social posts in the Cabinet to the Communists, but that the Communists remained adamant in demands for one of the top Cabinet positions.

Meets With Soustelle

The Information Minister, Jacques Soustelle, held a lengthy conference with de Gaulle late tonight and said afterward the General had completed his political negotiations "for the moment."

Soustelle declined to say when they might be resumed.

As he entered the General's War Ministry office, an envoy from Gouin was ushered out. The envoy's errand was not disclosed.

Soustelle's announcement capped a day of tense political wrangling that saw the resignation of de Gaulle first rumored, next announced by his office, then apparently withheld pending general negotiations to solve the deadlock with the Communists.

FRENCH LEADER RESIGNING OVER ROW WITH REDS

Frantic Efforts Under Way to Keep De Gaulle in Presidency.

GENERAL OPPOSES DEMANDS

Communists Insisting on Key Posts in Cabinet—Assembly Head Has Chief's Letter.

Paris, Nov. 16 (A. P.).—Gen. de Gaulle's office announced today that he had decided to resign as interim President of France because of a deadlock with communists over formation of a Government, but frantic negotiations in the capital indicated a last-minute effort was being made to prevent the General's retirement.

Harried officials and members of the Assembly were engaged in frantic negotiations throughout the afternoon after De Gaulle's decision was disclosed by his aids.

A press conference called at the Ministry of Informaion was jammed by reporters expecting to hear a communique announcing the General's resignation. Instead an official of the Ministry read a brief statement which said: "No letter has been presented by Gen. de Gaulle to the President of the Chamber. No official comunique has been issued by the President of the Government."

This was at 11:30 A. M., New York time.

Previously, De Gaulle's office had announced that his resignation would be placed in the Chamber's hands at noon Eastern standard time. The Assembly was expected, on the basis of that announcement, to meet tomorrow to act on the resignation—either to accept it and elect a new President or reject it.

A few minutes after 1 P. M. (Eastern standard time) a spokesman for the Ministry of Information said a letter from the General had been delivered to Felix Gouin, president of the Constituent Assembly, by that the latter official did not disclose the contents.

Both Communist and Socialist deputies held meetings this afternoon. The Communists voted confidence in their leaders and their stand, while the Socialists reaffirmed their willingness to join only a three-party government in which the Communists, Socialists and the Catholic Popular Republican party would be linked in executive responsibility.

De Gaulle's decision grew out of a demand of the Communist party, most important single political group in the newly elected Constituent Assembly, for key Cabinet posts.

De Gaulle was elected unanimously by the Constituent Assembly Tuesday to serve as President during the creation of the Fourth Republic. The General then shed his uniform for civilian clothing.

He became head of the Free French movement after escaping from his homeland to London in mid-June, 1940, and won undisputed control of the French Committee of National Liberation in Algiers in November, 1943, when Gen. Henri Giraud resigned as its co-President after a bitter dispute with De Gaulle over the composition of the administration.

The deadlock developed when the Communists in two letters to De Gaulle said their price of participation in the Government coalition alongside the Socialists and Popular Republican movement was one of the "three big Ministries"—Foreign Affairs, Interior or War.

The first letter said De Gaulle's reasons for refusing to grant them one of these posts "cast doubt on the national character of our party and its policy."

In the second letter the Communists reiterated their demands for a "large part of responsibility in the Government."

Archduke Otto Arrives Secretly in Austria

Hapsburg Pretender in Tyrol; Renner Would Let Him Stay

PARIS, Nov. 16 (AP).—The French News Agency reported today that Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, pretender to the Austrian throne, had arrived secretly in the Austrian Tyrol. He has been for several months in Lisbon, where associates were quoted as saying he believed the Hapsburg dynasty would be restored to the Austrian throne.

His presence in the Tyrol was discovered by French occupation authorities, who were asked by Chancellor Karl Renner to permit him to remain so long as he did not engage in subversive activities, the news agency said.

Abetz Taken To Paris

Paris, Nov. 16 (AP)—Otto Abetz, Nazi Ambassador to Vichy, France, captured recently in the French zone in Germany, arrived today in Paris by train from Strasbourg. He was taken to national police headquarters for preliminary questioning before being conducted to the Cherche-Midi prison.

Petain Is Transferred

Ile d'Yeu, in the Bay of Biscay, Nov. 16 (AP)—Marshal Henri Philippe Pétain arrived at this island today from the mainland for imprisonment this winter.

He was brought from his snow-bound fortress-prison of Portalet, high in the Pyrenees, when officials decided it was to cold there for the aged prisoner, serving a life term for treason.

Military Court Will Sentence Group Today; Fourteen Acquitted.

LUENEBURG, Germany, Nov. 16 —(AP) A British military court today convicted Josef Kramer, the "Beast of Belsen," and 28 of his specialists in human misery of committing atrocities at the Belsen and Oswiecim concentration camps, but acquitted 14 defendants, including five women.

Sixteen of the convicted were women.

Tonight the 29 sullenly awaited sentences of death by hanging or shooting, or of imprisonment and fines, to be announced tomorrow afternoon after defense lawyers finish pleas.

Major defendants convicted with the brute-faced, 29-year-old Kramer were Irma Grese, 22, the blonde "queen" of the Belsen gang, and Dr. Franz Lothi, gray-haired physician who, witnesses said, picked victims for the Oswiecim gas chamber.

Each of the 29 showed no emotion as their verdicts were translated into German.

But later two of the women, Hilde Lobauer, 27, and shapely Stanislawa Staroska, 28, burst into tears.

Comes as Surprise

Acquittal of such a large number as 14 was the only surprise. The court said that, after making an impartial survey of the evidence, it was obliged to rule in their favor.

The convicted, charged with conducting a camp where starvation was rampant and rivers of fat ran from human funeral pyres, arose individually in the prisoners' dock as the president of the court, Maj. Gen. H. P. M. Berney Ficklin, read the findings in a loud, husky voice.

The innocent were removed and the defending attorneys then began the pleas of mitigation which will not be concluded until sometime tomorrow.

Specifically, the charges were committing mass murder and ill treatment of Allied nationals at the two camps. Thirteen were tried on charges of committing crimes at both Oswiecim and Belsen.

German civilians and British soldiers filled the court to capacity and civilia s blocked the roadway in front to get a glimpse of the accused when they where taken back to the Lueneburg jail.

Military police searched all Germans before they entered the court gallery as a special precaution against any show of violence.

During the nine weeks of the trial 113 persons gave evidence, including accused. The testimony required translation from English to German to Polish. Submitted during the trial were 120 affidavits.

List of Those Convicted

The convicted, in addition to Kramer, Klein and Grese, were:

Peter Weingartner, 32, former member of the Yugoslav Army.

Hilde Lobauer, 27, unmarried German mother of two, sent to the Belsen camp as a social outcast.

Frank Hoeszler, 34, SS guard since 1934, guilty of crimes at Oswiecim, innocent at Belsen.

Juana Borman, 42, who gave up mission society work to join the SS; guilty at Oswiecim, innocent at Belsen.

Elizabeth Volkenrath, 26, chief of SS women and former hairdresser in Silesia.

Herta Ehlert, 40, SS guard and former bakery saleswoman in Berlin; guilty at Belsen, innocent at Oswiecim.

Ilse Forster, 22, SS cookhouse supervisor at Belsen.

Gertrude Fiest, 27, SS guard and former Silesian munitions worker.

Gertrude Sauer, 39, SS guard, wife of a missing soldier.

Hilde Lisiewicz, 23, SS guard and former Silesian farm girl.

Johanna Roth, 32, German arrested for having cohabited with a Polish slave worker, and appointed a camp functionary.

Anna Hempel, 45, former seamstress, who left her husband and two children to join the SS.

Heinrich Schreier, 22, son of a wealthy Rumanian flour mill owner, guilty at Belsen, innocent at Oswiecim.

Wilhelm Dorr, 24, SS guard and farmer's son.

Eric Zoddel, 32, German functionary and former Berlin milkman.

Otto Kulessa, 53, SS guard who fought in World War I as a sergeant.

Karl Francoih, 33, SS guard and former Silesian coal miner.

Ansgar Pichen, 32, SS guard and butcher shop employe who changed his nationality from Danish to Polish and then to German.

Franz Starfle, 33, SS guard and former Berlin dairyman.

Herta Bothe, 25, domestic servant who joined the SS.

Frieda Walter, 24, SS guard and former textile worker.

Irene Harschke, 24, textile mill worker and SS guard.

Stanislawa Staroska, 28, former Polish stenographer arrested for underground activity and made a prison functionary.

Helena Kopper, 35, Hungarian Jewess, married and the mother of two, who became an SS spy at Oswiecim and Belsen.

Vladislaw Ostrowski, 30, Polish.

Medislaw Burgraf, 26, Polish,

Antoni Surdsiej, 27.

Those acquitted were:

George Kraft, 27, SS guard and son of a Rumanian miller.

Ilse Lothe, 31, German prisoner at Belsen named as a camp functionary.

Ignatz Schlomowicz, Austrian Jew who was an inmate of ten concentration camps and won a position as a camp functionary.

Ida Foerster, 43, reported dying with a heart ailment and wife of missing German soldier.

Klara Opitz, SS guard.

Hildegard Hahnel, 27, SS guard and former Silesian barmaid.

Eric Barsch, 42, SS medical orderly.

Fritz Mathes, 52, SS conscript.

Karl Egersdorf, 43, SS guard from Bavaria.

Oscar Schmitz, 29, Cologne engineering apprentice and Communist Youth Organization member.

Walter Ott, 39, SS electrician.

Charlotte Klein, 23, SS guard and former Saxony laboratory assistant.

Antoni Polanski, 31, Polish.

Josef Kuppel, Yugoslav conscripted for SS service.

The original list of defendants totaled forty-five, but during the trial charges were dropped against Ladislaw Gura, 27-year-old Czechoslovak.

The accused arose individually and listened without visible emotion as the president of the court, Major-Gen. Berney Ficklin, read the findings. The fourteen found innocent were then removed and defending officers began pleas in mitigation.

Forty-five defendants were on hand at the start of the trial. However, the charge against Ladislaw Gura, a 27-year-old Czech, was dropped and he was discharged after he collapsed October 23 and was removed for an emergency operation.

Other findings of the court: Peter Weingartner, 32, formerly in the Yugoslav Army, guilty of two charges; George Kraft, 27, an SS guard and son of a Romanian miller, not guilty.

Ilse Lothe, 31, a German prisoner at Belsen, who was named as a camp functionary, not guilty; Hilde Lobauer, 27, an unmarried German mother of two, sent to a camp as a social outcast, guilty of two charges.

Franz Hoeszler, 34, SS guard since 1934, formerly a photographer for a German winter resort, guilty of crimes at Oswiecim, innocent at Belsen; Juana Borman, 42, who gave up mission society work to join the SS, guilty at Oswiecim, innocent at Belsen.

Elizabeth Volkenrath, 26, chief of the SS women and a former hairdresser in Silesia, guilty of both charges; Herta Ehlert, 40, SS guard and former bakery saleswoman at Berlin, guilty at Belsen, innocent at Oswiecim.

Ignatz Schlomowicz, 27, an Austrian Jew who was an inmate of ten concentration camps and won a position as camp functionary, innocent; Ilse Forster, 22, S. S. cookhouse supervisor at Belsen, guilty; Ida Foersten 43, reported dying with a heart aliment, the wife of a missing Wehrmacht soldier, innocent; Klara Opitz, 36, an S. S. guard, innocent.

Gertrude Fiest, 27, an S. S.

Nazis Bleached Human Heads For Souvenirs, Says Witness

DACHAU, Germany, Nov. 16—(AP) An inmate who survived Dachau concentration camp today accused guards and officials of tortures and murders, of bleaching human heads for souvenirs, and skinning human bodies to make handbags for their women.

The Czechoslovak Dr. Franz Blaha, identified 17 of the 40 Dachau war crimes defendants in six hours of testimony which frequently evoked gasps from the packed courtroom.

The slight Czechoslovakian physician, first former Dachau inmate to testify, charged that:

Fifteen thousands persons died of typhus, but prison doctors were forbidden to report an epidemic because officials 'didn't want a quarantine."

Naked prisoners were made to stand in line in front of the hospital for hours in all kinds of weather, while doctors examined them to see if they were able to work. This lineup was called the "slave market."

Scores of inmates were given nothing but salt water for five days to see what effect it would have on them.

Prisoners and priests were injected with chemicals in painful experiments which caused many deaths and amputations.

The heads of inmates killed in malarial experiments were chopped off, boiled and bleached as trophies for the SS guards.

Human skin was obtained for the most part from gas chamber victims. Blaha and other inmates were forced to flay bodies, treat the skin with chemicals and cut it into patterns provided by the SS. Handbags, gloves, saddles and slippers were made from the human hide, and "tattoes were most popular."

Prisoners were immersed in ice water for as long as 38 hours while blood was drawn periodically from their necks for examination. "Very many died," but some victims were taken out alive and warmed up by being put in bed between two women prisoners.

Eight thousand Russian prisoners of war were executed in the spring of 1942.

As Blaha testified, he pointed a finger of accusation at the various defendants whom he identified, but for the most part the accused showed no change in expression.

Wilhelm Wagner smiled slightly, however, when Blaha accused him of administering 25 lashes to prisoners while a band played a German march which the inmates called "25 March."

Josef Jarolin, who rose to the rank of commandant of the prisoners compound, stared back unblinking when Blaha accused him of being present when "I was hung by the wrists with my hands tied behind my back for an hour."

Court Told Nazis Killed 8,000 Dachau Reds

Dachau, Germany, Nov. 16 (AP). A former inmate of Dachau concentration camp told a United States military court today that 8,000 Russian prisoners of war were executed en masse there.

He pointed an accusing finger at four of the 40 defendants and named them as perpetrators of the atrocities.

The accused men reddened as the Czechoslovak, Dr. Franz Blaha, a political prisoner at Dachau, near Munich, from 1941 to 1945, told of gassings, painful medical experiments, beatings, starvings, lashings and torture.

Audience Stirred

Dr. Blaha's recital of the tortures caused emotion even among the eight war-hardened United States Army officers trying the case. The courtroom audience frequently echoed with audible gasps as Blaha demonstrated in tortuous poses some of the cruelties.

He told of experiments in which prisoners were immersed in ice water as long as 38 hours while blood was drawn periodically from the necks of the victims for examination.

BRITISH SEIZE KRUPP PLANTS

Symbol Of German Armed Might To "Cease To Exist"

Lueneburg, Germany, Nov. 16 (AP)—The huge, once-powerful Krupp munitions empire was seized by the British today, and an official declared this kingpin of German armed might would "cease to exist."

"There will be an end for all time to the traditions and influences so long associated with it," the military government officer said.

The British took possession and control of all property owned by the firm of Friedrich Krupp, of Essen, its subsidiaries and affiliated undertakings, and appointed a controller with headquarters in the main Krupp office at Essen. The Krupp plants are in the British occupation zone.

Chemical Trust Seized

Last month the Allies confiscated the entire holdings in Germany of the I. G. Farbenindustrie, the great chemical and industrial trust.

Expropriation of properties of the German industrial tycoon, Friedrich Flick, was announced yesterday by the provincial government of Saxony in the Russian zone.

Acting against the Krupp empire in another step to obliterate the German war potential, the British said the present management would be dissolved.

In the Hitler regime, Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach was the boss of the giant arms and steel works. He was indicted as a war criminal.

The international war-crimes tribunal at Nuernberg postponed his trial indefinitely after a medical commission reported he has senile softening of the brain.

Son Substituted

Substitution of his son, Alfried Krupp, as a defendant is sought by the United States, Russia and France.

The Krupp firm grew to power under Friedrich Krupp, and Gustav, his son-in-law, was permitted by Kaiser Wilhelm II to add "Krupp" to his name after he married Bertha Krupp, Friedrich's daughter, in 1906.

A senior British officer explained that the firm of Friedrich Krupp, by Hitler's order in 1943, was reconstituted as a family undertaking after operating 40 years as a limited liability company.

The Krupp firm "was founded in the early part of the Nineteenth Century, but its earlier activities were purely of a commercial nature, developing later into feverish efforts to produce steel of the quality that was produced in England," he continued.

Came Near Bankruptcy

"But the efforts of the firm ruined the original founder and came near bankrupting the business as well.

Friedrich Alfried Krupp was a business man first and a German citizen next, and he sold guns to anyone who would buy them.

"When Kaiser Wilhelm II refused offers of mediation which might have prevented war in 1914, and when Hitler rushed to war in 1939, each knew that they could rely not only on the products of the mighty Essen plant, but also on the effect on the minds of the German people of the tradition which the Krupps had done so much to foster.

"It is one of the tasks of the military government to eliminate that tradition.

The seizure order was based on an Allied Military Government law in accord with the Potsdam agreement, which set as occupation goals the disarmament and demilitarization of Germany and removal of all Nazi party members from public offices and private jobs.

British Take Over Krupp Plants

Lueneburg, Germany, Nov. 16 (AP)—The British Military Government took over possession and control today of all property owned by the German armaments and steel producing firm of Friedrich Krupp, of Essen; its subsidiary and affiliated undertakings.

The military government has appointed a controller with headquarters in the head Krupp office at Essen. He was placed in immediate control of all assets of the Freidrich Krupp plants which are in the British occupation zone.

Management Dissolved

The present management will be dissolved. Persons holding managerial positions will be required to place themselves at the disposal of the controller and carry on their duties until further notice.

Only yesterday, the provincial government of Saxony in the Russian occupation zone announced the expropriations of the properties in Saxony of the German industrial magnate, Friedrick Flick.

Gustav Krupp Spared.

Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, guiding head of the great arms and steel works during Hitler's early years, is under indictment as a war criminal, but the international military tribunal at Nuernberg postponed his trial indefinitely yesterday because the industrialist has "senile softening of the brain." A United States motion to substitute Alfred Krupp, present head of the firm, as a defendant, still is pending. Alfred Krupp is interned by the British Army of the Rhine.

Frederich Krupp, who first brought the firm into prominence, was the father-in-law of Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach. Gustav was permitted by Kaiser Wilhelm II to prefix Krupp to his name when he married Bertha Krupp, daughter of Friedrich and heiress to the industrial dynasty in 1906.

The order for seizure was based on a law enacted by the Allied Military Government in accord with the Potsdam agreement, which lists among Allied purposes the demilitarization of Germany and the removal from public office and private undertakings of all members of the Nazi party.

KRUPP INDICTMENT RULING DUE TODAY

NUERNBERG, Nov. 16—(AP) Decisions on motions for indictment of Alfried Krupp, the Krupp munitions heir, as far as a war criminal, and for a delay in the trial of top Nazis now set for Nov. 20, will be announced tomorrow by the International War Crimes tribunal.

The United States, backed by France and Russia, has asked that Alfried Krupp be substituted as a defendant for his father, Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, whose trial was postponed because of illness.

Attorneys for the aged Gustav Krupp have insisted they should be given a 30-day postponement of the trial if Alfried is indicted "at this late hour."

British legal sources, who opposed Alfried's indictment, agreed that a 30-day postponement would "only be just," but the United States, asked for only a 12-day delay, until Dec. 2, if Alfried is substituted.

Chief U. S. War Crimes Prosecutor Robert H. Jackson filed a "reminder" with the tribunal today, asserting that the United States is not committed to any additional international trials after Nuernberg. He said the United States seeks to establish now the criminal character of German organizations such as the Krupp concern; so that 130,000 Germans under American army arrest can be tried "expeditiously" in American military courts on the basis of evidence presented here.

Meanwhile, one Allied source said that the odds against Rudolph Hess going to trial were about 100 to one. This source said it was virtually certain that a board of psychiatrists would rule that Hess was afflicted with "true amnesia."

Fatal Plane Accident Also Destroys Mail

Frankfurt, Nov. 16 (AP)—Four thousand pounds of mail en route to American soldiers in Germany from the United States was destroyed last Saturday when a C-47 transport plane crashed and burned near Chateau Thierry, United States Army officials announced today. Another 800 pounds of mail was salvaged.

All four crew members died in the crash.

Frankfurt Relaxes Ban on Visitors

Frankfurt, Nov. 16 (A. P.).—The ban on American business men visiting Germany has been relaxed to permit approximately 100 monthly to come here, it was learned today from an official source.

'Herring-Flavored Bread' For Berliners

Berlin, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Berlin press published this recipe today as one of a series of helpful hints to harassed housewives:

"Herring-flavored bread: Take herring head, remove eyes; boil head with bones, strain off liquid and mix with flour, adding salt and vinegar to taste. This should be served with onion rings or chopped turnip to get the full effect.

Baby Added to Hitler Mystery

Pictures of Blond Child Found With Eva Braun's Huge Personal Treasure.

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 16 (A. P.).—Pictures of Eva Braun, Adolf Hitler and a baby girl identified only as "Uschi," discovered in an album tucked away with Eva's fabulous personal treasure, posed an interesting mystery today for American intelligence officers, who hinted that the full story of the treasure was yet to be told.

The treasure chest was found yesterday. Precisely where it was found was a secret.

The announcement called Eva Hitler's supposed wife. There had been reports that the couple had at least one child, although British intelligence investigators had concluded that Hitler and Eva were married only the day before they were believed to have died together in the chancellery of burning Berlin.

Thousands of U. S. Bills.

Besides thousands of dollars in American bills, valuable jewelry and a hoard of extremely valuable silver, there was a diary, evidently Eva's, which referred frequently to her "undying love" for Hitler.

Her pictures showed herself, Hitler and the blonde baby girl in many poses, from the child's infancy until she appeared to be about 3 years old in the last snapshots dated 1944. Often the line written under the picture would read: "And here is Uschi again." But there was no further identification.

Also in the find was the uniform worn on July 20, 1944, when an attempt was made on his life. It was blood-stained and tattered. The coat was the clew which led to the discovery. A German officer had told a friend he knew where the uniform was, and questioning of this officer resulted in the finding of Eva's treasures.

SWISS DENY HIDING FUNDS

Kilgore's Suggestion of Aid to Nazis Rejected by Official

BERNE, Switzerland, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Swiss Government denied today that it had helped Germany hide her assets in Switzerland.

"We have nothing to hide regarding Nazi assets," Dr. Walter Stucki, Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs, said. He commented on a statement made by Senator Harley M. Kilgore before a Senate Finance subcommittee in Washington on Wednesday, that he had found evidence of collaboration between the Swiss Government and banking officials and the Nazis" early in 1945.

In a written statement in German, Stucki asserted that the accusations raised before the subcommittee "are rejected as completely groundless."

SWISS SEE NEED TO JOIN UNITED NATIONS

BERN, Switzerland, Nov. 16.—(AP) The Swiss government commission appointed to study the United Nations charter reported today that Switzerland "could not afford to remain out of a world-wide organization which has for its purpose the maintenance of world peace."

Switzerland's position as a neutral would have to be maintained, however, the report said. It was prevented by the Swiss foreign secretary, Dr. Max Petitpierre.

Objections to Swiss membership in the United Nations had been raised earlier on the ground the pledge of UNO members to maintain world peace by force of arms if necessary could not be reconciled with Switzerland's traditional neutrality.

Dutch May Ask Trial Of Seyss-Inquart

Amsterdam, Nov. 16 (A. P.).—The newspaper Het Parool said today that the Netherlands will demand that Arthur Seyss-Inquart stand trial before a special tribunal at the Hague for his acts as Nazi gauleiter for Holland, after he has stood trial with other Nazi leaders in Nuernberg before the International War Crimes Tribunal.

Churchill Wants To See United States Of Europe

Brussels, Nov. 16 (AP)—Winston Churchill told the Belgian Senate today that he would like to see a United States of Europe bound together "in prosperity, justice and peace," and added that "the tragedy of Europe shocks me entirely."

The second world war might have been prevented "if the United States had taken part in the League of Nations, or if the League of Nations, without the United States, had used force on a European basis alone," the former British Prime Minister said.

Churchill received the freedom of the city and was enthusiastically cheered by Belgian crowds.

Churchill said he would call the last war "the unnecessary war," Hitler, he said, "could have been stopped in the early days of his aggression."

Moscow Hears That Big 3 Plan A New Meeting

Embassies Are Believed Making Arrangements; Stalin May Return Soon

MOSCOW, Nov. 16 (AP).—Diplomatic sources reported tonight that preliminary discussions were believed under way for another meeting of President Truman, Generalissimo Stalin and Prime Minister Attlee, as a means of solving current deadlocks on high policy.

Usually well informed sources said the discussions, plus the American-British-Canadian proposal on atomic energy, kept the United States and British embassies working nearly all last night.

There were indications in Moscow that if Stalin has not already returned from vacation, he is shortly to do so.

At Washington, high officials said they knew of no plans under way now for another Big Three meeting.

Scientists Urge Bid to Russia

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP).—Scientists recommended today that President Truman immediately invite Russia to sit in with Britain and the United States at a new conference on ways of controlling use of atomic weapons.

Hundreds of names were signed to a resolution urging the parley in the hope that a system could be devised for submission to the United Nations Organization.

The action was announced by Dr. J. H. Rush, of Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Dr. Francis D. Bonner, of the Army's so-called Manhattan Project, who worked on the atomic bomb.

Dr. Rush told a news conference in the office of Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas, Democrat, of California, that every scientist who worked on the bomb "was scared" the minute he found out what lay ahead. That is what prompted so many to take on "for the first time in history this civic responsibility," he added.

Dr. Rush said they were "supplementing" the stand taken by Mr. Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada. The three have decided to retain atomic bomb secrets until control measures are worked out, at the same time releasing scientific knowledge that does not bear on destruction.

That position is proper, Dr. Rush said, "if this is the first step in a series of negotiations leading to world-wide development of controls in which all major powers participate."

Avoids "Political" Discussion

Asked if he thought Russia should be given atomic secrets, Dr. Rush said that was "political," and scientists do not want to enter that discussion.

The resolution reiterated that atomic energy is "the most destructive force known to mankind" and warned against "an atomic armaments race." Such a race, it said, would lead to "a world of fear and hatred" in which all nations face sudden destruction.

Therefore, it was resolved that: "The President of the United States immediately invite to a conference the governments of Great Britain and the Soviet Union, in order to discuss the common danger created by atomic weapons, and to plan for the joint approach by these three nations to the other members of the United Nations Organization to the end of establishing a system of international co-operation and control of atomic energy which will prevent a competitive armament race, safeguard world peace, and make available to all peoples the peacetime benefits of atomic energy."

Signing it were 90 percent of the men who worked on the atomic bomb, numbering between 1,000 and 1,500; 1,100 Philadelphia scientists, and a number of independent physicists, not affiliated with organizations.

May Test Bomb on Ships

Meanwhile, it was revealed that the Army Air Forces hopes to use the gigantic B-36 in tests of the atomic bomb on such targets as naval vessels.

The B-36, which will dwarf any aircraft now flying, is now well along in construction. It is described as having range and bomb-carrying capacity far greater than the B-29 Superfortress.

A. A. F. officials told newspaper men today they believe their organization is the logical group to make tests with the atomic bomb. Their argument is this: The only two atomic bombs used so far—on Hiroshima and Nagasaki—were carried by B-29s; the experience gained and the planes used, the Superfortresses, are ready for immediate tests, the B-36 and other world-ranging type of giant bombers are on the way.

Soviet Writer Assails Trieste 'Semi-Fascists'

Moscow, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Russian journalist, Ilya Ehrenburg, charged today that "reactionary" newspapers and "semi-Fascists" in Trieste were attempting to stir up trouble in the Yugoslav zone of occupation in the Istrian Peninsula.

Writing in the Government newspaper Izvestia after a trip in which he visited the zone occupied by the Yugoslavs, but not the Allied zone, Ehrenburg said:

"The Yugoslav administration (in its zone) is doing everything in order to avoid disagreement, while the reactionary press of Trieste is doing everything to set the Italians against the Yugoslavs."

He charged that the Catholic newspaper Vira Nuova editorially is "making a laughing stock of the idea of Italian-Yugoslav fraternity." He asserted that "semi-Fascists" in Trieste scattered leaflets urging a boycott of Yugoslavs.

In the Yugoslav zone, he added, workers earn three times as much as they do in the Trieste zone.

Pravda Says Vote Will Be Held

MOSCOW, Nov. 16 (AP)—Pravda, chief Communist party organ, declared in an editorial today that the Bulgarian elections would be held Sunday as scheduled.

The paper's declaration, strongly supporting the Fatherland Front, was made while Mr. Ethridge conferred with United States and Soviet officials here on his observations in Bulgaria.

Moscow Paper 'Shocked.'

Moscow, Nov. 16 (A. P.).—The trade union newspaper Trud said today that "progressive democratic classes" in many countries "are shocked and protesting over the fact that British and Dutch troops and American arms are being used to suppress a national liberation movement of an oppressed people."

Early Hitler Pact Denied

Mannerheim denied that any agreement existed between Finland and Hitler before the outbreak of the war with Russia providing for a joint attack.

Concerning Russian peace offers in the spring of 1944, Ryti said no counteroffers were made because the Russians at all times were relentless in their demands.

FINNS ASK MORE TIME

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 16.—(AP) The Soviet and Finnish government have opened negotiations at Helsinki on Finland's request for a two-year time extension for payment of $300,000,000 in war reparations to the Russians. A promise to extend the time for payment from six to eight years was reported given to a Finnish group which visited Generalissimo Stalin five weeks ago.

Finn Refusal To Quit War In 1941 Revealed

Helsinki, Nov. 16 (AP)—Field Marshal Baron Mannerheim rejected "for military reasons" an appeal from Winston Churchill in November, 1941, that Finland quit the war, according to testimony today at the trials of eight former Finnish leaders on charges of war crimes.

Mannerheim is not on trial. The former commander in chief and present President of Finland recently went to Portugal for his health. Depositions made by Mannerheim and by former President Risto Ryti, a defendant, were read into the record at this second day of the hearing.

Severe Winter Cited

Churchill's letter to Mannerheim urged him to cease military operations, citing the severe winter as an adequate reason for quitting. The Marshal said, however, that at the time he was close to his military objective and that Churchill, as a soldier, must have understood that primary strategic objectives must be secured.

The depositions said Ryti and Mannerheim agreed between them, without advising Parliament, to seek German military aid in the critical spring of 1944. Ryti said he signed the pact with German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop without advising Parliament in order that the pact could be declared illegal when he resigned the Presidency some months later.

ITALY TO CONTROL ARMY

Allies Impose 'Reservations,' Retain Advisory Role

ROME, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Allies have taken another step toward restoring Italy to full membership in the family of nations by giving her virtually complete control of her army, it was learned today.

Members of the Allied Military Commission confirmed an announcement by the Italian War Ministry that administrative control of the army had been returned subject only to "certain reservations."

They declined to specify the nature of the reservations, but other military sources said they had to do with supplies, maintenance and broad supervision of future army policies.

The Allied Mission is expected to act in an advisory capacity.

Italian Students Strike

Rome, Nov. 16 (AP)—Strikes of students protesting, among other things, continued occupation of some university buildings by Allied forces, prevented the opening yesterday of the universities of Bari and Pisa.

New Hungarian Cabinet Takes Over

Budapest, Nov. 16 (AP)—The new coalition government formed by Zoltan Tildy, leader of the Smallholders party, took the oath of office in Parliament yesterday.

Tildy, becoming premier in place of Col. Gen. Bela Miklos, made a short appearance at the routine ceremony, despite an illness induced by five days' exertion in resolving a deadlock over the Interior Ministry, which finally was given to a Communist.

Bulgaria Tense As Election Nears

Sofia, Nov. 16 (AP)—The turbulent Bulgarian political campaign moved toward its climax in an atmosphere of explosive tension today, with the Fatherland Front and opposition groups making last-minute appeals for support in the National Assembly election to be held Sunday.

Thousands of election posters bearing caricatures were plastered upon walls, newspapers were filled with charges, and both sides ordered their followers out for a final house-to-house campaign.

Opposition groups were appealing for Bulgarians to abstain from voting in protest against the single Fatherland Front slate. Fatherland Front supporters fought to win an overwhelming popular indorsement for the Government slate.

Charge On Communists

Anti-Government leaders such as Nikolai Petkov charged that the Fatherland Front has been taken over by Communists.

Communist Leader Georgi Dimitrov replied this week that the election results would strengthen the Fatherland Front and pave the way for the other groups to be taken into the Government in order to broaden its base. Dimitrov admitted the Government had made some errors but said they were being corrected.

Soviet Link Denied

Opposition charges that "after the election Bulgaria will be included in the Soviet Union are nonsense." Dimitrov declared.

He said that future co-operation with opposition parties would be possible if they:

1. Recognized accomplishments of the anti-Fascist movement made before September 9, 1944.
2. Guaranteed there will be no future movement to bring criminal charges against the present Government for acts committed in liquidating Fascist elements.
3. Terminated connections with "foreign reaction."
4. "Show by deed that they are for a democratic regime" and "fight against foreign interference."

Dimitrov added that if the bonds of friendship between Slavic nations are strengthened they will be a strong force for peace.

BRITISH LAND 3000 TROOPS ON SUMATRA

Force Put Ashore at Padang and Palembang With No Opposition.

London, Nov. 16 (A. P.).—The Hilversum radio, quoting the Dutch News Agency Aneta, said today that 3,000 British and Indian troops have landed on the island of Sumatra without resistance from the Indonesians. The troops were brought ashore at Padang and Palembang and the few remaining Japanese gave no trouble and are being disarmed, the broadcast said. It reported a political split among Sumatra Indonesians and said, "It is hoped a second Java will be prevented."

INDONESIANS HINT WILLINGNESS TO TALK WITH DUTCH

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 16—(AP) Acting Governor General Hubertus van Mook tonight summoned the new Indonesian Nationalist cabinet to meet with him in an effort to save Java from economic ruin and starvation, and cabinet leaders indicated they would comply, perhaps by tomorrow night.

A government survey released at the same time said 2,000,000 persons in western Java were in danger of starvation because of lack of transportation facilities for food.

British Extend Control

While the British reported they were extending their control in embattled Soerabaja against diminishing Indonesian resistance, van Mook told newsmen that further delay in attempting to end strife in Java "would be most harmful."

"On our side we have been trying to make contact with Nationalist leaders for some time, because we believe cooperation between the Dutch and Indonesians is the only way out of the present difficulty," von Mook added. "Java by itself cannot come out of the economic spiral it is in."

The new Nationalist premier, Sutan Sjahrir, and his minister of information, Amir Sjarifuddin, "moderate" leaders of the unrecognized Indonesian public, said they hoped members of the new cabinet would arrive in Batavia from the interior tomorrow in time to hold their first cabinet meeting.

Van Mook declared it was imperative that both sides cooperate to solve the pressing problems of keeping law and order and forestalling economic disaster. He said the safety of thousands of people in the interior was at stake and "the economic situation is deteriorating rapidly."

He expressed disappointment over the failure to hold a conference last night at the home of Lt. Gen. Philip Christison, Allied commander in the Netherlands East Indies. Nationalist leaders said their cabinet, with some members absent, was unprepared for it.

The governor general said the task of arranging a compromise with Nationalist leaders was difficult because of pressure from extremists against conferences with the Dutch, but took a favorable view toward the new cabinet, through which President Soekarno was pushed out of the limelight.

"I know several of the new cabinet well," Van Mook said. "Some of them are men of well balanced intelligence and good character."

Van Mook promised that the Dutch would not use food and medicine as a bargaining lever in negotiating with the Indonesians, who seek independence from Dutch colonial rule.

Insist In Safety

He said the Dutch government wanted to distribute food and medicine, but insisted upon safety conduct and restoration of order to guard against their falling into German hands of bandits.

A survey made by the Netherlands Indies government's department of economic affairs declared that 2,000,000 persons in western Java were threatened with starvation during the coming months. Total population of the island exceeds 40,000,000. The principal problem, it said, is lack of transportation to move food into hungry areas between now and April, when the rice crop—principal source of native food—will be harvested.

The military situation in Java appeared quiet for the moment. This afternoon the British said there was "nothing to report" in Soerabaja.

Earlier the British said the Fifth Indian division had made some gains against diminishing resistance, particularly in the direction of the Sidotopo rail marshalling yards on the eastern edge of Soerabaja.

(The Hilversum radio quoted Aneta today as reporting the landing of 5,000 British and Indian troops at Padang and Palembang in Sumartra without resistance from the Indonesians.

(The Amsterdam newspaper Algemeen Handelsblad said W. F. L. van Bylandt had gone to the Netherlands East Indies to act as diplomatic and political advisor to van Mook. At the Hague, government officials denied London newspaper reports that Prince Bernhard would go to the Indies as Queen Wilhelmina's personal representative in negotiating with the Nationalists.)

Indonese Asked To Parley By The Dutch

Batavia, Nov. 16 (AP)—Hubertus J. van Mook, acting Governor General of the Netherlands East Indies, called upon the new Indonesian Nationalist Cabinet tonight to meet him in an informal discussion at the earliest possible moment; in an effort to save Indonesia from further bloodshed and threatened famine.

Van Mook spoke at a press conference at a time when Indonesian resistance at Soerabaja was officially reported to be slackening before the slowly advancing British Indian troops.

He expressed disappointment that the Indonesians had been unable to attend a meeting last night under the chairmanship of Lieut. Gen. Sir Philip Christison, Allied commander in the Nei, and said it was imperatve in the interests of Indonesia as a whole that both sides co-operate to keep order and prevent the economic ruin of Java.

British Expand Control

An official British summary today said there was "nothing to report" on the situation at Soerabaja. A summary of yesterday's fighting said the resistance of the 15,000 Indonesians "decreased" as the Indian troops expanded the area under their control. Indonesian sniping and sporadic mortar fire continued.

[The Hilversum radio quoted a dispatch of the Dutch news agency Aneta as saying 3,000 British-Indian troops landed on Sumatra without Indonesian opposition and began rounding up Japanese at Padang and Palembang. The dispatch said "it is hoped a second Java will be prevented."

[In Amsterdam the newspaper Algemeen Handelsblad reported that W. F. L. van Bylandt had left for Indonesia on orders of the Dutch Government to serve as diplomatic and political adviser to van Mook.

[At The Hague, high Government officials denied reports that Prince Bernhard would go to the Indies for negotiations on behalf of the Crown.]

Christison had called a meeting of leaders of the unrecognized Indonesian republic and Dutch representatives, but it was reported that the new Indonesian Cabinet was not yet prepared to talk with the Dutch.

Premier Sutan Sjahrir is reported to have taken the view that the Dutch in their recent statement of policy offered nothing definite enough for consideration by the Indonesians, although he is committed to efforts to end the conflict.

Long-Range View Indicated

It was believed that British diplomacy, now geared to a temporary settlement of the dispute, contemplates in its long-range view a regional commission of Britain, Australia, New Zealand and the United States to serve either as arbitrators or trustees.

The new Dutch information service reported officially today that 216 persons, including 144 Dutch, had disappeared in the Batavia area between October 1 and November 15, and said all were believed to have been kidnapped by Indonesian Nationalists.

Seventeen of the 216 were released by the Indonesians, the report said.

BRITISH TO EASE TEL AVIV CURFEW

JERUSALEM, Nov. 16 — (AP) British authorities announced tonight that the military curfew would be eased tomorrow in riot-scarred Tel Aviv, where a sixth Jew died of injuries.

All inhabitants of the city went to their homes at 4 p.m. today in observance of the curfew, which had been lifted for nine hours. Tomorrow the curfew will be lifted between 5:30 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Six RAF Spitfires flew reconnaissance missions over Tel Aviv during the day, while Mayor Israel Rockach urged the populace to heed a military warning that anyone violating the curfew "does so at his own peril."

An RAF Liberator dropped flares in Tel Aviv last night as violence ended after two days of rioting that caused property damage totalling $800,000. The riots broke out during a strike protesting the new British policy on Palestine.

(Earlier today in London British Colonial Undersecretary Arthur Creech Jones told Commons five Jewish rioters were killed and 56 injured, together with 13 Palestine police and 10 soldiers. He said home-made grenades were thrown at British troops, who had been compelled to fire on threatening crowds after police were unable to disperse them.

The pro-Zionist Palestine Post, expressing disapproval of the rioting, declared:

"It would be wicked to identify this shoddy episode with the expression of Jewish resistance to a policy which deprives Jewish people of the right to enter the country assigned to them as their national home."

British Tighten Palestine Control Of Immigration

Jerusalem, Nov. 16 (AP)—British authorities took new precautions to halt illegal immigration into Palestine today as Zionist leaders deplored a two-day reign of violence in Tel Aviv, estimated to have caused more than 100 casualties and $800,000 property damage.

With quiet at last reported restored, Isaac Ben-Tsevi, chairman of the Jewish National Council, issued a statement attributing the riots to "irresponsible youths" and declaring they were "highly detrimental to the Jewish cause."

He added that Jewish leaders had urged self-discipline and nonviolence.

Outbreaks Disapproved

At the same time the pro-Zionist Palestine Post declared editorially that all responsible Jews strongly disapproved the outbreaks in Tel Aviv. Describing the rioting as "a shoddy episode," the Post said:

"There is no Jew worthy of the name but will dissociate himself from Fascist terrorism which swoops and strikes where the victims are few and defenseless.

"That British firms should have been singled out for destruction and plunder is a stain which every Jew of decent feeling will long carry in shame."

City Declared Quiet

Dispatches from Tel Aviv declared the city was quiet last night as British armored cars and troops of the reinforced British 6th Airborne Division patrolled the streets, enforcing a strict curfew. Maj. Gen. P. L. Bols, commander of the 6th, said the curfew probably would be lifted today.

Several hundred persons were reported arrested, however, before the termination of the disturbances, which were variously estimated to have caused three to five deaths and resulted in injuries to approximately 100. The dead were all Jews.

Regulations Strengthened

New emergency regulations, published last night in the official gazette, put new teeth in the British campaign to halt illegal immigration. The regulations empower any British soldier, Palestine police officer or village headman to arrest any person they reasonably suspect of being an illegal immigrant and gave police officers power to board and inspect ships or planes suspected of carrying smuggled immigrants.

Publication of the regulations followed the issuing of a "punishment by death" warning to rioters yesterday.

RAF Mutiny Revealed

New Delhi, Nov. 16 (AP)—RAF headquarters disclosed today that 700 Royal Air Force personnel at Jodhpur refused to go on parade and participated in a technical state of mutiny October 13 in protest against food and discipline conditions.

RAF public relations officials said no action had been taken against the men and the incident was considered closed.

Pro-Japan Indians Executed

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 16 (AP).—Indian Army headquarters announced today that seven members of the pro-Japanese Indian National Army have been executed after trial, but formally denied press reports that "large numbers" have been sentenced to death.

Japanese in Peiping Area Armed

PEIPING, Nov. 16 (AP)—No Japanese soldiers have been disarmed in the Peiping area, a Chinese Nationalist field headquarters' spokesman said today, but he added that their weapons would be collected "in the near future." The spokesman estimated the Japanese strength in and near the city at two divisions and three brigades, or about 60,000 men.

TO REPATRIATE JAPANESE

100 American LST's Will Take 100,000 Soldiers Monthly

CHINWANGTAO, China, Nov. 16 (AP)—One hundred landing ships have been allocated by the United States Navy to begin transporting Japanese soldiers home from China at a rate of 100,000 monthly.

Vice Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, commander of the Seventh Amphibious Forces, said that repatriation operations from North China began yesterday under command of Rear Admiral Albert Noble of Preston, Tex.

The 100 LSTS (landing ship tanks), operated by American Navy personnel, will pick up repatriates at Chinwangtao, Tientsin, Tsingtao, Shanghai and other ports and carry them to the nearest Japanese ports.

Flyer Gets China Post

Shanghia, Nov. 16 (AP)—Major W. R. Dunn, Royal Air Force ace who is credited with shooting down fifteen planes, has been appointed China Wing operations officer for the Army Transport Command in Shanghai.

ARMY GOVERNED ALL MANILA AREA, SAYS NIP ADMIRAL

MANILA, Nov. 16—(AP) A Japanese Admiral testified today at the war crimes trial of Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita that the Japanese army—not the Navy—was responsible for all armed forces ashore during the period of alleged atrocities against Filipino and American civilians early this year.

Vice-Admiral Denshichi Okoochi, making an elaborate bow to the court before taking the witness stand, said that on Jan. 6 he turned over to Yamashita all naval personnel and ground troops in the islands. He estimated these numbered at least 20,000 in the Manila area at the time he relinquished them to the erstwhile "Tiger of Malaya."

In previous sessions defense counsel has repeatedly objected that many of the atrocities attributed to Yamashita's men actually were committed by naval personnel outside his jurisdiction.

During the admiral's testimony Yamashita took notes furiously, occasionally scowling across the room at his sea-faring compatriot.

Before announcing that he hoped to finish the prosecution's case by tomorrow, Chief Prosecutor Maj. Robert Kerr called to the stand the governor of Batangas province, who said that according to his records more than 25,000 civilians were killed by the Japanese in that area.

The court took under advisement a defense objection to these statistics as information not falling within the personal knowledge of the witness.

Meanwhile the question whether a Philippines supreme court order can be allowed to halt the trial was referred to General MacArthur.

The Commonwealth court earlier this week issued an order calling on Lt. Gen. Wilhelm D. Styer, commander of army forces in the Western Pacific, to show cause why a writ of habeas corpus should not be granted. Such a writ would remand Yamashita to the custody of the Philippines Commonwealth and take the case from the military commission now handling it.

Styer so far has not accepted service of the Philippine court summons.

The army court today admitted as evidence the documentary film "Orders from Tokyo," containing Japanese-photographed evidence of atrocities, despite defense arguments that the very title of the film pointed the finger of guilt away from Yamashita.

TRIAL END NEAR FOR YAMASHITA

Filipino Court Order Put Up to MacArthur.

Manila, Nov. 16 (A. P.).—The prosecution's war-crimes case against Lieut.-Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita entered its final phase today with a Japanese admiral on the stand.

Whether a Philippines Supreme Court order can be allowed to halt the trial meanwhile was referred to Gen. MacArthur.

Lieut.-Gen. Wilhelm D. Styer, commander of Army forces in the Western Pacific, continued to ignore a Commonwealth court order that he show cause why a writ of habeas corpus should not be issued on Yamashita's behalf. The effect of such a writ would be to take the case from the hands of the military commission now hearing it.

Vice-Admiral Denshichi Okoochi, commander of Japanese naval forces in the Southwest Pacific areas a year ago when the battle for the Philippnes entered its climactic stages, testified today that the Japanese Army—not the Navy—issued tactical orders at Manila while atrocities for which the prosecution blames Yamashita occurred.

Chief Prosecutor Major Robert Kerr said that he hoped to finish his case Saturday. Defense testimony is expected to require several weeks.

Styer has been unavailable for comment and so far has not accepted service of the Philippines court summons.

From a legal standpoint, Styer contends the Philippines court is without jurisdiction over the United States Army, a spokesman said. However, decision on the action has been referred to Gen. MacArthur, it was learned here, because the Allied commander himself turned over the civil functions of the Commonwealth Government to President Sergio Osmena.

HUNGRY JAPANESE STAGE FOOD RIOTS

TOKYO, Nov. 16—(AP) Riotous food raids by citizens of Hokkaido and a Japanese government admission that it had lost all control over the sale of fish and vegetables gave point today to the hunger situation of conquered Japan.

The newspaper Asahi said that on two successive days a total of 2,800 residents of the Hokkaido coal mining district invaded the village of Tone and took food away from farmers, mills and storehouses. Some of the raiders left money for what they took, but fearful storekeepers formed a defense corps for future action, the paper said.

The government informed Allied headquarters that its system of controlling prices on fish and vegetables was "in a state of complete collapse."

Military authorities immediately ordered abolition of retail price controls, as was suggested by the Japanese themselves.

This was expected to cause price increases but to provide more food at less than black market levels. Controls were retained on wholesalers, however.

Japanese government spokesmen admittedly were concerned over the possibility of future violence on the food front, and the metropolitan Chamber of Commerce, industry and economics called upon the public to collect all civilian art works such as pictures, sculpture, jewelry, porcelain and antiques to trade for future food importations.

Allied headquarters authorized the Japanese to manufacture 1,119 tons of dynamite and fuses for use in coal mining to meet the grave shortage of fuels. The explosives, first authorized in Japan since the surrender, must be used only for mining.

2300 Take Part in Raids—Tokyo Hears Some Paid for Produce.

FARMS AND MILLS ATTACKED

Government Spokesmen Worried Over Sequel in Foodless Winter Ahead.

Tokyo, Nov. 16 (A. P.).—Twenty-three hundred hungry residents of Hokkaido, northernmost Japanese home island, seized food from farmers, storehouses and mills on two successive days, the newspaper Asahi reported today. Some of them left money in payment.

The food rioters split into small bands for their forays, the newspaper said. Miners of Shigejiri and Akshira districts paid for the food they seized in a 1,000-person foraging raid November 13. Similar raids by groups totalling 1,300 persons occurred that next day, Asahi said. Nineteen thousand pounds of milled foods were seized.

Sixty policemen have been assigned to guard the vicinity, and civilians joined to form a volunteer defense corps.

The rioting was the first reported for many weeks, but Government spokesmen here are openly concerned over the possibility of violence in the foodless, fuelless winter ahead.

The Japanese Government today admitted its control over the sale of fresh vegetables and fish was in "a state of complete collapse" and Allied headquarters immediately ordered into operation the Japanese plan to abolish price controls on perishables.

This is expected to increase prices beyond the current ceilings but keep them under black market prices. It also should result in substantial gains in perishable foods for city dwellers who have been unable to obtain vegetables.

The Government already has appealed to farmers to sell their produce at legal prices, but the lure of black market profits is strong.

Meantime there were growing indications that American-prompted political changes are forcing careful, detailed conversations within the palace clique; that the highly influential Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, Marquis Koichi Kido, may resign next Tuesday, and that former Premier Fumimaro Konoye may have his constitutional revision plan ready the same day.

Kyodo News Agency reported that full rights of collective bargaining and striking will be included in a labor union bill to be introduced in the Diet at its extraordinary session on November 26. There has been no major effort to strike in Japan since 1931.

Gen. MacArthur's information and education section announced today that a war guilt information program, to acquaint all Japanese with the true facts of the war since the beginning of Nipponese aggression in China, will be started shortly.

The section also is making a widespread investigation of Shintoism, studying particularly its use by Japanese militarists as a tool to achieve their own purposes. Results of the investigation will be made public soon.

Announced too, was an advisory council of leading American educators and a corresponding council of Japanese, to perfect a long-term plan for liberalizing Nippon's educational system. Top-notch American educators will be named.

1,500 U. S. FLIERS ARE STILL MISSING

TOKYO, Nov. 16—(AP) More than 1,500 American airmen still are listed as missing after combat missions over Japan, it was disclosed today, and army investigators have begun a vigorous search for information regarding their fate.

Between 2,200 and 2,300 B-29 pilots and crewmen alone were entered as missing during the flaming air war which preceded Japan's capitulation. Of these, 837 have been recovered alive from prison camps on the main islands.

The fate of an unannounced number of Navy pilots and crewmen also is unknown.

Since the occupation the graves of only about 20 American fliers have been found in Japan. As the tragic search continues more graves may come to light, but the investigators held out little hope of finding any more of the men alive.

A force of 25 investigators, working with the cooperation of local police in areas where planes are known to have fallen, is engaged in the country-wide search.

Jap Women To Seek Diet Posts

Toyko, Nov. 16 (AP)—The new Japan Women's League announced today it would attempt to run 50 women candidates for the Diet in January's general election.

Jap Keeper Of Seal May Resign Tuesday

Tokyo, Saturday, Nov. 17 (AP)—Asahi said today the reported decision to abolish the office of lord keeper of the privy seal—the office which in past years has made and broken Premiers—was reached on the personal initiative of the Emperor.

The present holder of the office, Koichi Kido, whose critics have linked him with the elevation of Hideki Tojo as war Premier, may quit Tuesday.

The newspaper also reported that steps are under way to reform the peerage system so as to permit renunciation of privileges at will and to revise drastically the system of transmitting titles by heredity.

NAVY USED CONVOYS BEFORE DEC. 7, '41; REPORT FOE SEEN ON WAY TO ATTACK; HEARING MARKED BY PARTY CLASHES

Tojo Believed O.K. For Washington Trip

Tokyo, Saturday, Nov. 17 (AP)—Omori prison officials said today that Hideki Tojo, Premier when Japan went to war with the United States, is physically able to make the trip to Washington to testify before the Pearl Harbor committee if he should be summoned.

They said the onetime dictator, presently awaiting trial as a war criminal, probably would find living conditions in the United States preferable to the rugged conditions under which he is living now.

Bridgeport Man Decorated.

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 16 (A. P.).—Three officers have received the Bronze Star from Rear-Admiral William Blandy, commander of cruisers and destroyers in the Pacific, for wartime service on Blandy's staff. Among them was Capt. Carl A. Peterson, of Bridgeport, Conn.

BRAZIL RED IS NOMINATED

Yeddo Fiuza Becomes Fourth Candidate for Presidency

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 16 (AP)—Yeddo Fiuza, civil engineer, has been presented as a candidate for the Brazilian Presidency by Luis Carlos Prestes, general secretary of the Communist party, it was learned today. The election will be held Dec. 2.

Senhor Fiuza, former Mayor of Petropolis and national highway director, is the fourth candidate in the field. Maj. Gen. Eduardo Gomes, Government opposition candidate, and Gen. Eurico Gaspar Dutra, designated as Government candidate, are already registered and Rollim Telles of the Agrarian party claims candidacy, although he is not yet officially in the race.

BONUS BILL ADVANCES

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 16—(AP) The Senate approved and sent to the Chamber of deputies today a bill under which employers would be required to pay a bonus to all workers in celebration of victory in World War II. Salaried employes would receive a bonus of a month's pay; day laborers, 15 days.

CRUISER INVOLVED

Boise Said to Fail to Report Enemy Because of 'Radio Silence'

STARK ORDERED ESCORTS

MacArthur Was Told Not to Fire Until Attacked, Gearhart Suggests at Hearing

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—The cruiser Boise's pre-Pearl Harbor movements became a top question for Congressional investigators tonight after Republicans suggested that it sighted at sea the Japanese fleet which attacked the Hawaiian stronghold, but failed to report it because of orders for "radio silence."

No more than hints came out at the joint committee's hearings on the disaster. Representative Gearhart, Republican of California, told a reporter, however, that he had information that the Boise, on convoy duty, had seen the four Japanese carriers and escorting vessels which attacked Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

Later, on being questioned again by reporters, Mr. Gearhart said that it was possible the Boise had sighted another Japanese task force, not the one that carried out the raid.

"My information is that there was a fight aboard the Boise over whether they should break orders for radio silence and report it and the captain decided they should not," he said.

The Californian added that he expected witnesses who would bear out his report to be called later.

Days Before Raid, Brewster Says

Mr. Gearhart mentioned no dates, but another Republican member, Senator Brewster of Maine, suggested that if the Boise saw the Japanese force it was several days before the Pearl Harbor raid.

Mr. Brewster said at a press conference that he understood the Boise arrived at Manila on Dec. 6.

The Boise angle was brought up after Democrats and Republicans clashed vigorously over procedure during the second day of testimony which also brought the following developments:

Disclosure that the Navy had ordered the convoying of merchant vessels in the Pacific twelve days before the Japanese attack.

A suggestion by Mr. Gearhart that General MacArthur was ordered in the Philippines not to fire on the Japanese until they fired first.

A further suggestion by the Californian that it was "strangely significant" that radar on the Hawaiian island of Oahu was ordered shut down at 7 A. M., an hour, he said, which was recognized as the most propitious for attack.

Testimony that the carrier Enterprise launched eighteen scout bombers 200 miles west of Pearl Harbor almost two hours before the Japanese struck the base.

Inglis Tells of Convoy Order

Senator Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan, developed from Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis, a witness, that the Navy on Nov. 25, 1941, ordered merchant ships in the Pacific convoyed.

Under Mr. Ferguson's questioning, Admiral Inglis read an order which he said was issued on that date by Admiral Harold R. Stark, then Chief of Naval Operations, directing that trans-Pacific shipping follow a southern route and that the fleet "provide necessary escort."

Admiral Inglis, a naval intelligence officer, took the stand yesterday at the hearing's opening to present a 'factual statement" of what happened at Pearl Harbor, as shown by naval records.

He said that he believed there were two convoys in the Pacific at the time of Pearl Harbor. The cruiser Pensacola was convoying eight ships west bound, he said, adding that he did not know the make-up of the other convoy.

Mr. Ferguson, suggesting that the Boise also was on convoy duty, asked that the admiral supply later information on the Boise's whereabouts at the time.

When Mr. Gearhart took over the questioning, he demanded that Admiral Inglis make an investigation to determine "whether the officers and crews of the Boise sighted the attacking Japanese fleet during the first week of December."

The admiral agreed to both requests.

Representative Keefe, Republican, of Wisconsin, demanded that the Dec. 7, 1941, log and action report of the Enterprise be laid before the committee.

He brought out by questioning Admiral Inglis that the Enterprise had launched the armed scout bombers at 6 A. M. on the day of the attack.

"Do you deduce," Mr. Keefe asked, "that the commander of the task force had any knowledge at 6 o'clock that there was likely to be an attack on Pearl Harbor at 7:50?"

The admiral said that he thought the flight represented routine operations of the task force, which was commanded by Admiral W. F. Halsey Jr.

Mr. Keefe also asked about an order setting aside Hawaiian waters as a prohibited area for merchant shipping and foreign men-of-war. Admiral Inglis said his recollection was that the Navy's order came after a Presidential order was issued.

The Navy was directed to prevent any traffic of this sort, he said, adding that the destroyer Ward was under these orders when it sank a Japanese submarine soon before the air attack on Pearl Harbor.

As on its opening day, the investigation again drew a packed gallery of spectators. Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, the Army and Navy commanders when Pearl Harbor was attacked, sat with their counsel.

Mr. Gearhart asked Col. Bernard Thielen of the Army General Staff a series of questions about why various orders were issued, to all of which Colonel Thielen replied that he had no knowledge.

Finally, the Californian asked if Colonel Thielen knew whether orders had been issued that American forces were not to fire on Japanese vessels or installations until fired on.

"Don't you know that such an order was issued to General MacArthur?" he demanded.

Colonel Thielen said that he did not.

Mr. Gearhart also attempted to develop what he said was the significance of orders to turn off the Oahu radar machines at 7 A. M. He noted that the attacking Japanese planes flew into the scope of one of the machines still operating at 7:02 A. M.

"Don't you think it was possible somebody was exerting a tremendous influence over the writing of orders either in the headquarters in Honolulu or headquarters in the United States?" he asked the witness.

Colonel Thielen said that he did not know anything about that.

Referring to the arrival of a flight of B-17 American planes from the mainland during the Japanese attack, Mr. Ferguson asked:

"Do you know whether the B-17's were equipped with radar? Do you know whether they had radios?"

Colonel Thielen said that he did not know but presumed they had radios but not radar.

"Do you know whether a radio station played Hawaiian music all night so that the B-17's could home on it and that the Jap planes homed on it, too?" Senator Ferguson asked.

"No, sir, I do not know that," Colonel Thielen replied.

Mr. Gearhart inquired of Admiral Inglis whether he did not consider the whole circumstances of Pearl Harbor "strangely significant."

The admiral said that he did not.

Mr. Gearhart brought out from the witness that the American fleet in the Pacific was numerically inferior to the Japanese when the transfer of some ships to the Atlantic was ordered in May, 1941.

The Californian said three battleships, one aircraft carrier, four cruisers and nine destroyers were transferred from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

Under Mr. Gearhart's direction, Admiral Inglis calculated that even if those transfers had not been made, the United States would have had in the Pacific sixty-three ships of the categories down to destroyers in the Pacific, compared with Japan's 109.

Hit, Inglis Says

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Navy ordered the convoying of merchant shipping in the Pacific twelve days before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, a Senate-House inquiry committee learned today.

Admiral T. B. Inglis put into the record a copy of an order issued November 25, 1941, by Admiral Harold E. Stark, then chief of naval operations. Stark instructed naval officials at San Francisco to route all merchant shipping on a southern route and to "provide necessary escort."

Inglis testified that copies of the order went to Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, commander in chief of the fleet at Pearl Harbor, and others.

Two Convoys On Pacific

In a series of questions, Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) established that at least two convoys were on the Pacific in the week before the Japanese attack. He asked Inglis if any German submarines or surface vessels were in those waters, and the admiral said he thought not.

Inglis testified that the heavy cruiser Pensacola was convoying eight ships westbound. He did not mention the makeup of the other convoy.

Ferguson asked Inglis to obtain information on the whereabouts at that time of the cruiser Boise, which the Michigan Senator indicated he thought was convoying a number of ships, including the merchantman, American Leader.

Convoys Ordered 12 Days Before Japs

30.24 - 31681

Paragraph Deleted

Ferguson questioned Inglis about the preparation of his statement before the committee yesterday. Inglis gave then what he described as a factual account of the actual Japanese attack.

It developed that some portions of the original draft of the testimony had been deleted by Inglis at the suggestion of the Navy Judge Advocate General's office and after consultation with counsel for the investigating committee.

Inglis testified that as a result of these suggestions he had cut out a paragraph which he said suggested "that the nation as a whole was not unified before Pearl Harbor." He said he thought this had contributed to lack of preparedness on the part of the Army and Navy.

Questioned About Blame

"Do you think the people were to blame for Pearl Harbor?" Ferguson demanded, noting that President Truman had made a somewhat similar statement in releasing Army and Navy reports on their investigations of the disaster.

"My opinion is that that did contribute somewhat to Pearl Harbor," the witness replied.

A Japanese message to Tokyo intercepted nearly a month before Pearl Harbor described the late President Roosevelt as believing then that Japan would be "on the move soon."

The message, sent by Japanese Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura on November 10, 1941, quoted "a certain Cabinet member" as having told Nomura that Mr. Roosevelt and the then Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, did not believe the impending "peace" conferences would alter the tense diplomatic situation.

Refers To Cabinet Member

The peace conferences were shortly to begin with Nomura and Special Envoy Saburo Kurusu representing the Japanese Government.

In a message that was decoded by United States Army Intelligence two days after it was sent, Nomura said that on November 9 a Cabinet member had talked to him. Without naming him, the Japanese Ambassador quoted the official as follows:

"You are indeed a dear friend of mine and I tell this to you alone. The American Government is receiving a number of reliable reports that Japan will be on the move soon. The American Government does not believe that your visit on Monday to the President or the coming of Mr. Kurusu will have any effect on the general situation."

"Boss Believes Those Reports"

When Nomura protested that neither the Japanese Government nor its people desired a war with the United States, the Cabinet member was quoted as replying:

"Well, our boss, the President, believes those reports and so does the Secretary of State."

The Nomura message, sent after the Ambassador had been advised by Tokyo that November 25 was the deadline for concluding negotiations with the United States, was one of a series made public by the probers.

From January, 1941, eleven months before the attack, the United States armed forces had been intercepting and decoding Japanese military messages.

They had broken the Japanese diplomatic code by August 8, 1941, and Tokyo's instructions to its representatives in the world's capitols were being read by Americans.

Japs Reported On U.S. Fleet

It was in this flood of messages that Nomura's report on his conversation with the Cabinet officer stood out, among these others:

The Japanese were reporting in detail the movements of the United States Pacific Fleet and continued to do so until the day before the attack.

They ordered their code books machines destroyed December 2.

They apparently believed that the United States and Great Britain were preparing to occupy the Netherlands East Indies and they were prepared too attack in that area.

The Japanese told their Axis allies as early as the last week in November that negotiations with the United States were broken off and got German and Italian promises to join with them if they went to war against Americans.

Among the messages were many which indicated that Tokyo had instructed its "peace" ambassadors to play for time while the Japanese task force already was steaming toward Pearl Harbor.

Honolulu Parley Sought

Nomura and Kurusu were told by Tokyo in a November 28 message the Navy translated the same day that the negotiations with the United States actually were being broken off, but told them not to give that impression here.

On December 1, the Japanese here asked Tokyo whether it would be possible to arrange a conference at Honolulu between Vice President Wallace or Harry Hopkins, representing the United States, and former Premier Konoye for Japan.

"We realize, of course," their mesage said, "that an attempt to have President Roosevelt and former Premier Konoye meet, failed."

Tokyo told Berlin in November 30, 1941, in a message translated here December 1, that negotiations with the United States "now stand ruptured—broken."

"In the face of this our empire faces a grave situation and must act with determination," said the message, which asked the Japanese Ambassador to arrange for talks with Hitler and German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

Clarification Requested

On December 3, 1941, Nomura sent a message to Tokyo urging the Japanese Government to make its reply to an American inquiry about the increase in Japanese forces in Indo-China clear as to "our peaceful intentions."

"There is no saying but what the United States Government will take a bold step, depending upon how our reply is made," the message said.

In the same message in which Nomura told of his conversation with the unnamed Cabinet officer, the Ambassador also reported he had sent Frederick Moore, legal adviser to the Japanese Embassy in Washington, to interview both Senator Elbert Thomas (D., Utah), of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Secretary Hull.

"U.S. Isn't Bluffing"

Moore brought back this report, Nomura said:

"The United States is not bluffing. If Japan invades again, the United States will fight with Japan. Psychologically, the American people are ready. The Navy is prepared and ready for action."

The late Frank Knox, then Secretary of the Navy, had previously made a speech which Nomura and other Japanese officials had interpreted in messages to Tokyo as indicating an aggressive attitude on the part of some American officials that Nomura said did not seem to be born out in diplomatic conversations.

After he had sent his telegram about the conversation with the Cabinet member, Senator Thomas and Hull, Nomura reported in an "extremely urgent" message the gist of talk he had had with President Roosevelt, which he said "was held in a private room in the White House to avoid publicity."

Quotes Roosevelt

Nomura outlined at length the views of his Government with respect to American demands for the withdrawal of Japanese troops from China and French Indo-China and other matters then under discussion. Then he quoted Mr. Roosevelt as follows:

"It is my earnest wish that the preliminary talks relative to this question would have good results which would serve as a basis of future negotiation. I will, just as the Japanese Government hopes, do my best in order to help carry on these negotiations successfully.

"I wish that the Japanese Government would clearly set forth its intention of following a peaceful course in this policy and not an opposite course. This is the way to attain the results toward which both you and we are working."

Indo-China Crisis

When Japanese in Canton informed Tokyo July 14, 1941, that an expeditionary force was to be sent to occupy French Indo-China, the Army Intelligence Service was able to lay the full message before officials here five days later.

Sumner Welles, then Under Secretary of State, called Minister Wakasugi, of the Japanese Embassy, before him two days later and said he had advices that Japan would take the southern portion of Indo-China by force within a few days.

By "a reliable source of information," Wakasugi asked, did the Under Secretary mean the United States Embassy in Japan? Wakasugi's report to Tokyo said Welles avoided a clear answer.

U.S. Froze Jap Assets

The Japanese occupied Indo-China and the United States retaliated by freezing Japanese assets in this country.

As a result of the increasing tension, Tokyo asked its Washington Embassy August 7 to try to arrange a meeting between Mr. Roosevelt and Premier Konoye.

The Japanese spent nearly three months attempting to arrange this meeting before the Konoye Cabinet fell early in November.

Meanwhile, on October 16, Tokyo sent a message to the Washington Japanese Embassy that the Germans had demanded that the Japanese send a message to the United States along this line:

"If the Roosevelt Administration continues to attack the Axis power increasingly, a belligerent situation would inevitably arise between Germany and Italy on one hand and the United States on the other and this . . . might lead Japan to join immediately the war in opposition to the United States."

Delayed Message

The Japanese delayed sending any such message because they still had hopes of a conference between Konoye and Mr. Roosevelt.

When the Konoye Cabinet fell, a new government decided on November 4, 1941, to make one more try for an agreement with the United States. Tokyo told Nomura in a message that was promptly translated here that if a quick accord could not be reached relations between the two countries would be "on the brink of chaos," adding:

"In fact, we gambled the fate of our land on the throw of this die."

Pearl Harbor Questions Awaiting Answers

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Here are some of the questions asked yesterday at the Pearl Harbor attack investigation by committee members and left hanging in the air for later witnesses:

Why did the United States Navy on November 25, 1941, order American ships to stop using the northern or Great Circle route in the Pacific?

Exactly how many Japanese planes took part in the attack?

Why were there no guns on a group of B-17 bombers which left California on the night of December 6 and arrived at Hawaii during the attack?

Why were three naval reconnaissance planes more than an hour late taking off on a routine flight early in the morning of December?

Had any inspection order been issued at Pearl Harbor that might have caused the Navy ships to be unprepared at the time of the raid?

When were the admirals in command at Pearl Harbor notified that the United States destroyer Ward attacked an enemy submarine outside the harbor early in the morning of December?

BYRNES DISCLAIMS THREAT IN OUR DIPLOMACY ON ATOM; AIMS TO AVERT ARMS RACE

SECRECY MINIMIZED

UNO Bomb Rule Can Be Implemented in 60 Days, Secretary Says

POLICY CALLED GENEROUS

Loans, Lower Tariffs and Ban on Other Trade Curbs Urged to Remove Menaces to Peace

By The Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 16—Secretary of State James F. Byrnes predicted tonight that the United Nations atomic energy commission proposed in the British-American atomic control program could be set up within sixty days and denied any suggestion that an attempt was being made to use the atomic bomb as a "diplomatic or military threat against any nation."

He called the program the first step "in an effort to rescue the world from a desperate armament race."

The Secretary spoke at the Mayor's dinner in celebration of "Jimmy Byrnes homecoming day." His speech was broadcast nationally.

Mr. Byrnes summed up the program announced yesterday by President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee of Britain and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada. He said:

"It is our purpose and grave duty to act in our relations with other nations with the boldness and generosity that the atomic age demands of us.

Pledges World Safety

"No officials of government have ever been called upon to make a decision fraught with more serious consequences. We must act. But we will act in a manner that will not undermine our safety or the safety of the world.

"Our declaration of willingness to exchange immediately the basic scientific information and our plans for the setting up of a commission under United Nations sponsorship have been sent by me to members of the United Nations Organization. We look forward to their cooperation."

Mr. Byrnes said that the decision to release the production know-how of atomic materials only after "effective safeguards" could be set up was in line with President Truman's previously declared policy of holding the atomic bomb as a "sacred trust, a trust in the exercise of which we are already under definite international obligation."

"Under the Charter of the United Nations," he continued, "we have pledged ourselves not to use force except in support of the purposes and principles of the Charter. The suggestion that we are using the atomic bomb as a diplomatic or military threat against any nation is not only untrue in fact but it is a wholly unwarranted reflection upon the American Government and people."

Secrecy Period Minimized

While it is necessary, in the Anglo-American-Canadian view, to hold atomic production secrets for a time, Mr. Byrnes said that "this period need not be unnecessarily prolonged."

He cited bacteriological weapons as another kind of warfare that could be "an even more frightful method of human destruction" than atomic energy, adding that it was not enough to rub out any one kind of warfare.

"We must banish war," he said. "To that great goal of humanity we must ever rededicate our hearts and strength."

Secretary Byrnes said that the job of banishing war meant that "we must guard not only against military threats to world security but economic threats to world well-being."

He believed that many countries needed to borrow money to restore war-shattered economies. Whatever loans the United States makes, he declared, will increase the market for American goods, "for in the long run the dollars we lend can be spent only in this country."

"We cannot play Santa Claus to the world," Mr. Byrnes asserted, "but we can make loans to Governments whose credit is good, provided such Governments will make changes in commercial policies which will make it possible for us to increase our trade with them."

He then outlined a long list o proposed changes, including reduc tion in tariffs and abandonment o other trade restraints, in which th United States and Britain had bee reported in agreement, for submis sion to an international trade con ference next summer. One aim o this conference, Mr. Byrnes said will be to arrange for creation o an international trade organizatio under the United Nations.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 16 (AP).—Following is the complete text of Secretary of State James F. Byrnes's speech to a "Jimmy Byrnes Homecoming Day" gathering here tonight:

WORLD CO-OPERATION

When I accepted Charleston's very gracious invitation to return to the city of my birth and the scenes of my younger days, I thought that nothing I could say here would interest you more than world trade.

Charleston, being one of the oldest ports in America, certainly has a vital interest in the restoration of world commerce.

Since accepting this invitation to be with you, I have participated in a conference in Washington which concerns every human being and civilization itself.

Therefore, before expressing some views on international trade, I wish to comment briefly on the efforts we are making to control atomic energy so that it may be used, not for war and destruction, but for the peace and happiness of the world.

The full significance of the release of atomic energy is not quickly or easily comprehended. As it happened, in my capacity as Director of War Mobilization, I was well aware of the awesome character of the great experiment that we then referred to as the Manhattan Project.

Later, during the short period I was out of the government service, it became clear to the scientists that an atomic bomb was an immediate practical possibility. At that time I was asked to serve as the President's representative on the committee, under the chairmanship of Secretary of War Stimson, which laid the plans for the New Mexico experiment.

Despite this experience, I know that I cannot presently evaluate the true impact of this discovery upon the future of the world.

But from the day the first bomb fell on Hiroshima, one thing has been clear to all of us. The civilized world cannot survive an atomic war.

This is the challenge to our generation. To meet it, we must let our minds be bold. At the same time, we must not imagine wishfully that over night there can arise full-grown a world government wise and strong enough to protect all of us and tolerant and democratic enough to command our willing loyalty.

If we are to preserve the continuity of civilized life, we must work with the materials at hand, improving and adding to existing institutions until they can meet the stern test of our time.

Accordingly, the President of the United States and the Prime Ministers of Great Britain and Canada—the partners in the historic scientific and engineering undertaking that resulted in the release of atomic energy—have taken the first step in an effort to rescue the world from a desperate armament race.

Willing to Exchange Information

In their statement, they declared their willingness to make immediate arrangements for the exchange of basic scientific information for peaceful purposes. Much of this kind of basic information essential to the development of atomic energy has already been disseminated. We shall continue to make such information available.

In addition to these immediate proposals, the conference recommended that at the earliest practicable date a commission should be established under the United Nations Organization. This can be done within sixty days.

It would be the duty of this commission to draft recommendations for extending the international exchange of basic scientific information for peaceful purposes, for the control of atomic energy to the extent necessary to insure its use only for peaceful purposes, and for the elimination from national armament of atomic weapons and of all other weapons adaptable to mass destruction.

The commission would recommend safeguards by way of inspection or other means to protect complying states against the hazards of violations and evasions.

Such protection would be afforded by having the work proceed by stages.

As a starting point, the commission might recommend the wide exchange of scientists and scientific information. The next step might be the sharing of knowledge about the raw materials necessary to the release of atomic energy.

The successful completion of each stage would develop the confidence to proceed to the next stage.

A very serious question arises, however, when we reach the stage of exchanging detailed information about the practical industrial application of atomic energy. The thought to be borne in mind here is that, up to a certain rather advanced point, the so-called know-how of production is the same, whether atomic energy is to be stored in bombs or harnessed as power for a peaceful industrial purpose.

Safeguards Are Necessary

And so it was necessary for the conferees to determine, in the light of this fact, how soon information concerning the practical application of atomic energy should be disseminated.

Only one answer was possible. Until effective safeguards can be developed, in the form of international inspection or otherwise, the secrets of production know-how must be held, in the words of the President, as a sacred trust—a trust in the exercise of which we are already under definite international obligation.

Under the Charter of the United Nations, we have pledged ourselves not to use force except in support of the purposes and principles of the charter. The suggestion that we are using the atomic bomb as a diplomatic or military threat against any nation is not only untrue in fact but is a wholly unwarranted reflection upon the American government and people.

It is one of the inherent characteristics of our democracy that we can fight a war only with the genuine consent of our people. No President in the absence of a declaration of war by the Congress could authorize an atomic bombing without running the risk of impeachment.

No one who knows the peace-loving temper of our people can believe that our Congress would adopt a declaration of war contrary to our solemnly undertaken obligations under the United Nations Charter.

The history of 1914 to 1917 and of 1939 to 1941 is convincing proof of the slowness of Congress to declare war. There is surely no reason to believe that it would be more eager to engage in a future war more terrible than any we have known.

While we consider it proper and necessary, therefore, to continue for a time to hold these production secrets in trust, this period need not be unnecessarily prolonged.

As experience demonstrates that the sharing of information is full and unreserved, it is to be hoped that the exchange for peaceful purposes can be extended to some and eventually to all the practical applications of atomic energy and of other scientific discoveries. This is the objective we seek.

It is our purpose and grave duty to act in our relations with other nations with the boldness and generosity that the atomic age demands of us. No officials of government have ever been called upon to make a decision fraught with more serious consequences. We must act. But we will act in a manner that will not undermine our safety or the safety of the world.

Our declaration of willingness to exchange immediately the basic scientific information and our plans for the setting up of a commission under United Nations sponsorship have been sent by me to members of the United Nations Organization. We look forward to their co-operation.

No one appreciates more keenly than those who have advanced these proposals that they represent a very modest first step in what is certain to prove a long and difficult journey. I wish to emphasize our conviction that the creation and development of safeguards to protect us all from unspeakable destruction is not the exclusive responsibility of the United States or Great Britain or Canada. It is the responsibility of all governments.

All Nations Must Co-operate

Without the united effort and unremitting co-operation of all the nations of the world, there will be no enduring and effective protection against the atomic bomb. There will be no protection against bacteriological warfare, an even more frightful method of human destruction.

Atomic energy is a new instrument that has been given to man. He may use it to destroy himself and a civilization which centuries of sweat and toil and blood have built. Or he may use it to win for himself new dignity and a better and more abundant life.

If we can move gradually but surely toward free and unlimited exchange of scientific and industrial information, to control and perhaps eventually to eliminate the manufacture of atomic weapons and other weapons capable of mass destruction, we will have progressed toward achieving freedom from fear.

But it is not enough to banish atomic or bacteriological warfare. We must banish war. To that great goal of humanity we must ever rededicate our hearts and strength.

To help us move toward that goal, we must guard not only against military threats to world security but economic threats to world well-being.

Political peace and economic warfare cannot long exist together. If we are going to have peace in this world, we must learn to live together and work together. We must be able to do business together.

Nations that will not do business with one another, or try to exclude one another from doing business with other countries, are not likely in the long run to be good neighbors.

Trade blackouts, just as much as other types of blackouts, breed distrust and disunity. Business relations bring nations and their peoples closer together and perhaps more than anything else, promote good will and determination for peace.

Many of the existing restrictions on world trade result from present-day conditions and practices, largely growing out of the war.

Many countries, and not least Great Britain, had to sacrifice their foreign earning power to win the war. They have sold most of their foreign stocks and bonds, borrowed heavily abroad, let their foreign commerce go, and lost ships and factories to enemy attack.

Their needs for foreign goods are great and pressing, but they lack foreign exchange, that is, purchasing power to buy abroad. Without aid, they cannot see their way to buy as they used to abroad, not to speak of the additional things they need from abroad to rehabilitate their shattered and devastated economies.

In a situation of this kind, what can a country do? It can seek to borrow the foreign currencies it needs, which will enable it to apply the liberal principle, of trade which must be the basis of any permanent prosperity.

Can Cut Living Standards

Or it can draw in its belt. It can reduce the standard of living of its people, conserve in every way the foreign currencies that it finds hard to get, and transfer its foreign trade by government decree to countries whose currencies are easier to obtain.

In the latter way lies increased discrimination and the division of the commerce of the world into exclusive blocs. We cannot oppose exclusive blocs if we do not help remove the conditions which impel other nations, often against their will, to create them.

We must not only oppose these exclusive trading blocs, but we must also co-operate with other nations in removing conditions which breed discrimination in world trade.

Whatever foreign loans we make will, of course, increase the markets for American products, for in the long run the dollars we lend can be spent only in this country.

The countries devastated by the war want to get back to work. They want to get back to production which will enable them to support themselves. When they can do this, they will buy goods from us. America, in helping them, will be helping herself.

We cannot play Santa Claus to the world, but we can make loans to governments whose credit is good, provided such governments will make changes in commercial policies which will make it possible for us to increase our trade with them.

In addition to loans, lend-lease settlement and the disposal of our surplus war materials, we have been discussing with Great Britain the principle of commercial relations—principles we want to see applied by all nations in the post-war world.

These are the same liberal principles which my friend and predecessor, Cordell Hull, urged for so many years.

They are based on the conviction that what matters most in trade is not the buttressing of particular competitive positions but the increase of productive employment, the increase of production and the increase of general prosperity.

The reasons for poverty and hunger are no longer the stinginess of nature. Modern knowledge makes it technically possible for mankind to produce enough good things to go around. The world's present capacity to produce gives it the greatest opportunity in history to increase the standards of living for all peoples of the world.

Trade between countries is one of the greatest forces leading to the fuller use of these tremendously expanded productive powers. But the world will lose this opportunity to improve the lot of her peoples if their countries do not learn to trade as neighbors and friends. If we are going to have a real people's peace, world trade cannot be throttled by burdensome restrictions.

Some of these restrictions are imposed by government decree, others by private combination. They must be removed if we are to have full employment.

U. S. Trade Proposals

To do this it will be necessary to agree upon some general rules and to apply them in detail. We shall shortly submit to the peoples of the world our views about these matters.

We intend to propose that commercial quotas and embargoes be restricted to a few really necessary cases and that discrimination in their application be avoided.

We intend to propose that tariffs be reduced and tariff preferences be eliminated. The trade agreements act is our standing offer to negotiate to that end.

We intend to propose that subsidies, in general, should be the subject of international discussion and that subsidies on exports should be confined to exceptional cases, under general rules, as soon as the period of emergency adjustment is over.

We intend to propose that governments conducting enterprises in foreign trade should agree to give fair treatment to the commerce of all friendly states, that they should make their purchases and sales on purely economic grounds, and that they should avoid using a monopoly of imports to give excessive protection to their own producers.

We intend to propose that international cartels and monopolies should be prevented by international action from restricting the commerce of the world.

We intend to propose that the special problems of the great primary commodities should be studied internationally, and that consuming countries should have an equal voice with producing countries in whatever decisions may be made.

We intend to propose that the efforts of all countries to maintain full and regular employment should be guided by the rule that no country should solve its domestic problems by measures that would prevent the expansion of world trade and no country is at liberty to export its unemployment to its neighbors.

We intend to propose that an international trade organization be created, under the Economic and Social Council as an integral part of the structure of the United Nations.

We intend to propose that the United Nations call an international conference on trade and employment to deal with all these problems.

In preparation for that conference, we intend to go forward with actual negotiations with several countries for the reduction of trade barriers, under the reciprocal trade agreements act.

Just when these negotiations will commence has not been determined. They will be announced in the usual way, as required by the act, and due notice will be given in order that all interested persons may be heard before the detailed offers to be made by the United States are settled.

Success in those negotiations will be the soundest preparation for the general conference we hope will be called by the United Nations Organization.

U. S. Is Backing United Nations

By proposing that the United Nations Organization appoint a commission to consider the subject of atomic energy and by proposing that the organization likewise call a conference to enable nations to consider the problems of international trade, we demonstrate our confidence in that organization as an effective instrumentality for world co-operation and world peace.

After the first world war we rejected the plea of Woodrow Wilson and refused to join the League of Nations. Our action contributed to the ineffectiveness of the League.

Now the situation is different. We have sponsored the United Nations Organization. We are giving it our whole-hearted and enthusiastic support. We recognize our responsibility in the affairs of the world. We shall not evade that responsibility.

With other nations of the world we shall walk hand in hand in the paths of peace in the hope that all peoples can find freedom from fear and freedom from want.

UNIFIED COMMAND VITAL TO SECURITY, SAYS EISENHOWER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP) Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower declared today that "the era of atomic weapons" makes unification of the armed forces a must.

Not only is "unity of concept, indoctrination and training more necessary than ever," he told the Senate Military committee. But "only through a single department can coordinated development of new weapons be assured."

Unless unification is achieved, and quickly, the general foresaw separate army, navy and air forces going their separate ways.

"They will no more fit together than a bulldog and a tomcat on a team," he added.

Nimitz to Testify

Acting Chairman Johnson (D-Colo) announced that Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, who flew here from his Pacific command, would testify tomorrow forenoon in an unusual Saturday session. Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal supplied names of more than 20 admirals and civilian navy leaders to testify against the unification proposal.

Eisenhower drew frequently from his experiences in directing 5,000,000 fighters assembled from several nations and all arms to crush Nazism in Europe to argue for two hours for unified command.

His first example was the capture of the tiny island of Pantelleria, in the jumpoff from Africa to Italy. The ground forces regarded this "as suicide," the general said, while the air and navy knew it could be done.

Instead of referring these questions back to some joint staff in London or Washngton, the general had the Air Forces drop 6,000 tons of bombs and the "actual operation was a good one."

Similarly he credited teamwork under a single command for success in the cross-channel operation into Normandy, the break-through at St. Lo and the pursuit of the enemy into the heart of Germany.

"Perfected teamwork," he said, results as much from friendly association over a period of years as it does from the more obvious reasons of combined tactical training and doctrine."

Senator Johnson said he feared that under the detailed Army-Navy merger plan proposed some time ago by the War department, the professional military organization would be too strong. He said the civilian secretary might be left to "pass out pencils" and "be completely impotent."

Sees No Danger

"I see no such implication of danger in this," the general came back quickly.

Earlier he had said bluntly that he would fire any officer who sought to disturb the traditional civilian control over the military.

Johnson asked Eisenhower to comment on a suggestion that top military officers "sit in on all cabinet meetings;" the senator did not mention the author of the suggestion.

"I don't know much about cabinet meetings," Eisenhower replied, "but I don't think it's the proper place for a military man."

"I'm very glad to hear you say that," Johnson commented.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur was quoted last week as having said, "I believe that the professional heads of the services should be exofficio members of the cabinet. They should be present at all cabinet meetings without power of voting, but permitted to express their opinion x x x." The suggestion was contained in a transcript of testimony from top army and navy officers on unification proposals taken by a committee of the joint chiefs of staff and made public by the military committee.

Eisenhower on Unification

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP).—The complete text of General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower's statement today before the Senate Military Affairs Committee on proposed unification of the armed forces:

Gentlemen: I am acutely sensible of the responsibility you bear to the Senate and to the nation in carefully considering, and ultimately recommending, whether to establish a single executive department, at the seat of government, to co-ordinate and administer our three great fighting arms—the land, naval and air forces. These three forces constitute the nation's security establishment, and they, in combination, have but a single mission—to discourage or to repel aggression. You are necessarily, therefore, confronted with the important task of exploring the subject fully before you arrive at your conclusions in the matter. I am therefore honored that you have asked me to appear before you to express my views on this vital subject.

I come before you as a soldier to whom was entrusted the command of the greatest combined force ever brought to bear against an enemy—a force composed of more than 5,000,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen brought together from the men and women of several nations, united in a common enterprise. More than 3,000,000 of those who made up the Allied Expeditionary Force in Europe were men and women of the United States Army, Navy and Air Forces. I, therefore, prefer to speak to you as one who has been privileged to know such a singular experience, and I should like to speak also as one who has experienced with them the successful conclusion of a great enterprise based on unity of command.

As Allied commander of land, sea and air forces, employed against our enemies, first in the Mediterranean and next in northwest Europe, I know that our efforts would have met with failure without unity of direction. No system of joint command could possibly have brought victory to our cause.

Not Easily Achieved

But that unity of command in the field, so vital to our successes, was not easily achieved. When war came, at Pearl Harbor, we had joint command. It was not until we surprised the enemy in North Africa that the first large-scale example of unified command emerged. But it was a new device and there were many difficulties which yet remained to be overcome. All of these had to be met and surmounted during actual operations when lives were at stake. In my opinion, those difficulties grew directly from the traditional separation of the Army and Navy which is the inevitable outcome of the present organization of our military departments. Separation at the top necessarily fosters separation all along the line.

By the time we were ready to assault Sicily we had achieved unified command in that theater. We had achieved it by learning as we went—the hard way.

I will not relate here in this formal statement the fascinating account of the amphibious assault under air cover on the beaches of Normandy. Neither will I detail the magnificent teamwork of the land, naval, air and supply forces, which combined under single command to break through the crust of enemy resistance at Saint Lo and finally to destroy him in a pursuit to the very heart of Germany. It took timing, co-ordination and balance. And until final victory was achieved, all three of the great coequal arms were continuously employed. It will not surprise the members of this committee to recall that the skill and knowledge of the naval arm was not alone employed on the seas but was brought to bear in the successful crossings of the Rhine.

After long and careful consideration, I cannot perceive the logic behind the objections which are voiced against the proposal before you.

I am told that the task of the civilian secretary, who would preside over such a department is beyond the capacity of any man. If this were true, then it follows that no man has the capacity to assume the Presidency of the United States. It was my responsibility to lead the Allied Expeditionary Forces through the European campaign. The force employed in this single theater of war far exceeds the total peace-time establishment which this nation would ever need. And my responsibilities did not alone relate to military operations. Tnere were, in addition, enormous problems involving military government, displaced persons and first aid to the oppressed peoples of liberated countries. Surely such an objection cannot stand in the face of experience.

There is another objection, too, which I have heard expressed. Some have voiced the fear that the creation of such a single department would subordinate one fighting service to another. Gentlemen, that is rather an old story to me. Both in Africa and Europe, it fell to my lot to organize a fighting team of ground, sea and air. Doubtless these same fears were present in the minds of one or more of the services involved. But the matter was urgent and decisions had to be made under the press of circumstances. I submit that the result proved such fears to be groundless and each of these services is now proud of the part it played in the unified, balanced force which decisively defeated what was considered the most formidable force we and our Allies had ever encountered. I have no doubt that once the step is taken here, the same result will follow.

At one time I was an infantryman, but I have long since forgotten that fact under the responsibility of commanding combined arms.

The German Example.

I have heard it said, too, that Nazi Germany had a single military department and that it brought her defeat. The facts are that Germany never had such a single department or even unity of direction except in the Fuehrer himself. On the contrary, the Luftwaffe was commanded by Reichsmarshal Goering, who was second only to Hitler, and the successive chiefs of the German general staff were never able to achieve anything approaching unity of direction of the three components of the Nazi fighting machine.

One of the major contributing factors to the Nazi defeat was the utter lack of unified direction over the Luftwaffe and the Wehrmacht, both in the Mediterranean and in Europe.

I have carefully considered this problem, both from the basis of my experience as chief of operations of the War Department, and as an allied commander of combined forces. I am convinced that unless we have unity of direction in Washington through the years of peace that lie ahead, we may enter another emergency, in a time to come, as we did at Pearl Harbor. It is in time of peace that this nation must preserve a balanced, adequate measure of our land, sea and air power lest we lose the peace we have so dearly bought.

We have learned by hard experience that the nation's security establishment is, in fact, a single fighting team composed of three services each supplementing the other in proper balance. It must mean that it is now necessary to so organize that we can obtain a well-rounded annual program. The need is for efficiency, economy, simultaneous over-all consideration of the requirements and the maximum pooling of talent. What is required of us in war we must prepare to do in peace.

Summarizes Reasons

In conclusion, I should like to summarize for you the reasons which impel me to conclude that we must now establish a single executive department to preside over three coequal and autonomous fighting arms:

1. It is essential in order that there may be a well rounded military program which insures for us the maximum protection for each dollar appropriated.

2. It is not feasible to arrive at the size or composition of each arm without simultaneously considering the others. Each arm supplements the other, and no single service can be independently considered.

3. The national security is safeguarded only if the security establishment is fashioned, trained and administered under single direction—by a single department.

4. The era of atomic weapons, pilotless missiles makes unity of concept, indoctrination and training more necessary than ever.

5. The pooling of talent in the field of scientific research and development is an absolute necessity. Only through a single department can co-ordinated development of new weapons be assured.

6. There is the absolute need for economy in administration if we are, as a nation, to afford an adequate security establishment. So long as there are two executive departments in Washington, instead of one, we will continue to be harassed with the needless extravagance of double administration, overlapping duplications, differing standards and competitive procurement.

"Perfected Teamwork"

7. If we do not integrate the exectutive management of the three members of our fighting team, our post-war security establishment will become the patch-work improvisation that is inevitable where independent departments, at different times compete before separate Congressional committees. With integration we can buy more security for less money. Without it we will spend more money and obtain less security.

8. One of the most important and least understood factors in modern war is that it is essentially a matter of perfected teamwork. Perfected teamwork results as much from friendly association over a period of years as it does from the more obvious reasons of combined tactical training and doctrine. By unification at the top we emphasize to our soldiers, sailors and airmen the essential truth that each wears the uniform of the nation's fighting forces and that his natural friends and trusted associates are the others who wear that uniform, regardless of its color or design.

9. Finally, there is no such thing as a separate land, sea or air war; therefore we must now recognize this fact by establishing a single department of the armed forces.

A-BOMB SESSION WITH REDS URGED

Scientists Advocate Truman Invite Russia to New Conference.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP) Scientists recommended today that President Truman immediately invite Russia to sit in with Britain and the United States at a new conference on ways of controlling use of atomic weapons.

Hundreds of names were signed to a resolution urging the parley in the hope that a system could be devised for submission to the United Nations organization.

The action was announced by Drs. J. H. Rush, of Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Francis D. Bonner of the Manhattan Project, who worked on the atomic bomb.

Rush told a news conference in the office of Representative Douglas (D-Calif.) that every scientist who worked on the bomb "was scared" the minute he found out what lay ahead. That is what prompted so many to take on "for the first time in history this civic responsibility," he added.

Rush said they were "supplementing" the stand taken by Mr. Truman, British Prime Minister Attlee and Canadian Prime Minister Mackenzie King. The three have decided to retain atomic bomb secrets until control measures are worked out, at the same time releasing scientific knowledge that does not bear on destruction.

That position is proper, Rush said, "if this is the first step in a series of negotiations leading to world-wide development of controls in which all major powers participate."

Red Inclusion Political

Asked if he thought Russia should be given atomic secrets, Rush said that was "political" and the scientists do not want to enter that discussion.

The resolution reiterated that atomic energy is "the most destructive force known to mankind" and warned against "an atomic armaments race." Such a race, it said, would lead to "a world of fear and hatred" in which all nations face sudden destruction.

Therefore, it was resolved that:

"The President of the United States immediately invite to a conference the governments of Great Britain and the Soviet Union, in order to discuss the common danger created by atomic weapons, and to plan for the joint approach by these three nations to the other members of the United Nations organization to the end of establishing a system of international cooperation and control of atomic energy which will prevent a competitive armament race, safeguard world peace, and make available to all peoples the peacetime benefits of atomic energy."

Signing it were 90 per cent of the men who worked on the atomic bomb, numbering between 1,000 and 1,500; 1,100 Philadelphia scientists, and a number of independent physicists, not affiliated with organizations.

Attlee visited the White House again today. He told reporters he was just saying goodbye to Mr. Truman.

Fate Of Atomic Plan Seen In Russ Hands

By John M. Hightower

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Russia holds the key today to success or failure of the Anglo-American atomic-control program. American officials say the next move is up to Moscow.

Hence the immediate future is viewed as an extremely critical period by those who regard the existence of the atomic bomb as probably the foremost problem of diplomacy in the world.

Test Of Co-Operation

During this period the ability of the great powers to work together in the United Nations for the prevention of war is bound to undergo a severe test. The outcome of the test may well determine whether the United Nations will be a strong and effective organization.

This in turn may have much to do with whether the world wakes up some morning to find itself in an atomic war with several of its major cities already blasted out of existence.

Comes To Head In January

President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee of Britain and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada laid the groundwork for the test yesterday with their proposal that the United Nations Organization create a special commission on atomic energy.

Russia's reaction may either be made known quickly or withheld until the United Nations holds its organization meeting in London during the first week in January.

That is where the issue will have to come to a head.

Byrnes Talking Tonight

Meanwhile, the world probably will learn something more about American thinking on the subject tonight from Secretary of State Byrnes. The State Department said he would devote part of his speech to the three-power declaration when he appears at a testimonial dinner in Charleston, S.C.

The job for the United Nations presumably will be proposed formally by the United States as soon as the Security Council is organized.

While no details have been disclosed officially, it is expected by officials here that the proposed atomic commission will be set up under the Security Council and that it will include as members America, Britain, Russia, France and China. Those are the five permanent members of the council.

Commission's Job

The commission's job will be to make recommendations for a step-by-step exchange of scientific information, including atomic energy data, and for creation of controls for atomic energy uses. The problem, involving all member countries, is one for the United Nations, but there is little expectation here that the United Nations can solve it unless Russia co-operates to the hilt.

Several reasons are advanced for this by top officials. Russia is the only great power that does not have atomic energy and atomic explosives now. Russia, on the other hand, has a degree of secrecy about what she does possess and about her plans and activities which no other nation possesses. Also Russia has a veto in the United Nations Security Council by means of which she could block any plan she disliked even though all other members backed it.

Offer Considered Generous

However, in their uncertainity about Russia's reaction United States officials appear reasonably optimistic. They regard the joint offer of the President and Prime Ministers yesterday as a "generous" one in view of the anglo-American investment of effort and the American investment of money —$2,000,000,000—in the atomic bomb project.

In some respects the offer may be summed up as a willingness on the part of the United States and Britain to trade all they know about atomic force for a drastic Russian cut in secrecy. Mainly they ask the Russians to share all sorts of basic information and to agree to a revolutionary system of inspection of all atomic installations in all countries.

Soldier with Large Family Can Forget About Points

Eligible for Release After Dec. 1, Regardless of Service Score.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP) The soldier with a big family will be eligible to get out of the army after Dec. 1, regardless of his point score.

The War department announced today a series of modifications to the present discharge system, including a reduction of point scores, which it said would add 783,000 men and women to the number eligible for release.

Navy Revises Points

Later, the Navy announced point revisions for officers and enlisted men in previously "frozen" classifications which it said would qualify nearly 10,000 for release by Jan. 1.

By Dec. 1, the Army estimates it will have either discharged or have eligible for release approximately 5,000,000 men. This figure will include more than 3,500,000 actually discharged and 1,483,000 eligible for discharge.

This will mean that of the 8,300,000 men in the Army on V-E day, 3,300,000 will be in service. The army, however, is larger than that because of inductions and enlistments.

Men with three or more dependent children under 18 years of age will be eligible for release. Length of service doesn't matter. Previously 12 points were allowed for each child up to a maximum of three.

The new point score for enlisted men will be 55, instead of the present 60.

In addition, a soldier with four years of honorable service can ask for discharge regardless of his age. Retained are the present provisions under which a soldier with two years' service and who is 35 to 37 years old can be discharged or if he is 38, regardless of length of service.

WACS to Benefit

WACS also benefit under the new order. If they are married, regardless of when, and enlisted before May 12 of this year they can apply for discharge. This applies to both WAC officers and enlisted personnel. The point score for WAC enlisted women will be reduced from 34 to 32, but remain unchanged at 37 for officers.

Male officers, except those in the Medical department, will be able to ask for release if they have four years and three months' service. Their point score will be cut from 75 to 73. The Army said it would have an announcement before the middle of next month regarding discharged requirements for both men and women medical officers.

In addition to revising points for officers and enlisted personnel in critical classifications, the Navy announced that certain officers who heretofore were ineligible for release except on approval of the chief of naval personnel, would automatically be eligible for discharge Jan. 1.

Approximately 3,435 officers and 20,375 enlisted personnel are affected by the revisions. Of these, the Navy said, 2,350 officers and 7,392 enlisted personnel will have sufficient points to qualify for release or discharge by Jan. 1.

Enlisted personnel of the following classifications, heretofore ineligible for demobilization under the point formula, will become eligible Jan. 1 on the basis of point scores effective o nthat date:

Specialists, shore patrol, 38 points; storekeeper, disbursing, male, 44 points, female, 29 points; specialists, key punch operator, male, 38 points, female, 23 points; specialists, punch card accounting machine operator, male, 44 points; female, 29 points; hospital corpsmen with specialty in occupational or physical therapy, assigned to duty in continental United States naval hospitals or U. S. naval special hospitals, male, 44; female, 29; specialists, transportation, male, 44; female, 29.

Officers of the following categories automatically will become eligible for release on Jan. 1, upon acquiring sufficient points:

Shore patrol officers; officer specialists IBM or other electric tabulating machines; postal officers; officer graduates of naval schools of Oriental languages; officers, officer candidates, and enlisted personnel studying for commissions in naval schools of Oriental languages; officers of cost inspection service; and officers specializing in physical or occupational therapy in continental naval hospitals.

Navy Couldn't Fight A Major Battle Now, Says Its Chief

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Its ranking officer says the United States Navy has been so weakened by demobilization that it couldn't fight a major battle now.

This remark was made on Capitol Hill today by Admiral of the Fleet, Ernest J. King, who went there to indorse peacetime training for all youths of 18.

Questioning by members of the House Military Affairs Committee about demobilization led to the Admiral's appraisal of the Navy's situation as of now.

The chief of naval operations was talking about how fast the Navy is releasing key men, breaking up combat teams and disintegrating the units that smashed the Japanese fleet.

"Disintegrated," Word For It

Representative Leroy Johnson (R., Cal.) asked if the demobilization was of such character that the fleet was unable "to fight a major battle" now if necessary.

Said King:

"I'm afraid I will have to say 'yes' to that question."

He added that the Navy isn't the "going concern" he hoped it would be during the reduction process. "Disintegrated" is the word for it, King said.

He went on to explain that the Navy still has a lot of men and a lot of ships, but the combat teams are broken.

Navy For Peacetime Training

King told the committee the Navy joins the Army in full support of peacetime training for young men. He said the Navy is "sure" it can recruit its 666,000 officers and men for the immediate postwar fleet strength.

But, the Admiral emphasized:

"If there would be enemy action, the Navy would be the first to be called on. It is essential that our fleet be capable of prompt expansion from peace strength to war strength. There is no way to accomplish that save through the existence of a trained reserve. I do not think a sufficient and efficient reserve is possible save under universal military training."

King said he was basing his testimony on conditions "as they exist rather than on the future of firm peace which we hope to see in due time."

Atom Bomb And The Navy

The atom bomb "may require us eventually to build stronger ships quite different from those we have now," he said.

He said some of the questions of the future may be cleared up "when we are ready to make tests of the effect of the atomic bomb on ships. We will then strive to work out countermeasures."

The present atomic bomb, he said, cannot prevent fleets from operating.

"Ships," King said, "can withstand a greater shock than buildings. . . . In the recent war we had to spread out the formations of ships to meet the conditions of air attack. We can readily arrange our formation to insure that not more than one or two ships would likely be lost through attack with an atomic bomb. Such a result would not pay the attacker in view of the great cost of these bombs and the small amount of material available in the world for making them."

AAF Flying Gigantic B-36 Seeks To Drop A-Bomb on Naval Vessel

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP) The Army Air Forces hopes to use the gigantic B-36 in tests of the atomic bomb on such targets as naval vessels.

The B-36, which will dwarf any aircraft now flying, is now well along in construction. It is described as having range and bomb carrying capacity far greater than the B-29 Superfortress.

Air Force officials told newsmen today they believe their organization is the logical group to make tests with the atomic bomb. Their argument is this: The only two atomic bombs used so far—on Hiroshima and Nagasaki—were carried by B-29s; the experience gained and the planes used, the Superfortresses, are ready for immediate tests; the B-36 and other world-ranging type of giant bombers are on the way.

The Air Force wants to test both its new aircraft and the bombs. One official explains that when a new weapon is developed it is desirable to exploit the use of it to the utmost. In doing this, they said, the possibilities of the planes to carry the bombs must be determined quickly.

One airman phrased it this way: "We want to know as much as we can as soon as we can."

They added, however, that they assume all the services—the Navy, the ground forces and the Air Forces — will participate in the atomic experiments. Each of those services, they explain, will have its own lessons to learn.

In the opinion of air force men naval ships, such as captured German or Japanese craft, are only one of the targets which should be given a trial. The two bombs used against the Japanese cities provided valuable information on blast effect against structures, on heat and ray activity against humans. Airmen still would like to know the result of atomic bomb blasts against other man-made installations, such as the deep, subterranean factories found in Germany.

The B-36 which they hope to use in the tests can take off with 20,000 gallons of fuel and with what is described as a "normal" bomb load. It is powered with air-cooled engines presently capable of developing 3,000 horsepower, and equipped with 3-bladed, 19-foot propellors.

An indication of the B-36 range is shown by the fact that the B-29 had a normal gasoline load of only about 8,000 gallons.

WAR WITH RUSSIA HELD UNTHINKABLE

CHICAGO, Nov. 16—(AP) The Commission on World Peace of the Methodist Church declared today war between the United States and Russia was "unthinkable," and asserted friendship between these two nations "would hold the promise of security and peace for all mankind."

A resolution adopted at the commission's annual meeting stated:

"Fear and mistrust between nations must be removed. In particular there is need for the most urgent efforts to provide understanding and friendly relations between the United States and Russia. War between these two great powers is unthinkable; it would mean mutual annihilation.

"This is not a time for angry, irresponsible speech and writing. It is time for patient, persistent efforts to find the answer to crucial international problems. Friendship between the U. S. and Russia would hold the promise of security and peace for all mankind."

Another section of the resolution said:

"We urge the government of the U. S. to instruct our delegates in both the General Assembly and the Security Council promptly to seek through international agreement reduction and regulation of armament and universal abolition of peacetime compulsory military training.

"This," the resolution added, "is necessary to prevent a race in armaments whose end might well be the destruction of civilization and possibly mankind itself.

"Specifically we urge the establishment of international control over atomic power."

A resolution adopted by the commission urged the United States to open its doors to Jews as an aid to these "long suffering and now despairing people."

RUSSIA, U.S. SEEK KOREA ISSUE END

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—(AP) The United States is conferring with Russia over the difficulties which have arisen from the splitting of Korea for occupation purposes into American and Soviet zones, the State department announced today.

Because of the distribution of Allied forces at the time of the Japanese surrender, the Allies directed Japanese forces in Korea north of the 38th parallel to surrender to Soviet troops and those south of that line to surrender to Americans, the announcement said.

Although the line was intended to be only temporary during the immediate surrender, it was recognized that it might jeapardize the "fundamental unity" of Korea, the announcement added.

Hence, the United States commander, Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, was given "complete authority" to settle any local problems with the Russian commander.

Despite this, the announcement said, "practical difficulties" had arisen and hence the U. S. was conferring with Moscow.

This government suggested that the difficulties be solved either through negotiations between the two occupational commanders or on a government level, the announcement said.

It said the practical problems faced included reintegration of communications and the economic unification of the country.

In consultation with Russia, the U. S. is making "every effort" to improve the Korean situation and hopes that communications, trade and free passage between the north and south zones will be resumed shortly, thus facilitating the ultimate establishment of an independent and unified Korea, the State department said.

REPORTS ITALY IN DIRE NEED

NOV 17 1945

Lehman Says All of Europe Faces Grim Winter.

Washington, Nov. 16 (A. P.).—Congress heard today that Italy has 3,500,000 persons suffering with malaria and "many thousands more" with tuberculosis. The statement came from the UNRRA's director-general, Herbert H. Lehman, in testimony before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

He said the figures are typical of the need for an additional $1,350,000,000 for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. The committee is considering a bill to provide the funds.

"Europe and the Far East face a grim winter, perhaps the worst in modern history," Lehman added. "Nearly everywhere in liberated Europe and Asia there is the threat, and in too many instances the actuality, of starvation, disease, economic disorganization and chaos."

He asserted that the financial cost to America "will be less" than the amount asked, and explained:

"Most of the American contribution will be spent by UNRRA to purchase American supplies and services, thus stimulating United States industry, labor and agriculture.

"In addition, we are most anxious to make large purchases of American Army and Navy surpluses, which are immediately available both here and overseas.

"The American taxpayer already has bought these stocks. . . . So the accounts will be credited accordingly and the purchases used to meet the UNRRA commitment."

Lehman declared that the UNRRA problem presents a challenge—"To decide whether that same spirit of international cooperation which made military victory possible, will continue to bind the nations together to meet and conquer the problems of peace."

Bulgaria

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—The United States was trying in both Moscow and Sofia tonight to bring about basic political changes in Bulgaria which would allow establishment of American diplomatic relations with that country.

This was reported by officials here in connection with the release of a note delivered to the Government at Sofia today by the United States representative, Maynard Barnes.

The text of the note was made public at the State Department. It denounced conditions leading up to the election in Bulgaria Sunday and said "there is no reason to believe" that the voting will result in a "representative democratic government."

Ethridge Still In Moscow

Simultaneously it was disclosed in response to inquiry that Mark Ethridge, a special investigator for the Secretary of State, James F. Byrnes, in Bulgaria and Romania, is still in Moscow, where presumably he has been making a first-hand report on conditions he found in those countries.

Meanwhile, the Louisville publisher's findings on Bulgaria have been reported to Washington and also to the Bulgarian Government and the British Government.

Bulgaria is ruled at the moment by a coalition government under Premier Kimon Georgiev, whose political support rests on a "Fatherland Front" organization of all political parties.

Occupied By Red Army

Bulgaria is one of the countries which has been occupied by the Red Army, and, together with Romania, is probably the hottest spot involved in negotiations among London, Washington and Moscow over Soviet domination of eastern European governments.

Secretary Byrnes recently defined American basic policy there as being to recognize the Soviet Union's special security interests and right to friendly neighboring governments but to reject any conditions denying to the people of those countries the right to choose their own leaders.

Last summer the United States raised the question of recognizing a government in Bulgaria so that a peace treaty might be concluded with it.

Election Postponed

At that time the one-party system was criticized and it was said that an election scheduled for August 26 could not possibly result in a government qualified as democratic.

That election was postponed and a new one finally scheduled for Sunday. In the meantime, the note delivered by Barnes said "an opportunity has been given for freer political expression."

Making clear that its complaints were based on Ethridge's findings, the note continued:

"However, no steps have been taken since August to reorganize the present Bulgarian Government to make it truly representative of democratic opinion.

Single List Of Candidates

"From the elections now scheduled for November 18, 1945, important democratic elements are excluded through the operation of a single list of candidates.

"Moreover, there are indications that the free expression of popular will is being further restricted by threats of coercion and later reprisals.

"There is no reason to believe the results of an election conducted under such conditions will reflect the Bulgarian peoples' choice of a representative democratic government."

Wheelbarrows Spied Upon

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Japanese spies operating in the Philippines used everything from loose talk by United States sailors to observation of wheelbarrow concentrations in rounding out their reports to Tokyo.

This was shown today in a study of Japanese radio messages intercepted in 1941 before war broke out. They were released by the congressional committee investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster.

An August 4, 1941, spy message from Manila told Tokyo it had been learned from crew members of the U.S.S. Coolidge that the ship had just brought in 600 American soldiers.

The Wheelbarrows

An August 22 report from Davao cited the concentration of 400 or 500 wheelbarrows as bearing out evidence of the imminent construction of a new United States airbase there.

Tokyo asked on September 1 for a report on warship arrivals and departures at Manila. Such reports followed regularly, sometimes in great detail. Tokyo also got from its Manila spies information on troop movements and strength, as well as airplane distribution.

Panama Canal Data

As Pearl Harbor day drew closer, Tokyo called for a "reconnaissance of the new defense works" on the coasts of Luzon. In reply went the apology that "strict guard is being maintained, and hence the gathering of information is extremely difficult."

The messages released by the committee included a number supplying Tokyo with data on ship movements through the Panama Canal.

One, on October 18, told of rapid construction of hangars, etc., at the Pacific end of the canal. It concluded: "Naturally, they do not allow us to inspect the forts."

A June 23 message from Tokyo to Mexico, apparently to an envoy there, directed that an attaché go to Panama on an official visit and get maps of the vital Panama Canal zone.

A parenthetical note read: "(American surveillance will unquestionably be vigilant. There are also some suspicions that they read some of our codes. Therefore, we wish to exercise the utmost caution in accomplishing this mission.)"

Two West Coast Japanese agents were identified only as Muto at San Francisco and Sato at Seattle.

Muto reported to Tokyo on September 18 that the British warship Warspite was at Bremerton, Wash., for repair.

This was confirmed two days later by Sato. Also, on December 6, Sato reported that the United States aircraft carrier Saratoga had sailed the day before.

SCIENCE FORESEES CHEAP PRODUCTION OF ATOMIC BOMB

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16—(AP) Atomic bombs cheap enough so that tens of thousands of them may be dropped in the next war were predicted today by Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, the scientist who headed the making of atomic bombs at Los Alamos, N. M.

Dr. Oppenheimer spoke at the first postwar atomic energy conference held jointly by the American Philosophical society and the National Academy of Sciences.

"We have made a thing," said Dr. Oppenheimer, "that has altered abruptly and profoundly the nature of the world.

"The atomic bomb is a very ordinary thing in some ways but—in a world of atomic weapons wars will cease.

"Because it is known that the project cost us two billion dollars, and we dropped just two bombs, it is easy to think that they must be expensive. But for any serious undertaking in atomic armament—and without any elements of technical novelty whatever, just doing things that have already been done, that estimate of cost would be high by something like a factor of one thousand. Atomic weapons, even with what we know today, can be cheap."

He said that except for the protecting hills the second bomb, at Nagasaki, would have "taken out" ten square miles or a little more. Great steel girders of factories were twisted and wrecked, he declared, and some of these wrecked factories were miles apart.

New medical discoveries from the atomic bomb were reported by Dr. Robert S. Stone, University of California. They were made in studying the rays emitted by 30 common chemical elements which are transformed into substances like radium.

Beta Raye, streams of electrons, were produced so powerful that a single overexposure of this radiation caused skin cancer in animals. These rays have long been known to cause cancer, but never in a single shot.

Some of the radioactive byproducts, he said, if absorbed into the body, will cause Sarcoma (cancer) of the bone. Plutonium, the new metal that makes bombs, is just as dangerous as radium if taken into the human body.

AUTO WAGE ROW WORSENS

G.M. Offer Is Refused; Strike Preparations Hinted

Detroit, Nov. 16 (AP)—The automobile industry's bristling wage row moved nearer a showdown today as negotiations between General Motors Corporation and the CIO auto workers' union were in recess until after two important union meetings next week.

A full report on the wage negotiations will be made Monday by Walter P. Reuther, UAW-CIO vice president, to a conference here of 200 union delegates from G.M. plants throughout the nation.

Also scheduled for next week, before any further meetings with the management, is a session of the union strategy committee, empowered by the UAW-CIO executive board to take strike action at its discretion.

10 Per Cent Offer Refused

Both union and management insisted the negotiations have not broken down. Thus far, however, they have brought recriminations and rejections of varying proposals from each side.

The union, which is demanding a 30-per-cent wage-rate increase throughout the car industry, yesterday turned down a new offer by General Motors of a ten-per-cent wage increase and assurances of from five to eight hours overtime weekly at time-and-one-half pay.

In New York today the CIO-United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America announced rejection of a ten per cent wage-increase offer for 30,000 of its members employed by General Motors.

Wage conferences with Chrysler Corporation were resumed today and the UAW-CIO was preparing for the opening of similar meetings next Tuesday with the Ford Motor Company. Demands for 30 per cent wage increases have been made upon both companies and rejected by the managements.

"Strike-Provoking Document"

There were no further exchanges today between Ford and the union following the company's demand yesterday for "effective guarantees" against work stoppages and for increased worker productivity. A union statement assailed the Ford proposal as a "union-busting and strife-provoking document."

Commenting on General Motors' latest ten-per-cent increase offer, Reuther asserted it was "definitely tied in with an attempt to get higher automobile prices which would bring inflation."

Anderson, following yesterday's wage conferences, said the ten-per-cent increase, if accepted by the UAW-CIO, would be submitted to the OPA as a cost factor toward higher automobile prices.

Truck Production Cut

The price row popped up in another quarter today. The Ford Motor Company, announcing a cut in its truck production from 660 to 220 units a day, said the action was forced by decision of the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Company here to ship no more wheel parts because of OPA delay in setting prices on them.

The cut in truck production, Ford announced, would affect 2,000 workers in Ford truck plants throughout the country, and probably another 12,000 workers in industry feeder plants.

Although Reuther insisted no strike action would be taken in General Motors plants until all efforts at an agreement had been exhausted, he said "it would be unrealistic not to prepare for any possible developments." This was prompted by reports that General Motors locals in Flint, Mich., already have completed preparations for a strike.

Management Announcing Its Stand On Bargaining

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Industry delegates to President Truman's labor-management conference promised to make known today their stand on the collective-bargaining issue.

Indications were it might take the form of a counterproposal or amendment to a request by CIO President Philip Murray that the conference approve bargaining within the framework of the Administration's broad wage-price policy: Raise wages generally without increasing prices.

Ira Mosher, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, told newsmen that management's "100 per cent" view would be presented to the conference executive committee at its closed meeting today.

Objection To CIO Idea

Presidents William Green of the AFL and John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers have objected to the CIO resolution if it can be construed as holding collective bargaining within the boundaries of the Administration wage-price policy.

Green told reporters no labor representative could object to the idea of indorsing collective bargaining on wages as a principle.

Speedup Move Made

Many management delegates also seemed willing to concur on a general statement of that sort. Some suggested amending the Murray resolution to cut out the reference to the President's policy.

The executive committee decided yesterday to speed up the conference by insisting on final reports by Saturday night from the six working committees.

One group studying how to minimize disputes over existing contracts had finished its report. Another, which investigated ways of strengthening the United States Conciliation Service, worked on a final draft of its findings today.

The executive committee will coordinate the six reports and submit the results to the full conference.

Voting Decision

The rules committee yesterday turned down, 6 to 2, a proposal by Lewis and the AFL that all final action by the conference require a unanimous vote. The committee held that a vote of 15 of the 18 representatives on each side would suffice. Its recommendation to that effect will be put to a simple majority vote of the conference, Chairman Walter P. Stacy told newsmen.

Meanwhile, although twice rebuffed by the United States Steel Corporation in his attempt to bring about conciliation conferences with the CIO steelworkers, Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach still appeared to have an idea for heading off a strike. This time, he said, he would not "broadcast or telegraph" his proposal. A strike vote among the half-million workers is scheduled November 28. The union is demanding a $2-a-day increase.

50,000 Mid-West Truck Men Threaten To Strike

[By the Associated Press]

A walkout of some 50,000 AFL truck drivers in a dispute over a new contract, halting over-the-road trucking between the Mississippi and the Rocky Mountains appeared imminent today.

At St. Paul, Lou Hosking, secretary of the Mid-West Truck Operators Association, said 1,500 drivers and helpers employed by Minneapolis and St. Paul long distance trucking firms walked out last midnight.

Hosking said the mass walkout would affect 125 long-haul firms in the mid-West group as well as several small firms in communities throughout the affected area.

Hosking said about 60 locals of the AFL General Drivers Union called the walkout for last midnight after a meeting in Chicago. Spokesmen for trucking firms in Chicago said the walkout was planned for midnight tonight.

Back Pay Is Issue

Hoskins said there had been no discussions between the union and the operators, the unions refusing to meet to negotiate any differences. In Omaha, a union leader said the stoppage involved back pay which was ordered paid by the War Labor Board in 1943.

The Government seized control of mid-West lines after a previous stoppage, but as each firm was released the union petitioned for strike votes.

Elsewhere along the country's labor front disputes kept idle some 275,000 workers. In Eugene, Ore., the CIO International Woodworkers of America voted to take "any and all steps" to force the AFL lumber workers into its affiliate. Some 60,000 AFL lumber workers have been on strike in the Pacific Northwest for seven weeks in a wage dispute and bitter interunion conflict has arisen.

Agree To Negotiate

Striking AFL machinists in San Francisco agreed to resume wage negotiations which broke down last week. CIO machinists, also on strike for nearly three weeks, continued negotiations but made no report of progress. About 50,000 workers in the San Francisco Bay area are idle because of the walkout by 12,000 machinists.

One small strike was settled, 300 employés of the Nicholson File Company in Philadelphia, idle since September 24, voting to return to work Monday. An agreement provides for the reinstatement of a discharged employé, a modified union shop and a 9-cent-an-hour wage boost, retroactive to September 1.

YULE PARTY MUSIC STIRS LABOR ROW

Hartford Utility Head Says AFL Local Insists That 12 Men Be Paid at Children's Event

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 16 (AP)—The question of music for a children's Christmas party caused a disagreement today between the heads of a public utility company and the local union of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL).

Samuel Ferguson, president of the Hartford Electric Light Company, asserted in a letter to Representative Herman P. Kopplemann, that "Mr. Petrillo's union insists" that unless a twelve-piece orchestra were engaged for the party at Bushnell Memorial Hall no vaudeville artist could appear and the affair would have to get along without an organist for the carol singing.

Henry Zaccardi, president and business agent of Local 400, American Federation of Musicians, challenged Mr. Ferguson's version of the situation, and asserted that James C. Petrillo, head of the national union, had nothing to do with it.

In his letter to Mr. Kopplemann, who represents this district in Congress, Mr. Ferguson said:

"Inasmuch as the pit is filled with children's presents, the orchestra does not insist on playing, but is willing to sit back of the scenes in silence and receive their pay.

"Do you advise the committee to surrender their self-respect and pay the required tribute or will you aid in freeing us and others in our supposedly free nation?"

Mr. Zaccardi asserted that neither Mr. Ferguson nor any other company official had discussed the matter with him, but said he had talked about it with Mrs. Beverly Joyce, local booking agent. He told her, he said, that a local union rule required that no less than twelve men had to play at the hall with a vaudeville show.

"However," he added, "the union always takes into consideration the people putting on the show and we have often relaxed this figure for charitable and other organizations."

Mr. Zaccardi asserted that if the company did not want music for its party, it did not have to have it. He added:

"They can have an organ for the children coming in and for the caroling, but not for the vaudeville show."

30.24 _ 31687

The local union, which Mr. Zaccardi said was autonomous and made its own rules and regulations, will meet Sunday to discuss the situation.

Mr. Zaccardi said he would not ask the union to relax its twelve-man rule because, he asserted, Mr. Ferguson had been "unfair."

LANDLORDS OPEN BATTLE WITH OPA

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16—(AP) Owners of apartments in Los Angeles, where the housing situation long has been critical, today opened a fight against Office of Price Administration rent control by filing 95 eviction petitions.

OPA officials also met today with a citizens committee to discuss accusations of maladministration and inefficiency in setting and enforcing rent ceilings.

The petitions were filed with OPA by Fred R. Richman, an attorney, and one of them called for the eviction of Ben C. Koepke, Los Angeles area rent control executive who resides in one of Richman's apartments. The Apartment Owners association indicated that 21,000 families might be evicted by landlords withdrawing their properties from the rental market.

The petitioning was the result of a meeting of 1,500 landlords Thursday who were told that owners of 21,474 units had voted to withdraw their rentals. Eighty-five per cent, however, said they'd rent to veterans.

Richman said when the evictions are processed he will do one of three things: offer the vacant homes to returning servicemen at usual rentals, allow returnees to occupy the homes rent free, or keep such places unoccupied indefinitely.

The Citizens' committee, appointed by the county board of supervisors, brought to the attention of OPA officials the complaints which landlords made at the committee's meeting last week.

Members of the committee told Koepke and Paul Barksdale D'Orr, OPA district director, that the landlords objected principally to the administration and enforcement of rent ceilings, and the lack of decision by local rent officials.

SOLDIER CHECKED AS ENEMY AGENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP) The War department said today that Staff Sgt. Frederick Bauer, held at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, "has been under investigation for several months upon suspicion of being an enemy agent."

The Army made the announcement in a formal statement concerning published reports that Bauer had been held incommunicado for several weeks.

Bauer's wife, Mrs. Wilma Bauer, said yesterday at Indianapolis that she had appealed to President Truman on behalf of her husband. She said she believed that Bauer, a native of Germany who became a naturalized citizen in 1935, was being held because of nude photographs he made at a stag party given for some visiting South Americans at Fort Harrison last summer.

She said he made the photographs under orders, explaining that he was a Signal corps photographer.

A War department officer, in a verbal addition to the formal statement, said tonight that "photographs had nothing to do with the case."

The Army announcement said:

"As a result of information received from overseas sources, Sgt. Bauer has been under investigation for several months upon suspicion of being an enemy agent. The investigation will be completed in the very near future when appropriate action will be taken. During this investigation, Sgt. Bauer has been represented by qualified military counsel."

Zionist Fears World War III In Middle East

Dr. Felix Levy Tells 1,000 Atlantic City Delegates Allies Betray War Aims

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 16 (AP).—The situation in the Middle East is "an ominous shadow of a third world war," Dr. Felix Levy, of Chicago, said today. Addressing 1,000 delegates at the opening of the forty-eighth annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America, Dr. Levy, who is chairman of the Committee on Unity for Palestine, declared:

"The spectacle of double-talk and double-dealing we are now witnessing in the Middle East is a complete betrayal of the purposes for which the United Nations avowedly fought this war. And make no mistake about it—it is an ominous shadow of a third world war."

Rabbi Arthur Lelyveld, of New York, executive director of the Unity Committee, said that a "small and unrepresentative clique of anti-Zionist Jews" are "spreading the falsehood that Jews are divided on the question of Palestine."

Only 5 per cent of American Jews oppose the Zionist demand for a Jewish homeland, Lelyveld said.

Attlee Leaves for Ottawa With Mackenzie King

Truman Later Discusses Atomic Problem With Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP).—Prime Ministers Attlee and Mackenzie King left aboard a train for Ottawa at 4:16 p. m. today, ending a historic seven-day stay in the capital during which the two and President Truman shaped the American-British-Canadian policy on atomic energy.

Mr. Attlee called at the White House earlier in the afternoon to say good by to President Truman. Shaking hands with White House reporters, the Prime Minister said of his call: "I'm just saying good by. Every one has been extremely kind, and I've enjoyed my visit to Washington."

Mr. Attlee is scheduled to spend a quiet week end at Government House, Ottawa, preparing the address he will deliver Monday before a joint session of the Canadian Parliament. Tentative arrangements call for him to leave for London either that night or Tuesday morning.

The two four-motored American-made C-54 transport planes that brought him and his aids to the United States will be used for the return trip, British officials said.

After saying good by to Mr. Attlee, President Truman discussed the atomic problem with his Cabinet.

Members would not go into details with reporters as they left the White House. But Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson commented he thought yesterday's three-power statement "was a good one."

WILL PLEAD DAILY TO GET G. I.'S HOME

Washington, Nov. 16 (A. P.).—If one man filibusters were possible in the House—where they are not—Representative Kunkel (R.-Pa.) says he would be right in the midst of one today. He wants the return of service men from overseas hastened.

He told a reporter that since he can't filibuster, he will continue making speeches on the issue every day the House is in session and he can be present.

Kunkel started his daily campaign Wednesday with a speech protesting that American ships are available to carry French colonial troops to Indo-China and Japanese war prisoners back to Japan.

"Yet thousands and thousands of service men, already eligible for discharge, as well as men with long periods of overseas service, are stranded in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters," he said.

England-Bound Plane Forced Back To U.S.

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—Motor trouble forced a Pan American plane to return to LaGuardia Field today shortly after it took off for Hurn, England.

Eleven minutes after his takeoff Capt. Daniel W. Pippinger notified the field that he was returning. As a safety measure, gasoline was dumped from the plane before it landed.

The 21 passengers aboard the four-motored ship included a Chicago delegation bound for London to offer Chicago's bid as capital of a United Nations Organization; a committee of the American League for Free Palestine headed by former United States Senator Guy M. Gillette, of Iowa, and Michael Quill, president of the CIO-Transport Workers Union.

Marine Corps League Opposed To Merger

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 16 (AP)—The Marine Corps League annual national convention today expressed opposition to the proposed merger of the armed forces into a single administrative department.

Delegates adopted a resolution contending unification would impair United States military efficiency, and might result in discontinuance of the Marine Corps as a separate institution. Another approved resolution recommended peacetime military training.

Lieut. Col. James P. Devereux, former commander of the garrison at Wake Island, said he considered unification of the armed services "a very foolish thing."

GEN. ARNOLD IS HONORED

Receives Hubbard Geographic Medal From Truman

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Hubbard Medal, bestowed by for outstanding accomplishments in the field of geography and allied sciences, was presented by President Truman at the White House today to Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Air Force.

Representing the society at the ceremony were Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, its president, and other officers.

Marines Retain Bar on Nisei

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP)—Enlistment of Japanese-Americans in the Marines is still prohibited despite removal of the Navy's ban against accepting them. "The Navy's removal of the ban does not apply to the Marine Corps," a Marine Corps spokesman said today. In barring the Japanese-Americans early in the war, the Navy said that it was a matter of "general expediency" and security, and was not to be construed as reflecting on the loyalty of any applicant.

French General Brings Salute To The Legion

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Gen. Pierre Joseph Koenig, commander in chief of the French forces in Germany, arrived by air tonight from Paris to keep a date with the American Legion in Chicago.

Asked for a statement, Koenig said:

"I have come to bring the salute of the French Army to the American Legion."

He will be guest of honor at a Legion dinner in Chicago Tuesday night at which General of the Army Eisenhower will speak. Tomorrow he will go sight-seeing in New York.

White House Gets Bill To Aid Veterans' Sons

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—The House approved minor Senate amendments and sent to the White House today legislation making sons of service men who died in action or who were awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor eligible for entrance to service academies.

The eligibility is subject to the applicant's ability to meet West Point or Annapolis entrance requirements.

Youths entering the academies under provisions of the legislation would not be charged against the existing quotas of the various states. These are based on congressional representation.

Kelly Plans London Flight To Invite UNO

Chicago, Nov. 16 (AP)—Mayor Edward J. Kelly announced today he would fly to London Monday on the first Chicago-London airline flight and remain there to urge selection of Chicago as capital of the United Nations.

A committee of civic leaders representing industry, labor and culture already has departed for England. The Mayor said he would assist this group in demonstrating the city's facilities for establishment of permanent headquarters of the United Nations Organization.

Kelly said he planned to attend a luncheon with the Mayor of Westminster.

88 A-BOMB EXPERTS ARRIVE FROM GERMANY

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP) Eighty-eight German civilian scientists, who Army officers said were atom bomb experts, arrived today from Europe aboard the troopship Argentina.

The War department surrounded the German scientists with the greatest secrecy. Newsmen and photographers were not allowed to approach them.

Also aboard the Argentina were 4,342 soldiers, Army nurses and WACS, mostly high point veterans returning home for discharge.

CLOTHES SHORTAGE CALLED SCANDAL

Washington, Nov. 16 (A. P.).—The shortage of men's clothing is a "national scandal," Morris R. Myers, president of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers, declared today. He said returning service men are finding it almost impossible to buy civilian clothing, and suggested that the Government call a national conference to study the situation.

The suggestion was made in a telegram to reconversion boss, John W. Snyder. Myers said the Government's low cost clothing program has been a dismal failure. Unless something is done at once, he added, millions of returning service men must remain in khaki and navy blue for months."

The OPA and the civilian production administration have acknowledged a shortage of men's clothing but have predicted that it would be relieved next year. They have said that even though military requirements have been cut drastically, it will take some time to build up retailers' inventories of civilian clothing.

The shortage has been aggravated, according to the agencies, because many returning veterans need completely new wardrobes. The OPA has asked retailers to give veterans preference in sales of clothes.

FIRST LEAD COMMONS (WITH JERUSALEM)

LONDON, NOV 16-(AP)-COLONIAL UNDERSECRETARY ARTHUR CREECH JONES TOLD THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TODAY THAT "THOSE WHO HAVE THE JOB OF ENFORCING LAW AND ORDER IN PALESTINE CAN BE ASSURED THEY HAVE THE FULL SUPPORT OF THE GOVERNMENT IN CARRYING OUT THEIR HEAVY RESPONSIBILITY."

"THE FOREIGN SECRETARY MADE IT CLEAR LAST TUESDAY THAT THERE COULD BE NO QUESTION OF ALLOWING THE ISSUE TO BE FORCED BY VIOLENT CONFLICT," DECLARED JONES IN A REPORT ON THE RIOTING WHICH HAS SURGED THROUGH TEL AVIV FOR THE PAST TWO DAYS.

JONES SAID THAT BRITISH TROOPS WERE COMPELLED TO FIRE ON THE RIOTERS WHEN THE LATTER FAILED TO DISPERSE. FIVE JEWS WERE KILLED AND 56 INJURED DURING THE RIOTING, HE REPORTED.

IN ADDITION, 13 MEMBERS OF THE PALESTINE POLICE AND 10 SOLDIERS WERE INJURED, JONES DECLARED. HE ADDED THAT HOMEMADE GRENADES HAD BEEN USED AGAINST BRITISH TROOPS.

THE UNDERSECRETARY DECLARED THE SITUATION IN TEL AVIV WAS "IN HAND", BUT SAID THE RIOTING HAD CAUSED CONSIDERABLE PROPERTY DAMAGE.

FRANKFURT, GERMANY, NOV 16 --(AP) MILITARY GOVERNMENT PUBLIC HEALTH OFFICERS SAID TODAY THAT DISEASE [redacted] MAY [redacted] COST MORE LIVES THIS WINTER THAN WERE CAUSED BY THE ENTIRE WAR.

NOV 17 1945

THE STATEMENT WAS ISSUED FOLLOWING A CONFERENCE [redacted] HERE WITH HEALTH OFFICERS FROM THE BRITISH ZONE OF OCCUPATION AND THE AMERICAN [redacted] AUSTRIA. THEY DECLARED THAT THE SERIOUS OVERCROWDING IN BADLY BOMBED GERMAN CITIES IS CAUSING GRAVE CONCERN OVER THE DANGER OF EPIDEMICS OF RESPIRATORY DISEASES NOTABLY INFLUENZA, DIPTHERIA, SCARLET FEVER, PNEUMONIA AND TUBERCULOSIS.

"ALTHOUGH [redacted] INFLUENZA HAS NOT INCREASED MARKEDLY ITS OCCURRENCE PRESENTS A CONSTANT THREAT OF OUTBREAK WHICH WOULD OVERSHADOW ALL OTHER MATTERS OF CONCERN," THE REPORT SAID.

AMERICAN TROOPS ARE BEING IMMUNIZED AGAINST INFLUENZA BUT THE SHORTAGE OF VACCINE PREVENTS EXTENDING THE PROGRAM TO GERMAN CIVILIANS.

OFFICERS ATTENDING THE SESSIONS SAID THAT DENAZIFICATION HAS ALREADY REMOVED 95 PERCENT OF THE EXPERIENCED GERMAN PUBLIC HEALTH OFFICERS, [redacted] AND NEARLY 85 PERCENT OF THE DOCTORS FROM PRIVATE PRACTICE.

A SENIOR OFFICER OF THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT SAID THE FIRM OF FRIEDRICH KRUPP WAS RECONSTITUTED AS A FAMILY UNDERTAKING AFTER 40 YEARS AS A LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY BY AN ORDER OF HITLER IN 1943.

THE OFFICIAL, TELLING OF THE HISTORY OF KRUPP, SAID:

"FRIEDRICH ALFRED KRUPP WAS A BUSINESS MAN FIRST, AND A GERMAN NEXT, AND HE SOLD GUNS TO ANYONE WHO WOULD BUY THEM. WHEN KAISER WILHELM II REFUSED OFFERS OF MEDIATION WHICH MIGHT HAVE PREVENTED WAR IN 1914 AND WHEN HITLER RUSHED TO WAR IN 1939, EACH KNEW HE COULD RELY NOT ONLY ON THE PRODUCTS OF THE MIGHTY ESSEN PLANT, BUT ALSO ON THE EFFECTS ON THE MINDS OF THE GERMAN PEOPLE OF THE TRADITION WHICH THE KRUPPS HAD DONE SO MUCH TO FOSTER. IT IS ONE OF THE TASKS OF THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT TO ELIMINATE THAT TRADITION."

HE ADDED: "THE CONCERN OF FRIEDRICH KRUPP WILL CEASE TO EXIST. THERE WILL BE AN END FOR ALL TIME TO THE TRADITIONS AND INFLUENCES SO LONG ASSOCIATED WITH IT."

FRANKFURT, NOV. 16-(AP)-THE BAN ON AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN VISITING GERMANY HAS BEEN RELAXED TO PERMIT APPROXIMATELY 100 MONTHLY TO COME HERE, IT WAS LEARNED TODAY FROM AN OFFICIAL SOURCE.

THIS MOVE IMMEDIATELY TOUCHED OFF SPECULATION AS TO JUST WHAT IMMEDIATE PROSPECTS THIS DEVASTATED COUNTRY HAS FOR FOREIGN INVESTORS.

UNDER THE POTSDAM DECLARATION IT WOULD APPEAR TO HAVE NONE, FINANCIAL EXPERTS POINTED OUT.

GERMANY TODAY FOR A FOREIGN-CONTROLLED CORPORATION IS MORE OF A GAMBLE THAN A ROULETTE WHEEL.

ALL FUNDS AND FIRMS OF ABSENTEE OWNERS ARE FROZEN--AND THIS INCLUDES AMERICAN FIRMS IN THE U.S. ZONE. NO MONEY CAN BE BROUGHT OR SENT INTO GERMANY.

REICHSMARKS--THE ONLY MOMENTARY TRADING MEDIUM--HOLDS NO MORE VALUE IN THE INTERNATIONAL MARKET THAN THE PAPER IT'S PRINTED ON. FOR CONVENIENCE ONLY, THE ARMY PLACED A VALUE OF APPROXIMATELY 10 TO A DOLLAR ON THE REICHSMARK BUT NO INTERNATIONAL RATE OF EXCHANGE HAS BEEN SET UP. EXPORTS ALSO ARE BANNED.

ALTHOUGH THE AVERAGE GERMAN SEEMS TO HAVE PLENTY OF REICHMARKS AND IN THE AMERICAN ZONE BANKS EVEN OPERATE WITH THE COUNTRY FINANCIALLY BANKRUPT, IT'S EASIER TO GET A GERMAN TO WASH A COUPLE OF SHIRTS OR DO OTHER CHORES FOR A CHOCOLATE BAR OR A COUPLE OF CIGARETTES THAN BY OFFERING AS MANY AS 50 REICHSMARKS.

AMERICAN ARMY MESS HALLS AND BILLETS FIND IT DIFFICULT TO KEEP GERMAN HELP--REGARDLESS OF SALARY--UNLESS AT LEAST ONE MEAL OR SOME OTHER RATION GOES WITH THE JOB.

AMERICANS OR ANY OTHER FOREIGNERS WHO OWN PROPERTY IN GERMANY WOULD FIND IT OF LITTLE VALUE TODAY UNLESS THEY CHOSE TO LIVE IN THE COUNTRY.

KEY MEN OF SOME GIANT AMERICAN CORPORATIONS NEVERTHELESS HAVE BEEN MAKING VISITS HERE AND MORE WANT TO COME. ALL HAVE BEEN GITH-LIPPED ON THEIR PLANS. SPACIOUS BUILDINGS OF MANY OF THESE CORPORATIONS ARE STILL STANDING--VIRTUALLY THEIR ONLY ASSETS UNDER PRESENT CONDITION OUTSIDE OF REICHSMARKS.

THE AMERICAN PROPERTY CONTROL COUNCIL HAS TAKEN OVER ALL THESE PROPERTIES NOW ALONG WITH THOSE OTHER COUNTRIES IN THE UNITED NATIONS AND IN NEUTRALS.

FREEZING OF THEIR FUNDS, AN AMERICAN OFFICIAL EXPLAINED, WAS DESIGNED PRIMARILY TO PROTECT THEM AGAINST AN UNSCRUPULOUS GERMAN MANAGER WHO COULD IMPERIAL THE ASSETS.

IT'S POSSIBLE FOR AN AMERICAN-OWNED CONCERN TO OPERATE--THE SAME AS SOME GERMAN INDUSTRIES ARE GOING--AS LONG AS THEY COMPLY WITH MILITARY GOVERNMENT REGULATIONS. THESE FIRMS, HOWEVER, CAN'T TAKE ANY PROFITS OUT OF THE COUNTRY. IN ADDITION PROFITS CAN BE ONLY IN REICHSMARKS.

AS ONE RANKING AMERICAN FINANCIAL EXPERT EXPLAINED: "YOU COULD OWN I.G.FARBEN BUT IT IS NOT WORTH A DAMN UNLESS YOU WANT TO LIVE HERE."

THE OFFICIAL OF ONE AMERICAN CABLE COMPANY CITED THE EXAMPLE OF HOW HIS FIRM HAD PILED UP THOUSANDS AND THOUSANDS OF ALLIED OCCPATION REICHSMARKS FOR TRANSATLANTIC CABLES SENT BY G I'S. THE SOLDIERS THEMSELVES ARE LIMITED FROM SENDING HOME MORE THAN 10 PER CENT ABOVE THEIR CASH DRAWING.

UNDER PRESENT REGULATIONS, ONE AMERICAN FINANCE OFFICER SAID THE CABLE COMPANY WOULD NOT BE ABLE TO TRANSFER THE MARKS INTO DOLLARS FOR SHIPMENT OUT OF GERMANY.

COMPLETELY GROUNDLESS." A.P. Bern (Stucki) xxx groundless

HE REMARKED THAT HIS GOVERNMENT DID NOT HAVE A COMPLETE ACCOUNT OF THE EVIDENCE REFERRED TO BE KILGORE, WHO SAID IT CONSISTED OF LETTERS WRITTEN EARLY THIS YEAR FROM SWITZERLAND BY EMIL PUHL, THEN GERMAN REICHSBANK VICE PRESIDENT, TO DR.WALTER FUNK, THEN REICHS-BANK PRESIDENT.

BUT MUCH OF THE CORRESPONDENCE, STUCKI SAID, WAS DEVOTED TO PUHL'S EFFORTS TO OFFSET THE RESULTS OF AN AMERICAN, BRITISH AND FRENCH MISSION, HEADED BY LAUGHLIN CURRIE, WHICH GOT AN ASSURANCE FROM SWITZERLAND EARLY IN 1945 THAT THE SWISS GOVERNMENT WOULD UNCOVER AND IMMOBILIZE GERMAN ASSETS IN SWITZERLAND.

"ONE COULD HAVE AT LEAST EXPECTED," STUCKI CONTINUED, "THAT THE LETTERS WOULD BE BROUGHT TO THE ATTENTION OF THE SWISS GOVERNMENT AND THAT THE GOVERNMENT WOULD BE GIVEN AN OPPORTUNITY TO EXPRESS ITSELF. THIS SEEMS TO BE SO MUCH MORE THE RIGHT THING TO DO INASMUCH AS THE ACCUSATIONS ARE BASED ON A SOURCE WHICH OTHERWISE IS NOT GIVEN MUCH CREDENCE IN AMERICA."

HE SAID THE FREEZING OF GERMAN FUNDS IN SWITZERLAND FEB. 16, 1945, WAS DONE TO ASSURE THE SATISFACTION OF SWISS CLAIMS AGAINST GERMANY, AND SECOND, TO GIVE THE ALLIES ASSURANCE THAT GERMAN FUNDS IN SWITZERLAND WOULD NOT BE USED TO FINANCE ANOTHER WAR.

MOSCOW, NOV. 16-(AP)-THE CURRENT PROMINENCE OF FOREIGN COMMISSAR VYACHESLAV M. MOLOTOV IN THE SOVIET STATE INDICATES A POSSIBLE RETURN TO THE GOVERNMENT SETUP BEFORE THE WAR.

FROM DECEMBER, 1939 TO MAY 6, 1941, MOLOTOV WAS PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL OF PEOPLES' COMMISSARS, WHICH IS THE SAME THING AS PREMIER OF THE SOVIET UNION. THEN, AS NOW, HE WAS THE PEOPLES' COMMISSAR FOR FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

GENERALISSIMO STALIN, WHO HAS BEEN OUT OF THE LIMELIGHT SINCE HE WENT ON VACATION FIVE WEEKS AGO, WAS VOTED INTO THE PREMIERSHIP TO SUCCEED MOLOTOV IN 1941 WHEN THE GERMAN INVASION APPEARED IMMINENT. MOLOTOV BECAME FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL OF PEOPLES' COMMISSARS.

MOLOTOV'S POSITION TODAY MAY BE SAID TO APPROXIMATE CLOSELY THAT OF THE PRE-WAR PERIOD.

IT IS UNCERTAIN YET WHETHER HE IS MERELY ACTING AS PREMIER DURING THE VACATION OF GENERALISSIMO STALIN, MANY PERSONS IN INFORMED QUARTERS, HOWEVER, EXPRESS BELIEF THAT, WITH THE HOSTILITIES OVER, THE MOST NATURAL THING WOULD BE A REVERSION TO THE PRE-WAR SETUP.

STALIN AT THAT TIME WAS SECRETARY-GENERAL OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY AND A MEMBER OF THE PARTY'S POLITICAL BUREAU. HIS HIGHEST GOVERNMENT JOB WAS DEPUTY TO THE SUPREME SOVIET FROM THE STALIN DISTRICT OF MOSCOW.

DURING THE WAR STALIN WAS ELECTED BY THE PRESIDIUM OF THE SUPREME SOVIET TO THE POST OF MARSHAL OF THE SOVIET UNION AND LATER TO GENERALISSIMO OF THE SOVIET UNION.

THERE STILL IS NOTHING DEFINITE ON WHETHER STALIN WILL CHOOSE AGAIN TO ACCEPT NOMINATION AS A DEPUTY TO THE SUPREME SOVIET, THOUGH MANY DISTRICTS HAVE SOUGHT PERMISSION TO ENTER HIS NAME FOR THE ELECTIONS NEXT FEB. 10.

ROME, NOV. 16-(AP)-THE FATE OF THE SIX-PARTY COALITION CABINET OF PREMIER FERRUCCIO PARRI HINGED TONIGHT ON A DECISION BY RIGHTWING LIBERALS AS TO WHETHER THEY WILL RESIGN FROM THE GOVERNMENT.

IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF MOUNTING POLITICAL TENSION, LIBERAL PARTY SECRETARY LEONE CATTANI PROMISED A DECISION "WITHIN 48 HOURS" BY THE LIBERALS' EXECUTIVE COUNCIL. OTHER PARTIES WENT INTO EXECUTIVE SESSION TO PONDER THEIR OWN COURSE SHOULD THE LIBERALS WITHDRAW.

THESE THREE FACTORS APPARENTLY WERE BACK OF THE NEAR-CRISIS:

A STRUGGLE FOR POWER IN CONTROLLING GENERAL ELECTION MACHINERY; DISSENSION OVER A NEW FASCIST PURGE DECREE, WHICH THE LIBERALS FEAR WILL STRIKE AT INDUSTRIALISTS AND LAND OWNERS, AND DEMANDS BY MIDDLE CLASS REPRESENTATIVES FOR A GOVERNMENT WHICH WOULD GAIN CONFIDENCE--AND INCREASED ECONOMIC AID--FROM THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN.

PLEASE FOR UNITY IN THE GOVERNMENT WERE MADE BY THE COMMUNISTS, SOCIALISTS AND ACTIONISTS, WHO HOLD KEY POSTS IN THE CABINET.

FRANCESCO SAVERIO NITTI, 77-YEAR-OLD FORMER Ppremier AND BITTER FOE OF FASCISM THROUGHOUT BENITO MUSSOLINI'S REGIME, WAS WIDELY MENTIONED AS HEAD OF A NEW "MODERATE" GOVERNMENT IN EVENT THE PARRI CABINET COLLAPSES. NITTI RECENTLY RETURNED FROM A LONG EXILE. HE WAS RECEIVED YESTERDAY BY REAR ADMIRAL ELLERY STONE, CHIEF OF THE ALLIED CONTROL COMMISSION IN ROME, BUT THE NATURE OF THE CONFERENCE WAS NOT DISCLOSED.

MEANWHILE, THE ROME PRESS QUOTED AMERICAN BANKER A.P.GIANNINI AS TELLING A PRESS CONFERENCE IN NAPLES YESTERDAY THAT: "ITALY NEEDS A STRONG GOVERNMENT MADE UP OF MEN OF LONG EXPERIENCE. ITALY CANNOT EXPECT ANYTHING FROM PRIVATE AMERICAN FINANCE UNTIL SHE PUTS HER HOUSE IN ORDER AND GIVES A CLEAR IMPRESSION OF SAFETY AND DISCIPLINE.

A SPOKESMAN AT CHIANG'S FIELD HEADQUARTERS IN PEIPING SAID MEAN-WHILE THAT NATIONALIST TROOPS "QUITE SOON" WOULD BEGIN A MASS MOVEMENT INTO MANCHURIA ABOARD PLANES OBTAINED FROM THE AMERICANS.

PRINCIPAL DESTINATION OF THESE FORCES WILL BE CHANGCHUN, MANCHURIAN CAPITAL, WHICH IS SAID IN UNCONFIRMED REPORTS TO HAVE FALLEN INTO COMMUNIST HANDS AFTER WITHDRAWAL OF THE RUSSIANS WHO TOOK IT FROM THE JAPANESE.

THE COMMUNISTS THEMSELVES ANNOUNCED WITHOUT CONFIRMATION THAT THEY HAD "LIBERATED" ALL OF THE BIG NORTHERN PROVINCES OF JEHOL AND CHAHAR EXCEPT FOR ONE TOWN WHICH THEY WERE ATTACKING.

COUPLED WITH THE ACKNOWLEDGEMENT BY A GOVERNMENT SOURCE THAT THE COMMUNISTS HELD 80 PER CENT OF SUIYUAN PROVINCE, THIS WOULD MEAN THAT VIRTUALLY ALL OF INNER MONGOLIA WAS IN COMMUNIST HANDS AND WOULD IMPLY THAT IF NATIONALIST ARMIES WANTED TO GET TO MANCHURIA BY LAND THEY WOULD HAVE TO FIGHT THEIR WAY.

A159KX

THE NATIONALIST SPOKESMAN AT PEIPING ADMITTED THE NORTH CHINA CONFLICT WAS BECOMING "MORE AND MORE SERIOUS" AND SAID MORE NATIONALIST TROOPS WERE NEEDED THERE.

THE ONLY ACTUAL NEW OUTBREAK OF VIOLENCE, HOWEVER, WAS REPORTED FROM TIENTSIN, WHERE A FORCE WHICH THE NATIONALISTS DESCRIBED AS "BANDITS" ATTACKED NATIONALIST OUTPOSTS IN THE SUBURBS THURSDAY NIGHT. THE ATTACK WAS BEATEN OFF AFTER AT LEAST ONE NATIONALIST SOLDIER WAS KILLED AND ONE WOUNDED.

PEIPING, NOV.16-(AP)-CONCILIATION RATHER THAN CONCENTRATION AND CONTROL APPEARS TO BE THE PREVAILING POLICY TOWARD JAPANESE TROOPS AND CIVILIANS IN THIS SECTION OF TROUBLED NORTH CHINA.

NO JAPANESE SOLDIERS HAVE BEEN DISARMED IN THE PEIPING AREA, BUT A CHINESE NATIONALIST FIELD HEADQUARTERS' SPOKESMAN SAID TODAY THEIR WEAPONS WOULD BE COLLECTED "IN THE NEAR FUTURE."

THE SPOKESMAN ESTIMATED THE JAPANESE STRENGTH IN AND NEAR THE CITY AT TWO DIVISIONS AND THREE BRIGADES--APPROXIMATELY 60,000 MEN.

UNITED STATES MARINES, GIVEN THE RESPONSIBILITY OF DISARMING JAPANESE AT TIENTSIN, TANGSHAN AND CHINWANGTAO IN NORTH PROVINCE AND AT TSINGTAO IN SHANTUNG PROVINCE WERE NOT REQUESTED TO ASSIST IN THE DISARMING OF JAPANESE IN THE PEIPING AREA.

ONE EXPLANATION FOR THE LONG DELAY HERE IS LACK OF A SUFFICIENT NUMBER OF GENERALISSIMO CHAING KAI SHEK'S NATIONALIST TROOPS. THIS IN TURN IS ATTRIBUTED TO THE DISRUPTION OF RAILROAD COMMUNICATION BY CHINESE COMMUNIST FIGHTERS.

DEPLOYMENT OF NATIONALIST TROOPS HAS BEEN GREATLY IMPEDED BY THE DEMOLITION OF RAILROAD LINKS FROM CENTRAL TO NORTH CHINA, AND BY THE GREAT DEMANDS FOR THE SERVICES OF NATIONALIST UNITS IN THE TROUBLE SOMESOVER CHINA.

UNTIL THE NATIONALIST TROOPS WERE FULLY DEPLOYED THE OFFICIALS WERE PREPARED TO RELY ON THE JAPANESE TO HOLD STRATEGIC POINTS.

GREAT DEMANDS FOR THE SERVICES OF NATIONALIST UNIONS IN THE TROUBLE ZONES THROUGH NORTH CHINA.

UNTIL THE NATIONALIST TROOPS WERE FULLY DEPLOYED THE OFFICIALS WERE PREPARED TO RELY ON THE JAPANESE TO HOLD STRATEGIC POINTS.

IN MID-OCTOBER I VISITED THE JAPANESE CONCENTRATION CAMP AT NEW PEIPING WHERE AN ESTIMATED 50,000 JAPANESE CARPETBAGGERS WHO HAD FOLLOWED THEIR VICTORIOUS ARMIES TO PEIPING, WERE TO BE HELD PENDING REPATRIATION.

AT THAT TIME, HOWEVER, THE TOTAL POPULATION OF NEW PEIPING WAS 12,000 MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN. I RETURNED TO THAT CAMP TODAY AND FOUND THAT IN THREE AND A HALF WEEKS THE POPULATION HAD INCREASED BY ONLY 1,600.

NEW PEIPING, INCIDENTALLY IS MARKLY WHAT THE WORLD HAS LEARNED TO REGARD AS A CONCENTRATION CAMP. THERE ARE NO BARBED WIRE FENCES; THERE IS FREEDOM OF MOVEMENT AND A SUFFICIENCY OF FOOD, WARMTH AND CLOTHING.

THE JAPANESE LAID OUT NEW PEIPING FIVE MILES OUTSIDE OLD PEIPING, EXCLUSIVELY FOR THE JAPANESE. IT REPRESENTED THE MOST EXTENSIVE CIVILIAN BUILDING PROGRAM IN CHINA.

MODEL BRICK DUPLEX HOMES WERE ERECTED IN NEAT ROWS IN NEW PEIPING. SCHOOLS, BARRACKS, POSTOFFICES, A RAILWAY STATION AND MARKETS WERE CONSTRUCTED.

IT IS NO WONDER THAT SOME JAPANESE IN THIS "CONCENTRATION CAMP" ARE LOATH TO RETURN TO THEIR BOMBED-OUT HOMELAND.

MANILA, NOV. 11-(AP)-A BLUNT ORDER TO "KILL ALL PRISONERS OF WAR IN THE PHILIPPINES" WAS ATTRIBUTED TO LT. GEN. TOMOYUKI YAMASHITA TODAY AT HIS WAR CRIMES TRIAL BY A FILIPINO WITNESS.

THE WITNESS SAID HE WAS TOLD BY A JAPANESE CAPTAIN THAT SUCH AN ORDER FROM YAMASHITA TO GENERAL TAJIMA, COMMANDING THE JAPANESE GARRISON ON BATAN ISLAND, FIGURED IN THE EXECUTION OF THREE AMERICAN AIRMEN.

IN CROSS-EXAMINATION, THE WITNESS REPEATED THE ALLEGED ORDER IN JAPANESE AND THE INTERPRETER SAID THE WORDING INCLUDED "AMERICAN SOLDIERS."

A MEDICAL OFFICER'S REPORT SAID THE BODY BORE BAYONET WOUNDS, A LEFT-HAND FINGERNAIL HAD BEEN REMOVED AND THE FEET SHOWED EVIDENCE THEY HAD BEEN BURNED. THE OFFICER BELIEVED GENSEMER DIED OF TORTURE.

RAFAEL PUNO, A FILIPINO, SAID HE SAW A DOWNED AMERICAN AIRMAN, CAPT. WILLIAM BURGH, BLINDFOLDED, TIED TO A TREE AND BAYONETED TO DEATH AFTER HE WAS CAPTURED ABOUT NOV. 20, 1944, ON BATAN ISLAND, NORTHERNMOST ISLAND OF THE PHILIPPINES.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN AND PRIME MINISTERS ATTLEE AND KING DECLARED YESTERDAY THAT THE KNOWLEDGE OF HOW TO MAKE THE WEAPON WOULD BE KEPT SECRET FROM ALL OTHER NATIONS--INCLUDING THE SOVIET UNION--UNTIL "EFFECTIVE, RECIPROCAL AND ENFORCEABLE SAFEGUARDS ACCEPTABLE TO ALL NATIONS" WERE DEVISED.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, AFTER DECLARING THE STATEMENT "PRESENTS NO FINAL SOLUTION OF THE AWESOME PROBLEM THRUST UPON THE WORLD BY THE DISCOVERY" OF THE ATOM BOMB, SAID:

"BUT THE AGREEMENT GOES AS FAR AS IS POSSIBLE IN THE PRESENT STATE OF THE WORLD TO AVERT THE FURTHER USE OF ATOMIC BOMBS AND SIMILAR WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION, AND TO RELEASE ATOMIC ENERGY FOR PEACEFUL AND HUMANITARIAN PURPOSES.

"FOR THAT REASON IT MERITS THE SUPPORT OF ALL HUMANITARIAN AS WELL AS PATRIOTIC CITIZENS."

THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE, TERMING THE AGREEMENT "ESSENTIALLY TEMPERATE, REASONABLE AND CONSTRUCTIFE WITHIN PRESENTLY PRACTICABLE LIMITS," EDITORIALIZED THAT THE STATEMENT "WOULD HAVE BEEN OF ADMIRABLE EFFECT IF IT HAD BEEN ISSUED TWO OR THREE MONTHS AGO."

"BUT INSTEAD THE WEEKS WERE FRITTERED AWAY WITH MR.TRUMAN'S ILL-CONSIDERED PRONOUNCEMENTS, WITH THE GROTESQUE MAY-JOHNSON BILL, WITH THE IGNORANT OUTGIVINGS OF LOCAL CHAUVINISTS, WITH THE INABILITY TO GRASP THE FACT THAT THE BOMB WAS POISONING OUR RELATIONS WITH THE RUSSIANS AS WELL AS THE REST OF THE INTERNATIONAL ATMOSPHERE X X X."

MEMPHIS, TENN., COMMERCIAL APPEAL: "BY THAT HISTORIC DECISION THE ANGLO-AMERICAN CMBINE PROVIDES IMPETUS AND COMPULSION FOR THE IDEA OF PERMANENT PEACE. IF IT IS ACCEPTED, MANKIND'S MOST FERVENT WISH FOR FREEDOM FROM WAR CAN COME TRUE. IF IT IS REJECTED, THE WORLD AS WE KNOW IT, IS DOOMED."

REDS ASKED KEY POST IN CABINET, DEGAULLE CLAIMS

Refused Demands, President Says, to Hold Equilibrium Between Big Powers.

DECISION TOMORROW

Assembly Will Decide Course with DeGaulle Favored to Regain Presidency.

By ROBERT C. WILSON

PARIS, Nov. 17.—(AP) Gen. DeGaulle tonight declared he resigned as interim president of France because the Communists had demanded one of three key cabinet p[illegible] he had refused the demand because of France's interest in maintaining an "equilibrium" between the world's "two very great political powers."

Taking the dispute directly to the people in a radio broadcast, DeGaulle did not mention the two powers by name, but a spokesman in his office said he meant the United States and Russia.

DeGaulle said one of France's major parties—the Communists—had demanded "as a categorical condition" either the ministry of foreign affairs, war, or interior in the cabinet he tried to form.

"I have not been able to accept this condition," he declared, calling these ministries "the diplomacy that expresses" France's foreign policy, "the army that supports it, and the police which enforces it."

Equilibrium Endangered

To accede, he said would be to endanger "the French policy of equilibrium between the two very great political powers, a policy which I believe absolutely necessary for the interest of the country and even for that of peace."

DeGaulle said in his letter of resignation, made public earlier, that the demands of one party for specific posts were "incompatible with the conditions of independence, cohesion and authority" essential for the government. He referred to the Communists, but did not name them in the letter.

In his broadcast, he declared that he was leaving to the constituent assembly the decision whether he should keep trying to form a government, or turn the task over to someone else. He stated he would give up the presidency "without bitterness" if the assembly so decided.

All efforts during the day failed to solve the crisis.

The Communist party, largest of the three major parties in the assembly, refused earlier today to join the Socialists and the popular Republican movement (MRP) in an appeal to DeGaulle to reconsider his resignation, and was reported refusing to alter its position.

Deny Demands

Tonight the Communists issued a statement denying they had made any "imperative demands" for specific cabinet posts, and saying they desired "to arrive rapidly at the formation of a government conforming to the will of universal suffrage, and in which the Communist party will take all its responsibilities."

On Thursday, however, Communist Secretary General Maurice Thorez said that the general had refused a Communist demand for one of the three prime posts.

The executive committee of the Socialist party and its deputies to the assembly announced after a joint meeting tonight that they would support a Communist candidate "if an agreement was reached between the three parties for a constitution of a tripartite government."

"The Socialist party warns of the danger in going before the assembly without previous agreement (among the three parties) for a prolongation of the crisis would gravely menace national unity . . . ," the Socialists said in a communique.

However, MRP balked at the suggestion of a Communist-headed government, sticking to their position: de Gaulle or no one.

The assembly, which will meet Monday, must decide whether to renew De Gaulle's mandate to form a government, with or without Communist participation, or to choose a new interim president. He was elected by the assembly last Tuesday.

De Gaulle is expected to go personally before the assembly for a showdown. "One will see about that Monday," he told reporters when asked if he hoped for a quick solution of the deadlock.

De Gaulle has two important factors in his favor. One is his wide personal popularity among the people. The other is the fact that no other candidate has been put forward for the job. Efforts were expected to be continued over the week-end to find a solution before the assembly meets.

Communists Aroused

The Communists were reported aroused at what they claimed was De Gaulle's intention of giving seven cabinet posts to the Socialists, five to the MRP and four to the Communists. De Gaulle, it had been predicted, would give each of the three parties an equal number of portfolios, and it is known he offered the Communists all posts concerned with industrial and social matters.

In his radio address, De Gaulle said:

"I intended to distribute the ministerial departments x x x x on the one hand according to the aptitudes of each and, on the other, according to the policy that the men evidently represent within and outside of the party from which they come. If the chief of a government cannot proceed in that manner, what does his position signify?"

DE GAULLE BARS FOREIGN CONTROL POST TO ANY RED

Tells France He Must Keep Equilibrium Between Two Great Powers.

J. DYNAN

Paris, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—Gen. De Gaulle told the nation in a broadcast tonight that he could not grant the Communist party any ministerial posts controlling foreign affairs because of France's interest in maintaining an "equilibrium between the two great political Powers" of the world.

Going to the people to explain his resignation as interim President in the deadlock with the Communists over formation of a government, De Gaulle firmly stood his ground. The Communists, too, were standing firm in their demands and earlier today refused to join in a three-party appeal to De Gaulle to reconsider his resignation.

Powers Not Named.

De Gaulle did not mention the names of the "two great political Powers." The Communists, he said, had presented him the "categoric demand" for a portfolio of either the Foreign, War or Interior ministries. He said these three ministries directed the "diplomacy that expresses" France's foreign policy, "the army that sustains it, and the police that protect it."

He declared he was leaving the decision to the Constituent Assembly as to whether he should go on trying to form a new government or turn the task over to some one else, and that he would turn the government over to some one else "without bitterness" if the Assembly so decided.

The deadlock in formation of an Interim French Government continued today with the Communist party refusing to join in a three-party appeal to General de Gaulle to reconsider his resignation as President.

De Gaulle, whose ace card, according to his associates, is that he does not "especially want the job," prepared to state his case to the country in a radio address tonight at 8 P.M.

The crisis was precipitated by Communist demands for one of the three key posts in the government that will rule for the next seven months while the Constituent Assembly drafts a constitution for the Fourth Republic. As the largest single party in the newly elected Assembly, the Communists insisted they were entitled to the Foreign Affairs, War or Interior portfolio.

Demands "Incompatible"

De Gaulle, in his resignation, declared the demands were "incompatible with the conditions of independence, cohesion and the authority" essential for the Government.

The Assembly, which unanimously elected de Gaulle President only last Tuesday, will meet Monday to act.

No other candidates have come forward for the presidency and, unless week-end negotiations produce a compromise, the Assembly faced the possibility of being forced to accept de Gaulle's resignation and then reelect him, since he has no equal in French popularity.

Three-Party Conference

Such a compromise was attempted this morning at a meeting of 30 representatives of the three principal parties in the assembly—the Communists, Socialists and Popular Republican Movement.

But the Communists at this meeting refused to budge.

Delegates of the Christian Democratic Popular Republican Movement (M.R.P.) restated their party's determination to accept only de Gaulle as President.

Socialists were trying to mediate the dispute.

"Isn't Playing Politics"

"The General isn't bluffing—isn't playing politics," a long-time associate of de Gaulle reported. "He would just as soon retire to private life."

De Gaulle submitted his resignation in a letter to Assembly President Felix Gouin.

He said he found it impossible to form a government, adding, "I have the honor to return for a decision by the National Constituent Assembly the mandate that it confided to me."

The reply from Gouin said he would convoke the assembly without delay to inform it of de Gaulle's decision, adding that "it will learn, no doubt, wth extreme regret that no formaton of a government has followed the unanimous designation conferred on you."

Remarks On Communists

By all indications, if any concessions are made they will have to come from the Communists. De Gaulle is reported to have told Maurice Thorez, secretary general of the French Communist party, that he considers that the Communists' first loyalty is to Moscow and not Paris.

De Gaulle then offered the Communists an alternative — their choice of the Ministries of Industrial Production, National Economy, Finance, Food Supply and Transport. They refused.

Some observers believe the Communists anticipated De Gaulle's reaction and went ahead in order to assume the role of opposition party. This would free De Gaulle to form a cabinet of Socialist and M.R.P. followers. Between them, the two parties control almost two thirds of the Assembly.

Texts of de Gaulle Letter and Speech

PARIS, Nov. 17 (AP)—The texts of President Charles de Gaulle's letter of resignation as interim President of France and his broadcast to the French nation follow:

Responding to the call of the National Constituent Assembly last Nov. 13, I have tried to form a Government. The unanimous vote of the Assembly appeared to me to indicate that the Government must be constituted on a base of national unity, with participation of representatives of each of the three principal political parties essential, an indication that I considered, moreover, as conforming to necessities of the reconstruction and rebuilding of France, as well as to the gravity of circumstances abroad.

In addition, I considered it indispensable that the Government, being responsible to the entire Assembly, should enjoy independence, cohesion and the authority necessary for its duties in dealing with all others.

Says Demands Prevent Unity

Certain demands presented imperatively by one of the parties and concerning the selection of one of its members for this or that specific Cabinet post seemed to me to be incompatible with these conditions of independence, cohesion and authority of the Government.

In such a situation, and given the impossibility, as I found it, of constituting a Government of national unity conforming to the indication furnished by the Assembly and in line with its real intentions, I have the honor to return for decision by the National Constituent Assembly the mandate which it confided to me.

I must insist to the Assembly, knowing every fact, on the extreme urgency of forming a Government of the French Republic.

Text of the Broadcast

In these grave circumstances, I find it necessary to explain to all what it is about.

The National Constituent Assembly, in whose hands I had placed by powers last Nov. 6, as you know, elected me unanimously President of the Government Nov. 13 by virtue of the law that you voted in the Oct. 21 referendum. I had thus to form the Government of France.

My desire was to form it in the image of the same unanimity that was shown over my name and which seemed necessary for the vital task of reconstruction and renovation that we have to carry out together. In the choice of Ministers, as in the common national task, I did not intend to exclude any of the main currents of opinion and notably one of the three parties that obtained by far the most votes in the elections and the most seats in the Assembly.

But, naturally, I intended to distribute the ministerial departments, or, as some say, the portfolios, myself, on the one hand, according to the aptitudes of each and, on the other, according to the policy that the men evidently represent within and outside of the party from which they come. If the chief of a Government cannot proceed in that manner, what does his position signify?

Cites Communist Demand

However, I find myself with the demand of the chief of one of the three principal parties which posed a categorical condition for the participation of its men in the Government. This party demanded that I give one of its members one of the three following Ministries: Foreign Affairs, War, Interior. I could not accept that condition.

As much as I was disposed to associate in a wide measure with the economic and social work of the Government the men belonging to the party concerned and to accord them those Ministries, just as much I did not believe it possible to confide to them many of the levers that command foreign policy: the diplomacy that expresses it, the army that sustains it and the police that protects it.

In acting otherwise, in today's world situation, I would have risked not following, if only in appearance and in our tense universe appearances count for much, the French policy of equilibrium between the two very great political powers which I believe absolutely necessary for the interests of the country and even for peace. It happened, moreover, that this question which was posed coincided by pure chance, but nevertheless coincided, with a difficult moment in the relations between these two very great powers, particularly grave for the future of peace.

In my negative attitude toward what was demanded of me, there was, as you can see, nothing injurious to anyone but simply an interest of State. I ask all French men and women to study this carefully. As for myself, I would consider myself incapable of being Chief of the Government of France if I failed to recognize, to accommodate a combination, this necessity of supreme national interest.

Puts Issue Up to Assembly

Whatever may happen, I find myself, as a result of the specific demands of one party, unable to form, as I would have liked to, a Government of national unanimity. In this situation the judge is clearly constituted. It is the National Constituent Assembly. It, in fact, charged me with forming and directing the Government of France and it indicated, by its unanimous vote, the character it wanted me to give it.

That is why, in conformity with the principles of the representative regime that we wanted to see reborn and which has the right and duty of assuming its responsibilities, I now turn to the nation's representatives and place at their disposal the mandate they confided to me.

If their decision is to call someone other than me to direct the affairs of the fatherland, I will leave without any bitterness the post which, through the gravest perils of her history, I have tried to serve well for five years and five months.

If, on the contrary, the Assembly confirms me in my mandate, I will still try to carry it out to the best interests and honor of France.

Russians Angered By De Gaulle

Moscow, Nov. 17 (AP)—Usually well informed foreign sources here said today, that General de Gaulle's clash with the Communists, whether justified or not, had unquestionably made enemies for him in the Soviet Union.

The comment was made following publication of an exchange of letters between de Gaulle and Maurice Thorez, secretary general of the French Communist party.

Some of these sources said that even should the situation straighten itself out, it would be difficult to see how de Gaulle would be able to inspire any great admiration among the Russian Communists, after certain reflections he is alleged to have made in his letter to Thorez.

French officials here followed the situation closely for first hints of official reaction. No official Moscow reaction was forthcoming today, but it was expected later.

Laski Calls British Radio And Press 'Big Business'

Says Papers Distort Facts, Criticizes B. B. C. Policy

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP).—Harold J. Laski, chairman of the executive committee of the Labor party, attacked the British press and radio today as "a part of big business."

Speaking before the London Co-operative Society, Laski declared the press "distorted facts" and added: "It is the business of the press to discover facts, but they give the answers before they discover the facts."

The "major propaganda" of Britain, he asserted, is "under the control of a few people who are able to shape the mind of the individual."

The British Broadcasting Corporation, he continued, was stunted by adopting a policy of, "for heaven's sake, let no one of any importance be offended to the slightest degree."

FIFTEEN WARSHIPS TO TAKE G. I.'S HOME

London, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—The United States Navy announced today that fifteen warships, including the aircraft carrier Enterprise and the battleship Washington, have been converted for the redeployment of troops from Europe. Each will make at least four westward passages before February 1, 1946.

Use of the ships, supplementing regular transports, is expected to provide transport home for more than 145,000 soldiers during the next three and one-half months, Admiral H. Kent Hewitt, commander of United States Naval Forces in Europe, said in a press conference.

The program, however, will slow demobilization of Navy personnel, he said.

The thirteen other fighting ships to be used in returning troops are: Aircraft carriers Randolph, Wasp and Lake Champlain; cruisers Savannah, Philadelphia, Reno, Augusta, Boise and Portland; medium carriers Bataan, Langley and Monterey, and the baby flattop Croatan.

Reparations Factors: Effort, Sacrifice

Paris, Nov. 17 (AP)—The seventeen delegations to the Inter-Allied Reparations Conference appeared today to have settled down to the task of weighing "national war sacrifices" against "national war effort."

Delegates referring to sacrifices refered principally to sufferings under Nazi occupation or as battle arenas, although uninvaded countries like the United States and Britain also claim sacrifices such as shipping losses or bomb damage.

By military effort, the delegates mean what was expended in men and material in conquering Germany. All formerly occupied countries, particularly France and Yugoslavia, have put forth claims based on military effort.

Difference In Emphasis

Eight delegations—the United States, Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India and Egypt—stress effort. The other nine place emphasis upon sacrifice. They are France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Greece and Luxembourg.

A comparative table of claims in every field was being prepared for the conference, which has now rounded out its first week of discussions of reparations from western Germany. Russia and Poland, already allotted 25 per cent of the reparations decided upon from the western zone, are not participating in the talks.

11 NAZIS TO DIE FOR ATROCITIES

Josef Kramer, Irma Grese Among Members of Camp Staffs to Be Hanged.

LUENEBURG, Germany, Nov. 17 —(AP) Josef Kramer and Irma Grese, the monarchs of Belsen, and nine of their staff were sentenced today to be hanged for murders and atrocities in the Belsen and Oswiecin concentration camps.

Three women in all were ordered to the gallows. The trio heard the verdicts quietly, but later the blonde, pistol-toting Grese, 22, broke into sobs and another woman wept quietly.

Dr. Fritz Klein, SS doctor, also was among the 11 sentenced to death.

Others Get Prison Terms

The high British military court—which yesterday convicted 30 of the Nazi torture specialists on war crimes charges—sentenced one man to life imprisonment, and five other men and 13 women to prison terms of from one to 15 years, totaling 179 years.

Tonight defense counsel was preparing appeal petitions. The notices must be served within 48 hours. All the death sentences are expected to be appealed to Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery.

The court, which could have decreed death before firing squads, decided upon hanging in the traditional manner of dealing with felons.

The courtroom was packed with German civilians and British soldiers witnessing the climax to the nine-week-old trial.

The two other women sentenced to death were Elizabeth Volkenrath, 26-year-old former hair dresser who was chief of SS women, and Juana Borman, 42, a religious fanatic who gave up mission work to join the SS.

The other men sentenced to die were Peter Weingartner, 32, former member of the Yugoslav army; Franz Hoeszler, 34, SS guard since 1934; Karl Francich, 33, SS guard; Wilhelm Dorr, SS guard; Ansgar Pichen, SS guard and butcher shop employe; Frank Starfle, 33, S.S. guard.

Eric Zoddel, 33, German camp functionary, received the life term.

The men were sentenced first.

Kramer Shows No Emotion

Kramer, the brute-faced commandant at Belsen, showed no trace of emotion as he learned his fate from Maj. H. P. M. Berney Ficklin tribunal president.

Most of the men retained their composure, but Otto Kulessa, a boxer who became a functionary among the prisoners, turned pale and collapsed upon being sentenced to 15 years.

After sentences were pasesd, the men were herded out of the room by military police and the women were brought in.

Irma Grese, "queen" of the Belsen gang, looked straight at the bench. Elizabeth Volkenrath studied the ceiling. Juana Borman stared at the floor.

Once outside the room, Grese, who had swaggered at the camp with a pistol strapped to her waist and a whip in her hand, broke into violent sobs.

The ashen-faced Volkenrath wept quietly, and the wizened Borman, who had found sport in setting her wolfhound at the throats of the camp prisoners, walked as if in a dream.

The only outburst during the sentencing came from Helena Kopper, 35-year-old mother of two sons who had worked as a camp spy, sentenced to 15 years imprisonment.

"Why don't you let me hang" she shouted in Polish.

Then she threw herself on the floor. Four military police carried her, twisting and squirming in their grasp, from the court.

German civilians and British soldiers had flanked the roadway to the court house earlier to watch the prisoners as they were brought from the jail in two British trucks, led and followed by armored cars with Tommies manning turret machine guns.

Sentenced to 15 years imprisonment were Kopper, Herta Ehlert, 44, SS guard; Kulessa, 52, SS guard; Heinrich Schreir, 22; Vladislaw Ostrowski, 30.

Sentenced to 10 years were Hilde Lobauer, 27; Ilse Forster, 22; Herta Bothe ,25; Irene Harschke, 24; Gertrude Sauer, 39; Johanna Roth, 32; Anna Hempel, 45; Stanislawa Starcska, 28; Antoni Surdsiej, 27.

Gertrude Fiest, 27, and Midislaw Burgraf, 26, were sentenced to five years, Frieda Walter, 24, to three years and Hilde Lisiewicz, 23, to one year.

Father Sends Plea In Belsen Case

Lueneberg, Germany, Nov. 17 (AP)—The father of small, sour-faced Ilsa Forster, S.S. cookhouse supervisor and convicted war criminal, cannot imagine how his daughter could do such things," he said in a letter read to the court today.

The letter, addressed to the "chief prosecutor," was read during pleas for mitigation of sentences which are expected to be imposed on 30 members of the "Belsen gang" late today. It was read by Capt. A. H. S. Neave, of the defense staff.

The father said he had not heard from 22-year-old Ilsa for nearly a year until he read in the German press that she was on trial for her life.

Broke Into Tears

Ilsa, whose shaven head was covered by a blue-white bandeau, broke into tears when she heard her father protest that her family was ardently anti-Nazi and that Ilsa "was forced to join the SS in August, 1944."

"She had always been a fine girl at home," the father wrote of the girl who was convicted of beating a young Jewish girl to death in the Belsen cookhouse.

Consideration of the youth of the accused was requested generally in other pleas. Defense counsel asked the court to remember that Heinrich Schreier, black-haired "Don Juan" of the gang, and seven others were in their early twenties and "educated and brought up under the spell of Nazism."

In Closed Session

The court went into closed session. It was expected to deliberate six or seven hours before passing sentences.

Beast of Belsen and 10 Aids to Die

19 Other War Crime Defendants Sentenced to Prison for Camp Atrocities.

CHAMBERLAIN

Lueneburg, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—British military judges today sentenced ex-commandant Josef Kramer and ten others of the Belsen gang, including three women, to be hanged for atrocities committed at the Belsen and Oswiecim concentration camps.

One of the nineteen additional defendants convicted was sentenced to life imprisonment. The remainder drew terms ranging from one to fifteen years.

Kramer, married and the father of three children, received without emotion the sentence which grew out of his career as Oswiecim overseer and the Beast of Belsen.

Hundreds of German civilians and British soldiers flanked the roadway to the Lueneburg courthouse as the prisoners were moved from jail to the court by two three-ton trucks under armored escort.

Germans Surprised.

German civilians, inured for years to Nazi ideas of justice, expressed surprise that the death penalty was imposed on only eleven. They had expressed belief that all of the convicted would be executed.

The British military court convicted Kramer, the ex-commandant known as the Beast of Belsen, and twenty-nine of his aids and guards at the end of the nine-week trial yesterday. Fourteen others were acquitted.

Irma Grese, blond 22-year-old queen of the Belsen gang, and Dr. Fritz Klein, gray-haired physician who chose victims for the Oswiecim gas chamber, were among those condemned to die.

Others to Die.

Others to be hanged were:

Peter Weingartner, 32, former member of the Yugoslav Army.

Franz Hoeszler, 34, an SS guard since 1934.

Karl Francoih, 33, SS guard and former Silesian coal miner.

Ansgar Pichen, 32 SS guard of Danish extraction.

Franz Starfie, 33, SS guard and former Berlin dairyman.

Wilhelm Dorr, 24, SS guard and a farmer's son.

Juana Borman, 42, who gave up mission society work to join the SS.

Elizabeth Volkenrath, chief of SS women.

Eric Zoddel, 32-year-old camp functionary who formerly was a Berlin milk man, was sentenced to life imprisonment for his part in the regime of brutalities and starvation which cost thousands of lives among internees.

Fifteen-year sentences were drawn by:

Herta Ehlert, 40, SS guard and former bakery saleswoman in Berlin.

Otto Kulessa, 53, SS guard who served Germany as a sergeant in the first world war.

Heinrich Schrier, 22, son of a wealthy Romanian flour mill owner.

Helena Hopper, 35, Hungarian Jewess who served the SS as a spy at both Oswiecim and Belsen.

Vladislaw Ostrowski, 30-year-old Pole.

Ten-year sentences were imposed upon:

Hilde Lobauer, 27, unmarried mother of two children who was sent to Belsen as a social outcast.

Ilse Forster, 22, Belsen cook house supervisor.

Herta Bothe, 25, who quit domestic service to join the SS.

Irene Harschke, 24, SS guard and former textile worker.

Gertrude Sauer, 39, SS guard and wife of a missing soldier.

Johanna Roth, 32, a German who became a camp functionary after being arrested for an affair with a Polish slave laborer.

Anna Hempel, 45, SS guard and former seamstress.

Stanislawa Staroska, 28, a former Polish stenographer who was arrested for underground activity and became a prison functionary.

Antoni Surdsiej, 27-year-old Pole.

Two of the defendants were sentenced to five years imprisonment. These were Gertrude Fiest, 27, SS guard and former munitions worker, and Medislaw Burgraf, 26-year-old Pole.

Frieda Walter, 24-year-old SS guard, was sentenced to three years in prison and Hilde Lisiewicz, 23, another guard, to one year.

Russia Expected To Request Delay In Trials Of Top Nazis

TUCKER

Nuernberg, Germany, Nov. 17 (AP)—The International War Crimes Tribunal ruled today that the trials of erstwhile kingpin Nazis would open as scheduled Tuesday without the addition of Alfried Krupp as a defendant, but indications tonight were that the Russians would request a postponement.

United States Prosecutor Robert H. Jackson said he believed the Russians would ask for a delay on the ground that their chief prosecutor, [illegible], was ill in Moscow and would be unable to come here by Tuesday.

Bormann To Be Tried In Absentia

The tribunal's action in rejecting an American-French-Russian plea to indict Alfried Krupp as a major war criminal brought quick protests from the French and Russian deputy prosecutors. Jackson declined to comment.

The trial of Alfried's father, the ailing munitions king Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, has been postponed indefinitely, and the three powers want a Krupp included in the mass trials of Nazis charged with war conspiracy. The British opposed the motion.

The court earlier today announced that Martin Bormann, Hitler's missing deputy, would be tried in absentia.

French Accuse Alfried Krupp

The French prosecution staff made a written demand for a public hearing Monday by the court on the question of adding the younger Krupp to the list of defendants. Charles Dubost, French deputy prosecutor, complained that the tribunal had opened the brief afternoon session before he and his Russian colleagues had entered the courtroom. A written request earlier to the court for permission to speak was ignored, he added.

The sharply worded French note accused Alfried Krupp of inciting German troops to pillage industrial material from western countries and dispatch it to Germany ahead of the Allied advance, and of exploiting slave laborers in war factories, "against international conventions."

Dubost said "the prosecutors' committee representing Russia, France and the United States were legally empowered by charter to name Alfried Krupp a defendant and the tribunal over-reached itself in denying the motion."

Soviet Deputy Prosecutor, Col. Yuri Pokrovsky, declared that "it is my personal belief and the stand of my country that Alfried Krupp is a major war criminal and must be brought to trial in the immediate future, if not now. We are not asking the court to bring an indictment against a son substituting for his father, but against a war criminal of the first magnitude.

Mr. Jackson said: "I have not read the copy of the French request and therefore I can't say what action the United States shall take."

In addition to the French demand for a hearing, there were indications they, too, might ask for a delay in the trial opening, on grounds that their chief prosecutor, Francois de Menthon, a members of the French Constituent Assembly, was in Paris because of the de Gaulle political crisis and would be pressed for time.

Krupp Attorney Jubilant

The decision on Alfried Krupp was announced this afternoon in a statement that took only twenty-one seconds to read, and one Krupp family attorney jubilantly declared:

"I don't believe Herr Alfried will ever be brought to trial."

British Chairman Justice Geoffrey Lawrence said only:

"The motion to amend the indictment by adding the name of Alfried Krupp has been considered in all its aspects, and is rejected. The tribunal will now adjourn."

The Krupp attorneys planned to ask permission to attend all court sessions as observers, because of the prosecution's intention of introducing evidence concerning Krupp interests.

The trial of Bormann, in absentia, will be conducted with court-appointed German attorneys, the tribunal ruled this morning.

No attempt was made by the tribunal to decide between conflicting Nazi stories that Bormann had perished or was merely wounded when a Russian hand-grenade exploded in a tank in which he was trying to flee across the Spree River in the center of Berlin on May 1.

Bormann had been in the besieged Chancellery with Hitler the previous day. Notices of his indictment have been published the past four weeks in Berlin newspapers and carried over the German radio.

In the continued examination of Hess, two of his former women secretaries were presented to him unexpectedly yesterday, but they failed to produce any marked reaction from the man who once startled the world with his flight from Germany to Britain.

The first said: "Hello! I used to work for you." Hess only replied, "Good."

When the second secretary entered the room, Hess asked: "Did you used to work for me, too?" Then he continued: "Good. You can work for me again. I'll give you both jobs the next time I become a high official of the Third Reich. Any German is trustworthy and I'll be glad to hire you."

Krupps's Switch Out: Bormann To Be Tried

TUCKER

Nuernberg, Germany, Nov. 17 (AP)—The international war crimes tribunal today ruled against the indictment of Alfried Krupp as a substitute for his senile father and ordered the trial of other Nazis to start next Tuesday as scheduled.

Under another ruling Martin Bormann, missing since he left Hitler's side during the battle for Berlin, is to be tried in absentia with court-appointed German attorneys to defend him.

The fate of Rudolf Hess, one of the 24 top Nazis originally indicted, remained in question. Two of his former secretaries were ushered into his presence today by authorities studying his story of amnesia, but Hess professed not to know them.

Jackson Made Request

The request of Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States prosecutor, that 38-year-old Alfried Krupp be tried in place of his father, Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, was disposed of in a session that lasted just 21 seconds.

Justice Geoffrey Lawrence, the British chairman, said: "The motion to amend the indictment by adding the name of Alfred Krupp has been considered in all its aspects and is rejected. The tribunal will now adjourn."

The decision means that no family representative of the Krupp armament and steel empire, taken over yesterday by the British Military Government, will be in the dock at the initial hearing.

Russian Judge Arrives

The decision was not reached until after the Russian Judge, Gen. I. T. Nikitchenko, arrived by air from Moscow today.

Jackson was not in the court at the time.

Gustav Krupp headed the giant arms and steel works in the Hitler regime. He is the son-in-law of Friedrich Krupp, under whom it expanded from a commercial company.

Indicated as a war criminal, Gustav Krupp was given an indefinite postponement after an Allied medical commission reported that he was paralyzed and suffering from "senile softening of the brain."

Krupp Attorney's Comment

Two Krupp family attorneys who heard the tribunal's ruling expressed great elation and one said: "I don't believe Alfried will ever be brought to trial."

Both, however, planned to ask permission to attend the court sessions as observers because of the prosecution's announced intention of introducing evidence concerning Krupp interests in Germany's era of aggression.

Doubt Of Bormann's Death

The decision to try Bormann, Hitler's deputy and closest henchman during the final hours of Nazi Germany, was made upon recommendation of Sir David Maxwell-Fyfe, deputy to the British prosecutor. The British report said there was doubt whether he was dead.

Hess's Amnesia Story Unshaken

Nuernberg, Nov. 17 (AP)—Two of Rudolf Hess's former secretaries, Misses Fahr and Speer, were ushered into his presence unexpectedly yesterday, but if the meeting was a trap to shake his amnesia story it fell flat.

Hess sat at a table in the center of an interrogation room in the palace of justice, handcuffed to two guards. He lasped into something akin to bovine vacuity and scarcely seemed to notice that, staring at him from distant parts of the room were:

Col. John H. Amen, chief interrogator;

Senator Pepper (D.,Fla.), an interested spectator;

Gordon Dean, public relations counsel for the office of chief counsel; and Major Douglas Kelley, chief psychiatrist.

Walks To His Table

Presently a door opened and a dark-haired woman of about 35 entered. She hesitated a moment. Then she walked slowly to Hess's table and stood looking down at her former employer.

Hess arose and bowed.

"Hello," said the visitor, Miss Fahr, in a choked voice.

"Hello," said Hess.

"I used to work for you, Miss Fahr said.

"Good," Hess replied.

They stood looking at one another. Hess seemed mildly surprised and once or twice he glanced questioningly about the room.

Promises Jobs

The door opened more and Miss Speer, somewhat younger than her predecessor, came in.

"And did you used to work for me, too?" Hess inquired.

"Yes, I did."

"Good," Hess said. "You can work for me again. I'll give both of you jobs the next time I become a high official of the Third Reich. Any German is trustworthy and I'll be glad to hire you."

The women went away. The guards led Hess back to his cell.

Von Papen's Son Released

NUREMBERG, Germany, Nov. 17 (AP)—Franz von Papen Jr., son of the German politician, has been released as a prisoner of war to serve as consultant counsel to his father at the war trials here.

German Time Made Uniform

BERLIN, Nov. 17 (AP).—Clocks will be turned back an hour in Berlin and the occupation zone at 2 a. m. tomorrow, making time in the arears uniform with the remainder of Germany, which is on central European standard time [six hours "later" than New York time]. This schedule will be effective until March 1, 1946, when the whole country will "advance" again one hour, to summer time.

Saxony Mines Nationalized

BERLIN, Nov. 17 (AP)—The coal mining industry of Russian-occupied Saxony has been placed under State control, a Provincial Government announcement said today. A State Mining Administration was set up to administer the industry, which employs 20,000 miners. The nationalization was effected at a conference of workers and owners and Government representatives, it was stated.

Three More Germans Face Atrocity Counts

Dachau, Germany, Nov. 17 (AP)—A young German engraver who spent three years in the Dachau concentration camp demonstrated to a United States military court today how a guard kicked the shins of prisoners with heavy boots until the bone was bared.

Karl Wolf, hatred in his eyes, identified three additional defendants charged with atrocities at the camp, bringing to twenty the number of defendants singled out by name in the first three days of the trial. The accused total 40.

Wolf added the names of Engelbert Niedermeyer, Johann Kick and Otto Schulz to the list of those named by witnesses.

He said Kick, as head of the "political department," selected invalids and cripples for "recovery trips" from which they never returned.

Artificial Limbs Brought Back

"The only thing that came back was their artificial limbs," Wolf said. He said Schulz took food from prisoners and that Niedermeyer operated a crematorium.

Wolf told the court that Friedrich Ruppert, former commander of the camp, "could beat people without changing expression—just like a blacksmith hammering iron."

The witness termed Christof Knoll, another defendant, a "Jew-killer" who would "often brag how many Jews he killed on his work detail."

Tells of Dachau Beatings.

Dachau, Germany, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—A United States military court was told today that Friedrich Ruppert, former commander of the Dachau concentration camp, "could beat people without changing expression—just like a blacksmith hammering iron." The witness was Rudolf Wolf, a young German engraver, who spent nearly three years in the prison. He also singled out others by name among the forty defendants.

Wolf dubbed Christof Knoll "the Jew-killer," saying: "Knoll would brag about how many Jews he killed on his work detail."

Portuguese Given No Choice In Voting

Lisbon, Nov. 17 (AP)—Portugal's voters go to the polls tomorrow with no alternative but to indorse the strong-arm regime of the peasant-born Premier, Dr. Antonio de Oliveira Salazar.

In an election proclaimed as free and obviously a bid for the return of Portugal to the good graces of the United Nations, not a single candidate opposes the 19-year-old dictatorship.

Intellectuals The Opposition

The opposition has come chiefly from the thus-far politically impotent intellectual class, in the form of a campaign to persuade the voters to stay away from the polls in silent protest against the administration.

The extent of the success of this campaign cannot be measured until the votes are counted. Of Portugal's approximately 7,000,000 population, the registrars carry the names of 943,274 voters.

Postponement Denied

There has been little semblance to pre-election procedure of Britain or the United States in the Portuguese election campaign, which began early in October. At the outset the opposition lost its court battle to postpone the election. The opposition had contended the constitutional provision for advance notice before elections had been violated.

Officially there have been seven arrests thus far in the campaign, all in the university city of Oporto. Two of those arrested were professors, charged with refusing to disclose the identity of those who signed a petition supporting the opposition.

Roosevelt to Be Honored.

Brussels, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—The late President Roosevelt will be honored with a degree from Brussels University today. United States Ambassador Charles Sawyer has been delegated to accept the award.

Sawyer May Run for Senator

BRUSSELS, Nov. 17 (AP)—Ambassador Sawyer said tonight he was not certain whether he would cast hi shat in the ring for Senator from Ohio.

As his last official act as Ambassador to Belgium, Mr. Sawyer accepted a doctor's degree from Brussels University on behalf of the late President Roosevelt.

A long-time friend of President Roosevelt, Mr. Sawyer said that after his resignation he would practice law in Cincinnati, his home town.

"I am not sure of the political aspirations with which my name has been mentioned," he said. "I handled Roosevelt's campaigns in Ohio and I know what campaigning means."

Greece Unfreezes Foreign Exchange

Athens, Nov. 17 (AP)—Minister of Finance Gregory Kassimatis said today the Greek foreign exchange reserve is no longer frozen and can be used unrestrictedly. An agreement will be signed, he said, unfreezing private Greek deposits with British and American banks.

As a result and in accordance with the Government's economic plan, 4,000 applications have been submitted for import of raw materials and manufacturer goods, mainly from the United States and Britain.

Finnish War Trial Delayed

Helsinki, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Finnish war crimes trial was adjourned today until December 10 to permit the eight accused former officials time to prepare their defense.

Former President Ryti and three of his fellow defendants remained in prison by court order. The others were released on their own recognizance.

Believe Duce's Gold Found

Italian Police Hold Two Men Who Sought to Sell Ingots

VICENZA, Italy, Nov. 17 (AP).—The mystery of Benito Mussolini's missing treasure was believed to have been partly solved today when police announced they had arrested two men who had been hunting a purchaser for 60 kilograms (132.28 pounds) of gold ingots.

Police said they were convinced the gold was part of Mussolini's private fortune. They recalled published reports that a large fortune, supposedly captured when partisans trapped Mussolini near Dongo last spring, later disappeared. Part of the 60 kilograms of ingots has been recovered and the remainder is being sought.

Nazis Reported In Spain Seeking Atomic Secret

Stockholm, Sweden, Nov. 17 (AP). The newspaper Expressen said today it had been informed by a reliable source that twenty German scientists were working feverishly in Spain to solve the secrets of production of the atomic bomb.

The paper declared the experiments were being conducted with the approval of Generalissimo Franco.

There was no confirmation of the report from any other source.

Swiss Try to Halt Smuggling

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Nov. 17 (AP).—All furloughs of Swiss customs officials were canceled today and demobilization of military police in the Swiss-Italian border area was postponed, in a further effort to halt smuggling.

GI's Too Eager—WAC Gets Frisking Job

Vienna, Nov. 17 (AP)—The word leaked out that some women employés of the post exchange were looting stores and carrying the stock home under their dresses.

The 505th Military Police Battalion called for volunteers to frisk the women—and created a stampede of willing GI's.

P.S.—A WAC got the job.

SOFIA SLIGHTS U.S. MESSAGE

Bulgaria Votes Today Despite American Disapproval

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 17 (AP)—Bulgarians will ballot tomorrow for a single slate of Fatherland Front candidates in their first National Assembly elections since the war, de spite protests from the United States Government disapproving the elections and a new appeal from the opposition for postponement.

Ignoring the note, which was based upon findings by Mark Ethridge, Louisville (Ky.) publisher, and a letter in which opposition leaders warned of "heavy consequences" if the elections were held, the Government issued an appeal for all supporters of the Fatherland Front to come out and vote for its National Assembly slate.

Elections Postponed Once

"All rumors for postponement of the elections are coming from suspicious sources," the Government statement said. "The elections will be held and the will of the people will be expressed in a full way November 18."

The elections in Soviet-occupied Bulgaria, originally scheduled August 26, were postponed once after the United States and Britain had protested that all democratic elements would not be able to participiate. The opposition letter to Premier Georgiev asking for a further postponement predicted "heavy consequences for the Bulgarian people—at home and abroad—if the elections are held."

U.S. Note Delivered

"We, led by the supreme interest of the people, are addressing a last warning to you that the elections must be postponed in order to give the Bulgarian people the possibility in real free elections to express their will," the letter said. "If you will not do that the historical responsibility before the people and the state rests on you."

Maynard Barnes, United States political representative in Bulgaria, delivered the United States note yesterday in this rumor-ridden city. There was no information that Britain had presented a similar note.

American Message In Part

The American message said that while "an opportunity has been given for freer political expression" since last August, important democratic elements are excluded in the coming election by the single slate, and "moreover, there are indications that the free expression of popular will is being further restricted by threats of coercion and later reprisals."

"There is no reason to believe the result of an election conducted under such conditions will reflect the Bulgarian people's choice of a representative democratic government," it concluded.

While anti-Government leaders charge that the coalition Government of Premier Georgiev has been taken over by Communists, Communist Leader Georgi Dimitrov insists the election would strengthen the Fatherland Front and prepare the way for other groups to participate in the Government.

Bulgar Elections Protested By U.S.

Sofia, Nov. 16 [(AP)—Delayed]. Maynard Barnes, United States political representative in Bulgaria, delivered a note to the Bulgarian Government today stating that elections scheduled to be held Sunday were not considered by the American Government to conform to the Yalta agreement.

The text was not announced here. The elections, in which Bulgarians are to choose members of the National Assembly, was postponed from August 26 after protests from both Britain and the United States that the Communist-dominated Fatherland Front Government was not regarded as adequately representative of all democratic elements in the country.

[The State Department announced in Washington Friday that a new warning had been sent to the Bulgarian Government against reported oppressive political practices.]

Tito Sees End of Monarchy

BELGRADE, Nov. 16 (Delayed) (AP).—Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) told a press conference today that the outcome of the Yugoslav election held last Sunday "means an end has been made of the monarchy."

The elections amounted to a resolute rejection of King Peter II and of any "return to the old state of affairs," he declared, adding: "The people have said their last word. I think it would be best for the King to renounce his rights to the throne. It has been established that the monarchy may only damage Yugoslavia."

The election resulted in a heavy vote for the candidates of Tito's National Front, the only candidates presented to the electorate.

Tito said opposition parties would have freedom of action in Yugoslavia "if they make use of legal and honest means."

"But the Fascists who collaborated with the enemy cannot be allowed to carry on their activities menacing the democratization of the country," he added.

Java Parleys Stalled, New Rising Feared

Dutch And British Meet With New Premier But Reach No Accord

Batavia, Java, Nov. 17 (AP)—The first conference of Dutch, Indonesian and British leaders ended late tonight without a formula for peace in Java, and the official Dutch news agency Aneta declared Indonesian extremists had called for a war to the death against the British.

Aneta quoted the nationalist-controlled Jogjakarta radio as declaring: "This is the last night of peace. Tomorrow we shall start and either kill the British or drive them from Java."

Thousands of armed Indonesians were reported massed in Jogjakarta, central Java stronghold of youthful extremists.

Still Fight At Soerabaja

Fighting continued in the Dutch naval base of Soerabaja, where the British were advancing slowly and cautiously against diminishing Indonesian resistance.

A communiqué issued just before midnight after a three-and-three-quarter-hour conference of natives, British and Dutch in Batavia, said no decisions were reached because "the Indonesian leaders were not at present in a position to accept the responsibility of making definite replies to any of the questions discussed."

"Further meetings may be expected to take place in five days' time," the communiqué said.

The chief figures in the meeting were Premier Sutan Sjahrir, of the unrecognized Indonesian republic; Hubertus J. van Mook, acting governor general, and Lieut. Gen. Sir Philip Christison, Allied commander in the Dutch East Indies.

Each Has Staff Of Advisers

30.24—31703

The conference, arranged by Christison and presided over by him, was a formal affair, with each of the leaders flanked by a staff of advisers.

Sjahrir was attended by his right-hand man, Amir Sjarifuddin, Minister of Information, and two other Cabinet members, while van Mook had with him several high officials of the Indies Government and a Netherlands Government emissary just arrived from the Hague, F. M. Baron van Asbeck. The British group included M. E. Denning, Foreign Office adviser to the Southeast Asia Command, and Henry Walsh, Foreign Office adviser to Christison.

Bitter Fight Continues

Meanwhile, bitter fighting continued in Soerabaja and sporadic disorders were reported in other parts of Java.

The British command reported a slow expansion of three bridgeheads its forces had won across the Semanpir canal, which formerly constituted the British eastern perimeter in Soerabaja. Indonesian opposition generally was reported decreasing in the big naval base, but several fierce encounters took place.

At one point, Vern Haugland, Associated Press correspondent said, "British troops and Indonesians were fighting from tombstone to tombstone through a Chinese cemetery, often at hand-to-hand range."

Machine Guns Captured

Haugland also said British tanks blasted marshalling sheds in the railroad yards where the Indonesians were strangely entrenched. Several jeep loads of machine guns were captured b ythe British, he added.

The British reported the Indonesians were setting fire to warehouses and supply stores in Soerabaja, and said they suddenly appeared to have withdrawn from some areas where they previously had offered stubborn resistance. The main opposition, they said, was confined to sniper fire and some mortar fire.

Indonesian mortars inflicted casualties on native women and children who had fled to British-controlled areas of the city, a British statement said.

Refugees declared a reign of terror was spreading among the Indonesians, with the moderates completely dominated by bands of youthful extremists who controlled the weapons and threatened anyone counseling peace.

Appeal To Native Officials

The Indonesians appealed over the radio for officials of the local native government, who fled the British attack, to return to Soerabaja as an inspiration to Indonesian troops. Other broadcasts called upon nationalists in other parts of Java to send food and troop reinforcements to the naval base, and said tanks and artillery were en route to Soerbaja from Jogjakarta.

The British said they had observed no signs of such movements.

The British added that their casualties in the first five days of the week-old battle at Soerabaja were 14 killed and 59 wounded, bringing total British casualties in Java to 405 killed, wounded and missing.

A Chinese doctor, who reached British lines, declared civilians suffered heavy casualties in Soerabaja. He reported 40 Chinese patients died after being brought to a hospital where he had treated 250 wounded and many others for minor injuries. He estimated that 100 were killed east of the Semanpir canal.

"Most of the British artillery has been directed at the Chinese residential sector on the east side of Kali (Canal) Semanpir, while the Indonesians have been dropping mortars into the Chinese area on this side," he said. "So we are getting it from both directions."

New Indonesian Chief, Dutch To Confer

ERICKSON

Batavia, Nov. 17 (AP)—Cabinet leaders of the unrecognized Indonesian republic will meet tonight with Gen. Hubertus J. van Mook, Dutch Governor, in a session pledged to end the fighting in Java, it was announced officially.

Lieut. Gen. Sir Philip Christison, Allied commander in the Dutch East Indies, will preside at the meeting, which the Dutch characterized as an attempt to stave off economic disaster on the island.

Present will be Premier Sutan Sjahrir, described as a moderate, and his chief lieutenant, Amir Sjarifuddin.

Lull At Soerabaja

The announcement came as the British reported a lull in the fighting at Soerabaja, where the Indonesians fell back before the British Indian advance after setting fire to warehouses and stores.

The official British casualty report listed 14 killed and 59 wounded at Soerabaja from November 10 through 14. Casualties for the British since troops landed in Soerabaja now total 405. Officially it was said the casualties since Wednesday were "very light."

A reign of terror was spreading among Indonesians in the Soerabaja area, said a dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland. He quoted refugees as saying that the Moderates there were dominated by youthful Extremists who monopolized the weapons and threatened death to persons counselling peace.

Civilians Quit Southern Area

Another dispatch from the city and Indonesian civilians were evacuating southern areas before the British advance, but that armed bands remained behind to set fire to hotels and residences.

The Extremists broadcast appeals yesterday to Dr. Soerio, native governor of Soerabaja, and other leaders who fled the British advance to return and inspire Indonesian troops.

Earlier, appeals were broadcast to the natives for troop reinforcements, promising that tanks and artillery were on the way from Jogjakarta, Nationalist stronghold in the heart of the island.

British tanks were active yesterday against Extremist troops and there were a number of sharp artillery exchanges, but the Indonesians appeared to have withdrawn suddenly from areas where previously they had put up stiff resistance.

A British command summary said Indian troops expanded carefully the British-controlled area, mopping up as they advanced.

Tars In Cape Town Gobble Up Gems

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, Nov. 17 (AP)—The United States fleet is in today, and its men are buying engagement rings and loose diamonds almost like peanuts.

The more than 6,000 officers and men from two United States battleships and six destroyers are "going crazy" over Cape Town's assortment of gems, dealers said.

The sailors also are stocking up on leopard skin bags and other souvenirs.

Investment Buying

The highest price reported paid by an American has been $3,200 for a pure white diamond weighing 4½ carats.

Nine out of ten men are buying engagement rings, the jewelers said, and many are purchasing loose stones as investments. Some sailors have bought three or four watches each, they said.

The battleships, the California and the Tennessee, and the destroyers—the Lardner, Thorn, Nelson, Lansdowne, Stevenson and Stockton—have put in here for the week end.

MANCHURIAN OFFICIALS OUT

Nationalists Leave Capital Fearing Communist Coup

MOOSE

Chungking, Nov. 17 (AP)—Chinese Nationalists, fearing a Communist coup, were reported quitting Manchuria's capital of Changchun today even as their own troops fought into the province for the first time.

A field dispatch said Nationalist troops—the Communists asserted four United States-equipped divisions were in the vanguard—were pressing beyond the Great Wall into southern Manchuria but still were 440 miles from Changchun.

Communists Dig In

Between them and the capital stood Communist forces stoutly dug in. The Chungking press carried reports that well-armed Communist bands had been seen near Changchun and appeared ready to take over as soon as the Russians withdraw.

The situation also remained tense around Tientsin, where Marines and Chinese Communists traded shots yesterday after the latter fired on a train bearing Maj. Gen. De Witt Peck, commander of the 1st Marine Division, north of Chinwangtao, the port east of Tientsin.

Peck, arriving at Tientsin, said he was fired upon Wednesday and Thursday and the bullets were "so close we had to duck." He said quiet prevailed in the trouble zone today.

Termed Threat To Future

The World Daily News, a Chungking newspaper, declared the impasse in Manchuria threatened "our national existence" and would affect future relations between China and Russia.

The Chinese press said the crisis over Manchuria had occupied top military and civilian leaders at a conference here.

The press, commenting on the inability of the Nationalists to land at Communist-held Manchurian ports, said the Nationalist officials had decided to quit Changchun and some already were in Peiping. Among the arrivals was reported to be Chiang Chung-kuo, son of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

One newspaper said the situation already had reached the "critical stage" because the Communists were advancing steadily through manchuria—with its all-important heavy industries—behind the withdrawing Russians.

Will Not Fly Troops

American authorities have announced that they will not fly Chinese troops into Manchuria. Even if Russia granted Chungking permission to fly in troops, it has only a few planes available.

The reported successes of Chinese Nationalist troops at the southern gateway to Manchuria did little to dispel the gloom here.

Gen. Tu Li-ming, Nationalist commander for Manchuria, said in Chinwangtao that the fortress city of Shanhaikwan fell to his men as the result of a swift outflanking drive on the west.

He reported his columns crossed the Great Wall at Chiumen and cut in behind the Communist forces in Shanhaikwan, compelling them to retreat through a corridor purposely left open.

Refuse To Repair Tracks

A dispatch from Tientsin said Chinese workmen had refused to repair Communist-destroyed railroad tracks until it was learned what the result would be of a stern Marine order to Communists to cease firing on American forces.

The situation came to a head after General Peck's train was stopped by 300 yards of blown-up tracks as he was traveling from Tientsin to Chinwangtao.

Small-arms fire whistled through the train from the direction of a village north of the railway town of Lwanhsien, 50 miles southwest of Chinwangtao.

Peck requested that the village be strafed by American planes. Both Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commanding United States forces in China, and Maj. Gen. Keller Rockey, Marine commander, warned that if American lives were again endangered "appropriate" military action would be taken.

Manchu Tug Held 'Critical'

MOOSE

Chungking, Nov. 17 (AP) — The struggle for control of Manchuria has reached a "critical stage" due to the advance of Chinese Communists in the wake of withdrawing Russians, a Chungking press report said today.

It told of the withdrawal of a small group of Nationalist officials from Changchun, Manchurian capital, because of the advance of armed Chinese Communists in the Unconfirmed reports said Gen. Hsiung Shih-hui, deputy commander for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in Manchuria, has postponed indefinitely his return to the area. He recently arrived here to confer with Chiang on Manchurian conditions.

Officials Withdrawing

Some of the withdrawing government officials from Changchun, including the generalissimo's eldest son, Chiang Chung-kuo, have already arrived in Peiping, press dispatches said.

The Manchurian situation, said the Chinese press, was the subject of a long conference of top military and civilian leaders yesterday. Chiang himself did not attend, they said.

Observers recalling Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's recent statement that Americans would not transport Nationalist troops to Manchuria by air, pointed out that with the small number of planes available, the Central Government could not send more than a handful of soldiers even if it had Russian permission.

Reds Assail Wedemeyer

American Army authorities today said only 75 United States planes had been turned over to the Chinese since Japanese hostilities ended.

The Communist news agency again blasted at Wedemeyer for his statement that United States forces would continue to assist in repatriating Japanese from Chinna and would defend American lives and property.

The agency characterized the statement as "absurd and irresponsible." By the same logic, it added, the Chinese should send troops to New York and San Francisco.

Chiang's Forces Take Gate City On Great Wall

BERGHOLZ

Chinwangtao, Nov. 17 (AP)—Chinese Nationalist Army headquarters announced that its troops had captured Shanhaikwan yesterday in a flanking movement that forced the Chinese Communist 8th Route Army to abandon the Great Wall gateway into Manchuria.

[The Chungking press today reported, however, that Chinese Government officials who earlier had accepted control of postal and telegraph facilities from the withdrawing Russians at Changchun, Manchurian capital, were now returning to Chungking.

[They had lost the protection of the Soviet occupation garrison, these reports said, and "fully armed" Chinese Communists have been seen in the vicinity of Changchun, in which Nationalists had only a handful of officials. Among those withdrawing, they said, was Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's elder son, Chiang Chung-kuo, special commissioner for foreign affairs in Manchuria.

"Forced To Flee"

[Chinese Communists in Manchuria are becoming so powerful that Chinese Government officials "have been forced to flee for their safety," the World Daily News lamented today. The Sino-Soviet treaty, it added, "is not being effectively implemented." Manchuria is becoming Communist because Chinese Nationalists "cannot enter it," and the situation involves "a question of our national existence," the paper asserted.]

"We have driven 10,000 Communist bandits out of Shanhaikwan and have taken the city," said Gen. Tu Li-ming, commander of the Nationalist forces assigned to take over Manchuria after withdrawal of Russian troops.

He predicted the occupation of Shanhaikwan, at the Gulf of Chihli end of the Great Wall, would make it unnecessary to attempt any amphibious operations along the coast of Manchuria.

Shanhaikwan is about 10 miles north of Chinwangtao, where United States Marines are guarding the railway southward to Tientsin.

Concerned About Rail Line

General Tu said the Nationalists were principally concerned with reopening the Tientsin-Mukden railway, and would insist that the Chinese Communists withdraw at least 50 kilometers (about 32 miles) from the rail line.

Tu said Shanhaikwan was taken without heavy fighting, and casualties on both sides were light.

It was reported in Chungking four days ago that Nationalist troops had taken Shanhaikwan, but instead the Chinese Reds at that time had actually pushed the Nationalists back to within 7 miles of Chinwangtao.

Flanking Movement

Troops led by Lieut. Gen. Chao Kung-wu flanked the Communists to the west, passed through the Great Wall at the virtually undefended town of Chiumen and then cut back into the rear of the Reds.

The Nationalists left a narrow escape corridor for the Communists. Lieut. Gen Chih Chi-ao commanded the force that entered Shanhaikwan from the south in the morning, and by noon had most of the city under control.

Tu laughingly volunteered the opinion that American combat planes flying low over the area may have caused the Communists to believe they were about to be strafed. "So they withdrew from their positions," he added.

Not Used In Support

No American planes have been used in support of Chinese Nationalist movements.

Additional reports on gunfire attacks on a train bearing United States Marine Major General Dewitt Peck, commander of the 1st Marine Division, and a small detachment of leathernecks from Tientsin to Chinwangtao, said the attack continued for two days—Wednesday and Thursday. The train was stopped twice by damaged tracks.

The Marines interpreted the attacks as attempts to prevent repairs to the railroad—still out, at last reports—and not as an assault against the Americans.

Byrnes Tells Our Purpose

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP) — Secretary of State Byrnes has advised Representative Robert W. Kean (Rep. N. J.) that "it is neither our purpose nor desire to become involved in the internal affairs of China."

Representative Kean said today he had transmitted to the Secretary complaints stemming from reports that this country's ships were being used to transport Chinese troops instead of returning Pacific veterans to this country. The Congressman asked what the United States was "trying to do in China?"

Mr. Byrnes explained in his letter that this country's facilities in China were being used to assist the Chinese Government "in effecting the surrender, disarmament and repatriation of Japanese armed forces in China who number about two million men." Chinese authorities, Mr. Byrnes said, lack the shipping and other facilities of transport necessary to do the job.

"The Chinese authorities have sought our assistance. We have granted the request not only because we have our shipping in the Far East, but because we felt it a responsibility on our part to assist our Chinese allies to effect the surrender, disarmament and repatriation of the Japanese armed forces in China at the earliest possible date."

GI's Irked As Ship Brings Some Civilians

Shanghai, Nov. 17 (AP)—Another troop-carrying transport headed for San Francisco this morning—with soldiers left behind outspokenly critical of the fact she also carried a small quota of civilians.

"The boys are really sore," said Sergt. Remo E. Galli, Philadelphia, as he checked the 1,539 passengers—including 117 civilians—aboard the New Orleans freighter Adabelle Lykes.

"They figure the United States warned these civilians to get out of China long before the war broke out, but they disregarded the warnings and stuck around to pick up a little more dough. Then they got caught."

No Quotas Received

Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of United States forces in China, said that military transports are required to load civilian quotas, because no other repatriation ships are coming to Shanghai. No quota figures have been received from Washington, he added, and if the Adabelle Lykes is carrying any excess of civilians, "This is my mistake."

Major Harlow T. Curran, Waseca, Minn., transportation officer aboard the ship, said civilians would help soldiers with kitchen duties.

List Checked Twice

An American consular attaché said Lieut. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, while acting as theater commander, twice checked the civilian list, which included Chinese, French, Portuguese, British Poles, Dutch and even persons claiming no country.

Three Marines and two sailors who had served in Shanghai and been captured in the Philippines took Russian wives with them as they sailed for home. They had married here before the war.

U. S. HONORS CHINESE GIRL

Guerrilla Who Aided Flier to Escape Gets Army Medal

SHANGHAI, Nov. 17 (AP)—A Chinese girl guerrilla who assisted in the escape of an American pilot downed in Japanese-held territory near here last April was decorated for bravery today by Lieut. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commanding Army Air Forces in China.

The United States War Department Emblem for Meritorious Service was pinned on Miss Ho-nei as she lay in bed, recovering from Japanese tortures inflicted on her in the notorious Bridge House here.

The pilot she rescued, Lieut. Col. Clyde D. Slocumb of Doerun, Ga., now is commanding the Seventy-fifth Fighter Squadron at Hangchow.

Guerrilla forces under a woman colonel helped Colonel Slocumb to escape. Miss Ho, secretary to the guerrilla leader, was captured by the Japanese and tortured when she refused to disclose how he got away. She was freed last September after the Japanese surrendered.

The award given here today is the second highest civilian decoration issued by the War Department.

China's Support Indicated

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 17 (AP)—Official Chinese quarters, while withholding comment, indicated today that China would support the Truman-Attlee-King proposal to create a United Nations commission to control atomic research.

Unofficial quarters said that China would have full confidence in a British-American guardianship of atom bomb secrets, making no mention of Russia as a co-guardian, although she is one of the United Nations.

The Communist New China Daily News observed that any attempt to keep atomic development secret would be "useless and foolish" and would stimulate suspicion.

Holiday Cargo, Crew Safe As Ship Hits Japanese Mine

By The Associated Press.

PEARL HARBOR, Nov. 17—The U. S. S. Bridge, carrying 102,000 pounds of Christmas and Thanksgiving turkey to Navy personnel in Korea and China, struck a Japanese mine off Japan and was disabled, the Navy announced today.

The crew and the cargo were transferred safely to the U. S. S. Marin. The Bridge was pumped out and towed to an unannounced port.

The Navy did not say when the accident occurred, but said the turkey would reach destinations in time for Thanksgiving.

U. S. Ships Taking Japs Out of China

Chimwangtao, Nov. 17 (A. P.)—One hundred amphibious vessels have been allocated by the United States Navy to begin transporting Japanese soldiers home from China at a rate of 100,000 monthly.

Vice-Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, commander of the Seventh Amphibious Forces, said that repatriation operations from North China began yesterday under command of Rear Admiral Albert Noble of Preston, Tex.

CAPTIVES' RECORDS BURNED BY JAPAN

Allies Learn That Documents Were Destroyed on the Day That Hirohito Surrendered

DUANE HENNESSY

TOKYO, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Japanese military ordered prisoner-of-war records burned the day Emperor Hirohito commanded the nation to lay down its arms, the Recovered Personnel section of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters disclosed today.

Under Allied prompting, the Japanese have been able to offer only the most vague and incomplete explanations of the action.

Japan's liaison office said that the destruction had occurred when the Japanese were "psychologically in a state of utter confusion, if not panic-stricken."

The actual orders to burn the highly important documents were issued orally last Aug. 15 from the Ministry of War office at a liaison conference at Ichigoya. The missing records may concern as many as 30,000 persons, many still not traced, said Lieut. N. F. Churchill of Toledo, Ohio, of the Recovered Personnel office.

Lieutenant Churchill and twenty-five men are trying to trace more than 1,500 missing American B-29 airmen.

Japanese Abolish Draft

Lieut. Gen. Hiroshi Tamura, then director of the Prisoner of War Information Bureau and chief of the Prisoner of War Administration Bureau, later issued specific orders. Japanese officials acknowledged today that many documents had been destroyed that should not have been.

At the same time the Japanese Government abolished its compulsory military service law, drafted in 1872 under the Emperor Meiji.

Brig. Gen. Hugh Doffman, provost marshal for the bomb-ruined metropolis, said today that the "behavior of United States service men and Japanese civilians alike has been surprisingly good" since the occupation began.

Capt. Michael S. Frish, chief of operations of the 720th Military Police Battalion, reported that traffic violations and theft of jeeps were the most common offenses.

Three service men have been killed. No Japanese were involved. Of the hundreds of rape cases reported, only six have been substantiated.

Japs "Panic Stricken"

Japan's liaison office said the destruction occurred when the Nipponese were "psychologically in a state of utter confusion, if not panic stricken."

The actual orders to burn highly important documents were issued orally last August 15 from the Ministry of War office at a laison conference at Ichigoya. The missing records may concern as many as 30,000 persons, many still not traced, said Lieut. N. F. Churchill, of Toledo, Ohio, of the recovered personnel office.

Chinese Hunt U. S. Missing

CHUNGKINK, Nov. 17 (AP).—Rewards will be given to Chinese furnishing information on the whereabouts, cause of death or burial place of any missing American military personnel in China. An order from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek directed provincial and district officials to assist American authorities in the search.

TOJO COULD MAKE WASHINGTON TRIP

Tokyo, Nov. 17 (A. P.)—Omori prison officials said today that Hideki Tojo, Premier when Japan went to war with the United States, is physically able to make the trip to Washington to testify before the Pearl Harbor committee if he should be summoned.

They said the one-time dictator, presently awaiting trial as a war criminal, probably would find living conditions in the United States preferable to the rugged conditions under which he is living now.

HIROHITO SUMMONS DIET TO MEET NOV. 26

TOKYO, Sunday, Nov. 18—(AP) Emperor Hirohito today issued an imperial rescript calling the Japanese Diet into extraordinary session for 18 days beginning Nov. 26.

The Diet is expected to consider constitutional reforms as suggested by General MacArthur, and tackle food and shelter problems which threaten to bring hardship to the Japanese this winter.

It will be the Diet's 89th extraordinary session.

Hirohito At Father's Tomb

Tokyo, Nov. 17 (AP)—Emperor Hirohito today visited the Tama mausoleum, where his father, Emperor Taisho, is buried, and reported the war had ended in Japan's defeat.

Matsuoka Takes Poison

TOKYO, Sunday, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Army enwspaper, Stars and Stripes published today a report that Yosuke Matsuoka, former Japanese Foreign Minister who was credited with having taken Japan into the Tri-Partite pact, had attempted to commit suicide at his country villa at Shuenji. The report said that Matsuoka had used poison, instead of the traditional hara kiri knife or pistol. It attributed the death effort to his despair at the complete failure of the program that he helped to draft for Japan.

Few Crimes In Tokyo

Tokyo, Nov. 17 (AP)—There is no crime problem in Tokyo, once the world's third largest city.

Brig. Gen. Hugh Doffman, provost marshal for the bomb-ruined metropolis, said today that "behavior of United States service men and Japanese civilians alike has been surprisingly good" since the occupation began.

Capt. Michael S. Frish, chief of operations of the 720th Military Police Battalion, reported that traffic violations and theft of jeeps are the most common offenses.

Gob Picks Halsey As Fleet Sinatra

TOKYO — (AP) Men aboard the carrier, Bon Homme Richard, which took part in the Third Fleet's final "knockout" offensive against the Japanese homeland, were asked to select their favorite song and singer for a nation-wide radio program.

Among the ballots cast was this one:

Favorite song — "Empty Saddle."
Favorite singer — "Bull" Halsey.

Yamashita Trial Gets Setback

Witness Says General Was Not in Command as Naval Forces Fought in Manila.

Manila, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—Attempts to link Lieut.-Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita with atrocities in Manila during the latter stages of the American campaign received a setback today when a Japanese Army commander asserted that naval forces fought most of the battle in the capital streets.

The prosecution called the witness, Lieut.-Gen. Shizuwo Yokoyama, after informing the commission trying Yamashita on war criminal charges that it wished to establish links of command between Yamashita as over-all commander and Yokoyama as leader of the Manila defenses.

Yokoyama testified, however, that naval forces defended the city despite his order they move to the outskirts. His command included Manila, he said, while Yamashita transferred to Baguio. The city's defenders, Yokoyama testified, were "virtually on their own" under Rear Admiral Iwabuchi; communications were unreliable.

Says Count Was in Command.

Yokoyama also rocked the prosecution's contention that Yamashita was responsible for atrocities in the prisoner of war camps and civilian internee prisons when he said that prior to November 17, 1944, Count Terauchi commanded the entire southern regions including the Philippines.

In response to a question by President Russell B. Reynolds of the commission as to what orders he had received about killing Filipino civilians, Yokoyama said that he had received instructions from Yamashita to "be fair with all Filipino people and handle them with caution."

Asked about orders to burn Manila, Yokoyama replied: "I didn't receive any such orders aside from certain demolitions for military purposes."

He asserted that naval forces under Iwabuchi were responsible for the major destruction in South Manila, acting under long standing naval orders with which he and Yamashita had no connection.

Contradicts Admiral.

Yokoyama's testimony was in direct contradiction with evidence given yesterday by Vice-Admiral Denshichi Okoochi, who said the army—not the navy—was answerable for all armed forces ashore after last January 6. (Americans invaded Luzon January 9.) During the day Yamashita heard a Filipino witness attribute to him a blunt order to "kill all prisoners of war."

Filemon Castillegos said a Japanese captain told him such an order was received from Yamashita and figured in the execution of three American airmen on Batan Island, northernmost of the Philippines. Earlier witnesses told of the execution of the airmen and the torture and murder of a First Cavalry Division trooper.

3d Amphibious Sailing Home

PEARL HARBOR, Nov. 17 (AP).—The Navy's 3d Amphibious Force, which fought the Pacific war all the way from Guadalcanal to Tokyo, arrived today en route to the mainland, where it will be dissolved. The 3d will leave later today for San Francisco, arriving there Nov. 22.

RIO DE JANEIRO—(AP) By decree, President Vargas of Brazil has offered the French government a plot of ground on which to build a "House of France"—a center of French culture—to tighten the link of friendship between Brazil and France.

Both Sides Easing Windsor Stands

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 17. (AP)—Spurred by the Dominion Government, both sides today edged toward negotiations for a settlement of the nine-week-old strike at the Ford Motor Company of Canada.

The Ford walkout, which began September 12, and sympathy strikes in Windsor and the rest of Ontario have left over 20,000 workers idle.

The biggest stumbling block to negotiations has been the Ford Company's demand that picketing first cease and the CIO United Auto Workers men return to their jobs. The company suggests that negotiations then be limited to ten days, after which unsettled questions would be submitted to arbitration.

Concessions Made

This is a concession from Ford's original stand, calling for arbitration under Government supervision.

The union has met one company demand by agreeing to open the power house at the Ford plant here, and to permit company eexcutives to cross picket lines.

The company declined to accept this offer, however, until all pickets are withdrawn. The union is unwilling to call off the strike before negotiations are completed.

Cabinet Man's Stand

Canadian Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell, in a telegram yesterday to Ford officials, urged favorable consideration of the union's negotiating proposal and, in an address to the Dominion House of Commons, termed it "fair and reasonable."

The union wants the company to negotiate on demands for a union shop, check off system and wage increases.

Attlee and King in Ottawa

Britain and Canada to Open Talks on Currency and Trade

OTTAWA, Nov. 17 (AP).—Prime Ministers Attlee and W. L. MacKenzie King of Great Britain and Canada arrived in the Canadian capital from the Washington atomic conferences just after noon today.

British and Canadian officials and experts will engage in a series of conferences which may bring far-reaching decisions on currency and trade questions linked with the British and American economic talks that have been proceeding in Washington.

Jap Carriers Got Signal From Tokyo on Dec. 5 To Launch Pearl Harbor Raid

ADMIRAL INGLIS TELLS PROBERS OF ATTACK MESSAGE

Task Force was 1,000 Miles from Hawaii When Order was Received.

USED 361 PLANES

Nips Were Prepared to Call Off Raid if Diplomatic Talks Succeeded.

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—(AP) A coded message "Climb Mt. Niitaka" radioed from Tokyo Dec. 5 (Hawaiian time), 1941, gave a Japanese task force the signal to launch its sneak attack on Pearl Harbor Congressional investigators were told today.

They also were informed that the Japanese were prepared to call off the attack if diplomatic negotiations in Washington had succeeded.

Rear Adm. T. B. Inglis related to the Senate-House committee the story of Japanese planning as gleaned from captured documents, questioning of prisoners and, after the occupation, the Tokyo archives and questioning of the Imperial Naval Command.

He said information as to the "Mt. Niitaka" message had reached him from American headquarters in Tokyo only last night and had forced revision of an earlier conclusion that the Japanese irrevocably cast the die for war on Dec. 1, 1941.

The task force had left Hitokappu bay, in the southern Kuriles, Nov. 25, Inglis said, under instructions which included this statement:

"Should it appear certain that Japanese-American negotiations will reach an amicable settlement prior to the commencement of hostile action, all the forces of the combined fleet are to be ordered to reassemble and return to their bases."

As it was, the fateful "Climb Mt. Niitaka" message was received when the task force of four carriers and escorts was between 800 and 1,000 miles from Hawaii.

The ships moved on to within 200 miles and in the dawn hours of Dec. 7 loosed 361 planes to blast the Hawaiian naval base and the proud ships riding at anchor there.

Clashes With Brewster

Inglis related the Japanese story after an angry clash with Senator Brewster (R-Maine) who accused him of making an "unqualifiedly false" statement in Friday's testimony. It concerned the division of American naval strength between the Pacific and the Atlantic.

The Maine senator's remarks added to already irritated relations between Republican and Democratic members of the committee. Senator Lucas (D-Ill) later issued a statement describing "the attacks" on witnesses as reaching "an all-time low."

Here are the high spots of Inglis' account (dates used are Japanese time which is one day later than Hawaiian time):

1. The Pearl Harbor attack was conceived in January, 1941, by Admiral Isoruku Yamamoto ("I'll dictate peace terms in the White House) who later was to die a flaming death when American airmen shot down his transport plane in the South Pacific.

2. The operation plan was completed Sept. 13 after summer war games and was issued to task force commanders Nov. 5. Two days later, Dec. 8 was set as "Y" day (the tentative date for attack).

3. The task force was assembled at Hitokappu and left there Nov. 26 (Japanese time) under instructions to deal "a mortal blow" to the American fleet if hostilities opened.

4. If the Pearl Harbor attack failed, it was planned to bring out the remainder of the Japanese naval strength for "a decisive engagement" with the American fleet.

"Implied in the plan," Inglis' report said, "is the assumption that, in the event of such an engagement, the combined strength of the bulk of available Japanese major fleet units would be sufficient to defeat the American fleet."

(Inglis had testified previously that the American naval forces in the Pacific were numerically inferior to the Japanese.)

5. Emperor Hirohito is reported to have known in advance "only the general outline" of the plan and ambassadors Nomura and Kurusu, who were talking peace in the United States, nothing of it.

(Inglis said this report as to Hirohito was based on "the recollection of one officer.")

6. No plans were made to follow up the attack with troop landings because additional ships would have presented difficult supply problems.

7. The force had instructions to turn back if detected as early as two days before "X" (attack) day but to use its own judgment if it should be detected only on the day before "X" day.

After Inglis' report, Brewster told a reporter he felt the Navy had not "pre-judged" the question of whether then Secretary of State Hull's counterproposals to the Japanese on Nov. 26 had touched off the war. Any possibility of that appeared removed, he added, by the Mt. Niitaka message.

An Army board which inquired into the Pearl Harbor disaster had reported that Hull's action "was used by the Japanese as the signal to begin the war."

That statement has been a subject of controversy with Secretary of State Byrnes and others contending the Japanese intentions had been formulated long before the counterproposals were delivered.

Brewster's tilt with Inglis developed from the Admiral's testimony that there were nine battleships in the Pacific and six in the Atlantic at the time of Pearl Harbor.

That testimony was given under questioning of Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) who later developed that there were six battleships with the Atlantic fleet and two other battleships—the new North Carolina and the new Washington—in the Atlantic on "shakedown" cruises.

When Brewster called the original testimony "unqualifiedly false," Chairman Barkley (D-Ky) admonished that the hearings should be conducted with "decorum and order."

"I'm making a statement of fact," Brewster replied with warmth.

He went on to tell Inglis that there appeared to be "an attitude of mind, particularly on the part of the Navy, that Congress is not entitled to information."

Angrily but self-contained, Inglis declared Brewster had "impugned my honesty and my motives" and he resented it. He thought it was clear, he added, that he was speaking of ships with the fleet, "not those in the blueprint stage, on the ways or not ready to join the fleet."

Neither he nor the Navy, he said, wished to withhold any information.

As the day's session closed, Rep. Cooper (D-Tenn), the vice chairman, complimented Ingl's and Col. Bernard Thielen, an Army witness for three days, on the way they had "conducted" themselves. Barkley remarked there should be a testimonial session for them.

Brewster Revises Stand

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP).—Senator Owen Brewster, Republican, of Maine, said today he now feels that the Navy did not "prejudice" the question of whether former Secretary of State Cordell Hull's counter-proposals to the Japanese touched off the war.

Senator Brewster told a news conference last night that a Navy-prepared summary giving the Japanese story of the attack on Pearl Harbor was designed to show that Mr. Hull was "not responsible for the war."

He made his later statement to a reporter after a Navy Department representative told Pearl Harbor investigators that a coded message, "Climb Mount Niitaka," radioed from Tokyo Dec. 5, 1941, was the signal for the attack two days later.

An Army Pearl Harbor board of inquiry reported several months ago that Mr. Hull's action "was used as the signal to begin the war."

Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis told the Senate-House Pearl Harbor committee that the "Climb Mount Niitaka" information was received scribed attempts by Republicans on the Pearl Harbor investigation committee to search the personal files of the late President Roosevelt as a "political fishing expedition," and added: "I expect them in their bitterness and their complete lack of a program of their own, to carry on this desperate search for a political smudgepot, a muck rake, and some way of making their accusations and innuendoes stick where they are trying to plaster them—on our country's great and honored dead."

Hannegan Assails Tactics In Pearl Harbor Inquiry

Says Republicans Attempt to 'Smear' Roosevelt

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Nov. 17 (AP).—Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, accused the Republican opposition today of attempting to use the Pearl Harbor investigation to "smear Roosevelt."

He called it a "tactic of desperation by a party without a program."

In an address prepared for delivery before the Indiana Democratic Editorial Association, he de-

CATHOLIC BISHOPS STRIKE AT RUSSIA

Assert 'Religious Persecution Raging in Sphere of Red Influence.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP) The Catholic bishops of the United States asserted today "religious persecution which is both brutal and cunning rages in many lands" now in the Russian sphere of influence.

"What is happening behind the blackout of eastern and southeastern Europe," the church dignataries said in a statement, "is a stark contradiction to the high ideals which inspired our fighting to save the world from totalitarian aggression."

Terming the pattern of peace emerging from conferences of the United Nations "disappointing in the extreme," the bishops declared:

"Our country has the power, the right and the responsibility to demand a genuine peace, based on justice which will answer the cry in the hearts of men across the world."

The statement, issued at the conclusion of the bishops' annual conference here, was signed by the Administrative board of the National Catholic Welfare conference, in behalf of all United States bishops of the church. The signers are:

The Signers

Samuel A. Stritch, Archbishop of Chicago, chairman; John Gregory Murray, Archbishop of St. Paul, vice-chairman; Francis J. Spellman, Archbishop of New York, secretary; John Mark Gannan, Bishop of Erie, treasurer; John J. Mitty, Archbishop of San Francisco, Joseph F. Rummel, Archbishop of New Orleans, Richard J. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, James H. Ryan, Archbishop of Omaha, John F. Noll, Bishop of Fort Wayne, and Karl J. Alter, Bishop of Toledo.

The bishops said they recognized the need for working in unity with other nations, but added:

"Russia has acted unilaterally on many important settlements. It has sought to establish its sphere of influence in eastern and southeastern Europe, not on the basis of sound regional agreements in which sovereignties and rights are respected, but by the imposition of its sovereignty and by ruthlessly setting up helpless puppet states."

The statement said Russia's Asiatic policy 'is an enigma."

Criticizing the "absorption by force and artifice of the Baltic countries into the Union of Soviet Republics," the British continued:

'Shocked by News'

"We are shocked by the news which is leaking out from Slovakia, Croatia, Slovenia and other southeastern European countries. Religious persecution which is both brutal and cunning rages in many lands. No reason of policy justifies our silence. What is happening behind the blackout of eastern and southeastern Europe is a stark contradiction to the high ideals which inspired our fighting to save the world from totalitarian aggression."

The statement was critical also of United Nations' policies regarding Italy, Germany, Austria and Hungary, declaring:

"Whatever period of probation must be imposed on the vanquished nations; we must help them to take their rightful place in the family of nations. To treat them in a spirit of vengeance is neither right nor politic.

"Justice demands the punishment of the guilty and reasonable reparations of damage done. But we cannot forget x x x that our traditional system of punitive justice is anchored to the concept of individual responsibility.

"The inhumanities which now mark the mass transference of populations, the systematized use of slave labor and the cruel treatment of prisoners of war should have no place in our civilization."

The statement said the United States should provide the major portion of relief for the stricken nations of the world and stated that "it is imperative that Congress make adequate appropriations for this work."

Text of U. S. Catholic Bishops' Statement

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP).—Following is the complete text of a statement, "Between War and Peace," issued today by the Catholic bishops of the United States:

The war is over, but there is no peace in the world. In the Atlantic Charter we were given the broad outline of the peace for which we fought and bled and, at an incalculable price, won a great martial victory. It was that ideal of peace which sustained us through the war, which inspired the heroic defense of liberty by millions driven underground in enslaved countries. It made small, oppressed nations confide in us as the trustee of their freedoms. It was the broad outline of a good peace. Are we going to give up this ideal of peace? If, under the pretext of a false realism, we do so, then we shall stand face to face with the awful catastrophe of atomic war.

Since the Moscow conference of 1943 the United States, Great Britain and Russia have undertaken to shape gradually the peace which they are imposing on the nations. From the conferences of these victorious powers there is emerging slowly their pattern for the peace. It is disappointing in the extreme. Assurances are given us in the announced peace principles of our country, but so far results do not square with these principles. We are in perhaps the greatest crisis of human history. Our country has the power, the right and the responsibility to demand a genuine peace, based on justice, which will answer the cry in the hearts of men across the world.

We want to work in unity with other nations for the making of a good peace. During the war, perhaps, it may have been necessary for strategic reasons to postpone final decisions on many questions mooted at the conferences of the three great powers. Now we must face the facts. There are profound differences of thought and policy between Russia and the Western democracies. Russia has acted unilaterally on many important settlements. It has sought to establish its sphere of influence in eastern and southeastern Europe, not on the basis of sound regional agreements in which sovereignties and rights are respected, but by the imposition of its sovereignty and by ruthlessly setting up helpless puppet states. Its Asiatic policy, so important for the peace of the world, is an enigma.

Clash of Ideologies

The totalitarian dictators promised benefits to the masses through an omnipotent police-state which extends its authority to all human relations and recognizes no innate freedoms. Their theories, moreover, look to the realization of world well-being as ultimately to be secured by the inclusion of all countries in their system. Sometimes Russia uses our vocabulary and talks of democracy and rights, but it attaches distorted meanings to the words. We think in terms of our historic culture. We see God-given, inviolable human rights in every person, and we know democracy as the free collaboration under law of citizens in a free country.

There is a clash of ideologies. The frank recognition of these differences is preliminary to any sincere effort in realistic world co-operation for peace. The basis of this co-operation must be mutual adherence to justice. It would be unjust for us to be an accomplice in violating the rights of nations, groups and individuals anywhere in the world.

A first step toward effective negotiation for peace is to have a plan. A good plan states principles in terms of all the specific questions at issue. Instead, so far we have compromised and sought to make mere piecemeal settlements. Instead of honest, promising discussion even on diverging plans, we are witnessing a return of the old game of power politics and the danger of balance of power arrangements which, with the substitution of mere expediency for justice, have begotten war after war. We must indeed aim at collaborating with all of our allies in the making of a good peace. There are, however, concessions which we dare not make because they are immoral and destructive of genuine peace.

San Francisco Charter

Our peace program envisions a world organization of nations. The charter which emerged from the San Francisco conference, while undoubtedly an improvement on the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, does not provide for a sound, institutional organization of the international society. The Security Council provisions make it no more than a virtual alliance of the great powers for the maintenance of peace. These nations are given a status above the law. Nevertheless, our country acted wisely in deciding to participate in this world organization. It is better than world chaos. From the provision in the charter for calling a constituent assembly in the future, there comes the hope that in time the defects may be eliminated and we may have a sound, institutional organization of the international community, which will develop not through mere voluntary concessions of the nations but from the recognition of the rights and duties of international society.

While peace is in the making, there are urgent issues which we can no longer evade. At Yalta we gave a pledge to the Polish people and assumed responsibility before the world that they would be unhampered in setting up their own independent, democratic government. Are we working to the fulfillment of that pledge in the full measure of our responsibility and our power? What apology can be offered for the failure of the protagonists of democracy to protest the absorption by force and artifice of the Baltic countries into the Union of Soviet Republics? We are shocked by the news which is leaking out from Slovakia, Croatia, Slovenia and other southeastern European countries.

Religious persecution, which is both brutal and cunning, rages in many lands. No reason of policy justifies our silence. What is happening behind the blackout of eastern and southeastern Europe is a stark contradiction to the high ideals which inspired our fighting to save the world from totalitarian aggression.

U. S. Stake in Italy

No one can fail to see the importance of a reconstructed, revitalized Europe, which is the cradle of Western culture. We deplore the tragic indifference to the plight of the Italian people who threw off the chains of a Fascist regime, who fought side by side with us in ardent loyalty. For over two long years of agony the friends of democracy in that country have had to stand by in impotence while we have toyed with the vital problems of relief and rehabilitation and deferred the fulfillment of our own solemn promises.

Our own national interest, as well as the cause of world peace, and the fate of Christian culture are at stake in Italy. Today it is an outpost of Western civilization. We are fully confident that the Italian people, if we save them from despair by our helpful interest, will stand fast against the deceitful appeal of alien and subversive ideologies and shape their future in the spirit of their own noble Christian tradition.

We cannot be unconcerned about the future of Germany, Austria and Hungary. Whatever period of probation must be imposed on the vanquished nations, we must help them to take their rightful place in the family of nations. To treat them in a spirit of vengeance is neither right nor politic. Justice demands the punishment of the guilty and reasonable reparations of damage done. But we cannot forget, or allow our representatives to forget, that our additional system of punitive justice is anchored to the concept of individual responsibility. The inhumanities which now mark the mass transference of populations, the systematized use of slave labor and the cruel treatment of prisoners of war should have no place in our civilization.

Need of Relief Measures

Acute suffering is the daily lot of whole populations in many war-torn lands. Every report indicates that unless heroic measures are taken at once, millions will die from starvation and exposure during the coming winter. The feeding and clothing and sheltering of these suffering people is not a work which can be left to some future convenient date. Our country, because of our greater resources, must do the major part of this work of relief. In it we have the right and duty to insist on the leadership which corresponds to our sacrifices and contributions. It is imperative that Congress make adequate appropriations for this work from the public Treasury.

It is equally imperative that private relief agencies be given a full opportunity to carry on their beneficent work among all suffering peoples. And relief must envision something larger than merely feeding the starving and sheltering the homeless. Help must be given to peoples whose economies are ruined. They have the right to assistance in getting back to normal economic life. Neither the prosperity of the greater nations nor their might will prevent war unless conditions are removed in which poor, helpless peoples are denied the opportunity of a decent living standard. The world is one only in so far as men live together as brothers under God.

Ours is a grave responsibility. The heart and hand of America are called upon in a way that is unique, not only in the history of our country but even in the annals of mankind. We know that democracy is as capable of solving the admittedly difficult problems of peace as it has shown itself in war. We must be true to ourselves. We must hold fast to our own free institutions. We must resolutely oppose the few among us who are trying to sabotage them. We may well pity those who in their half-veiled sympathy for totalitarianism are playing with the thought that perhaps in this great emergency its day is at hand. On bended knees let us ask God in His blessed Providence to help us to be the vigorous champion of democratic freedom and the generous friend of the needy and oppressed throughout the world.

By Mutual Consent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Senator Smith disclosed today that a speech he had agreed to make to the Zionist meeting had been canceled by mutual agreement.

Albert B. Hermann, the Senator's secretary, explained that after Zionist organization officials here had read the Senator's prepared address they had asked if he might discuss more recent developments in the Palestine situation.

The Senator, although he has expressed his interest in settling the Palestine immigration problem, told the officials that he had not had time to study recent statements by President Truman, Prime Minister Clement Attlee and British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin on the subject or to make the research necessary to meet their request.

"There was no misunderstanding between the Senator of their desire for one type of speech and the inability of the Senator, because of the time element, to meet their request. The cancellation was by friendly, mutual agreement," said Mr. Hermann.

FREE EXCHANGE OF IDEAS, AIM

Charter For A Proposed New UNO Agency Released

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—The State Department released tonight a proposed charter for a United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organization devoted to stimulating a free exchange of ideas among peoples.

The charter was worked out in London in a conference of 43 nations with one other as an observer—but Russia was neither a member nor represented. An earlier draft was made public here several months ago.

The announced purpose of the organization and the charter is to bring about among other things an exchange of scientific information such as that which President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Prime Minister Mackenzie King proposed in their atomic energy policy statement earlier this week.

The charter declares that "ignorance of each other's ways and lives has been a common cause throughout the history of mankind of that suspicion and mistrust between the peoples of the world through which their differences have all too often broken into war."

The educational organization is to have its headquarters in Paris. Its charter will become effective when ratified by twenty of the 43 nations which created it. The forty-fourth nation, Venezuela, was represented at London by an observer.

Ban On A-Bomb Use By Treaty Urged

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Kenneth D. McKellar, president pro tempore of the Senate, proposed today that the atomic bomb be outlawed by treaty as a weapon of warfare.

"I am sure the United States does not believe war should be waged by the wholesale killing of guilty and innocent," he said. "Therefore the atomic bomb should be outlawed as a weapon."

He suggested that Congress could take the first step by adopting a resolution expressing that sentiment.

"Would Mean War"

McKellar asserted that "to turn a thing like this loose in the world indiscriminately would mean another war. If we gave it to one nation we would be obliged in justice to give it to all."

Meanwhile, the eleven-man Senate Atomic Energy Committee made ready to fly to Oak Ridge, Tenn., Tuesday to inspect the large secret installations there. The committee plans to begin public hearings on control legislation November 26.

Chinese Favors UNO Plan

Chungking, Nov. 17 (AP)—Official Chinese quarters, while withholding comment, indicated today that China would support the Truman-Attlee proposal to create a United Nations commission to control atomic research.

Unofficial quarters said China would have full confidence in an Anglo-American guardianship of atom-bomb secrets—making no mention of Russia as a coguardian, although she is one of the United Nations.

The Communist New China Daily News observed that any attempt to keep atomic development secret would be "useless and foolish," would only stimulate suspicion between nations and that Russians would eventually discover the technique themselves, anyway.

Atomic-Fueled Power-House Planning In 10 Years Seen

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP)—Within ten years power companies designing new plants for city service may be considering favorably the use of uranium's atomic heat instead of coal.

This prediction was made to the American Philosophical Society and the National Academy of Sciences here by Dr. Arthur H. Compton, the Nobel prize scientist who headed the scientific work that produced the present atomic ovens to manufacture plutonium at Pasco, Wash. He is now president of Washington University in St. Louis.

Reason Purely Economic

He said the power companies would consider the substitution of uranium for coal for purely economic reasons, adding that this forecast did not take into account the possibility of political or social controls which might change atomic power developments.

"This, of course," Dr. Compton said, "does not mean that atomic power will put coal out of business. Each will have its own field. For small heating units, such as kitchen stove, atomic power has no place. If our national economy grows as it should, coal as a chemical agent will increase in importance."

No Smoke

Dr. Compton said uranium may reduce the cost of heat and power to cities. There will be the boon of no smoke.

"I wish," he said, "that I could show you the atomic power plants. (In addition to Pasco there is one at Oak Ridge, Tenn., also making plutonium.) They are the sweetest machinery operating with the least trouble of any power plant that I know."

Dr. Compton said that a reasonably efficient atomic power plant could be put into operation within a year, making superheated steam to drive a turbine. But this plant would be only a demonstration and not economical without a number of years of further development.

Prominent Advantages

"Prominent advantages of atomic power," he said, "are the extraordinary low rate of fuel consumption and consequent low cost of fuel, wide flexibility and easy control, and complete absence at the power plant of smoke or noxious fumes.

"With the prewar price of uranium oxide at roughly $3 per pound, and of coal at $3 per ton, this would mean the economical use of uranium as fuel if only one part in a thousand of its available energy is used. Actually we should expect the first plants built for producing atomic power to be considerably more efficient than this, which would mean a substantial cost advantage for uranium."

"Can't Explode Accidentally"

This uranium power will be safe. Dr. Compton said that atomic explosions, such as destroyed Hiroshima, cannot occur accidentally.

The rays emitted by the burning uranium will limit power units to perhaps a minimum size of 50 tons. Most of this weight is the two or three feet of solid steel, which Dr. Compton said is needed to shield personnel.

Advocates World Government

Dr. Compton added that world government has become inevitable.

"The choice before us," he declared, "is whether this government will be agreed upon or whether we elect to fight a catrastrophic third World War to determine who shall be master.

"No city of over 100,000 population will remain as an effective operating center after the first hour of the war. At least ten per cent of the attacked nation's population will be wiped out in the initial blow."

He said that atomic disarmament would be a fatal mistake which would give some ambitious nation a chance to make these weapons with the hope of mastering the world. The answer, he added, is to outlaw war itself by use of a strong world police force.

'NEW WORLD' WIRE WON ATOM GO-SIGN

Message Let Capital Know Of Fire Started By Fermi

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP)—The story of a camouflaged message that was worth $1,000,000,000 in appropriations for the atomic bomb was told today to the conference on atomic energy held by the American Philosophical Society and the National Academy of Sciences.

The message was from the University of Chicago to Dr. James B. Conant in Washington, on December 2, 1942, when, in the squash court under the west stands of Stagg Field, the first atomic fire in human history was started by Enrico Fermi and his associates. The fire was in uranium metal, due to splitting atoms, It was the first break into the new world of atomic energy.

"Landed On New World"

Fermi is a native of Italy and had arrived in this country three years previously. The story was told by Dr. Arthur H. Compton, then head of the Chicago project.

The message read:

"Italian navigator has landed on the new world. He found the world somewhat smaller than he expected."

Conant asked: "Were the natives friendly?"

"Yes."

The message secretly meant success, the smaller world meant the fire was not as violent as had been expected. Friendly natives was the go-ahead signal for everything on the atomic bomb. Washington had been waiting for days for news of this fire.

NIMITZ URGES COUNCIL PLAN OVER MERGER

Admiral Asserts It Would Insure Co-ordination of Over-all Policies.

REVERSES VIEWS OF YEAR AGO

Tells Senators Disadvantages of Service Consolidation Are 'Not Acceptable.'

Washington, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz today urged adoption of Secretary of Navy Forrestal's plan for a National Security Council as an alternative to a merger of the armed forces in a single Department of Defense.

The Pacific Fleet commander told the Senate Military Committee that creation of such a council, composed of secretaries of the War, Navy and State departments, would insure co-ordination of military and navy plans with the nation's foreign policy and the activities of the United Nations Organization.

"As a means of getting the services together, this would seem to be more workable and in its way, more far-reaching . . . than an uncertain merging of the two existing military departments," he asserted.

Advantages Unattainable.

Nimitz, who once favored a merger but later changed his mind, said that "in theory" there is much to recommend a merger. but, he argued, the theoretical advantages are "unattainable, whereas the disadvantages are so serious that it is not acceptable."

The white-haired sea-fighter contended that the yardstick for evaluating any merger plan is: "How does it affect our seapower?" Under a merger, he declared, the Navy either would retain its present autonomy and prestige or it would drop to a secondary service. If the first possibility results, he said, the Navy might as well remain a separate department.

"Our country is dependent on seapower for its external influence," he told the committee. "If we control the sea-lanes, we have influence. If we don't we are limited to the boundaries of our country."

Has No Apology.

Nimitz emphasized he had no apology for revising his stand of a year ago on the merger plan.

"I repeat—I make no apologies. In the war in the Pacific I had occasion to change my mind as to a number of operations. I hope I retain a flexibility of mind which enables me to change my ideas to meet changed conditions."

After reviewing the successful prosecution of the war in the Pacific, Nimitz said:

"It is clear from this brief sketch of the last year that many operations by many forces—land, sea and air—were closely integrated in our strategy.

"It is also clear that the defeat of Japanese sea power, and the preponderance of our own sea power, played a tremendously important part in the result.

"I feel that the successes which led to this result are convincing evidence of the merit of the system under which they were accomplished," he said. "Our successes were more rapid than I had believed possible a year ago. I believe we should have very good reasons—better reasons than any offered so far—before we change a system that has proved itself so effective."

In the Pacific victory, Nimitz declared: "I believe there is credit enough for all. In particular I wish at all times to give full credit to air power, which I have consistently held to be as essential in war as ships or troops."

Bomber Bases Need Protection.

He remarked, however, that the Navy provided and protected the ships which supplied the bomber bases "and would be required to protect such shipping in the future" for the maintenance of bombers based outside the United States.

Summarizes Points.

Nimitz said that he wished to make these other main points against the merger plan:

1. "There are faults in the present system" of supply and use of resources, but "I believe the remedy . . . is not only unnecessarily extreme, but it gives no assurance of an adequate solution. . . .

"I believe, rather, that what we really need is a national agency of much broader scope to co-ordinate the intelligent use of allocation of all our national resources."

2. "Should the strategic air force be set up as a separate entity, with its own administrative and supply systems, the duplication in services and facilities which is frequently advanced as a reason for merging the Army and Navy, would become a possibility of triplication.

3. "A single department of national defense will have one of two consequences for the naval component. Either the Navy will retain all the autonomy, integrity and prestige necessary to carry out its functions, in which case it might as well remain a separate department; or

"It will lose these advantages, either gradually or at once, and become a secondary service."

Nimitz Goes to Fleet After Thanksgiving

Washington, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said today he will return to the Pacific Fleet shortly after Thanksgiving. After a conference with President Truman which he described as too personal to talk about, the fleet admiral said he will go to Chicago next week to receive a medal at the American Legion convention, return here for the conferences with Admiral Ernest J. King, Chief of Naval Operations, get his "teeth into some Thanksgiving turkey," then go back to his command.

Senator Bids Congress Stick To Law-Making

Murdock, Backing Federal Reorganization, Hits Use of Time in Investigations

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP).—A Democratic Senate leader suggested that Congress use more time law making, less investigating, as the government reorganization bill ended the week a poor second to the more spectacular inquiries.

Senator Abe Murdock, Democrat, of Utah, offered this advice in sending the Senate into its usual week-end recess last night with less than a dozen members present. He was acting as Democratic leader at the time.

The recess delayed action on the reorganization bill that President Truman told Congress last May 24 was needed "without delay."

Calling attention to the numerous "empty benches" in the Senate chamber, Senator Murdock said one of the causes is "that Congress is more interested, and has been for some time, in investigations than it is in its legislative functions."

"There are not as many headlines in the burdensome task of writing legislation as there are in connection with certain investigations," Senator Murdock observed.

As he spoke, the Pearl Harbor inquiry was operating in the nearby Senate Office Building.

"I say that the way to bring proper procedure back to Congress is for Congress to exhibit more interest in its legislative functions," Senator Murdock added.

Earlier Senator H. Alexander Smith, Republican, of New Jersey, had offered a complete substitute for the pending reorganization bill. With support of other new Republican Senators, he argued that it would give President Truman "wider powers" to streamline government than the bill Senator Murdock was sponsoring for the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The substitute suggested that the President send any reorganization plan to Congress and that legislative machinery give it prompt consideration in House and Senate.

The Administration asked that Presidential reorganization plans be effective at the end of sixty days unless both Senate and House vetoed them.

Senator Walter F. George, Democrat, of Georgia, one of the veterans, told Senator Smith, a newcomer, that Congress never would be able to reorganize the government to any extent. The gray-haired Georgia Senator told of his experience in trying to revamp Federal bureaus and agencies.

"The moment you grab one of these executive children or even grandchildren and say you propose to do anything to it, the whole bunch comes up here and protests," Senator George said. "If they don't drive a man crazy, they at least take up so much of his time he can't get anything else done."

Despite lack of interest, Senator Murdock told reporters today he expected the Senate to defeat the Smith substitute and dispose of all other amendments early next week.

F. W. A. Head Hits Diffusion

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (AP).—Major General Philip B. Fleming, administrator of the Federal Works Agency, said today that the Federal government, in its efforts "to assist the states, local communities or the people as a whole," is "seriously handicapped by the present diffusion of its authority."

Declaring that the need for reorganizing the "Federal establishment has been recognized for almost 150 years," General Fleming said the government's "numerous departments, agencies and establishments have grown in size and increased in number with little thought to their co-ordination."

In an address prepared for the twenty-second annual conference of the American Municipal Association, General Fleming declared:

"For example, construction activities . . . are scattered hither and yon through half a dozen or more agencies—including the Federal Works, the Corps of Engineers, the National Housing Agency, the Veterans' Bureau, the Civil Aeronautics Administration, the Bureau of Reclamation and the Rural Electrification Administration.

"Duplication of like functions, or at least overlapping, exists not only in Washington but throughout the field service. Thus a dozen regional directors grow where there was only one before."

1945 HOUSE VOTE ON TRAINING FADES

May Blames Opponents for Lag at Hearings on Program Requested by Truman

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Prospects for a House vote this year on universal military training faded today as Chairman May expressed doubt that the Military Affairs Committee could finish hearings in December.

Because of a desire to keep the highly controversial subject out of next year's Congressional elections, House leaders had hoped to dispose of the legislation before Christmas.

"Many witnesses are still to be heard and we are not progressing as rapidly as we had hoped," Mr. May said, pointing out that after the hearings time would be required to write a bill.

He blamed opponents for the slow progress on President Truman's request for prompt action on legislation to require every able-bodied male to undergo one year of military training before becoming 20 years of age.

A group of committee Republicans, failing by a three-vote margin to postpone the hearings until next year, has objected to afternoon committee sessions, defeating earlier plans to hold hearings morning and afternoon. There can be no afternoon sessions while the House is meeting—and it has been meeting almost daily—if any member of the committee objects.

"We have accomplished what we set out to do—prevent too hasty consideration of this important matter," said Representative Arends, Republican, of Illinois. He doubted that the hearings would end before Jan. 1.

Only three witnesses, Secretary Patterson, General Eisenhower and Admiral King, have been heard. Waiting to testify are Secretary Forrestal and spokesmen for veterans' organizations, labor unions, industry, educational, religious and other groups.

The committee also wants testimony from the Army and Navy on how they plan to operate the program if Congress gives the sign to go ahead.

Navy Unfreezes 23,810 'Critical' Men

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Navy has made eligible for discharge 3,435 officers and 20,375 enlisted men previously "frozen" because need for their services was critical.

Of these, the department said, 2,350 officers and 7,392 enlisted men will have points enough for release by January 1.

Enlisted classifications and point scores:

Shore patrol specialists, 38; disbursing storekeeper, male 44, female 29; key punch operator specialists, male 38, female 23; punch card accounting machine operator specialists, male 44, female 29; hospital corpsmen with speciality in occupational or physical therapy and assigned to duty in continental United States hospitals or naval special hospitals, male 44, female 29; transportation specialists, male 44, female 29.

Unfrozen officer classifications:

Shore Patrol — Specialists on electric tabulating machines, postal; graduates or students of naval schools of Oriental languages; cost inspection service; physical or occupational therapy specialists in continental or special naval hospitals.

Grady Is Named Observer For Greek Vote

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—President Truman today appointed Dr. Henry F. Grady, of San Francisco, as his personal representative to observe the elections in Greece, set tentatively for January 20.

Dr. Grady, a former Assistant Secretary of State, is now president of the American President Lines. In his new capacity he will have the personal rank of ambassador.

The appointment was made in an unusual manner—by executive order. A White House secretary said he believed this method was used in order to facilitate the State and War departments' assignment of personnel to assist Dr. Grady.

Dr. Grady is now in London conferring with "appropriate officials," the White House said. He will go to Greece for further conferences and will return to this country for a visit prior to the elections.

McNutt Leaves For Manila Today

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Paul V. McNutt, high commissioner, today said the American people were paying too much attention to "Poland, Bulgaria, Germany and Japan" and not enough to "our own war-ravaged nationals in the Philippines."

In a farewell news conference before leaving by plane tomorrow to take up his duties in Manila, McNutt said all nations "are watching what we do in the Philippines as a test of our sincerity as a world power."

"We must not let the example of the Philippines be thrown in our face later as an illustration of international hypocrisy," he added.

McNutt said the United States must not let "special interests or pinch-penny niggardliness" prevent it from carrying out its responsibilities in the Philippines.

From 1937-1939, McNutt served as high commissioner to the islands. But he termed his new assignment "tougher than any I've ever had."

He said he had "no quick formula" to solve reconstruction problems, but would investigate to obtain facts on collaborationism in the islands "so the issue no longer divides the people."

Philippine independence will go through as scheduled July 4, 1946, he said, "unless there is an official request from the Filipino people for other action."

McNutt will stop at Chicago to attend the American Legion convention and will reach Manila tomorrow by special transport to take up his duties. Belgrano, president of the Oakland Central Bank and board chairman of the Pacific National Fire Insurance Company, will leave two days later.

McNutt's office said Belgrano would recommend steps to be taken "to straighten out the tangled financial situation caused by three years of Japanese occupation of the Philippines."

Belgrano Appointed To Advise McNutt

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Frank N. Belgrano, of Oakland, Cal., former national commander of the American Legion, has been appointed financial adviser to Philippine High Commissioner Paul V. McNutt, it was announced today.

McNutt is scheduled to leave for Manila tomorrow by special transport to take up his duties. Belgrano, president of the Oakland Central Bank and board chairman of the Pacific National Fire Insurance Company, will leave two days later.

McNutt's office said Belgrano would recommend steps to be taken "to straighten out the tangled financial situation caused by three years of Japanese occupation of the Philippines."

Mrs. Luce Seeks to Halt Deporting of 3 Russians

Trio Fear Return to Soviets Would Mean Execution

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP).—Clare Boothe Luce, Republican, of Connecticut, said today she has acted to halt deportation of three Russians in order to give them an opportunity to "escape from political oppression."

Her measure would stay deportation proceedings against Alexander Kalenin, nineteen; Leon de Witte Razvadovsky, twenty-five, and Paul Louzbine, twenty-eight. The three are being held at Ellis Island, in New York Harbor.

Mrs. Luce said that although the three are claimed as Russian subjects "they have declared their belief that return to the power of the Soviet authorities would mean their imprisonment and probable execution because of their adherence to the representative rather than the Communist form of government."

Declaring that the men have show an apparently sincere desire to escape from political oppression, Mrs. Luce said:

"This bill is for the purpose of giving them a chance to prove that sincerity, and is in line with basic American principles of political asylum—the same asylum which was given to many of the founders of the present Soviet Union at the time they were proscribed by the government in Russia.

"Louzbine has made several efforts to escape from Russia. Razvadovsky, during World War II, served first in the French Army and after 1940 in the Polish forces. His actual residence in Russia ended when he was three years old and left Russia with his parents. Kalenin enlisted in the Red Army at the age of sixteen, was captured by the Germans, liberated by the American Army units and given a uniform and identification papers permitting his remaining in France, until the end of the war."

Edward C. Moran to Quit As Aid to Schwellenbach

Will Devote Himself to Private Affairs in Rockland, Me.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP).—Edward C. Moran, Second Assistant Secretary of Labor, disclosed today that he has resigned, effective next Tuesday.

Mr. Moran, former member of the House from Maine, and close friend of Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach, is quitting, he said, to attend to private affairs in Rockland, Me. He heads an insurance firm.

He said that he helped to write a new city charter for Rockland which was adopted by the electorate in September and that he now seeks a place on the non-partisan city council in elections to be held Dec. 3.

Mr. Moran served two terms in the House as a Democratic member but was not a candidate for a third term. He is also a former member of the United States Maritime Commission.

He was brought back to Washington by Secretary Schwellenbach when the Secretary joined the Cabinet July 1.

Butcher of Warsaw Flown to Washington

Washington, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—Josef A. Meisinger, a German Gestapo chief, arrived by plane in Washington early today in custody of two American officers.

Meisinger, called the butcher of Warsaw, is being taken to Frankfurt, Germany, to face charges that he ordered the slaughter of 100,000 Warsaw Jews between 1939 and 1941. He was apprehended in Japan.

Nazi Scientists In U.S. Since September

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—A group of German scientists brought to the United States in September is believed to be the development staff of the Nazis' V-weapon base at Peenemuende.

A recent dispatch from Stockholm quoted an unnamed British officer as saying the entire German staff at the rocket-weapon base, about 90 men, was transferred to the United States.

Asked about this, War Department officials referred questioners to a cryptic statement issued several weeks ago which said "certain outstanding German scientists and technicians" were being brought here to help the United States "take full advantage of these significant developments, which are deemed vital to our national security."

The department said the scientists would be used for military projects of both the Army and Navy. Officials emphasized today that their work would not involve any civilian aspects.

88 Arrive At N.Y.

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—A secret party of 88 German scientists, reputedly in possession of some of the Nazis' top scientific secrets, debarked last night from the transport Argentina under the eyes of the FBI and Government intelligence officers.

U. S. Ready to Prosecute Curley Over War Bids

Mayor-Elect of Boston and 5 Others Face Trial Tuesday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP).—The government is ready to proceed Tuesday with prosecution of Representative James M. Curley, Democrat, of Massachusetts, Mayor-elect of Boston, and five others indicted with him as associates in a war-contracts firm, a Justice Department spokesman said today.

William A. Paisley, a special assistant to the Attorney General in charge of prosecution of the case, told a reporter: "Os far as I know, the trial will go on. I know I am going to be there."

The trial has been deferred several times. The defendants were indicted by a Federal Grand Jury on sixteen counts on Jan. 3, 1944, on charges of using the mails to defraud. All pleaded innocent when arraigned shortly after return of the indictment.

The trial was postponed more than a year because several defense attorneys were employed in a sedition trial. Last April it was deferred again because of Representative Curley's illness. Put over until fall, it was again held over until after the election in Boston.

The defendants were alleged associates in the firm of Engineers Group, Inc. In addition to Representative Curley, they are listed by the Justice Department as James G. Fuller, formerly of Washington but now serving a five-year term in a Federal penitentiary for sending fraudulent securities through the mails; Donald Wakefield Smith, of Washington and Pittsburgh; James Barton Underwood, formerly of Washington; Bert Hall, of Dallas, Tex., and Tulsa, Okla., and David E. Desmond, of Boston.

Move to Curb Labor Unions' Election Gifts Is Renewed

Treasury Says They Took $389,686,000 While Paying No Taxes—Farm Co-ops Had $2,223,000,000 Income in 1943.

Washington, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—A Treasury report that 28,638 labor unions and organizations took in $389,686,000 in one year brought renewed insistence among some lawmakers today that curbs be placed on union financial contributions in elections.

Congress also confronted one of its most explosive tax problems as the report disclosed that tax-exempt organizations, including unions and farm co-operatives, had gross income of $5,000,000,000 in 1943.

Farm co-ops, the report said, collected a gross of $2,233,904,000 that year.

Survey Ordered by Congress.

The report on income of tax-exempt organizations was prepared on direct instructions from Congress. The requirement was written into the tax law early last year when there was wide controversy over contributions to political campaigns.

Representative Smith (D.-Va.), co-author of the Smith-Connally war labor disputes act, told newspaper men this first report on the income of unions "shows a very definite need for strengthening the corrupt practices law to prevent unions from financing elections, as was done in 1944."

Taking note of the gross income of co-ops, Senator George (D.-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said:

"We have got to look into this matter from a tax viewpoint. The co-ops are growing by leaps and bounds. The possibilities of their qualifying for tax exemption have multiplied. They present a problem not only for other enterprise, but they are a tax problem."

Few Take a Stand.

The tax-free status of the expanding co-ops movement has been the subject of brisk private discussions in congressional tax circles for months, but few members have taken a stand on the issue publicly.

It is understood that the tax staff employed by Congress will study the Treasury figures and submit an analysis to the House-Senate Joint Committee on Taxation.

In its general report on income of tax-exempt organizations, the Treasury said 5,695 business leagues, chambers of commerce, trade associations, &c., reported income of $185,024,000; agricultural and horticultural organizations, county fairs, State fairs and farm bureaus, $12,718,000; literary organizations, schools and such organizations as Boy Scouts, $828,427,000.

FIRST STEP TAKEN TO LABOR PEACE

Washington, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—The labor-management conference made its first step toward industrial peace today with the filing of a report indorsing conciliation and voluntary arbitration when employers and workers disagree.

In negotiating initial agreements between a union and a company, a conference committee agreed, no strike or lockout should be called until all peaceful bargaining measures have been exhausted.

But on the hot issue of a national wage increase policy, the conference was worse snarled than ever before.

Three resolutions now are before the executive committee, all indorsing collective bargaining but in three shades of opinion.

Management offered a proposal yesterday which would rule out any conference deliberation on national wage levels. John L. Lewis put in another supporting free bargaining without regard to the President's policy of raising wages generally without raising prices.

And Philip Murray, C. I. O. president, declared he would continue to fight for his resolution asking immediate collective bargaining everywhere within the framework of the President's declaration that wage increases are needed.

Mid-West Truck Tieup Called Complete

[By the Associated Press]

A complete tieup of over-the-road trucking in eight mid-West States by a strike of an estimated 20,000 AFL drivers was reported today by an operators' spokesman in Kansas City.

Fred C. Wheelock, chairman of the employer negotiating committee in Kansas City, said operators had been unsuccessful in efforts to meet with union officials to negotiate a new contract.

Reports that a strike-ending agreement had been reached at a Chicago meeting, and that thousands more drivers were threatening to strike in four other states, were not immediately confirmed.

Wheelock said that 80 companies operating through Kansas City were affected by the strike and that drivers were off the jobs in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa and the northwest half of Wisconsin.

Nearly 300,000 Idle

The truck strike boosted the nation's idle because of labor disputes close to the 300,000 mark, the highest total in the last month.

In Ohio, 8,200 striking CIO United Steel Workers voted to end a 33-day walkout that had closed the Timken Roller Bearing Company's branch at Zanesville and curtailed production at its plants in Wooster, Columbus and Newton Falls. Work schedules and suspension of workers were in dispute. National Labor Relations Board hearings on the issues are to begin Monday.

Thousands of bus riders in Tulsa, Okla., and on Staten Island, N.Y., were deprived of service by wage strikes of AFL drivers.

Greyhound Strikes

In Minnesota the strike of Northland Greyhound bus drivers was ended for at least twenty days as Governor Thye certified the case to a fact-finding commission under a state labor law.

An AFL spokesman in Pittsburgh said there appeared little hope of immediate settlement of the strike of 4,000 drivers for six Greyhound lines that has halted east-west operations in 19 states east of the Mississippi for seventeen days.

New Strikes Voted

In Chicago the NLRB reported that employes in ten plants of the International Harvester Company voted in favor of a work stoppage in support of CIO United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers demands for a 30 per cent wage increase. Plants involved are at Richmond, Ind.; Auburn, N.Y.; Rock Island, Ill.; East Moline, Ill.; Bettendorf, Ia., and Chicago.

In a strike vote at the Johns-Manville Corporation at Manville, N.J., members of the AFL Federal Labor Union approved a strike in support of a demand for 30 per cent wage boosts.

PRESENT TAXES SEEN HOLDING UP TEXTILES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Chester Bowles, Price Administrator, says there are "indications" that textile mills are holding up shipment of goods to take advantage of the next tax law effective Jan. 1 under which the excess profits tax is repealed.

Mr. Bowles, in a letter to Senator Young of North Dakota, said that while no definite reports have been received, indications are that textile mills are using that procedure.

Mr. Young had told Mr. Bowles that there was an extreme shortage of clothing of all kinds, particularly children's, and including heavy underwear, overalls and other essentials and asked the Price Administrator:

"What is wrong in America when we have far above average stockpile of cotton and wool and at the very same time are suffering from want of clothing?"

Mr. Bowles told the Senator that the ending of the war brought about "little noticeable change" in the general clothing situation and added:

"However, there are several primary factors behind the continued shortage of cotton and wool manufactured products, in spite of the heavy stockpiles cited in your letter.

"These industries have not as yet recovered from too heavy wartime demands of the armed forces, and other Government requirements. In fact, many looms are not yet converted.

"Also, these industries have been, and are, faced with considerable labor trouble, in that this field has never been considered a highly skilled or highly paid one."

OPA LIFTS CEILING ON FORD TRUCKS

Washington, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—The OPA has issued an "interim" order authorizing a 22 per cent increase in ceiling prices for Ford one-ton trucks but a spokesman for the agency emphasizes that the action is subject to review. The OPA allowed this increase to be charged at retail. Dealers' traditional discount of 25 per cent was left intact. No cost absorption was required.

Deputy Price Administrator Jerome M. Ney told the House Small Business Committee that this policy does not clash with the OPA's plans to require passenger car dealers to absorb all or part of manufacturers' increases. Ney termed the truck price policy a temporary one, and said it would be brought into line with the passenger car price program early next month. He added that applications of the cost absorption program to trucks had been delayed so that it could be put into effect for both trucks and passenger cars at about the same time.

The current truck policy is exactly the reverse of the stand that OPA has taken on passenger car ceilings. Price Administrator Chester Bowles has contended that all or at least part of increases allowed manufacturers must be absorbed by dealers. Bowles holds that this policy, sharply criticized by dealers and some congressmen, is necessary, if retail ceilings for passenger cars are to be held at or near 1942 levels.

OPA Statement On Auto Prices Slated Tonight

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Office of Price Administration will release a statement on automobile prices tomorrow night, an announcement said today. It was understood the statement will disclose price ceilings on 1946 models.

URGES NEWSPRINT FREEING

House Subcommittee Asks CPA to End All Curbs Dec. 31

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Lifting Dec. 31 of all Government controls and restrictions on use and distribution of newsprint was recommended again today by the House Newsprint Investigating Subcommittee.

Notification of the action was conveyed by Chairman Boren in a letter to J. Hale Steinman, director of the printing and publishing division of the Civilian Production Administration.

The subcommittee made a similar recommendation to the War Production Board Sept. 12. It has since conducted several hearings on the subject.

The letter by Mr. Boren said that the subcommittee urged the CPA also to "take such steps as are practical and necessary to alleviate the hardships that unavoidably occur in a transition from wartime governmental controls to the normal free economy."

It was added that the subcommittee was "in full knowledge that there may be some individual cases of hardship" but that it was its opinion that "some problems of adjustment would arise at any time in changing from war economy."

Restrictions On Use Of Tin Cans Relaxed

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Restrictions on the use of tin cans for packing food products have been relaxed by the Civilian Production Administration.

Products which now may be packed in tin containers include dehydrated fruits and meat products, such as scrapple, beef a la mode and stews.

Tin Hats of 1918 Find Buyer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Interior Department, sales agency for surplus property in United States territories and island possessions, is finding buyers for such things as steel helmets of the first World War. A buyer in Hawaii paid $5,400 for 17,266 tin hats, 17,266 gas masks and 1,262 gas mask canisters, all considered "purely junk."

Price Ceilings Go Off Citrus Fruits Monday

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—OPA is removing price controls on fresh citrus fruits for two months, with the reservation they'll be restored immediately if an "inflationary increase should develop.

The order, covering oranges, grapefruits, lemons and tangerines, goes into effect Monday. It expires January 13.

OPA said all of these fruits now are selling below ceiling prices. And, bumper crops are indicated, the agency added.

It said that for these reasons "average prices during the suspension period are expected to be no higher than if ceilings were kept on."

SUGAR SUPPLY NEARS ITS LOWEST MARK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (U.P.)—The American sugar supply will "touch bottom" in the three months beginning Dec. 1, according to Earl B. Wilson, director of the Agriculture Department's sugar branch.

He told a conference of the National Confectioners Association here today that sugar stocks here on Jan. 1, 1946, would be 1,000,000 tons less than they were last January.

He predicted "very substantial improvement" in the sugar supply during 1947 and said the department's consumer allocation program might end during that year, "although control might run to the advent of the Cuban sugar cane crop, early in 1948."

"Our desire is to stabilize sugar prices until demand and supply are in approximate balance," he told the confectioners. "This stabilization is absolutely necessary, not only ot your industry but also to many others."

O.P.A. Sets Holiday Meal Prices

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP).—Public eating places may charge as much on Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Eve as they did four years ago, the Office of Price Administration says. They may charge Jan. 1, 1943, prices on New Year's Day.

CHINESE IDEAS ABOUT FIGHTING

By JAMES D. WHITE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17—(AP) The civil strife in China contains grave implications for every human being, but where actual fighting among the Chinese is concerned, thus far, the smoke exceeds the actual fire.

Any Chinese civil war is best understood against the background of deep-seated Chinese ideas on war itself.

These boil down to the principle that it's silly to expend your power and get people killed if you can win by intelligence and maneuver.

These ideas were written down 500 years before Christ by a Chinese militarist named Sun Tzu in "the art of war."

They are still so fresh and vivid that the Military Service Publishing Co. of Harrisburg, Pa., has published a condensed version of the Lionel Giles translation of Sun Tzu, in a series which includes Von Clausewitz, Napoleon and Frederick the Great.

Here are some quotations from one chapter of Sun Tzu which indicate the Chinese Communists, at least, have not forgotten him:

"By persistently hanging on the enemy's flank, we shall succeed in the long run in killing the commander-in-chief. This is called ability to accomplish a thing by sheer cunning.

"On the day you assume command, block the frontier passes, void the official passports, and stop the passage of all emissaries.

"Be stern to the council chamber, so that you may control the situation.

"If the enemy leaves a door open, you must rush in.

"Forestall your opponent by seizing what he holds dear, and subtly contrive to time his arrival on the ground . . ."

Sun Tzu said: "All warfare is based on deception . . . let your great object be victory, not lengthy campaign.

"Buckeye" Units Sail

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17 (AP).—The first units of the famed 37th Infantry Division—the "Buckeye" Division from Ohio—are on their way home.

Headquarters of the Army's port of embarkation here was advised today that the transport Waterville had loaded 96 officers and 1,317 enlisted men yesterday in Lingayen Gulf, the Philippines.

The second ship, the transport Puebla, will take other units aboard this week end. One of the passengers on this vessel will be Major General Robert S. Beightler, Columbus, Ohio, the division commander.

Five other ships are to be used to bring the division home—the Sea Corporal, Kota Inten, Kota Agoeng, General Howze and General Mitchell. All the Ohio veterans, who have been overseas forty-one months and have fought from the Fijis to Manila, should be aboard ships before the end of the month.

Veterans 'Bump' Civilians

Get 70% of Air-Line Reservations East-Bound From Pacific Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17 (AP).—The Office of Defense Transportation has commandeered 70 per cent of all east-bound air-line reservations from Pacific Coast ports, effective Nov. 25, for returning Pacific veterans, it was unofficially disclosed today.

Air lines are now declining to accept civilian reservations after Nov. 24, and official notice and instructions are expected to be issued from Washington Monday, according to G. R. Thornton, district manager for Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc.

The order will mean wholesale cancellation of reservations already made in advance by civilians, Mr. Thornton said. The primary purpose is to get as many veterans as possible home for the holidays.

Osmena Manila-Bound

Hamilton Field, Cal., Nov. 17 (AP). President Sergio Osmena of the Philippines arrived last night from Washington en route to Manila. He will leave this morning aboard an Air Transport Command plane and arrive in Manila November 21.

28 Killed In Plane Crash In New Britain

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Melbourne radio said that 28 persons, including a nurse and a stowaway, were killed today when a plane crashed into a mountain near Rabaul, New Britain. The broadcast was recorded by NBC.

The radio said the dead included ten liberated Indian prisoners of war being flown from Wewak, eight Australian officers and men and eight Australian airmen.

Russ Doubt Of U.S. Backed By Bishop

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, said today: "If I were Russian, with the history faced since its revolution, I would be suspicious of the United States and Great Britain."

The Methodist head of the New York area told the annual luncheon of the Protestant Teachers Association:

"Suppose you had been told you were sharing military secrets and then there was the atomic bomb. I, too, would have certain suspicions.

"We have got to sit at the conference table and not rise until some solution is reached."

Sees Rise in Clothing Jobs

ROCHESTER, Nov. 17 (AP).—Barney Ruben, president of Bond Clothes, Inc., today predicted the clothing industry here will employ upwards of 25,000 persons within a few years, in comparison with a pre-war total of 12,000 employees. Mr. Ruben spoke at a ceremony marking the breaking of ground for a new $5,000,000 Bond plant. He said his company, which employs 3,200 here, will have 11,500 workers when the new plan is completed.

Invited to Head Japan's Police

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 17 (AP).—Camden's chief of police, George W. Frost, said today he had been offered an appointment to reorganize and supervise Japan's police system. Mr. Frost received a letter today from Major General J. H. Hildring, chief of the War Department Civil Affairs Division, which stated he had been recommended for the post by the International Association of Chiefs of Police. He said he was "highly honored" by the offer, but has not decided as yet to resign his Camden appointment.

Thomas Says G.M. Is Forcing Union to Strike

U. A. W. Leader Declares a 'Managerial Clique' Seeks 'Terrible' Walkout

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Nov. 17.—Fears that a major strike would hit the automobile industry increased tonight as R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers, Congress of Industrial Organizations affiliate, charged that a "managerial clique" at the General Motors Corporation "is in effect forcing a costly and terrible strike upon us."

Mr. Thomas's statements, published in a signed editorial in the "United Automobile Worker," official publication of the U. A. W., came as 200 U. A. W. delegates representing unionized General Motors employees throughout the country gathered here to discuss possible strike action.

"God knows the top leadership of the U. A. W.-C. I. O. has neither sought nor wanted a collision of this kind . . . but since the beginning of the present controversy, G. M. has never indicated in word or deed its willingness to give an inch on wages," Mr. Thomas wrote.

General Motors Company spokesmen declined any comment on Mr. Thomas's charges.

The U. A. W. leader continued in his editorial: "G. M.'s attitude is a clear indication that the corporation is not only expecting a strike but welcomes the test of strength.

"Should there be a strike, it must be conducted on our part with complete and orderly discipline," Mr. Thomas concluded.

Publication of the editorial today came as a special six-man strategy committee, named by the international U. A. W. to study the Detroit wage disputes, held "an informal meeting."

Walter Reuther, U. A. W. vice-president in charge of General Motors negotiations, declared: "We discussed a number of general matters," and added, "Neither I nor any one else knows when a strike will be called—if at all." He said that "no decisions will be made before Monday."

NOV 18 1945

30.24-31711

Mr. Reuther said he would submit a "full report" to the G. M. delegates concerning the union's efforts to obtain a general 30 per cent wage increase from General Motors and other automobile manufacturers.

On Tuesday the union and the Ford Motor Company will open wage conferences, with advance notice from the company that it will not agree to the wage increase demanded by the union.

The negotiations between General Motors and the U. A. W. marked by several weeks of blistering exchanges, both written and verbal, were in recess until after the meetings of the union's General Motors council and a union strategy committee empowered to call a strike at its discretion.

The union, which has rejected several counter-proposals by General Motors, announced today that it was informing the corporation that the latest offer of a 10 per cent increase would be submitted to the union council meeting Monday with a recommendation that it be rejected.

The management coupled the latest offer with a proposal for working all General Motors plants forty-five to forty-eight hours weekly, the operations beyond forty hours to be paid at overtime rates.

Asserting that the proposal contained "no guaranty of employment—not even a guaranty of forty hours a week," the union informed General Motors:

"The union condemns the corporation's studied and stubborn persistence in its plan to lead the country back to the long work week. Its repeated proclamation of a forty-five to forty-eight hour work week is repeated warning to all returning vetterans that unemployment for millions will become a normal and regular part of the post-war pattern of industry if the General Motors plan prevails."

There was no management comment on the union statements.

In an earlier statement on the wage situation and the controversy between management and labor in the industry, George Romney, general manager of the Automobile Manufacturers' Association, had charged that "the auto union is a monopoly and its principal proposal is to centrally control the auto companies, stifle their competition, and with the aid of a partisan government run this giant auto combine."

In Windsor, Ont., across the Detroit River, prospects appeared brighter for a settlement of the nine-week-old strike in the plant of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., as the Dominion government backed a plan for a renewal of negotiations. There still were differences of opinion, however, over the conditions surrounding the negotiations.

Russian Ship Due Here.

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (A. P.).—The Alexander Suvorov, first Russian vessel to dock on the Atlantic soaboard since 1939, is due here today, according to the Maritime Commission. The ship carries a cargo of chrome ore, and is the first of several similarly-laden Russian vessels expected here this month.

Fined for Fraud on Navy

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17 (AP)—United States District Judge William H. Kirkpatrick today assessed a $32,000 judgment against Charles F. Rohleder, building contractor, and two assistants charged with submitting "fictitious" bids to the Navy for construction at the Cramp shipyard here. The government sought $2,000 for each of ninety alleged "false claims," but Judge Kirkpatrick limited penalties to $2,000 for each of sixteen subcontracts held by Rohleder.

The National Labor Relations Board said in balloting conducted yesterday, under provisions of the Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes Act, 504 voted in favor of striking and 27 against. Four ballots were declared void.

Operators' Strike Voted

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (AP)—Long-distance and some local telephone operators, members of the Illinois Telephone Traffic Union, voted 6,293 in favor of a strike as against 996 opposed, with 14 void ballots, the National Labor Relations Board stated today.

Ballots were counted today in the vote, which was conducted by mail among the 6,000 down-State members and by ballot at polls here Friday among 2,000 Chicago members.

Robert C. Sorenson, NLRB field examiner, who conducted the balloting, said a notice to strike was filed under the Smith-Connally act and added that the 6-to-1 vote did not necessarily mean a strike would be called.

PACKING WORKERS GET RISE

Six Companies Agree to Increase of 15 Cents an Hour for 15,000

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (AP)—An agreement between the United Packing House Workers of America and the managements of six major packing companies of the union's demand for a general wage increase was announced today by Lewis J. Clark, international president of the union.

He said the agreement provided a wage increase of 15 cents an hour for all employes of the companies covered by existing agreements and affected about 15,000 workers.

In addition, employes are to have an allowance of a 2½ cents an hour for time spent changing clothes. From 50 to 75 cents weekly would be paid to workers for purchase of work clothing.

International Harvester Workers Vote To Strike in Eleven Plants of Four States

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (AP)—International Harvester Company employes in eleven plants in four States have voted nearly 5 to 1 in favor of a strike, Robert Wristman, Chicago office chief field examiner for the NLRB, said last night.

Mr. Wristman said a tabulation of votes showed 16,194 favoring a strike, 3,777 against and 165 void ballots. Eligible voters numbered 23,622 and 20,136 votes were cast.

The company and the United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers Union, CIO, have been negotiating on union demands, which include a 30 per cent wage increase and a guaranteed annual wage, Mr. Wristman said.

617 Resolutions Before Legion

Convention

Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP)—The American Legion moved into Chicago today for its first convention after World War II, facing such prime peacetime problems as universal military training, employment, housing and rehabilitation of veterans.

Hotel rooms for the four-day convention opening tomorrow were extremely scarce. The Legion had only about 3,000 rooms reserved for 2,031 delegates and as many alternates, plus officials, staffs, distinguished visitors and speakers.

Others On Their Own

Legionnaires without official convention business and without reservations made through their state adjutants were strictly on their own.

Committees began work on sifting 617 resolutions. One of the more important committees on national defense had the task of presenting to the convention a program on peacetime military training, unified armed forces command if any, maintaining the nation's military might in peacetime, retention of United States bases.

Long A Training Advocate

One official spokesman said that, since the Legion had advocated peacetime military training since 1919, the big question before this convention would be what form of such training the delegates wish to indorse—whether to go along with President Truman's universal one-year training proposal or recommend some other plan.

Emphasis on World War II veterans in the Legion, run by World War I men since its founding, appeared not only in membership—600,000 World War II Legionnaires out of 1,700,000 total—but in committee work on a host of resolutions aimed at obtaining the greatest benefits possible in employment, housing, hospitalization and rehabilitation for the recent service men.

Medal Winners Invited

The Legion invited all surviving Congressional Medal of Honor holders of World War II to attend and expected no fewer than 60 to be there, which would be the largest assembly of such medalists ever held. In addition, a mass initiation of more than 7,000 World War II veterans was planned for Monday night.

Much of the talk among delegates, officials and spokesmen indicated that John Stelle, 54, of McLeansboro, Ill., former Governor of Illinois, lawyer, business man and a veteran of machine-gun combat in France in World War I, when he was wounded and gassed, had the inside track for national commander at the election Wednesday.

Stabilizing Influence Held Need Of U.S.

Kansas City, Nov. 7 (AP)—This nation, during the postwar readjustment period needs the stabilizing influence of the National Grange and "other conservative organizations" according to Gov. Andrew F. Schoeppel of Kansas.

"The country needs a governor to keep it from spinning out of control," Schoeppel declared at the seventy-ninth annual convention of the National Grange yesterday. "As in the past, this nation must look to the rural areas for the fundamental ruggedness that will keep us in balance."

Earlier, Milton Eisenhower, president of Kansas State College, told the delegates that extreme specialization has led to a lack of understanding among the American people and is one of the obstacles in the way of national progress.

Idaho Governor Quits, Is Named U. S. Senator

Gossett, Democrat, Succeeds the Late John Thomas

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 17 (AP).—Governor Charles G. Gossett, Democrat, resigned today and was immediately appointed junior United States Senator, succeeding John Thomas, Republican, who died in Washington a week ago.

Mr. Gossett's resignation elevated Lieutenant Governor Arnold Williams, Rexburg Democrat, to the Governorship. Mr. Williams then appointed Mr. Gossett, giving Idaho two Democratic Senators for the first time since 1903. Idaho's other Senator is Glen Taylor, of Pocatello.

Mr. Gossett, fifty-seven-year-old Nampa farmer and stock grower, was elected Governor in 1944. He was born at Hillsboro, Ohio, and came to Idaho in 1920.

His appointment increased the Democrats' Senate seats to fifty-six, with thirty-eight Republicans and one Progressive. The ninety-sixth seat is vacant, owing to the resignation of Senator A. B. Chandler, Democrat, of Kentucky, to become baseball commissioner.

Hannegan Says Republicans Are Trying To Smear the Memory of Roosevelt

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Nov. 17 (AP)—Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic chairman, accused the Republican opposition today of attempting to use the Pearl Harbor investigation to "smear Roosevelt."

He called it a "tactic of desperation by a party without a program."

In an address before the Indiana Democratic Editorial Association, the head of the Democratic National Committee described attempts by Republicans on the Pearl Harbor Investigating Committee to search the personal files of the late President Roosevelt as a "political fishing expedition," and added:

"I expect them in their bitterness and their complete lack of a program of their own, to carry on this desperate search for a political smudgepot, a muck rake, and some way of making their accusations and innuendoes stick where they are trying to plaster them—on our country's great and honored dead."

Mr. Hannegan said the answer to all this can be supplied by "the man in the street" who "will tell you that the Republican party has not once offered a positive constructive program for America in the past twenty years." He continued:

"When a political party lacks a program of its own there is not much else for it to do than attempt to discredit the opposition. When that doesn't work—and it hasn't worked in four national elections—the party is left in a pretty desperate plight."

Mr. Hannegan asserted the House group headed by Representative Halleck of Indiana, which has been working on a "between elections" party program, has been split over whether to follow what Mr. Hannegan called Mr. Halleck's "old-fashioned conservatism" or to endorse in principle the program proposed by President Truman.

The Democratic spokesman said President Truman's relationships with Congress are "stronger today than ever." He asserted that those people who are saying the "honeymoon is over" are members of the opposition "who thought they saw a chance to play on this relationship to further their own political purpose to force America back into the ways of reaction."

Contracts Let to Speed Artificial-Limb Research

Committee Allots $500,000 to Get Best for Veterans

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 17 (AP).—To provide the war wounded with the best in artificial limbs, contracts totaling $500,000 have been awarded for research and development.

This was announced today by Dr. Paul E. Klopsteg, director of research at Northwestern University's technological Institute and chairman of the National Research Council's committee on prosthetic devices.

The committee was organized in March at the request of the Army Surgeon General. Dr. Klopsteg said its goal is to supply war veterans with the best artificial limbs that engineering and medical research can develop.

Although models of some of the devices that are being developed will be ready for early test with co-operating amputees, actual production will not get under way for possibly two years, Dr. Klopsteg said.

All devices first must be proved in actual use, perhaps modified and retested, and finally engineered for production before their manufacture may be undertaken.

Additional contracts will be made by the committee, the chairman said, whenever investigation indicates the need. The committee, he added, believes additional contracts, at the rate of $600,000 a year, will be required for a period of three or four years.

All contracts negotiated by the committee provide that the government will have free licenses or "shop rights" in all inventions that are patented. Such inventions will be made available to the manufacturers of artificial limbs that are supplied to the government or to veterans at government expense.

Distinguished Service In Navy Haircuts

Camp Pendleton, Oceanside, Cal., Nov. 17 (AP)—Marines and sailors getting haircuts at the ship's service barber shop here have a lot of respect for one barber, George E. Wahlen, 21-year-old pharmacist's mate 2/c, of Ogden, Utah.

The fellow who wields the clippers and comb is a Congressional Medal of Honor winner.

Wahlen, convalescing here from wounds, was presented the medal by President Truman on October 5 for heroism and self-sacrifice in caring for Marines wounded in Iwo Jima.

AGREE ON MISSOURI PLANS

Army, Federal Group and Basin States Discuss Reclamation

DENVER, Nov. 17 (AP)—Brig. Gen. R. C. Crawford, division Army engineer at Omaha, stated today that the Missouri Valley States were in accord with Army engineers and the United States Reclamation Bureau on plans by the Federal agencies for development of the Missouri Basin.

He said "no hitch" had developed at a meeting of the Missouri Basin inter-agency committee to discuss integration of the Government's plans with the wishes of the various States.

The committee, which has been holding a series of meetings througnout the Basin to consider each State's role in the development, voted to conduct its next session Jan. 16 at Cheyenne, Wyo.

The meeting here was attended by three Governors, Fred G. Aandahl of North Dakota, Sam C. Ford of Montana and Dwight Griswold of Nebraska. Others present were B. H. Greene of Chicago, chief engineer for the Federal Power Commission, and A. E. McClymonds of Lincoln, Neb., representing the soil conservation service.

General Eaker Urges WAC Officer Reserve

Fort Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 17 (AP)—Establishment of a Women's Army Reserve Officers Corps was advocated today by Lieut. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, deputy commander general of the Army Air Forces, who addressed the final class of officers at the first WAC training center.

General Eaker, who told the class that, in his opinion, women made "the best soldiers in the war," asserted that training of women should continue as part of the postwar military plans.

"I would exchange any two men for one woman in the Army," the General declared.

'Ike' Chats With Vets

Pittsburgh, Nov. 17 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower chatted with soldiers and sailors bound for a separation center last night and told them to "Come back and enlist with me" if they don't get good jobs.

He laughed heartily when the troops countered with "What's the pay?"

En route from Washington to Chicago, the General's train stopped at the Pennsylvania Station here and he was joyfully mobbed when his car was switched alongside a troop train.

Signed Autographs

Disheveled and tired GI's crowded around the rear platform of the Allied commander's car, shook hands with him and had him sign approximately a hundred autographs.

He inquired solicitously of one GI who came out in shorts only, "Aren't you cold?"

When one quipped to the General that he was "all right—a regular Joe," General Eisenhower seriously told them:

"You fellows are all right, too. You are the kind who made me."

SAILOR'S TRIPLETS

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 17 (A. P.).—George D. Shults of Muncie, Ind., a motor machinist third class stationed at the Naval Training Station, has become eligible for automatic discharge from the Navy through the addition to his family of triplets.

The triplets, Donald Wayne, Dennis DeWitt and Danny Eugene, were born on November 5 to Mrs. Shults at the Naval Operating Base Hospital. The Shultses, who live at Benmoreel, also have another son 2½ years old.

It was learned today that Shults had made no attempt to secure his release from the service.

Dutch Liner Leaves Norfolk

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 17 (AP)—The Dutch liner Noordam, carrying 1,600 Royal Netherlands Marines, sailed today from the naval operating base for the Netherlands East Indies. The Fort Nassau, another Dutch vessel, is scheduled to sail tomorrow, carrying ammunition and supplies for the Marines.

AMS / BY FLORA LEWIS

LONDON, NOV. 17---(AP)---THE UNITED STATES IS EXPECTED TO LAUNCH THE TASK OF ESTABLISHING A UNITED NATIONS ATOM BOMB [illegible]X COMMISSION AT THE 51-NATION PREPARATORY COMMISSION MEETING OPENING WHICH BEGINS HERE NEXT FRIDAY.

ADLAI STEVENSON, ACTING HEAD OF THE AMERICAN DELEGATION, SAID TODAY HE HAD NOT YET RECEIVED ANY INSTRUCTIONS FROM WASHINGTON ON BRINGING UP THE ATOM AT THE MEETING WHICH WILL ORGANIZE A WORLD PEACE AGENCY SO IT CAN START FUNCTIONING EARLY NEXT YEAR.

HE SAID, HOWEVER, THAT HE EXPECTED THE QUESTION OF ATOM BOMB CONTROL WOULD BE PUT UP TO THE 51 NATIONS AND THAT EITHER THE UNITED STATES OR THE THREE POWERS WHICH SIGNED THE WASHINGTON DECLARATION (U.S., BRITAIN AND CANADA) WOULD MAKE THE PROPOSAL.

THE NATIONS, HE SAID, WOULD DISCUSS WHAT KIND OF COMMISSION SHOULD INVESTIGATE THE WORLD PROBLEMS RESULTING FROM THE DISCOVERY OF ATOMIC ENERGY, HOW MANY STATES SHOULD BE REPRESENTED ON IT AND WHICH ONES.

THE PREPARATORY COMMISSION IS EXPECTED TO LAST ABOUT A MONTH. ITS MAIN JOB IS TO GO OVER THE REPORT PREPARED BY THE 14-MEMBER EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE LAYING OUT DETAILS OF THE PEACE ORGANIZATION AND AGENDA FOR THE OPENING MEETINGS.

THERE IS NO INDICATION THUS FAR WHAT THE RUSSIAN [illegible]REACTION WOULD BE TO ATOM DISCUSSION IN THE PREPARATORY [illegible]COMMISSION.

STEVENSON POINTED OUT THAT THE SIGNATORIES OF THE ATOM BOMB DECLARATION WOULD PROBABLY RAISE ONLY THE QUESTION OF THE ORGANIZATION OF THE [illegible] BOARD. HOWEVER, ONCE THE 51 NATIONS START TALKING ABOUT IT, IT SEEMS LIKELY THAT SOME WILL WANT TO GO INTO THE WHOLE POLICY OF SECRECY AND EVENTUAL UNITED NATIONS CONTROL.

30.24 - 3171B

DELEGATES TO THE SESSION, AS WELL AS LOBBYISTS FROM MANY OF THE 22 PLACES SEEKING THE PERMANENT HEADQUARTERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS ARE ALREADY POURING INTO TOWN. LONDON IS HAVING SOME TROUBLE ACCOMODATING THEM IN ITS CROWDED WAR-DAMAGED BUILDINGS, ESPECIALLY SINCE THEY WILL PROBABLY REMAIN UNTIL SHORTLY BEFORE CHRISTMAS.

THE SESSIONS WILL BE HELD IN WESLEYAN CHURCH HOUSE, JUST BEHIND THE FAMOUS WESTMINISTER ABBEY. PLENARY MEETINGS ARE TO TAKE PLACE IN A CHAMBER USED BY THE BOMBED-OUT HOUSE OF COMMONS DURING THE BLITZ.

IN ADDITION TO THE ATOM BOMB, THE PERMANENT HOME OF THE PEACE AGENCY WILL BE ONE OF THE CONFERENCE'S MOST IMPORTANT DECISIONS.

VIRTUALLY ALL SOURCES SAID IT NOW SEEMS CLEAR THAT AN EAST COAST UNITED STATES CITY WILL BE CHOSEN, BUT IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO TELL AT THIS POINT WHETHER NEWYORK, HYDE PARK, BALTIMORE, PHILADELPHIA OR ANOTHER OF MANY BIDDERS IS IN THE LEAD.

MANY DELEGATIONS HAVE EXPRESSED AN INFORMAL PREFERENCE FOR SAN FRANCISCO. CHOICE OF THIS CITY APPEARS UNLIKELY, HOWEVER, BECAUSE BRITAIN AND FRANCE, WHICH ARE PUTTING UP A HARD FIGHT FOR A EUROPEAN HEADQUARTERS, WILL PROBABLY FORCE A COMPROMISE ON THE EAST COAST.

RUSSIA HAS ALREADY SIGNIFIED A PREFERENCE FOR A SITE IN THE UNITED STATES. THE AMERICAN DELEGATION IS CAREFULLY KEEPING OUT OF THIS ARGUMENT, LEAVING IT UP TO THE OTHERS TO DECIDE.

A SPECIAL MEETING OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE IS SCHEDULED FOR TUESDAY AND THE SECRETARIAT WILL HAVE A DRESS REHEARSAL ON WEDNESDAY FOR FRIDAY'S CEREMONIOUS OPENING.

THERE IS A DRIVE ON TO CHOOSE A DELEGATE FROM ONE OF THE MIDDLE NATIONS NOT ON THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE AS A PERMANENT CHAIRMAN OF THE CONFERENCE. NORWAY, BELGIUM, POLAND AND COLOMBIA ARE AMONG THE POSSIBILITIES.

SO FAR, THE RUSSIANS HAVE INSISTED ON ROTATING THE CHAIR AMONG THE BIG FIVE NATIONS, AND THERE MAY BE AN OPENING SQUABBLE ON THIS POINT.

THERE ARE SEVERAL OTHER POINTS ON WHICH THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE COULDN'T AGREE, AND WHICH THE PREPARATORY COMMISSION WILL HAVE TO STRAIGHTEN OUT, PROBABLY AFTER LONG DEBATES SIMILAR TO THOSE HELD IN THE COMMITTEE.

OUT INCLUDE THE EXTENT OF THE CONTROL THAT THE LARGE POWERS WILL HAVE OVER THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY, THE EXTENT OF INFLUENCE THE SMALL POWERS WILL BE PERMITTED OVER THE SECURITY COUNCIL, THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A TEMPORARY TRUSTEESHIP COMMITTEE, ORGANIZATION OF THE SECRETARIAT, AND RELATIONS WITH THE INTERNATIONAL LABOR OFFICE.

TWO FOREIGN MINISTERS WILL HEAD THEIR COUNTRIES' DELEGATIONS, M BADAWI PASHA OF EGYPT, AND PAUL SPAAK OF BELGIUM.

ANDREI GROMYKO, SOVIET AMBASSADOR TO WASHINGTON, IS THE LIKELY HEAD OF THE RUSSIANS, BUT THIS IS NOT YET DEFINITE.

EDWARD STETTINIUS, WHO IS AN [redacted] AMERICAN DELEG
BOTH TO THE ASSEMBLY AND THE SECURITY COUNCIL, MAY BE [redacted] UNABLE T
ATTEND THE PREPARATORY COMMISSION MEETINGS. STEVENSON WILL CARRY O
HIS PLACE. STETTINIUS IS IN THE UNITED STATES RECUPERATING FROM A
GALL-STONE OPERATION AND IS SCHEDULED TO RETURN TO LONDON FOR TH
FIRST MEETING OF THE UNITED NATIONS GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

THE PREPARATORY COMMISSION IS THE LAST STEP BEFORE
THE UNITED NATIONS CAN BECOME A WORKING REALITY. WHEN IT FINISHES ITS JOB AND GOES HOME, THE WORLD WILL HAVE THE FOUNDATIONS LAID FOR THE AGENCY IT IS BUILDING TO BRING THE [redacted] DREAM OF PEACE AND SECURITY TO LIFE.

GEN.I.T.NIKITCHENKO, THE SOVIET JUDGE, APPEARED ON THE BENCH FOR THE FIRST TIME AFTER FLYING HERE FROM MOSCOW. IT WAS BELIEVED THAT HIS PRESENCE PROBABLY WOULD HASTEN THE TRIBUNAL'S DECISION REGARDING KRUPP BUT THERE WAS NO INDICATION WHEN IT MIGHT BE ANNOUNCED.

SINCE NO POSTPONEMENT ACTION HAS BEEN TAKEN YET, PROSECUTION AND DEFENSE STAFFS FACED A FEVERISH WEEK-END IN PREPARATION FOR THE OPENING SESSION OF THE TRIAL TUESDAY.

IT WAS LEARNED THAT THE FOUR PROSECUTORS WERE ADVISED BY THE TRIBUNAL TO HOLD THEMSELVES IN READINESS IN THE EVENT AN AFTERNOON HEARING WAS CALLED. OFFICIALS AT THE NUERNBERG PALACE OF JUSTICE PROFESSED TO HAVE NO CLUES, WHETHER THE JURISTS WOULD INDICT THE 38-YEAR-OLD KRUPP.

NEITHER WOULD THEY PREDICT WHETHER SUCH AN INDICTMENT WOULD BRING THE 12 OR 30 DAY POSTPONEMENT REQUESTED BY THE PROSECUTION AND DEFENSE, RESPECTIVELY, OR NO DELAY AT ALL.

THE UNITED STATES, BACKED BY FRANCE AND RUSSIA, HAS ASKED THAT ALFRIED KRUPP BE SUBSTITUTED AS A DEFENDANT FOR HIS FATHER, GUSTAV KRUPP VON BOHLEN UND HALBACH, WHOSE TRIAL WAS POSTPONED BECAUSE OF ILLNESS.

IN ANNOUNCING ITS DECISION ON BORMANN, THE COURT SIMPLY CLASSIFIED HIM AS "MISSING."

THE BRITISH SAID THAT IT WAS CLEAR THAT BORMANN HAD BEEN WITH HITLER AND OTHER HIGH NAZI OFFICIALS IN THE BERLIN CHANCELLORY ON APRIL 30.

THE FOLLOWING DAY, BORMANN AND A PARTY OF FOLLOWERS TRIED TO BREAK THROUGH THE LINES AND ESCAPE, ACCORDING TO THE VERSION PRESENTED TO THE TRIBUNAL. WHILE CROSSING A BRIDGE, A RED ARMY SOLDIER THREW A HAND GRENADE INTO THE PARTY. THREE SURVIVORS HAVE BEEN INTERROGATED. TWO CLAIMED BORMANN WAS DEAD WHILE ONE SAID HE WAS WOUNDED, THE BRITISH REPORT SAID.

SINCE POSITIVE EVIDENCE OF DEATH COULD NOT BE OBTAINED, NOTICES WERE PUBLISHED FOR FOUR CONCURRENT WEEKS IN FOUR BERLIN NEWSPAPERS. WEEKLY ANNOUNCEMENTS ALSO WERE MADE OVER THE RADIO ADVISING BORMANN OF THE INDICTMENT AGAINST HIM.

THE SOVIET, U.S. AND FRENCH PROSECUTORS CONCURRED IN THE BRITISH SUGGESTION THAT THE TRIAL OF BORMANN PROCEED IN ABSENTIA.

MANILA, NOV. 17-(AP)-GRUESOME DETAILS OF JAPANESE BARBARITIES IN THE PHILIPPINES FADED INTO THE BACKGROUND AT THE WAR CRIMES TRIAL OF GEN. TOMOYUKI YAMASHITA TODAY AS THE MILITARY COURT HEARD EVIDENCE TENDING TO SHOW THAT JAPANESE NAVY MEN NOT UNDER YAMASHITA'S CONTROL COMMITTED ATROCITIES HE IS ACCUSED OF HAVING PERMITTED.

YESTERDAY VICE-ADM. DENSHICHI OKOOCHI TESTIFIED THAT THE ARMY--NOT THE NAVY--WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR ALL JAPANESE FORCES IN THE ISLANDS DURING THE PERIOD OF ALLEGED ATROCITIES EARLY THIS YEAR. TODAY LT.GEN. SHIZUWO YOKOYAMA PASSED THE BUCK BACK TO THE NAVY, TESTIFYING THAT NAVAL FORCES DEFENDING MANILA WERE "VIRTUALLY ON THEIR OWN" AND YAMASHITA HAD PRACTICALLY NO CONTROL OVER THEM.

YOKOYAMA SAID HE HIMSELF TOOK CHARGE OF VARIOUS NAVAL UNITS, BUT THROUGH THEIR COMMANDERS ONLY, IMPLYING THAT THESE MAY HAVE PERMITTED MANY ACTIONS WHICH YAMASHITA NEVER HEARD ABOUT.

ASKED WHAT ORDERS HE HAD RECEIVED FROM YAMASHITA CONCERNING THE KILLING OF FILIPINO CIVILIANS, THE WITNESS SAID YAMASHITA HAD

SPECIFICALLY INSTRUCTED HIM TO "BE FAIR WITH ALL FILIPINO PEOPLE AND HANDLE THEM WITH CAUTION."

IN PREVIOUS SESSIONS SEVERAL WITNESSES TESTIFIED THAT YAMASHITA HAD ISSUED A RUTHLESS ORDER TO "KILL ALL FILIPINOS AND BURN THEIR CITIES."

YAMASHITA, WHO TOOK NOTES FURIOUSLY WITH FREQUENT SCOWLS WHILE THE ADMIRAL YESTERDAY WAS ATTEMPTING TO PUT THE RESPONSIBILITY INTO THE ARMY'S LAP, SCRIBBLED VOLUMINOUSLY AGAIN AS HIS ARMY COLLEAGUE TOLD THE OTHER SIDE OF THE TALE.

YOKOYAMA ALSO WAS ASKED IF HE KNEW OF THE LARGE NUMBERS OF CIVILIANS KILLED IN BATANGAS PROVINCE, WHERE MORE THAN 25,000 PERSONS WERE ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN SLAUGHTERED BY THE JAPANESE.

"I FIRST LEARNED OF THIS," HE REPLIED, "AFTER COMING OUT OF THE MOUNTAINS AND GOING INTO A PRISONER-OF-WAR CAMP."

HE SAID HE ALSO HAD NO KNOWLEDGE OF CIVILIANS BEING FORCED TO STAND IN MANILA STREETS UNDER HEAVY ARTILLERY AND AERIAL ATTACKS.

WASHINGTON, NOV 17-(AP)-HERBERT V. EVATT, AUSTRALIAN FOREIGN MINISTER, BELIEVES ARRANGEMENTS CAN BE WORKED OUT TO GIVE THE UNITED STATES BASES IN AUSTRALIAN TERRITORY ON A RECIPROCAL BASES.

HE GAVE THIS OPINION IN RESPONSE TO QUESTIONS AFTER AN ADDRESS TO THE NATIONAL PRESS CLUB YESTERDAY.

EVATT ALSO EXPRESSED BELIEF THAT THE U.S. WILL BE GIVEN WHATEVER BASES IT WANTS IN THE FORMER JAPANESE MANDATED ISLANDS OF THE PACIFIC.

IN HIS ADDRESS, EVATT RENEWED HIS OPPOSITION TO ANY SINGLE-NATION VETO RULE IN THE FAR EASTERN ADVISORY COMMISSION. HE ASSERTED A MAJORITY VOTE SHOULD PREVAIL, ALTHOUGH THE VIEWS OF THE UNITED SHOULD BE GIVEN SPECIAL CONSIDERATION.

SECRETARY OF STATE BYRNES HAS DISCLOSED THAT RUSSIA IS INSISTING UPON A UNANIMITY RULE IN ANY CONTROL COUNCIL FOR JAPAN. UNDER THIS SYSTEM, A PROTEST BY ONE NATION COULD BLOCK ACTION.

(ADVANCE)..WASHINGTON,NOV.17-(AP)-SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE CLINTON P.ANDERSON ISSUED THIS VICTORY LOAN STATEMENT TODAY:

"A NATION'S WAR PROBLEMS ARE NOT ENDED WHEN THE SHOOTING STOPS ANY MORE THAN THE PROBLEMS ON A FLOODED FARM ARE ENDED WHEN THE FLOOD WATERS RECEDE.

"THE END OF THE CRISIS IN BOTH CASES MEANS ONLY THAT THE TIME FOR CLEANING UP AND REBUILDING IS AT HAND.

"IT WILL TAKE MONEY TO PUT OUR WAR-TORN WORLD TO RIGHTS -- TO GIVE WOUNDED VETERANS NEEDED MEDICAL CARE, TO BRING SOLDIERS BACK HOME AND GET THEM STARTED ON LIVES AS CIVILIANS AGAIN, TO PROVIDE CARE FOR CHILDREN WHOSE FATHERS PAID FOR OUR VICTORY WITH THEIR LIVES.

"REMEMBER, THERE'S STILL A BIG JOB AHEAD. LET'S PAY FOR IT WITH VICTORY BONDS."

WASHINGTON,NOV.17-(AP)-MISS ANNA LORD STRAUSS, PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS, SAID TONIGHT THE LEAGUE HAS ENDORSED THE AMERICAN-BRITISH-CANADIAN POLICY FOR THE CONTROL OF ATOMIC WEAPONS.

THE LEAGUE'S BOARD, MEETING HERE TODAY, URGED THAT THE THREE NATIONS ACT IMMEDIATELY TOWARD PUTTING INTO ACTION THE POLICY ANNOUNCED HERE THIS WEEK BY PRESIDENT TRUMAN, PRIME MINISTER ATTLEE AND PRIME MINISTER MACKENZIE KING, MISS STRAUSS SAID.

THE BOARD ALSO URGED IMMEDIATE APPROPRIATION BY CONGRESS, WITHOUT THE SO-CALLED FREE PRESS AMENDMENT, OF THE $550,000,000 ALLOTMENT FOR CURRENT NEEDS OF THE UNITED NATIONS RELIEF AND REHABILITATION ADMINISTRATION.

"THE CRYING NEED FOR FOOD FOR EUROPE'S STARVING MAKES THIS ACTION IMPERATIVE," MISS STRAUSS SAID.

NEW YORK, NOV. 17-(AP)-COL.ROBERT R.MCCORMICK, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER OF THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, SAID TODAY THE UNITED STATES SHOULD DEMAND THAT GREAT BRITAIN EVACUATE ALL HER POSSESSIONS IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE LEST THEY BE USED AS BASES FOR FUTURE ATTACKS AGAINST THIS NATION--PERHAPS WITH ATOM BOMBS.

THE PUBLISHER SHARED A LUNCHEON PROGRAM OF THE FOREIGN POLICY ASSOCIATION WITH WILLIAM L.BATT, VICE PRESIDENT OF THE RECENTLY DISSOLVED WAR PRODUCTION BOARD.

BATT CONTENDED AMERICA MUST HAVE STRONG ALLIES TO WIN THE ECONOMIC PEACE, JUST AS SHE DID TO WIN THE WAR, AND SAID THE FIRST STEP WAS GETTING BRITAIN BACK ON HER ECONOMIC FEET.

EVACUATION OF ALL HER POSSESSIONS IN THIS HEMISPHERE WAS ONE OF SEVERAL THINGS, MCCORMICK SAID, THE UNITED STATES SHOULD DEMAND FROM BRITAIN AS A CONDITION OF ANY "GIFTS OR LOANS."

DISCUSSING THE DEMANDS, MCCORMICK SAID "WE HAVE STILL ANOTHER DEMAND TO MAKE UPON GREAT BRITAIN, BOTH IN THE NAME OF HUMANITY AND OF NATIONAL SECURITY. IT IS TO EVACUATE ALL OF HER POSSESSIONS IN THIS HEMISPHERE."

"CANADA HAS FINALLY ACHIEVED HER INDEPENDENCE. THE SMALL COLONIES IN AND NEAR THE CARIBBEAN SEA ARE NOT STRONG ENOUGH TO DO SO. THEY ARE OF NO ECONOMIC VALUE TO THE EMPIRE, ALTHOUGH POLITICALLY THEY SUPPORT A NUMBER OF PLACE HOLDERS.

"THEY SHOULD BE SET FREE JUST AS CUBA WAS SET FREE. THEY HAVE BEEN USED IN THE PAST AS BASES TO ATTACK US, AND UPON OCCASION, AT NEED, COULD SO BE USED AGAIN PERHAPS TO LAUNCH ATOM BOMBS."

THE PUBLISHER ALSO ASSERTED THAT "WE CANNOT ESCAPE RESPONSIBILITY FOR EVILS BEING PERPETRATED ON HELPLESS PEOPLE BY THE BRITISH, DUTCH AND FRENCH USING AMERICAN LEND-LEASE WEAPONS TO FORCE NATIVES TO WORK IN RUBBER PLANTATIONS FOR $3.29 A MONTH--11 CENTS A DAY. WE MUST INSIST THAT THESE OUTRAGES STOP AT ONCE.

"THE BRITISH ARE IN INDIA, BURMA, MALAYA, AND JAVA ONLY BECAUSE THE AMERICAN DEFEATED THE JAPANESE."

HE SAID THE POUND BLOC, WHICH HE DESCRIBED AS AN ARRANGEMENT AMONG MOST MEMBERS OF THE EMPIRE AND SOME EUROPEAN COUNTRIES AND EGYPT TO TRADE WITH EACH OTHER ONLY IN POUNDS, WAS "EMPIRE PREFERENCE IN WHICH THE CONSTITUTED MEMBERS OF THE EMPIRE GIVE TARIFF PREFERENCE TO EACH OTHER."

A32

"THESE ARRANGEMENTS," HE CONTINUED, "ARE ENTIRELY WITHIN THE RIGHTS OF THE CONTRACTING PARTIES, BUT THEY ARE DISADVANTAGEOUS TO US AND WE HAVE A PERFECTLY GOOD RIGHT TO REQUIRE THEIR ABOLISHMENT OR MODIFICATION IN CONSIDERATION OF ANY GIFTS OR LOANS TO THE EMPIRE."

"HAVE LEND-GIFT IF YOU WILL, BUT GET QUID PRO QUO (SOMETHING IN RETURN) FOR AMERICA," MCCORMICK CONCLUDED.

BATT, PRESIDENT OF SKF INDUSTRIES, ASSERTED AMERICANS MUST HAVE FAITH THAT BRITAIN WOULD REGAIN HER PRE-WAR PROSPERITY AND PLACE IN WORLD AFFAIRS AND ADDED:

"ANYTHING WE DO TO HELP BRITAIN TODAY IS X X X A SOUND INVESTMENT IN A BUSINESS PARTNER, AND IT SHOULD HAVE SOUND BUSINESS-LIKE RESTRICTIONS.

"THERE WILL BE NUMEROUS CONCESSIONS WHICH WE MAY, IN FAIRNESS, ASK OF THE BRITISH. THIS IS A PROPER TIME TO ADVANCE THEM. WE HAVE NEVER HAD SHREWDER OR WISER REPRESENTATIVES THAN THOSE WHO ARE IN CHARGE OF THESE DISCUSSIONS FROM OUR SIDE, AND YOU AND I CAN HAVE COMPLETE CONFIDENCE IN THEIR ABILITY AND JUDGMENT."

HE DID NOT INDICATE WHAT, IF ANY, CONSIDERATIONS HE THOUGHT SHOULD ACCOMPANY AID TO BRITAIN.

THE FOREIGN POLICY ASSOCIATION IS A PRIVATE ORGANIZATION FORMED AFTER THE FIRST WORLD WAR TO CONDUCT RESEARCH, PUBLISH TRACTS AND ADVISE THE GOVERNMENT ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

NEW YORK, NOV 17-(AP)-HUGH BAILLIE, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS, SAID TONIGHT THE UNITED STATES WAS IN A SITUATION IN WHICH IT WAS "ARMING AND BACKING ONE CHINESE ARMY AGAINST ANOTHER CHINESE ARMY AND THE STAKE APPEARS TO BE MANCHURIA."

"EXTRICATING OURSELVES FROM THE MILITARY SITUATION IN NORTHERN CHINA AND MANCHURIA X X X WILL BE ONE OF THE NEATEST TRICKS OF THE WAR IF WE CAN DO IT," BAILLIE DECLARED.

BAILLIE, WHO RECENTLY RETURNED FROM A 20,000 MILE TRIP THROUGH PACIFIC BATTLE AREAS, SPOKE AT A DINNER OF THE SOCIETY OF THE SILURIANS, AN ORGANIZATION OF VETERAN NEW YORK NEWSPAPERMEN.

HE SAID CHIANG KAI SHEK "FINDS HIS ARMIES CONFRONTED BY CHINESE COMMUNIST FORCES WHO EVIDENTLY HAVE NO INTENTION OF GIVING UP MANCHURIA AND THE AREAS THEY DOMINATE IN NORTH CHINA WITHOUT A FIGHT."

"THEY APPEAR TO BE IN POSSESSION OF SUBSTANTIAL QUANTITIES OF JAPANESE ARMS AND MUNITIONS, WHICH THE JAPANESE HAVE SURRENDERED," HE SAID. "ON THE OTHER HAND, CHIANG'S TROOPS ARE ARMED, MUNITIONED AND TAKEN TO THE SCENE OF THE HOSTILITIES BY US.

"HERE IS A SITUATION IN WHICH WE ARE ARMING AND BACKING ONE CHINESE ARMY AGAINST ANOTHER CHINESE ARMY AND THE STAKE APPEARES TO BE MANCHURIA WHICH IS RIGHT WHERE THIS WAR STARTED IN 1931 WHEN THE JAPS OCCUPIED IT AND CHANGED ITS NAME TO MANCHUKUO."

AT THE DINNER, KENT COOPER, GENERAL MANAGER AND EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, WAS GIVEN HONORARY MEMBERSHIP IN THE SILURIAN SOCIETY.

THE SOCIETY'S ANNUAL AWARD FOR THE BEST EDITORIAL STAFF ACHIEVEMENT BY A NEW YORK CITY NEWSPAPERMAN IN 1945 WAS CONFERRED UPON WILLIAM L.LAURENCE OF THE NEW YORK TIMES FOR HIS ARTICLES ON THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE ATOMIC BOMB.

HONORARY MENTION SCROLLS WERE PRESENTED TO EDMOND P.BARTNETT, CITY EDITOR OF THE NEW YORK SUN, FOR HIS CONCEPTION AND MAKE-UP PRESENTATION OF THE IWO JIMA FLAG RAISING PHOTOGRAPH BY JOE ROSENTHAL OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, AND TO ALBERT DEUTSCH OF THE NEWSPAPER PM FOR HIS ARTICLES ON CONDITIONS IN VETERANS' HOSPITALS AND FOR HIS CHALLENGE TO CONGRESSIONAL ACTION IN CONNECTION WITH HIS INVESTIGATIONS.

THE SILURIAN SOCIETY IS COMPOSED OF ACTIVE AND FORMER NEWSPAPERMEN WHO SERVED ON A NEW YORK CITY EDITORIAL STAFF AT A DATE 25 YEARS PRIOR TO THEIR APPLICATION FOR MEMBERSHIP.

(WX) CHARLESTON, S. C., NOV. 17-(AP)-THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT BELIEVES THE PROPOSED UNITED NATIONS COMMISSION FOR THE CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY---PARTICULARLY THE ATOMIC BOMB---CAN BE FUNCTIONING IN TWO MONTHS.

SECRETARY OF STATE BYRNES HELD OUT THAT POSSIBILITY IN A SPEECH HERE LAST NIGHT.

IN THE FIRST ADMINISTRATION PRONOUNCEMENT ON ATOMIC ENERGY SINCE THE PRESIDENT AND THE PRIME MINISTERS OF BRITAIN AND CANADA ISSUED THEIR DECLARATION THURSDAY, BYRNES SAID THE PERIOD OF THREE-NATION SECRECY ON INDUSTRIAL KNOW-HOW "NEED NOT BE UNNECESSARILY PROLONGED."

REFERRING TO THE PROPOSED ESTABLISHMENT OF THE COMMISSION, THE SECRETARY SAID, "THIS CAN BE DONE WITHIN SIXTY DAYS."

HE EMPHASIZED AGAIN THE WILLINGNESS OF THIS COUNTRY TO EXCHANGE IMMEDIATELY THE BASIC SCIENTIFIC INFORMATION ON ATOMIC ENERGY AND SAID THE THREE NATIONS "LOOK FORWARD" TO THE COOPERATION OF THE OTHER UNITED NATIONS.

AT THE SAME TIME, BYRNES CONCEDED THAT THE THREE-POWER PROPOSALS REPRESENTED "A VERY MODEST FIRST STEP IN WHAT IS CERTAIN TO PROVE A LONG AND DIFFICULT JOURNEY."

HE SAID AMERICANS SHOULD NOT "IMAGINE WISHFULLY THAT OVERNIGHT THERE CAN ARISE FULL-GROWN A WORLD GOVERNMENT WISE AND STRONG ENOUGH TO PROTECT ALL OF US AND TOLERANT AND DEMOCRATIC ENOUGH TO COMMAND OUR WILLING LOYALTY."

HENCE, BYRNES SAID, WHEN MR. TRUMAN AND PRIME MINISTERS ATTLEE AND KING GOT AROUND TO DETERMINING HOW SOON THE KNOW-HOW OF ATOMIC ENERGY SHOULD BE SHARED WITH OTHER NATIONS, "ONLY ONE ANSWER WAS POSSIBLE."

"UNTIL EFFECTIVE SAFEGUARDS CAN BE DEVELOPED, IN THE FORM OF INTERNATIONAL INSPECTION OR OTHERWISE, THE SECRETS OF PRODUCTION KNOW-HOW MUST BE HELD, IN THE WORDS OF THE PRESIDENT, AS A SACRED TRUST---A TRUST IN THE EXERCISE OF WHICH WE ARE ALREADY UNDER DEFINITE INTERNATIONAL OBLIGATION," HE DECLARED.

THE CIVILIZED WORLD CANNOT SURVIVE AN ATOMIC WAR, BYRNES SAID, "BUT IT IS NOT ENOUGH TO BANISH ATOMIC OR BACTERIOLOGICAL WARFARE."

"WE MUST BANISH WAR," HE SAID. "TO THAT GREAT GOAL OF HUMANITY, WE MUST EVER REDEDICATE OUR HEARTS AND STRENGTH."

French, Russian Prosecutors Delay Opening of War Trials

NUERNBERG, Germany, Nov. 18—(AP) French and Russian prosecution staffs, seeking a reversal of a ruling by the War Crimes tribunal, moved today to force the indictment of munitions-maker Alfried Krupp and to postpone the opening of the mass trial of former Nazi leaders now scheduled for Tuesday.

Soviet Assistant Prosecutor Col. Yuri Pokrovsky said he would ask the Interallied Prosecutors committee to request the postponement because of the illness in Moscow of his chief, Lt. Gen. Roman A. Rudenko. Pokrovsky said that Rudenko was suffering from malaria and would not be able to come to Nuernberg for 10 or 12 days.

French Assistant Prosecutor Charles Dubost said he would support the Russian request "as a matter of international courtesy."

France's chief prosecutor, Francois De Menthon, has been called back to Paris temporarily because of the de Gaulle political crisis.

Dubost meanwhile was informed that the tribunal would consider his formal demand for a public hearing tomorrow on a request by France, Russia and the United States that Alfried Krupp be substituted for his senile father as a defendant at the trial.

The tribunal's action yesterday in refusing to indict the 38-year-old munitions-maker, brought bitter protests from both the French and Russians, who said they were not present yesterday at the 21-second session when the British president of the court, Justice Geoffrey Lawrence, read the decision.

U. S. Prosecutor Robert H. Jackson, who also wanted a Krupp included in the mass trial, declined to comment. The British opposed the indictment of Alfried at this time.

Pokrovsky declared that the Soviet Union considered the munitions family heir as great a criminal as those now in Nuernberg cells.

The trial of Alfried's father, Gustav Krupp von Bohlen Und Halbach, has been postponed indefinitely because the former munitions king is senile.

No Decision on Hess

The court has announced no decision on whether Rudolf Hess, who claims he is suffering from amnesia, would be brought to trial along with the other defendants. Martin Bormann, Hitler's missing deputy, will be tried in Absentia.

A British psychiatric commission formally advised the tribunal that Hess is mentally incapable of defending himself in court, but was sane at the time he is alleged to have committed war crimes.

The decision of whether Hess will face trial probably will be announced by the tribunal tomorrow afternoon, after the British report is compared with recommendations of Russian, French and American psychiatrists.

"There was a time in Britain when Hess was completely insane," a British spokesman said. "His condition has improved. He is not now insane, but his basic personality is purely hysterical and he has a true amnesia. He is crafty and in some respects very sharp, but he remembers nothing of the past. When accused of crimes, he doesn't know what they are talking about."

Hess Under Observation

Observers who have studied Hess for the last three months have called attention to his ability to wiggle out of questions which only a very alert man could parry.

Defendant Julius Streicher, anti-Semite propagandist, was found sane and fully capable of defending himself by Russian, American and French psychiatrists. Streicher himself has maintained that he is sane, but the examination was conducted at the request of his counsel.

Representatives of the four prosecution staffs will meet tomorrow morning to thresh out the dispute over Alfried Krupp's indictment and the Russian request for postponement.

A spokesman for Jackson said, however, that "Nov. 20 is still a good bet for the opening date of the trial."

VON PAPENS PLAN DEFENSE

Two Germans Preparing For War Guilt Trials

Nuernberg, Nov. 18 (AP)—Two tall, thin men—one an indicted war criminal, the other a war prisoner—gazed at each other across a bare council table, under armed American guard, today and legally schemed how to defend the name of von Papen in the forthcoming Nuernberg war guilt trials.

Sixty-six-year-old Franz von Papen, senior, German attache in Washington in World War I days and Hitler's ambassador in Turkey during World War II, and his 34-year-old son, Franz, Jr., captured German Army captain, discussed together for nearly an hour their hopes to avoid linking the senior von Papen's activities with those of Nazi war criminals.

Still Prisoner Of War

"My father is optimistic—not like some of the others," the son said afterward. "One sees that he has been in prison for months but his mind is still vigorous."

Franz, Jr., for five years an armored reconnaissance officer, was captured with his father last April in the Ruhr pocket and was brought to the Palace of Justice a week ago from an American prison camp. Friday he was recognized as associate counsel on von Papen's defense staff.

"I am still a prisoner of war," he said, "and when the trial is over I expect to be sent back to one of your camps. I was in the same tier of cells here as my father until two days ago."

Qualifications Minimized

Captain von Papen minimized his legal qualifications, saying he had studied law at Georgetown University, Washington, D.C., and taken his degree in Berlin but afterward had practiced only a few months.

"However, I may be useful in assisting my father in reconstructing what has happened since 1932," he said.

"My father's defense is laboring under handicap because all of our family records were destroyed in the burning of our home in the Saar during the past year. I was never a member of the National Socialist party, nor was my father—a fact that seems to disappoint some Allied people when they ask about it. . . ."

Reds Bar Germans' Trips

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Hamburg radio said tonight that Germans traveling from the British to the Soviet occupation zone "for any reason whatsoever" would not be permitted to return. It said: "No traveling may be permitted unless for the purpose of settling in the Russian zone."

[According to the London radio, persons in the British zone also are barred from changing residence or subletting rooms unless they receive special permission. The broadcast, heard by the Columbia Broadcasting System, said the measure was taken because it is impossible to feed and house persons always on the move.]

TITO DENIES PERSECUTION

Says Church in Yugoslavia Was Not Harmed After Liberation

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Belgrade radio today quoted Marshal Tito as saying that reports of church persecution in Yugoslavia were "nonsense."

"There is talk of the persecution of the Church in Yugoslavia," Marshal Tito was quoted as saying in an interview with the French newspaper Humanite. "That is nonsense. After the liberation, nobody persecuted the Church, the priests or their flocks."

Marshal Tito said there were two churches in Yugoslavia, the Orthodox, "to which most of our people belong," and the Catholic, "whose main influence is in Slovenia and Croatia."

"The Orthodox clergy are, in the main, bound to the people and have adopted a loyal, patriotic attitude," he said. "A section of the Catholic clergy played a pernicious role during the war, particularly the high dignitaries."

500 Decoys Drew Bombs In Britain

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP)—A network of 500 dummy cities, airfields, shipyards and other targets so realistic they blazed at night under enemy attack—caused thousands of tons of German bombs to drop harmlessly in open fields during the battle of Britain, the Air Ministry disclosed today.

Mock airfields drew even more raids than the real ones—443 compared with 434 on actual installations. The fields appeared so genuine Allied pilots had to exercise great care to avoid trying to land on them.

Revealing the scope of its decoy system for the first time, the ministry credited the mock targets with diverting 730 attacks from key cities and military installations, saving thousands of lives and preventing millions of dollars worth of property damage.

ASSEMBLY FACES SHOWDOWN TODAY OVER DEGAULLE

Socialists Will Abstain from Voting on General's Resignation.

COMMUNISTS FIRM

Back Gouin to Head Government; Other Parties May Decide Issue.

PARIS, Nov. 18—(AP) The powerful Socialist party said tonight it would abstain from voting tomorrow afternoon, when the National Constituent assembly decides whether to accept or reject Gen. Charles De Gaulle's resignation as president.

The Communist party, which polls the greatest popular vote in France and has the greatest number of assembly seats, already has indicated it will vote against De Gaulle.

Political observers believed, however, that De Gaulle might possibly be reelected with votes of the popular Republican movement and rightwing parties.

The assembly vote tomorrow was requested by De Gaulle tonight in a letter to Assembly President Felix Gouin, who was himself presented as a candidate to succeed De Gaulle.

De Gaulle said that since he was unable to appear in the Assembly until he had formed a government, he had asked the deputies to confirm or deny the mandate they unanimously gave him just five days ago to form a government.

Climaxes Bitter Fight

The vote will climax a bitter political dispute that developed over the composition of the interim government that will rule France for seven months while the Fourth Republic's constitution is being drafted.

At a meeting of 15 spokesmen for the assembly's three large parties, the Communists declared that Gouin was the only man capable of heading a government of national unity.

De Gaulle's radio speech last night, explaining his resignation and implying the Communist party was a tool of Moscow, evoked a prompt reaction among Communist spokesmen and apparently ended hope of formation of a compromise cabinet under the general.

The Communist nomination of Socialist Gouin was interpreted as a bid for Socialist party support, but the Socialists stood pat on their earlier position—that they would join only a government which had the backing of all three parties. The third party—Popular Republican movement (MPR) — reserved judgment on the proposal.

The executive committee of the Socialist party convened shortly after the committee of 15 adjourned.

May Set New Date

Some Assemblymen predicted that the scheduled meeting of the Assembly tomorrow would merely receive De Gaulle's letter renouncing his mandate, and then set a date for the election of a new provisional president. This would allow additional time for any compromise to be worked out among the three parties.

The Communist political bureau termed De Gaulle's speech "contrary to democratic traditions" and a slur against the French Communist party and its 5,000,000 voters." The bureau asserted that the party would not vote to renew the general's mandate as provisional president, on the grounds that the speech had disqualified him as a leader of a "government of national unanimity."

In his nationwide broadcast, rebroadcast several times today, De Gaulle gave his reasons for failure to form a tripartite coalition cabinet, and said he could not grant Communist demands for one of three major cabinet positions—foreign affairs, war or interior—and still maintain a policy of "equilibrium between two great political powers."

The two great political powers were not named by De Gaulle himself but a spokesman identified them as Russia and the United States.

The political crisis reverberated throughout the country, student manifestations in favor of De Gaulle were reported from Bordeaux. The local headquarters of MRP at Lille was ransacked during the night, and photographs of De Gaulle were ripped off the wall and burned. De Gaulle himself remained at his suburban home at Neuilly.

Left wing newspapers laid down a barrage of criticism against the radio address, charging it was the speech of a candidate rather than a national leader.

The newspaper Combat declared De Gaulle must have known he was alienating the Communists and thus placing himself before the assembly as a factional leader.

The newspapers Figaro, Epoque and the popular Republican organ Aube supported De Gaulle's thesis that France must keep from becoming an American or Soviet "bridgehead."

"It is our national independence which is in play, that young liberty recovered at the price of the blood of martyrs," said Figaro.

Aube said the division among the three large parties in the assembly demanded De Gaulle's presence as head of government since he was the only strong personality able to maintain cohesion on a common program of reform.

Hudgins, a veteran of 22 months overseas, saw action at Anzio and from southern France to the Rhine.

KRAMER TO APPEAL DEATH SENTENCE

LUENEBURG, Germany, Nov. 18—(AP) Two women and one man sentenced to hang for the tortures of Belsen and Oswiecim have accepted their fate, but eight others facing the gallows, including Josef Kramer, Irma Grese and Dr. Fritz Klein, will appeal, it was disclosed today.

Maj. L. S. W. Cranfield, defense counsel spokesman, said appeals will be lodged with Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery by 26 of the 30 defendants given sentences of death or imprisonment. They will contest both the convictions and the sentences.

The three resigned to die are Elizabeth Volkenrath, 26, head women's supervisor for the SS (Elite Guard), Juana Borman, 42, religious fanatic who gave up missionary work to join the SS, and Franz Hessler, SS member who aided in picking victims for the gas chamber where thousands died.

Sour-faced Herta Ehlert, 40, SS guard, who received a 15-year sentence, decided also against making any appeal.

In addition to Kramer, the camp commandant known as the "Beast of Belsen," his pistol-packing 22-year-old queen, Irma Grese, and the grey-haired Dr. Klein, five others who were sentenced to death are appealing. They are Peter Weingartner, Ansgar Pichen, Karl Francioh, Wilhelm Dorr and Franz Starfle.

The Belsen trial ended Saturday after nine weeks with five senior British officers of the high military court passing sentences on 30 of 44 defendants found guilty of committing atrocities and murders at Belsen and Oswiecim concentration camps.

One camp functionary, Eric Zoddel, was given life imprisonment and 13 women and five other men prison terms ranging from one to 15 years. Fourteen were acquitted, including five women.

AMERICANS HUNT WEAPONS IN REICH

Troops Strike at Dawn in U. S. Zone in Second Raid Since Occupation.

FRANKFURT, Nov. 18 — (AP) American troops striking at dawn made a search throughout the United States zone today for "signs of organized resistance," weapons and black market hideouts.

The Army announced that all available troops were used in the raid. It was the second time since the occupation started that surprise searches were launched on a zone-wide basis.

There were no immediate reports from the field but soldiers said the search was so complete that everything violating military government regulations was confiscated down to chocolate bars given fraulein for favors.

Some American Army clothing was found. Special emphasis was placed, however, on search for guns, ammunition and "extra food and fuel" in the hands of Germans.

"Targets were assigned individual units and investigations of critical targets were completed by dark," Army headquarters said. "Some few investigations may not be completed until Monday."

Moving with speed that frightened German civilians who were aroused early this morning, troops threw road blocks across streets in key cities and checked every vehicle, military and civilian, as well as credentials of both Germans and refugees.

Gen. Truscott Appeals To German Newsmen

Garmish Partenkirchen, Germany, Nov. 18 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott, Jr., commander of the United States 3d Army, appealed to German journalists today to help the Allies "lead Germany to a respected place among the nations of the world."

"Hope of a new life in Germany rests largely with you," he told a group forming an editors' and publishers' association in the first free meeting of German newsmen since the Nazis' rise to power. "It is you, not Americans, who can best talk to your countrymen," he said.

The 26 representatives of Bavaria's seven licensed papers attending the meeting were urged by Truscott to teach democracy and "clearly define the errors of the past."

Budapest, Nov. 18 (AP)—Major Joseph Gurley, former night editor of the Oregon City, Ore., Enterprise and now with the Air Transport Command here, was married yesterday to Miss Elizabeth Salamon, Hungarian actress, in a civil ceremony. Capt. Joseph Johnson, of Saginaw, Mich., was best man.

Gurley and his bride will leave here shortly for Belgrade, where he will be commanding officer of the ATC depot in Yugoslavia.

Czechs to Take Over 1,800 Plants

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Government reported today that Czechoslovakia's industrial nationalization program will involve the State's taking over 1,100 enterprises operating 1,800 plants.

Prague, Nov. 18 (AP)—Czechoslovakia will bid farewell to American occupatio ntroops Tuesday, in an official ceremony at the Pilsen town square.

ion magazine "New Times" asserted today the atomic bomb "has served as a signal for incorrigible reactionaries of the whole world to begin a riotous agitation against the Soviet Union."

Public opinion in the United States and Britain, Alexander Sokolov said, was being coaxed continually toward anti-Soviet attitudes by underminers of peace "trying to convince Englishmen and Americans of the weakness of our country."

The magazine, in its column of "international notes," declared that peace-loving persons who believe the atomic bomb will automatically outlaw war should recall that Alfred Nobel once had similar ideas about his discovery of dymanite.

Sokolov asserted that the discovery of the atomic bomb has obscured the reasoning of many, including representatives of the press who earlier supported international collaboration.

He quoted a commentator in the Manchester Guardian as saying that "if war began soon, then damage could be less than if it began later." Sokolov asked if this meant that the commentator favored not only isolation but an attack on the Soviet Union "the quicker the better."

He said that some observers accuse the atomic bomb of causing trouble "as if the atomic bomb itself is guilty of everything, and not attempts to use it in foreign policy plays of force."

"Undoubtedly adventurers preaching for a new crusade against the Soviet Union are encouraged by known tendencies observed in American and English politics in recent times," he said. "These tendencies call forth apprehensions and uneasiness among healthy minded people."

He charged that some imperialists were tempted to consider a new war as a means of solving present complicated world problems, and of finding a way out of such unpleasant situations as those prevailing in Indochina, the Netherlands East Indies, Syria, Palestine, Greece Spain and Agentina.

Soviet Magazine Gives View On UNRRA Plan

Moscow, Nov. 18 (AP)—The magazine New Times said today that groups attacking democratic regimes in southeastern Europe had been furnished new ammunition by a proposal in the United States Congress which would ban American aid to countries refusing American correspondents free access to news of UNRRA activities.

The article said Representative Mundt (R., S.D.) during a recent European visit came to "the amazing discovery that the lone European country where UNRRA activity is properly carried out is Greece.

"This more than bold statement of the 'guardian of the press' in the American Congress more than knocks one off one's feet."

Envoy On Mission To London

Moscow, Nov. 18 (AP)—Canadian Ambassador Dana Wilgress left Moscow for London by air today on a mission reported to be connected with Anglo-American-Russian questions, including the atomic bomb. Wilgress planned to visit the British capital for about 30 days.

Generalissimo Stalin's picture appeared today on the front pages of all newspapers in connection with the observance of Russia's artillery day, but the significance was not clear.

There was no announcement whether he had returned from his vacation. The official order of the day marking the celebration was signed by Marshal Alexander Vasilevsky, deputy commissar of defense.

Twenty volleys at 7 o'clock tonight from the guns of the garrison of Moscow and other big cities reminded the nation of the wartime achievements of its artillerymen.

A Red Star editorial said as many as 20,000 guns had participated in a single operation during the war and that the Stalin artillery plant alone produced 100,000 guns during the war.

Bandits Capture Italian Village And Loot It

Rome, Nov. 18 (AP)—Banditry in Italy reached new heights of audacity, it was reported today, when a gang of 50 men captured the village of Gaggio Montano, in the mountains near Bologna, and held it for six hours while they took 15,000,000 lire ($150,000) from the local bank and looted homes.

Pope Says Spaniards Should Be Grateful

Vatican City, Nov. 18 (AP)—Pope Pius XII, in a radio address to a celebration in Madrid of the first centenary of the Apostolate of Prayer today, said Spaniards should be grateful for being spared the horrors of World War II.

"In some dark hours of history, God lifts His almighty hand and lets the four horesemen of the Apocalypse ride through and crush everything under the bronze hoofs," the Pope said. "Thus God punished those who have transgressed."

The Pope praised Spanish "religious zeal" and Spain's contribution of saints to the Catholic Church.

Portugal Elects New National Assembly

Lisbon, Portugal, Nov. 18 (AP)—Delegates to Portugal's National Assembly were chosen today in a quiet election after a 40-day political campaign, in which Premier Dr. Antonio de Oliveira Salazar heard his regime criticized by the opposition for the first time in eighteen years.

Opposition leaders presented no candidates against Salazar, contending they did not have sufficient time to prepare for the election. The Assembly, therefore, will be strictly a one-party body.

Apparently Salazar wanted to test public estimation of his rule. The only hint he will get is in the size of the vote. Even then, opposition leaders contend, the figures will not be representative, since a majority of Democrats and Liberals refused to register when Salazar refused their request to postpone the elections. Of Portugal's 7,000,000 population less than one seventh—943,274—registered for the elections.

GREEKS ASSAIL ALLIED OFFERS

100,000 Demonstrate Against Recognition Of Albania

Athens, Nov. 18 (AP)—More than 100,000 Greeks jammed historic Constitution Square today in a mass demonstration against British and United States offers of recognition of the Albanian Government and shouted in unison "We are going to fight" over Northern Epirus.

Greek Orthodox Bishop Panteleimon, of Argirocastro, Albania, told the multitude that recognition of Albania was "ridiculous" and "if the Allies do not give it (Northern Epirus) to us through justice we shall take it by strength."

The crowd took up his words and chanted "ridiculous."

Northern Epirus is the border area now a part of Albania which Greeks claim is historically, culturally and ethnically theirs. It has been a part of Albania since 1914, was taken by the Greeks in their fight with the Italians in the war just closed and reoccupied by the Axis when the Germans overran Greece.

Seven streets leading to Constitution Square were packed with cheering, shouting Greeks in what observers described as the biggest mass demonstration in modern Greek history. Leaders of professional, labor and scientific organizations charged the Allies were deserting their ally Greece.

Comment By Premier

Half a dozen crippled veterans of the Albanian-Italian campaign were lifted to the shoulders of the crowd amid shouts of "Let the Allies see it."

At mention of Albanian Premier Enver Hoxhas, the demonstrators roared "Down with Hoxhas—death to Hoxhas."

Greek Premier Kanellopoulos, watching the demonstration from his hotel balcony, commented, "You see the population of Athens in mass meeting expressing with dignity and modesty the national pain for sufferings of their brethren in northern Epirus."

Others who joined in addressing the demonstrators from the balcony of the Athens bar, L. Plionis, president of the Greek ex-service men; and Photios Macris, chief executive of the General Confederation of Labor.

An organizing committee adopted a resolution protesting against recognition of the Albanian Government before settlement of the northern Epirus question. Other resolutions adopted contended that holding elections in northern Epirus was inadmissible under any Albanian regime, and demanded occupation of the province by Greek and Allied troops to protect the lives of the population until the question is settled.

Bulgaria Elects New Assembly After Rejecting U. S. Protest

W. B. KING

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 18—(AP) The election of a National Assembly—first held in Bulgaria since 1940—went forward tonight quietly, with indications of a large vote.

Sofia offered a typical Sunday atmosphere, with only a normal number of people on the streets. Loudspeakers throughout the city blared music and intermittently urged people to vote.

Sofia, a city of some 700,000 people, has 84 voting districts, and the flow of voters in each appeared to be constant.

The balloting was typical of any American city. One picked at random was in a school room, with desks and other paraphernalia pushed to one side.

Militiamen with bayoneted rifles, however, guarded voting rooms, and identification was necessary. In the voting room four men sat behind a long table. The voter entering first presented a certificate showing his right to vote, and the number of the certificate was checked against a list of voters.

Then he was handed a small blue envelope which was initialed by the president of the voting bureau, in the presence of the voter to insure its authenticity.

Prior to the start of voting the Bulgarian government replied to a note of warning from Washington.

The contents of the Bulgarian note were not made public, but unofficial sources said it merely contained a re-statement of the Fatherland Front contention that full democratic rights exist in Bulgaria

Large Vote Reported

(The Sofia radio said "A high percentage of the electorate" voted, and the opposition parties "have not taken part following their decision to boycott the elections."

There was no indication that either the United States note or opposition demands for a postponement would cause the government to alter its plans to submit to the people a single slate of candidates representing the Communist-dominated Fatherland Front.

The voters thus will be given two choices: They can vote for the Fatherland Front candidates for the National Assembly or they can abstain from voting. Opposition leaders urged their followers not to go to the polls.

The United States note said "There is no reason to believe the results of an election under (present) conditions will reflect the Bulgarian people's choice of a representative democratic government."

The statement added that "no steps have been taken since August to reorganize the present Bulgarian government to make it truly representative of democratic opinion."

The United States note was based upon a report from Mark Ethridge, Louisville, Ky., publisher, who spent two weeks here investigating the situation as a personal representative of President Truman. Ethridge's findings were made available to Russia and Britain, it was disclosed, but neither of them joined in the protest.

Election Once Postponed

Britain and the United States both had sent protests against original plans to hold the elections Aug. 26. After the protests were received the date was postponed to Nov. 18. Ethridge went to Moscow last week to present the American position to Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov.

(Moscow dispatches said Ethridge had left Moscow for Bucharest after seeing Andrei Vishinsky, Vice Commissar of Foreign Affairs. In Bucharest he will make a survey of the Romanian political situation.)

Opposition to the single slate of candidates was spearheaded by Nikola Petkov and four other former ministers in the Fatherland Front government who resigned because they claimed the government was Communist-dominated.

The opposition said the government was using force and terror to turn out a large vote and with this large vote on record, the government would go headlong into making Bulgaria a Communist state.

The government, on the other hand, said the opposition withdrew from the elections after it become apparent that the people were overwhelmingly behind the Fatherland Front.

Elections Are "Quiet"

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP)—Nearly 97 per cent of the electorate in four Sofia districts voted in today's Bulgarian elections, the Moscow radio said tonight, quoting a Tass (Soviet official news agency) dispatch from Sofia. The dispatch was quoted as saying the elections took place "quietly and in an organized manner."

The percentage was as high as 99 per cent in one Sofia district, the Moscow broadcast said. It added that in several districts and villages voting was completed at 4 p. m., nine hours after the polls opened.

The broadcast said Georgi Dimitrov, founder of the Fatherland Front, voted at Sofia at 3:30 p. m. and received a "tremendous ovation" from crowds dressed in holiday attire. Crowds at Karnobat hoisted Premier Kimon Georgiev to their shoulders when he arrived to vote. In many villages voters went to the polls singing and playing national music.

SOVIET AREA AFFECTED BY REBELLION

Insurgents Said To Have Taken Railway Town Of Mianeh

Tehran, Iran, Nov. 18 (AP)—An Iran Government spokesman said tonight seven persons were killed in two days of fighting in the northern Iran province of Azerbaijan.

The spokesman said members of the Separatist "Democrat" party, armed with rifles and machine guns, already had captured the railway town of Mianeh and were marching toward Tehran, 250 miles to the southeast.

Occupation of Mianeh, the spokesman continued, was reported in a cable to Tehran Friday by the Governor of Zenjan in Khamseh province, 75 miles south of Mianeh on the Tehran railroad.

Three Towns Reported Isolated

His cable said one gendarme captain and four soldiers and two Mianeh railway station employés were killed in the fighting.

The Governor also said telephone communications were cut between Mianeh and Tabriz, about 110 miles northwest of Mianeh.

Azerbaijan is the most northwestern Iran province, adjoining the Soviet republic of the same name and bordering the Caspian Sea.

The Iran Government spokesman said advances of the insurgents had isolated three towns where there were Iran garrisons. He said insurgents were dressed in civilian clothes.

Council Of Ministers Meets

The spokesman reported that the fighters were advancing toward Zenjan and Kazvin, which is on the railroad to Tehran and about 90 miles northwest of the capital.

It was understood that the weapons wielded by insurgents were considered part of 100,000 Iranian rifles and machine guns handed over to the Russians when Red troops entered Iran in 1941.

The outbreak occurred in the area from which Iranians say they have been barred from sending gendarmes by Russian occupation forces.

The Council of Ministers met in an extraordinary session and instructed War Minister General Riazi and Chief of Staff General Ibrahim Arfa to ask the Soviet military attaché for an explanation. The Russian chargé d'affaires is ill.

Situation Called "Desperate"

The Soviet attaché promised to refer the matter to the commander in chief of Russian forces in Iran, General Sovetnikov.

A high-ranking Iran officer said the outbreak began two days ago and he termed the situation "desperate."

The Governor said the commanding general of the Iran division at Tabriz had asked permission of Russian authorities to send an officer to Tehran to report to the Government, but the Russians refused his request.

No indication has been given as to what other forces were involved in the fighting. Northwest Iran has been occupied by Russian troops. For several months some Iran leaders have complained that the Democrat party was agitating for independence from Tehran and that Russian troops interfered when Iran's police and military sought to restore control by the Government.

Reports circulated in Tehran today that the Allies had agreed to transfer twenty ships from the Japanese and Italian fleets to build up the Iran Navy.

These reports followed an announcement by the Iran Government that it had decided to reinforce its naval forces and patrol the nation's northern and southern shores, in an attempt to halt an increase in the illegal export of foodstuffs.

[In London, a British Admiralty spokesman said today he had no confirmation of the Tehran report.]

CHIANG'S FORCES MAKE NEW GAINS

Communists Admit Setback in Manchuria, Tighten Grip Inland.

CHUNGKING, Nov. 18—(AP) Chinese Communists conceded today that the Nationalists had seized a broadening foothold on the border of Manchuria, but the Reds were reported tightening their own grasp on the heart of the rich state in the wake of Russian withdrawals.

Chinese Nationalists announced Friday night that they had occupied the strategic border city of Shanhaikwan, north of the Great Wall, in an almost bloodless coup.

The Communists confirmed today that they had abandoned the city, although asserting that it was only after "severe fighting," and said they also had been forced out of two nearby townships.

The Communist announcement said 60,000 to 70,000 American-equipped Chinese Nationalist troops brought in by sea had attacked their positions in overwhelming strength, forcing the evacuation.

Gen. Tu Lin-Ming, commander of Nationalists forces for Manchuria, said he had asked the Communists to withdraw 50 kilometers about 31 miles) from the Tientsin-Mukden railroad and had made his sudden thrust when they failed to comply. He said the stroke would obviate the necessity of any amphibious operations along the Manchurian coast.

Chiang's Son Returns

Despite this acknowledged Communist setback, the return to Chungking of Chiang Ching-Kuo, son of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, signified the sharpening nature of the Manchurian crisis.

Young Chiang had gone to Changchun, Manchurian capital, as special commissioner for foreign affairs, but he and other officials fled to avoid the danger of being caught by any sudden withdrawal of the Russian occupation forces and subsequent entry of the Chinese Communists.

The press here said young Chiang had resigned his appointment and would not return to Manchuria, while scheduled departure of various other officials for Manchuria had been postponed indefinitely.

One of the nine Manchurian provincial governors returned here with young Chiang, and Nationalist quarters said that the remaining eight provincial governors were expected here soon.

Nationalists attributed the situation to steady seepage of Chinese Communists into areas evacuated by the Russians, while the Nationalists are unable to enter in any force.

Comment Declined

There were unofficial expressions of bitterness here, but the standard official reply to all inquiries concerning maneuvers in Manchuria was "No Comment."

One Chungking paper said the situation was "critical," while some Chungking observers predicted that unless the Nationalists managed to establish themselves in Manchuria soon, a Separatist movement might well develop in that rich territory which Japan had established as the "independent" state of Manchukuo.

Despite Chungking pessimism, the Central News agency reported that the Nationalists and Communists had resumed their peace talks here Saturday afternoon in friendly fashion.

Previously it had been announced that a long delay was expectable in these talks because Communist leader Chou En-Lai was returning to his Yenan headquarters for advice. Today it was said that Chou would return here quickly with additional counselors.

Latin Americans in China Struggle for Existence

Mexican Official Reports 15 Died in Japanese Prisons

CHUNGKING, Nov. 18 (AP).—More than 200 Mexican nationals and several hundred other natives of Latin America—mostly of Chinese ancestry—now "are struggling for existence" in China, Alfonso Castro Valle, secretary of the Mexican Embassy here, declared today, after a two-week tour of the coastal regions of Canton, Macau and Hong Kong to register Mexican citizens.

Valle said he interviewed hundreds of persons born in Latin America who had suffered years of ill treatment at Japanese hands, particularly in Hong Kong prisons. Most of them were suffering from malnutrition and about fifteen died in confinement during the war, he added.

Valle said the majority of the Mexican citizens he saw will be repatriated as soon as investigations are completed and facilities become available.

Right-Side Traffic for China

CHUNGKING, Nov. 18 (AP).—Chinese traffic is scheduled officially to switch from the left to the right side of the road on Jan. 1—an event which even right-side conscious Americans here anticipate with trepidation. The new law was supposed to have taken effect more than a month ago, but at the last minute some one in authority decided that the populace would need more time to get used to the idea.

CONFLICT IN CHINA GRAVE, GATES WARNS

TSINGTAO, China, Nov. 18 (AP)—The American public generally "is not aware of the serious situation in China and the possibility of involvement of United States forces," Under-Secretary of the Navy Artemus Gates said today.

He said that no decision had been made on the possible future withdrawal of the Marines from North China. Mr. Gates declined to comment on questions concerning the Marines, and China's civil strife, but he said that he expected to make a detailed report to Secretary James Forrestal.

"Washington, at least the State,

Navy and War Departments, are aware of the problems" of the American position in China, but "the public tends to minimize the difficulties," Mr. Gates declared. The three-point policy for American forces in China, as announced by the Seventh Fleet commander, Vice Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, is essentially the same as that understood in Washington, he said.

Admiral Barbey has recommended that American forces be used only to disarm and repatriate Japanese troops, to rescue Allied prisoners and to protect and repatriate American civilian internees. Mr. Gates declined to comment whether American Marines were being used for other functions.

The Under-Secretary and his party, with Edwin Pauley, American Reparations Commissioner, conferred with Admiral Barbey and Maj. Gen. Lemuel Shepherd, commander of the Sixth Marine Division. They plan to leave for Peiping tomorrow and then return to the United States.

Japanese Leaving Shantung

3,000 Sailors First to Depart from Chinese Province

TSINGTAO, China, Nov. 19 (Monday) (AP). — Repatriation of Japanese nationals from Shantung Province, China, was started Sunday with loading of 3,000 Japanese Navy personnel on three American LST's under the supervision of the 6th Marine Division.

A fleet of fifteen such ships will shuttle between this port and the Japanese homeland until the estimated 60,000 Japanese military personnel in the province are returned. It is planned to move 3,000 Japanese from Tsingtao every other day. Japanese civilians will be carried in Japanese merchant ships.

Army Keeping Tab On Shanghai Girls

Shanghai, Nov. 18 (AP) — Any Army man who suspects his Shanghai girl friend of collaborationist activities during the war can drop in at headquarters now and get a full report on her file—just for the asking.

The Army staff arranged it, because to have Americans dating known collaborationists "just doesn't look so good, you know," an intelligence officer explained.

None of the GI's seems to want any of the reports, however.

British Battle Tanks To Gain Railroad Yards In Soerabaja

Batavia, Java, Nov. 18 (AP)—British forces, opposed by Indonesian tanks and mortar fire, advanced approximately 1,000 yards in one sector of Soerabaja today as the eight-day battle for the Dutch naval base continued.

Premier Sutan Sjahrir of the unrecognized Indonesian republic, pledged to the task of restoring peace in Java, rushed a three-man committee to Soerabaja to investigate the fighting in the hope that a solution could be found.

Meeting Unsuccessful

His action came after a meeting of Indonesian, British and Dutch leaders last night failed to find a formula for settling the dispute growing out of Indonesian demands for independence.

Disorders flared in at least two other areas, leaving two British officers dead, a British officer and a Dutch woman wounded and thirteen Dutch Ambonese soldiers wounded.

Charges High Pressure

The British view, after the failure of last night's conference, was that there is no power in Java today capable of exercising sufficient control over the country to restore order. They expressed disappointment that Sjahrir came to the meeting unprepared to make any commitments and seemed loath even to enter discussions.

Sjahrir, on the other hand, declared that M. E. Denning, British Foreign Office adviser to the Southeast Asia command, became "the spokesman for the Dutch in attempting to high pressure us into accepting Dutch proposals.

"Denning questioned us like a policeman questioning small boys," he said. "I told him I had my own personal opinions, but would not express them. All his questions will be submitted to the full cabinet and in due time Mr. Denning will receive our answer."

The conferees agreed to hold another meeting within five days, after Sjahrir had an opportunity to discuss the situation with his newly formed cabinet.

By that time Sjahrir will have had a report from the committee he sent to investigate the Soerabaja fighting. He gave the committee three days to complete its inquiry.

Critical Of Predecessor

Sjahrir, who has been critical of the previous native government's handling of the Soerabaja situation and of placing the entire blame on the British, said "there is much to be investigated as to our part in this affair.

The Chinese Chamber of Commerce in Soerabaja appealed to the Chungking Government to take "urgent steps" to protect the 60,000 Chinese residents of the naval base from British shells and the Indonesian "scorched earth policy."

Chinese casualties in the fighting have been "very heavy" and the "fighting appears unlikely to end soon," Mei Chiao-liong, chairman of the chamber, said.

It was estimated by Chinese sources that 100 Chinese have been killed and 500 wounded since the Soerabaja fighting started.

Gain Railroad Yards

Chief British gains in Soerabaja were scored in the northeastern section of the city, where they made their 1,000-yard advance and gained control of the railroad yards.

At one point they were attacked by two Indonesian-manned Japanese medium tanks. One of the tanks was knocked out by a British Stuart tank. Seven other Japanese-made tanks were captured.

Press dispatches from Soerabaja said 27 Indonesians were killed in two clashes with British patrols.

Claims Planes Shot Down

An Indonesian partisan returning to Batavia from Soerabaja said: "The Indonesians are fighting magnificently and easily holding their ground." He claimed the Indonesians shot down three British Thunderbolt fighter planes yesterday.

A British statement said British casualties in the first seven days of fighting in Soerabaja were 18 killed and 95 wounded.

Thirteen Ambonese troops were wounded in a skirmish in central Batavia which started after Indonesian snipers opened fire on a truck in which the troops were riding. The skirmish lasted more than three hours.

In Semarang, two British officers were killed and one British officer and a Dutch woman wounded when a small band of Indonesians attacked the party's stalled automobile.

11 War Leaders Ordered Arrested by MacArthur

Matsuoka, Koiso, Matsui of Panay Fame on List

TOKYO, Nov. 19 (Monday) (AP).—General Douglas MacArthur ordered the arrest of eleven Japanese war leaders today, including militarists most prominently associated with the imperialistic decade and civilians linked with drawing Japan into the tripartite pact.

Among those named were Yosuke Matsuoka, former Foreign Minister, and Toshio Shiratori, one time Ambassador to Rome—both instrumental in tripartite negotiations—and General Sadao Araki, former War Minister; General Kuniaki Koiso, former Premier, and General Jiro Minami, once known as the brains of the militarist clique.

Also ordered arrested were General Shigeru Honjo, former commander in chief of the Kwantung Army and the man considered responsible for the Mukden incident; retired General Iwane Matsui, charged with the rape of Nanking and the bombing of the Panay, and Yoshihisa Kuzuu and Kazunobu Kanokogi, accused as leaders of the Black Dragon Society.

BAN ON AVIATION DECREED IN JAPAN

Industry to Be Wiped Out with Flying Barred; Radios to Be Restored.

TOKYO, Nov. 18—(AP) Japan's once-extensive civil aviation industry must be wiped out completely by the end of the year, Allied headquarters decreed today.

The directive forbade private flying, pilot training of any sort, ownership of flyable planes and any aerial research.

Another order instructed the Japanese government to restore to individuals the 4,000,000 radio receivers which were confiscated, wrecked or otherwise rendered inoperable during the war, when the government was fearful that its people would hear Allied broadcasts.

Still another bade the government to submit a complete catalogue of all Japanese art and religious treasures so as to preserve them for the people. This followed a government move to try to collect art works and trade them for food imports.

The sweeping aviation order, which headquarters said was designed to prevent any possibility of Japan preserving an air force nucleus for future aggression, outlawed all operation of private aircraft.

All government-sponsored organizations interested in commercial aviation or any of its aspects must be dissolved by Dec. 31.

This will force disbandment of the Japan Aviation association, a government-subsidized sports flying and pilot training organization, the 17,000,000-yen Japan Airways, Ltd., and two research groups.

Ownership or manufacture of working models of planes or balloons is prohibited, as is teaching or research in aeronautics, aerodynamics and Allied fields.

The Japanese Civilian Aeronautics bureau is to be converted to handle railway and shipping inspections. Besides its numerous regional offices and large headquarters, the bureau has operated a training school which now has about 4,500 students with ten flyable planes.

The monopolistic Japan Airways, which formerly operated throughout East Asia, has been operating only a limited courier service within Japan since Oct. 10 under American permission. The concern reported that it possessed 102 planes, of which only half were serviceable. It already has started dissolution.

Even the air courier service of leading Tokyo newspapers, which had used planes because of inadequate ground transport, is being ended. The papers own 45 planes.

Radios Restored

The lack of newspaper distribution, both because of transport troubles and shortages of newsprint, was given by Maj. Gen. Spencer B. Akin as the reason for the order restoring private radio sets.

"The Japanese are relying on the radio for news and recreation, and this will give the people increasingly important means of listening to free speech," said Akin, who is chief of civil communications for the occupation forces.

The directive provides that by Dec. 1 the government must submit a detailed plan to replace all receivers lost or rendered inoperable by war damage or other reasons.

Alanbrooke Calls on MacArthur

TOKYO, Nov. 18 (AP)—Field Marshal Lord Alanbrooke, chief of the British Imperial General Staff, arrived today with a party of British officers and lunched with General Douglas MacArthur. He declined a request by English and American newspapermen for an interview.

Kurusu, Japanese Envoy, Tells of Negotiations

By RUSSELL BRINES

KARUIZAWA, Japan, Nov. 18.—(AP) Saburo Kurusu, Japan's special envoy to Washington before Pearl Harbor, said today a member of President Roosevelt's cabinet and another influential but unofficial American worked closely with Japanese diplomats in an effort to prevent the war.

Kurusu, in an interview, declined to reveal the names of the men. He said they were principals in conversations behind the "front negotiations" with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull.

(Similar information was disclosed Thursday at the congressional Pearl Harbor investigation at Washington in exhibits of Japanese code messages sent to Tokyo as war clouds gathered over the Pacific.

(The decoded messages said that "in addition to carrying out front negotiations with the President and Hull, we have worked directly through cabinet members having close relations with the President and through individua's equally influential."

Secrecy Urged

(The message enjoined Tokyo to "please keep this point strictly secret" because of "its delicate bearing on the State department.")

Kurusu said the Japanese embassy in Washington asked Tokyo to maintain secrecy concerning the parallel conversations to avoid giving the U. S. State department the impression that "we were going behind its back."

He reported the backstage peace efforts closely paralleled the official negotiations and were designed for the same purpose—to prevent or postpone war.

He said that the two Americans who worked with the Japanese in the behind-the-scenes negotiations to forestall war were "very influential" but "I don't feel free to reveal their identities without their permission."

He added it was his opinion that President Roosevelt was the principal policy-maker for the United States at that time, and he (Kurusu) enlisted the aid of the "influential" men because of the necessity of reaching the President through various sources. However, the support of the "influential" men was "not much help," Kurusu asserted.

Kurusu also disclosed that Tokyo's declaration of war arrived at the Japanese embassy in Washington before the time it was scheduled to be announced, but was so badly garbled it was impossible to decode it before the Pearl Harbor attack began.

War Declaration Delayed

Fleet Adm. Osami Nagano, who gave the order for the blow at Pearl Harbor, said in Tokyo recently that the formal declaration of war was to have preceded the attack by one-half hour, but "for some unknown reason" the message was delayed in Tokyo.

The Japanese had intended the war declaration to be handed to the United States at 1 p. m., Dec. 7. This was 7:30 a. m., Honolulu time, 25 minutes before Pearl Harbor was hit.

Kurusu said he did not believe the message was intentionally garbled, but he remarked that the militarists attempted to "shave the time to a minimum between the declaration of war and the attack."

Details of the war declaration timing, the departure of the Japanese fleet on the Pearl Harbor mission and the attack itself were unknown to him until he returned to Japan, the diplomat said.

"The militarists decided those things," Kurusu explained.

Commenting on other portions of the decoded Japanese message submitted to the Congressional Pearl Harbor committee, Kurusu said:

Plan "A" called for attempts at complete settlement of American-Japanese problems. Plan "B" which had been rejected in the United States memorandum to Japan on Nov. 26, had been an offer to withdraw Japanese troops from Southern Indo China. It was submitted merely to keep the door open for future negotiations.

Kurusu said he was convinced that both President Roosevelt and Hull sincerely attempted to prevent, or at least postpone, war with Japan, knowing that the United States was militarily unprepared for such a struggle.

Lauds Hull

"I am sorry to read reports that Hull is being criticized as negligent," Kurusu said. "He certainly wasn't."

When asked his opinion of the reason the Americans presented the Nov. 26 memorandum—which Tokyo officials called an ultimatum—Kurusu replied:

"Well, perhaps you had to satisfy public opinion in your own country, too. I gathered the impression that Hull didn't like it very much."

Kurusu said the Japanese Foreign Office appointed him a special envoy to Washington and that he met Premier Tojo only briefly before leaving Japan, where "a great tidal wave of war sentiment was growing."

He said his major gamble was that the mission would attempt to find some formula whereby Japanese troops could be withdrawn from China with "the militarists saving face."

His second game, he said, was that the resurgent strength of the Russians might "be a deterrent to hot-headed Tokyo younger officers, the Pacific war could be postponed."

Kurusu resides in a summer cottage in this resort town, 90 miles northwest of Tokyo, with his American wife and two daughters.

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Nov. 18 (AP)—One million pounds of turkey will be served Thanksgiving Day to American forces in Japan. Each GI will get one and a half pounds, according to Quartermaster Col. L. F. Lichtenwalter. There will be 700,000 pounds of trimmings, too.

SOLDIER, JAP GIRL SLAIN

OSAKA, Nov. 18.—(AP) The bodies of an American soldier and a Japanese girl, evidently beaten to death with a club, have been found near a stream here, U. S. Sixth Army officials reported today. A public relations officer described the deaths as double murder, although investigation has not been completed. He did not name the soldier.

Even Had Russian Artillery at End of War, U. S. Discovers

NAGOYA, Nov. 18 (AP).—A recovery team of the American 25th Division found today that at the end of the war the Japanese were testing American, British and even Russian artillery at the Konakayama proving grounds, sixty-five miles east of here.

The American and British types apparently were captured. It was not disclosed how the Japanese had acquired the Russian weapons, but there was speculation that they might have been captured in some of the Manchurian border incidents of previous years or obtained from Germany.

141 CAPTIVES BURNED, MANILA COURT HEARS

MANILA, Monday, Nov. 19 (AP)—The shooting, bayoneting and burning of 141 American service men by the Japanese on Palawan Island, in the southwest Philippines, was described in depositions today at the war crimes trial of Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita.

The murdered Americans were part of a group of 150 captured during the Philippines fighting and taken to Palawan to work on Japanese airfield installations, the commission hearing the charges against Yamashita was told.

Only nine survived. They escaped and swam several miles to another island, where they were rescued by guerrilla forces.

The depositions said that the men had been ordered from their work at the airfield at midday into air-raid shelters. Their Japanese guards threw buckets of gasoline over them and set them afire. Those not burned to death were shot or bayoneted as they attempted to escape.

The Japanese later told Filipinos that the Americans had been killed by American bombing raids, the depositions said.

MENZIES WARNS AUSTRALIA

Calls 'Netherlands Indies' Vital to Future of Country

CANBERRA, Australia, Nov. 18 (AP)—Opposition Leader Robert Gordon Menzies, asserting the foreign policy of Prime Minister J. B. Chifley's Government was anti-British and anti-Netherlands, declared today a future Netherlands Indies is clearly vital to Australia."

In a statement distributed to the press, Mr. Menzies declared that "if the Dutch are thrown out of the Netherlands Indies, and the British out of Malaya and Burma, the Australians will discover what isolation really means."

Fatal Air Crash Blamed On Insufficient Gas

Honolulu, Nov. 18 (AP)—Failure of ground and air crews to determine that a Consolidated Liberator transport was carrying sufficient gasoline was blamed by an investigating committee for the forced landing at sea November 3 which cost the lives of eighteen out of 26 persons aboard.

PACIFIC FLEET TASK OUTLINED

Occupation, Returning Service Men, Minesweeping Listed

San Francisco, Nov. 18 (AP)—Twelfth Naval District headquarters said today about 260 combatant ships still are on active duty in the Pacific, as compared with 800 when the Pacific war ended. Approximately 765,000 officers and men are manning the fleet units, as compared with 1,015,000 two months ago.

Outlining the Pacific Fleet's current tasks, the Navy said in a press statement the primary job of the fleet "is to assist in the execution of United States Government policy . . . with special emphasis on the important task of transportation and supply of United States forces assigned to occupation duty in Japan and its former possessions."

Returning Men Second Job

A second primary job is moving high-point service men from ships and bases to a staging area where they board ships returning home.

Some 600 ships with 37,500 officers and men, aided by 100 Japanese ships, are "engaged in the largest minesweeping operation in history," the Navy said. The area to be swept extends from the Gilbert Islands to the East China Sea and the Japanese home waters.

It is believed, the Navy said, at least 115,000 mines are in the Japanese area alone.

The statement said the fleet's "pressing problems" include movement of Chinese troops into newly liberated areas; occupation of Japan with American military forces; provisioning and redeployment of United States Government property abroad and the rollup of military and naval bases and installations.

Material Worth Millions

The Pacific Fleet Service Forces are handling the redistribution, preservation and disposal of millions of dollars worth of material and equipment, the Navy stated.

A State Department agency, the army-navy liquidation commission, is supervising disposition of three types of material:

1. That which is surplus to the needs of a base area but which can be returned to the United States for sale.

2. That which is surplus but cannot profitably be returned for sale. This material will be redistributed to service installations where it best can be utilized.

3. That which is surplus but which is needed neither by other armed services nor in the States. This material wil be sold to foreign governments, or abandoned according to rulings of the commission.

Sold On "As-Is" Basis

"As far as is practicable," the Navy said, "all sales to foreign governments are being made on an 'as-is' basis with the buyer supplying the shipping."

Over 2,200 amphibious crafts are listed as on active duty, together with more than 700 auxiliaries. Seven hospital ships are attached to the fleet and eight assigned to carrying home sick and wounded.

GENERAL MOTORS CUT

Dealers' Margins Trimmed 2.5 Pct. — Production Outlook Uncertain.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. — (AP) The OPA announced tonight that retail prices for new Fords, Chrysler-built cars and Studebakers will be up one to nine per cent over January, 1942 prices. Retail prices for General Motors cars will be cut an average of 2.5 per cent.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles said that on the average prices the public pays for new cars "will be no higher than those charged in January 1942."

This, he added, does not take into account some price increases based on design and engineering changes.

Fords Up 2 Per Cent

The retail price increase for Fords will average about two per cent, Bowles said, while Chrysler retail ceilings will be up about one per cent and Studebaker approximately nine per cent.

Bowles said that manufacturers' prices, apart from increases due to specification changes, "will be increased on the average less than 3 1-2 per cent above 1942 levels."

The OPA chief rejected dealers' demands that they be exempt altogether from having to absorb any of manufacturers' price increases resulting from higher production costs.

Bowles announced however, that dealers' discount margins will be uniformly trimmed by only 2.5 percentage points. He had indicated earlier that the pre-war average discount of 25 per cent might be cut by 4 or 5 percentage points.

Dealers 'Disappointed'

President William M. Mallon of the National Automobile Dealers' association, said at Cincinnati his organization is disappointed by the thinner discount margin, "but not surprised."

NADA, he said, believes the decision to reduce them "is not justified either by the limited studies made by the OPA" nor the OPA pricing act.

The big question—when will the cars be available in volume? went unanswered tonight. At Detroit, the industry, withheld formal comment on the pricing action until companies receive official figures.

Bowles said the most recent estimate by the Civilian Production Administration indicated an output of 500,000 cars a month by next June. But George Romney, general manager of the Automobile Manufacturers' association, observed that was the industry's calculation last August. He expressed doubt it would be realized.

The industry right now is concerned about labor troubles and uncertain production programs. Romney said there was no indication when the new cars would be coming out in substantial volume.

Bowles' announcement of ceilings on new cars has no connection with the prices of used ones.

The only actual ceiling prices announced were for Ford and Studebaker. Others will be made public "as soon as final details can be worked out," Bowles said.

Outlines Situation

This is the picture he gave for various makes of new cars:

General Motors—"retail prices of General Motors cars will average about 2.5 per cent below January 1942 levels." Bowles said that Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac—all produced by GM—had accounted for about 47 per cent of 1941 production for the industry. He added that information recently submitted by GM "indicates clearly that no across-the-board increase is required above their 1942 factory price levels."

Ford—a six per cent increase in factory prices will be reflected "in about a two per cent increase on the average at retail." Bowles specified that Ford retail prices also will reflect changes in engineering and specifications "which have increased production costs over 1941 levels."

Chrysler—"preliminary examination of information (submitted by the company) indicates it is unlikely that—aside from specification changes—factory prices will be increased on the average by more than 4 per cent." This will mean, Bowles added, about 1 per cent increase at retail. Chrysler produces the Plymouth, Dodge, DeSota and Chrysler cars.

Studebaker — Bowles said that "primarily because of smaller increases taken during 1941, increases on Studebaker cars at the factory level average about 12 per cent." This will result in an increase at retail of about nine per cent, exclusive of price adjustments for specification changes.

Other makes—both Packard and Hudson only recently submitted information to OPA, Bowles said, adding that a decision on their price application will be announced shortly.

Nash, he said, is preparing a price application but has not submitted data to OPA.

Bowles said that several other manufacturers, including Willys, Crosley, and the new Fraser-Kaiser, "are still some distance from beginning production."

Prices Listed

The Ford retail ceilings announced are: deluxe eight-cylinder tudor sedan, $882, as compared with $850; deluxe eight-cylinder fordor sedan, $931, as compared with $885; super deluxe eight-cylinder tudor sedan, $940, as compared with $895; super deluxe eight-cylinder Fordor Sedan, $989, as compared with $930; Super deluxe eight-cylinder sedan coupe, $977, as compared with $920.

OPA emphasized that these prices do not include federal excise taxes, transportation charges, or preparation and handling charges.

The agency announced a retail ceiling of $834 for Ford deluxe eight-cylinder three passenger coupes and a ceiling of $891, for the same model in the super deluxe line.

At Detroit, the Ford company said comparable prices for 1942 models were $815 and $860.

The OPA did not include 1942 prices on these two models in its price regulation explaining there was a lack of basis for comparison.

A Ford spokesman said the OPA may have based its conclusion on "many improvements" in the models, although they are "pretty much the same." The improvements are on radiators, springs and inside panelings, it was explained.

The OPA omitted comparable prices also on ceilings for these new Studebakers:

Four-door cruising sedan, $967; 2-door club sedan, $918; 5-passenger double-dater coupe, $916; 3-passenger business coupe, $875.

On the controversial issue of dealer absorption, Bowles said: "In setting retail ceilings on new autos we have applied our normal policy of requiring that wholesalers and retailers absorb all or part of the increase in factory prices within specified limitations without passing it to the public."

Bowles said that despite this requirement "dealers actually will realize considerably higher margins than they did before the war."

See Dealer Profits

In support of this, the OPA chief reiterated his view that "in the present type auto market, it is perfectly clear that dealers will not have to take any significant losses on tradeins, or to grant the liberal cash discounts prevalent during the pre-war period."

Bowles asserted that even after the reduction of their margin from 24 per cent to 21.5 per cent, "dealers will retain in actual realized margin far in excess of their prewar average of around 12 per cent."

In deciding on a uniform cut of 2.5 percentage points in dealers' margins, OPA made it applicable to dealers handling General Motors cars, even though retail prices for cars will be an average of 2.5 per cent below 1942 levels.

As for manufacturers' prices, Bowles explained that the formula under which they were set takes into account legal increases in materials prices, as well as approved increases in basic wage rate schedules since January, 1941. The formula requires manufacturer absorption of all other cost increases.

Bowles said the formula was designed to assure a reasonable profit based on a volume no higher than that of 1941.

"The most recent estimate of the civilian production administration indicates," Bowles stated, "that by June 1946 the industry will be producing at the rate of 500,000 cars a month.

"This is about 45 per cent above the 1941 monthly rate and nearly double that of 1939. This higher volume means lower unit costs and the opportunity for higher profits and higher wages."

Referring to sharp criticism of OPA's cost absorption program voiced last week before the House Small Business committee, Bowles said:

"We feel that the hearings served a constructive purpose. We welcomed the full and open discussion of the principles and issues involved so that x x x the Congress and the public might have a better understanding of our policies and the reasons for them."

Bowles said that before issuing today's announcement, criticism submitted at the hearings by auto dealers had been given "most careful considerations."

Ford Co. Declines Comment on Prices

DETROIT, Nov. 18. — (AP) The Ford Motor company refused to comment tonight on the OPA retail prices for new automobiles beyond issuing this statement:

"We are unable to confirm the prices because the OPA refused to give us the figures."

There was no further explanation from the company. It was recalled, however, that criticism was voiced in the automobile industry recently of the OPA on grounds that the government agency had withheld its computations on which new car prices would be based.

Other companies also declined comment until receipt of official price lists from the OPA.

Text of OPA Statement on Auto Prices

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—Following is the text of the Office of Price Administration announcement today on automobile prices:

Price Administrator Chester Bowles announced today that the new 1946 model passenger automobiles, now coming into dealer showrooms, will be sold at retail prices which on the average will be no higher than those charged in January, 1942, adjusted for changes in design and engineering specifications.

At the same time Br. Bowles also announced that factory prices, apart from specification changes, will be increased on the average by less than 3½ per cent above the 1942 levels. This increase in factory prices will not be passed through to the car buyer.

Dealers normal pre-war initial margins will be uniformly reduced by 2.5 percentage points, which will assure the 1942 retail prices on the average for all cars. Because of the elimination or reduction in the losses which they formerly were forced to take on used cars, dealers are, however, assured margins considerably above those actually realized before the war.

No General Increase for General Motors

"Information recently submitted by General Motors Corporation indicates clearly," Mr. Bowles said, "that no across-the-board increase is required above their 1942 factory price levels. Since price increases on General Motors cars between 1941 and 1942 were very uneven, however, it is possible that minor adjustments may have to be made on a few models, principally in the higher price ranges.

"Retail prices of General Motors cars will average about 2.5 per cent below January, 1942 levels. Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac—all produced by General Motors—accounted for about 47 per cent of 1941 production for the industry.

"The company will, of course, be permitted to reflect in price the effects of specification and design changes which it is making in its cars.

Ford

"Ford prices at the factory level are being increased on the average by slightly less than 6 per cent. This will be reflected in about a 2 per cent increase on the average at retail. Retail prices will also reflect changes in engineering specifications which have inceased production costs over 1941 levels. These increases—which include improved braking and cooling systems as well as redesigned springs and shock absorbers—range from $27.00 to $32.00 at the retail level.

Chrysler

"Only within the past 48 hours has Chrysler made any information available to us. Preliminary examination of that information indicates that it is unlikely that—aside from specification changes—factory prices will be increased on the average by more than 4 per cent over 1942. A 4 per cent increase at the factory would result in about 1 per cent increase at retail. Chrysler produces the Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto and Chrysler cars.

Studebaker

"Primarily because of the smaller increases taken during 1941, increases on Studebaker cars at the factory level now average about 12 per cent. Specification changes including new interleaf springs and improved shock absorbers as well as a heavier battery and improved window moldings will result in increases over 1941 costs of from $43.00 to $47.00 at retail.

Others

"Both Packard and Hudson recently submitted information to OPA and decision on their application will be announced shortly. Nash is preparing a price application but has not yet submitted this information to OPA. Several other small manufacturers in the industry are still some distance from beginning production.

Delay in Filing Cost Information

"Since August of this year," Mr. Bowles said, "we have been working with the automobile companies in an effort to secure cost information on which to establish prices. Obviously, we have been unable to announce retail prices for consumers until we had the full facts on which to base factory prices.

"Most of the companies have announced their cars and have placed demonstrator models on display in showrooms throughout the country. Many companies have been advertising their new models for several weeks.

"However, except in two instances, it has been impossible for us until recently to secure the cost data which we needed. The delay in setting these prices has in no sense been caused by OPA.

Hearings Before the House Small Business Committee

"In the light of the sincere concern expressed by Congressman Patman over the complaints of the automobile dealers, we were glad to postpone the announcement of certain automobile prices planned for more than a week ago until hearings before the House Small Business Committee were completed.

"We feel that the hearings served a constructive purpose. We welcomed the full and open discussion of the principles and issues involved so that, in this critical stage of the stabilization program, the Congress and the public might have a better understanding of our policies and the reasons for them.

"Before taking today's action, we gave most careful consideration to the facts brought out by the automobile dealers at the hearings.

Increases in Factory Prices to Be Uniformly Absorbed by Dealers

"In setting retail ceilings on new automobiles," Mr. Bowles said, "we have applied our normal policy of requiring that wholesalers and retailers absorb all or part of the increase in factory prices within specified limitations without passing it on to the public.

"Despite this requirement, dealers will actually realize considerably higher margins than they did before the war. The retail list prices for automobiles in 1941 permitted dealers a theoretical discount averaging about 24 per cent.

"However, because of the losses taken by dealers on trade-ins and because of cash discounts, the margin actually realized by dealers in 1941 averaged only about 12 per cent. In the present tight automobile market it is perfectly clear that dealers will not have to take any significant losses on trade-ins, or to grant the liberal cash discounts prevalent in the pre-war period.

"Even after the reduction of their list margin from 24 per cent to 21.5 per cent, dealers will retain an actual realized margin far in excess of their prewar average of around 12 per cent.

Prices Set Under Reconversion Formula

"Automobile factory prices are set under the reconversion pricing formula which OPA has used for the past six months for all reconversion products. This formula has proved fair to manufacturers, to wholesalers and to retailers and to the buying public. It takes into account only legal increases in materials prices and approved increases in basic wage rate schedules since January, 1941. It requires absorption of other increases in costs. But it permits manufacturers ample room to move rapidly into high volume peacetime production.

"Moreover, the formula is designed to assure a reasonable profit based on a volume no higher than that of 1941. The most recent estimate of the Civilian Production Administration indicates that by June, 1946, the industry will be producing at the rate of 500,000 cars a month. This is about 45 per cent above the 1941 monthly rate and nearly double that of 1939. This higher volume means lower unit costs and the opportunity for higher profits and higher wages.

"Where increases in factory prices on any reconversion product take place under this formula dealers are required to absorb the increase to a reasonable extent. In no industry have the margins of dealers been reduced to their actually realized prewar margin. In most cases the actually realized dealers' margins will be well above prewar levels. In the case of the automobile dealers their realized margins will be about 75 per cent above the 1941 level.

"On the increased sales above 1941 volume which the Civilian Production Administration estimates for 1946, they should enjoy a substantial increase above 1941 earnings.

"With the reconversion pricing almost completed, it is now clear that prices at retail for major reconversion products will average out at the 1942 level. The buying public is thus assured goods at the reasonable prices on which mass markets, full production and full employment at good wages depend.

Changes in Specifications Will Affect Prices

"As is characteristic of the automobile industry," Mr. Bowles said, "changes in design and engineering specifications have been made on most of the new models. These changes in general result in improved styling, performance and serviceability. In line with OPA's general policy of recognizing the added cost of such improvements, both factory and retail prices will be adjusted accordingly, model by model. These adjustments, however, will be relatively minor. Since under the regulations of the Civilian Production Administration new cars may not be equipped with a spare tire, car prices will reflect this decrease in cost.

UNION LEADERS OPEN PARLEY IN DETROIT TODAY

DETROIT, Nov. 18. — (AP) The wage fight between General Motors corporation and the CIO United Auto Workers union moved toward another climax tonight.

Turned down repeatedly in its demand for a 30 per cent wage rate increase, the union marshaled its GM rank and file leadership for decisions and counsel on immediate future action.

There was no basis for belief the U.A.W.-C.I.O. would issue an early strike call to its 350,000 General Motors employe members even though agreement on the wage issue seemed nowhere in sight.

It was safe to say, however, that both G.M. and the union waited expectantly on the outcome of a special two-day assembly of U.A.W.-C.I.O. representatives starting here tomorrow. Some 200 local representatives from coast to coast were called.

The session was ordered for a report from U.A.W.-C.I.O. negotiators headed by a vice president, Walter P. Reuther, who for many weeks have tussled vainly over the conference table with officials of the corporation.

30.24 — 31729

Thomas Asks For Order

It prepared to assemble as the president, R. J. Thomas, asked "complete and orderly discipline" of all union members in event a strike were ordered.

On the other hand, both General Motors and the union said negotiations would resume, perhaps this week. They were recessed last week after the union rejected another in a series of G.M. counter-offers—this one a 10 per cent increase combined with a proposed 45 to 48-hour week at overtime beyond 40 hours.

Statements from union officials on the eve of their conference with local representatives included a remark by Reuther that "neither I nor anyone else knows when a strike will be called—if at all."

The unionists engaged reservations in a downtown hotel for their session, behind closed doors.

Indicative of the attention focused on the meeting was the setting up of a press room by the union's public relations office.

Participants in the conference will include the U.A.W.-C.I.O. strike strategy committee empowered by the union's executive board to order walkouts in the auto industry's "big three"—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

Says Strike Not Wanted

Thomas, who heads the committee, said in an article in the current issue of the union's newspaper that "the top leadership of the U.A.W.-C.I.O. has neither sought nor wanted" a strike.

Thomas said a "managerial clique" in General Motors "is, in effect, forcing a costly and terrible strike upon us." It was in this article that Thomas asked "complete and orderly discipline" from union members if a strike were called.

General Motors, Chrysler and Ford all have insisted that a wage increase would necessarily mean an increase in the price of automobiles under present materials costs, OPA price structures and other conditions.

George Romney, general manager of the Automobile Manufacturers association, charged in a statement that the U.A.W.-C.I.O. was a "monopoly" that sought to control the companies of the industry and "with the aid of a partisan government, run this giant auto combine."

Admiral Richardson to Testify on Events Before Transfer.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—(AP) The late President Roosevelt's name may be injected into the Pearl Harbor investigation this week in connection with the prewar disposition of naval strength between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Senate-House inquiry committee, still questioning Army and Navy witnesses on just what happened on Dec. 7, 1941, expects to go next into the events leading up to that fateful date of the Japanese surprise attack.

It has Admiral J. O. Richardson, now retired, on its list as the first of these "background witnesses," with a committee notation to the effect that he is to be asked for the "complete story of the reasons why the fleet was based at Pearl Harbor, his trips to Washington in July and October, 1940, his discussions and disagreement with President Roosevelt."

Richardson may be called late tomorrow or next day.

Preceded Kimmel

The admiral was commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet in 1940, surrendering the command in January, 1941, to Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, Mr. Roosevelt's former naval aide who held the post at the time of Pearl Harbor.

Just what Richardson's differences with the late President were has never been officially published.

Rumor long has had it, however, that he objected when Mr. Roosevelt wanted to transfer some naval units from the Pacific to the Atlantic to aid in getting supplies to Great Britain.

It is on the record that a few months after Richardson was relieved, three battleships, one aircraft carrier, four cruisers and nine destroyers were moved from the Pacific to the Atlantic fleet.

Admiral T. B. Inglis, initial witness of the investigation, testified last week that even before the shift the Pacific fleet was numerically inferior to the Japanese force.

He said the transfer left the Pacific Fleet "roughly two-thirds the size, in numbers, of the Atlantic Fleet."

Outside the committee room, Mr. Roosevelt's name already has figured in Democratic assertions that the Republicans are trying to turn the investigation into an attack on the late President.

Hannegan Sees 'Smear'

That line of contention was voiced openly yesterday when Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, the Democratic national chairman, said at French Lick, Ind., that the Republicans on the committee were out to "smear Roosevelt." He termed Republican demands to be allowed to look into the late President's files "a political fishing expedition."

Senators Ferguson (R-Mich.) and Brewster (R-Maine) have sought unsuccessfully for the right as individuals to go into all government files, including Mr. Roosevelt's.

The Democratic majority has taken the position that only the committee as a whole, not individual members, should look into the files.

Hannegan, speaking before the Indiana Democratic Editorial association, had this to say of the Republicans:

"I expect them in their bitterness and their complete lack of a program of their own to carry on this desperate search for a political smudgepot, a muck rake, and some way of making their accusations and innuendos stick where they are trying to plaster them—on our country's great and honored dead."

The committee's outline of procedure, prepared by William D. Mitchell, its counsel, calls for a line of inquiry into just what information was available to President Roosevelt and the State department as to an impending attack, and what part, if any, either took in giving or withholding warnings to Pearl Harbor.

Before the committee gets around to Richardson, Brewster and Ferguson have some more questions they want to ask Inglis and Col. Bernard Thielen, appearing for the Army, about their reports on the attack itself.

PEARL HARBOR INQUIRY TURNS TO FLEET MOVE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Senate-House committee investigating Pearl Harbor expects to examine this week the events leading up to the day of the Japanese surprise attack.

It has Admiral J. O. Richardson, now retired, on its list as the first of these "background witnesses," with a committee notation to the effect that he is to be asked for the "complete story of the reasons why the fleet was based at Pearl Harbor, his trips to Washington in July and October, 1940, his discussions and disagreement with President Roosevelt."

FDR'S SON TELLS LEGION AMERICA WILL NEVER LOSE

CHICAGO, Nov. 18—(AP) Comdr. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., told the American Legion today that this nation will never be conquered and has always won its wars because "we Americans put our country first."

Accepting the Legion Distinguished Medal bestowed posthumously upon his father, the late President, Commander Roosevelt said veterans of 1918 and veterans of World War II had in common with his father the spirit of "putting country above life itself."

"I know and you know," he said, with obvious emotion, "that my father gave his life for his country. Veterans have a great responsibility of carrying on that spirit, that tradition."

Truman Sends Message

The late President's successor, President Truman, telegraphed greetings at the opening of the Legion's 27th annual national convention in which he said this was the first Legion convention in many years he had not attended as a delegate from Missouri.

Mr. Truman said the Legion was in a position "to render great service—by helping returning veterans to find their places in competitive society." He said "they need to be guided back and helped intelligently" and that he hoped the Legion would "take the lead in helping these veterans of World War II." The President added that "the government will do its part."

The Legion Distinguished Service Medal was presented to Henry Stimson former Secretary of War, by Roane Waring, past national commander from Tennessee, and accepted on Stimson's behalf by Brig. Gen. Kenneth C. Royall, Undersecretary of War.

Posthumously, the Distinguished Service Medal was presented to Ernie Pyle, the late war correspondent. The medal presented by Lynn U. Stambaugh, past national commander from North Dakota, was accepted by Pyle's aunt, Mrs. Mary E. Bales of Dana, Ind.

Maj. Arthur Wermuth of Chicago, the "One-Man Army of Bataan," was given loud applause when he urged the Legion to back compulsory military training "so that the horrors which occurred in Europe, on Bataan and Corregidor, Guadalcanal and every other place do not happen again."

Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King told the convention the "best approach" to a proposed merger of the armed forces would be "a complete, thorough and unbiased study by a specially appointed board of civilian and military leaders."

"Our future national security is so vital that we must not gamble with it.

"Yet, without a thorough, comprehensive study, that is what hasty action, or even a compromise among conflicting points of view, would amount to," King said.

Co-Operation Discussed

King said "occasional evidences" of the absence of co-operation (between the armed services) "have been given far wider prominence than the many cases of co-operation."

"We all know," the naval chief declared, "that we now live in an age of technical advancement which brings breath-taking surprises in the way of new weapons and new tactics. The Navy accepts the challenge of this new age.

"Working in co-operation with the Army—and with the best scientific brains in our land—there is every reason to believe that this nation can meet the best efforts of any other nation on the globe, on any field of endeavor whatever."

McNutt a Visitor

A suprise visitor was Paul V. McNutt, former manpower commission chairman and former national commander of the Legion, who leaves tomorrow to assume his duties as U. S. High Commissioner of the Philippines.

Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois told the convention that providing adequate housing for families of returning servicemen was "the most pressing problem confronting this nation today."

As a Legionnaire himself, Green said the convention "can render no greater service to our veterans and to America than by rallying the leaders of government, industry, and labor to prompt action for an effective solution of this problem." He suggested that each Legion post assume responsibility for the veterans housing problem in its community.

As the Legion swung into its first post-World War II convention Milo J. Warner, past national commander from Ohio, said in a prepared response to welcoming speeches that the World War I veterans should "support, not dictate the course to be taken by the ever increasing number of World War II veterans in the organization.

"It is our desire to make the Legion the free vehicle for their views and their action," he said. "In that way the American Legion can truly represent the entire veterans front."

Cites Problems

Warner said many problems facing the Legion at its founding in 1919 still exist.

"Once again we must fight the treacherous apathy and listlessness which seems to overwhelm us when immediate danger passes," he said. "So we must make stronger and tougher our determination to redouble our fight for preparedness, for universal military training, for employment of veterans, for proper care of our disabled and their dependants, and for a better understanding between nations and among ourselves as American citizens."

ARMY PLANS GARRISON CUT

Program Includes Bases In Western Hemisphere

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Army is planning to pare down the size of Western Hemisphere base garrisons, relying on air transport for quick reinforcement in an emergency.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, contends the air transport planes introduced in World War II will make it possible to guard hemisphere bases with reduced forces, holding a proportion of the garrisons in the continental United States for swift transportation by air to any point needed.

Two Advantages Cited

Army leaders feel this system will have at least two advantages—cut the high cost of maintaining big garrisons overseas and simplify the supply problem. The system, of course, is considered purely as a peacetime measure.

Although the Army Air Force has been putting into surplus categories a large number of transport planes, AAF officials have estimated the requirements for the immediate future at 3,800 planes. Its production program for the next fiscal year has been set tentatively at 900 transports, part of which apparently would be replacement for existing aircraft.

Relying On Small Type Of Plane

The carrying capacity of transports now in service is substantial. The C-74 Douglas Superskymaster, a huge four-engine job, is capable of handling up to twenty tons of freight. Principally, however, on the C-54 and other smaller types of planes the Army is relying at present.

The army garrison in Alaska, westernmost of the mainland defenses, now is about 46,000. The Army expects to reduce this to 28,000 by next July 1.

The department has been surveying the entire Caribbean defense situation in recent months, both in light of the uncertain situation of some American bases on leased foreign land and in connection with the general idea of trimming manpower in that area.

36,000 In Panama

The present Army strength at Panama is about 36,000. How far the Army intends to cut that figure has not been revealed, but it is doubted it will be trimmed to the prewar figure of 15,000 in the immediate future.

In early September, there were 100,000 men in the entire Atlantic area, which includes bases on the South American continent, the Caribbean area, the Azores, Bermuda and Newfoundland. In the Azores, Bermuda and Newfoundland, about 23,000 United States troops were stationed, most of them personnel of the Army's Air Transport Command.

Troops stationed in those bases have an advantage under the present demobilization system—they can figure overseas service in computing their point scores.

NAVY UNVEILS RESEARCH UNIT

Scientists Watched Use Of Devices, Planned Defenses

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Navy today credited a group of civilian scientists and mathematicians, banded together in a highly secret organization, with being one of the most successful "combat teams" of the war.

Known as the "Operations Research Group," civilians worked in the headquarters of the commander in chief of the fleet, at headquarters of fleet commanders, and aboard ships and planes of the Navy devising tactics for best using secret devices developed by research and helping devise countermeasures for secret weapons of the enemy.

Much Still Secret

The Navy explained much of the group's work is still secret.

Among the accomplishments credited to the group were:

Stopping German blockade runners from bringing supplies from Java.

Keeping German U-boats from running submerged through the Straits of Gibraltar.

Stopping the German acoustic homing torpedo.

Discovering the weapon Japanese were using to sink American submarines.

Finding the weak spot in Japanese anti-aircraft defenses.

Learning how to keep Japanese submarines from sinking United States transports in landing operations.

The group included physicists, chemists, mathematicians and other scientists drawn from universities, life insurance companies, and research laboratories. As new devices were developed, the ORG evaluated and compared them with other equipment and recommeded the most effective means of using them.

On Planes And Subs

To observe the performance of newly developed equipment under combat conditions, members of the ORG flew with anti-submarine aircraft on submarine hunts, went to the coast of Japan as members of the crew of submarines on war partol, and on board carriers under attack by Kamikaze planes.

Headed by Prof. Philip M. Morse, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the group at the end of the war consisted of 73 men.

Atom Bomb May Force U.S. To Rebuild Panama Canal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—(AP) Discovery of the atomic bomb may force rebuilding of the Panama canal.

This possibility was disclosed today by the House Merchant Marine committee.

The group said in a report that "the advent of atomic bombing" threatens the canal's security.

To meet the threat, the committee has approved a bill calling for a study of whether a rebuilding project should be attempted.

If the rebuilding is to be done, the idea would be to eliminate the locks, which are particularly vulnerable, and make the canal a sea-level waterway.

Would Enlarge Canal

The study also would consider the advisability of enlarging the canal to allow aircraft carriers and "larger vessels of the future" to go through. Even now the largest carriers can't make it and the 45,000-ton battleship Missouri can barely squeeze through.

A decision must be made soon, since a project for a third set of locks already is well under way. Excavation work has been completed, but the plans could be changed.

The War department favors a speedy study of the problem. In a letter to Committee Chairman Bland (D-Va), Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson said:

"The present plans were drawn so as to provide as much protection as was considered practicable against aerial bombing of types and intenties that were known at the beginning of World War II.

"However, subsequent increases in the size and effectiveness of conventional bombs and the development of atomic bombs have greatly increased the vulnerability of a lock canal.

"It therefore appears timely to undertake an over-all review of the problem in the light of developments in national policy and in the military and physical sciences."

The proposed study would be made by the governor of the Panama canal, Maj. Gen. C. Mehaffey.

Ask Speedy Action

Meanwhile House leaders told a reporter an effort would be made this week to speed action on the administration's bill to set up an atomic energy commission.

Chairman May (D-Ky) of the Military committee said he would ask the rules committee to approve the measure, so that it could move to the floor for a vote. Chairman Sabath (D-Ill) of the Rules group said he would hold a hearing whenever May asks for it.

Earlier, several Republicans had reported May would delay action on the bill, because of extensive opposition within his committee.

On the Senate side of the Capitol, Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) expressed hope neither the Army nor the Navy would explode any more atomic bombs without the consent of Congress. Referring to a proposed test of the bomb on Japanese war vessels, O'Mahoney yesterday told the Senate Military committee:

"Any such experiment would be regarded in other nations only as a demonstration of power to threaten the world."

LINDBERGH BACKS ATOM BOMB POLICY

Urges World Body For Control Of Destructive Forces

Atom bomb may necessitate rebuilding of Panama Canal, House group says.....Page 4

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh asserted today that development of the atomic bomb had made "imperative" a world organization for control of destructive forces.

The noted flyer also said "I have not changed my belief that World War II could have been avoided."

Lindbergh made the comments in a statement concerning what he described as "an inaccurate account" of remarks he made at a private meeting of mid-Western congressmen in Washington November 8.

Text Of His Statement

The text of his statement follows:

"An inaccurate account has been printed describing my remarks at a private meeting in Washington. These items are too critical and too dangerous to justify unnecessary division of opinion among Americans on vital international policies.

"I have not changed my belief that World War II could have been avoided, but the issue between so-called interventionists and isolationists is past except from an academic standpoint. We fought the war together and we face the future together as Americans—a future that is more fraught with danger than the war itself.

"In an era which has developed the atomic bomb, and which will develop transocean rockets capable of carrying atomic bombs, the necessity for world organization for the control of destructive forces is imperative. The only alternative is constant fear and eventual chaos.

"Wise And Courageous Stand"

"I believe that President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Prime Minister Mackenzie King, have, in principle, taken a wise and courageous stand—a stand based on the preservation of our civilization, offering justice to all nations and asking only justice in return. So long as I believe that the policy of the Administration is to the best interest of my country, I shall give it my utmost support."

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington on November 14 quoted two congressmen as saying Lindbergh had been invited to the meeting to express his views on atomic energy and other scientific matters. They said the flyer asked that his remarks not be given out for publication.

Lindbergh did not elaborate on his reference to the "inaccurate" reports, other than to say he did not mean the Associated Press.

Assistant Chief Named For GOP Women's Unit

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP)—Miss Jane Hamilton has been appointed assistant director of the women's division of the Republican National Committee.

The appointment was announced today by Herbert Brownell, Jr., GOP national chairman.

Miss Hamilton has been women's division secretary and administrative assistant of the National Federation of Women's Republican Clubs.

She was born in Fort Madison Iowa, and was graduated from St Katherine's School in Davenport Iowa, in 1934.

TREASURY LISTS 'E' BOND TERMS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 — (AP) Because of a misunderstanding many persons of wealth are not investing to the limit in series E bonds, Ted R. Gamble, director of the War Finance division declared today.

The confusion exists, he said, over the maximum amount one individual is permitted to acquire.

Gamble said in a statement:

"There is a legal limit of $5,000 placed on the amount that can be purchased for personal ownership by an individual in any one calendar year but, in addition, a person may buy up to $5,000 of "E" bonds registered in his or her name and the name of another person, who need not be a member of the same family, as co-owner."

"Similarly, purchases of additional "E" bonds with additional persons as co-owners can be made up to the $5,000 limit provided not more than the maximum amount be allocated to any one co-owner."

The director added that either co-owner, whichever is in physical possession of a bond, may cash it after 60 days from the issue date. If transfer of physical possession occurs because of death of one co-owner, the survivor will not have to pay interitance tax.

TRUMAN ON CRUISE WITH WIFE'S RELATIVES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 — (AP) President Truman and his family accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wallace and their two children, went for a brief cruise along the Potomac river today.

Wallace is Mrs. Truman's brother.

News of the presidential outing was withheld from publication until after the party returned to the White House shortly after 4 p.m.

The trip was made aboard a 50-foot day cruiser, described by the Navy as a small, "runabout" motor boat. The new presidential yacht, the Williamsburg, is on a shakedown cruise.

CONGRESS READY FOR HOLIDAY WEEK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 — (AP) The Thanksgiving doldrums set in on Capitol Hill this week although there is no prospect of a formal recess.

Problems occupying immediate congressional attention, aside from the Pearl Harbor investigation, are President Truman's request for authority to reorganize the government and legislation to merge the armed services.

Administration leaders plan to seek a final vote in the Senate this week on the government reorganization bill, which Mr. Truman said last May was needed "without delay." Once past the Senate, the measure will have to be returned to the House for concurrent action.

Hearings before the Senate Military committee on the plan to consolidate the armed forces are due to slow down, with only two sessions schedled for the week. Assistant Secretary of War John J. McCloy is due to testify Wednesday.

Representative Rankin (D.-Miss.) is keeping the House in session with a demand for action on his bill to liberalize the service discharge eligibility rules. Rankin's proposal, now before the House Military committee, would make any serviceman eligible for discharge if he (1) has served 18 months, (2) has any dependents, or (3) wants to return to school.

F.D.R. School Of Human Relations To Be Set Up

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—The Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial Foundation, recently incorporated under the laws of Maryland to perpetuate the ideals of the late President, announced today it soon would establish in Washington a school of human relations.

The group is headed by George E. Allen, of Washington; former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies is secretary-treasurer of the foundation, and its vice presidents are Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace, former Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and publisher Marshall Field.

Executive committee members include Playwright Robert S. Sherwood, chairman; Presidential Adviser Samuel I. Rosenman, CIO President Philip Murray, AFL President William Green, former Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins, former Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Admiral William D. Leahy and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Junior.

2 Aircraft Carriers Hit Water Together

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP)—Combined ceremonies for two of the Navy's largest warships—the 26,000-ton aircraft carriers Valley Forge and Princeton—were held at the Navy Yard today as 40,000 persons watched.

Mrs. Alexander A. Vandegrift, wife of the United States Marine Corps commandant, christened the U.S.S. Valley Forge, financed through a $76,000,000 purchase of war bonds by Philadelphians in a three-month drive.

The U.S.S. Princeton, a sister ship, was commissioned and turned over to Capt. J. M. Hoskins, Pineville, Ky., who lost a foot when the first Princeton sank last year in the battle of Leyte Gulf.

Decorated Polish War Waif, 10, Reunited With Yank Comrade

Portland, Maine, Nov. 18 (AP)—A 10-year-old Polish war waif and a Chicago army sergeant, buddies on Europe's battlefields, were joyously reunited today when the lad arrived on the S.S. James Swan from England.

"Ed! I so happy!" beamed five-times-wounded Bobby Sokolowski as he and Tech. Sergt. Edward Klonowski clinched at the pier.

The orphan, small for his age, was clad in a cutdown uniform and wore a European theater ribbon with three battle stars, presidntial unit citation bar and Purple Heart with cluster.

He Earned Them All

"He earned all those ribbons and he's also entitled to wear the Bronze Star and Silver Star for gallantry in action," said Klonowski, who made a special trip to meet the boy.

He added that his parents intended to adopt the youngster.

Together the buddies told how Bobby served with the Yanks in France, Germany, Austria and Italy after fleeing early in 1944 a Luxembourg camp where he was interned four years by Germans who killed his parents. He dodged German machine-gun fire to land beside Klonowski in a trench.

"Joining" Klonowski's unit, the boy lived as a combat GI until separated last July when his friend was returned to this country.

Hospitalized Six Months

Bobby said he suffered bullet wounds in the chest and left hip and shrapnel wounds in the right hip and both legs in action with his American comrades. He was hospitalized six months for wounds, he said, but none left ill effects.

Bobby's first visit to America—two months ago when he hitched a bomber ride—was limited to 24 hours. Immigration authorities sent him back because he had no relatives in this country.

Sergeant Klonowski, high-point field artilleryman due for discharge, is a tailor in civilian life. He flew from Chicago to New York en route to meet the ship. He said the first thing he was going to do for Bobby was get his rather long hair cut—"if he's going to be an American boy he's going to look like one."

Renunciation Proviso Put On Truman Degree

Corpus Christi, Texas, Nov. 17 (AP). The Rev. L. L. Rolloff told his Baptist congregation here today he believed it would be "all right" for Baylor University to confer an honorary degree on President Truman "if and when he renounces" his "reported attitude toward gambling and drinking."

The 31-year-old pastor of one of Corpus Christi's largest churches was author of a resolution adopted by the State Baptist General Convention last week which took note of the proposed degree.

An alumnus of Baylor, he said in his sermon he was "embarrassed" when the university conferred an honorary degree on former Vice President John N. Garner some years ago because "it was generally known and undenied by Garner that whisky drinking and poker playing were two of his pastimes."

Mr. Truman tentatively accepted the invitation of Dr. Pat N. Neff, Baylor president to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree at Waco December 5, but recently canceled the engagement because of pressing business in Washington.

and daughter of the founder, were the principal speakers at the celebration.

About peacetime military training Marshall commented, "some feel that the President's plan cuts across certain expressions of democracy. I cannot see that. His plan seems to me to be the very expression of democracy."

Call For Leadership

"All the world is looking to us for evidence of guidance and leadership," the General said. "It is waiting to see if America is going to retire behind the ocean or give leadership to the world. And confusion here results from the fact that we lack perspective."

A message from President Truman expressing regret at being unable to attend the meeting was read.

John J. Allan, Salvation Army territorial commissioner from Chicago, introduced General Marshall, and Alf M. Landon, former Kansas Governor, presented General Booth.

AAF WEAKENED, EAKER ASSERTS

Not A Squadron Retains Normal Power, General Says

Oklahoma City, Nov. 18 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Ira Eaker, deputy commander of the Army Air Forces, declared today that by next spring the United States would have destroyed the biggest and most powerful air force in the world.

In a speech in which he indorsed unification of the armed services, Eaker said that even now there was not a single squadron in the AAF that could muster normal fighting efficiency. The officer spoke at the formal dedication of Tinker Field.

Sees 200,000-Man Force

Eaker predicted that within a few months fewer than 200,000 men would remain in the Air Forces, compared with their peak strength of 2,494,000 men. Instead of 70,000 planes the AAF will have fewer than 5,000, he added.

Adequate national defense at a price the taxpayers can afford can be had only through reorganization and unification of the armed services, Eaker declared.

"I estimate we could have saved as a very minimum from ten to twenty-five per cent of the cost of the war if we had had an efficient unification of the three armed seriveces.

Efficiency Emphasized

"I hear the war cost $250,000,000,000. That would be a saving of somewhere between $25,000,000,000 and $70,000,000,000. And, what is more, we would have had a more efficient military machine."

Tinker Field, a huge Air Technical Service Command installation, was dedicated to the memory of Brig. Gen. Clarence L. Tinker, Oklahoma Osage Indian killed in the Battle of Midway.

Women Will Give Leadership To Peace, Marshall Asserts

Kansas City, Nov. 18 (AP)—Placing responsibility for world peace squarely on "the mothers and grandmothers of this and the coming generation," Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, today told 11,000 persons attending the eightieth anniversary celebration of the Salvation Army that women will decide what is to be done to prevent future wars.

"The decisive vote will be cast by the women of America," General Marshall asserted. "They have suffered more than any other human beings during the war and they are going to decide one way or the other this great question of world leadership and peace."

'Nubbins' Who Celebrated Yule Early Last Year Is Getting Well

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 18.—(AP) A year ago, Forest "Nubbins" Hoffman of Cheyenne was a bedridden little chap with dreams of a Christmas which his parents feared he would not live to celebrate.

Nubbins was dying, his parents thought, from an incurable bladder ailment. But he wanted to see Santa Claus and Nov. 19 was set as Nubbins' "Christmas."

In the days before, sympathetic hundreds sent cards, letters, telegrams, money and gifts, large and small, modest and expensive. At least four trees arrived. A fellow railroad worker of Nubbins' father brought a puppy. Soldiers in Colorado sent handmade toys by an army airplane. The modest Hoffman home was taxed to find space for them all.

The little boy had a "dream" Christmas Nov. 19, complete even to a heart-to-heart chat with Santa. Despite the toy store array his home had become, Nubbins preferred his old favorite, a battered and worn old teddy bear he called "mamma."

The next day his parents bundled him up and drove to Denver for one last effort to save his life. He clutched "mamma" during the 110-mile automobile trip.

As soon as possible, a Denver specialist operated and removed a bladder obstruction. Nubbins rallied, improved, teased nurses, talked about his pup, wore out a music box gift and wanted to go home. A month to the day after his special Christmas he was there.

Now, a year from the ebb point, he has gained from 18 to 33 pounds, is "doing fine," his mother joyfully reports, and in many ways is "just like any other child." He still is on a diet and has to go to Denver for periodic checkups, but he's alive and has bright prospects.

Christmas for him this year will be normal and on Dec. 25. And Nubbins, four last July, is thinking about Christmas again. His heart's desire at the moment is a "pieanno," an order that gives his parents pause. For sure he will get some of the gifts sent last year, mother Hoffman said. He never did see them all.

"It's wonderful to look forward to a normal Christmas," she said. "I don't know what we'll do yet. But we have Nubbins."

$14,300 Theft On U.S. Destroyer Investigated

San Francisco, Nov. 18 (AP)—Theft of $14,300 from the United States Navy destroyer escort Greenwood is being investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and a navy board of inquiry, it was revealed last night.

The ship is at Hunter's Point dry dock for repairs. The loss was discovered when the navy supply officer aboard the Greenwood, Ensign Joseph S. Ivey, opened the safe to pay off a crewman, Capt. Howard Gordon, public relations officer for the 12th Naval District, reported.

Civilian crews have been working aboard the vessel, Captain Gordon pointed out. No arrests have been made. The ship is commanded by Lieut. Com. John R. Cain.

6,500 ARRIVE FROM PACIFIC

Luxury Liner Leads 8 Vessels Into San Francisco

San Francisco, Nov. 18 (AP)—Led by the former luxury liner Lurine, eight vessels today brought home from the Pacific more than 6,500 persons, including service men and women, Red Cross workers and civilians.

The Lurline's 4,065 passengers included 81 WAC officers, 1,682 enlisted women, 264 nurses and 40 Red Cross girls.

Only 700 WACs remain overseas in the Pacific, exclusive of Hawaii. All of them have been removed from bases in New Guinea, Capt. Faith Conklin, Redwood City (Cal.) WAC commanding officer, reported.

One Stowaway Aboard

Ranking officer aboard the Lurline was Maj. Gen. Clarence L. Sturdebant, 60, deputy chief of staff of army forces in the Western Pacific. Before his Pacific assignment he was engineering officer for the Alcan highway project.

Aboard the Lurline was one stowaway, Pfc. Willis Tate, Phoenix, Ariz., a member of the 38th Division, with sufficient points for discharge.

Army officers said Tate was scheduled to sail for Los Angeles with other members of his outfit two weeks before, but missed his ship and "managed to come aboard this vessel with the rest of the crowd."

BATAVIA, JAVA, NOV 18-(AP)-PREMIER SUTAN SJAHRIR OF THE UNRECOGNIZED INDONESIAN REPUBLIC ANNOUNCED TODAY THAT THREE MEMBERS OF HIS REGIME'S WORKING COMMITTEE HAD LEFT FOR SOERABAJA TO MAKE A COMPLETE INVESTIGATION OF THE FIGHTING AT THE BIG JAVA NAVAL BASE.

THE DELEGATION WILL REPORT BACK TO HIM IN THREE DAYS, SJAHRIR ADDED.

SJAHRIR HAD BEEN CRITICAL OF THE WAY THE PREVIOUS INDONESIAN GOVERNMENT OF PRESIDENT SOEKARNO HANDLED THE SOERABAJA INCIDENT. HE CONTENDED THAT THERE WAS A TENDENCY AMONG THE NATIVE NATIONALISTS TO BLAME THE BRITISH WHEN "THERE IS MUCH TO BE INVESTIGATED AS TO OUR PART IN THIS AFFAIR."

AN INDONESIAN PARTISAN WHO RETURNED TO BATAVIA FROM SOERABAJA DENIED THAT JAPANESE WERE TAKING PART IN THE BATTLE.

"WE'VE TAKEN JAPANESE GUNS AND UNIFORMS AS SPOILS OF WAR," HE DECLARED, "BUT WE HAD TO FIGHT THE JAPANESE TO GET THEM."

HE SAID THE INDONESIANS AT THE NAVAL BASE WERE GETTING PLENTY OF REINFORCEMENTS AND THAT THEIR MUNITIONS PLANT AT JOGJAKARTA WAS WORKING.

"THE INDONESIANS ARE FIGHTING MAGNIFICENTLY AND EASILY ARE HOLDING THEIR GROUND," HE DECLARED. HE ALSO CLAIMED THAT THE INDONESIANS HAD SHOT DOWN THREE RAF THUNDERBOLTS YESTERDAY, BUT THIS WAS NOT CONFIRMED BY ANY BRITISH SOURCE.

THE BRITISH COMMAND ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY THAT TWO BRITISH OFFICERS WERE KILLED AND ONE BRITISH OFFICER AND A DUTCH WOMAN WERE WOUNDED IN AN INDONESIAN ATTACK ON THE PARTY'S STALLED AUTOMOBILE IN SEMARANG LAST NIGHT. THIS WAS THE FIRST REPORTED INCIDENT OF VIOLENCE FOR SOME WEEKS IN THE AREA OF SEMARANG, A NORTH COAST PORT 175 MILES WEST OF SOERABAJA.

DN753AES

INDONESIAN LEADERS CONTENDED THAT DURING LAST NIGHT'S DUTCH-BRITISH-INDONESIAN CONFERENCE, M.E.DENNING, BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE ADVISOR TO THE SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND, BECAME A "SPOKESMAN FOR THE DUTCH IN ATTEMPTING TO HIGH PRESSURE" THE INDONESIAN INTO AACCEPTING DUTCH PROPOSALS.

SJAHRIR SAID: "DENNING QUESTIONED US LIKE A POLICEMAN QUESTIONING SMALL BOYS."

THE MEETING ENDED WITHOUT AGREEING ON A FORMULA FOR PEACE IN JAVA.

SJAAHRIR DECLARED THAT THE DUTCH CLAIM THAT JAVA FACED A FAMINE WAS NOT FOUNDED ON FACT. HE SAID THERE WAS MORE FOOD ON THE ISLAND NOW THAN AT ANY TIME DURING THE JAPANESE OCCUPATION.

SOERABAJA, JAVA, NOV 17-(DELAYED)-(AP)-SOERABAJA'S CHINESE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE APPEALED TO THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT TODAY "TO TAKE URGENT STEPS" TO PROTECT THE 60,000 CHINESE RESIDENTS OF THIS JAVA NAVAL BASE FROM BOTH BRITISH SHELLS AND THE INDONESIANS' "SCORCHED EARTH POLICY."

CHINESE CASUALTIES IN THE FIGHTING IN SOERABAJA HAVE BEEN "VERY HEAVY" AND THE "FIGHTING APPEARS UNLIKELY TO END SOON," THE ORGANIZATION'S CHAIRMAN, MEI CHIAO LIONG, SAID.

HIS APPEAL CAME AS BRITISH INDIAN TROOPS WERE CLEARING INDONESIAN EXTREMISTS FROM A CONGESTED AREA BETWEEN THE SEMAMPIR CANAL AND THE SIDOTOPO RAIL LINES LARGELY INHABITED BY CHINESE. IT WAS ESTIMATED BY CHINESE INFORMANTS THAT 100 CHINESE HAD BEEN KILLED AND 500 WOUNDED IN THIS AREA.

TOKYO, NOV 18-(AP)-JAPAN'S CRITICAL COAL SHORTAGE IS CAUSED BY DEFICIENCIES IN LABOR AND MINING EQUIPMENT, ALLIED OCCUPATION OFFICIALS SAID TODAY.

PRODUCTION DROPPED FROM 3,400,000 METRIC TONS (ABOUT 4,080,000 U.S. TONS) LAST JUNE TO 545,000 METRIC TONS (654,000 U.S.) IN OCTOBER, SAID LT. COL. H.G.SCHENCK, CHIEF OF THE NATURAL RESOURCES SECTION OF GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS.

WHILE MEASURES HAVE BEEN TAKEN TO OVERCOME SOME OF THE DIFFICULTIES, COAL STOCKPILES WHICH AT THE END OF THE WAR TOTALED 3,900,000 TONS ARE DISAPPEARING AT THE RATE OF MORE THAN 1,000,000 TONS A MONTH, SCHENCK SAID.

ALLIED USES REQUIRE AT LEAST 163,000 TONS MONTHLY AND JAPAN'S MINIMUM INDUSTRIAL REQUIREMENTS ARE 973,000 TONS PER MONTH--ALL EXCLUSIVE OF THE NEEDS OF OTHER FUEL CONSUMERS. NORMALLY, THE NATION CONSUMES THREE TIMES THIS AMOUNT.

FORTY PER CENT OF THE MINERS IN JAPAN WERE KOREANS AND CHINESE, WHO HAVE BEEN CELEBRATING THEIR FREEDOM FROM SLAVERY IN THE COAL PITS BY REFUSING TO WORK, AND IN SOME CASES TAKING PHYSICAL REVENGE ON THEIR FORMER MASTERS.

THERE IS LITTLE INCENTIVE FOR THE JAPANESE TO TAKE OVER THE DANGEROUS WORK, SINCE MILLIONS OF LABORERS HAVE MONEY AS THE RESULT OF THE CLOSING OF WAR INDUSTRIES, WHICH ENTITLED THEM TO SIX MONTHS SEVERANCE PAY.

WASHINGTON,NOV 18-(AP)-SUGGESTIONS FOR AN EARLY MEETING OF PRESIDENT TRUMAN, GENERALISSIMO STALIN AND PRIME MINISTER ATTLEE ARE GETTING A VERY COOL RECEPTION AT THE WHITE HOUSE AND STATE DEPARTMENT.

THERE ARE SOME INDICATIONS THAT WASHINGTON WANTS SUCH A GATHERING LESS THAN EITHER LONDON OR MOSCOW.

BRITISH OFFICIALS GAVE NEWSMEN THE IMPRESSION DURING MR.ATTLEE'S ATOMIC TALKS HERE LAST WEEK THAT HE HAD LET PRESIDENT TRUMAN KNOW HE WOULD CONSIDER A BIG-THREE MEETING POTENTIALLY VERY VALUABLE.

THEN FOLLOWING ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE ANGLO-AMERICAN-CANADIAN ATOMIC CONTROL PROPOSALS, WORD CAME FROM MOSCOW THAT DIPLOMATIC AUTHORITIES REPORTED PRELIMINARY MOVES FOR A BIG-THREE MEETING WERE

30.34—31735

UNDERWAY. A NEWS DISPATCH SAID THE AIM WOULD BE TO SOLVE CURRENT DEADLICKS ON HIGH POLICY.

INQUIRY SHOWS THAT SOME OF THE HIGHEST OFFICIALS IN WASHINGTON KNOW OF NO PLANS FOR A CONFERENCE AND THEMSELVES SEE VERY FEW CONCRET RESULTS TO BE ACCOMPLISHED BY ONE. HOWEVER, SHOULD EITHER ATTLEE OR STALIN TAKE THE POSITION THAT A GATHERING WAS URGENTLY DESIRABLE, IT ALMOST CERTAINLY WOULD BE HELD.

FROM AVAILABLE INFORMATION THE ATTITUDE OF THE WHITE HOUSE AND STATE DEPARTMENT SEEMS TO BE THAT THE PROBLEMS NOW REQUIRING BIG POWER DECISIONS CAN BE SOLVED NO MORE EASILY BY THREE CHIEFS OF GOVERNMENT THAN BY THEIR DIPLOMATIC REPRESENTATIVES.

SOME PERSONS HERE CITE THE FAILURE OF THE LONDON FOREIGN MINISTERS' MEETING IN SEPTEMBER AS PROOF OF THEIR VIEW THAT THERE IS NO MAGIC IN PERSONAL GET-TOGETHERS OF TOP OFFICIALS. IN FACT SOME AUTHORITIES SPECULATE THAT THE DIFFICULTIES AT LONDON MAY HAVE BEEN INTENSIFIED BY PERSONALITY DIFFERENCES AMONG MESSRS. BYRNES, BEVIN AND MOLOTOV. THE REAL BREAK, HOWEVER, APPEARS TO HAVE COME OVER MAJOR POLICY DIFFERENCES.

TODAY THE TOP OROBLEMS COMMON TO THE BIG POWERS ARE:

1. ATOMIC--THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN, HAVING JOINTLY DEVELOPED THE ATOMIC BOMB DURING THE WAR, HAVE NOW DECIDED HOW ATOMIC ENERGY AND EXPLOSIVES SHOULD BE HANDLED DURING THE PEACE. THEY HAVE TOLD RUSSIA OF THEIR DECISION IN THE SAME MANNER THAT THEY TOLD FRANCE AND CHINA--A MANNER POSSIBLY DESIGNED TO GIVE RUSSIA NO SPECIAL VOICE IN ATOMIC AFFAIRS AND TO PREVENT SETTLING THE PROBLEM ON A STRICTLY BIG-THREE BASIS.

A10WX

2. JAPAN-RUSSIA WANTS A CONTROL COMMISSION OF THE UNITED STATES, BRITAIN, CHINA AND RUSSIA WITH EACH DECISION TO BE MADE BY A UNANIMOUS VOTE. THE UNITED STATES CLAIMS THIS TYPE VOTING SYSTEM HAS FAILEDMISERABLY IN THE GERMAN CONTROL COUNCIL AND ADDS IT WILL NOT ACCEPT ANY SYSTEM WHICH DENIES TO THE UNITED STATES A DECISIVE CONTROL OVER JAPANESE AFFAIRS. THE DEADLOCK IS NOW ABOUT TWO MONTHS OLD.

3. BALKANS--THERE IS A SIMILAR DEADLOCK OVER THE GOVERNMENTS OF BULGARIA AND ROMANIA. RUSSIA HAS WANTED THEM RECOGNIZED IN THEIR PRESENT FORMS. THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN HAVE ASSAILED THEM AS UNDEMOCRATIC IN MAJOR RESPECTS AND REFUSED RECOGNITION PENDING MULTI-PARTY ELECTIONS. HERE TWO BOTH SIDES APPEAR TO HAVE WORKED THEMSELVES INTO UNCOMPRIMISING POSITIONS.

4. GERMAN--THIS PROBLEM WILL GROW MORE CRITICAL AS THE WINTER PROGRESSES. MUCH DISORGANIZATION IN GERMANY IS ATTRIBUTED HERE TO FRANCE'S USE OF HER VETO IN THE CONTROL COUNCIL TO BLOCK ANY MOVE TOWARD CENTRAL GOVERNMENT FOR GERMANY UNTIL PARTITIONING OF THE RHINELAND AND RUHR IS ASSURED. HERE, BY MAKING A DECISION ON THE RUHR AND RHINELAND, THE BIG THREE MIGHT BE ABLE TO DISPOSE OF SOME OF THEIR GERMAN HEADACHES.

NUERNBERG WAR CRIMES TRIALS TO OPEN TODAY

Tribunal Fails to Rule on Motion Which Would Have Delayed Sessions.

American Psychiatrists Declare Hess Incapable of Aiding Own Defense.

NUERNBERG, Germany, Nov. 19—(AP) The international war crimes tribunal failed to rule today on last minute motions which threatened to delay the trial of the Nazi hierarchy, and an American spokesman said tonight the tribunal's Nurnberg indicated the trial would open tomorrow morning as scheduled.

In this final flurry preceding the opening of a trial without parallel in world history, one of the chief defendants, the hulking six foot, five inch Ernst Kaltenbrunner, former right hand man of Adolf Hitler, collapsed with a cranial hemorrhage.

The man who had terrorized thousands as chief of German's Security Department and Criminal Police, could not stand the strain of waiting for the trial. Doctors said he will not be able to quit his sick bed for the prisoners' dock for a considerable time.

One of the issues before the court was removed when the Russians named Col. Yuri Pokrovsky, deputy Soviet prosecutor, to act as chief prosecutor in the place of Gen. R. A. Rudenko, whose illness had led to a Russian request for a delay.

The tribunal strongly indicated it would open the trial without Alfried Krupp, whom the United States, Russian and French prosecutors wanted to substitute for jailing munitions king's father, Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach.

It was pointed out that the indictment provides for a blanket count against industrialists who helped foment the war, and if the court should hold the industrialists guilty as a group Alfried presumably would be tried later.

An American spokesman said the court probably would rule on pending motions tomorrow at the opening session, when it acts on a request by the attorney of jew-baiter Julius Streicher that the mental state of his client be examined.

Psychiatrists of the four powers held consultations all day on the sanity of Rudolf Hess, former No. 2 Nazi, but were still writing their reports on him tonight. However a high Allied source said early today that a board of American psychiatrists had decided Hess is incapable of conducting or assisting with his defense, and would so advise the war crimes tribunal later today. The board did not make any recommendation.

As the time for the trial neared, tension mounted in the grim prison of this wrecked Nazi stronghold. The defendants were all under a severe strain but there was no indication that any had cracked up except Kaltenbrunner.

Col. B. C. Andrus, commander of the Security guard, reported all the rest were in good physical condition, particularly behemoth-like Hermann Goering, who has been trained down under American care to a mere 220 pounds.

Of the original 24 top-flight Nazis indicted, at least four will not be present at the trial. They were the late Krupp, who has senile softening of the brain; Robert Ley, former leader of the German labor front, who committed suicide; the missing Martin Bormann, successor to Hess, who will be tried in absentia; and Kaltenbrunner.

Meanwhile, military authorities disclosed that unusual precautions will be taken to prevent any one from smuggling firearms or other weapons into the courtroom.

Col. Andrus notified correspondents that their typewriter cases would be subject to examination by American troops already stationed outside and inside the court building. Women were told their hand bags will be subject to similar scrutiny.

Anyone lacking a special pass will be barred from the grounds and building. Soldiers have been posted even on the roof of the court and, as an additional precaution, an American tanks has been stationed near the building.

Red Prosecutor Ill

Soviet Assistant Prosecutor Col. Yuri Pokrovsky said yesterday he would ask the inter-Allied prosecutors' committee to request the postponement because of the illness in Moscow of his chief, Lieut. Gen. Roman A. Rudenko, who, he said, could not be in Nuernberg for ten or twelve days.

French Assistant Prosecutor Charles Dubost said he would support the Russian request. His chief, Francois de Menthon, has been called back to Paris in the current political crisis in France.

[Neither the press nor the radio in Moscow carried any mention today of the trial.]

Both French and Russian prosecutors protested the tribunal's ruling yesterday in refusing to indict Alfried Krupp. Both said they were not present at the brief session in which the British president of the court, Justice Geoffrey Lawrence, read the decision. The British have opposed the indictment of Krupp at the present time.

Kaltenbrunner Suffers Brain Hemorrhage

Tucker

Nuernberg, Germany, Nov. 19 (AP). Ernst Kaltenbrunner, former chief of the Nazi security police, suffered a brain hemorrhage in his cell last night, but a spokesman for the United States prosecutor's office said today he would have to answer charges some time before the International War Crimes Tribunal.

An indication that Kaltenbrunner would not be present at the scheduled opening tomorrow of the trial of top-flight Nazis came from physicians at the 116th United States Army Hospital, where he was rushed for treatment. The doctors said he "was finished" with the trial, at least temporarily.

No. 4 Defendant

The spokesman in the office of Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States prosecutor, said the court itself would decide whether Kaltenbrunner would be tried at a later date when his condition improved or be brought into the

NOV 20 1945

Kaltenbrunner was one of the obscure figures sent into Austria to sabotage the independent government and seize control of that state for Hitler. Afterward he continued to work under a heavy cloak of secrecy, but the crimes of the German security police in occupied countries gave him world-wide notoriety. On the list of Nazi criminals indicted by the Allies he was topped only by Hermann Goering, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Hess.

Kaltenbrunner's case was described as a spontaneous subarachroid hemorrhage in the vessels of the lining of the brain. Physicians explained that his blood pressure had risen sharply during the last few days and this caused a rupture of the weakened vessels in the brain lining.

In addition to heading Hitler's security police, Kaltenbrunner was a general in the SS, a member of the Reichstag, a state secretary for security in Austria and the police leader of Vienna. It was he who ordered the execution of the Associated Press correspondent Joseph Morton in defiance of the rules of war. Morton was captured by the Germans after he flew into Slovakia during a Czecho-Slovak uprising and was executed in the Mauthausen concentration camp on January 24 last.

in not taking life so seriously."

Erich Raeder, Grand Admiral and former navy chief, who spent the first part of his captivity in Russian hands and reached Nuernberg singing praises of his captors, turned at once to practical matters. "If my laundry doesn't come I'll have to stand trial in my underwear."

A nervous Fritz Sauckel, SS and SA general, put it this way: "I didn't kill anybody. My conscience is clear."

Hans Frank Grateful

Artur Seyss-Inquart, former Nazi Chancellor of Austria and later commissar for the Netherlands, sat hunched over his trial defense notes. He glanced up with a wolfish grin.

"After the catastrophe and the defeat we've been through I can't think of a single thing that could possibly be less interesting or more unimportant than what happens to me," he said.

Hans Frank, former Nazi governor of Polish territories, seemed clumsily grateful for the visit. He was near hysteria, but held himself. "It's all in God's hands and I'm calmer than I've ever been."

Promises Startling Statement

Hans Fritzsche, one-time Nazi editor and propagandist, said: "After the last six months of uncertainty, it's a pleasure to get down to cases."

signed the unconditional surrender at Berlin, and Alfred Jodl, colonel-general and chief of staff of the German Army.

Alfred Rosenberg, director of the ideological training of the Nazi party, justified the anxiety and strain that caused him to shift excitedly about his narrow cell, saying, "It's onl yhuman to be nervous."

Karl Koenitz Complacent

Karl Koenitz, grand admiral of the German Navy, accepted the situation complacently. He said, "I'm reconciled to the worst."

Walther Funk, former Nazi press chief, who is ill, protested weakly against the scheduled lengthy two-hour-and-a-half morning and afternoon sessions.

Hjalmar Horace Greely Schact, former Nazi economics minister, said, "I have always believed a man with a clear conscience had nothing to fear."

The last was Constantin von Neurath, the man Ribbentrop replaced as Foreign Minister. "There are some words in the indictment. We'll see."

This was what happened in the criminal wing of Nuernberg jail between 8.30 and 9 o'clock on the night of November 19. The tribunal will have to decide what happens from now on.

Reactions Of High Germans Vary On Eve Of Crimes Trial

Nuernberg, Nov. 19 (AP)—Word reached the arch Nazi war criminals at the Nuernberg jail tonight that the time had come for them to explain to humanity, if they could, how and why they acted that way.

Hermann Wilhelm Goering, No. 2 Nazi and former Luftwaffe chief, sat happily on the side of his bunk. He had just received word that his 5-year-old daughter, Etta, had been reunited with his wife, who has been under technical house arrest in Bavaria for the last seven weeks.

"That takes care of my last worry," said the big Nazi. "I go into this trial as I always went into battle—eagerly."

Erich Raeder Is Practical

A few steps away Rudolph Hess, who has been an enigma since he flew to Scotland in a borrowed Messerschmitt four years ago, smiled wanly and commented, "I'm glad for the others. As for me, I'm different from most people

Baldur von Schirach, who moulded the Reich's children into a sort of unholy crusade in the name of the Führer, promised a startling statement. "Their eyes will bulge."

Then there was Julius Streicher, Nazi editor of the anti-Jewish paper Der Sturmer. He was already in bed. He climbed to his feet and bowed. "If everybody had a conscience as clear as mine they'd sleep well, too."

Frank von Papen, former Nazi diplomat and wartime ambassador to Turkey, tall and gaunt in his underwear, also said his conscience was clear.

William Keitel Relaxed

Not so with Joachim von Ribbentrop, architect of Hitler's foreign policy. "I'm unconcerned about tomorrow—but I ought to have more time to prepare my defense."

Two who said they were relaxed and ready to face anything the prosecution might care to throw at them were Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command who

Hess Held Unable To Make Defense

Hess is scheduled to go on trial before the tribunal today with other top-ranking Nazis.

Commons Backs Tax Setup Again

Jack Smith

London, Nov. 19 (AP)—The House of Commons re-indorsed the Labor Government's tax program tonight, overriding conservative charges that it was "criminally extravagant" and taxing the poor to help the rich.

The opposition tried unsuccessfully to force the Government's tax measure to a vote, and it was read a second time. It goes to the House of Lords after a third reading.

The tax program provides for reduced levies on the incomes of small wage earners, a hike in surtaxes on large incomes and a 40 per cent cut in the excess profits tax to be paid by industries.

Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, answering Conservative allegations of excessive taxation of the poor under the bill, said "of 13,000,000 income taxpayers, 11,750,000 are better off under the plan and only 1,250,000 are worse off."

BRITISH RAILWAYS TO BE TAKEN OVER

London, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—Labor Minister Herbert Morrison announced today that the Attlee Government intends to convert to public ownership the electric and gas industries, the railways, the canals and the long-distance road haulage services. The Government had previously announced its intention to nationalize civil aviation and the telecommunication services of Cable & Wireless, Ltd.

Parliament also has before it a bill to nationalize the Bank of England, first on the Government's socialist program. A project to control production and fix prices on farm products was launched last week. Under the plan, farmers refusing to plant crops as ordered would be evicted from their land.

Morrison told the House of Commons that the Government does not intend to place the shipping industry under public ownership.

FATHERLAND FRONT WINS IN BULGARIA

LONDON, Nov. 19—(AP) The Moscow radio said tonight that the Bulgarian Fatherland front received 80 per cent of the votes in yesterday's elections.

Quoting the Bulgarian ministry of information, the broadcast said between 85 and 90 per cent of the electorate—the largest percentage in the last 20 years—voted.

IRKED BY SOVIET REPLY

British Will Press for Texts of Pacts With Hungary, Rumania

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP)—The British Government announced dissatisfaction today with Russia's reply to a British protest against Soviet trade agreements with Hungary and Rumania.

Minister of State Philip Noel-Baker told Commons in a written statement that Moscow had replied to the British protest, but "we cannot regard this answer as satisfactory." He said Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was pressing the Soviet Government for the texts of the agreements that Russia made with the two Balkan countries.

Rumor About German Exodus Held In Error

London, Nov. 19 (AP)—Minister of State Philip Noel-Baker told Commons today a "rumor that the Russians had sent great numbers" of Germans from their zone into the British zone was without foundation.

He said another report that Russia, Czechoslovakia and Poland had agreed to deport 4,500,000 Germans at a rate of 30,000 daily from their areas, also was not true.

Haven for 100,000 Jews Urged

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Representatives of the American League for a Free Palestine urged today that Great Britain act immediately "to give refuge in Palestine to 100,000 or more Hebrews."

Former Senator Guy M. Gillette, chairman of the delegation here for a conference with Foreign Minister Bevin, declared that any delay in admitting additional Jews to the Holy Land would have "a grave effect upon American public opinion."

British Railroad Feat Prior To D-Day Noted

Chicago, Nov. 19 (AP)—A British railroad official said today that during the two-month period prior to D-day in Europe British railroads moved 26,000 special trains in support of the invasion buildup.

During the buildup period American Transportation Corps soldiers worked "30 to 50 hours" consecutively without relief, said Slattery, who is general traffic manager of his railroad.

French Crisis Persists; Communists Unmoved; Atmosphere Taut

Paris, Nov. 19 (AP)—France's Constituent Assembly, in an atmosphere bristling with guns and taut with excitement, asked General de Gaulle today to continue as interim president, but under conditions which seemed to have left the Government crisis no nearer a solution.

Wet-mouthed cars standing guard outside the chamber and pro-de Gaulle demonstrators surging through the streets, the Assembly rejected the General's resignation by a vote of 400 to 163 and asked him to continue his efforts to form a coalition cabinet.

Delegation Informs De Gaulle

De Gaulle, who was not present in the packed chamber during the proceedings, accepted the new mandate when a delegation, headed by Felix Gouin, Assembly president, informed him officially of the action.

Gouin's office announced that the General would confer tomorrow morning with representatives of the three major parties—Communist, Socialist and Popular Republican Movement.

The Communists, whose demands for specific Cabinet posts precipitated the crisis, voted solidly against the renewal of de Gaulle's mandate. They abstained from voting on a motion specifying that de Gaulle give equal representation in the Government to the three big parties. The motion passed, 358 to 39.

Communists Pose Big Problem

Communist Jacques Dulcos accused de Gaulle of trying to form a government of "reactionaries" and declared the price of Communist participation in the Government was one of three Cabinet posts — Interior, War or Foreign Affairs.

De Gaulle, for his part, has told the world he could not accede to these demands because of France's interest in maintaining the "equilibrium" between the world's "two very great powers"—described by his associates as Russia and the United States.

De Gaulle's chief problem will be to reconcile his differences with the Communists, which threaten to block his efforts to form a Cabinet.

Demonstration Dispersed

As the Assembly met in the Palais Bourbon, thousands of police—some on horseback and many armed with tommyguns—patrolled the Place de la Concord.

One small demonstration on behalf of de Gaulle, by a group of 100 to 150 students at the edge of the Place de la Concord, was quickly dispersed by police. The students, marching down the Champs Elysees and shouting "Vive de Gaulle," scattered when the police ordered them away.

The Palais Bourbon was jammed with curious spectators, both in the corridors and in the chamber. Every seat in the Assembly was filled and spectators filled the galleries to overflowing. The crowd was orderly, however and there were no disturbances.

Comment By Communist

Dulcos, leading the opposition to de Gaulle, shouted sarcastically, "a Communist has no right to be minister of war, or minister of foreign affairs or minister of the interior. But it was the French laboring class who were the spearhead of the resistance. They cannot be expected to be given a subordinate role now."

The Communist sections of the assembly frequently interrupted his statement with applause, while the rest of the House was silent.

"We do not want any more than the others have," he cried, "but we certainly don't want anything less."

ASK DE GAULLE TO TRY AGAIN FOR A CABINET

French Assemblymen Vote 400 to 163 for Him to Renew Efforts.

Communists as Bloc Oppose Move—Police Guard Palace During Deliberations.

Paris, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—The Constituent Assembly voted 400 to 163 today to ask Gen. de Gaulle to renew his efforts to form a coalition government giving equal representation to the Communist, Socialist and Popular Republican parties.

The Communists voted as a bloc against renewal of De Gaulle's mandate in an atmosphere bristling with guns and armed guards which surrounded the Bourbon palace where the Assembly met.

The vote ended temporarily at least any chance of De Gaulle's resigning as France's interim President, however. In a last-minute switch of tactics the Socialists, who had said they would abstain in the balloting, voted for De Gaulle. The Assembly then adjourned until Thursday.

De Gaulle was expected to renew his attempt immeditely to form a Government to rule Frence for the next seven months while the Assembly tries to write a constitution for the Fourth Republic.

Before the final vote, the Assembly approved, 358 to 39, a motion for equal representation of the three major parties in the interim Cabinet. The parties are the Socialist, the Popular Republicans and the Communists.

The Assembly had convened amid taut excitement. Three armored cars took positions around the Bourbon Palace. The capital's police services, to avoid a possible repetition of the bloody February riots of 1934 when the police fired on demonstrating crowds trying to reach the Chamber, were out in force with Tommy-guns. Cavalary also was ready for action. A thousand mobile guards patrolled the area in groups of twenty to thirty.

The Communist party, which precipitated the crisis by demanding unsuccessfully that de Gaulle grant it one of the three big Cabinet posts, was reported to have switched its plans and thrown its support to Maurice Thorez, secretary general of the party, for the presidency. Earlier, the Communists were reported backing Felix Gouin, Socialist president of the Assembly.

Three troops of mounted cavalry aud 1,000 mobile guardsmen armed with tommy guns patrolled the area outside the meeting place. Curious crowds gathered. Groups of over twenty policemen kept the people moving.

As an extra precaution, three fire boats were stationed on the Seine near the palace. Their hoses could be turned on the crowd.

The assembly convened at 2 P.M.

The Socialist newspaper Le Populaire announced that a large-scale demonstration of de Gaulle's supporters had been called for 3 P.M. in front of the Bourbon Palace.

The city was calm this morning, although people fought to obtain admittance to the building.

Gouin Mentioned

De Gaulle requested the vote in a letter to Gouin.

The General asked the Assembly either to confirm or withdraw the mandate it gave him less than a week ago to form the interim government.

Political observers thought the general might win out by the votes of the Popular Republican Movement (MRP) and right-wing deputies.

The powerful Socialist party, announcing it would abstain from voting, called upon the Communists and MRP to "consent to work together to find what personality would be qualified to form a government in the image of the nation."

Meeting Of Parties

Communist, Socialist and MRP delegates met last night. The Communists then proposed the candidacy of Gouin as the only other man capable of heading the interim government.

MRP delegates announced they would decline to support that proposal, and the Socialists seconded the MRP stand. The MRP also announced it would refuse to enter any three-party government which is not headed by de Gaulle.

The Communists, on the other hand, said they would enter no government headed by the General.

French Editor Sentenced

Lyons, France, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Lyons high court of justice sentenced Luis Auphan, editor of the newspaper Royalist Action Francaise during the German occupation, to twenty years at hard labor following his conviction of attacking the domestic security of the state.

British Stop Priority On Sending Dispatches

Nuernberg, Nov. 19 (AP)—British facilities for transmission of dispatches from the Nuernberg Palace of Justice to London have been opened to all newspaper users on a "first come, first served" basis, it was announced today.

The British Nuernberg policy is a reversal of one previously in effect in Berlin where priority was given to messages from correspondents accredited to the British Army while those filed by Americans to London bureaus of press agencies with home offices in the United States were delayed until the lines were "all clear."

Only one kind of priority now is recognized by the British communications officers here. It consists of a daily allotment of 150 words to each news agency regardless of nationality to be transmitted ahead of any other dispatches already logged.

British army personnel are operating three teletypes and three wireless transmitters direct to London, where the general post office and war office share responsibility for delivery of messages.

PATTON SILENT ON PLANS

General Evades Queries on Retirement Rumor

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, Nov. 19 (AP)—Gen. George S. Patton Jr., Fifteenth Army commander and currently chief of all American occupation forces in Germany, declined today to say yes or no to reports that he contemplated retiring soon.

"I've had forty-one years in the Army and I like it," he said. "When and if I do retire, I'm going to hunt and fish and sail. I'll do my fox-hunting in Virginia and my sailing off Solomons Island at the mouth of the Patuxent River in Maryland, where my boat is now tied up."

It is likely that he will at least take a leave—a good long one. He explained: "Except for nine days I had back in July, I haven't had one since March of 1940."

TO SHIP HOME PETS

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 19—(AP) Arrangements are being worked out to enable servicemen to ship home animal pets, the Army said tonight. Costs will run from $50 to $100, including insurance.

THREE NAZIS HANGED

Landsberg, Germany (A. P.).—Three Germans convicted of killing captured American flyers were hanged today in sight of the prison cell where Hitler wrote "Mein Kampf."

"I was forced to do it or the S S would have killed me," protested Wilhelm Haffner, policeman at Langen Sel Bold, who helped Police Chief Albert Bury kill an American flyer on December 12, 1944.

Bury died stoically, but Ernst Waldmann, member of the Wehrmacht, was obviously nervous as he went to the scaffold for murdering another flyer on December 2, 1944, at Haimbuch.

A German hangman executed the sentence passed by military courts. The men were buried in unmarked graves.

Nazi Blamed For 600 Toll In 'Death March'

Dachau, Germany, Nov. 19 (AP)—More than 600 concentration camp prisoners were killed in a "death march" ordered by Fritz Degelow, one of 40 Nazis on trial for war crimes at Dachau, a witness, Rudolf Wolf, told a United States military court today.

Another witness, Helmuth Breeding, told of mass consignment of Jews from Dachau to Oswiecim, "where it was common knowledge that they were sent for extermination is gas chambers."

Kramer, 7 Others To Appeal Sentences

Lueneburg, Nov. 19 (AP)—Josef Kramer, "the Beast of Belsen"; 22-year-old Irma Grese, queen of the Belsen gang, and six others facing the gallows for tortures inflicted on concentration camp inmates will appeal their convictions.

A British announcement said yesterday that 26 of the 30 defendants sentenced to imprisonment or death in the trial which ended Saturday would appeal, and the appeals would be lodged with British Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery.

Three are resigned to death. They are Elizabeth Volkenrath, 26, head women's supervisor at Belsen; Juana Borman, 42-year-old fanatic who gave up mission work to join the SS, and Franz Hoeszler, who commanded the women's compound at the Oswiecim death camp.

Dr. Fritz Klein, who chose Oswiecim gas-chamber victims; Peter Weingartner, Ansgar Pichen, Karl Francoih, Wilhelm Dorr and Franz Starfle all will appeal death sentences.

Moscow Hears Big-three Talk May Follow Stalin's Return

Three-Power Declaration on Atomic Energy Also Expected to Receive Attention When Red Leader's Vacation Ends.

Moscow, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—A quickening pace in Russian foreign affairs is evident here today following reports that Generalissimo Stalin would return soon from his vacation. Four important issues—all coming under the head of Big Three collaboration—may be tackled by Stalin when he resumes his duties.

There are (1) the possibility of another Big Three meeting with President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee, (2) the three-Power declaration on atomic energy and Russia's official attitude on the proposals advanced by Mr. Truman, Attlee and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, (3) control of Japan and (4) the question of peace treaties and the possibility of another meeting of Foreign Ministers to consider such treaties.

It is by no means definite that Stalin would refuse to make a trip to London or Washington. Informed spokesmen here say they now believe Mr. Truman might also be willing to make a trip, of necessity demanded it.

An answer is expected to be made soon to the American-British-Canadian declaration on atomic power. No reaction or comment concerning the declaration has been made public, however.

On the matter of the control of Japan, the Russians apparently are standing pat on their position that they, regarding themselves as the principal victors over Germany, should control over Germany with the Allies, and that therefore the Allies should share with Russia control over Japan. The New Times, trade union magazine, yesterday criticized American control over Japan and said that Russia and China had stronger reasons than America for wanting to uproot the dangers of future Japanese aggression.

The drafting of peace treaties may not be so difficult as some people abroad imagine. From Moscow it appears that another meeting of foreign ministers is a definite possibility. Despite issues involving Bulgaria, Romania and Japan, there is no atmosphere of despair or pessimism here over the possibilities of continuing Russo-American collaboration.

Several examples of progress toward understanding have been recorded. Austria and Hungary have been recognized. The Allies have reached an agreement on withdrawal of troops from Czecho-Slovakia, and Soviet censorship of outgoing news dispatches appears to have been halted. So far as the Associated Press is concerned, not a single word has been censored nor any messages delayed since November 7.

SAY REDS IN BERLIN HELD U. S. GENERAL

Moscow, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—The New Times, labor union magazine, said yesterday that Soviet patrols in Berlin on October 26 were "compelled to detain" an American brigadier general and an English lieutenant colonel who were selling watches.

Defending Russian soldiers in occupied Germany against reports published in the foreign press of their Black market activity, the article said that 200 spectators, including many British soldiers, were arrested by the British military police in another raid in Berlin in November, but that not a single Russian soldier was among them.

Berlin, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—American and British provost marshals said today that they had never heard of the Russians' detaining an American brigadier-general and a British lieutenant-colonel in Berlin for selling watches.

"It is the rule here that if one occupying Power arrests or detains the personnel of another, the others are immediately notified," said the American provost marshal, Lieut.-Col. Gerald F. Beane. The British Provost Marshal said that the date mentioned by the Russians was about a fortnight after the Russians were embarrassed by some of their own senior officers being caught, then released, in a British raid on the Tiergarten black market.

Mannerheim's Trip Considered A 'Flight'

Stockholm, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Helsinki correspondent of the newspaper Morgontidningens said today that the journey of President Carl Gustaf Mannerheim from Finland to Portugal was considered a "flight" and that there was no longer any doubt Finland soon would hold a presidential election.

Mannerheim's trip officially was described as having been undertaken for his health. It took place a few days before the opening of the Finnish war crimes trial, now in adjournment until December 10.

AWAITING OUTCOME OF PORTUGAL VOTE

Lisbon, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—Opponents of Portugal's dictator, Dr. Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, may know possibly in a week how effective was their campaign to keep voters away from the polls in yesterday's anti-climatic one-party election. There will be no official tabulation of the vote perhaps for as long as eight days from yesterday—a constitutional maximum.

The result itself was a foregone conclusion, since a half dozen opposition parties refused to present candidates, claiming they had insufficient time to prepare for the election.

Unofficial reports said approximately 56 per cent of those registered cast their ballots. Of Portugal's 7,000,000 population, about a seventh, or 943,724, were registered.

The voting, after a forty-day campaign, was orderly. Delegates were chosen to a National Assembly which will be strictly a-one-party body.

Opposition leaders may get some inkling of public temper when the percentage of those voting is announced. Even then, they contend, there will be no accurate barometer, since a majority of Democrats and Liberals refused to register when their request for a postponement of the election was rejected.

FRANCO RECEIVES PAPAL BLESSING

Vatican City, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—Pope Pius XII, in a radio address to the Spanish people yesterday, extended his blessing to Generalissimo Francisco Franco and praised his religious zeal.

Speaking to a celebration in Madrid of the first centenary of the Apostolate of Prayer, the Pontiff said that Spain should be grateful for being spared the horrors of the war.

"In some dark hours of history God lifts His Almighty Hand and lets the four horsemen of the Apocalypse ride through and crush everything under the bronze hoofs. Thus God punished those who have transgressed," he said. . . . "However, there will always be something remaining which cannot be destroyed by explosives. That is the spiritual force which saved your faith when the painful hour came for you. We acknowledge that that force today reveals itself in a powerful Catholic vitality in your country."

Fatherland Front Gets 87 Per Cent Of Vote

Sofia, Nov. 19 (AP)—Still incomplete returns from yesterday's Bulgarian elections indicated approximately 87 per cent of the voters favored the Fatherland Front, while about 85 per cent of those eligible went to the polls, it was announced tonight.

The result of the election was such a foregone conclusion that announcements of results created little stir.

Heavy Vote Seen In Bulgaria

Sofia, Nov. 19 (AP)—A large percentage of Bulgarian voters was reported unofficially today to have cast ballots in yesterday's single-slate national elections which had been protested by the United States as undemocratic.

The elections went ahead after the Bulgarian Government replied to a note of protest from Washington which said there was "no reason to believe the results of an election under [present] conditions will reflect the Bulgarian people's choice of a representative democratic government."

Note Not Made Public

Contents of the Bulgarian reply were not made public. Heretofore the position of the Communist-dominated Fatherland Front party has been that full democratic rights exist in Bulgaria.

The voters had the choice of casting ballots for Fatherland Front candidates or staying away from the polls. Opposition leaders had urged a boycott of the elections.

But in Sofia, a city of 700,000, the flow of voters in the 84 voting districts appeared to have been constant.

Militiamen On Guard

The elections, first in Bulgaria since 1940, were quiet. Militiamen with fixed bayonets guarded voting places where the voter was required to present a certificate proving his right to cast a ballot.

The United States protest had been based upon a report from Mark Ethridge, Louisville (Ky.) publisher, who spent two weeks here investigating the situation as a personal representative of President Truman. His findings were made available to Britain and the Soviet Union, but neither nation joined in the protest.

Byrnes Observer Studies Romania

Bucharest, Nov. 19 (AP)—Mark Ethridge, personal observer for James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, arrived today to investigate the Romania political situation.

Looking a bit fatigued and grim, Ethridge, Louisville publisher, stepped off an American-built Russian C-47 at Baneasa airdrome at noon after a flight from Odessa.

His first move was to place his name in the King's visitors' book at the palace.

Ethridge lunched with Brig. Gen. Courtland Van Rensselaer Schuyler, United States militry representative on the Allied Control Commission, and Burton Y. Berry, United States political representative. Later he made his first official call by seeing General Susaicoff, Soviet representative on the control commission. The two conferred for about an hour.

Ethridge In Bucharest

Bucharest, Nov. 19 (AP)—Mark Ethridge, personal observer for Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, arrived today from Odessa to investigate the Romanian political situation. The Louisville (Ky.) publisher is expected to remain about ten days.

Hungarian People's Republic Move Likely

Budapest, Nov. 18 [AP—Delayed]—Arpad Szakasits, Minister of State, said today the Hungarian National Assembly's first act will be to declare the nation once more a people's republic.

He was one of a group of speakers at the twenty-seventh anniversary celebration of the First Republic, which was defeated by Admiral Nicholas Horthy in 1919.

Hospital Name Changed

Istanbul, Nov. 19 (AP)—The American hospital in Istanbul has changed its name to the Admiral Bristol Hospital. The change was made yesterday in a ceremony marking the institution's twenty-fifth anniversary. Admiral Mark L. Bristol, a United States diplomat, was the founder of the hospital.

Iran Moving To Put Down Insurgents

Parliament Votes Action; Russians May Block Government's Forces

Rebels Reported Gaining on Tehran

Communications Are Cut to Azerbaijan; Moscow Is Silent on Uprising

By The Associated Press

TEHRAN, Nov. 19.—Iranian troops were moved tonight toward Soviet-garrisoned Azerbaijan Province, scene of armed outbreaks, despite uncertainty whether the Russians would permit them to enter the trouble zone where several persons were reported killed.

On various occasions Iranian forces dispatched to the north have been turned back, and the Iranians said Soviet forces have prohibited the government from sending gendarme reinforcements into the province. Parliament decided in a special session, however, to send two battalions to try to halt armed members of the Democratic party reported advancing down the 230-mile railway from Mianeh to Tehran.

Iranian concern tonight was increased by a Government spokesman's assertion that rifles and machine guns were distributed to the Separatists from trucks bearing Russian army insignia.

Tehran newspapers said editorially that the patriotism of Azerbaijan citizens was well known, and asserted the "rebels" were recently immigrated "strangers" wearing military boots and trousers, with civilian jackets and hats.

Ambassador Comments

One editorial complained that "certain enemies of this war have been better treated than Persia (Iran), who has been a faithful ally" who made her roads and communications avaliable "for the aid of Russia."

[In Washington the newly arrived Iranian Ambassador, Hussein Ala, said the Azerbaijan uprising was engineered by "disruptable and discontented elements" who might have infiltrated into Iran from the Russian Caucasus. Russian troops, Ala said, were continuing their occupation of Iranian territory "without any justification."]

Iranians in Tehran said they understood that the weapons used by the insurgents were part of 100,000 rifles and machine guns handed over to the Russians when Red Army troops entered Iran in 1941.

Communication Severed

All communication with Azerbaijan, northwesternmost province of Iran, has been severed and there has been no news of the uprising since last night's statement by a Government spokesman that members of the Separatist movement had occupied Mianeh and were marching toward Tehran.

The spokesman said the dead included one Iranian gendarme captain, four soldiers and two railway station employés. Three towns with Iranian garrisons were reported to have been isolated in two days of fighting, which was said to be threatening Zenjan and Kazvin, respectively 165 and 80 miles northwest of Tehran.

British Consider Action

The situation was described as "desperate" by a high-ranking Iranian officer.

The spokesman said the occupation of Mianeh was first reported to Tehran by the governor of Zenjan, a Khamseh province town 70 miles southeast of Mianeh. He quoted the governor as saying the commanding general of the Iranian division at Tabriz had asked Russian permission to send an officer to Tehran to report to the Government, but the Russians refused his request.

[In London, a British Foreign Office spokesman said the British considered this action inconsistent with the Anglo-Soviet agreement assuring Iranian independence and sovereignty and pledging withdrawal of all foreign troops by March 2, 1946. Advices from northern Iran on October 22 said new contingents of Russian troops—including cavalry and infantry as well as tanks and air units—had arrived at Tabriz.]

No Moscow Comment

The newly nominated governor of Azerbaijan was scheduled to leave by plane today for Tabriz, main city of the province.

The Iranian Council of Ministers instructed War Minister General Riazi and Chief of Staff General Ibraham Arfa to ask the Russian military attache for an explanation of the situation. The Soviet attache promised to refer the request to General Sovetnikov, commander in chief of Russian forces in Iran.

[In Moscow there was no comment of the Iranian uprising. Reports that the "rebels" were being supplied with weapons by the Russians, it was understood in Moscow diplomatic quarters, were being officially called to attention of Russian authorities.]

Iran Sends Troops to Uprising

Leopold Herman

Whether Reds Pass Them Into Occupied Area Is Uncertain—Rebels Head for Tehran.

Tehran, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—The Iran Parliament decided in a special meeting today to send two battalions of troops to Russian-occupied Azerbaijan province, where armed insurgents have occupied some of the major towns and are reported marching on the Iranian capital.

Whether [illegible]n troops would permit [illegible]e of the Iran forces to the trouble area was uncertain. On previous occasions the government's troops dispatched northward to restore control over trouble spots have been stopped. News of the arrival of the two battalions in the disturbed district in northwestern Iran therefore will be anxiously awaited.

Tehran newspapers said editorially that Azerbaijan citizens had been considered loyal to the Tehran government and the "rebels" were recently immigrated "strangers" wearing military boots and trousers with civilian jackets and hats.

Communications Severed.

All communication with the northwestern border province had been severed and there had been no news from Azerbaijan after government spokesmen said seven persons had been reported killed in the uprising. The province has a population of about a million and a half.

It was announced that the newly nominated governor of Azerbaijan was scheduled to leave by plane today for Tabriz, main city of Azerbaijan, where armed conflict also was reported. Tabriz is 300 miles northwest of Tehran. The insurgents were reported advancing down the 230-mile railway from Mianeh to Tehran.

Three towns with Iranian garrisons were reported to have been isolated in two days of fighting in the mountainous northern province of Azerbaijan, bordering on the Caspian Sea.

The insurgents also were said to be threatening Zenjan and Kazvin, respectively 165 and eighty miles northwest of Tehran.

A high ranking Iranian officer described the situation as "desperate."

An Iranian Government spokesman said the insurgents' drive toward the nation's capital was launched after the Separatists seized control of Mianeh. One Iranian gendarme captain, four soldiers and two railway station employees were killed, he added.

The Iranian Council of Ministers instructed War Minister Gen. Riazi and Chief of Staff Gen. Ibraham Arfa to ask the Russian military attache for an explanation of the situation. The Soviet charge d'affaires is ill. The Soviet attache promised to refer the request to the commander in chief of Russian forces in Iran.

Guns from Soviet Trucks.

The Iranian spokesman said rifles and machine guns were distributed to the Separatists from trucks bearing Russian Army insignia. There was no indication that Russian troops were manning the trucks.

Iranians in the capital said they understood that the weapons wielded by the insurgents were considered part of 100,000 Iranian rifles and machine guns handed over to the Russians when Red Army troops entered Iran in 1941.

[Advices from northern Iran on October 22 said new contingents of Russian troops—including cavalry and infantry as well as tank and air units—had arrived in Tabriz.]

The occupation of Mianeh, the spokesman said, was reported in a message to Tehran Friday by the Governor of Zenjan, a Khamseh province town seventy miles southeast of Mianeh. The spokesman quoted the Governor as saying that the commanding general of the Iranian division at Tabriz had asked permission of Russian authorities to send an officer to Tehran to report to the Government, but the Russians refused his request.

Blames Presence of Reds.

Washington, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—Hussein Ala, newly arrived Iranian Ambassador to the United States, said today that the Azerbaijan uprising was engineered by "disreputable and discontented elements" who might have infiltrated into Iran from the Russian Caucasus.

The Ambassador blamed the revolt on the continued presence of Russian troops in northwestern Iran and said the Iranian Government's insistence on early evacuation of all foreign armed forces had been an effort "to avoid something just like this."

The Russian troops Ala said, were continuing their occupation "without any justification."

Referring to an agreement between Britain and Russia to remove their troops from Iran by March 2, 1946, the Ambassador declared:

"There is nothing in the agreement which says they cannot evacuate earlier than that date; that is the absolute deadline."

Ala addressed his remarks to news men following his first official visit to the State Department, where he presented his credentials to Secretary Byrnes. He said he had discussed the uprising with Byrnes, assuring the Secretary that while he had had no official dispatches he was confident that the revolt had been "engineered."

No Comment in Soviet.

Moscow, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—No reports have been published here of the fighting in Iran between Persians and Persian Separatists, and no comment was being made.

Assertions in Tehran that the Separatists were fighting with weapons supplied by Russian trucks, it was understood in diplomatic quarters, were being officially brought to the attention of authorities here.

British Cite Iran Treaty

London, Nov. 19 (AP)—A Foreign Office spokesman said today that information here confirmed reports from Hehran that a group of armed insurgents was moving on the capital of Iran from the Russian-occupied northern province of Azerbaijan.

The spokesman said Britain's attitude in Persia was based on the British-Soviet-Iran treaty of 1942 assuring the independence and sovereignty of the country and pledging withdrawal of British and Russian troops by March 2, 1946.

The spokesman made it clear that the reported refusal of Russian authorities to permit an officer of the Iran Army in the disturbed area to send a messenger to Tehran was considered inconsistent with the treaty pledge.

British Fear New Fighting With Central Java Youths

Morton

Batavia, Java, Nov. 19 (AP)—British military officials today expressed fears that a new wave of fighting might break out in central Java, where thousands of armed Indonesian Nationalists were massing as Indonesian radio stations called for "war on the British."

An official British statement said the situation in central Java "gives cause for anxiety in view of the extremely aggressive attitude of local extremists both in Semarang and Jogjakarta."

Call For Semarang Force

A short time earlier an Indonesian broadcast, declaring "war" on the British, asked Indonesian youths to reinforce the ranks of the Nationalists at Semarang, where a British brigade was clamping on a tight control after the slaying of three British officers.

Another Indonesian broadcast Saturday night declared:

"This is the last night of peace. Tomorrow we shall start and either kill the British or drive them from Java."

This broadcast came from the headquarters for the Nationalist movement at Jogjakarta, now swarming with armed youths. The Indonesian "army" is drilling openly in a number of near-by camps. The Indonesians themselves say a munitions plant in Jogjakarta already is supplying a steady output of ammunition for their forces fighting in Soerabaja and elsewhere.

Fears Batavia Offensive

The Dutch news agency Aneta said that there were completely unconfirmed rumors that "an army of Indonesian extremists, at any moment now, will open a large-scale offensive on Batavia."

Aneta said that fighting broke out in the capital city again this morning in the Kramat and Parpattan areas, and that trolley service was disrupted for the first time since the Allied landing September 15 when Indonesians tipped over a car and used it for a barricade.

Semarang was reported seething with unrest as a result of British measures taken after Saturday night's attack which resulted in the death of three British officers and the wounding of a Dutch woman.

Governor In Custody

British troops seized the telephone exchange and placed the local native governor in custody. The British announced later that they were "steadily clearing the disturbed area."

In Soerabaja, where fighting continued into the tenth day, the British confined their activity largely to mopping up the areas already occupied and to artillery fire on areas where Indonesian guns were believed to be located.

No attempts were made to advance, although British patrols were active deep inside southern Soerabaja, which was held by the Nationalists. One British officer said Indonesian resistance had stiffened slightly and the natives were employing better tactics.

Indonesian anti-aircraft guns continued to fire briskly at any planes which came within range—mostly transport planes from eastern Java, sent in to evacuate British wounded.

Heavy Explosion Shakes City

A heavy explosion shook Soerabaja this afternoon as Lieutenant General Sir Philip Christison, Allied commander in the Netherlands East Indies, was making a tour of forward posts in the central portion.

British headquarters said an oil tank probably was exploded by a mortar shell. The blast was so sharp it knocked plaster off a building a half mile away. The explosion occurred near the Emma school in the west central part of the city.

British casualties remained low. One Indian was killed by a sniper and four were wounded by rifle fire. An undetermined number were wounded by mortar shells which the Indonesians continued to send over intermittently.

British intelligence officers stated that they had found no substantiation of reports that the Indonesians were led and supported by the Japanese. They said the latest evidence tended to show that the fighting was "neither organized, planned nor led."

Warned To Avoid Snipers

Meanwhile, indiscriminate sniping continued in Batavia and the British issued a warning to all ranks that they should avoid any area "in which they hear shooting taking place."

Fighting yesterday and last night in Batavia resulted in the death of one Dutch officer and three Dutch Ambonese soldiers and the wounding of 28 other Dutch soldiers. The Dutch estimated the Indonesians wounded in the Batavia fighting was believed to have reached more than 100.

Meanwhile, it was reported that the newly elected Indonesian Cabinet headed by Premier Sutan Sjahrir would seek a vote of confidence at a meeting of the republican central national committee next Sunday.

Indonesia Radio Calls For War On British

Morton

Batavia, Java, Nov. 19 (AP)—An Extremist Indonesian radio station called today for "war on the British" and asked Indonesian youths to reinforce the ranks of the hard-pressed native Nationalists at Semarang, scene of the latest outbreak on troubled Java.

A dispatch from embattled Soerabaja [illegible] British had reported e[illegible] that the Indonesians were endeavoring to manufacture bombs and weapons on a small scale there. Sporadic fighting continued in Batavia.

A British communiqué said the situation in central Java "gives cause for anxiety in view of the extremely aggressive attitude of local (Nationalist) Extremists both in Semarang and Jogjakarta."

Followed Committee Action

The Extremist broadcast by a station in the interior came after Premier Sutan Sjahrir of the unrecognized Indonesian republic rushed a three-man committee to Soerabaja to investigate the fighting in the hope that a solution could be found. Sjahrir has pledged himself to try to restore peace in Java and has been critical of the previous Nationalist Government's handling of the situation at the great naval base.

A British intelligence officer told a news conference that there had been no substantiation of earlier reports that the Japanese were providing leadership and backing to the Indonesians in Soerabaja. He added that the latest available evidence tended to show that the Nationalist fighting was "neither organized, planned nor led."

Telephone Exchange Seized

In Semarang British troops seized the telephone exchange after three British officers were slain by Extremists in that north coast port. British Brigadier Bethell placed Wong Sonego-po, the local governor, in custody and ordered him to broadcast that Indonesian armed men and automobiles would not be permitted on the roads.

The British said one of their brigades in Semarang was "steadily clearing the disturbed area against slight opposition."

One Dutch officer and three natives from Amboina serving in the Dutch Army were killed and 28 Dutch troops were wounded in fighting yesterday and last night in the capital. The Dutch estimated the Indonesian casualties at 28 killed and 17 wounded.

Appeal Made To Chungking

The Chinese Chamber of Commerce in Soerabaja appealed to the Chungking Government to take "urgent steps" to protect the 60,000 Chinese residents of the city from British shells and the Indonesian "scorched-earth policy."

A conference of British, Dutch and Indonesian leaders Saturday night ended without finding a formula for restoring order to Java.

$71,000,000 U. S. Loan To Philippines Reported

Called First Grant of Total of $500,000,000; $4,000,000 Gift

HONOLULU, Nov. 19 (AP)—"The Honolulu Star-Bulletin" said today that President Sergio Osmena of the Philippines was returning to Manila with an initial loan of $71,000,000 and an outright gift of $4,000,000 from the United States for his war-ravaged country.

The $71,000,000 loan is part of a total loan of $500,000,000 which he negotiated in Washington, the paper quoted members of Osmena's party as saying.

[There has been no announcement in Washington of any loan or outright gift to the Philippines. Last month, however, President Truman made public eleven directives to heads of governmental agencies for specific steps of prompt assistance to the islands. At that time it was estimated the cost of repairing war damage in the Philippines and returning the islands to normalcy would run upward of $1,000,000,000.]

Hawaii Police Disperse Sailors

Honolulu, Nov. 19 (AP)—Police reported today that they had dispersed 150 to 200 navy men who were massed Sunday night on a highway leading to Aiea village near the Moanalua navy demobilization center. The shore patrol and military police assisted the civilian police. No reason was given for the massing.

Low-Point Athletes' Release Criticized By Army Newspaper

Honolulu, Nov. 19 (AP)—The army nwspaper Stars and Stripes asserted editorially today that demobilization of big-name athletes with low point scores is undermining morale of service men in the Pacific.

"It now seems," said the editorial, "that the function of some big-name baseball, football and other athletic stars is—perhaps unwittingly—to help lower the morale of overseas service men. . . ."

The paper took up the case of the AAF Hawaiian flyers, local championship football team, and declared that since the season has ended, "instead of taking their place in the demobilization parade in routine fashion according to point totals, 54 players are scheduled to fly home to the States, some for reassignment and some for discharge."

Stars and Stripes said that the majority was not eligible for return home under current regulations, and as an example singled out Lieut. Jack Jacobs, saying he has only 53 points—twelve less than necessary for an officer's discharge—but already had returned home.

The paper said that early in November, 37 Army Air Force baseball players were flown home after playing exhibitions in the Central Pacific. It named Enos Slaughter, Dario Lodigiani, Joe Marty, Walt Judnich, George Tebbetts, Joe Gordon, Max West, Cecil Hudson, Howie Pollett and Al Dean, among others.

"They were excellent baseball players and good morale-builders during their tour," it continued. "Somehow that doesn't provide sufficient justification for their air return to the states when most of them lacked sufficient points for discharge."

Nationalists Drive 23 Miles Up Peiping-Mukden Line

Chungking, Tuesday, Nov. 20 (AP). Chinese Nationalist troops have occupied the Manchurian railroad town of Suichung, after a drive of 23 miles up the Peiping-Mukden line, the Chinese presse reported tonight.

The advance placed the Nationalist forces [illegible] about 65 miles of the railway junction town of Chinsien, where the Communists yesterday predicted the "first big battle" between Government and Communist forces for control of Manchuria would take place.

Officials Believed Safe

Suichung is approximately 35 miles northeast of Shanhaikwan, the Great Wall jumping-off place where the Central Government breeched the initial Communist defenses.

Another Chinese dispatch said the Communists had taken possession of most of the airfields in southern Manchuria formerly held bye the Russians. The dispatch asserted Communists also had occupied the airfield at Changchun, Manchurian capital, where fear of just such a development prompted Chinese Nationalist officials to flee over the week end. The majority of Nationalist officials who were in Manchuria are believed to have returned safely to the Chungking area.

Many Opposing Statements

Besides their gains to the northwest the Nationalist troops were reported yesterday to have widened their Great Wall opening at Shanhaikwan to 30 miles.

Private conferences and a rash of opposing statements characterized the race for Manchuria.

The Communists avowed aims to seize Changchun, the state capital, about December 1, when they expect the Russians to evacuate it.

Fan Out In Three Directions

Olen Clements, Associated Press correspondent at Tientsin, reported that Nationalist soldiers, shivering in the autumn cold, cracked the main Communist defense line along the Great Wall and fanned out in three directions from Shanhaikwan. They captured that key gateway city on the Gulf of Chihli coast last Friday in a virtually bloodless coup.

The retreating Communists maintained intermittent gunfire in opposition to the new thrusts, Clements said.

The Communist spokesman in Chungking conceded that Government forces had gone 12 miles north of Shanhaikwan and had speared 36 miles westward, capturing the town of Funing. The Nationalists still were only on the southern fringe of the vast disputed territory, however, and were 440 miles from Changchun.

Predicts Chinhsien Battle

The Communist spokesman, threatening dire opposition, predicted that "the first big battle" would occur around Chinhsien, 100 miles northeast of Shanhaikwan on the railroad to Mukden and Changchun.

He said Communist "sympathizers" were prepared to grab control of Changchun the moment the Russian occupation forces should leave, an event he predicted for December 1.

Aides To Occupy Changchun, Say Chinese Reds

Moosa

Chungking, Nov. 19 (AP)—Chinese Communists declared today their sympathizers were ready to seize Manchuria's capital December 1 to forestall a Nationalist Army that had plunged 12 miles into the vast industrial region from the south.

A Communist spokesman said crack [illegible]-equipped Nationalist troops were pouring into Manchuria through a gap ripped in the Communist line with the fall of the frontier fortress of Shanhaikwan.

Other Nationalist forces had fanned out 30 miles west of Shanhaikwan, he asserted, but dispite the reverses Communist troops were determined to fight it out all the way to the capital of Changchun, 440 miles northeast of Shanhaikwan.

Main Line Smashed

[Associated Press Correspondent Olen Clements in a dispatch from Tientsin said the Nationalist columns were mushrooming out in three directions against only sporadic fire after smashing the main Communist defense line along the Great Wall.

[He reported that 5,000 Communist troops were in retreat to the northeast in the bitter cold of Manchuria to avoid being outflanked.]

The Communist spokesman predicted that "the first big battle" for Manchuria would be fought at the railway city of Chinhsien, 100 miles northeast of Shanhaikwan on the Peiping-Mukden railway.

Chinese press reports alleged Communist troops pulling out of Shantung province were landing along the Manchurian coast in junks, and that their comrades also were ready to seize the industrial city of Mukden the moment the Russians withdraw.

The Communist spokesman said that sympathetic "popular" troops were ready to take over Changchun when the Russians pull out around December 1, but insisted these forces were not attached to the Communist 8th Route Army.

The China Times professed to have learned that "important diplomatic negotiations" over Manchuria would take place soon "either at Chungking or elsewhere."

Negotiations Continue

The Communist spokesman declared that although Nationalist Government representatives had withdrawn from Changchun, conversations were continuing between Chungking and Moscow or between Chungking "and some other power" over the occupation of Manchuria.

He refused to say who the "some other power" might be.

Most Chinese Government officials who had been in Changchun flew out, fearing a Communist coup, but a few remained behind for lack of air transport.

The Communist spokesman claimed that the "popular" forces ready to take over Manchuria's capital would be pledged to maintain a "democratic rule."

The spokesman said this resistance would persist as long as the Chungking Government "fails to consult the people" on the form of government to be adopted. He said the Japanese and puppet troops already were disarmed in Manchuria and there was no need for the Government to send in armies.

In the fighting north of Shanhaikwan, the spokesman said the Nationalists had burst into Liaoning, most southerly of the Manchurian provinces.

Other elements, he said, struck westward and overran the Hopei province town of Funing, 20 miles from Shanhaikwan.

Meanwhile, Chinese press reports said that 30,000 Communist troops had captured the Nationalist stronghold of Paotow, in Inner Mongolia.

The Chinese Central News Agency said Paotow—one of two focal points in the struggle for control of the Inner Mongolian province of Suiyuan—fell after Communist troops forced the west gate late last month.

Still Holding Out

Presumably long-besieged Kweisui, Suiyuan province capital 90 miles east of Paotow, still held out.

The Nationalist forces in both cities were not believed strong.

Meanwhile, American Marines in the North China port of Tsingtao began loading 3,000 disarmed Japanese naval air force personnel on Japanese merchant ships for return home.

The 6th Marine Division will move approximately 1,500 daily until an estimated 60,000 disarmed Japanese in Shantung province are repatriated.

Artemus Gates, Under Secretary of the United States Navy Department, said at Tsingtao that no decision had been made on possible withdrawal of the Marines, ordered into North China to disarm and repatriate the Japanese.

Chinese Reds Protest Statement By Hurley

Chungking, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Communist news agency today said it had been authorized to protest a recent statement by United States Ambassador to China Patrick J. Hurley to the effect that Chinese Communists wanted Japanese arms to set up a separate government or destroy the present Nationalist Government.

The agency characterized the statement as "groundless slander" and said "this random statement by Hurley is a discourtesy to the Chinese people."

"Democratic people in America have perfect grounds for demanding Hurley's dismissal," the agency added.

Hurley is in the United States.

Baron Honjo, of Kwantung Army, Acts After Seeing Order for Arrest in Press

TOKYO, Nov. 20 (Tuesday) (AP).—Baron General Shigeru Honjo, Kwantung Army commander accused of creating the Mukden incident which led to the Japanese conquest of Manchuria, killed himself [illegible] after reading in Japanese newspapers that General Douglas MacArthur had ordered his arrest. A secretary found Honjo's slashed body on the floor of his office.

The retired general's eldest son told Japanese reporters that his father first became afraid he might face criminal charges after reading a morning paper.

"Upon reading it, he felt full responsibility," the son said. "He told us he would go to court and express his belief, then take whatever responsibility fell on him. There was no sign that he contemplated suicide."

Honjo had gone this morning as usual to his office as president of the Organization for Relief of Demobilized Soldiers, although the organization itself had been ordered abolished by MacArthur.

While General MacArthur's orders did not specifically list the eleven as war criminals, the records of all linked them prominently with the war and prewar periods of Japanese aggressions.

Tied Japan To Axis

One of those wanted was Yosuke Matsuoka, former Foreign Minister who made the Japanese-Russian nonaggression pact and who was instrumental in forming the German-Italian-Japanese tripartite pact.

Toshio Shiratori, former Ambassador to Rome who helped engineer the tripartite pact, was listed also.

Others included:

Gen. Baron Shigeru Honjo, regarded as responsible for the Mukden incident of 1931 that led to the Japanese conquest of Manchuria.

Gen. Iwane Yatsui, blamed for the sack of Nanking and the sinking of the United States gunboat Panay.

Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, who succeeded Hideki Tojo as wartime premier in 1944.

Gen. Jiro Minami, former war minister and supporter of Tojo who only today said in an interview that he still thought losing the war was a mistake but starting it was not.

Gen. Baron Sadao Araki, militant former education minister who was described by MacArthur as "an important influence behind Tojo."

Gen. Jinzaburo Mazaki close collaborator with Araki and Koiso, Fusanosuke Kuhara, millionaire industrialist, reputed member of the Black Dragon secret society, and recently mentioned as a possible new political leader, and Yoshihisa Kuzuu and Kazunobu Kanokogi, both leaders in the Black Dragon society, also were in the list.

Allies To Arrest 11 Jap Generals And Politicians

Tokyo, Nov. 19 (AP)—Eleven Japanese war leaders, including generals accused of responsibility for the rape of Nanking, the Mukden incident and the bombing of the United States gunboat Panay, were ordered arrested today.

Simultaneously, headquarters announced that 57 more accused Japanese war criminals, mostly minor characters charged with brutalities against war prisoners—were in custody.

General MacArthur directed that the eleven be delivered to Sugamo prison camp, Tokyo.

Two Behind Tripartite Pact

While the men were not specifically named as war criminals, all were associated prominently with the militarist decade and include some of the key men previously ignored in American lists of "wanted" Japanese.

Two of the Japanese — Yosuke Matsuoka, former Foreign Minister, and Toshio Shiratori, former Ambassador to Rome, were instrumental in negotiating the Tripartite (Germany-Italy-Japan) Pact.

Honjo, Matsui, Koiso Named

Others were:

Baron General Shigeru Honjo, former commander in chief of the Kwantung Army, considered responsible for the Mukden incident, which Japan used as an excuse to conquer Manchuria.

Gen. Iwane Matsui, retired, blamed for the rape of Nanking and the bombing of the Panay.

Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, Premier for a time in 1944, who as chief of staff of the Kwantung Army also had a hand in Manchuria's conquest.

Minami A Tojo Supporter

Gen. Jiro Minami, once known as the brains of the militarist clique and one of the men who helped force selection of the "Pearl Harbor Premier," Hideki Tojo.

Gen. Sadao Araki, former War Minister, styled by MacArthur "an important influence behind Tojo."

Yoshihisa Kuzuu and Kazunobu Kanokogi, both top leaders in the Black Dragon society of jingoistic terrorists.

Kuhara Wealthy Industrialist

Fusanosuke Kuhara, millionaire industrialist and politician, recently mentioned as a possible leader of a new political setup, and reported Black Dragonist.

Gen. Jinzaburo Mazaki, army extremist, close associate of Koiso and Araki.

Matsuoka is a graduate of the University of Oregon and once headed the south Manchurian railway. Unconfirmed reports yesterday said he unsuccessfully had attempted suicide by poison at his villa near Tokyo.

Men Active In 1920's

The list of war leaders ordered imprisoned stretched back into Japan's troubled period in the late 1920's and early 1930's, when the so-called "younger officers" began a reign of terror which eventually won militarists domestic power.

Koiso, whom well informed Japanese civilians term the "real brains" of the army, recently was linked by Mazaki in a newspaper interview with the abortive coup d' etat in 1931 to seize control of the Government.

Mazaki in turn was accused by headquarters with having had a key role in a revolt February 29, 1936.

Men Behind The Plots

Behind all the intrigue, plots and counterplots suggested by this roll of Rightists were such figures as the Black Dragon members and blatant imperialists such as Araki, whose boast long quoted by jingoists was:

"Give me one Japanese division armed with bambo spears and I'll wipe out the entire Russian Far Eastern Army."

Equally insidious but more anonymous, Minami long was considered a key man in the Kwantung Army clique which through terror finally won domestic power culminating in Tojo's dictatorship. Minami in the mid 1930's often was called the "real ruler of Japan," but actually his individual power was less than Tojo's.

Araki "A Super-Militarist"

MacArthur's directive described Araki as "a super-militarist, ardent Nationalist, powerful in military circles." He is 68.

Honjo, 67, commanded the Kwantung Army from 1931 to 1935 and was believed to have executed the Mukden incident without reference to Tokyo. He was adviser to the "New Asia Movement" of the "Imperial Rule Assistance Association" in 1944 and has been termed the "ring leader of Japanese war lords."

Kanokogi, 61, was councillor of the IRAA in 1942 and long was involved in the Black Dragon's nationalistic activities.

Koiso Ardent Imperialist

Koiso, 65, was an ardent imperialist and one of the most enthusiastic proponents of Japanese expansion, both on the continent and in the South Seas. He was chief of staff of the Kwantung Army from 1932 to 1935 and a leader in the occupation of Manchuria. As governor general of Korea in 1942 he became known as "The Tiger."

Kuhara advocated a strong policy toward China and was involved in the 1936 incident that touched off the war with China. He was associated closely with military circles.

Kuzuu was described by MacArthur as "head of the Black Dragon society since 1937."

Matsuoka An Expanionist

Matsuoka, 65, Foreign Minister in 1940 and 1941, was known as a leading expansionist. He was described by MacArthur as "anti-American and popular with army patriotic societies."

Matsui, 67, a leading army extremist, was accused of responsibility for the attempted bombing of a British gunboat and the shelling of H.M.S. Ladybird as well as the rape of Nanking and the bombing of the Panay. He long was an active exponent of "Asia for Asiatics" and "Japan's divine mission." He was director general of the Great East Asia headquarters of the IRAA in 1944 and president of the "Great Japan New Asia Society" in 1945.

Mazaki An Adviser In China

Mazaki was inspector general of military education from 1934 to 1938 and a member of the Supreme War Council in 1936. He was military adviser to Japanese expeditionary forces in China in 1944.

Minami was Minister of War during the Manchurian incident and headed the "possessive rule" policy as Governor General of Korea from 1936 to 1942. He was named president of the Political Association of Greater Japan in March, 1945, and was a prominent member of the army clique.

Shiratori "Rabid Militarist"

Shiratori was Ambassador to Italy in 1939 and 1940 and adviser to the Foreign Ministry in 1940, 1941 and 1944. He was described by MacArthur as the "most rabid of all militarists."

The 57 new arrests all were described as "small fry," including minor military officials in a list of 300 issued recently who were accused of mistreating Allied war prisoners.

They were rounded up in the last two days by the Japanese and were delivered to Sugamo prison.

rusu, former Ambassador to Germany, in an interview yesterday claimed that Yosuke Matsuoka and Toshio Shiratori, two of eleven Japanese leaders ordered arrested today by Allied Headquarters, went over his head to arrange the signing of the tripartite pact with Germany and Italy.

Matsuoka was Foreign Minister at the time and Shiratori was Ambassador to Rome.

Kurusu said in the interview, given before the arrest order was issued, that Shiratori helped to arange the visit to Tokyo of Heinrich Stahmer, formerly Hitler's personal envoy and later ambassador to Japan, where the latter pushed through the pact.

Kurusu asserted that he signed the pact "against my will" and "offered my resignation next day."

He added that "the American people may think this just a story made up now, but it is true and I have proof."

Negotiations for the pact had been under way throughout the last half of 1939 but were dropped temporarily after the Cabinet of former Premier Baron Keichiro Hiranuma had met 80 times without agreement on the subject.

Meanwhile, said Kurusu, Shiratori and Lieutenant General Oshima, military attache in Berlin, ignored Foreign Office instructions and continued pumping for the pact.

Warned Of Effect On U.S.

Kurusu said he told Ribbentrop, among others, that the pact would bring the United States into the European war.

Matsuoka and Shiratori believed the pact would intimidate the United States into remaining out of war, thereby freeing Japan on one flank for further imperialism, Kurusu added.

YAMASHITA PLEA DENIED

Court Refuses Acquittal As Prosecution Is Completed

Manila, Tuesday, Nov. 20 (AP)—The United States military commission trying Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita for his life as an accused war criminal, today denied a defense motion to immediately return a "not guilty" verdict after the prosecution rested.

The prosecution rested after presenting more than 200 witnesses and more than 400 exhibits and scores of [illegible] pictures and translations.

Calls Evidence Hearsay

Col. Harry Clarke, chief of defense counsel, charged that all of the eighteen days of testimony by prosecution witnesses was "hearsay and reports and opinion of various agencies, with no incident of direct evidence that the accused permitted such atrocities."

Yamashita is charged with responsibility for countless atrocities by reason of having failed to control the Japanese troops under his command in the Philippines.

Clarke asked the commission to render a finding of "not guilty" as to the charges.

Brief rebuttal by the prosecution asserted that Yamashita "ordered these atrocities, rapinge, lootings and killings."

Continuance Refused

After the commission denied his motion to free Yamashita, Clarke requested a continuance, arguing that he needed additional time to prepare the defense. That request, too, was denied.

A recess was ordered until tomorrow morning, when the defense was instructed to proceed with its case.

In a five-minute lashing of the prosecution's evidence, Clarke asserted that the only evidence remotely linking Yamashita with atrocities came from two men accused as collaborators, Joaquin Galang and Narciso Lapus.

He said that Lapus, under cross-examination, contradicted his own direct testimony. Clarke declared that Galany was pleading for easier treatment at his trial by attempting to pin false hearsay on Yamashita.

Points To Scars

The prosecutor replied that there was ample evidence in the horrible scars on witnesses and from stories of families whose babies and old women had been brutally tortured to leave no doubt of Yamahita's guilt.

"Yamashita himself ordered the killing of prisoners of war without trial and the cold (blooded) killing of civilians," he said.

Yesterday, a pugnacious Japanese colonel admitted bluntly that he had urged officers "to kill American troops cruelly . . . not with one stroke."

His testimony came shortly after the court heard, through sworn statements of survivors, how 150 captured American soldiers were herded into air-raid shelters, drenched with gasoline and set afire.

The statements told how the Americans, captured in the Philippines fighting, were working on the air field on Palawan Island, southwest of Luzon, shortly before Christmas last year.

Their Japanese guards ordered them into the shelters. When these were packed with prisoners the guards doused them with gasoline, touched a match to them and then shot and bayoneted those who attempted to escape. Only nine managed to get away into the jungles, where they were saved by guerillas.

A captured Japanese diary from the air field quoted a soldier guard stationed there as saying it was feared American troops were about to land on Palawan and it was necessary to kill the prisoners.

Later the prosecution put pugnacious Colonel Masatoshi Fujishige on the stand and drew from him the admission that he had urged his men to "kill Americans cruelly."

Fujishige, who commanded troops in Batangas province where other witnesses have testified—more than 25,000 civilians were slaughtered by the Japanese, was asked about a speech he had made there to seaborne troops he was instructing in land fighting.

At first he denied telling them to kill women and children. A transcript of his speech was read to him.

"Kill American troops cruelly," it said, "do not kill them with one stroke. Shoot guerillas. Kill all who oppose the emperor, even women and children."

The blunt colonel then, with violent gestures, admitted he said it, but added that he also told his men to kill women and children only "if attacked" by them.

Moving fast to complete its case as soon as possible, the prosecution introduced dozens of sworn statements supplementing previous testimony. Some of these told of the inhuman treatment given American prisoners of war who were jammed into the prison ship Oryoku Maru, and how several hundred of them perished when the ship was bombed and sunk off Olongapo.

Others described conditions at Cabantuan prison camp and old Bilibid prison, where beatings, kickings, starvation diets and torture were inflicted on Americans.

Tonight the prosecution planned to show documentary motion pictures confirming the Palawan Air Field massacre case.

Allies Recover Relics of Peking Man in Tokyo

Articles From Cave Looted by Japanese; Chinese Secreted Actual Bones

TOKYO, Nov. 19 (AP).—In the plunder sent to Japan by her Army and recovered by occupation authorities are priceless scientific treasures that came from the cave of the Peking Man—one of man's earliest known ancestors.

The recovered loot, it was learned today, included crude tools, carved tooth jewelry and charts showing where the articles were discovered originally in a limestone cave at Choukoutien near Peiping in 1929. They had been kept at the Peiping Union Medical College.

But the bones of the Peking Man (Sinanthropus pekinesis) were well hidden by the Chinese and escaped a three-year search by Japanese scientists, seized letters revealed.

The articles were found at the Tokyo Imperial University after Japanese authorities informed Allied headquarters of their presence. Dr. Frank C. Whitmore jr., scientific consultant of the United States Geological Survey attached to Allied headquarters, took custody of the relics pending their return to the National Geological Survey of China.

The Peking Man and the Java Ape Man (Pithecanthropus erectus), both about a million years old, are rivals for the title of man's earliest ancestor. The Peking Man is regarded as more important because, while he lived a little later, scientists regard him as more human.

Scientists, partially sponsored by the Rockefeller Foundation, digging very carefully in the cave and keeping the various layers of deposits catalogued, were able to trace the progress of the inhabitants through many centuries by means of the development of instruments found at various depths.

Says Bones "Disappeared"

The bones of the Peking Man have "apparently disappeared," Dr. Franz Weidenreich, leading anthropological authority on prehistoric relics, said here yesterday. Dr. Weidenreich, formerly of the Peiping Union Medical College, is associated with the American Museum of Natural History.

"Before I left China in April, 1941, Dr. Weidenreich said, "I tried to obtain permission to bring the fragments with me. It was not found possible to do so. Recently I learned that the Japanese had made an investigation trying to find the whereabouts of the relics.

"Their fate seems to be a complete mystery, since they were not in the hands of the Chinese, nor, apparently, could the Japanese find them. One report says that they were inadvertently sunk in Tientsin harbor, but this has not been authenticated."

Dr. Weidenreich said that no carved tooth jewelry had been found in the limestone cave where the Peking Man fragments were discovered, but he agreed that a few rude stone tools had been found in the cave.

nese diary quoted a soldier guard stationed at the air field as saying it was feared American forces were about to land on Palawan, and it was necessary to kill the prisoners.

The prosecution put a Japanese colonel on the stand later in the session and forced from him an admission that he had urged his troops "to kill Americans cruelly."

Col. Masatoshi Fugishige, who himself must stand trial later, gestured violently and snapped his answers, but once lost his aplomb. Fujishige was asked if, in instructing a seaborne unit in land fighting in Batangas province, he had made a speech telling them to kill civilian women and children.

"I did not," he declared.

There was then read before the military commission a translated document, introduced as a transcript of what he had said.

"Kill American troops cruelly," the document ran. "Do not kill them with one stroke. Shoot guerrillas. Kill all who oppose the emperor, even women and children."

Yes, Fugishige admitted, he had said that. He hastened to assert he had told his troops that if they were attacked by women or children "out of military necessity they must be combatted."

Other Depositions

Additional depositions told how Americans at Cabanatuan and Bilibid were tortured, beaten, kicked and starved.

Rushing to wind up its evidence, the prosecution planned to show the commission tonight moving-picture evidence of the Palawan massacre.

Visits From Yamashita

A deposition introduced under the signature of Harold Memmler, of Chicago, said that Yamashita twice visited Cabanatuan prison camp where prisoners were ill and starving, but the visits brought no improvement in conditions.

The only change, Memmler said, was that afterward many of the prisoners were loaded into trucks and hauled off to "foul, old" Bilibid prison. He charged that the Japanese stole medicine from Red Cross packages intended for prisoners and that the sick were left unattended.

Survivors Reveal How Japs Herded Captives Into Air Raid Shelter and Burned Them.

Manila, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—The story of how 150 captured American soldiers were herded into air raid shelters, drenched with gasoline and set afire was told today at Lieut.-Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita's war crimes trial.

Signed documents were the mute witnesses. The nine survivors of that Japanese orgy of flame, bullets and bayonets long since have left the Philippines. The deposition said the Americans, captured in the Philippines fightng, were working on the air field on Palawan Island southwest of Luzon last December 15. Their Japanese guards ordered them into the shelters at noon.

Into the packed shelters the Japanese poured gasolene, set it afire, then shot and bayoneted those who attempted to escape. But nine managed to get away into the jungles and were saved by guerrillas. A captured Japa-

Allied HQ Bans All Japanese 'Nationalistic' Movies

Tokyo, Nov. 19 (AP)—Supreme headquarters banned all Japanese "nationalistic" films today—including one of the Bataan campaign made in Manila with American prisoners of war as unwilling actors.

The announcement did not say whether any of the specifically banned pictures currently were on display anywhere in Japan.

Ban "Shoot Down That Flyer"

One film on the blacklist was "Shoot Down That Flyer," a propaganda picture which, headquarters charged, falsely depicted the Bataan campaign. It was in this one that American prisoners were forced to act.

David W. Conde, chief of the motion pictures section at General MacArthur's headquarters, said all the pictures must be sealed and delivered to headquarters. Copies of each film will be sent to the United States for analysis and as historical documents.

Restrict Production

Japanese companies were prohibited henceforth from making militaristic and nationalistic pictures or any at variance with the Potsdam declaration or Allied directives.

Conde said that meant Japanese companies would have "to develop a new fund of material" because nearly all current literature was saturated with militaristic subjects.

He emphasized that there was no intention to destroy or prohibit films having cultural or literary value.

Mrs. Tojo Is Found At Fukuoka, Kyushu

Tokyo, Tuesday, Nov. 20 (AP)—Mystery of the disappearance of Mrs. Hideki Tojo, wife of Japan's Pearl Harbor Premier, was solved by a reporter for ASAHI today.

He found her at Fukuoka, Kyushu, where she had fled to escape "the unbeatable pain of Tokyo, where I was exposed to public glare."

Corespondents who entered Tojo's home after he attempted suicide found Mrs. Tojo had gone. Mrs. Tojo denied she had separated from Tojo. She said that if he is punished as a war criminal "I will remain in the Tojo family to protect the family even after by husband is gone.

FIND BROOKLYN G. I. DEAD NEAR OSAKA

Osaka, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—Sixth Army officers today pressed an investigation into the deaths of an American soldier and a Japanese girl, whose bodies were found near Kishimada, a few miles south of Osaka. The American was identified only as a private from Brooklyn.

Investigators held the theory both had been murdered. The girl was found in a submerged jeep in a small stream November 15. The soldier's body was found the next day some distance away. Both bore marks of beatings.

Jap Ship Loads 3,000 PW's At Manila

Manila, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Shinzu Maru today began loading 3,000 Japanese prisoners of war to be returned to Mdji, Japan.

The group, screened to remove suspected war criminals, is the largest sent to Japan thus far.

Another 1,200, including a few women and children, are scheduled to leave Wednesday.

Col. Rhodes F. Arnold, Atascadero, Cal., commandant of the Luzon camp said to be the largest army stockade outside of Europe, declared 8,859 Nipponese already have been repatriated.

Totalitarianism Denied By Argentine Minister

Buenos Aires, Nov. 19 (AP)—Juan I. Cooke, Foreign Minister, tonight in a radio address sought to defend the Argentine military government against charges of totalitarianism made by a union of political parties which sent a petition to the Interior Ministry today.

Cooke said the charge of totalitarian trends in the Government was "false and libelous."

The coalition of parties, opposing the presidential candidacy of former Vice President Juan Perón, said in its statement to Felipe Urdapilleta, Interior Minister, that "government dependencie are spending large sums without control in a maneuver to typically totalitarian."

To Confer on Peruvian Finance.

Lima, Peru, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—Finance Minister Carlos Montero Bernales left last night by plane for the United States to confer on Peruvian Government economic matters.

Attlee Cites British Set-Up As Example for U. N. O.

Labor Premier Addresses Canada's Parliament

OTTAWA, Nov. 19 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee held up the British Commonwealth today as an example of the international cooperation needed among all countries to make a success of the United Nations Organization.

Addressing a joint session of the Canadian Senate and Commons, the British Prime Minister called for world-wide acceptance of "an intense belief in the great principles of interdependence of nations." He termed the atomic bomb only one of the problems of world peace.

Great Britain, he told na news conference earlier, intends to "carry through" with the task of "bringing the Indonesians and the Dutch together to settle their differences."

The controversy over empire preferences in Britain's trade will be a matter for discussion soon, he said. One cure for his country's economic plight is to "export more," he added.

Ending a week end in Canada, he boarded a Douglas Skymaster plane at nearby Rockliffe Air Field at 5:15 p. m. today and took off for Britain.

Attlee Flies Back to London

OTTAWA, Nov. 19 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee, after a weekend in Canada, boarded a Douglas Skymaster at near-by Rockcliffe airfield at 5:15 P. M. today and took off for Britain.

Attlee Departs

Ottawa, Nov. 19 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee left by plane for England after addressing both houses of Parliament today. He is expected to arrive at Northolt, after a nonstop flight, at 9.45 A.M. tomorrow.

Canadian Prime Minister Mackenzie King was at the airport to say good bye to the British Prime Minister, who arrived in the United States November 10 for talks in Washington with President Truman.

Attlee in his address today sought to assure Canada that Britain's new socialized domestic program and her need to export would not hamper British-Canadian trade.

Export Trade Cited

Britain must rebuild her export trade as soon as possible, Attlee said, and he added that his Government believed the members of the British Commonwealth should have complementary economies.

"In saying this," the British Prime Minister continued, "I do not lose sight of the fact that Canada perhaps to an even greater extent than other countries in the Commonwealth has become during the war an important manufacturing nation, and that it will expect to see in postwar years an increasing export of its own manufactured products.

"But past experience has shown that the greatest volume of trade has been built up between highly industrialized countries, and I see no reason therefore to think that the development to which I have referred will place any obstacle upon a steady and increasing trade between our two countries."

Introduced By King

Attlee was introduced by Canadian Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, who participated in the President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee on the atomic bomb.

"I believe," King said of these discussions, "that the initiative taken by the representatives of the three countries which possess the knowledge essential to the use of atomic energy to see that the new discovery shall be used for the benefit of mankind, and not as a means of destruction, should go far toward creating conditions of mutual trust which alone can rid the world of its worst fears, and secure for nations and enduring peace. . . ."

Admiral Says British Expected U.S. to Enter War After Election.

WROTE TO ADM. HART

Late President Quoted As Saying 'Japs Would Make Mistakes.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19—(AP) The British expected the United States to enter the war within a few days after the re-election of President Roosevelt in 1940, in the official opinion of Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley.

The [illegible] Chief of the American Naval Mission in London so told Admiral Harold R. Stark, the Pearl Harbor investigating committee learned today.

But Ghormley also felt, Stark said in a letter, to Admiral Thomas C. Hart, now U. S. Senator from Conn., that the British attitude was merely another evidence of "their non-realistic views of international conditions and of our own political system."

Stark himself also told Admiral Hart in the same letter, that the United States had no idea as to whether the British would at "once begin to fight were the Dutch alone, or were we a'one, to be attacked by the Japanese."

And President Roosevelt was quoted as having expressed doubt that this nation would enter the war even if the Philippines were attacked by the Japanese.

The President also was quoted as having said that as the area of operations in the war expanded the Japanese sooner or later would make a "mistake and we would enter the war."

There was some indication that Mr. Roosevelt had disagreed with the views of Admiral James O. Richardson, special assistant to the secretary of the Navy, on the disposition of the Pacific fleet.

Richardson told the Senate-House committee investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster that the late President made the remark about the Japanese "mistake" over the luncheon table at the White House on Oct. 8, 1940. At the time Richardson was Commander-in-Chief of the fleet.

The Admiral also informed the committee that he had strongly advised the late President to remove the fleet from Pearl Harbor and bring it to the West Coast of the United States but that the President took the position the presence of the fleet at the Hawaiian base served as a curb on the Japanese.

Following is a transcript of Richardson's testimony on the conversation with President Roosevelt on Oct. 8, 1940:

"I took up the question of returning to the Pacific coast all of the fleet except the Hawaiian detachment. The President stated that the fleet was retained in the Hawaiian area in order to exercise a restraining influence on the actions of Japan.

"I stated that in my opinion the presence of the fleet in Hawaii might influence a civilian political government, but that Japan had a military government which knew that the fleet was undermanned unprepared for war and had no train of auxiliary ships without which it could not undertake active operations, therefore the presence of the fleet in Hawaii could not exercise a restraining influence on Japanese action.

I further stated we were more likely to make the Japanese feel that we meant business if a train were assembled, and the fleet returned to Paficic coast, the complements filled, the ships docked, and fully supplied with ammunitions, provisions, stores and fuel and then stripped for war operations.

"The President said in effect 'despite what you believe I know that the presence of the fleet in the Hawaiian area, has had, and is now having, a restraining influence on the actions of Japan.'

"I said, 'Mr. President, I still do not believe it and I know that our fleet is disadvantageously disposed for preparing for or initiating war operations.'

"The President said, 'I can be convinced of the desirability of returning the battleships to the West coast if I can be given a good statement which will convince the American people and the Japanese government that in bringing the battleships to the West coast we are not stepping backwards.'

"Later I asked the President if we were going to enter the war. He replied that if the Japanese attacked Thailand, or the Kra peninsula, or the Dutch East Indies we would not enter the war, that if they even attacked the Philippines he doubted whether we would enter the war, but that they could not always avoid making mistakes and that as the war continued and the area of operations expanded sooner or later they would make a mistake and we would enter the war."

Entered in evidence when Richardson took the stand was an exchange of correspondence between him and Admiral Harold R. Stark, then Chief of Naval Operations, during 1940.

Their general tenor was that Richardson did not like keeping the fleet based at Pearl Harbor. It had gone there in April during annual maneuvers with the expectation of returning to the Pacific coast early in May. Instead it was ordered to remain there. When Richardson asked an explanation, he was informed by Stark that the purpose was to exercise a "deterrent" influence on Japanese actions.

William D. Mitchell, Committee counsel, asked Richardson about the White House visit after the admiral had given some preliminary testimony about his objections to keeping the fleet at Pearl Harbor.

Richardson pulled out a written account, explaining that he had prepared it in the quiet of his home because of the matter's importance.

Richardson was on the stand less than an hour and had not gotten well into his story when the committee recessed until tomorrow.

He is reported to have had a disagreement with the President also over proposed transfer of some warships from the Pacific to the Atlantic to aid in getting shipments to Britain. Such a transfer was made after Richardson was relieved Feb. 1, 1941, as fleet commander. He was succeeded by Admiral Husband E. Kimmel who held the Pacific command when the Japanese attacked.

In other principal developments in the investigation:

1. Senators Ferguson (R-Mich.) and Brewster (R-Maine) made a demand for the State department's file on the case of Tyler Kent, employe of the American embassy in London who was convicted of violating the British Official Secrets act. Kent recently completed his sentence. The two senators indicated they were interested in whether the file disclosed any pre-war agreements between President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill.

2. Rep. Gearhart (R-Calif.), a committee member, refused to give Democratic members the name of a naval officer he said had advised him that the U. S. cruiser Boise sighted a Japanese naval force at sea in the week before Pearl Harbor but did not report it because of orders for radio silence. Rep. Murphy (D-Pa.) asked for the officer's name and was backed up by Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) Gearhart has asked that the Boise's log be produced for the committee.

3. Ferguson told the committee he will prove later that the Navy knew the day before Pearl Harbor that a spy had arranged for visual signals from Hawaii to Japanese vessels lurking off the coast.

Richardson related that Admiral William D. Leahy, then governor of Puerto Rico, was also at the White House luncheon. After the war, Leahy became the President's personal chief of staff.

Ex-commander in Pacific Failed to Get Fleet Out of Hawaii.

WHITE HOUSE OPPOSED MOVE

Stark Also Urged Presence at Pearl Harbor for Its 'Deterrent Effect.'

Washington, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—Admiral J. O. Richardson testified today that the late President Roosevelt told him October 8, 1940, that "sooner or later the Japanese probably will make a mistake and we will enter the war."

Recounting a conversation with the President at the White House, the former commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet said he asked whether we were going to get into the war.

Richardson said the President replied that "If the Japanese attack Thailand, the Kraw peninsula, or the Dutch East Indies, we will not enter the war."

He added that the President said that "even if they attack the Philippines, we probably will not enter the war—but that they (the Japanese) could not always avoid making mistakes and that sooner or later they would probably make a mistake and we would enter the war."

Opposed Basing at Hawaii.

In an exchange of correspondence with Admiral Harold R. Stark, then chief of naval operations, Richardson in 1940 questioned keeping the Pacific fleet based at Hawaii.

Richardson testified that he urged the President to return the fleet stationed at Pearl Harbor to the West Coast.

Mr. Roosevelt, Richardson continued, disputed him on the wisdom of this, saying the fleet was kept at Hawaii in order to "exercise a restraining influence on the actions of Japan."

Richardson said:

"I stated that it might influence the action of a civilian political government, but that Japan had a military government that knew our fleet was undermanned."

The Admiral said he expressed the view that "we were more likely to make the Japanese feel we meant business" if the Fleet were brought back to the West Coast, stripped for action, and adequately manned.

Leahy Also Present.

Then, while committee members bent forward to listen carefully, Richardson asserted in measured tones:

"The President said in effect that, 'Despite what you believe, I know that the presence of the fleet at Hawaii has had a restraining influence."

When Richardson continued to press his point, Mr. Roosevelt said—according to the Admiral's testimony—that he could be convinced of the wisdom of returning the fleet if he could be given a "good statement" that would convince the American pepple that in returning the ships "we were not taking a step backward."

Richardson said that Admiral William Leahy, at that time Governor of Puerto Rico, was also present at his luncheon conversation with the late President.

Richardson read his account of the conversation from a statement which he said he prepared in the quiet of his home some time ago when he realized that "unfortunately" he would be called to testify before the committee.

Wrote Stark in 1940.

An exchange of correspondence showed that Richardson wrote Stark on October 22, 1940 that as a result of changes in international conditions "it now appears that more active, open steps at Japan are in serious contemplation and that these steps, if taken now, may lead to active hostilities."

Richardson said that in a July visit he had expressed to President Roosevelt the "firm conviction that neither the Navy nor the country was prepared for war with Japan."

He left Washington then, Richardson wrote Stark, with the impression that the fleet was being kept in Hawaii "solely to support diplomatic representations and as a deterrent to Japanese aggressive action," that "there was no intention of embarking on actual hostilities against Japan" and that the immediate mission of the fleet was to accelerate training.

Identifed With Britain.

On the occasion of his second visit to Washington, Richardson wrote that he obtained an entirely different impression.

He said that the United States had "more closely identified herself with Great Britain," that the Japanese were giving signs of further progress toward the Dutch Indies, and that the Axis alliance appeared "aimed at the United States."

"As a result of these changes," Richardson said, "it now appears that more active, open steps aimed at Japan are in serious contemplation and that these steps, if taken now, may lead to active hostilities."

Richardson testified that on May 4, 1940, Stark messaged him that "it looks probable" the fleet would remain in Hawaii for a short time. On May 7, he said Stark messaged him to issue a press release saying that he, Richardson, had requested that the fleet remain at Pearl Harbor for additional time.

"Did you issue the release?" asked William D. Mitchell, committee counsel.

"I did," was the reply.

"Did you request that the fleet be left there?" Mitchell asked.

"I did not," Richardson said.

Clash Marks Hearing.

Previously Democrats and Republicans on the committee had clashed over the refusal by Representative Gearhart (R-Cal.) to disclose a source of information.

Gearhart was asked by Representative Murphy (D.-Pa.) to furnish the name of a naval officer the Californian said told him the cruiser Boise sighted Japanese warships before the attack on the naval bastion.

Gearhart retorted angrily that he was not on the stand as a witness and was not subject to cross-examination, adding: "I want to say that anybody who gives me information can be certain that I won't disclose his identity."

Senator Lucas (D.-Ill.) said he thought anybody who knows anything aboutt he Pearl Harbor attack ought to be called as a witness.

NOV 29 1945

"We should be able to get to the bottom of these rumors that are being spread around by individuals," he declared, adding that if anybody had important information and refused to come before the committee, his evidence ought not to be given much credence.

"If we are going to be prevented from having any one come to us and give us information in confidence," Gearhart replied, "that means that the door of investigation has been closed in our faces."

Inglis Report Questioned.

Earlier Senator Ferguson challenged the Navy's report that a coded message "Climb Mt. Niitaka" gave the Japanese task force the final signal to attack Pearl Harbor.

In a series of questions directed at Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis, chief of Naval Intelligence, the Michigan Republican said that he also is prepared to prove later that a Japanese spy's message from Honolulu to Tokyo, arranging visual signals to report movements of the American fleet, had been translated by the United States Navy on December 6, 1941—the day before Japan attacked.

Inglis told the committee on Saturday, in relating the Japanese side of the Pearl Harbor story, that the Mount Niitaka message appeared to have pulled the trigger for the attack. But Ferguson brought out in questioning that this message was not included in the Japanese fleet's operation order. The Senator indicated that he felt the question important in relation to controversy over whether the final decision to attack was made as a result of the breakdown of diplomatic negotiations between the United States and Japan.

Story Obtained from Pilot.

Inglis said information on the message was obtained from Lieut.-Commander Y. Shiga, a Japanese pilot. Ferguson said Shiga also had mentioned the plan to use want ads broadcast over the Honolulu radio station to keep the Japanese task force informed of American fleet movements.

Inglis said Shiga's story of the want ads was discarded because the FBI could find no substantiation. Why, then, Ferguson asked, was Shiga's story of the Mt. Niitaka message credited?

Inglis replied that a Japanese captured on Saipan had said that arrangements had been made to use the Mt. Niitaka code, but could not say whether it actually head been employed.

Ferguson brought out that Lieut. R. H. Peterson, who participated in one American naval investigation, had recommended that Shiga's story of the Mt. Niataga message be disregarded. Inglis said this was true.

Had any search been made, Ferguson persisted, to learn whether American radio monitoring stations had intercepted the Mt. Niitaka message?

Committee Counsel Interrupted.

William D. Mitchell, committee counsel, broke in to say that this point would be covered in subsequent testimony.

"I'm afraid the Senator won't get very far in trying to pry it out of a witness who doesn't know anything about it," Mitchell said.

Ferguson remarked that he was merely trying to find out what weight the committee ought to give to Inglis's summarization of the Japanese side of the story.

The message on the use of signals to report fleet movements, sent from Honolulu on December 3, was given the committee earlier, with the notation that it was translated on December 11.

It was dispatched by a Japanese named Kita and listed numerical signals from one to eight which were to convey such information as "Battleships all departed," "Battleships preparing to sortie," "Carriers departed."

The message said lights would be displayed "in window of Kalama house." Kalama is a beach village on the east coast of Oahu Island.

Hull May Take Stand.

The possibility arose that former Secretary of State Hull may testify this week.

Jule M. Hannaford, assistant counsel, told reporters today that Hull has been asked to follow on the stand Admiral J. O. Richardson, who was relieved as Pacific Fleet commander several months before Pearl Harbor after reported disagreements with the late President Roosevelt. The former Cabinet officer, he said, will appear if his health permits.

The committee began its fourth day of hearings by going over with Inglis the sources of information on which he based a summary given the group Saturday ot Japan's version of the Pearl Harbor attack.

No Proof Regarding Planes.

Under questioning by Representative Cooper (D.-Tenn.), Inglis said there is no proof that two observation seaplanes launched by the Japanese task force reached Pearl Harbor an hour before the attacking planes.

The original draft of Inglis's statement to the committee Saturday included the statement that two planes reached their destination an hour ahead of the actual foray. But the witness said today this was struck out on the basis of information received from Navy sources Friday night.

In response to questions by Lucas, Inglis said that information on the Japanese version of the attack, received through investigations made by subordinates of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, tallied largely with data gathered by Navy inquiries.

The committee learned today that Admiral Osami Nagano, chief of the Japanese Naval General Staff, testified recently at Tokyo that he alone decided—on November 3, 1941—to attack Hawaii.

Nagano's statement was taken during an inquiry conducted by subordinates of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's subordinates at the request of the committee. The Tokyo testimony has been placed in the record of the current hearing.

The testimony showed that Capt. Sadatoshi Tomioka, chief of the operations section of the Japanese Naval Staff, testified that if the United States had made concessions the attack plan "would have been discarded." But he and three other naval officers answered "no" to this question about the Pearl Harbor attack: "Was the said action (or similar actions in anticipation of a war against the United States) included in Japan's pre-war plans?"

Inglis Attack Criticized.

In the House Republicans and Democrats alike protested what they termed political wrangling and mistreatment of witnesses by the investigating committee.

Representative Bradley (R.-Mich.) told the House that to accuse Admiral Inglis of false statements "is an outrage," and praised the admiral's service record. The House applauded.

Brewster an Saturday said Inglis had made an "unqualifiedly false" statement.

Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts took the floor to voice the hope that "from now on the investigation will be conducted on a high plane."

Representative Woodruff (R.-Mich.) also deplored that treatment of Inglis, saying that "in my opinion he was subjected to treatment not to be expected from members of Congress." Woodruff said he appointed Inglis to the naval academy and that the admiral's father was his former pastor.

Sneak Probers Ask Hull To Testify.

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—Former Secretary of State Hull may testify this week before the congressional committee investigating the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Jule M. Hannaford, assistant counsel, said Hull has been asked to follow Admiral J. O. Richardson to the stand. The former Cabinet officer, he said, would appear if his health permits.

The committee began its fourth day of hearings by going over with Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis the sources of information on which he based a summary given the group Saturday of Japan's version of the Pearl Harbor attack.

Questioned About Planes

Under questioning by Representative Cooper (D., Tenn.), Inglis said there is no proof that two observation seaplanes launched by the attacking Japanese task force reached Pearl Harbor an hour before the attacking planes.

The original draft of Inglis' statement to the committee Saturday included the statement that two planes "reached their destination" an hour ahead of the actual foray. But the witness said today that this was struck out on the basis of information received from Navy sources Friday night.

In response to questions by Senator Lucas (D., Ill.), Inglis said that information on the Japanese version of the attack, received through investigations made by subordinates of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, tallied largely with data gathered by navy inquiries.

Radio Programs Cited

Senator Brewster (R., Maine) asked whether records of Honolulu commercial broadcasting stations during the attack period are available. Inglis testified last week that no proof had been found to substantiate a Japanese report that code messages had been sent through these programs to the approaching Japanese fleet.

The witness said the Navy's best information was that the records in question were turned over to a Major Putnam of the Army. Putnam was not otherwise identified.

Col. Bernard Thielen, representing the War Department, said he personally had no knowledge of where the records may be.

Nagano Admits Blame

The committee learned today that Admiral Osami Nagano, chief of the Japanese naval general staff, testified recently at Tokyo that he alone decided—on November 3, 1941—to attack the Hawaiian bastian.

The Tokyo testimony has been placed in the record of the current hearing.

A document placed in the committee's record by its legal advisers said Richardson, now retired, will be asked for "the complete story of the reasons why the fleet was based at Pearl Harbor, his trips to Washington in July and October, 1940; his discussions and disagreement with President Roosevelt."

Requests U.S. Plans

Meanwhile, Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) said he will demand that American war plans prepared against the Japanese be made public at the inquiry.

Ferguson said testimony by Inglis last week outlining the enemy's scheme of attack showed that "the Japanese had excellent war plans."

"I want to see our advance plans for attacking Tokyo and their naval base of Truk to compare them with what the Japanese were doing," the Senator added.

Gearhart's Contention

Representative Gearhart (R., Cal.) contended at a news conference Friday that the Japanese were carrying out a military plan such as all nations draw in advance and would have recalled their fleet if an agreement had been reached in the negotiations then going on between Secretary of State Hull and Japanese "peace" envoys.

The report of the Tokyo investigation conducted by MacArthur's subordinates showed that Capt. Sadatoshi Tomioka, chief of the operations section of the Japanese naval staff, testified that if the United States had made concessions the attack plan "would have been discarded."

"Not In Prewar Plans"

But he and three other naval officers answered "No" to this question about the Pearl Harbor attack:

"Was the said action (or similar actions in anticipation of a war against the United States) included in Japan's prewar plans?"

The other officers questioned on this point were Commander Tatsukichi Miyo, a member of the naval operations section, and Capt. Kameto Kuroshiima and Commander Yasuji Watanabe, combined fleet staff members.

The same four said that the late Admiral Isoro Yamamoto, commander in chief of the combined Japanese fleet, conceived the plan for attacking Pearl Harbor early in January, 1941.

The report then gave this version, with a note that the answers were based "on the recollections of Admiral Nagano":

Q.—When was it decided to attack Pearl Harbor?

A.—3 November, 41. This date was set by the chief of the naval general staff, Nagano, when Yamamoto came to Tokyo.

Q.—Who made the foregoing decision.

A.—Chief of the naval general staff Nagano.

Q.—If the decision was made in conference, give time of said conference and names of all persons present.

A.—It was not made in conference.

Final Confirmation

Tomoika, Miyo, Kuroshima and Watanabe testified that the undertaking was started early in September, 1941. They said Yamamoto gave "final confirmation" on December 1, 1941.

The same four, with Nagano, were asked who knew the general plan in advance. They replied that Emperor Hirohito "knew of the objective of attacking the main strength of the United States Pacific fleet with a task force after the last ultimatum to the United States Government had been delivered."

This seemed to allude to the Japanese note delivered to Secretary Hull at the hour of the attack.

The "Attack" Message

The Senate-House committee heard Inglis testify Saturday that a code message, "Climb Mount Niitaka," radioed from Tokyo December 5, gave the task force the signal to attack when it was about 1,000 miles from Pearl Harbor.

Meanwhile, Saburo Murusu, one of the men who delivered the Japanese war declaration to Hull, said in an interview in Japan yesterday that it arrived in Washington so badly garbled it was impossible to decode it before the attack began.

Kurusu, Japan's special "peace" envoy to this country at the time of Pearl Harbor, related information similar to that already brought out in Japanese code messages introduced in the hearings here that a member of the Cabinet and another influential but unofficial American worked closely with the Japanese diplomats in an effort to prevent war.

"Not Much Help"

Kurusu declined to identify the two without their permission, but commented that they had been "not much help."

Kurusu said he was convinced that both Mr. Roosevelt and Hull sincerely attempted to prevent or at least pospone war with Japan, adding:

"I am sorry to read reports that Hull is being criticized as negligent. He certainly wasn't."

Spotting Of Japs Denied By Nimitz

Chicago, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Japanese fleet whose planes attacked Pearl Harbor "was not sighted by any United States ship or plane," Admiral Chester W Nimitz said today.

"The Jap task force was not sighted by any ship or any plane before they attacked Pearl Harbor," Nimitz declared at a news conference. "We did not know the planes were coming, and I say that with asurance. I think that attack was as complete a surprise to our forces at Oahu as a lot of the attacks made by American carrier task groups on Jap objectives were to the Japs."

NOV 20 1945

Nimitz's assertion was made in reply to a statement by Representative Gearhart (R., Cal.), member of the Pearl Harbor committee, that a naval officer whom he declined to identify had advised him that the United States cruiser Boise sighted a Japanese naval force at sea in the week before Pearl Harbor but did not report it because of orders for radio silence.

"The captain of the Boise, if he had sighted Jap vessels in force or position that threatened us, would have broken radio silence like that," Nimitz asserted with a snap of his fingers.

The admiral said United States forces in Hawaii did not know of the attack until "the planes arrived, and there they were."

Plans for Defensive War In Pacific Made in 1941

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19. — (AP) The decision to fight a defensive war in the Pacific if Japan struck and to concentrate forces in the Atlantic had been made nearly a year before Pearl Harbor, Congressional investigators learned today.

In a letter placed in the Senate-House inquiry record, Admiral J. O. Richardson, then commander in chief of the fleet, wrote Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, about "the new situation" on January 25, 1941.

Richardson said he views were concurred in by Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, who had arrived to relieve him as fleet commander.

Richardson said in his letter to Stark it was his understanding that the United States would adopt a "waiting attitude" in the Pacific "pending a determination of Japan's intentions."

"If Japan enters the war or commits an overt act against United States interests or territory," Richardson wrote, "our attitude in the Pacific will be primarily defensive, but opportunities will be seized to damage Japan as situations present themselves or can be created."

Richardson noted that one of the presumptions that might be made in getting the fleet ready was that "war with Japan is imminent" in this connection, he wrote Stark:

"Japan may attack without warning, and these attacks may take any form—even to attacks by Japanese ships flying German or Italian flags or by submarines under a doubtful presumption that they may be considered German or Italian.

Predicted Pearl Harbor Raid

"Japanese attacks may be expected against shipping, outlying possessions or naval units. Surprise raids on Pearl Harbor or attempts to block the channel are possible."

Richardson recommended expansion of patrol plane search to the maximum. Witnesses have testified there was no long range reconnaissance from Pearl Harbor on the day of the attack.

He urged establishment of an inner air patrol over Pearl Harbor and arrangements for keeping a striking force of army fighters and bombers on the alert.

Richardson recommended the convoying of merchant ships and their rerouting over southern lanes, a move that was ordered 10 months later.

At one point in the series of letters placed in the committee's records appeared a stray page. Senator Brewster (R-Me) asked about it and committee counsel explained that it was a portion of a letter by Richardson which had gotten in by mistake.

In this the fleet commander said that with the information in his possession "I am strongly opposed to any weakening of the concentrated fleet" by transfers or some of its units to the Atlantic.

"Should the Allied fleets pass into the hands of the Germans," he wrote an unidentified correspondent, "I believe that a reorientation of foreign policy will be mandatory (if, indeed, it isn't already so) and that the disposition of fleet forces must depend upon the decision then reached."

A Richardson letter to Stark on June 22, 1940, disclosed that on June 17 of that year the Army had alerted its forces in Hawaii, issuing live ammunition and patrolling beaches, bridges and other installations.

At the same time, Richardson said the Navy increased its distant air patrol from 180 miles to 300 miles and enlarged the sector covered by searches. In a letter to Richardson, Admiral C. C. Bloch, commander of the 14th naval district with headquarters at Pearl Harbor, said the Army officials didn't know whether the alert was practice or not.

The Army got word two days later to ease up on the alert, but Richardson complained that he didn't know anything about it until General Herron mentioned it at a conference after Richardson had asked how long the alert was going to last.

Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews had reported to Richardson, the record showed, that special attention was laid on possible carrier and plane attacks in the calling of the alert.

The Richardson-Stark correspondence given the committee covered all of 1940.

On Jan. 26, Richardson wrote recalling that he used to say to "Bill Leah" (Admiral William D. Leahy) when Leahy was Chief of Naval Operations:

"Be sure to impress on the Boss that we do not want to be drawn into this (war with Japan) unless we have others so bound to us that they cannot leave us in the lurch."

He asked that Stark "repeatedly impress on the Boss that an Orange war would probably last some years, cost much money, my guess is five to 10 years, 35 to 70 billion dollars." Orange was a designation for Japan.

He closed that letter by saying: "I would hate to see our leaders make a move from which they could not gracefully withdraw, and which would eventually force us into a war, half-heartedly supported by our country. In other words, before this nation takes a step I hope we will carefully examine the direction we are heading, where we will eventually go and be prepared to resolutely pursue the course whatever the cost."

Stark repeatedly expressed the opinion that war with Japan was probable.

As early as Jan. 18, 1940, he noted to Richardson that he had written Admiral Bloch, asking him "to bear in mind what is going on to the westward which in this particular period in this old World's history may be far more important to us than the troubles in Europe, especially if something should break and break quickly and without warning."

After a naval detachment was sent to Hawaii (the Fleet itself was then based on San Pedro-Long Beach, Calif.), Stark wrote on March 15, 1940:

"I still think the decision to send the detachment to Hawaii under present world conditions is sound. No one can measure how much effect its presence there may have on the Orange foreign policy. The State department is strong for the present setup and considers it beneficial; they were in on all discussions, press releases, etc."

On April 8, Stark said:

"I believe the situation in the Far East is continually deteriorating so far as our relations with Japan are concerned. I think you should continually keep uppermost in your mind the possibility of trouble in the Orient, and the means to meet it."

Stark wrote May 7 expressing concern that Italy might enter the war and received from Richardson a letter dated May 13 saying:

"South America is the greatest prize yet remaining to be grabbed. Until the outcome in Europe can be more clearly seen, security in the western hemisphere seems to be the most important consideration for us.

"I feel that any move west means hostilities. I feel that at this time it would be a grave mistake to become involved in the West where our interests, although important are not vital, and thereby reduce our ability to maintain the security of the Western hemisphere which is vital."

Stark wrote on May 22 that some cruisers might be shifted to the Atlantic. "You may draw back at the thought of reducing your cruiser strength at this time in the Pacific," he said. "This I can believe might well be your inclination,—as it would be mine. But the changing situation may push the decision one way or the other."

After Richardson had registered objections to keeping the fleet at Pearl Harbor, Stark wrote on May 22 that "you are there because of the deterrent effect which it is thought your presence may have on the Japs going into the East Indies."

He added:

"You would naturally ask—suppose the Japs do go into the East Indies? What are we going to do about it? My answer is that I don't know and I think there is nobody on God's Green Earth who can tell you."

In that same letter, Stark expressed hope that during the stay in Hawaii Richardson could achieve such "incidental results" as closer liaison with the Army for defense of Hawaii and "security of the fleet at anchor."

By Oct. 1, Stark was writing: "Frankly I do not like the trend of things and I would not be surprised at anything happening any day. Your statement that we can not stay half in this war and half out siezs up the thing pretty well and I have long felt that it is only a matter of time until we go in."

By Nov. 12, Stark was putting it this way: "The chief question that concerns us is where we get in, and whom we will fight:—and "tomorrow" or perhaps "today" is what I am working towards."

Wrote Admiral Hart

On the same day (Nov. 12) Stark wrote Admiral Thomas C. Hart, comander of the Asiatic fleet:

"Ghormley tells me the British expected us to be in the war within a few days after the reelection of the President—which is merely another evidence of their slack ways of thought, and of their non-realistic views of international political conditions, and of our own political system. They have been talking, in a large way, about the defense of the Malay barrier, with an alliance between themselves, us, and the Dutch, without much thought as to what the effect would be in Europe.

"But we have no idea as to whether they would at once begin to fight were the Dutch alone, or were we alone, to be attacked by the Japanese. Then again, the copy of the British Far Eastern War plan which Thomas obtained at Singapore, shows much evidence of their usual wishful thinking. Furthermore, though I believe the Dutch colonial authorities will resist an attempt to capture these islands, I question whether they would fight if only the Philippines, or only Singapore, were attacked.

"The Navy can, of course, make no political commitments. Therefore, we can make no specific military plans for an Allied war. However, as I told you in my despatch, you can perform a useful service by laying, with the British and possibly the Dutch, a framework for a future plan of cooperation, should we be forced into the war."

Stark wrote Richardson Nov. 22 saying his concern for safety of the fleet had increased since the "Taranto incident". British planes torpedoed major units of the Italian fleet while they were anchored at Taranto.

"This concern has to do both with possible activities on the part of Japanese residents of Hawaii and with the possibilities of attack coming from overseas," he said.

"By far the most profitable object of sudden attack in Hawaiian waters would be the fleet units based in that area. My object in writing you is to find out what steps the Navy department and the War department should be taking to provide additional equipment and additional protective measures.

"For instance, is it desirable to place torpedo nets within the harbor itself?"

Richardson wrote Jan. 4, 1941, that there did not appear to be any "practicable way" of putting torpedo nets in the harbor "without greatly limiting the activities with in the harbor, particularly the movements of large ships and the landing and take off of patrol squadrons."

SERVICE MERGER PLAN OPPOSED AT LEGION SESSION

CHICAGO, Nov. 19—(AP) The American Legion National convention became a discussion forum today on the subject of unity of military command.

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and John L. Sullivan, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air, added their opposition to proposals for a merger of the American Army and Navy departments.

They joined with Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, who spoke yesterday, in asking that no decision on such an important matter be made until the question was given exhaustive study by an appointed civilian board.

Adm. Nimitz, however, carefully distinguished between this proposal and unity of command in a theater of operations, for which principle he said he had "nothing but the most enthusiastic support."

In fact, the admiral said he advocated making permanent, by legislation, the temporary, wartime joint Chiefs of Staff organization. But he said "I can not support the proposed merger of the War and Navy departments" and Sullivan said he had heard no evidence yet to justify it.

General Eisenhower, due tomorrow to receive the Legion's Distinguished Service medal, and Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle of the Air forces, are both on the speaking program.

Sir Arthur Tedder, Marshal of the British Air forces, told the Legion of the successful teamwork which enabled the American and British air forces, all under Supreme Commander Eisenhower, to blast the enemy into defeat.

Paying high tribute to Gen. Eisenhower's leadership, Marshal Tedder said it was not for him to attempt to tell statesmen how to solve postwar problems but that:

"I am utterly convinced that the spirit of frankness, of mutual understanding and mutual faith which gave us victorious unity in the war is even more vitally necessary now. I am sure we shall need it in the future."

Posthumous award of the Legion Distinguished Service medal to Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., one of the founders of the Legion, was made by Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider, past national commander from Iowa. Gen. Roosevelt's widow accepted the medal, thanking the Legion in behalf of herself and their children.

Tonight veterans of World War II took over at the convention. A parade—a miniature compared with the pre-war all day long affairs—in their honor preceded mass initiation of more than 7,000 men and women World War II vets at the Coliseum.

Senate Passes Truman Bill on Reorganization

Final Form Still in Doubt; Measure Goes to Joint Committee of 2 Houses

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—President Truman's six-month-old request for power to reshape the vast Federal government cleared the Senate today with its final form still in doubt.

Just before Senate approval on a voice vote, Senator Harry F. Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia, constant economy advocate, discovered what he termed a "loophole" that might allow scores of departments, agencies and bureaus legally to oppose any reorganization.

The Virginia Senator objected to a clause that would prohibit the President from touching agencies with "quasi-judicial" powers.

"This would permit a wholesale exemption, it appears to me," Senator Byrd told the Senate. "It is bad language."

"I agree it's too broad," said Senator Abe Murdock, Democrat, of Utah, floor manager who for eighteen days had been trying to push the measure thrqugh a seemingly disinterested Senate.

"We hope to improve upon it in conference," Senator Murdock explained.

NOV 20 1945

30.24—31747

He referred to the joint Senate-House conference committee which must take the bill passed by the Senate today and a separate reorganization measure approved by the House on Oct. 4, and adjust numerous differences.

Earlier, the Senate had rejected on a 40-to-25 roll call, a proposed substitute offered by Senators H. Alexander Smith, Republican, of New Jersey; Forrest C. Donnell, Republican, of Missouri, and Millard E. Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland. The vote followed party lines with two exceptions.

This substitute would have eliminated all exemptions, allowed the President to submit reorganization plans under special procedure to speed Congressional action, and required affirmative approval of both House and Senate.

Senator Tydings was the lone Democrat to join with Senator Robert M. La Follette, Progressive, of Wisconsin, on the losing Republican side, while Senator Douglass Buck, Republican, of Delaware, was the sole Republican to vote with the thirty-nine Democrats.

This left intact the original administration request that any Presidential reorganization become effective after sixty days unless both Senate and House veto it. The Senate previously overrode its own judiciary committee's proposal that either Senate or House alone be granted the veto.

In addition to its language exempting "quasi-judicial" agencies, the Senate bill specifically removes fifteen agencies from the scope of the bill. They include the following Federal commissions: Interstate Commerce, Trade, Communications, Securities and Exchange, Power, Maritime and Tariff; three agencies dealing with railroad labor; the Federal Land Bank System; the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation; District of Columbia municipal government, General Accounting Office, and the Army Engineers civil functions.

COX PROTESTS HOUSE INACTION ON LABOR LAWS

Alleges 'Sit Down' During Period of Conference by Labor-Management.

SABATH PROPOSES WAITING

No Strike and Racketeering Bills Pending—Brown Criticizes Stalling.

Washington, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—Representative Cox (D.-Ga.) protested in the House Rules Committee today against what he termed a sit-down strike on labor legislation for the duration of the management-labor conference.

Cox, a member of the committee, opposed "this closing down of legislation to wait on that conference, which in my opinion is a complete pretense."

The committee has pending for clearance to the floor a bill that would impose harsh penalties on unions for violating no-strike contracts. Another measure would prevent racketeering. The measures have been approved respectively by the House Military and Judiciary committees.

Reepresentative Sabath (D.-Ill.), committee chairman, pleaded with the Rules group that "we best wait a little and not throw a monkey wrench in the management-labor conference. We don't want to do anything here that might be used as an excuse for breaking up the conference." The committee put off any action until Wednesday.

Cox said "the management-labor conference has demonstrated one thing and that is that John Lewis is boss, and he will come out dictating the labor policies of this Government.'

Representative Brown (R.-Ohio) commented that the administration "evidently is intent to block all legislation until Congress acts on the bills the President wants." He said there has been no important legislation before the House for two weeks and that none is scheduled for this week. He declared:

"I'm tired of this stalling. Congress should function or adjourn."

Public Body Proposed.

The executive committee of the labor-management conference, which today entered its third week received a proposal that a public fact-finding body be created to investigate labor disputes.

The suggestion came from the National Catholic Welfare Conference. Judge Walter F. Stacy, chairman of the labor-management meeting, told reporters he was presenting it to the executive committee for consideration. The Catholic group made its suggestion to Stacy and Labor Secretary Schwellenbach in a letter.

Replying to the communication from the Most Rev. Karl J. Alter, bishop of Toledo, Schwellenbach said that the President on November 5 had indicated his willingness to co-operate in such a program.

Points of Proposal.

Briefly, the proposal from Bishop Alter is:

That the President or Schwellenbach appoint a main board of public members and as many national, regional or local boards as necessary.

They would investigate labor disputes and report quickly on the facts in the case. The boards would make the facts known.

These facts would be the basis for just agreements in collective bargaining and just decisions if disputes were placed before an arbitrator.

The labor-management conference was reported ready to accept voluntary arbitration as one remedy for disputes. Voluntary arbitrations means that labor and management would have to agree voluntarily to submit their disputes to an arbitrator, or board of arbitration, who would render a decision.

Six working committees—each assigned a specific problem of industrial relations—were due to submit their first progress reports to the conference executive committee today. Some said they were ready with final recommendations, but none of the reports is expected to go through the executive committee and then through actual conference debate without alteration.

AUTO WORKERS FAVOR TALKS IN PAY DISPUTE

CIO Group Proposes Move With General Motors To 'Avert Strike'

Phone workers' walkout affects Illinois area ..... Page 8

Official concern over slow progress of management-labor conference becomes evident . . Page 9

Detroit, Nov. 19 (AP)—Arbitration of the bitter wage dispute between the CIO United Automobile Workers and General Motors Corporation was proposed today by the union.

Asserting that "we want to avert a strike," Walter P. Reuther, UAW CIO vice president, said the union proposes to the corporation that "we submit to immediate arbitration our controversy over 30 per cent increases in wage rates without price increases."

Reply Today Requested

He added that the union has asked for a written reply to the proposal not later than 4 P.M. tomorrow.

In Washington, C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors Corporation, declined to comment on the CIO proposal.

Wilson, approached as he left a committee meeting at President Truman's labor-management conference, said he would be unable to give the answer until he and other company officials had studied the union suggestion. The G.M. official said he was inclined to doubt, however, that an answer could be returned before the deadline set by the union.

Proposal By Reuther

Reuther's announcement was made at the close of the opening meeting of the UAW-CIO General Motors council, consisting of representatives of union locals in G.M. plants throughout the nation.

The proposal, Reuther announced, contains three stipulations:

1. That the parties submit the dispute to a three-man board of arbitration consisting of one representative of management, one of labor and a chairman selected by the other two members.

2. The board of arbitration shall have full access to the books and records and other documents of both parties which in the judgment of the board are essential to an intelligent and factual solution of this dispute.

3. The board of arbitration shall make a final and binding decision of this dispute; any wage increase ordered by the board shall not be used as a basis for a price increase for any G.M. product for the duration of such award.

Company spokesmen indicated there would be no statement on the union proposal pending further study.

Delays Naming Aide

Reuther said that the union had not yet appointed its representative on the proposed three-man arbitration board.

"It would be silly to name a representative before we know that G.M. will agree to the proposal," he added.

R. J. Thomas, UAW-CIO president, who attended the session of the union's G.M. council, said following the meeting that the arbitration proposal was "not an ultimatum," but that it was "the last resort" in the dispute. He added that strike action was not discussed.

As the union council was in session, George Romney, general manager of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, asserted a strike, or close down of General Motors "would shut down all but one other passenger car producer in the country within a week."

That other one company, Romney said without naming it, "would attain only about 50 per cent production."

Source Of Equipment

He said that all but the one company, which he intimated was the Ford Motor Company, used equipment, such as spark plugs, ignition harnesses, thermostats and other articles manufactured by General Motors.

Romney disclosed he had sent a letter to President Truman asserting "at no time in the peacetime history since the Civil War has the nation faced a more anxious winter than the critical days ahead.

"At a time when earliest possible resumption of civilian production is necessary to our domestic welfare and that of the world as a whole, large scale strikes threaten America's key industry," the A.M.A. general manager wrote.

View On OPA Prices

Many of the delegates to the day's session of the union's G.M. Council appeared wearing lapel buttons inscribed "30 per cent or fight."

Prior to the council meeting, Reuther hailed the Office of Price Administration announcement that prices of General Motors new cars will be about 2.5 per cent below the January, 1942, prices as sustaining the union contention that the corporation can raise wages without increasing car prices.

Henry Ford 2d, President of the Ford, whose prices were increased two per cent, asserted that the new prices "mean that for an indeterminate period, we will have to sell our car at a loss."

Ford said the company planned to go ahead with its program of getting "the greatest number of cars and trucks to the greatest number of people in the shortest possible time."

"When there once more are plenty of cars," he added, "Government will be free to remove price restrictions, and the Ford Motor Company—along with the rest of American industry—can get back its old competitive job, making better products at lower prices, not 'ceiling' prices."

Could Recommend Strike

Ford, like General Motors and Chrysler, which together employ upward of half a million production workers, already has rejected the UAW-CIO demand for 30 per cent wage rate increases. Wage negotiations between the UAW-CIO and Chrysler Corporation were resumed today; those with Ford are to open tomorrow while conferences between G.M. and the union are in recess.

The union's G.M. council has no power to order a strike, although it could recommend strike action. Authority to call a strike has been delegated by the UAW-CIO international executive board to a six-man strategy committee, which includes Reuther and other top officials of the union.

Session To Continue

The council could direct Reuther and others of the union negotiating group to return to General Motors conferences and accept a compromise. Union spokesmen said, however, that a strike recommendation was more likely.

The council session is scheduled to continue through tomorrow.

STRIKES CALLED CAUSE OF DELAY IN VETS' RETURN

War Department Also Declares Shorter Working Hours Responsible.

TO MEET GOAL

Troops Are Now Returning at Rate of 600,000 a Month, Says Report.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 — (AP) The War department said tonight that strikes and shorter working hours on both coasts had delayed shipping to bring soldiers home from overseas.

It also said that strikes had delayed production of railroad troop kitchen cars and "critically needed" troop sleeper cars. It added that some soldiers would have to be moved in day coaches on long trips, sometimes for trips across the continent.

"Except for delays in turning around ships on both coasts because of strikes and shorter working hours, and the loss of some British transport, enough shipping would have been available by the end of this year to have exceeded the withdrawal quotas agreed upon by the War department and the theater commanders," the department said in a statement.

To Meet Schedule

But it added that the target dates were still expected to be met. The targets, it said, are:

All troops in the European and Mediterranean theaters to be withdrawn by Jan. 31 except for 370,000 in the occupation army and 300,000 in the property "cleanup" force.

All troops in the Pacific and other areas to be withdrawn by June 30 except for 400,000 in the occupation forces and 100,000 in the garrison forces.

Troops now are returning at the rate of more than 600,000 monthly, the department reported. For November, 502,000 are expected at eastern ports and 195,000 at western ports. A peak will be reached in December with 423,000 in the East and 306,000 in the West. In January, total arrivals will decline to about 235,000 in the East and 223,000 in the West.

The department said that the last of 97 cargo ships being converted to troop carriers would be completed this week. There will then be in service to bring soldiers home: 253 troopships, 210 converted cargo ships, 38 hospital ships, 178 assault transports and 111 warships.

Conversion of cargo ships will be discontinued after this month because, the department explained, they could not be made ready before the need for them would disappear.

The statement forecast that shipping would no longer be the critical factor in redeployment by Jan. 1 in the Atlantic and during April in the Pacific.

The department gave assurance that it "has exploited to the full all means of passage both at sea and on the land" and that "the problem has been tackled with all the drive and spirit of urgency that the Army possesses."

"Record after record in the movement of troops has been broken," it said, "and new ones being constantly set up."

It said that the department had requested the Office of Defense Transportation to withdraw additional Pullman cars from civilian service, and gave this account of the effect of strikes:

"Delivery of railroad troops sleepers, critically needed for transporting returning servicemen from port to personnel centers, has been tied up by a strike in effect since Sept. 22 at the Simmons Co. in Kenosha, Wis. The Simmons Co. manufactures berthing facilities for the troop sleepers. The contract for 1,200 of these cars was placed early this year, and all were to be delivered by the end of the year. To date, 40 have been delivered. There are more than 300 others ready for service as soon as they can be equipped with berths and bedding.

"Intermittent strikes at the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co. and in some of its sub-contracting plants also have delayed production of troop sleepers. To assist the railroads in their monumental task the Army has assigned 36 of its hospital cars to the movement of able-bodied troops. Plans now are being made to release still more hospital cars for such use as the number of traveling patients declines.

"A series of strikes at the American Car and Foundry Co. in Berwick, Pa., has delayed for approximately one month the production of 400 troop kitchen cars needed for use in troop trains. By the end of October, 230 of these were to have been delivered. Actually, only 10 were finished at that time."

In connection with shipping delays, the department gave this detail:

"Recently, there were 18 troopships with a combined capacity of 32,000 men strikebound in San Francisco bay. For every day those ships were immobilized, there were 32,000 men in the Pacific whose return to the United States was correspondingly delayed one day. And delays in voyage repairs have not yet been overcome. Sixteen converted Victory and Liberty ships with a total capacity of 15,000 men were immobilized by the strike of longshoremen at New York from Oct. 4 to 17."

Phone Walkout Cuts All Lines Out of Chicago

Area Isolated Except for Emergency Calls; 8,700 Operators Ask More Pay

By The Associated Press

A strike of 8,700 telephone operators virtually shut off long-distance service in Chicago yesterday and at manual switchboards in 115 Illinois communities and two Indiana counties.

The operators began walking off their jobs at midnight in an attempt to enforce their demands for a pay increase of $6 a week and the top minimum scale of $32 after five years.

The National Telephone Commission of the National War Labor Board had awarded the operators an increase of $4 a week with the $32 wage after eight years, instead of nine. The Illinois Bell Telephone Company accepted the award, retroactive to May.

Only toll service in Chicago was affected by the strike, but in the downstate and Indiana counties having manual equipment both local and long-distance operations were crippled.

Supervisory employees, prepared for a long stay at their posts, took over switchboard operation to handle emergency calls.

The walkout brought the number of idle workers in almost 150 labor disputes to more than 270,000.

Approximately 1,700 workers left their jobs in five small Chicago foundry and machine plants over wage disputes or contract expirations.

Both inbound and outbound shipping at the port of Philadelphia was tied up for the second time in two months by a strike of 700 tugboat workers. The deckhands, cooks and other unlicensed crewmen are members of the United Harbor Workers, an affiliate of the United Mine Workers District 50. They asked the National Labor Relations Board four days ago to supervise a strike vote.

Representatives of the tugboat operators said they knew "no cause" for the strike.

Seattle's three daily newspapers, "The Times," "Star" and "Post-Intelligencer," suspended publication after employees refused to cross picket lines of the American Federation of Labor Typographical Union, which is demanding a wage increase of $2.95 a day.

The Lafayette, Ind., plant of the Aluminum Company of America, where nearly 4,000 workers went on strike Oct. 22, prepared to resume operations pending arbitration of a wage dispute.

The A. F. of L. union withdrew its picket lines after the company offered a 10 per cent wage increase and agreed to arbitration of an additional 5 per cent demanded by the union.

In Washington the A. F. of L. Commercial Telegraphers Union asked the National Labor Relations Board to take a strike vote in thirty days among its members employed by The United Press Association. The union petitioned the N. L. R. B. for a strike ballot under the Smith-Connally war labor disputes act, asserting that a dispute existed chiefly over wages. If the petition is in order, the vote will be taken Dec. 13. The request for the vote was made by United Press System Division 47 of the C. T. U., with branches across the country, principally from Boston to Atlanta and Los Angeles to Portland, Ore., the N. L. R. B. said.

N. Y.-Chicago Service Hit

A spokesman for the American Telephone and Telegraph Company said in New York City last night that service from New York to the struck areas around Chicago had been suspended since early yesterday morning. He said emergency calls were the only calls being accepted, and these are being put through by management employees both here and in Chicago.

UNRRA PROVISO IS DEPRECATED

'Free Press' Restriction Out Of Place, Eugene Meyer Says

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post, urged today that the United States contribute relief funds abroad without tacking on a "free press" amendment.

He told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that strings of that sort on UNRRA funds would "tend to delay or obstruct" the relief of starvation.

The "free press" proposal has been in the legislative mill several times in connection with appropriations for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Proviso Added By House

The House wrote into the last supplemental appropriation a proviso that nations participating in these relief funds must give the American press and radio full access to any news concerning the use of such money. The Senate hasn't yet acted on that measure.

Meyer's testimony was elicited in connection with new legislation authorizing the United States to contribute another $1,350,000,000 to the UNRRA.

The publisher told the committee:

"We have no right to introduce restrictions unless we are willing to have the 44 other participating nations do the same, and that would result in infinite delay."

This country, he said, had within its power the opportunity to be "the savior of nations."

"Munitions For Peace"

These relief funds, Meyer asserted, are "the munitions for peace" and the failure to supply them adequately will "threaten the kind of peace for which we fought and sacrificed so much in blood."

"I am all for freedom of the press," Meyer declared, "but it doesn't seem that a rider of that kind has anything to do with the purpose of this action—which is the relief of starvation."

Herbert H. Lehman, director general of the UNRRA, testified that his organization "saved" millions from starvation "and only through its efforts can millions more be saved in the months that lie ahead."

LEHMAN DEFENDS ACTIONS OF UNRRA

Washington, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—Herbert H. Lehman, director-general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, told the House Foreign Affairs Committee today that the UNRRA has "nothing to apologize for."

Protesting with obvious emotion against implications which he said committee members made during hearings on a $1,350,000,000 supply bill for UNRRA, the former New York Governor said:

"Mistakes are inherent in the kind of work with which UNRRA has been charged, but I think it is wrong to emphasize the mistakes without telling the story of what UNRRA has accomplished.

"Through UNRRA'S activities millions have been saved from starvation, and only through its efforts can millions more be saved in the months that lie ahead."

Earlier Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post, had urged that Congress not include in the authorization measure a requirement that countries receiving aid from UNRRA give American news men freedom of access to information concerning UNRRA.

"I am all for freedom of the press," Meyer said, "but it doesn't seem that a rider of that kind has anything to do with the purpose of this action, which is the relief of starvation. Instead, it will tend to delay or obstruct them."

Scientist Predicts Radar Will Play Peacetime Role

NEW YORK, Nov. 19. — (AP) Dr. Lee A. Dubridge, dean of the Graduate School of the University of Rochester, said tonight that microwave radar, a vital factor in the war, was a mystery to the Germans almost to the end.

Dr. Dubridge, one of the leading figures in the wartime research on radar conducted by the Office of Scientific Research and Development, spoke on the Mutual network series "Science In War and Peace."

The Germans, he said, knew about long-wave radar and developed counter-measures against it. He added:

"But that did not stop the sinkings. Only too late did they realize that it was microwave radar which was spotting them when they thought they were safe and then there was nothing they could do about it."

Dr. Dubridge said that although "radar will always be thought of as a child of World War II," the beginnings of the new development "go back to long before the war." But the "flowering of radar occurred with dramatic suddenness," he declared.

"The situation looked very discouraging in the Fall of 1940," he continued. "Just at that time, a British scientific mission arrived in this country with a sample of a new kind of tube just developed in England which solved the problem. This tube, known as the cavity magnetro, would do the trick and microwave radar suddenly became a practical possibility."

Dr. Dubridge, who also is head of the Radiation Laboratory of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said "time was getting short; the Battle of Britain was at the height of its fury; it might already be too late."

A group of scientists and engineers was recruited to start the radiation laboratory. Four months later an experimental radar was flying in an old army bomber, he said. From then on, progress was rapid.

"In spite of the tremendous effect radar had on the war," Dr Dubridge said, "still greater possibilities for more effective and sensational uses lie ahead. Radar is no longer a device—it is a way of life."

BARUCH URGED FOR NEW POST

Forrestal Suggests Him For Head Of Security Study

Detroit, Nov. 19 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Forrestal suggested today that Bernard M. Baruch be named to head a presidential commission to study the entire question of national security.

Forrestal said that Baruch, a frequent adviser of Presidents, is "a citizen who has had intimate familiarity with our organization for war in two great struggles."

The Navy has recommended that such a commission be named before any action is taken to merge the armed forces into one department.

In a talk prepared for the economic Club of Detroit, Forrestal said national security is "a question whose ramifications spread beyond the jurisdiction of any single congressional committee and beyond the cognizance of any military organization."

Forrestal's Suggestion

The Secretary said:

"In order to dispose of the charge that the Navy's suggestion of this commission is based simply on tactics of delay, linger and wait, I propose that the commission be given a deadline for the conclusion of its work of July 1, 1946, so that its results would be available for the deliberations of Congress immediately after that date.

"The commission should study the 'import of new weapons of warfare on our national security'," Forrestal declared. "If we reorganize the armed forces today, how do we know that the new organization will conform to the potentialities of new weapons? Perhaps the commission will recommend a new independent service using guiding missiles instead of one conglomerate service. Perhaps the strategic air force of big bombers as we know it will be judged as dead as the horse and buggy."

Schools Of Thought Criticized

Forrestal described as "unadult" both extreme schools of thought on sharing the atomic bomb secret with the rest of the world.

NOV 20 1945

30.24-31749

NOV 20 1945

One of these groups, he said, wants to "hug the secret to our bosom;" the other would make the discovery available to anyone, 'even without being aware yet of its full implications."

The recent statement of policy issued by President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Forrestal said, "sharpens more than any other utterances that I have noted the argument for a creation of a world union."

DUTCH MARINES BARRED IN U. S.

State Department Asserts Training Has Ended.

Washington, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—The State Department announced today that the Netherlands were informed immediately after the Japanese surrender that the sending of Dutch Marines to this country for training should be discontinued.

In addition, the announcement said the Netherlands Government was told that Dutch Marines in the United States at the time of Japan's surrender should be ready to leave, together with their equipment by mid-November of 1945. This appeared to be the earliest date that shipping could be made available by the United Maritime Authority, the announcement said.

It added that when the Japanese surrendered, about 5,000 Dutch Marines were undergoing training in the United States and an additional 2,000 were awaiting transportation to this country.

The notification sent to the Netherlands Government was in accordance with policy directives adopted prior to the Japanese capitulation, the announcement said. There was no immediate amplification of the announcement and no indication whether the 5,000 Marines had yet departed.

An officer of the Netherlands Marine organization told a reporter last week, however, that about 1,940 Marines were to ship out for the Netherlands East Indies by the end of the week, and that virtually all of the remaining force would follow this week. They were to travel in Dutch ships, the officer said.

He added that only a liquidation force of 150 to 200 officers and men would be left in the United States.

U. S. Relaxes Restrictions on Belgian Assets

But Treasury Will Keep Control Over Funds Now in Questionable Hands

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—The United States announced today the virtual unfreezing of Belgian assets in this country. In June, 1941, Belgian holdings here were estimated at approximately $760,000,000.

To prevent the release of property which may be enemy-owned, the Treasury Department said, funds or assets presently blocked because the connections of the listed owners are questionable, will remain frozen until the Belgian authorities certify that such property is actually Belgian-owned. Investigation also will be made of the ownership of American securities located in Belgium before dealings in such securities are permitted.

However, through today's order, restrictions on current trade, remittances and other transactions with Belgium are removed. Trade between Belgium and any other non-blocked country may be freely financed through the United States.

Secretary Fred M. Vinson said the Belgian Minister of Finance has informed the Treasury that property in Belgium owned by United States nationals, which had been sequestered by the Germans, is being released as soon as its ownership is ascertained.

The Belgian Minister of Finance also has agreed to liberalize exchange control restrictions on transfers from Belgium to the United States.

Belgian assets here were frozen on May 10, 1940, when that country was invaded by Germany.

Poet Indicted for Treason Also Wants MacLeish to Testify in His Behalf

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP).—Ezra Pound, poet, indicted for treason, said in District Court today he wanted Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace and Archibald MacLeish to testify for him at his trial.

Appearing for a preliminary argument, the sixty-five-year-old, Idaho-born poet who has passed most of the last thirty-five years abroad told Judge Bolitha J. Laws he talked to Mr. Wallace and Mr. MacLeish when he came here in 1939. He said his purpose then was "to keep hell from breaking loose in the world."

Mr. MacLeish is a former Librarian of Cangress and Assistant Secretary of State.

Pound, one-time Paris dandy, appeared tired and disheveled in court. He wore a dirty G. I. sweatshirt, a pair of baggy pants, and coat and G. I. shoes that were obviously too large for him.

Declaring he had only $23, Pound asked to act as his own counsel, bu Judgs Laws told him the charge was too serious for that. Pound then agreed to have the court appoint an attorney for him, and Judge Laws set Nov. 27 for a formal arraignment.

Talking with reporters later, Pound declared he wanted to learn Georgian, Stalin's native tongue. He then would go to Russia, he said, on behalf of the United States and confer with the Russian leader. He said he wished to "see what's in the back of his mind."

Pound denied he ever supported Mussolini, and gave this description of the late Italian dictator: "A puffed-up bubble."

Mussolini was unimportant, he said, "just a figure selected by higher forces."

On his arrival here last night, Pound denied he had betrayed his country in war-time broadcasts from Rome. He told reporters "if that damn fool idea is still in anybody's head, I want to wipe it out."

'Modernize'

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Agriculture Department says it expects the wholesale and retail food trades to spend "hundreds of millions" of dollars next year on a broad expansion program.

Accumulated orders for all types of grocery manufacturing equipment alone were estimated at $600,000,000.

One-Story Wholesale Plants

Reporting today on a series of surveys, the department said they indicated that the food trade will engage in extensive building of streamlined one-story wholesale plants, including refrigeration equipment and storage rooms for greatly expanded frozen food sales.

Likewise, many new supermarkets and suburban food shopping centers are expected to be built.

Food-Dehydration Plants

Likely to figure to some extent in the expansion of food processing will be Government policy—still to be formulated—on the disposal of 56 food-dehydration plants. These were financed by the Government during the war at a cost of $12,000,000 to help supply lend-lease and military needs.

These Government - financed plants have an estimated yearly production capacity of 92,000,000 pounds of milk products, 36,000,000 pounds of vegetable products, and 45,000,000 pounds of fruit products.

Citrus Concentrate Plants

There are, in addition, two Government-owned citrus concentrate plants in Florida, with an estimated yeraly production of over a million gallons of concentrated citrus juice and a million pounds of a single strength juice.

In discussing the postwar situation of the food industry the department said that it is in a relatively strong financial position.

Population Shifts A Problem

Among problems ahead, the department added, is that of prospective population shifts as war-production centers lose some of the population they gained during the war.

"Among areas affected are the Far West, the South and the Detroit-Cleveland-Chicago area," the department said. "This is a long-range problem also to be taken into account along with industry's plans to decentralize and with such eventualities as the possible development of a new 'industrial empire' on the West Coast."

LE MAY VISIONS NEW WAR IN AIR

Pearl Harbor To Seem Like 'Day In Country,' He Warns

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—"December 7, 1941, will seem like a quiet day in the country in comparison with the first day of the next war," Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Le May, of B-29 Superfortress fame, asserted today.

Ohio-born Le May, in an address at the Ohio Society of New York, called for American preparedness based on a unified command with air power given coequal status with land and sea forces.

'Distance Will Be Academic'

Recalling that America never had been prepared for war, Le May said "our preparedness should be the measure of our desire for peace." He added:

"In the next war—and who can say there will never be another war?—distance will be academic and there will be no time to prepare.

"For the next war will be launched from the air. It will be fought with new and fantastic weapons of air warfare.

"I am only generalizing about the next war, because if I told you what I think may happen in the next war, you wouldn't believe me.

"World Of . . . Atomic Power"

"But what is already here must be believed. Today we are living in a world of rockets, radar, jet propulsion, television-guided missiles, speeds faster than sound, and atomic power.

"The essence of our preparedness must be a strong defense establishment. To be efficient this defense establishment must consist of a unified command with one man at the head.

"In this unified command, air power must be given coequal status with the land and sea forces.

"No air attack, once it is launched, can be completely stopped.

"Prepare" Emphasized

"Therefore, unless we want our cities leveled, our homes destroyed, our people killed in massive attacks from the air—attacks which could be launched from great distances—we must be prepared. I cannot stress that word 'prepare' strongly enough."

Declaring that his words were not spoken lightly, Le May added:

"Those who would impede air power fail their country. Upon the encouragement given air power in the next few years depends the destiny of the nation."

WOMEN SUPPORT TRUMAN ON DRAFT

Washington, Nov. 19 (A. P.).—Spokesmen for three women's organizations indorsed President Truman's universal military training program today in testimony before the House Military Affairs Committee.

Two of them said they had no objection to drafting women for war-time training in time of peace.

The witnesses as the committee went into the third week of hearings, with less than ten of its twenty-seven members present, were Mrs. Lafell Dickinson of Washington, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Lula E. Bachman of Detroit, chairman of the Michigan branch of the Committee for Universal training of young men, and Mrs. Ernesta Barlow of New York, vice-president of the Committee for Military Training of Young Men.

All three expressed the opinion that universal military training was necessary for the security of the United States and the success of the United Nations Organization.

"I think that's perfectly splendid, and I have two daughters," Mrs. Dickinson said when Representative Shafer (R.-Mich.) asked if she objected to treating young women the same as men in a peace-time draft program.

Mrs. Bachman said that she also favored the drafting of women but believed it should be dealt with in separate legislation.

Both Mrs. Dickinson and Mrs. Bachman emphasized that the views they expressed were their own and not necessarily those of their organizations.

Broader and More Liberal Government Aid to Veterans For Purchase of Homes or Farms Proposed by Mrs. Luce

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19—(AP) Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R-Conn.) today proposed broader and more liberal government aid to veterans for the purchase of homes or farms.

Under the present law, she said, "veterans have been given the run-around in thousands of cases."

She offered legislation which would:

1. Give veterans unconditional priorities for building materials.
2. Increase from $2,000 to $5,000 the amount which a veteran may borrow for farm or home purchase with government guarantee;
3. Provide that the Federal government pay all interest above two per cent on such guaranteed loans;
4. Establish a housing bureau in the Veterans administration; and
5. Require other Federal agencies to cooperate with this bureau in making housing studies and aiding home purchases by veterans.

"Veterans returning from overseas are coming back home to be confronted with an inexcusable and almost insurmountable condition of confusion and frustration," Mrs. Luce said in a statement.

"Men who have been through the horrors of war and months of living in water up to their shoulders in foxholes, and in the slime and filth of tropical islands have a big enough job to do in readjustment themselves to peaceful and orderly lives at home without being loaded with additional burdens as a penalty for having bravely served their country in war. x x x

"I can conceive of no influence which could more rapidly eradicate the nightmares of war experiences from the slumber of returning veterans," she continued, "than to be engaged in the happy duties of building their own homes, improving their own farms, taking their own brides into their own nests and preparing to raise happy families of useful citizens."

Her bill provides that any government official or private person convicted of evading provisions of the bill shall be subject to a $10,000 fine, 10 years imprisonment, or both.

U.S. Joblessness Leveled For Time

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Federal Security Agency said today that reconversion joblessness has passed its first crest and leveled off temporarily.

Unemployment insurance claims, the agency reported, reached a peak total of 1,708,000 the week of October 6. By the week of November 10 it had dropped to 1,680,000.

Joblessness will increase again, the agency said, as demobilization of veterans progresses.

Insurance Claims Steady

FSA said that while some 5,000,000 war workers lost jobs when munitions contracts were canceled, unemployment insurance claims have remained at around 1,700,000 during each of the last six weeks.

This indicates that many war workers have withdrawn from the labor market, FSA explained.

Less than 200,000 new claims have been filed during each of the last six weeks, the agency said, adding:

"Evidently people are leaving the unemployment compensation claims rolls as fast as new claimants are coming on."

FSA said that since Japan's surrender, about 3,400,000 different individuals have filed insurance claims. More than 40 per cent of them found jobs by the end of October, the agency added.

Illinois Load Is High

The report said that states with high claim loads for the week of November 10 were:

New York, 208,506; Michigan, 167,150; California, 179,359; Illinois, 315,889; Pennsylvania, 188,297; New Jersey, 129,287, and Ohio, 109,073. All other states, FSA said, had less than 54,000 each.

Metropolitan areas with high claim loads included:

New York city, 121,598; Detroit, 108,662; Los Angeles, 109,334; Chicago, 74,195, and Newark, 63,946.

All other metropolitan areas had less than 46,000 each, FSA reported.

Slash In Small-Business Fund Laid To Big Firms

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—Chairman Patman (D., Texas) contended today that "big interests" are trying to scuttle the Small Business Committee he heads in the House.

Patman made the assertion after the House Accounts Committee voted to give him only $20,000 of the $134,000 he had asked to finance his group until January 1.

"That's just scuttling my committee," Patman said. "I'm going to take it to the House floor and will ask for the full $134,000."

Blames Chains, Auto Firms

Patman said that amount is needed "to protect small business in this country." Amplifying his reference to "big interests," he said he blamed chain stores and automobile manufacturers in particular for the move.

He said "the chains have always fought me," and added that the auto manufacturers "resented" the committee's recent recommendations that their profit margins be reduced in the sale of new cars.

Representative Max Schwabe (R., Mo.), a member of the Accounts Committee, took issue with Patman.

"Grandstanding," Is Retort

"I think that's a lot of grandstanding. There've been no big business interests approaching our committee. We wanted to give him [Patman] just as little as he could get by on," Schwabe said.

Schwabe also said he opposed "spending so much money just to have the committee keep tab on the OPA merry-go-'round." He said Patman reported that the chief job of his group was to check the OPA's activities with reference to small business.

Patman contended that the committee was active throughout Federal agencies and had "saved small business interests from being crushed in the wheels of a rapidly changing economy."

U.S. FINANCES IN WAR PRAISED

Under Secretary Of Treasury Makes Report

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—The war was well financed and "our banking institutions, business in general, and individuals are in a healthier financial condition than ever before," Daniel W. Bell, Under Secretary of the Treasury, declared tonight.

Bell told the annual dinner meeting of the Association of Stock Exchange Firms that from July, 1940, to July, 1945, the Federal Government spent $323,000,000,000, of which $290,000,000,000 was for national defense.

Tax receipts were $133,000,000,000, leaving a deficit of $190,000,000,000 Bell reported, and nonbank investors returned $121,000,000,000 of it to the Treasury in Federal securities.

Some "Hot Money"

Bell declared that of $68,000,000,000 savings which went into money forms, some part "is definitely hot money," in the inflationary sense, but "the largest part of the funds placed in cash forms represents legitimate savings."

"In absorbing $121,000,000,000 out of $190,000,000,000 of new funds,' 'the Under Secretary said, "we came pretty close to shooting par. On the other hand, no one in the Treasury would argue that the job has been perfect. Moreover, we well realize that even Government securities are not compeltely foolproof in preventing inflation, since bonds can be redeemed or they can be sold in the market."

The Treasury has tailored securities to the needs of the investor, Bell said.

STANFILL NAMED TO SENATE POST

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 19—(AP) William A. Stanfill, Hazard attorney and chairman of the Republican State Central committee, was appointed United States Senator today.

Governor Simeon Willis named him to succeed A. B. (Happy) Chandler who resigned October 1 to devote his time to his duties as Baseball Commissioner to which he was elected by the major league club owners last April 24.

Stanfill will serve by appointment until after a special election next November and since Chandler's unexpired term ends in January, 1949, an election will be held in November, 1948 for the next full term.

Stanfill indicated he would be a candidate next year for Republican nomination and election for the unexpired term, and in response to further questions, added: "Whoever is elected then will have to run again in 1948."

Stanfill, a stocky, young looking man for his 53 years, said he expected to leave for Washington Wednesday, if he could get a train reservation.

He will be the sixth member of his party to serve Kentucky in the United States Senate, and the first one since 1930 when Rep. John M. Robsion served a short time by appointment of Gov. Flem D. Sampson.

F.D.R., Jr., Promoted To Commander

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the late President, confirmed today he had been promoted to the rank of full commander in the United States Navy Reserves, effective November 13.

"But, so far as I can see, it doesn't really mean anything," he said. "Like all commissions at present, the rank is purely for temporary service. I am on terminal leave now, and am scheduled to be severed from the Navy in January."

Roosevelt said he received notice of the promotion "about a week ago" from the Navy Department in Washington.

13,000 Germans Ready For Early Return Home

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—A total of 13,000 German prisoners of war in various camps in the Rocky Mountain and Midwestern areas have been alerted for early return to the fatherland, the War Department said today.

Eight thousand are in Colorado. Six thousand of these will be sent from Camp Carson to the Boston port of embarkation and 2,000 from Camp Greeley will go to New York. Shipments to the East Coast will begin when port commanders notify the camps that ships will be available.

One thousand will leave from a camp at Douglas, Wyo.; 1,600 from Fort Riley, Kan., and 400 from Atlanta, Neb., all for New York. Two thousand will leave a camp at Algona, Iowa, for Boston.

3,114,000 U.S. Soldiers Back In Civilian Life

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP) — The War Department today reported 3,114,000 soldiers were returned to civilian life between V-E day, May 12, and November 16. Of this number, 2,522,000 were discharged after V-J day, September 2.

In the week ended November 16, the Army added, 287,000 were discharged.

At the same time the Veterans Administration reported a sharp increase in readjustment allowances paid to veterans of World War II.

In the week ended October 27, allowances paid 155,154 veterans totaled $3,626,644. This compares with $3,005,424 paid to 126,663 veterans in the preceding week. The allowances are intended to assist veterans in readjusting from armed service to civilian occupations.

Telegraphers Move For UP Strike Vote

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—The AFL Commercial Telegraphers Union today asked the National Labor Relations Board to take a strike vote in 30 days among its members employed by the United Press Association.

The union petitioned the NLRB for a strike ballot under the Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes Act, asserting that a dispute existed chiefly over wages. If the petition is in order, the vote would be taken December 15.

The request for the vote was made by United Press system Division 47 of the CTU with branches across the country, principally from Boston to Atlanta and Los Angeles to Portland, Ore., the NLRB said.

General Truesdell Retires From Army

Fort Devens, Mass., Nov. 19 (AP). The man who probably turned out the most high-ranking army commanders during World War II goes back to civilian life today, retired after 47 years in service.

He is Maj. Gen. Karl Truesdell, who rose from the ranks to become wartime commander of the vitally important command and general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

His retirement was announced by headquarters at this army post where in the early days of the war he was commander of the 1st Infantry Division. He was commanding general of the 6th Corps, with headquarters at Providence, R.I., before going to Fort Leavenworth.

During the war, General Truesdell visited every battle front to observe how his former students were functioning. At Leavenworth, he sliced the two-year course to thirteen weeks of intensive training.

Family Coming To Join Sailor, Nearly Blind

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP) — An American sailor, in danger of blindness, soon may be reunited with his New Zealand wife and two small children.

The State Department today informed the office of Representative Ramspeck (D., Ga.) it has wired the American consul at Wellington, New Zealand, to grant an entrance visa to Mrs. Wiliam P. Bingham and her children.

Seaman Second Class William C. Bingham, of Atlanta, is waiting for them in a hospital at Charleston, S.C. Already blind in one eye, navy doctors say he is in danger of losing his sight entirely from an eye disease contracted in the South Pacific.

Ship Named In Honor Of Marine Corps Hero

Bath, Maine, Nov. 19 (AP) — The 2,220-ton destroyer Bausell, named for a Washington (D.C.) Marine who died a hero in the Pelelieu Islands, slid down ways of the Bath Iron Works Corporation today in the presence of the Congressional Medal winner's parents and Rear Admiral Frank E. Beatty, commanding Atlantic Fleet destroyers.

Mrs. Lawrence K. Bausell, of Washington, christened the ship for her son, Corporal Lewis K. Bausell, posthumously awarded the nation's highest valor medal for shielding comrades with his own body from the blast of a Japanese grenade September 15, 1944.
